The instrumental competitions, of which Mr. A. Bent was the adjudicator, produced some exceptionally good results. Four pairs were heard in Beethoven's Sonata in F for violin and pianoforte, which was exceedingly well played in more than one case, while the sight test which accompanied it showed that the competitors had considerable musicianship, the winners giving quite finished performances of the pieces placed before them. The pianoforte trios also were very satisfactory, and the playing of Gade's Trio in F by the party to whom the first prize was awarded was perhaps the best performance during the whole of the competitions. It was, indeed, remarkably free from amateurishness. Incidentally, it may be added, the performance furnished an interesting instance of heredity in art, the young violoncellist being a descendant, in the sixth generation, of the first of the Camidges who were organists of York Cathedral.

No. 847 NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK. (SECOND SERIES.) Price 3*d.*

TO MRS. ARTHUR HOLLAND.

THE CHASE

FOUR-PART SONG

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY EDWARD OXENFORD

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EDWARD GERMAN.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Allegro con spirito.

SOPRANO. f A - wake! the gold - en morn is here, The sun - rays bright-ly stream - ing, A -

ALTO. f A - wake! the gold - en morn is here, The sun - rays bright-ly stream - ing, A -

TENOR. f A - wake! the gold - en morn is here, The sun - rays bright-ly stream - ing, The BASS. f A - wake! the gold - en morn is here, The sun - rays bright-ly stream - ing, The Allegro con spirito.

f

- wake! . . . . . The time is o'er for dream - ing, the time is o'er for

- wake! . . . . . The time is o'er for dream - ing, the time is o'er for horns re - ech - o far and near, far and near! And time is o'er for dream - ing, for horns re - ech - o far and near, far and near! And time is o'er for dream - ing, for

Copyright, 1900, by Novello and Company, Limited.

dream - ing! Up - on the sward the gal - lant steeds im - pa - tient-ly are neigh - ing; They dream - ing! Up - on the sward the gal - lant steeds im - pa - tient-ly are neigh - ing; They dream - ing! Up - on the sward the gal - lant steeds im - pa - tient-ly are neigh - ing! They dream - ing! Up - on the sward the gal - lant steeds im - pa - tient-ly are neigh - ing! They yearn to press the spread - ing meads, And loud the hounds . . are bay - - yearn to press the spread - ing meads, And loud the hounds are bay - - yearn to press the spread - ing meads, And loud the hounds are bay - - yearn to press the spread - ing meads, And loud the hounds are bay - -
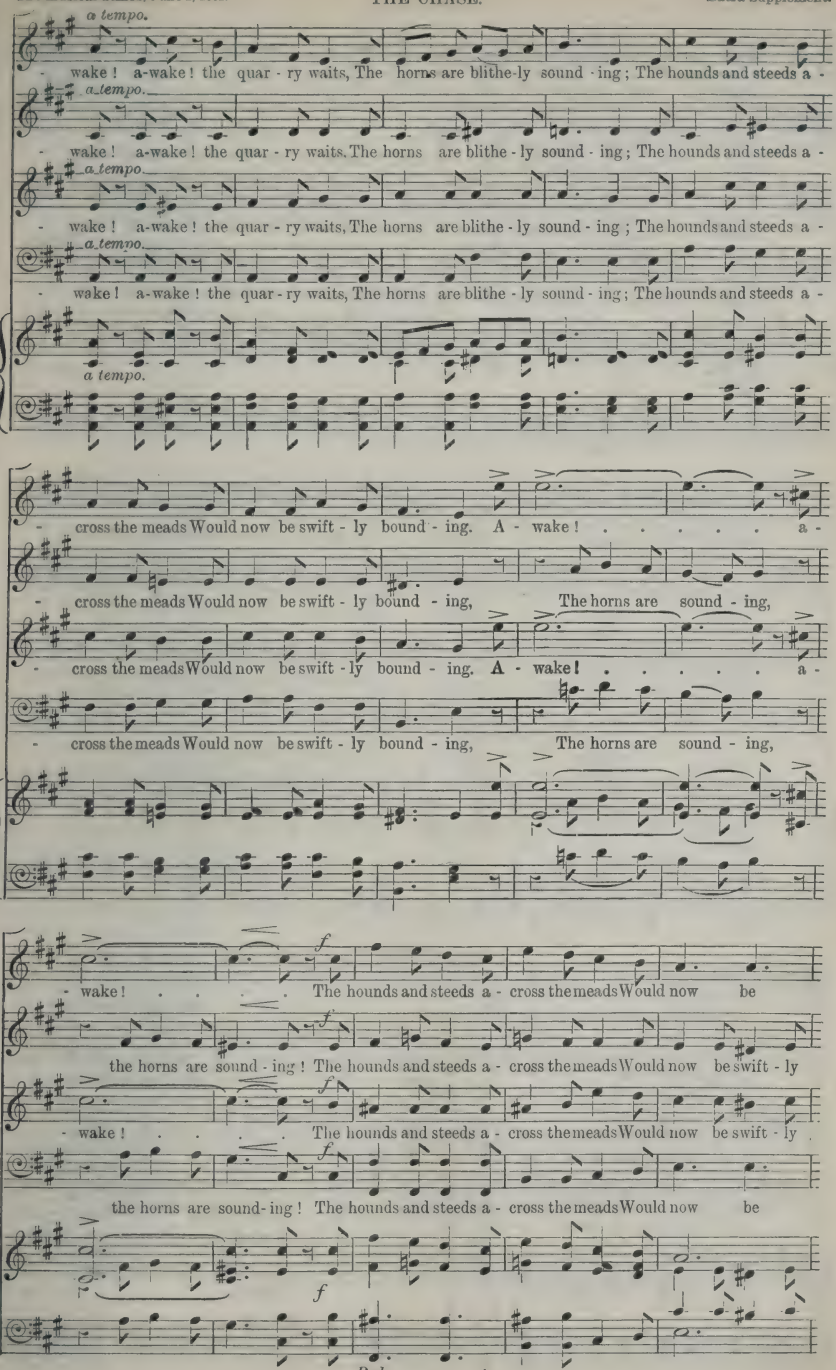
- ing! . . A - wake! the gold - en morn is here. A -
- ing! . . A - wake! the gold - en morn is here, is here. . . A -
- ing! . . A - wake! the gold - en morn is here, the sun - rays bright - ly stream - ing. A -
- ing! . . A - wake! . . . . . A -



a tempo.
wake! a-wake! the quar-ry waits, The horns are blithe-ly sound-ing; The hounds and steeds across the meads Would now be swift-ly bound-ing. A-wake! . . . . . a-
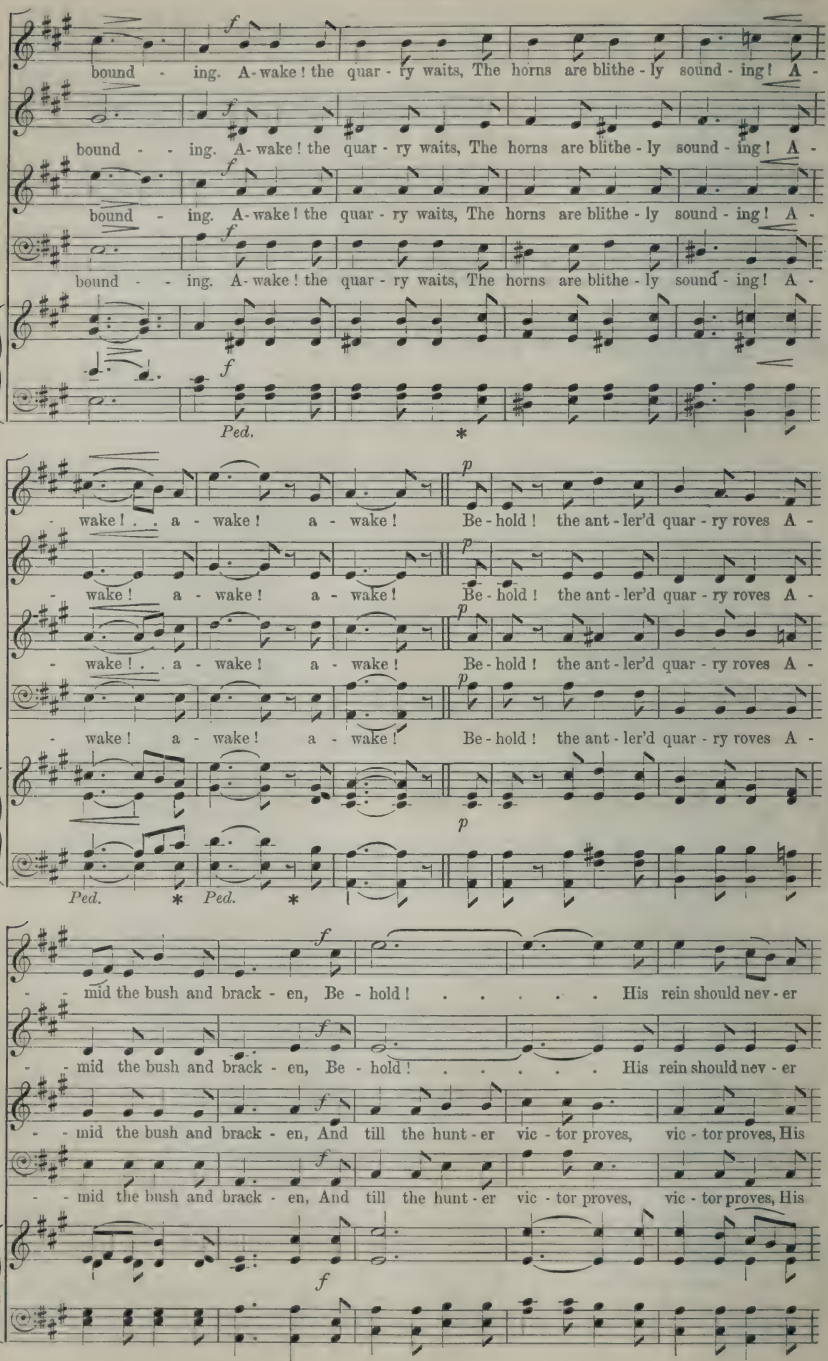
The horns are sound-ing, wake! . . . . The hounds and steeds a-cross the meads Would now be the horns are sound-ing! The hounds and steeds a-cross the meads Would now be swift-ly
Ped. *



bound - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing! A - bound - - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing! A - bound - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing! A - bound - - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing! A -
Ped. *
- wake! . . a - wake! a - wake! Be - hold! the ant - ler'd quar - ry roves A -
- wake! a - wake! a - wake! Be - hold! the ant - ler'd quar - ry roves A -
- wake! . . a - wake! a - wake! Be - hold! the ant - ler'd quar - ry roves A -
- wake! a - wake! a - wake! Be - hold! the ant - ler'd quar - ry roves A - Ped. * Ped. *
- - mid the bush and brack - en, Be - hold! . . . . . His rein should nev - er
- - mid the bush and brack - en, Be - hold! . . . . . His rein should nev - er
- - mid the bush and brack - en, And till the hunt - er vic - tor proves, vic - tor proves, His
- - mid the bush and brack - en, And till the hunt - er vic - tor proves, vic - tor proves, His slack - en, His rein should nev - er slack - en! So come and join the slack - en, His rein should nev - er slack - en! So come and join the rein should nev - er slack - en, nev - er slack - en! So come and join the rein should nev - er slack - en, nev - er slack - en! So come and join the stur - dy chase O'er ev - 'ry hill and hol - low; Not lag - ging, but at stur - dy chase O'er ev - 'ry hill and hol - low; Not lag - ging, but at stur - dy chase O'er ev - 'ry hill and hol - low; Not lag - ging, but at stur - dy chase O'er ev - 'ry hill and hol - low; Not lag - ging, but at light - ning pace, The nim - ble deer we'll fol - low.

light - ning pace, The nim - ble deer we'll fol - low.
light - ning pace, The nim - ble deer we'll fol - low. Be - light - ning pace, The nim - ble deer we'll fol - low. Be -

mf
rall.
p
Be - hold! the ant - ler'd quar - ry roves! A - Be - hold! the ant - ler'd quar - ry roves, be - hold! A -
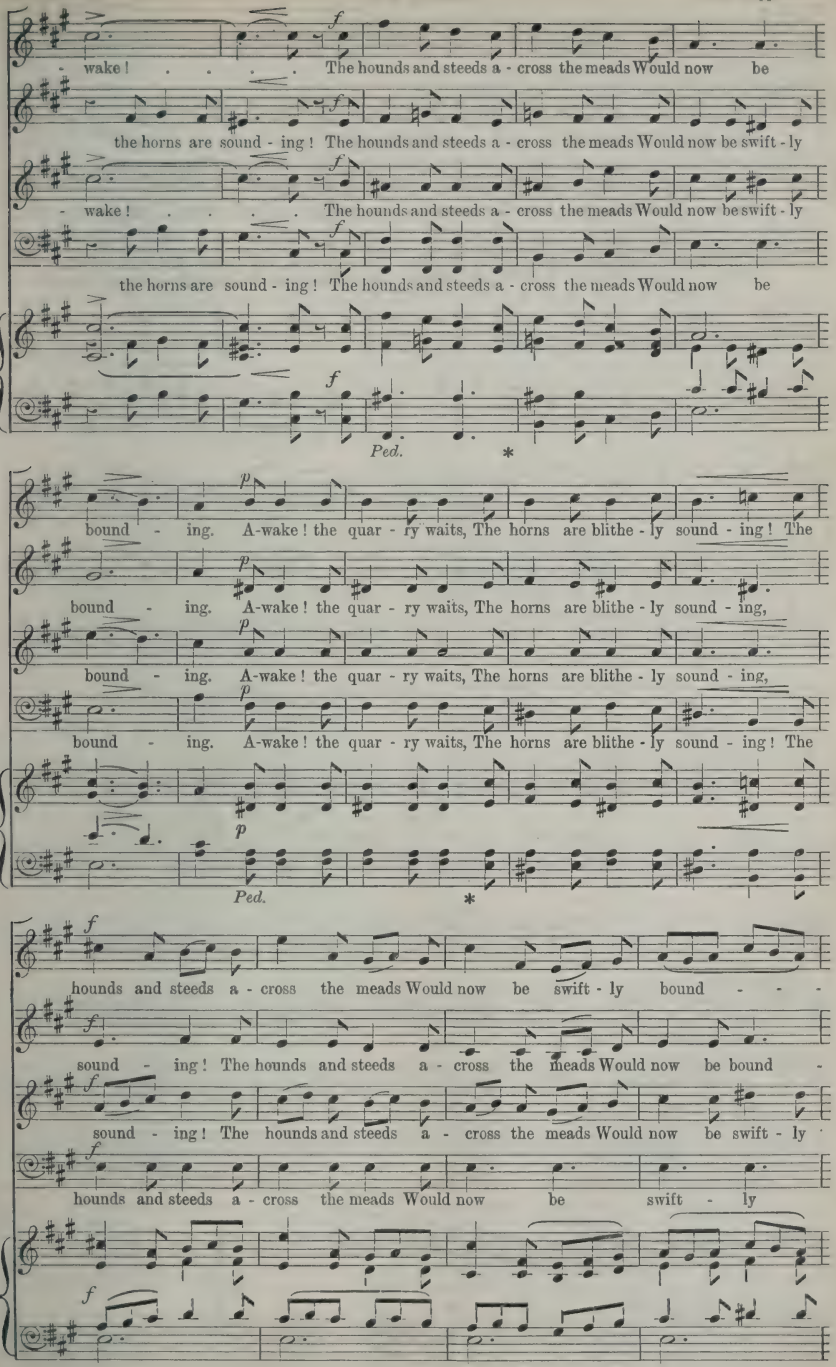
- hold! the ant - ler'd quar - ry roves A - mid the bush and brack - en! A -
- hold! A -
a tempo.
- wake! a-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithely sound - ing; The hounds and steeds a -
- wake! a-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing; The hounds and steeds a -
- wake! a- wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe- ly sound - ing; The hounds and steeds a -
- wake! a- wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe- ly sound - ing; The hounds and steeds a -
f
- cross the meads Would now be swift - ly bound - ing. A - wake!
- cross the meads Would now be swift - ly bound - ing,
The horns are sound - ing!
- cross the meads Would now be swift - ly bound - ing. A - wake!
- cross the meads Would now be swift - ly bound - ing,
The horns are sound - ing!



- wake! . . . . The hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be the horns are sound - ing! The hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be swift - ly
- wake! . . . . The hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be swift - ly the horns are sound - ing! The hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be
Ped. *
bound - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing! The bound - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing, bound - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing, bound - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, The horns are blithe - ly sound - ing! The
Ped. *
hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be swift - ly bound - - - sound - ing! The hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be bound - sound - ing! The hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be swift - ly hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be swift - ly ing, Ah!

ing, would now be swift - ly bound-ing, swift - ly bound - - ing, . . The bound - ing, would now be swift - ly bound - ing, would now be swift-ly bound - ing, The bound - ing, would now be swift - ly bound - ing, would now be swift-ly bound - ing, The
The steeds a - cross the meads Would now be bound - ing. A-wake! the hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be swift - ly bound - ing. A-wake! the hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be swift - ly bound - ing. A-wake! the hounds and steeds a - cross the meads Would now be bound - ing. A-wake! the quar - ry waits, A - wake! a - wake! . . a - wake! a - wake! . . .
Ped.
quar - ry waits, A - wake! a - wake! a - wake! . . .
quar - ry waits, A - wake! a - wake! a - wake! . . .
quar - ry waits, A - wake! a - wake! a - wake! . . .

There was some capital singing in the choral classes heard on the second day. The choirs of female voices were heard in two well-chosen pieces, Schumann's 'Sinks the night' and Dr. C. H. Lloyd's 'Ode to a Skylark,' which were sung with great expression and almost ultra-refinement. The village choral societies showed an all-round improvement, that furnished a very satisfactory proof of the good these competitions have done since they were instituted, that most reverent, touching, and truly devotional old anthem, Farrant's 'Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake,' being sung very creditably by five choirs in turn. Good results again were obtained in the class for larger villages, Stevens's part-song, 'Blow, blow, thou winter wind,' being the test piece. The closeness of the competition is illustrated by the marks obtained by the first four choirs: Monk Tryston, 48; Healaugh, 47; Ouseburn, 46, and Terrington, 45. The Madrigal competition is always a point of interest on these occasions. Dowland's 'Awake, sweet love,' was chosen at York, and here Healaugh was easily first.

The final section of the competitions was for town choirs, in which there was some keen rivalry. The silver challenge shield, open to choirs within a radius of twenty miles, competed for by nine choirs, was won by the York Centenary Chapel Choir, Pinsuti's popular part-song, 'The sea hath its pearls,' being the test piece.

An interesting feature of the proceedings was the singing by the combined village choirs of Purcell's 'Full fathom five,' which was given with admirable spirit, while the town choirs joined in Mendelssohn's Psalm, 'Judge me, O God,' the fulness and weight of tone being really superb. Both performances were conducted very ably by Miss Egerton.

THE FIRST BLACKPOOL FESTIVAL.

Blackpool is a seaside resort much in favour with the denizens of the manufacturing districts of Lancashire and the West Riding of Yorkshire. Its natural attractions are not particularly conspicuous, but any defect in that direction is more than balanced, in the eyes of its frequenters, by the extraordinary abundance of its places of amusement. It may seriously be doubted whether there can be any other town, all the world over, so lavishly supplied with luxuriously appointed ball-rooms, concert halls, theatres, and the like. Blackpool also boasts of a Glee and Madrigal Society, which has gained much glory in recent competitions at Morecambe and elsewhere, and it possesses a choirmaster, Mr. H. Whittaker, of exceptional ability, so that with such facilities as to locale and executive forces, it is not surprising that it should venture upon a musical festival. The first Blackpool Festival, which took place on the 15th to 18th ult., was of a dual nature. There were three days' competitions, ending with a concert in which their results were, so to say, summed up, and three evening concerts, conducted by Dr. Richter, in which the Hallé orchestra, together with a local chorus of 250 voices, took part.

Let us take the competitions first. These were judged by Dr. McNaught, whose experience and facility in this work is absolutely unique, and Dr. Varley Roberts, whose fame as a choir-trainer is admitted on all hands. There were the usual classes for children, for choirs, for instrumentalists, and for orchestras, while, as a proof that the educational character of the institution was not overlooked, sight-tests were a conspicuous and interesting feature of the event. There were numerous young violinists and pianists of both sexes, of whom the best showed exceptional promise, but a large proportion were so immature that they should not have been allowed to compete. It is to be hoped that at future Festivals the standard set at the first may frighten away the incompetent, whose performances should be reserved for the family circle. The second day's competitions were solely for juniors, and, as I have had occasion to point out with regard to York, abundant proof was afforded of the attention paid to music in elementary schools. The sight-singing was particularly good; as will be understood from the simple fact that three school choirs won 38, 35, and 32 marks respectively out of a maximum 40 for their performances of the sight-test, while the best two soloists in the Tonic Sol-fa division received as the aggregate result of a graduated series of five tests—the last a very stiff one—184 and 169 marks respectively, out of a possible 200.

The orchestral classes, which are of such great importance to general musical culture in the provinces, produced, unfortunately, no contest; but the Nelson orchestra, which was allowed a walk-over in a piece for strings and in Sullivan's 'Di Ballo' Overture, played so well that it would not have been easy to beat. Nelson is a small manufacturing town in Lancashire, and it is said that most of the fifty players in this band are mill hands; but they play with marked refinement, and the quality and intonation of the strings are most praiseworthy. Mr. Charles Townsley, the conductor, must be a teacher of exceptional ability. Nelson also supplied the only string quartet party, which played portions of a Mozart quartet with pleasant tone and even style.

The choral classes were on familiar lines. The Morecambe Madrigal Society was conspicuously successful, winning the open competition for mixed choirs by some highly finished performances, that realised well the spirit of the music, and were technically excellent, especially in the matter of keeping closely to the pitch; while in the supplementary test in sight-reading a wonderfully plucky attempt was made at an unpublished part-song, which presented some abnormal difficulties of modulation and the like. There was some very even singing, and a high standard was adhered to, by five mixed choirs that sang in another class; but here again the fidelity with which the St. Helen's Choir stuck to the pitch largely contributed to their success. Among the male-voice choirs the Manchester Orpheus, whose precision approached the mechanical, was easily first. The competitions culminated on the Saturday evening with a spirited performance of Stanford's 'Phaudrig Crohoore,' by some of the chief choirs, accompanied by the Nelson orchestra, and conducted by Dr. McNaught, who, in spite of lack of rehearsal, managed to get an effective ensemble from his heterogeneous force.

The three concerts of choral and orchestral music took place in the sumptuous hall known as the 'Pavilion,' in Blackpool Tower, perhaps the most magnificent and comfortable concert hall in this country, its Rococo decorations being as artistic as they are elaborate. The chief choral works were Bach's cantata 'O Light everlasting,' Beethoven's 'Choral' Symphony, Brahms's 'German Requiem,' Parry's 'Blest Pair of Sirens,' and Stanford's 'Last Post.' The chorus was, as has been mentioned, local, its nucleus being the Glee and Madrigal Society, augmented by singers from the district to the total number of 250, which was in the proportion of five to two of the orchestra, less than is customary, but more in accord with the excellent principles recently enunciated by Professor Prout. The balance of tone was, on the whole, most satisfactory, though the chorus was not very advantageously placed for weight of tone to tell, being too nearly on a level with the band. Considering, too, that hitherto they have been less concerned with great choral works than with the 'glees and madrigals' which give the Blackpool Society its name, their success was very promising for the future of the Festival. The soloists were Madame Blanche Marchesi, Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Helen Jaxon, Miss Ada Crossley, Miss Florence Oliver, Messrs. W. Green, Harold Wilde, Watkin Mills, and Fowler Burton, who are for the most part much too well known to need commendation; but an exception may be made in favour of Mr. Burton, a young Manchester singer, who practically made his début in Brahms's 'Requiem,' singing the baritone solos with fine voice and considerable intelligence. Dr. Richter and his band, which, under his guidance, has developed even more surprisingly than might have been expected, were in particularly good form, and gave some really superb performances, among which may be singled out Dr. Elgar's poetic and fanciful Variations, the 'Tristan' and 'Meistersinger' Preludes, the 'Hebrides' Overture—taken at a rather brisker tempo than usual, with excellent effect—Richard Strauss's 'Don Juan' Fantasia—a masterly performance of a brilliant and fascinating work—and, above all, the 'Choral' Symphony, in which Richter is always seen at his best. Capital organisation and a policy of judicious enterprise have certainly marked this first festival at Blackpool, and there can be little doubt that a strong effort will be made to perpetuate the event.

MORECAMBE.

The annual musical festival at Morecambe was held on the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th ult. In spite of counter attractions this well organised event continues to hold a premier position. This year the competitors were over 3,000 in number and the interest throughout was keen. The first day was mainly for local performers. An evening concert followed, at which Mr. Plunket Greene sang a dozen or so songs in his well known style, and the adult choralists united in giving Gade's 'Spring's Message.' The second day was given up to the children, and a wonderfully interesting day it turned out to be. The action songs, maypole and morris dancing exhibited the skill of the local teachers in a very favourable light. The singing, almost throughout, was of a high standard. A children's concert concluded the day's proceedings. The winners performed their test pieces, and all the children united to sing the cantata 'The Hare and the Tortoise' under Dr. McNaught, who up to the present was the only adjudicator. On the third day there were no competitions.

Sir Frederick Bridge gave a lecture on 'Handel's "Messiah," its composition and mutilation, with some suggestions for its restoration.' The lecture was illustrated by performances of many of the former compositions of the composer, which he redressed for use in 'The Messiah.' Sir Frederick made some strong remarks on the wholesale tampering with Handel's accompaniments which has for so long been tolerated in this country.

The last or 'open' day at Morecambe is regarded as the most important because it attracts choirs and other musical organisations of great repute from many parts of the North country and the Midlands. Eight female voice choirs competed. A delightful performance of the Blackpool ladies, under Mr. Whittaker, secured the first position; the Barrow ladies, under Miss Lones, coming only one mark behind. Elgar's charming Serenade in E minor for strings brought forward five small orchestras. Some of the performances elicited the astonishment of the adjudicator of this section, Mr. Adolf Brodsky. He gave fifty-seven marks out of sixty to Miss Cassidy's orchestra and fifty-three to Mr. Wildman's orchestra. Only three mixed voice choirs were bold enough to enter for sight-singing. The test given was a stiff one, but it was well performed by the winner, the Morecambe Society, under Mr. Howson. The chief event of the day was the struggle for the Challenge Shield offered in the open mixed voice class. Last year the Blackpool choristers won the trophy, and it was known that a determined effort was to be made by some first-rate choirs to wrest it from them this year. The test pieces were 'Autumn' (Brahms), 'I love the jocund dance' (F. Corder), and 'To Mary in Heaven' (G. J. Bennett), all three of which had to be sung, and, of course, unaccompanied. The contest was a memorable one. Many good judges present, including the adjudicators, Sir Frederick Bridge and Dr. McNaught, declared that they had never before heard finer singing. The result was that Blackpool, under Mr. Whittaker, retains the Shield. Blackburn, under Mr. W. Tattersall, Nottingham Tabernacle Choir, under Mr. W. Riley, and the Morecambe Madrigal Society, under Mr. R. G. W. Howson, followed in the order named. Four orchestras played Cherubini's Overture 'Anacreon' in the orchestral class. The playing of the Colne band, under Mr. Lascelles Wildman, gained fifty-three marks out of sixty, the Nelson band, under Mr. Townsley, following with forty-seven marks. The male-voice choirs were not up to the highest standard, except in the case of the Manchester Orpheus Society, under Mr. W. S. Nesbitt. The test pieces were 'T'other day as I sat' (Goss) and 'With thee, sweet hope' (J. C. Bridge). The Manchester men sang superbly, but as they were disqualified for the prize because they came late, the Colne Society, under Mr. J. P. Hey, was placed first.

The competitions in the evening were blended with performances by the combined choirs and bands. Professor Stanford's 'Phaudrig Crohoore' was given with great spirit by an orchestra of 100 players and a choir of about 200, under Dr. McNaught. A fine rendering of the Cherubini overture was also given by the combined orchestra, under Sir Frederick Bridge. These performances strikingly illustrated the excellence of the amateur resources attracted to the Festival. The attention and enthusiasm of the audience of about five thousand persons was a great encouragement to the performers.

It is possible to find some fault with competitions as a means of stimulating musical activity. But no objections that may be raised could balance the obvious advantages gained. In the first place, many scores of musical societies are set practising first-rate music all the winter, more or less with a view to the prospect of exhibiting their skill at Morecambe. In their own small place it would be difficult for them to find an audience interested in their efforts. But at Morecambe they know that every laudable effort will be duly appreciated. The amount of good done in this way cannot be fully estimated.

THE MADRESFIELD COMPETITIONS.

The annual music competitions instituted in 1896 by Lady Mary Lygon, in order to stimulate musical study in the Malvern district, were held in Malvern, on April 27 and 29. The movement seems to have taken firm root, for, notwithstanding the unavoidable absence of the foundress, there were numerous entries, and the standard of the performances showed steady progress. Most of the first day was devoted to the children. Thirteen classes competed, the honours falling to Newland and to Castlemorton. The voices, as a rule, were well trained. Other classes on this and the next day were for church choirs, female voice choirs, village choirs in two sets, instrumental trios and string quartets, choral societies, and choral sight-singing. Mrs. Glover Eaton's choir; the Malvern Link Society, under Mr. Harvey; and Newland Choir, under Mr. Cook, who is certainly a first-rate choir-trainer, were amongst the prize-winners. Dr. McNaught adjudicated. A concert was given on the evening of the second day, under the direction of Dr. Elgar. The adult choralists united to sing the motet 'Blessing, Glory, and Wisdom' (Bach) and 'Blest Pair of Sirens' (Parry). A full orchestra played the accompaniments and performed the Overture to 'Egmont' and Dvorák's Slavonic Dance in E minor. The Misses Salter were the soloists.

CARLISLE.

The Carlisle and District Musical Festival was held on April 17 and 18. It is open to all places within thirty miles from Carlisle. There were fifteen classes arranged for. Seventeen school choirs entered. Some of the performances were refined. The Bishop Goodwin School Choir of boys was particularly excellent both in the singing of their prepared piece and in singing at sight. Brunswick Road, Holy Trinity, and Caldewgate were also commendable. A performance of 'The Waits of Bremen' (B. Luard Selby) was given by the united choirs. In the adult classes the chief choral section was headed by Charlotte Street, and Greystoke was not far behind. Each choir sang the madrigal 'Now, O now' (Dowland) and a selection from 'The Song of Miriam' (Schubert). The latter work was given complete, with orchestral accompaniment, by the united choirs as part of the programme of an evening concert and prize distribution. Miss Mabel Elliott sang the solo, and at the children's concert contributed several songs. She sings with acceptable refinement. A large number attended the concert and there was always a good audience at the competitions. Dr. McNaught adjudicated and conducted the concerts. The arrangements worked very smoothly. Mr. David Hodgson is still the secretary of the committee, which included most of the well known residents.

BRIGG.

Brigg, in Lincolnshire, encouraged by the success of last year's first attempt at competitions, which were concentrated into one day, ventured this year to make arrangements on a more extended scale.

The interest was so great on this occasion that even on the two days, April 23 and 24, the entries were too numerous for one adjudicator to deal with. Children's choirs, town choral societies, village choirs, church choirs, soloists, and instrumentalists streamed in from many adjacent places. This year Grimsby was included in the scope of the operations, and choirs and singers generally of experience put the standard of execution up considerably.

The chief promoters and workers of the scheme are Mr. Gervase Cary-Elwes and his wife, Lady Winefrede, but they are fortunately aided by a strong local committee.

The school choir singing was often very creditable, and the choirs in the chief choral section were particularly good. In the latter class, the Brigg Choir, very much on its mettle, gained the first place with 103 marks, and were closely followed by an admirably led choir from Grimsby. Two choirs from Scunthorpe were not far behind. In all there were twenty-five sections in the competitions and approaching one thousand competitors. The proceedings were brought to a close by a most successful evening concert, in which the united adult choir of 300 voices, under the conductorship of Mr. Gervase Cary-Elwes, took part. The singing of the choir was excellent, and completely disposed of the tradition that there are no good voices in Lincolnshire. Dr. McNaught adjudicated.

LONDON GIRLS' CLUBS.

At the fourteenth annual singing competition, held at the Guildhall, on the 11th ult., the challenge trophy was awarded, for the third year in succession, to the Eton Mission Girls' Choir (trained by Mr. D. A. Fox), which retains it. Eaton Faning's 'Buttercups and Daisies' was performed by the combined choirs, under the conductorship of Mr. Henry Dart, and the tests included two-part sight-reading. Dr. W. G. McNaught was the adjudicator.

THE FEIS CEOIL.

The fifth Feis Ceoil, or Irish Festival of Music, took place in Dublin during the week commencing the 6th ult., and met with greater success than any hitherto held. The attendance at the evening concerts was exceptionally large, that on the Thursday evening, when the orchestral works were performed, being quite phenomenal. At this concert the prize cantata by Carl G. Hardebeck, prize overture by F. R. McClintock, and 'Phaudrig Crohoore' by Stanford were performed, and some Irish airs were sung by Mrs. Stewart and Mr. Denis O'Sullivan, specially orchestrated by Dr. Stanford and the conductor, Signor Esposito. The cantata, 'The Red Hand of Ulster,' proved to be quite up to the average of such works, and Mr. Hardebeck is to be congratulated upon his achievement. The performance of 'Phaudrig Crohoore' was a signal success, the band and chorus acquitting themselves admirably in the difficult and beautiful music. Mr. O'Sullivan's singing of the Irish airs, 'The lark in the clear air' and 'The Smith's Song,' fairly entranced the audience, the effect of the latter in particular being quite electrical. At the Tuesday concert the programme consisted entirely of arrangements of Irish traditional music, with the exception of three prize works, that for solo violin, admirably played by the composer, Mr. P. Delány, a beautiful song by Mr. Leopold Dix, which Mr. D'Alton sang, and an Irish song by Mr. R. A. MacAlister. The four part-song arrangements, 'Far away,' 'The Irish Reel,' 'Arranmore Boat Song,' and 'Battle Song,' by Dr. T. R. G. Jozé, sung by the choir, were much admired, and the audience made an emphatic demand for two of them to be repeated. Mr. Denis O'Sullivan sang several Irish songs in his inimitable style, his performance of Stanford's 'Chieftain of Tyrconnell' being a perfect revelation of dramatic and impassioned pathos. Miss Treacy's beautiful voice never sounded to greater advantage than in Mr. R. A. MacAlister's prize song, 'An Mhaighdean Threighte,' with Irish words; and Mrs. A. McC. Stewart sang Robinson's arrangement of 'Shule agra' with the greatest expression and pathos.

The competitions occupied every day of the week and took place in the Rotunda. In the solo singing classes the greatest interest attached to the soprano and the Irish solo singing, in which the first prizes were won by Miss Malone and Master J. J. Fuery respectively. The former, who possesses a phenomenally beautiful voice, should have a brilliant career before her. An altogether satisfactory competition was that for the best performance of Mendelssohn's Trio in D minor, for which there were no fewer than twelve entries, and which resulted in the first prize being won by Miss Mabel Love's trio. Hardly less gratifying were the string quartets, for which there were five entries, the prize going to Miss Helen Irvine's party, the same lady also securing the gold medal for violin solo playing. The vocal trios were exceptionally good and the male quartets an immense advance on those of former years.

The chief choral competition took place on Friday evening, and resulted in a victory for Mr. Vincent O'Brien's choir, the test pieces being the Credo from the 'Missa Papæ Marcelli' and 'Dainty fine bird' (O. Lassus). The Belfast male choir (conductor, Mr. George Ferguson) were greatly complimented on their singing of Palestrina's 'Tantum Ergo' and Sullivan's 'The Beleaguered,' by Mr. Ivor Atkins, the adjudicator, who took the opportunity of expressing his approval of the selection of test pieces in all the choral competitions. The prize in the ladies' choirs went to Mr. F. J. Moffett, who brought an admirably trained choir from Belfast. An altogether satisfactory performance was given by the orchestra of the Loreto Abbey, of Rathfarnham, conducted by Mr. Myerscough, the orchestra consisting of past and present pupils of the school, with the exception of the wind instrument players. The entire day of Saturday was taken up with hearing competitions in solo wind instruments and in two band contests for brass, and brass and reed bands. On the same day a large number of pipers and fiddlers played Irish airs with a view to obtaining hitherto unpublished airs, any such airs being afterwards recorded by the phonograph, and prizes awarded for them.

The working details of the Feis never went so smoothly, thanks to the indefatigable exertions of the committee and their officers. There were a larger number of entries and a greater number of competitions than in any previous year, and the difficulties in organisation correspondingly increased. But the entire Festival went without a hitch from start to finish. Two events must not be forgotten, the first on Monday evening, when Mr. A. P. Graves delivered a lecture on 'New Songs of Old Ireland,' at which the musical illustrations were charmingly sung by Miss A. McCabe, Miss Florence Crawford, Mr. N. Smith, and Mr. J. C. Doyle, all former gold medalists of the Feis. The second, an afternoon chamber music concert, at which the prize string quartet by Mr. F. R. McClintock and the prize pianoforte trio by Mr. Herbert H. Harty were played by Mr. Arthur Darley, Mr. Griffiths, Mr. Grisard, Mr. Harty, and Mr. Carl Fuchs, who undertook the violoncello parts in these works and in the orchestral concert at the shortest notice, owing to Herr Bast being temporarily disabled by an accident. The adjudicators were Mr. Ivor Atkins, Mr. Oscar Beringer, Mr. Fuchs, Mr. Denis O'Sullivan, and for wind instruments, Mr. J. Ord Hume.

LONDON CONCERTS.

Dr. Richter's first concert this season was given at St. James's Hall, on the 20th ult. It is sufficient to say that the 'Meistersinger' Overture and the 'Eroica' Symphony were played with all the skill to which the great conductor has accustomed us. Tschaïkowsky's Pianoforte Concerto in B flat minor, the solo part played with great ability by Miss Katharine Goodson, was also included in the programme.

The programme of the Handel Society's Invitation concert, at St. James's Hall, on the 14th ult., included several features of special interest. It opened with a Kyrie in D minor, by Mozart, by choir and orchestra. This was followed by a selection from Sir Hubert Parry's incidental music to 'Hypatia' (written for the Haymarket Theatre), a highly interesting selection from Handel's opera 'Alcina,' and Stanford's stirring choral ballad, 'The Revenge,' all conducted by Mr. J. S. Liddle. Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's cantata 'The Death of Minnehaha,' admirably performed by choir and orchestra, under the composer's direction, completed a very attractive evening's music. The solos in the cantata were excellently sung by Miss Ethel Wood and Mr. Denis O'Sullivan, the former artist, with Miss Bessie Grant, being responsible for the airs in 'Alcina,' the accompaniment to these being well played by Mr. Leonard Bevan.

The Ysaye concert on the 18th ult., at the Queen's Hall, afforded another proof of the Belgian artist's musical talents. He gave superb readings of the solo parts of Bach's Violin Concerto in E and Beethoven's, and was heard in a clever composition by himself, entitled 'Chant d'Hiver.' This may be described as a symphonic poem in miniature, having for its programme the deadening effects of winter, a melancholy subject, but gracefully treated, with some individuality.

The Royal Amateur Orchestral Society, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Ford, gave two of its enjoyable concerts on the 8th and 15th ult., at the Queen's Hall.

Mr. George A. Clinton commenced his ninth series of chamber concerts, largely devoted to wind chamber music, on the 6th ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall. Mr. Clinton's programmes generally contain some new or little known work, and at the opening concert he brought forward an Octet in F, by Haydn, for two oboes, two clarinets, two horns, and two bassoons, not before performed in London. The themes possess the frankness and directness of expression common to music by the old Papa, and structurally the work is well designed; but it is not one of Haydn's happiest productions. Mr. Clinton has engaged a number of excellent instrumentalists, and the performances testified to careful rehearsal.

'The London Octuor,' a new body of instrumentalists formed for the purpose of performing the larger chamber works, gave its first concert on the 16th ult., at Steinway Hall. The members comprise Messrs. Wallace Sutcliffe, W. A. Boxall, W. Sewell, H. J. Poole, Claude Hobday, W. H. Hall, E. Hall, and A. E. Brain—a goodly company, which should be able to give excellent performances.

Of the many pianoforte recitals given last month, that of Mr. Harold Bauer, on the 15th ult., at St. James's Hall, is the most memorable, and, at the same time, promising. Mr. Bauer comes back to us, after some ten years of study, with a reputation acquired on the Continent and in America as an artist of the first rank. We have no hesitation in endorsing this achievement. Schumann's Sonata in G minor (Op. 22), Beethoven's in A (Op. 101), and Chopin's Scherzo in C sharp minor (Op. 39) each requires for its due exposition not only complete executive command of the keyboard, but individuality of treatment, and the man who can successively play these works and satisfactorily meet the requirements of each is entitled to be placed amongst the leading pianists of the day. Need anything more be said?

Mr. Waddington Cooke gave a pianoforte recital at St. James's Hall, on the 6th ult., when his interpretations of Beethoven's Sonata in E (Op. 109) and a Chopin selection showed him to be an intelligent and well trianed musician.

Miss Hope Squire, a young Yorkshire pianist, made a very favourable impression at her recital, on the 7th ult., at the Salle Erard. Miss Squire should have a successful future.

Señor Sarasate and Madame Berthe Marx gave the first of two violin and pianoforte recitals, on the 21st ult., at St. James's Hall. The two artists were associated in Schubert's 'Rondeau Brillant' (Op. 70) and Raff's Second Grand Sonata (Op. 78), both of which were interpreted with great brilliancy and finish.

M. Kubelik began a series of six violin recitals on the 4th ult., at St. James's Hall. It is unnecessary to notice these in detail, as M. Kubelik's programmes consist of works for the most part familiar to admirers of violin music, and to such his readings are well known. He shows some advance in depth of expression, a hopeful sign for his ultimately becoming a really great artist; but at present his interpretations are most remarkable for their brilliancy and the extraordinary command they display of the technicalities of the finger-board.

Miss Jessie Grimson gave a violin recital at St. James's Hall, on the 16th ult., when she displayed excellent technique and good expression in the Adagio from Max Bruch's Second Concerto, two Slavonic Dances by Dvorák, and Ernst's Concerto in F sharp minor.

M. Michel de Sicard, a Russian violinist, gave, on the 11th ult., the first of three recitals on successive Saturday afternoons, at the Steinway Hall. This artist, who enjoys a considerable reputation in his own country, produced a remarkably powerful tone from his instrument, and his style was commanding and assertive. His readings were chiefly remarkable for their energy, intensity, and passion; but in music of tender sentiment it lacked sympathy, and the intonation was not always true.

Miss Amy Llewellyn Jones showed the results of good training by her master, Professor Wilhelmj, at her violin recital, given at the Sallé Erard, on the 17th ult. She was heard in Tartini's Sonata in G minor, Vieuxtemps's Concerto (No. 4), and other pieces. Mr. Hugo Heintz and Miss Agnes Witting were the vocalists, and Miss May Mukle played a violoncello solo with much skill.

At Miss Maude Rihll and Mr. Herbert Walenn's concert, on the 21st ult., at St. James's Hall, was given the first performance in London of David Popper's Violoncello Concerto in B minor.

Miss Stanley Lucas and Miss Lucie Johnstone gave their annual concert at St. James's Hall on the 22nd ult., when they had the valuable co-operation of Mrs. Helen Trust, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Ben Davies, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, Mr. Santley, Mdlle Janotha, and Mr. John Thomas. Mr. Hawkins's Part-Song Choir also assisted.

Mr. Whitney Tew has given two vocal recitals, respectively on the 11th and 22nd ult., which merit praise for their artistic selections of songs and the admirable manner of their interpretation.

Madame Sinico's concert, on the 10th ult., at Steinway Hall, served to introduce to public notice her daughter, Miss Campbell Sinico, the possessor of a high soprano voice, clear articulation, and pleasing style.

The People's Palace Choral Society gave a very admirable performance of Elgar's 'King Olaf,' on the 11th ult., under the able direction of Mr. Allen Gill. The choir sang throughout with much spirit, and the accompaniments were excellently played by the orchestra, with Mr. B. Jackson at the organ. Madame Medora Henson, Mr. Edward Branscombe, and Mr. Daniel Price were a highly capable trio of vocalists.

The building and grounds of the Alexandra Palace were officially opened to the public, on the 18th ult., by the Duke of Bedford. The Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society, assisted by the band of the Coldstream Guards, took part in the official ceremony and afterwards gave a concert, when the programme included Sullivan's Imperial March, 'Hallelujah' Chorus ('Messiah'), Soldiers' Chorus ('Faust'), 'Hail, bright abode' ('Tannhäuser'), and 'The King,' a new patriotic chorus by Charles Vincent. Mr. Allen Gill conducted.

An interesting concert was given by the North London Orchestral Society, at the Portman Rooms, on April 26. Its most notable feature was the fine performance of Dvorák's Violin Concerto (Op. 53), by Mr. Josef Blaha. The intensely national character of this somewhat neglected composition was admirably brought out by the soloist, himself a compatriot of the composer. The orchestra gave excellent renderings of Schumann's Second Symphony, 'Die Meistersinger' Overture, two movements from Délibes's 'Sylvia,' and Saint-Saëns's 'Marche Heroïque.' Mr. Chilver Wilson sang 'Credo di Iago,' from Verdi's 'Otello,' in a dramatic manner, and two Cavalier songs set by Davidson Arnott and Maude V. White. Mr. Lennox Clayton conducted with considerable ability, and the Society is to be congratulated on the good work that it is doing. The analytical notes to the programme were contributed by Mr. Richard H. Walthew.

The annual meeting of the Tonic Sol-fa College drew an immense audience to the Queen's Hall, on the 20th ult. Mr. J. C. Horobin, M.A., Principal of Homerton New College, Cambridge, occupied the chair, and made a capital speech. He contrasted the position of school music in the past and the present, claiming that the improvement was owing to the Tonic Sol-fa system. A great feature of the meeting was a demonstration of school singing given by three divisions from the Haselrigge Road Higher Grade School. The infants, under Miss P. J. Reed, quite captivated the audience by their singing of various tests and songs. The juniors performed very creditably, under the lead of Miss L. Windley; and the seniors, directed by Mr. A. G. Gibbs, astonished by their clever performances of difficult tests. A large choir of adult certificated singers gave a good rendering of part-songs and choruses, under the baton of Mr. William Holmes, while Mr. Albert Wood presided at the organ. Mrs. Alicia A. Needham handed silver medals, commemorating the late John Curwen, to eleven veteran teachers of Tonic Sol-fa. Short speeches were also given by the President (Mr. J. S. Curwen), the Secretary (Mr. Walter Harrison), Rev J. Finnemore, and Mr. W. Dobson.

THE Kensington Choral Society, a newly-formed institution, gave its first concert, on the 15th ult., at the Town Hall, Kensington, when the young, fresh-voiced choir rendered a very good account of itself, under the able conductorship of Mr. A. Pattison George. Indeed, the interpretation of the choral numbers, including Macfarren's cantata 'May Day' (with Madame Lisbeth Kelve in the solo part), the epilogue from Dr. Elgar's 'Caractacus,' and the four-part songs, 'Full Fathom Five' (Wood) and 'Love and Summer' (West), reflected much credit upon all concerned, although the addition of a few more male voices would be an advantage.

AT the Westminster Town Hall, on April 29, the choir and orchestra of the London Organ School gave a performance of Coleridge-Taylor's cantatas 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and 'Death of Minnehaha.' The choir was efficiently trained by Mr. Henry Beauchamp, who conducted, and the orchestra (led by Mr. Edward O'Brien) was excellent. The solo music was sung by Miss Ianthe May, Mr. Beauchamp, and Mr. Sandbrook. Mendelssohn's Pianoforte Concerto in G minor (the solo part by Miss Alice Claudet) was also performed.

THE Bermondsey Settlement Choral and Orchestral Union gave its final concert this season, in the Bermondsey Town Hall, on the 2nd ult., when the chief features of a highly interesting programme were Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and 'Death of Minnehaha,' Stanford's 'The Last Post,' and Schubert's 'Song of Miriam.' The chorus and orchestra (led by Mr. Henry Lewis) performed their arduous duties in a highly efficient manner, and the vocal solos were successfully undertaken by Miss Helen Jaxon, Mr. Henry Franckiss, and Mr. Daniel Price. Mr. John E. Borland conducted.

OTHER concerts worthy of mention are: Miss Frederica Taylor, 8th ult., Steinway Hall; Miss Marian Jay, violin recital, 13th ult., Steinway Hall; The London Trio, 14th ult., at the Royal Institute of Painters; Mr. Sterling Mackinlay and Miss Mabel Elliot's recital, 14th ult., at the Salle Erard; Mr. Ernest Schelling, pianoforte recital, 14th ult., St. James's Hall; Miss Harriett Solly's chamber concert, 17th ult., Steinway Hall; Miss Florence Dawes' pianoforte recital, 17th ult., St. James's Hall; Miss Margolies' pianoforte recital, 20th ult., St. James's Hall.

SUBURBAN CONCERTS.

THE first concert of the Crystal Palace Amateur Orchestral Society took place on April 30, the programme including Schubert's 'Rosamunde' Overture and Entr'acte (No. 2), the incidental music to the 'Merchant of Venice' (Sullivan), Beethoven's Symphony (No. 1) in C, and Mackenzie's 'Benedictus,' arranged for violins and small orchestra. The Crystal Palace Choir also assisted, singing Mendelssohn's motet 'Judge me, O God,' three part-songs, and a chorus from Sullivan's cantata 'On shore and sea.' Miss Ethelwynn Weager made a successful first appearance as solo violinist, playing a Nocturne of Chopin and Zarzycki's 'Mazur.' The orchestra had the advantage of the veteran Mr. August Manns as its conductor.

THE Marlborough Place Amateur Orchestral Society gave its seventh annual concert, at the Hampstead Conservatoire, on the 11th ult., with traditional success. The programme included commendable performances of Schubert's 'Rosamunde' Overture, Godard's 'Berceuse de Jocelyn,' two movements from Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, and two of Moszkowski's Spanish Dances. Mr. Aldebert Allen played the solo part of Hofmann's Concerto for the flute with great brilliancy, while Mr. H. Geehl, in Mozart's Pianoforte Concerto in A (No. 23), and Mr. R. J. Stephens, in De Beriot's Ninth Violin Concerto, were excellent in their respective interpretations. Miss Margaret Ruby was the vocalist, and Mr. Paul Oppenheimer, the energetic and ever alert conductor, had his orchestral forces well under control. Mr. H. H. Hanes proved himself to be, as heretofore, a capital leader.

THE Maze Pond Choral Society closed a very successful season with a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' on the 9th ult., in Maze Pond Chapel, Old Kent Road. The choir more than maintained its reputation for good training and heartiness, for it sang with a vigour, accuracy, and evident love of the work that are rarely heard, even in the large choirs. All praise should be given to Miss Maggie Purvis for her soulful rendering of the Widow and other soprano music, and to Mr. Arthur Barlow for his dramatic singing as Elijah. Miss Frances Lake and Mr. Harry Stubbs sang well, and a word of commendation is due to the subsidiary quartet, comprising Miss Edith Potter, Miss Lydia Hopkins, Messrs. Alfred Sears and T. Harry Bull. The accompaniment was played by a small band (under the leadership of Mr. T. Harry Smith) and pianoforte and organ, respectively played by Miss M. Tyrer and Mr. Edward Partridge. Mr. W. Dexter Miller conducted with his usual care and efficiency.

THE Borough of Woolwich Orchestral Society gave a concert at Freemasons' Hall, Plumstead, on April 29. The pieces which call for special mention were Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' Overture, Gounod's 'Judex' (from 'Mors et Vita'), 'Two Characteristic Valses,' by Coleridge-Taylor, and an 'Elégie' for violoncello and orchestra, by Dr. H. W. Jones. All these pieces were excellently played, especially the 'Judex,' which was encored; and the 'Elégie' (the solo part ably played by Mr. Lionel Horton) was very successful. The Andante movement from Schubert's Symphony (No. 7) in A minor also received a satisfactory interpretation. Miss Gertrude Drinkwater contributed several songs with much success, and Madame Kate Tester Jones was a sympathetic accompanist. Mr. Sidney Horton, the honorary conductor, is to be congratulated on the success of the performance.

THE Devonshire Square Church Choral Society concluded its first season at Stoke Newington, on the 9th ult., with a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Athalie' and a miscellaneous selection. The choir sang very steadily and in good time and tune. The solos were well sustained by Madame Louise Burns, Miss Lilian Haymes, and Madame Edith Hands, all of whom acquitted themselves admirably; and the Rev. G. P. McKay was an excellent reciter. Good service was rendered by Miss Edith Wells (pianoforte), Mr. John Jefferys (organ), and Mr. J. F. Wallis (cornet). Mr. G. Ernest Arundel conducted with his accustomed care.

THE Wilton Square (N.) Choir gave its annual concert on the 2nd ult., when Dr. Henry Coward's cantata 'The Story of Bethany' was performed, under the able conductorship of Mr. Hugh Edwards. The principal vocalists were Miss Gertrude Hughes, Miss Hannah Jones, and Mr. Meurig James. The rendering of the cantata by the choir and the principals was excellent, and the accompaniments were ably played by Mr. Merlin Morgan.

THE Moody Manners Opera Company, which has not appeared in London for two years, gave a very successful week of performances at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, from the 5th to the 11th ult., the representations being 'Tannhäuser,' 'Faust' (twice), 'Lohengrin,' Maritana,' 'Carmen,' and the 'Bohemian Girl.'

THE Sidcup Musical Society gave a performance of Parts II. and III. of S. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha,' in the Public Hall, Sidcup, on the 6th ult. The solo vocalists were Mdlle. Marie Altona, Mr. Ronald Marshall, and the Rev. Bryan F. Browning; the orchestra was led by Mr. H. Lewis, and Mr. A. E. Butterworth conducted.

MUSIC IN VIENNA.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

Vienna, May 19.

Touring musicians there have been at all times, but the travelling orchestra is an innovation of our days. Bülow, as in other respects, set the example with his Meiningen orchestra. The subjectivity of the modern conductor has been developed to such a degree that, in order to exhibit his skill properly, he must carry his instrument—i.e., his own orchestra—along with him wherever he goes. And yet, in doing so, he is apt sometimes to forget that the highest aim of the executive artist should be to place his ability at the service of the creative artist, instead, as sometimes happens, of merely utilising the work of the latter for the purpose of converting it into something of his own. Objectivity has, in fact, almost entirely ceased to be a factor in the interpretation of not a few German conductors of the present day. A notable illustration of this phenomenon is furnished by Herr Arthur Nikisch, who is just now making a tour, with the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra, through Austria, Italy, Spain, France, and Germany. They also gave a concert here, with a programme including the third 'Leonora' Overture of Beethoven, the 'Pathetic' Symphony of Tschaïkowsky, the Tannhäuser' Overture of Wagner, and a few smaller pieces, and in all these Herr Nikisch presented to us, not so much the works as they actually are, but as what, in his opinion, they ought to be. It is impossible to entirely acquit this otherwise excellent conductor of the charge of an undue and very inartistic exaggeration for the sake of effect. All his performances have been most carefully thought out and prepared, and yet he tears the tempi to pieces and deals with some passages in an outré fashion, which is really incomprehensible. Such deliberate exaggeration cannot be the outcome of spontaneous musical feeling, and is particularly out of place in the works of the classical masters, amongst whom, in this connection, Wagner must be classed. In the case of Tschaïkowsky it is not, perhaps, altogether misplaced, whose somewhat more superficial art admits of a certain amount of elasticity in interpretation—nay, even demands it at times. And when so treated, one frequently discovers that there is, after all, less of profundity of thought in Tschaïkowsky's music than at first appeared. Thus, in listening to the over-elaborated and eminently subjective interpretation of the 'Pathetic' Symphony on the part of Herr Nikisch, one could not help feeling that the importance of the work has been a trifle overrated. It produced the impression rather of a show piece, and yet the composer conceived it in a very solemn spirit too.

An interesting concert was that given by the choir of the church connected with the Russian Embassy, which, since the rebuilding of the latter, has been much enlarged and converted into an artistically efficient body of mixed voices. The performance on the occasion in question consisted of a number of sacred compositions by Russian composers—Bortniansky, Glinka, Lwoff, and others—all of which were rendered in the specifically Russian manner, with strictest attention to the most minute effects in regard to dynamic gradations, and with a certain spontaneity of rhythm, apparently guided more by the words than by the music. Somewhat monotonous and uninteresting, from a purely musical point of view, as many of these compositions were, they were nevertheless rendered extremely impressive by the beauty of the voices and the unconventional, yet highly artistic, interpretation of the choir.

Quite a series of concerts and dramatic representations have been given by the Conservatorium for the purpose of introducing its most gifted pupils of both sexes to public notice. While affording an opportunity for the display of an abundance of talent amongst the rising generation, these occasions likewise furnish some interesting matter for the musician to reflect upon. Thus, for the first time, a pianoforte concerto by Dvorák was included in the performances, a fact which augurs well for the progressive spirit prevailing at the Institution. The interpretations, by the pupils' orchestra, of a Serenade by Robert Fuchs, and of songs by Brahms, on the part of the choir, were deserving of all praise. By the operatic class, various excerpts and entire acts from the modern répertoire, suitable to the capacities of the most gifted and advanced pupils, were produced. In all departments the results of earnest study and an abiding spirit of lofty aspiration could be observed.

Considerable interest was aroused by the repeated appearance of Pietro Mascagni, in his capacity of conductor. In the first place, he had come to direct two performances of Verdi's 'Requiem,' in memory of his great countryman, and in which the solo parts were sung by Giuseppina Uffreduzzi, of the Theatre della Scala, in Milan; Edith Walker, of the Vienna Opera; Francesco Marconi, of the Teatro Argentina, in Rome; and Francesco Navarrini, likewise of La Scala. Attracted by these distinguished names, a very numerous audience, appertaining to the well-to-do classes, filled the hall of the Musikverein on both occasions, and the proceedings resembled great social manifestations rather than musically important events. From an artistic point of view, Fräulein Edith Walker, with her indescribably beautiful voice and great vocal art, and Signor Navarrini, with his noble conception of his part, were the most successful amongst the interpreters. Navarrini's art was, however, still more brilliantly displayed in the subsequent concert, arranged by Mascagni with a view to his appearance as a conductor of German music. Mascagni gave a very acceptable reading of Goldmark's Second Symphony and a rather sentimentally drawn-out interpretation of the Allegretto from Brahms's Third Symphony, followed by a gavotte and the Overture to 'Le Maschere' of his own composition. Amongst the vocal solos by which the programme was varied, there was an air from Rossini's 'Il Barbiere,' in the rendering of which Signor Navarrini proved himself one of the greatest vocal artists of the day.

The death of Gottfried Preyer, the greatly esteemed Capellmeister of St. Stephen's, has elicited much sympathy in musical circles. Preyer, who was in his ninety-fifth year, conducted the services every Sunday and Holyday at St. Stephen's up to within a short time of his death. His energy and mental vigour were simply marvellous. More than half-a-century ago he occupied the post of director of the Vienna Conservatorium, and has, since that time, also acquired a considerable reputation as a composer of church music. His compositions are not great, but well adapted for their purpose, effective and perfect in form. Hence they have been introduced in many of the Catholic churches in Austria. He derived his greatest pleasure in life from the small but extremely valuable collection of pictures which he had gathered together in the course of time. It is said to contain some works of inestimable value.

Mandyczewski.

MUSIC IN MOSCOW.

(From a Correspondent.)

The opening of the new Concert Hall of the Imperial Conservatoire of Music, Moscow, by the Grand Duke Constantine, took place on April 7 (20). In the evening the last of the season's Symphonic concerts was given, under the directorship of M. Safonoff. The first part of the programme was entirely devoted to the works of Russian composers—Glinka, Tschaïkowsky, Borodine, and Rubinstein; and the second part was the great 'Choral' Symphony of Beethoven. The chorus consisted of pupils of the Conservatoire, and the soloists were artists from the Imperial Opera.

M. Widor, who gave two recitals on the magnificent new organ, built by Cavaillé-Coll (presented to the Conservatoire by M. von Dervas), showed the capabilities of the instrument in organ music of various styles, from Bach to the present day.

An extra Symphonic concert, in aid of the widows and orphans of musicians, was given on April 14 (27), under the direction of MM. Safonoff and Widor. The concert opened with a Symphony for organ and orchestra, by M. Widor, conducted by the composer, the organ part being played by Mr. Bernard Ramsey, Professor of the organ at the Conservatoire. M. Schalyapine, a young artist of the Imperial Opera, who has already become the favourite of the Moscow public, sang Rimsky-Korsakoff's 'Prorok' ('The Prophet') and Glinka's 'Nochnoi Smotr' ('The Night Review), and the orchestra played short pieces by Rubinstein, Davidoff, Lyadoff, and Ippolitoff-Ivanoff.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE fourth Subscription concert of the Philharmonic Society, on March 22 (inadvertently omitted to be noticed in our last issue), was occupied entirely by a performance of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha.' The work was given almost in its entirety, and the principals were Miss Ethel Wood and Messrs. William Green and Watkin Mills. The chorus parts were very creditably sung and proved with what care the conductor, Dr. F. Koeller, had prepared his forces; and the orchestra, largely amateur, also deserve credit for their attainments.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A NEW musical organisation made its first public appearance at the very close of the season, the Birmingham String Quartet, consisting of local artists—Messrs. H. T. Freeman and D. Reggel (violins), A. J. Beard (viola), and R. B. Day (violoncello). These gave a chamber concert, in the Masonic Hall, on April 27. The programme comprised Haydn's String Quartet in D minor (Op. 76, No. 2), Tschaïkowsky's Quartet (Op. 11), and a movement from Smetana's Quartet in E minor. Miss Rosina Buckmann sang Beethoven's Gellert songs (Op. 48) and songs by Schubert, Mr. Wymark Stratton ably officiating as accompanist. There was a good attendance, and the executants established their claim to recognition and support.

The Court and Alley Concert Society is now starting its work of bringing light and sweetness into the slums of the City, and the sound of music is beginning to be heard in the various parks. For the rest, recent musical doings are confined to the churches. On April 30 the Silver Jubilee of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Catherine was celebrated, and a new organ was opened by the Rev. H. McDonnell, formerly organist at Oscott College. On Sunday, the 5th ult., at the same church, Paladilhe's 'Messe Solennelle de la Pentecote' for soli, chorus, orchestra, and organ, was performed for the first time in England, under the direction of Mr. F. W. Beard. On the evening of Ascension Day, the 16th ult., Sullivan's oratorio, 'The Prodigal Son,' was performed in the Parish Church of Birmingham (St. Martin's) by a choir of seventy voices, conducted by Dr. W. J. Reynolds. The vocal principals were Miss Edith Dudley, Mr. Ernest Millward, Mr. Horace Reid, and Mr. Henry Sims. Mr. A. Davies gave efficient aid at the organ. The oratorio was repeated on the following Sunday without a conductor, Dr. Reynolds presiding at the organ.

Mr. C. W. Perkins, the city organist, gave a recital upon the new electric organ in the Parish Church of Sutton Coldfield, on the 16th ult. The capabilities of the instrument were admirably demonstrated.

Taking time by the forelock, the City Choral Society, at its annual meeting, announced the probable programme for next season. There will be three concerts, and the works proposed to be performed are 'Elijah,' 'Samson and Delilah,' and either Cowen's 'Ode to the Passions' or Stanford's 'Phaudrig Crohoore,' with a Wagner selection.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Ladies' Night of the Bristol Royal Orpheus Glee Society, which is usually held on the Thursday immediately preceding Lent, was this year postponed on account of the death of Queen Victoria, and held on April 25, at Colston Hall, under the direction of Mr. George Riseley. A new composition by Mr. C. Lee Williams was sung, the piece in question being a setting of Tom Hood's 'Faithless Sally Brown.' The alto solo in the glee was capitally rendered by Mr. Albery, of Bristol Cathedral choir. The composer conducted his piece, which evoked considerable merriment and applause. The soloists in some of the glees were Mr. G. W. Brierley (tenor, Bristol Cathedral) and Mr. Watkin Mills.

The Bristol Choral Society gave its last concert of the season on April 27, at Colston Hall, choir and band numbering about 600. The works performed were Dvorák's 'Spectre's Bride' and Barnett's 'Ancient Mariner.' In the former the soloists were Madame Emily Squire, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. Watkin Mills, and, in the latter, to these was added Miss Edith Leslie. Both cantatas were admirably rendered under the judicious direction of Mr. Riseley.

The City Road Choral Society, on the 2nd ult., gave a concert, and in the first part Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' was presented, with Miss Edith Evans, Miss L. Lewis, and Mr. Brierley as principal vocalists. There was a small band, with Mr. Ernest Lane as leader. Mr. C. J. Sprankling directed the performance.

The second annual concert of the Portishead Choral Society was held on the 2nd ult., Mr. Edward Cook, of Bristol, conducting the performance. The 'Hymn of Praise' was given, with Miss Katharine Gerrish, Miss Eveline Gerrish, and Mr. Albert Edgar (all of Bristol) as principal vocalists.

A concert was given, on the 4th ult., by the St. Bartholomew's Choral Society, who sang Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen,' the solo parts being taken by Miss Amy Perry, Mr. Boddy, and Mr. Elliott. Mr. A. B. Gridley was the conductor.

The Clifton Choral Society, on the 8th ult., gave its annual concert at the Victoria Rooms, the chief attraction being a performance of Scenes 1 and 3 of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha.' The first scene had been given by the Society last year, and produced such a favourable impression that it was decided to repeat it with the third. A large audience testified approval of the composition by repeated applause. The principal vocalists were Miss Alice Boaden, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. Charles Knowles. Mr. F. S. Gardner was leader of the orchestra, and Mr. F. W. Rootham directed the performance. In the second part of the concert, an ode for chorus and orchestra, 'How sleep the brave,' composed by Mr. Cyril Rootham (son of Mr. D. W. Rootham, conductor of the Bristol Madrigal Society and organist of St. Asaph's Cathedral), was given in public for the first time, the composer conducting. The work obtained a favourable hearing.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE University Choral Society gave Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' music on the 3rd ult. The solos were taken by Mr. Gordon Cleather, Mr. Dan Jones, and some lady members of the choir. The chorus was good throughout, but the orchestra left much to be desired. Mr. Charles Marchant conducted.

The Orpheus Society gave the last concert of the season on the 17th ult., Dr. Culwick conducting. Some excellent part-singing was heard, notably in Farrant's 'Call to remembrance, O Lord.' Miss Anna Lang played Beethoven's Romance in F with success, and Mr. J. C. Doyle was heard to advantage in 'Confutatis Maledictis,' from Verdi's 'Requiem,' and some Irish airs. The accompaniments were played by Miss Constance Greene.

A detailed notice of the Feis Ceoil appears on p. 403.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE series of organ recitals given by Dr. Bunnett during the winter Saturday evenings in St. Andrew's Hall, under the auspices of the Corporation of Norwich, has just been brought to a close. At the final recital the Mayor stated that the series of entertainments had been attended by about 3,000 more visitors than last year, and that both musically and financially they had been a great success.

Mr. Arthur Bent's orchestral class gave an excellent concert in St. Andrew's Hall, Norwich, on the 9th ult. The programme consisted of Gounod's Overture 'Mirella,' the Germanische Tanze Suite, by Emil Kreuz, conducted by the composer, Mozart's Symphony in G minor, Tschaïkowsky's 'Elegie' for strings, Luigini's Egyptian Ballet Music, and Wieniawski's Violin Concerto in D minor, the solo part being most artistically played by Mr. Bent. Miss Lena Maitland was the vocalist.

The Great Yarmouth Musical Society gave its second concert of the season on the 22nd ult. The work selected was Barnett's 'Ancient Mariner,' the soloists being Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Parsons Norman, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, all of whom did full justice to the cantata. The chorus, conducted by Mr. Haydon Hare, sang admirably. The band was, as usual, led by Mr. C. W. Moss.

The Lowestoft Orchestral Society, conducted by Mr. Flowers, gave a concert in the Public Hall, on the 8th ult. The programme included four orchestral selections, of which the band, led by Mr. Coote Suggit, gave a very creditable performance. The vocalists were Misses Luchett and Gazely and Messrs. J. H. Sawford Dye and J. H. Brockbank, and Mr. Coote Suggit ably contributed two violin solos.

The Diss Choral Society chose for its last concert of the season, on the 7th ult., Macfarren's cantata 'May-Day,' the principal vocalists being Miss Perceval Allen, Mrs. Eastwood, and Mr. J. W. Bocking. A violin solo by Mr. T. E. Gatehouse and a flute solo by Mr. J. Root were welcome additions to the programme. Messrs. S. Venables and Hemstock were the accompanists, and Mr. J. M. Pullen conducted.

The Loddon Choral Society gave its second concert on the 2nd ult., its chief feature being Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen.' The soloists were Miss Mildred Rix, Mr. Hemmings, and Mr. Brockbank. A string quartet, with pianoforte, supplied the accompaniments. For so young a society, the chorus, numbering about forty voices, gave a spirited rendering of the work, which was conducted by Mr. T. Brown.

The Bungay Choral Society held its annual concert on the 1st ult. The work chosen was Barnett's 'Ancient Mariner,' to which full justice was done by the choir. The soloists, Miss Marwood, Miss Leila Kemball, Mr. Sawford Dye, and Mr. Montague Borwell, sang with great taste, and the accompaniments were played by a small orchestra led by Mr. F. W. B. Noverre. Mr. Warden Harvey conducted, and Miss Adkin accompanied the second part of the programme.

The programme of the second concert of the season given by the Hunstanton Choral Society, on the 8th ult., was composed chiefly of Sullivan's compositions. The chorus, conducted by Mr. A. H. Cross, gave a good rendering of the cantata 'On Shore and Sea,' the solos being successfully sung by Miss Eva Platten. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous, opening with the chorus 'O Gladsome Light,' from the 'Golden Legend,' while quartets and songs were rendered by Miss Platten, Mrs. Hayter, Mr. Watson, Mr. Ingleby, and Mr. A. H. Cross.

The Parochial Choral Society of St. Mary Stoke, Ipswich, gave an excellent rendering of Stainer's 'Daughter of Jairus,' in that Church, on April 30. The choir and orchestra were conducted by the organist, Mr. T. W. Brooks, and the solos were well sung by Miss Kathleen Todd, Mr. A. King, and Mr. J. Watson.

The Ipswich Choral Society, conducted by Mr. Bunnell Burton, gave a most successful concert on the 7th ult. The programme consisted of works of modern composers, the choral items being Stanford's 'The Revenge,' Brahms's 'Song of Destiny,' and choruses from Wagner's 'Flying Dutchman,' 'Tannhäuser,' and 'Lohengrin.' The orchestra played the Introduction to Act III. of 'Lohengrin' as well as Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' Overture. The soloists, Miss Agnes Nicholls and Mr. Overton Moyle, gave great satisfaction in their respective songs.

The Thetford Choral Society held its annual concert on the 14th ult. The chief feature of the programme consisted of Elgar's cantata 'The Banner of St. George' (the solos being taken by Miss King), ably conducted by Mr. A. M. Purcell.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The opening of the International Exhibition, which took place on the 2nd ult., was robbed of much of its interest, from a musical point of view, by the absence of the usual 'Ode.' The Choral Union supplied some miscellaneous pieces with band and organ accompaniment. The musical arrangements at the Exhibition comprise a daily organ recital (which, unfortunately, takes place at an inconveniently early hour in the afternoon), a children's concert on Monday afternoons, a choral or other concert on Thursday evenings, and military band performances twice daily. On the 9th and 10th ult. the Glasgow Amateur Orchestral Society gave concerts in the Grand Hall, the programmes being largely composed of works performed by them elsewhere last season.

Choral concerts have been given by the Uddingston Choral Union, the Glasgow Select Choir, and the Pollokshields Philharmonic Society. The performances of the band of the Royal Engineers and the Denton prize band have been much enjoyed. The Grand Hall is, unfortunately, acoustically defective, a very marked echo marring much of the music. Attempts, however, are being made to remedy this. The organ is an excellent specimen of Messrs. Lewis and Co.'s workmanship. The organists of the month have been Messrs. Berry, Walton, and McCulley, the first-named having the honour of 'opening' the organ. An interesting feature of Mr. Walton's recitals was the performance of Mendelssohn's six sonatas, one being played each day.

Mr. James Richardson, J.P., died on April 24, aged seventy-three. He was a man of wide general culture, an excellent amateur flautist and singer, and, as president of the Choral Union in the early seventies, took a prominent part in the establishment of the choral and orchestral concerts, in which his interest never abated. His death is a deep loss to art in Glasgow.

MUSIC IN LINCOLN.

(From a Correspondent.)

Few places have advanced so rapidly in musical matters of late years as the city of Lincoln, thanks mainly to the enthusiasm of Dr. George J. Bennett, the Cathedral organist, who may be said to be the leading spirit in the movement, and to the admirable support accorded him by the ladies and gentlemen of the local Musical Society, of which he has been the hon. conductor since its establishment. One of the latest of the Society's achievements was an orchestral concert given in the Volunteer Drill Hall, on the 17th ult. At this the orchestral class connected with the Society rendered excellent service, the members being supplemented by an able body of professionals of festival renown, with Mr. H. Lyell Tayler as principal first violin. Finished performances were given of Beethoven's 'Leonora' Overture (No. 3), Mendelssohn's 'Italian' Symphony, Tschaïkowsky's 'Casse-Noisette' Suite, and 'The Ride of the Valkyries.' Mendelssohn's Capriccio Brillant in B minor for pianoforte and orchestra was also performed, the pianoforte part being played with great executive facility by Miss Grace Ellis. The choral portion of the programme, excellently rendered, by the way, consisted of Stanford's 'The Revenge' and Schumann's 'The Two Grenadiers,' the latter sung by the Rev. H. A. Tapsfield, formerly a priest-vicar of Lincoln Cathedral, and now a minor canon of St. Paul's.

The Society also gave in the Cathedral, under the baton of Dr. Bennett, a fortnight later, an impressive performance of Spohr's 'Last Judgment.' The fine Willis organ, at which Mr. N. S. Trevitt presided, was supplemented by a band of some sixty performers, with Mr. Edward O'Brien as leader. The choir attained a high level of excellence throughout, and the solos, taken by Mr. E. Dunkerton, Mr. C. Woodward, Mr. J. Orange, and Masters Webb and Gooder, of the Cathedral choir, were sung with great refinement and expression. Dr. Bennett conducted with great tact and skill. 'Now thank we all our God,' the accompaniment scored for orchestra by Dr. Bennett, was sung with much heartiness by a vast congregation which filled the nave. A finished performance of Sir A. Mackenzie's 'Benedictus' was given before the service proper commenced.

On the 9th ult. a large audience assembled in the Corn Exchange to hear Sir Frederick Bridge's popular lecture, 'Shakespeare and Music,' for which Dr. Bennett had carefully prepared the musical illustrations. The soloists were Miss Kate Cherry and Messrs. E. Dunkerton and C. Woodward.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The second annual Festival of the Liverpool Church Choir Association was held in St. George's Hall on April 30. With Dr. Peace at the organ, a chorus of 650, trumpets and drums, Miss Mary Langdon (St. Nicholas), Master Keating (Liverpool Cathedral), Mr. Charles Aspinall (St. Nicholas), Mr. Henry Brearley (Leeds Parish Church), and Mr. Richard Miles (St. Paul's Cathedral) as soloists, an astonishing wealth of sound was the feature of the festival—volume rather than variety of tone. The programme included three anthems—Goss's 'O praise the Lord of Heaven,' Purcell's 'O sing unto the Lord,' and Gounod's 'Come unto Him'; Stainer's Te Deum in B flat, Myles B. Foster's Jubilate in C, Stanford's Nicene Creed in B flat, Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer,' Smart's Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in B flat, and the 'Hallelujah' Chorus. All these were sung with great spirit, and the second Festival may be designated an emphatic success. The solos were sung by Miss Langdon and Mr. Miles, though the choice of Braga's Serenata by the former singer was by no means commendable. Mr. H. A. Branscombe conducted, whilst Dr. Peace's playing of Wesley's 'Holsworthy Church Bells' and Choral Song and Fugue was a notable feature of the festival.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Chester-le-Street Choral Society, under the conductorship of Canon Anson Firth, of Durham, closed a very successful season, on the 7th ult., with a performance of Mr. J. F. Barnett's cantata 'The Building of the Ship,' in the Co-operative Society's New Hall, Chester-le-Street. The soloists were Miss Janet Reed, Miss Edith Armstrong, Mr. Edward Horn, and Mr. W. Peacock. Mr. F. Lonsdale was principal first violin, Mr. John Young presided at the organ, and Canon Firth conducted. The choruses were well sung and the performance in every other respect reflected credit upon all concerned.

On the 13th ult. the Durham Amateur Orchestral Society gave its ninth concert in the Town Hall, Durham. The principal work performed was Beethoven's Fourth Symphony in B flat, which was very creditably played. The conductor on this occasion was Herr Sigmund Oppenheim, who has succeeded to the position held for some time by Mr. Arthur Wallerstein. Mr. Alfred Oppenheim played two movements of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in C minor, and Mr. John Nutton, of Durham Cathedral, was the vocalist.

For its final concert of the season, on the 2nd ult., the Newcastle Chamber Music Society engaged the Joachim Quartet, who played Beethoven's fine Quartet in C sharp minor (Op. 131) and Schubert's Quartet in A minor (Op. 29) in magnificent style, evoking the heartiest applause from an audience by no means easy to move to enthusiasm. Mr. J. C. McInnes sang songs by Handel and Brahms, and Mr. J. M. Preston was an admirable accompanist.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Sheffield Amateur Musical Society's Spring concert generally terminates the local musical season. That on the 7th ult. proved no exception to the rule, and marked the close of the busiest and, generally speaking, most prosperous season on record. Barnett's 'The Ancient Mariner,' a work twice previously performed by the Society, occupied the principal place on the programme. The tuneful cantata received, under Mr. Schollhammer's direction, a thoroughly admirable rendering, the high quality of the chorus-singing and the capable quartet of principals, drawn from the ranks of the Society, being the most notable features. Two part-songs, Pearsall's 'Who shall win my lady fair?' and Leslie's 'Homeward,' a couple of organ solos from Mr. J. W. Phillips, and Hummel's Rondo in E flat for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello (Messrs. Phillips, Peck, and Thorpe), were included in the second half of the programme.

The Chesterfield Harmonic Society gave a concert in the Stephenson Hall, on the 14th ult., under the direction of Mr. G. A. Seed. The choir sang a number of interesting pieces, including Dudley Buck's 'Hymn to Music,' Pearsall's 'Who shall win my lady fair?' Smart's 'Night smiles on the wave' (ladies' voices), Gounod's 'By Babylon's Wave,' and Gaul's 'The Silent Land.' The chorus singing attained a high standard. Mr. J. H. Gaunt was the accompanist.

At Eyam, on the 4th ult., the Choral Society performed Stainer's 'Daughter of Jairus,' under Mr. J. W. Froggatt's direction. The solos were capably sung by Master Eddie Unwin, Mr. Froggatt, and Mr. Cheetham. Mr. T. Mellor was the organist.

Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' was performed in the Albert Hall, Sheffield, on the 25th ult. The principals were Miss M. Parker, Miss Nellie Chisholm, and Mr. G. E. Kitching. Dr. Coward conducted.

MUSIC IN WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Cardiff Orchestral Society gave its concluding concert for the season on April 18. The orchestra rendered the Overtures to 'Tannhäuser' (Wagner) and 'Masaniello' (Auber), and Berlioz's 'Marche Hongroise,' conducted by Mr. J. E. Deacon; also two movements from Cowen's 'Welsh' Symphony and 'Four English Dances in the olden style,' under the direction of the composer. Violin solos were contributed by M. Johannes Wolf, and songs by Madame Elvey and Mr. Ben Davies. Mrs. Novello Davies acted as accompanist.

On the same date Sterndale Bennett's 'The Woman of Samaria' was performed by the Newtown (Montgomeryshire) Harmonic and Orchestral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. J. C. Gittings and Mr. T. Mark Taylor; the principal soloists being Miss Maggie Jaques, Miss Rina Robinson, Mr. Richard Thomas, and Mr. David Hughes. The cantata was followed by a miscellaneous selection.

Also, on the same day, a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' was given at Swansea, by the Ebenezer Choral Society, conducted by Mr. J. D. Thomas, the solo parts being taken by Miss Maggie Davies, Miss Sarah Gwen Davies, and Mr. William Green; Mr. E. G. Woodward leading the orchestra. And at Llandilo (Carmarthenshire), Smart's 'Bride of Dunkerron,' by the Choral Society, under Mr. R. C. Jenkins' conductorship; an orchestra led by Mr. Hulley; and Miss Sarah Davies, Mr. Seth Hughes, and Mr. Meurig James, soloists.

The Cardiff Musical Society brought its season to a close on April 24, with a performance of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Death of Minnehaha' and Parker's 'Hora Novissima,' Mr. Aylward conducting, as usual. The soloists were Miss Esther Palliser, Miss Alice Lakin, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Leo Wilson.

A performance of 'Judas Maccabæus' was given on the same date at Barry (Glamorganshire), under the conductorship of Mr. W. T. Samuel, the artists engaged being Miss May John, Miss Dora Gilpin, Mr. Trevor Evans, and Mr. G. T. Llewelyn. The band was led by Mr. Paul Draper, Mr. J. M. Lloyd and Mr. Lewis Thomas presiding at the organ and pianoforte respectively.

On the 1st ult. 'Judas Maccabæus' was also performed at Llandaff Cathedral, by the Diocesan Choral Association. The chorus and orchestra numbered 300, and were led by Mr. R. Seaton; Mr. George Beale, the organist of the Cathedral, presiding at the organ. Miss Bertha Seaton, Miss Ida Brown, Mr. Harold Green, and Mr. Harry Miller were the soloists.

FOREIGN NOTES.

ANTWERP.—M. Jan Blockx, the well-known Flemish composer, has been appointed director of the Royal Conservatorium in succession to the late Peter Benoit.

BERGEN (NORWAY).—A statue erected to Ole Bull, the famous violinist and patriotic Norwegian citizen, has just been unveiled in this, his native city, the sculptor being Herr Stephen Sinding, a brother to the composer of that name. Edvard Grieg, completely recovered from his recent severe indisposition, conducted the performance, by a choir of 300 voices, of a chorus specially written by him for the occasion.

BINGEN.—The first performance was given last month, by the Cæcilian Verein, of Friedrich Hegar's oratorio 'Manasse,' with great success.

BRUSSELS.—The season of opera at the Théâtre de la Monnaie concluded most brilliantly with two performances, on the 6th and 9th ult., of Wagner's 'Tristan and Isolde,' under Herr Mottl's direction ——M. Eduard Zeldenrust, a Dutch pianist, favourably known also to London audiences, recently gave his first recital here, with considerable success.

CARLSRUHE.—It would seem to have required nothing less than the death of its composer for Verdi's 'Traviata' to be performed, as it was, for the first time, recently, at the Court Theatre, under Herr Mottl's direction. Frau Mottl sang the title-part with much success.

CHIERE (ITALY).—A new oratorio, 'L'Addorata,' by Marziano Perosi, a brother of the celebrated Don Lorenzo, was produced on Good Friday, at the Jesuit Church, attracting much favourable attention.

COLOGNE.—At one of the recent Gürzenich concerts, under Professor Wüllner's direction, a first hearing was given to the interesting and deeply religious new Passion oratorio by Felix Woyrsch, which produced a profound impression. A Verdi commemoration, held under the same conductorship, combined the performance of the Italian master's 'Requiem' with that of Bach's 'Ode of Mourning,' an appropriate and suggestive combination.

DARMSTADT.—An important new choral work, for mixed choir, solo voices, and orchestra, by Hugo Rückbeil, entitled 'Gerlind,' was produced by the Gesangverein last month and received with considerable favour. At the Court Theatre, Thuille's new opera, 'Gugeline,' achieved cons derable success.

DRESDEN.—The newly-formed People's Singakademie, the members of which are almost exclusively drawn from the working classes, recently gave a very successful performance, at its third concert, of Haydn's oratorio 'The Seasons,' under the direction of Herr Johannes Reichert.

FLORENCE.—The first performance of Puccini's new opera, 'Tosca,' took place last month, with great success. The number of recalls received by the composer—if our informant has counted correctly—was no less than twenty-four!

GRONINGEN.—The opera 'Der Fremdling,' by the late eminent Wagner tenor, Heinrich Vogl, was produced at the Municipal Theatre recently, with much success.

HAMBURG.—Siegfried Wagner's new comic opera, 'Herzog Wildfang,' was received with great favour on its first production, on April 25, at the Stadt-Theater, and in the presence of its much gratified composer.

HELSINGFORS.—Just previous to the close of the concert season the Philharmonic Society gave no less than four performances of Bach's Mass in B minor, the last one taking place in church. Under the direction of Herr Robert Kajanus, the work was most worthily produced, the interpreters of the solo parts being all natives of Finland.

LEIPZIG.—Dr. Hugo Riemann, who has been appointed to a Professorship of Musical History and Science at the University, delivered his inaugural lecture on April 27, having chosen for his subject 'The place of Philology in Music.' The discourse was listened to with the closest attention by a numerous audience.——Eugene d'Albert's new opera 'Cain' was produced on the 9th ult., at the Stadt-Theater, with great success, the principal interpreters being recalled a number of times.

MAGDEBURG.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of the Stadt-Theater was signalised by a series of Wagner performances, from the 6th to the 16th ult., in grateful recognition of the important share which the Bayreuth master's works have had in the success of that institution.

MUNICH. — Herr Hermann Zumpe, the well-known Schwerin conductor, has been appointed first Capellmeister at the Royal Opera, where he made his début, on the 5th ult., with an excellent performance of 'Lohengrin.'—— An interesting recital was given by Herr von Possart and Eugen Gura, the former declaiming, with admirable effect, several of Schiller's poems, with melodramatic music by Zenger and Schillings (played on the pianoforte by Herr Schmid-Lindner), while his distinguished partner contributed a number of Schiller's lyrics, set to music by Schubert, Loewe, and Richard Strauss. It was a graceful act of homage rendered to the genius of the great poet.—— At a concert given by the Cathedral choir, under Dom-Capellmeister Woehrle's direction, the interesting programme included an eight-part motet, 'Jubilate Deo,' by Giovanni Gabrieli, the Bach motet, 'Fürchte dich nicht,' and the Psalm-paraphrase, 'O Dio, perché,' by Benedetto Marcello. A song cycle for mixed choir, entitled 'Stray Leaves,' by Arnold Krug, was given a first hearing on this occasion and very favourably received.

PARIS.—The 'Euterpe' Society, at its concert of the 11th ult., gave an excellent interpretation, under M. d'Ozanne's direction, of the second part of Handel's 'Alexander's Feast,' which was greatly appreciated by the habitués of these concerts. The programme also included Saint-Saëns's 'Oratorio de Noël.'——Four séances, illustrative of the development of the sonata, given by MM. Eugène Ysaye and Raoul Pugno, last month, attracted a numerous audience and met with much appreciation.——The new three-act opera, 'L'Ouragan,' by MM. Emile Zola and Alfred Bruneau, was produced at the Opéra Comique, for the first time, on April 29, and, on the whole, very favourably received.——At the Opéra, the new three-act opera 'Le Roi de Paris,' by M. Georges Hüe, a former laureate of the Conservatoire, was brought out recently, with, however, but little success.

PFORZHEIM.—Spohr's now seldom heard oratorio, 'Des Heilands letzte Stunden,' was produced by the Kirchenmusik Verein, under Herr Epp's conductorship, in Passion week.

PRAGUE.—A highly successful performance of a cycle of Verdi's operas, terminating with that of the deceased master's 'Requiem,' took place last month, at the German Theatre, under the very active and intelligent management of Herr Angelo Neumann.

RUDOLSTADT.—A most marked impression was created by the recent first performance of the new Passion Oratorio by Felix Woyrsch. The work was produced by the Oratorio Verein, under the direction of Herr Rudolph Herfurth.

SAARBRÜCKEN.—A very successful performance by the Music Verein took place recently, of a new dramatic oratorio, entitled 'Ekkehard,' by Hugo Roehr, under the direction of Capellmeister Hermann Scholz.

STOCKHOLM.—A very favourable reception has been accorded, at a concert recently given here, to Mdlle. Teresita Carreño, a gifted young pianist, daughter of Madame Teresa Carreño.

ULM.—The choral society 'Liederkranz' celebrated, last month, the seventy-fifth anniversary of its foundation. Some special interest attaches to the event, inasmuch as the Society can boast of its being the direct descendant of the last school of Meistersingers existing in Germany which carried on the traditions of the guild and continued to hold its meetings in Ulm down to the year 1832, when it was finally dissolved.

WAHRENBRÜCK (SAXONY).—The bi-centenary of the birth of Carl Heinrich Graun, the whilom Capellmeister at the Court of Frederick the Great, was celebrated at this, his native town, on the 7th ult., with the performance of his greatest and best known work, the Passion oratorio 'Der Tod Jesu.' Of his very numerous sacred compositions, only the last-named work and a Te Deum (written in celebration of the battle of Prague, in 1756) have survived to the present day.

WARSAW.—Wagner's 'Tannhäuser,' most coldly received on its last performance here, at the Polish Theatre, some twenty years ago, created an immense enthusiasm on its reproduction last month. Tempora mutantur!

OBITUARY.

RICHARD REDHEAD.

WELL past the life-limit of the Psalmist, RICHARD REDHEAD, one of the pioneers of Gregorian music and choral celebrations, drew his last breath at Hellingly, Sussex, on April 27. He was born at Harrow on March 1, 1820, and became a chorister of Magdalen College, Oxford, and a pupil of Vicary, the organist. At the request of the Rev. Frederick Oakeley, himself an accomplished musician, who had influenced him at Magdalen, Redhead accepted, in 1839, the post of organist of Margaret Street Chapel, the precursor of All Saints' Church, Margaret Street, so often called the Tractarian Cathedral. The services at the chapel were chorally rendered—an almost unheard of thing in those days, except in cathedrals—and Redhead's best work, Laudes Diurnæ, the Psalms and Canticles set to Gregorian tones, were produced and used within that sanctuary. Concurrently with his appointment at Margaret Street Chapel he was organist for a short time at St. Thomas's Church, Portman Square, and, in 1847, of St. Andrew's, Wells Street, where he laid the foundation of the choral service of that celebrated church. Mr. Redhead officiated at the consecration of All Saints' Church, Margaret Street, May 28, 1859, and became organist of that fine church; but he soon changed his sphere of labour by accepting (in 1864) the post of organist of St. Mary Magdalene, Paddington. For the long period of thirty years, his reverential and devout manner of rendering every detail of the music characterised the services of that church. As the composer of the familiar setting of 'Rock of ages, cleft for me' and 'When our heads are bowed with woe,' Mr. Redhead was widely known in churches beyond his own communion. Thus church music, of which the deceased musician was so earnest a disciple, rises above mere denominational or sectarian differences. Mr. Alfred Redhead, the deceased musician's son, is organist of St. Augustine's Church, Kilburn.

ON April 26, at Malvern, WILLIAM HAYNES, formerly of 'St. Cecilia Lodge,' Malvern, and Palace Yard, Worcester, for upwards of forty-three years organist of the Priory Church, Malvern, in his seventy-second year. Mr. Haynes was an uncle of the late Mr. Battison Haynes.

FRANZ RUMMEL.

With sincere regret we have to record the death of Professor FRANZ RUMMEL, which took place at his residence in Berlin, on the 3rd ult. Franz Rummel, the worthy descendant of a German musical family, and on whom the title of 'Professor' was bestowed by the Duke of Anhalt in 1897, was born in London on January 11, 1853. At the age of fourteen he was sent to Brussels, where he studied under the late Louis Brassin, first as a private pupil, and subsequently as a member of the Conservatoire, where he won the first prize for pianoforte playing in 1872, and afterwards joined the staff of teachers. His first appearance in public was at Antwerp, on December 22, 1872, when he came forward with Henselt's Pianoforte Concerto, which Liszt in his time regarded as the most difficult of all concertos. He has been no stranger to England, for in July, 1873, he played Schumann's Concerto at the Albert Hall, and in 1877 and 1881 appeared at the Crystal Palace. He remained as a teacher at the Brussels Conservatoire till 1876, when, on the advice of Rubinstein, he resigned his post, and started on his travels in the capacity of a pianiste ambulant, as Liszt appropriately designated such a state of life. He began by playing in the Rhine Provinces, Holland, and France, touring through Holland with Ole Bull and Minnie Hauk. He made at least three tours in America, during 1878, 1886, and 1898, up to which latter date he had played in about 700 concerts. It was during his first tour in America that he made the acquaintance of Miss Leila Morse, a daughter of the celebrated pioneer of electric telegraphy, whom he married, and who, with three sons, survives him. For some years (1893-8) he made Dessau his home-quarters, on account of the educational advantages which that city provided for his children, and then removed to Berlin. While in Dessau he celebrated, in November, 1897, the twenty-fifth anniversary of his artistic career, on which occasion he was much fêted. Latterly he seems to have suffered from ill-health arising from overwork. Franz Rummel may certainly be ranked among the most distinguished of latter day pianists.

HENRY FREDERICK FROST.

A familiar figure in the ranks of the London musical critics has been removed by the death of Mr. HENRY FREDERICK FROST, which took place on the 3rd ult. Born in London, March 15, 1848, Mr. Frost began his musical career as a chorister of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, in the year 1856. He had a beautiful voice and soon distinguished himself as a solo boy. He became head of the school a fortnight before his eleventh birthday. He sang at the funeral of the Prince Consort and at the wedding of King Edward VII., and frequently gave proof of his vocal attainments before Queen Victoria privately at Windsor. He studied the organ under Mr. R. S. Hart, organist of St. Peter's, Windmill Street, and soon played at the afternoon services at a small salary. In December, 1865, he became organist of the Chapel Royal, Savoy, a post which he held for twenty-five years till 1891, when he was succeeded by the late Battison Haynes. For eight years —from 1880—he was one of the professors of the pianoforte at the Guildhall School of Music. He commenced his journalistic career in 1874, when he was appointed musical critic of the Weekly Dispatch. Three years later he became a colleague of Professor Prout as critic of The Academy, and in 1880 he transferred his services to The Athenæum, which post he resigned in 1898, when he was succeeded by Mr. J. S. Shedlock. In 1888 Mr. Frost succeeded the late Desmond Ryan as musical critic of the Standard. His permanent contributions to the literature of music consist of a monograph on Schubert, which forms one of the Great Musicians series, the articles on 'Part-song,' 'Prelude,' and 'Chapel Royal, Savoy,' to Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians'; and a paper read before the Musical Association, on May 1, 1882, entitled 'Some remarks on Richard Wagner's music-drama "Tristan und Isolde."' Three of his hymn tunes were sung at the first part of the Burial Service at the Chapel Royal, Savoy, on the 6th ult.; the second part was read at St. John's Crematorium Chapel, Woking, on the following day. Mr. Frost, who possessed a well-developed and keen critical faculty, was for many years on the staff of THE MUSICAL TIMES.

OBITUARY—Continued.

On April 11, at 21, St. Mary's, York, John Groves, aged sixty-two. Mr. Groves, a native of York, was a well known violoncello player and an orchestral conductor of ability.

On the 13th ult., suddenly, at his residence, Hawkesmoor, Windermere, Charles John Hall, D.Mus. Lond., of 23, Fountain Street, Manchester, solicitor. An enthusiastic amateur, who rendered invaluable aid to the cause of music in Manchester.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DR. ARNE'S 'THOMAS AND SALLY.'

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—So far as I have been able to discover there are only two authorities anterior to Grove who ascribe this work to London rather than to Dublin. The first is 'The Harmonicon,' which notes thereupon (Vol. III., p. 72, 1825): 'Here (Drury Lane Theatre) Arne produced (amongst others) "Thomas and Sally," an afterpiece.' The second is Clément ('Dictionnaire des Opéras,' p. 1084), who says: 'representé à Londres vers 1760.' Gerber ('Lexikon der Tonkuenstler,' p. 153, 1812) mentions this work between two others, 1765 and 1770, and Fétis, as was his custom when in doubt, gives no date at all!

Whilst on the subject, and to clear up a doubt, perhaps some of your numerous readers can kindly say to what class 'Thomas and Sally' really belongs. It is indifferently quoted as an 'Opera,' an 'Afterpiece,' 'Incidental music to a play,' an 'English Opera,' a 'Farce,' and a 'Comic Operetta.'

If composers only knew the amount of extra work their indifference and carelessness as to dates and titles of all kinds imposes upon their long-suffering biographers, they would, in common pity, turn over a fresh leaf, at once, if not sooner!

John Towers.

Capon Bridge,
West Virginia, U.S.A.

MISCELLANEOUS.

His Majesty has conferred upon Mr. John Thomas (Pencerdd Gwalia) the honorary title of Harpist to the King.

'Music, its place and purpose in public worship,' was the subject of a lecture delivered on the 9th ult., at the Downs Chapel, Clapton, by the organist and choirmaster, Mr. W. C. Webb. Musical illustrations, showing the progress of the Art, were given by the lecturer and by the choir.

The following is the result of the competitions which have taken place at the Royal Academy of Music during the past month:—The Goring Thomas Scholarship, for Lyrical Composition, has been awarded to Paul Corder, of London. The Dove Scholarship, for Violin playing, to Ruth Clarkson, of London.

Mr. H. W. Richards (organist of Christ Church, Lancaster Gate) has been appointed by the Associated Board of the R.A.M. and R.C.M. to examine in Canada, Australia, and New Zealand. He sailed for Canada on the 29th ult. and will return to England at the beginning of December.

The many friends of Dr. James Higgs will entertain that much-esteemed musician at a banquet in his honour, at the Holborn Restaurant, on the 17th inst., when a testimonial will be presented to him in recognition of his long services in the best interests of the art.

Dr. Charles Maclean read a paper, entitled 'The Libretti of Wagner,' at the monthly meeting of the Incorporated Society of Musicians (London Section), on the 11th ult., at 20, Hanover Square.

The National Co-operative Festival will be held at the Crystal Palace on August 17, when the choir of the Society will perform Franco Leoni's 'Light of Life,' under the direction of Mr. Allen Gill.

Erratum—Page 312, line 11 from bottom of column 2 in our last issue, for 'affecting' read 'effecting.'

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Basingstoke.—The second concert of the Choral Society was given in the Drill Hall, on April 23, when Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' and Schubert's Overture 'Rosamunde' were performed. The solo vocalists were Miss Stanley Lucas and Mr. Samuel Masters, while Mr. Charles Griffiths led the orchestra. Mr. Walton Hickin presided at the harmonium and Mr. H. E. Powell, as usual, conducted.——The Free Church Choral Union gave its second concert in the Congregational Church, on April 30, when Gaul's cantata 'Israel' was performed. The well-trained choir sang with remarkable accuracy and expression throughout. The solo vocalists were Miss Ruth Gandy, Messrs. W. Knight, A. D. Ricketts, and H. Noakes. The accompaniments were played by Miss Gerrish (pianoforte) and Mr. Wilfrid Edney (organ). Mr. A. A. Aylward, the organist and choirmaster of the church, conducted.

Canterbury.—Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was performed in the Cathedral, at an oratorio service, on the 2nd ult., under the able direction of Mr. H. C. Perrin. The Cathedral Choir was augmented by the Voluntary Auxiliary Choir, the accompaniments being played by the Cathedral Orchestral Society, the brass being supplied from the Coldstream Guards' band and the wood-wind by the organ, skilfully played by Mr. J. Sterndale Grundy. The solo parts were effectively undertaken by the Cathedral Choir boys and Messrs. Hallward and Higgins.

Caterham.—At the Choral Society's concert, on the 15th ult., Parts 1 and 2 of the 'Creation' and Stanford's 'Revenge' were given. The principal vocalists were Miss Beatrice Pallister, Mr. Samuel Masters, and Mr. Foxton Ferguson. The choruses were excellently sung, especially 'The Heavens are telling.' Mr. Charles Hunt conducted.

Chagford.—The Choral Society gave a performance of Cowen's 'Rose Maiden' on the 2nd ult. The soloists were Miss Euneta Truscott, Miss Amy Graddon, Mr. Dean Trotter, and Mr. Belgrove. In the miscellaneous second part, Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer' was given with great taste and expression. There was a small orchestra, led by Mr. Sparke. Mr. E. Ellis Vinnicombe conducted, and Mr. E. M. Vinnicombe assisted at the pianoforte.

Cheltenham.—An excellent performance of Gounod's 'Redemption' was given by the Cheltenham Musical Festival Society, in the Winter Gardens, on the 14th ult. The choir sang extremely well (the male voices being specially good) under the experienced direction of Mr. J. A. Matthews, and the band, led as usual by Mr. E. G. Woodward, was fully efficient. The solo parts were in the experienced hands of Madame Medora Henson, Miss Emily Foxcroft, Messrs. Gawthrop, Mandeno Jackson, Henry Sunman, and Charles Knowles; Miss Susan Harrhy and Miss Fanny Stephens assisting in the trios. Altogether the performance was a distinct success.

Chichester.—The Musical Society, at its spring invitation concert, on the 6th ult., gave Parry's 'De Profundis' and Gade's 'Spring's Message.' A small string orchestra assisted, Miss Ethel Pender-Cudlip and Mr. George Fielder were the solo vocalists, and Dr. F. J. Read conducted.

Clare.—The first concert of the recently formed Choral Society took place in the Corn Exchange, on the 2nd ult., when Mr. S. P. Waddington's cantata 'John Gilpin' was rendered in a creditable manner, under the conductorship of the Rev. T. Normandale. The choir gave evidence of the careful training it had received, and was assisted by a small but efficient orchestra. Miss E. Goodchild was the accompanist. Other pieces in the programme were 'Blow, ye gentle breezes, blow' (J. C. Marks), 'Little Jack Horner' (Caldicott), and 'Softly fall the shades of evening' (Hatton).

Crawley.—The Crawley and Ifield Harmonic Society performed Handel's 'Samson,' in the Railway Assembly Hall, on the 17th ult., under the direction of Mr. O. Snelling. The soloists were Miss Annie Swinfen, Miss Annie Wilson, Mr. Albert Cornish, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail. Mrs. Taylor presided at the pianoforte and Mr. Thornton at the organ.

Dorchester. — The Vocal Association gave a very successful performance of Handel's 'Samson,' in the Corn Exchange, on the 9th ult. The solo vocalists were Miss Hope Morgan, Mrs. Duke, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Arthur Walenn. Miss Osmond was the pianist and Mr. Dodderidge presided at the organ. Mr. Edgar A. Lane conducted with ability.

Dover.—The first triennial Festival given by the Choral Union took place on the 1st ult., and was completely successful. The programme at the afternoon concert included Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' and two interesting sketches for orchestra, entitled, 'Sunrise' and 'By the river,' composed expressly by Mr. B. Luard Selby. The last-named were well played by the orchestra, under the composer's direction. The choir was well balanced and sang with excellent attack and spirit throughout the cantata. The solo parts were admirably sung by Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Lucie Johnstone, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. Charles Knowles. The orchestra consisted of members of the Dover Orchestral Society, supplemented by members of the Coldstream Guards' Band, and Mr. H. J. Taylor conducted. The evening programme included Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' (solo, Mr. Charles Knowles), Sir Frederick Bridge's popular 'Ballad of the Clamperdown,' a choral ballad, 'A Song of War,' composed expressly by Mr. H. C. Perrin, a part-song, 'Tubal Cain,' composed specially by Dr. E. J. Bellerby, and suite of characteristic Dances, entitled respectively 'Egyptian,' 'Grecian,' and 'Roman,' composed by Mr. H. J. Taylor, the conductor of the Festival, and performed for the first time under his direction. Sir Frederick Bridge, Dr. Bellerby, and Mr. H. C. Perrin conducted their own compositions.

Handsworth.—The St. James's Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' Bridge's 'Flag of England,' and Alice Mary Smith's 'Ode to the North-East Wind,' at the Council House, on April 23. The solos were taken by Miss Dudley, Mrs. Brockbank, and Mr. John Walker. Miss Cleobury and Mr. B. Nock presided at the pianoforte and organ respectively, and Mr. Richard Richards conducted.

Kettering.—The Choral Society gave an excellent performance of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' on the 13th ult., under the direction of its former conductor, Mr. H. G. Gotch. The choir and orchestra, numbering 230, were fully efficient, and the principal solo vocalists were Miss Perceval Allen, Madame Dews, Mr. Ernest Pike, and Mr. Charles Tree, supplemented by Miss M. Loake, Mrs. Simmons, Messrs. C. Lawrence, James Palmer, and J. F. Stanbury. It is to be hoped that the return of Mr. Gotch to the conductorship will arouse new interest in the operations of the Society.

Leamington.—The Orchestral Society, aided by a few Birmingham professional players, gave its last concert of the season on the 2nd ult., under the direction of the honorary conductor, Mr. Walter Warren. The programme included Haydn's Fifth Symphony in D major, the admirable rendering of which was the chief feature of the concert; Entr acte, 'Loreley' (Max Bruch); Overture, 'Raymond' (A. Thomas); Serenade for strings (Elgar); Intermezzo, 'Frolic' (E. Roberts West); Minuet (Paderewski), arranged by Morrelli; Graceful Dance from 'Henry VIII.' (Sullivan); and Overture, 'Die Felsenmuhle' (Reissiger). Mr. John Cockerill gave some solos on the harp admirably, and Mr. Arthur Walenn's songs were much appreciated.

Melbourne (Australia).—The special Lenten Musical Service was held at St. Paul's Cathedral, on March 28, when the first part of Gounod's 'Redemption' was rendered by the Cathedral Choir. The several choruses were sung in an intelligent and devotional way, and the important instrumental portion of the work was supplied entirely by Mr. Ernest Wood at the organ, who fulfilled his task in a masterly manner. The following members of the Cathedral Choir sang the solo parts, Messrs. J. Gregor Wood, Horace Stevens, Henry Rofe, W. C. Cheslin, J. Kendal, Frankland, and Master McCausland. The late Sir John Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was rendered on the evening of Good Friday, the solos being sung by Master McCausland, Mr. F. W. Wyatt, Mr. A. J. Pallett, and Mr. Henry Rofe.

Newport (Monmouthshire). — The Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Coleridge-Taylor's complete trilogy, 'Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha,' on April 30, which reflected much credit on all concerned. The choir sang with much spirit and was evidently in sympathy with the work, and the orchestra, strengthened by professional aid, played admirably. The solos were in the capable hands of Madame Sobrino, Mr. Reginald Brophy, and Mr. W. J. Ineson, and the conductor, Mr. E. Bernard Newman, is to be warmly congratulated on the result of his efforts.

Peterborough.—Miss Adelaide Lambe gave a successful vocal recital, on the 7th ult., in the Assembly Rooms, when she was heard in two of Elgar's 'Sea Pictures,' songs by Lassen, Maud White, Sullivan, Carl Bohm, and two new and pretty songs by Mary Augusta Salmond. The concert-giver was assisted by Mr. Robert Maitland, Miss Edie Reynolds (violin), and Messrs. Alfred Baker and Arthur Claypole (pianoforte).

Reading.—The Orpheus Society gave a very successful orchestral concert in the Town Hall, on the 1st ult. The programme included Overtures, 'William Tell' and 'Mignon,' 'L'Arlésienne' Suite (Bizet), 'Thou comest here to the land' (Mendelssohn's 'Œdipus'), Grieg's 'Landerkennung,' Spofforth's glee, 'Come, bounteous May,' and the part-songs 'Stars of the summer night' (Cruickshank), 'To Julia' (Hatton), 'Peace' (C. Lee Williams), 'When evening casts' (Clowes Bayley), and 'The Grave of a Singer' (F. Abt), and songs by Mr. Andrew Black. Dr. F. J. Read conducted.

Rochester.—A very interesting and successful performance of Coleridge-Taylor's complete Trilogy 'Hiawatha' was given by the Rochester and Chatham Choral Society, on April 29, under the direction of the composer, who had personally superintended the final rehearsals. The orchestra was composed of the Royal Engineers' Band, and Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. Herbert Grover, and Mr. Andrew Black were an admirable trio of soloists. The composer received a great ovation. A public rehearsal at popular prices was given on the previous Saturday. The solo vocalists on that occasion were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. Harold Wilde, and Mr. J. A. Archer.

Tonbridge.—A performance of 'The Messiah' was given on the 8th ult., by the Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. H. J. Taylor. The principal soloists were Miss Alice Simons, Miss Bertha Gelder, Mr. Herbert Church, and Mr. Wilfred Barclay. Mr. W. J. Baldwin was the organist, and Mr. C. Harris led the orchestra.

West Bromwich.—The last concert given by the Choral Society this season took place at the Town Hall, on the 1st ult., when the main feature of attraction consisted of 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and 'Hiawatha's Departure,' from Coleridge-Taylor's popular trilogy, preceded by the Overture. The choir was well balanced, and sang throughout with good attack, intelligence, and dramatic expression, giving ample evidence of the careful training of its conductor, Mr. William Hartland. The band, chiefly from Birmingham and led by Mr. Abbott, was also excellent. The solos were in the capable hands of Miss Esther Palliser, Mr. William Green, and Mr. Ivor Foster. The orchestra was also heard to advantage in the Overtures to the 'Midsummer Night's Dream' and 'Tannhäuser,' and in German's Gipsy Suite.

Weybridge.—The Choral Society gave its first concert on the 14th ult., when Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was performed. The singing of the choir, numbering eighty voices, indicated careful training by the conductor, Mr. A. Burnell, and there was a small and excellent professional orchestra. The principal solo vocalists were Miss Winifred Marwood, Miss Clegg, Mr. Turnpenney, and Mr. Montague Borwell. The Society and its conductor may be congratulated on the result of their first appearance.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Beethovenist.—(1) Browning's 'Abt Vogler' is published by Messrs. Smith, Elder and Co. (2) Mozart's Masses, other than the first, second, twelfth (so-called), and Requiem may be obtained from Messrs. Novello. (3) We believe that the greatest organ in the world is in the Town Hall, Sydney. (4) The question 'Who is the greatest organist and the greatest musician in the world?' is so very like a riddle that we must give it up.

Thankful.—If you are earning a good living by your present avocation we should advise you to stick to it and use your voice for your own pleasure and that of your friends. Your savings might very soon disappear in 'going through the routine' in order to become 'a concert singer, that is, a high class one.' If you do not take our advice, you had better consult some really qualified musician in the city of your habitation.

R. F.—(1) The violin maker you name is a German immigrant of recent years. We do not know his present address. (2) The theory of music can be taught by correspondence lessons, but one should be wary of those who profess to instruct in practical music by that method. (3) Twenty-seven is not too old.

W. H. R.—The use of this or that Sursum Corda is purely a matter of taste or convenience. Some composers have adopted the arrangement of Marbecke. In any case the reciting note for the priest should be one that will be agreeable to the ear and have some relation to the chord on which the Sanctus begins.

Father O'Flynn.—Sterndale Bennett's three Impromptus (Op. 12) may be played as follows: No. 1 in B minor, quaver = 104; No. 2, in E, crotchet = 120; No. 3, in F sharp minor, crotchet = 96. Play Weber's Momento Capriccioso in B flat (Op. 12) at dotted minim = 144.

J. L.—(1) The examination requirement 'finger and wrist staccato' is not a simultaneous employment of those joints in the playing of scales on the pianoforte. (2) Ask the respective Secretaries of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Organists.

H. M. G.—We regret that we cannot trace the name of a lady singer named Bellchambers (or Belchamber), who sang in opera in London, circa 1801-37, and who resided at Fulham. Perhaps one of our readers can throw some light upon the subject.

T. H. W.—Write to the Hon. Secretary of the Oxford and Cambridge Musical Club, 47, Leicester Square, London. He will gladly furnish you with information as to the formation of a musical club such as you desire to inaugurate.

W. F. F.—You cannot do better than read Sir Hubert Parry's 'The Art of Music,' a most valuable book. The same author's 'Studies of Great Composers' forms an excellent starting point for the study of musical biography.

E. C.—If you write to Messrs. Henry Willis and Sons, Rotunda Organ Works, Camden Town, they would probably be able to send you a printed specification of the organ built by them in the Alexandra Palace.

A student in earnest.—We do not know of any other way of getting a post of assistant-teacher to a musician than by advertising. But you should have no difficulty in getting good lessons in Birmingham.

Standish.—Your sextet of questions partakes of the nature of an examination paper. You will find answers to them in Ernest A. Dicks's 'A handbook of examinations in music.'

H. H. H.—Write to Mr. J. Austin, Knuston Lodge, Wellingborough, for full information concerning 'Austin's Universal Wind Chest System.'

Arbitrary.—Sterndale Bennett's Capriccio in A minor, No. 3, Op. 28 (not 98, as stated by you), may be played at crotchet = 160.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

ADAMS, JOSEPH H.—"Sun of my soul." Anthem. For Soprano or Tenor Solo and Chorus. 3d.

ARMSTRONG, W. D.—"The Heavenly Vision." Sacred Solo for Christmas-tide. For Soprano or Tenor. 2s.

BACH, J. S. — "Sleepers, wake." A Church Cantata. For Soprano, Tenor, and Bass Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Founded on Philipp Nicolai's Hymn, "Wachet auf! ruft uns die Stimme." The Pianoforte Accompaniment arranged by Ebenezer Prout. The English Translation by Miss G. E. Troutbeck. 1s.

BAKER, H. E. — "O Nightingale." Four-part Song. (No. 863. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

BEACH, M. A. HICKS — Vesper Hymn. On Card. 1d.

BELL, W. H.—"Cradle Song." For Violin and Pianoforte. 2s.

BENDALL, WILFRED — "Pas Seul." From "Song Dances." Arranged for a Military Band by Dan Godfrey, Junr. 5s.

CAMPBELL, H. A. J.—"Songs of the Seasons." Four Two-part Songs for Female Voices. No. 1. "Autumn Song." With Accompaniment for Pianoforte (with Two Violins, ad lib). (No. 114. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs for Female Voices.) 2d.

—— Ditto. No. 2. "A Winter Song." (No. 115. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs for Female Voices.) 2d.

—— Ditto. No. 3. "A Spring Song." (No. 116. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs for Female Voices.) 2d.

—— Ditto. No. 4. "A Summer Song." (No. 117. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs for Female Voices.) 3d.

CELLIER, F.—"Holy, Holy, Holy." (No. 107. Novello's Short Anthems.) 1½d.

CLARKE, C.—Venite, exultemus Domino. Three Settings to Simple Chants. With varied Accompaniment for Choir and Organ. Second Series. 3d.

COWEN, FREDERIC H.—"The Butterfly's Ball." Overture. For Full Orchestra. 1st Violin, 1s. 6d.; 2nd Violin, 1s. 6d.; Viola, 1s. 6d.; Violoncello, 1s.; Basso, 1s.

COWLEY, F.—Thirty-two Original Tunes to Popular Hymns. Cloth, 1s.

CRIPPS, A. REDGRAVE—"Weep you no more." Four-part Song. (No. 856. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 2d.

ELGAR, EDWARD — "Chanson de Nuit." 1st Violin, 3d.; 2nd Violin, 3d.; Viola, 3d.; Violoncello, 3d.; Basso, 3d. Wind Parts, 1s. 6d.

—— "Chanson de Matin." 1st Violin 3d.; 2nd Violin, 3d.; Viola, 6d.; Violoncello, 3d.; Basso, 3d. Wind Parts, 1s. 6d.

—— "Litany." Chorus from the "Dream of Gerontius." (No. 790. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 2d.

—— "Be merciful, be gracious." Chorus from the "Dream of Gerontius." (No. 791. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 3d.

—— "Go forth upon thy journey." Chorus from the "Dream of Gerontius." (No. 792. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 4d.

FANING, EATON—"Song of the Vikings," Part-Song, with Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniment. (No. 864. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 6d.

FETHERSTON, REV. SIR G. R.—"Weary of earth, and laden with my sin." Hymn. 2d.

GOUNOD, CH.—"Chœur Prophétique." From "The Redemption." French words. (No. 793. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 30 centimes.

—— "Le Sanhédrin." From "The Redemption." French words. (No. 794. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 65 centimes.

—— "Ah! qu'ils sont beaux." From "The Redemption." French words. (No. 795. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 65 centimes.

—— "L'Hymne Apostolique." From "The Redemption." French words. (No. 796. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 1 fr. 25 centimes.

HARWOOD, BASIL—"Suffer the little children." A short unaccompanied Anthem, for Holy Baptism. (No. 697. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

HAYNES, BATTISON — "The Sea-Fairies." Cantata. For Soprano Solo and Chorus of Female Voices, with Accompaniment for the Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

HODSON, JAMES J.—Prayer for the King ("Domine, salvum fac"). For S.A.T.B. Latin words. 4d.

KEETON, HAYDN—"Roses, ah, how fair ye be." Madrigal. For S.S.A.T.T.B. (No. 860. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d.

KNIGHT, RICHARD—"Tell we where is fancy bred." Four-part Song. (No. 862. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 2d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

LUTHER—"How blest the land." Hymn at a Coronation Service. The words by Rev. W. H. Draper. (No. 562. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.

LYTHGOE, T. S.—Benedicite, omnia Opera. 1½d.

MACPHERSON, CHARLES—"Fantasy-Prelude." (No. 21. The Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ. Edited by Edwin H. Lemare.) 2s.

MILITARY CHURCH PARADE SERVICE BOOK. For the use of Military Bands and Chaplains at Parade Services in Camp and Church. Consisting of Morning Prayer, Litany, and Holy Communion, with a selection of Hymns for Open-air Services. Compiled and arranged by Thomas Conway Brown. 1s.

NARES, JAMES—"O Lord my God, I will exalt Thee." Anthem. For Bass Solo and Chorus. Edited, and Organ Accompaniment arranged, by John E. West. (No. 702. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

NEEDHAM, ALICIA A.—"At Last." Sacred Song. No. 2, in G flat. For Soprano or Tenor. No. 3, in D. For Contralto or Baritone. Each 2s.

—— Ditto, No. 1, in F. Violin (ad lib.), 3d.; Organ (ad lib.), 3d.

NEMO.—Gavotte ("L'Elégante"). For the Pianoforte. 2s.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 108. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Sweet Tender Flower." For S S A A., with Accompaniment (ad lib.). From "The Daughter of Jairus." By J. Stainer. "Thou art the way." Hymn. By Rev. J. B. Dykes. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

		A.	B.
No. 395.	Hour of golden noontide. Two-part Song, from the Cantata "The Hours" J. L. Roeckel	1½d.	—
„ 457.	O we are the Hours. Two-part Song, from the Cantata "The Hours" J. L. Roeckel	3d.	—
„ 458.	I am the silver Dawn. Unison Song, with Two-part Chorus, from the Cantata "The Hours" J. L. Roeckel	1½d.	—
„ 459.	The hour of the tranquil Night am I. Unison Song, with Two-part Chorus, and O we are the Hours of Night and Day. Two-part Song, from the Cantata "The Hours." J. L. Roeckel	1½d.	—
Book 97.	Six Two-part Songs. By various Composers	8d.	—
„ 123.	Worcester Chimes; or, Faithful in a very little. A Service of Song, suitable for Sunday Schools, Bands of Hope, &c. By M. F. A. Staff notation only	8d.	6d.

Words of Hymns and Songs, 1½d.

SILAS, E.—(in D). "Domine, salvum fac." Prayer for the Sovereign. (No. 30. Cantiones Sacræ.) 2d.

SMITH, SAMUEL—"Veni, Creator Spiritus" ("Come, Holy Ghost, our souls inspire"). Hymn. For Whitsuntide, Ordinations, &c. (No. 560. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.

STAINER, J.—"Deliver me, O Lord." (No. 108. Novello's Short Anthems.) 1½d.

SULLIVAN, ARTHUR—Overture in C ("In Memoriam"). Arranged for a Military Band by Dan Godfrey, Junr. 10s.

TEN HYMNS WITH TUNES. For Use in Schools and for Children's Festivals. Edited by W. L. R. McCluer. Set 2. 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 3d. Words only, 5s. per 100.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—

No. 1193. O nightingale .. .. .. H. E. Baker 1½d.

FLETCHER, PERCY E.—"The Toy Review." A School Operetta. 8d.

TEN HYMNS WITH TUNES. For Use in Schools and for Children's Festivals. Set 2. 3d.

WADDINGTON, S. P.—"Lilian." Four-part Song. (No. 700. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

WARNER, H. WALDO—"Elegie." Arranged for Violoncello and Pianoforte by Tennyson Werg. 1s. 6d.

DEATH.—On the 26th of April, at Malvern, WILLIAM HAYNES, formerly of St. Cecilia Lodge, Malvern, and Palace Yard, Worcester; for upwards of forty-three years Organist of the Priory Church, Malvern, in his seventy-second year.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MISS KATHERINE NASH

(SOPRANO).

Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq.

Address, 10, Mount Pleasant Mansions, Upper Clapton, N.E.

CONTENTS.

	Page
August Wilhelmj (with Special Portrait and Illustrations)	369
Queen Victoria and Music	374
Sir John Goss (concluded) (with Illustrations)	375
Music in the Royal Academy Exhibition	383
Occasional Notes	386
Church and Organ Music	389
Reviews	390
The London Musical Festival	391
New Opera at the Savoy—"The Emerald Isle"	391
The Royal Opera	392
The Philharmonic Society	399
The Joachim Quartet Concerts	399
Mr. D. F. Tovey's Pianoforte Recitals	399
Music Competitions:—
Westmorland	400
York	400
Blackpool (Festival)	401
Morecambe	402
Madresfield	402
Carlisle	402
Brigg	402
London Girls' Club	403
The Feis Ceoil	403
London Concerts	403
Suburban Concerts	405
Music in Vienna	406
„ Moscow	406
„ Belfast	407
„ Birmingham	407
„ Bristol	407
„ Dublin	407
„ East Anglia	407
„ Glasgow	408
„ Lincoln	408
„ Liverpool and District	409
„ Northumberland and Durham	409
„ Sheffield and District	409
„ Wales	409
Foreign Notes	410
Obituary (With Portrait of Mr. R. Redhead)	411
Correspondence	412
Miscellaneous	412
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	412
Answers to Correspondents	414
Music published during the last Month	414
Four-Part Song—"Lilian."—S. P. Waddington	393
Four-part Songs { "Creation's Hymn."—L. van Beethoven. "The Chase."—Edward German. (Extra Supplements.)

THREE Extra Supplements are given in this number: (1) A Portrait of Professor August Wilhelmj, by A. H. Fry, Brighton; (2) A Four-part Song, 'Creation's Hymn,' by L. van Beethoven; (3) A Four-part Song, 'The Chase,' by Edward German.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

MR. BEN JOHNSON

(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900).

Oratorio, Concerts, &c., 64, Clovelly Road, Ealing, W.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES

(BARITONE),

Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, and Chester Musical Festivals, Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts, Crystal Palace and Principal Provincial Concerts.

Is now booking for Season 1901-2. For terms, address direct, 24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.; or usual London Agents.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

PUBLISHED ON THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH. Price 1½d. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW FOR JUNE CONTAINS:—

NOTES.
THE LATE SIR JOHN STAINER.
ELEMENTARY STATE-AIDED SCHOOLS AND SINGING.—SCOTCH RETURNS FOR 1900.
MUSIC IN TRAINING COLLEGES.
STAFF NOTATION versus TONIC SOL-FA—OR BOTH?
SOCIETY OF ARTS.—EXAMINATIONS, 1901.
TONIC SOL-FAISTS AT THE QUEEN'S HALL.
SCHOOL MUSIC IN S.W. ENGLAND.
"VERY GOOD AT THEORY."
LINCOLN TRAINING COLLEGE.
MUSIC COMPETITIONS.
A COUNTRY MUSICAL COMPETITION.
THE FEIS CEOIL.
THE LONDON WORKING GIRLS' CLUB UNION CHORAL COMPETITION.
MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

THE JUNE NUMBER CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC:—

"THE MERRY BELLS OF HAMBURG." Round, for Three Voices. By ALFRED MOFFAT.
"THE MORN DOTH BREAK." Round, for Four Voices. By ALFRED MOFFAT.
"COME, LASSES AND LADS." Unison Song.
TWO-PART SIGHT-SINGING TEST.
Also, EXTRA SUPPLEMENT, containing "O SUNNY BEAM!" Unison Song. By SCHUMANN. (No. 194. Novello's School Songs. Price 2d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC, LTD. Warden: Professor ALEXANDER PHIPPS, Mus. Bac. Musical Examinations in all towns in July. Medals awarded. Diplomas of Associate, Licentiate, and Fellow granted to Teachers. Educational Departments, 60, Berners Street, and Victoria Hall, Archer Street, London; The Conservatoire, 15, Hardman St., Liverpool, and Victoria Hall, Withington, Manchester. Staff of 40 Professors and Examiners. Few vacancies for local Secs.

PRO-CATHEDRAL, High Street, Kensington.—SOLO BOY WANTED.—Sunday mornings only. Liberal pay. Apply to Choirmaster, any Sunday morning.

TENOR WANTED, at once, St. Mary Magdalene's, Paddington. Two Services Sunday, one practice. Strong voice; good reader essential. Communicant. £15. Apply, by letter, to M. Dene, Esq., 64, Westbourne Park Villas, W.

TENOR WANTED, immediately, for St. Alban's, Teddington. Must be good reader and able to take Solos. Salary, £25. W. Ratcliffe, Langham Road, Teddington.

ST. SAVIOUR'S, Woolcot Park, Bristol.—An ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is required for the above Church. Must be Churchman. Communicant. Salary, £50. Apply, before June 12, in first instance, to Mr. H. J. Rawlings, Churchwarden, 16, Clyde Road, Redland, Bristol.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Mus. Bac.) desires APPOINTMENT. Very successful with boys' voices. Accustomed to choral services and large organ. Private means. Highest testimonials. Musicus, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

ORGANIST, A.R.C.O., is open to DEPUTISE during June and July. Address, G. R., 123, Grange Road, Bermondsey, S.E.

TUNER REQUIRED, for Midlands. Must be steady and reliable. Permanent situation. Apply, enclosing photo, stating salary, experience, and references, D. W. E., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, TUNER and REPAIRER. Permanency. Send photo, with references, qualifications, salary required, age, &c., to W. Brunt and Sons, Piano Depôt, Bristol.

WANTED, a good, sound, young TUNER (improver leaving factory preferred) for Out-door and Indoor work Must have a knowledge of repairs. Permanency. Apply, stating particulars and salary required, to Godfrey and Co., Musicsellers, Brighton.

CANVASSER.—WANTED, a sharp MAN (married), with a view to manage a Branch Agency. Salary and commission. Apply, Dale, Forty and Co., Birmingham.

REEVES' CATALOGUE (No. 106) of ANCIENT and MODERN MUSIC and MUSICAL BOOKS, bound and unbound (second-hand and new), includes works from Sir A. Sullivan and Dr. Hopkins' Libraries. Organ Music a specialty. Send stamp for copy. REEVES, 83, Charing Cross Road, London.

ANTHEMS

AND

ANTHEM COMPOSERS

BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Tracing the development of the Anthem from the Reformation to the end of the 19th Century, and containing, in addition to a memoir of each Composer, an alphabetical list of nearly 5,000 Anthems by deceased writers.

The value of the work is enhanced by the portraits, some of them unique, of sixteen leading Anthem Composers, together with a fine frontispiece of HENRY PURCELL, reproduced from Closterman's painting, by permission of the Royal Society of Musicians.

The number of Copies of the above work is STRICTLY LIMITED as follows:—

250 Copies, issued to Subscribers only, on special paper, rough-edged and half-bound, 10s. 6d. net, post-free.

250 Copies as soon as Subscription Copies are exhausted, but similar in all respects, 12s. net, post-free.

There will also be issued, on ordinary paper, and bound in cloth, 500 copies at 7s. 6d. net, post-free.

After these 1,000 copies have been printed, the Plates and Stereos, &c., will be destroyed and the work cannot be re-issued.

Musicians, Collectors, and those interested in English Church Music should not fail to secure at least one copy of what will shortly become a RARE BOOK.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

TEN HYMNS

WITH TUNES

FOR USE IN SCHOOLS AND FOR CHILDREN'S FESTIVALS

(Suitable also for Flower Services or Sunday School Festivals)

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

THE REV. W. ST. HILL BOURNE, CANON RAWNSLEY, THE LATE W. CHATTERTON DIX, JOHN ELLERTON, BISHOP WALSHAM HOW, F. R. HAVERGAL, and others.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

SIR GEORGE C. MARTIN, F. H. COWEN, JAMES LANGRAN, S. SMITH, SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN, SIR JOHN STAINER, and others.

EDITED BY W. L. R. McCLUER,
Organist of St. Paul's, Canonbury.

SET 2.
Price Threepence.
Tonic Sol-fa, price Threepence. Words only, Five Shillings per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; and NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., New York.

TWO-MANUAL PIPE ORGAN, £175, or payment arranged; 10 ft. high. Imposing appearance. Speaking front. Manuals, CC to A; pedals, CCC to F. 18 stops. Splendid tone; perfect order. Lead about 700 voices. S, 52, Hazlewood Crescent, Westbourne Park Station, London. Appointments preferred.

CHURCH ORGAN, by RENATUS HARRIS. Judiciously restored. CC to A. Great, 13 stops; swell, 12; choir, 11; pedal, 6; couplers, 7; comp. pedals, 11. Can be seen by appointment. Apply to Arthur Glasspoole, Wymondham, Norfolk.

ORCHESTRAL SERVICE for CHURCH FESTIVALS.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E flat. By FELIX W. MORLEY M.A., Mus.B. Price 6d. For full Orchestra, or with Strings and Organ only.
Sung, with full Orchestra and Organ, at Choral Festivals in Ely and Sydney Cathedrals.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

VIRGIL PRACTICE CLAVIER for SALE. Perfect condition; very little used. Reasonable offer accepted. M. Brown, Drawbridge, Bristol.

William Boyce

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 701.—Vol. 42. JULY 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,
ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

There are now VACANCIES in the CHOIR for Sopranos, Contraltos, Tenors, and Basses (especially Tenors). Only those who have good and powerful voices, and who can read music at first sight, will be accepted. Address, The Secretary, Royal Choral Society, Royal Albert Hall, S.W.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,
TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., F.R.A.M.

Distribution of Prizes by Lady Strathcona at St. James's Hall, Thursday, July 25, at 3.

Michaelmas Term begins Thursday, September 26. Entrance Examination therefor, Monday, September 23, at 10.

Fortnightly Concert, Saturday, July 13, at 8.

Metropolitan Examination (L.R.A.M.) Syllabus now ready.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD
OF THE
ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC AND ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS.

For particulars see SYLLABUS A.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1901.

Entries for the October and November Examinations must be sent to the Central Office on or before October 11, 1901, or, with extra fee, on or before October 26, 1901.

For particulars see SYLLABUS B.

Copies of Syllabus A and B will be sent Post-free on application to the Secretary.

Theory papers set in Local Centre and School Examinations in 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, and 1900 can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year. Post-free.

The Board gives annually Six Exhibitions tenable for two years.

JAMES MUIR, Secretary.

32, Maddox Street, London, W.
Telegraphic address: "Associa, London."

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Midsummer F.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 15, 1901. The solo-playing tests are: Prelude and Fugue in C, Bach (No. 1, Vol. 4, Peters' Edition) (Novello and Co., Book 7, No. 4, Augener and Co., Book 3, No. 13); Sonata (No. 6) in E flat minor, Op. 119, Rheinberger (F. Kistner, Leipzig) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.); Orgel-Sonate in D minor, J. G. Töpfer (Peters) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.).

The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 22.

All Candidates, including those claiming exemption from fee, must send in their names for FELLOWSHIP by June 28, 1901; for ASSOCIATESHIP by July 5. In the case of New Members, proposal forms, duly filled up, must be sent in before June 20. No names will be entered after the above dates.

The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.

Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.

For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply tot he Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

QUEEN'S HALL.

LESSEE AND MANAGER:

ROBERT NEWMAN.

Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN is Sole Agent for the following Artists:—

Madame LILLIAN BLAUVELT.
Miss FLORENCE SCHMIDT.

Madame KIRKBY LUNN.
Miss JESSIE GOLDSACK.

Mr. FFRANGCON DAVIES.

Mons. YSAYE.
Madame VON STOSCH.

Herr HUGO BECKER.

Signor BUSONI.

All communications respecting engagements for the above Artists should be made direct to Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN MEMORIAL.

The COMMITTEE beg to ACKNOWLEDGE the FOLLOWING CONTRIBUTIONS towards the above Memorial:—

FIRST LIST OF SUBSCRIPTIONS.

	£	s.	d.
Alfred de Rothschild, Esq.	52	10	0
Chappell and Co., Ltd.	50	0	0
T. F. Chappell, Esq.	50	0	0
Novello and Co., Ltd.	52	10	0
Sir George Lewis	52	10	0
Sir Ernest Cassel	52	10	0
Henry Oppenheim, Esq.	52	10	0
W. S. Gilbert, Esq.	52	10	0
Charles W. Matthews, Esq.	52	10	0
R. D. Walker, Esq.	50	0	0
Howard Morley, Esq.	26	5	0
M. T. Martin, Esq.	25	0	0
Messrs. Boosey and Co.	25	0	0
Arthur Wagg, Esq.	25	0	0
Ernest Dresden, Esq.	25	0	0
Edward German, Esq.	21	0	0
S. Lichtenstadt, Esq.	20	0	0
Edwin Ashdown Esq.	10	10	0
Sir Squire Bancroft	10	10	0
Mrs. T. P. Chappell	10	10	0
Alfred Littleton, Esq.	10	10	0
John Hare, Esq.	10	10	0
Henry J. Wood, Esq.	10	10	0
A. W. Pinero, Esq.	10	10	0
N. Vert, Esq.	10	10	0
Julius Reiss, Esq.	10	0	0
Fritz Reiss, Esq.	10	0	0
Col. C. E. Swaine	10	0	0
Lady Stainer	5	0	0
Mrs. Josephs	5	5	0
Gaston Foà, Esq.	5	5	0
F. Foà, Esq.	5	5	0
F. H. Cowen, Esq.	5	5	0
Wilfred Bendall, Esq.	5	5	0
E. Enoch, Esq.	5	5	0
Herbert Leon, Esq.	5	5	0
Sir George Martin	5	0	0
Sir A. C. Mackenzie	3	3	0
J. L. Toole, Esq.	3	3	0
A. C. Allen, Esq.	2	2	0
Hermann Klein, Esq.	2	2	0
Sig. L. Denza	2	2	0
W. Potter, Esq.	1	1	0
O. E. Fleet Cobb, Esq.	1	1	0
C. Helmore, Esq.	1	1	0
J. Spencer Curwen, Esq.	1	1	0
James Fox, Esq.	1	1	0
G. R. Blake McGrath, Esq.	1	1	0
Harry G. Winter, Esq.	1	1	0
A. Maclachlan, Esq.	1	0	0
F. Durrr, Esq.	1	0	0
A. E. Cloetz, Esq.	0	10	6

Further contributions will be thankfully received by the Bankers, Messrs. Lloyds, Law Courts' Branch, 222, Strand; Messrs. Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond Street; and Messrs. Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

OCTOBER 9, 10, 11, AND 12, 1901.

NOTICE.

The First Sale of TICKETS to the General Public is POSTPONED till THURSDAY, AUGUST FIRST.

Applications for Tickets with (in every case) remittances can be sent in at any time.

SINGLE TICKET—MORNING .. .. £1 1s.
SINGLE TICKET—EVENING .. .. 15s.

FRED. R. SPARK, Hon. Sec.

Festival Office, 38, Great George Street, Leeds,
June 21, 1901.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—

Estab. by the Corporation of London, 1880.—Principal: WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A. Lessons daily, 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Every branch of Vocal and Instrumental Music. Students trained for Opera and Drama in the new Theatre. Prospectus on application. By order of the Committee, H. SAXE WYNDHAM, Secretary. Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 17—December 22); Winter Term (January 21—March 30); Summer Term (April 1—June 22).

Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from
ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF ARGYLL, K.G., K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
GEORGE PRIOR, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. BENTLEY, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: CHURCHILL SIBLEY, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.
First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.
Provincial Examinations in all subjects, for Certificates and Diplomas, A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., October, November, and December. Metropolitan Examination, December 5. Local Theoretical Examination at all Centres in December.
Holder of the Victoria College Vocal Scholarship, 1901: Miss Lottie L. Wakelin.
Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.
Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.
All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.
GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, BERNERS STREET, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Patron: His Grace the ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.
President: The Very Rev. FRANCIS PIGOU, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in November and December, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.
Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.
The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.
Free register for Organists requiring appointments.
For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE

OF MUSIC, LTD.

Warden: Professor ALEX. PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.
Musical Examinations held in all towns.
Diplomas—Associate, Licentiate, and Fellow granted.
Apply, Sec., 60, Berners St., London; or, 5, Hardman St., L'pool.

NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC, LTD.

Patron: THE DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH.
Warden: Dr. TINDALL, A.T.C.L.
Medals and Diplomas awarded.
During Vacation new members wanted for autumn work.
Composers note our publishing system, practically free through exchanges.
192, Sutherland Avenue, Maida Vale. W. J. MOSS.

GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

SEPTEMBER 8, 10, 11, 12, and 13, 1901.

Patrons: T.M.G.M. THE KING AND QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

PRINCIPAL SOLOISTS:

Madame ALBANI, Madame ELLA RUSSELL, Madame SOBRINO, Miss HILDA WILSON, Miss ADA CROSSLEY, Miss MURIEL FOSTER, Mr. BEN DAVIES, Mr. WM. GREEN, Mr. ANDREW BLACK, Mr. PLUNKET GREENE, Mr. LANE WILSON.

CONDUCTOR .. .. Mr. A. HERBERT BREWER.

IN THE CATHEDRAL:—

SUNDAY, at 3, Grand Opening Service.
TUESDAY, at 11.30, "Elijah."
TUESDAY EVENING, at 8 o'clock, Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony; "A Harvest Song" (Lee Williams); "Last Judgment" (Spohr).
WEDNESDAY, at 11.30, Symphony in C minor (Brahms); Mass in D (Cherubini); Organ Concerto (Handel); Motet for Double Choir (Lloyd), &c.
THURSDAY, at 11.30, "Eroica" Symphony (Beethoven); "Job" (Sir Hubert Parry); Requiem (Verdi).
THURSDAY EVENING, at 8, "Emmaus" (Brewer); "Sleepers, wake" (Bach); "Hymn of Praise."
FRIDAY, at 11.30, "Messiah."

IN THE SHIRE HALL:—

WEDNESDAY EVENING, at 8, GRAND MISCELLANEOUS CONCERT. New Orchestral Works by Cowen and Bell and New Cantata (Sir F. Bridge); "Cockaigne" (Elgar); "Last Post" (Stanford).

Admission: Reserved Seats, 15s. to 1s. 6d. A Set of Tickets (transferable), admitting to best seats at all performances and rehearsals, £3 13s. 6d.; ditto, admitting to best seats Tuesday Evening, Wednesday Morning, Thursday Morning and Evening, and Rehearsal, £1 15s. Applicants for these tickets have priority of choice.

For Programmes, Tickets, &c., apply Minchin and Gibbs, Westgate Street, Gloucester.

P. BARRETT COOKE, Secretary, Gloucester.

Just Published.

TWO HYMNS FOR HOLY MATRIMONY.

1. BEFORE THE SERVICE

O GOD OF GRACE

2. AFTER THE SERVICE

NOW IS THE EARTH WITH GOD'S GLORY REJOICING

WORDS BY

E. M. GORDON

MUSIC BY

J. STAINER.

Price, each, 1d.
Words of each, 2s. 6d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

ISRAEL IN EGYPT

AN ORATORIO

COMPOSED BY

G. F. HANDEL.

Translated into Tonic Sol-fa Notation by
W. G. McNAUGHT.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

REVERIE

FOR THE

VIOLIN

WITH ACCOMPANIMENT FOR THE PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED BY

MARTIN FALLAS SHAW.

Price Two Shillings.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MADAME ANNIE GREW (Contralto, Medalist)
Waverley Road, Bradford.

MISS GERTRUDE HEY (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Lawn Side, Clarendon Road, Whalley Range, Manchester.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.)
Address, 1, Dorothy Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. OWEN HALL (Tenor)
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
22, Crossfield Road, Eton Avenue, Hampstead, N.W.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. AUGUSTUS KEMP (Bass)
Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
Pure tone, perfect enunciation, satisfaction guaranteed.
Terms, &c., address, 100, Melton Road, Leicester.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

B. E. KENT (Lyric Authoress).
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MR. AUGUSTUS TOOP, A.R.C.O.,
Organist and Director of Music, St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, W.
Accompanist (including Masonic work), Conductor, and Composer.
34, Winchester Avenue, Brondesbury, N.W.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto). Engagements at Finsbury, Whitechapel, Highbury, New Cross, Highgate, City, Stockwell, Nottingham, Dudley, Brighton, Mile End, Lewisham, Blackheath. Address, 14, Gladsmuir Rd., Whitehall Pk., N.

MISS FANNY CHETHAM
(DRAMATIC SOPRANO).
Daily Telegraph: "Sang in splendid style."
Glasgow Press: "Created a most favourable impression as a cultured and accomplished artist" ("Song of Miriam").
Isle of Wight Express: "Thrilled the audience with a lovely voice of splendid compass" ("Eli").
Bedfordshire Times: "Sweet unstrained quality of tone, and, best of all, her artistic sympathetic expression."
For terms, &c., address, National Concert Agency, 9, Berners St., W.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MISS CORDELIA GRYLLS
(SOPRANO)
(Pupil of Miss Marie Fillunger.)
For Chamber Music Concerts, Instrumental Recitals, &c.
"A sweet voice, and her method is perfect."—Standard.
Recently engaged: Oxford U.L., Mus Soc., Balliol Concerts.
MR. LEONARD BORWICK'S PIANO RECITAL, RUGBY.—"The vocalist was no unworthy coadjutor of the pianist."—Rugby Advertiser.
10, Swiss Terrace, N.W.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MISS KATHERINE NASH
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq.
Address, 10, Mount Pleasant Mansions, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
140, Marylebone Road, N.W.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO),
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MR. TREVOR EVANS
(TENOR).
"SAMSON."—"Endowed with a voice of unusual power and compass, Mr. Trevor Evans carried his audience with him from his first solo and quite enchanted them."—Ilfracombe Gazette.
"I am delighted with his voice, which I consider charming."—Madame Patti.
"ISRAEL IN EGYPT."—"His singing of 'The enemy said' left the audience longing for more."—The Yorkshire Herald.
"They nearly shouted hosanna at his singing."—Western Mail.
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900)
Begs to notify change of address to 27, Warwick Road, Ealing, W.
Now booking for next season. Oratorio Concerts, &c.

MR.
JAMES LEYLAND
TENOR.
Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(BARITONE)
(Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts),
7, Station Terrace, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE).
MR. HENRY J. WOOD (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.
"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.
"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.
"HENRY J. WOOD."
AND
MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO).
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. ROLAND HOYLE
(BARITONE).
Press notices, terms, &c. Dalby Street, Longsight, Manchester.

MR. CHARLES TREE.
"ELIJAH" (Coventry, Jan. 10).—"A powerful rich voice of great compass. Sang 'Elijah' as it has not been sung in Coventry for a long time. Took his audience by storm."—Standard.
"ELIJAH" (Bishops Stortford, April 17).—"Sang the Prophet's part with the fire and pathos that one expects from an artist of Mr. Tree's calibre."—Observer.
"ELIJAH" (Kettering, May 17).—"Gave a beautiful interpretation, appreciating to the full the frequent changes of mood."—Observer.
"GOLDEN LEGEND" (Newcastle, Nov. 28).—"Proved himself a worthy associate of Mr. Edward Lloyd. His Lucifer was admirable."—Daily Journal.
"GOLDEN LEGEND" (Carlisle, Dec. 26).—"The various gradations of subservience and flattery, cunning and hate, fear and exultation were admirable, his rollicking mimicry exquisite."—Patriot.
"GOLDEN LEGEND" (Bedford, May 21).—"It is hardly possible to imagine a finer rendering of Lucifer's part. He was all and everything that the most exacting critic could possibly desire."—Standard.
"MESSIAH" (Edinburgh, Jan. 1).—"A voice of excellent quality, and a thorough artist. Sang with great dramatic force and expressiveness."—Scotsman.
"HIAWATHA" (S. Shields, March 27).—"Mr. Tree, who won golden opinions in 'Samson' last season, again gave every satisfaction. His magnificent well-toned voice brought down the house."—Mail.
Address, 23, Clifton Road, Maida Vale, London W.

MR. JOHN RIDDING
(BARITONE).
Sweetman's Agency, 135, Chatham Street, Liverpool.

MR. & MRS.
WALLIS A. WALLIS, I.S.M.
(Baritone and Soprano, Elocutionists).
Quartet, Concerts, Resident and other Pupils. Sharon, Acton, W.

MR. ENRICO NOVO
(BASS-BARITONE).
Concerts, Masonic Banquets, At Homes, &c.
Daisy Bank, Penhale Road, Portsmouth.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN
(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. WATKIN MILLS

Has REMOVED to BROADLANDS, TORQUAY, for the summer months only, and has appointed Messrs. HEALEY & SON sole Business Managers, to whom all business communications should be addressed.

Notwithstanding rumours to the contrary, Mr. Watkin Mills has not the remotest intention of retiring from the profession.

HEALEY & SON,
17, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.,
Sole Business Managers.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT
Begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to
105, Brondesbury Villas, London, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR SEDGLEY
(BASS).
For Oratorio, Opera, and Ballad Concerts.
Press Notice.—"Mr. Arthur Sedgley's rich bass voice was heard to advantage in that most exacting solo 'Arm, arm, ye brave,' which he sang with a style and dash which drew from the audience a well-deserved encore."—Birmingham Dart.
For terms, &c., apply, 51, Worcester Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. HERBERT WALENN
(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)
(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.

President, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
Principal, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.

Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.

A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

MR. STEDMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY
(Established 1877).
Artists for Opera, Theatre, Oratorio, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Choruses, Choir Boys and Girls.
Singing Lessons and Coaching.
58, Berners Street, W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.

SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. James Bates, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities. Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, 289, High Road, Lee, S.E.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppel St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus.Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. HOCH'S CONSERVATOIRE for all branches of Music, in Frankfort-on-the-Main. The Winter Term commences September 1. Director, Professor Dr. B. Scholz. Tuition is given by Messrs. Director B. Scholz, Professor J. Kwast, L. Uzielli, E. Engesser, K. Friedberg, A. Glück, Frl. L. Mayer, and Ch. Eckel (in Pianoforte); Mr. H. Gelhaar (in Organ); Professor H. Heermann, Professor Naret-Koning and F. Bassermann, A. Hess, A. Leimer, and F. Küchler (in Violin and Viola respectively); Professor B. Cossmann and Professor Hugo Becker (in Violoncello); Messrs. Ed. Bellwidt and S. Rigutini, and Frl. Cl. Sohn (in Singing); Director Dr. Scholz and Messrs. Professor J. Knorr (in Theory and Composition); Mr. K. Hermann (in Declamation and Mimics); Frl. del Lungo (in Italian Language). Prospectus to be had, gratis and post-free, from the Secretary of the Dr. Hoch's Conservatoire, 4, Eschersheimerlandstrasse. Applications for entry should be made immediately, as only a limited number of pupils will be accepted.—The Management.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1901, 1900, and all previous years; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1900 and 1901; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music, Composition, and Pianoforte Teaching); CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

"FROM BRAIN TO KEYBOARD."

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM
OF TOUCH AND TECHNIQUE.

"The most striking discovery of the present generation for practical musicians."—Musical News.

"Wonderful work is being done by Mr. Macdonald Smith in the application of his new system. . . . He is giving hundreds of lessons by mail with the very best results."—Musical Courier (New York).

"It is clear that Mr. Macdonald Smith has studied the subject carefully, and acts upon well-ascertained scientific grounds."—The Daily Telegraph.

"The great, the supreme merit of Mr. Smith's system consists in the fact that it involves the total abolition and disestablishment of all that terrible scale-practising and five-finger exercising."—Westminster Gazette.

"May be distinctly regarded as a boon and a blessing to men."—The Referee.

"Mr. Macdonald Smith's system of training the fingers, hands, &c., for pianoforte playing is most excellent, and in every respect well worth the high fees charged for lessons."—Organist and Choirmaster.

"The excellence of his methods had been abundantly proved."—The Times.

Extracts from reports of Correspondence Pupils:—

"Difficulties which were once almost insurmountable now seem to fall to pieces as I play. The keyboard, which once seemed hard and unyielding, has now become like velvet to my fingers."—D. PARKES, Plymouth.

Allow me to take this opportunity of thanking you for your attention, and once again to testify to the marvellous improvement I have made under your system. It is worth any money to a teacher, and I sincerely hope, for his own sake, every professor will avail himself of it."—RALPH HORNER, Mus. Bac.

"I have found the system of the greatest possible use in teaching the piano, more particularly in the case of adult pupils, to many of whom music is now a delight instead of a toil as formerly. To teachers whose time is so fully occupied that they have no time for practice, Macdonald Smith's system is worth ten times the modest fee which he charges for lessons."—CHAS. G. BRYAN, Southport.

"I have tried all the technical methods in vogue for many years for the improvement of the technical difficulties in pianoforte playing, and I unhesitatingly affirm that the system employed by you for the speedy development of the muscles is the nearest approach to perfection I can find."—C. DAVIESON (Pupil of Liszt).

"I can play very much better; indeed, the change is just as some of your critics say, 'marvellous.' I always wondered how with careful practice and a fair knowledge of music I could not do better—the riddle is now solved. Every day I feel I have done something by adding a little to my proficiency. Let me say once more I am delighted with your system. I have derived benefit from your exercises and advice far, far beyond my expectations."—Mrs. H. W. (age 45), N.S. Wales.

"As far as your system is concerned, I can heartily say that it has helped me more than all the technical work I ever did."—F. J. F., Toledo, Ohio, U.S.A.

"Am hugely delighted with results . . . and consider you a public benefactor. The manuscript exercise I think perfectly splendid."—A. W. S., Windsor.

"I am finding it most useful in teaching, especially with examination pupils."—A. M. C., Edinburgh.

COMPLETE COURSE OF SIX LESSONS, BY CORRESPONDENCE, THREE GUINEAS.

"PIANOFORTE PLAYING" and other articles by MACDONALD SMITH, 32 pp., Post-free, 7d.

Experience with over one thousand pupils by correspondence. Full Prospectus Post-free.

MACDONALD SMITH, STEINWAY HALL, LONDON, W.

THE WAGNERIAN SCHOOL for SCIENTIFIC EDUCATION in MUSIC.
A COMPLETE method for the Scientific MAKING of Musicians.
DIRECT training of Musical Temperament and ARTMIND, Absolute Pitch, Natural Expression, Technique, Musical Memory, &c.
By this method absolute success, with every student, is ensured.
SPECIAL TEACHERS' COURSE, July and August (postal or private instruction), now being taken by leading teachers throughout the world.
For particulars, address the inventor, Mark Lendon-Bennett, F.R.S.L., Gold Medalist, Author of "The Scientific Basis of Teaching," &c., Granite House, Putney, London.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that TWENTY-ONE of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1901. Hazelwood, Dollis Rd., Finchley, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1901, SEVENTY-SEVEN passes, L.R.A.M., 1897-1901, TWENTY-SEVEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

POSTAL LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. Corrections and examples given. Reference, past and present pupils. A. E. Taylor, Mus.Bac., Durham, A.R.C.O., 4, Brookfield, Lancaster.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES and PREPARES CANDIDATES for all MUSICAL EXAMS. Particulars, giving revised terms, sent post-free. Address, 58 Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for REPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M. LESSONS at 60, Berners Street, W., in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. Letters, 87, Herbert Rd., Plumstead.

A LADY TEACHER of SINGING, VOICE PRODUCTION, &c. (fourteen years' experience), a member of the I.S.M., desires a PARTNERSHIP or ENGAGEMENT as Assistant to an established Teacher (lady or gentleman) in one of the large musical centres. Musica, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

DR. A. MADELEY RICHARDSON has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Exceptional opportunity for gaining a knowledge of Choir Training. Apply, St. Saviour's Collegiate Church, S.E.

SOLO ALTO WANTED, for St. James's Church, West Hampstead. Salary, £15. Apply, W. E. Sanderson, Mus. Bac., 5, Kingdon Road, West Hampstead.

MAGDALEN COLLEGE, Oxford.—VACANCY will shortly occur in Choir for a LAY-CLERK (Alto Voice). Trial to be held July 18 and 19. Stipend commencing £100, possible rise to £120; pension, £50 per annum after 25 years. For full particulars apply, Dean of Divinity, Magdalen College, Oxford.

LINCOLN CATHEDRAL CHOIR.—BASS voice (not Baritone) WANTED. Double Daily Service. Stipend, £80. The selection will be made early in September. Communicate as soon as possible with the Succentor (Rev. Canon Maddison), Vicar's Court, Lincoln, who will send form of application.

GOOD VOCALISTS WANTED. Southport Amateur Orchestral Society give Three Subscription Concerts each winter. Artists send terms to A. E. Hobart, Joint Hon. Sec., 16, Derby Road, Southport.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Edmonton and Tottenham Congregational Church. Salary, £30. Apply at once, by letter, giving full particulars and qualifications, to C. C., 63, Northumberland Park, Tottenham.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Sutton Congregational Church. Salary, £30. Apply, with testimonials, W. T., Blendon Lodge, Albion Road, Sutton, Surrey.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, for Soho Hill Congregational Church, Handsworth. Particulars as to salary, duties, &c., may be obtained, by letter only, from Mr. Charles Richards, The Lynn, Devonshire Road, Handsworth Wood, Birmingham.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for the Congregational Church, Guildford. Salary, £50. Application and testimonials to R. Salsbury, East Hill Place.

WANTED, an ORGANIST, for Christ Church, Weston-super-Mare. A good musician. Evangelical. Not entirely dependent on professional income. Address, Vicar.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Mus. Bac.) desires APPOINTMENT. Experienced and successful choir-trainer. Accustomed to Full Choral Services and large organ. Highest testimonials, O. Q. J., Novello & Co., Ltd., Berners St., W.

ORGANIST, Mus.B., A.R.C.O., seeks ENGAGEMENT for the whole or part of the SUMMER VACATION, August 1 to September 18. Address, B. G. Thorne, Sherborne, Dorset.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, experienced and efficient, desires RE-ENGAGEMENT in London, or within twenty miles. Highest references as to character and ability. Salary about £30. I., 44, Wellington Road, N.W.

ORGANIST and MUSIC MASTER of a Public School, experienced, accustomed to full Choral Services (Gregorian and Anglican), would undertake TEMPORARY DUTIES during AUGUST and SEPTEMBER. Apply, W. S. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST desires ENGAGEMENT in Croydon neighbourhood, where resident. Twelve years' experience. Good testimonials. Apply, C. T., Novello & Co., Ltd., Queen St., E.C.

GENTLEMAN seeks fresh POST as ORGANIST or ORGANIST-CHOIRMASTER. Present position nearly two years. Churchman. London or suburbs. Write, B. M., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

OXFORD M.A., trained under Ouseley, formerly Organist and Lecturer of his College, seeks POST as ORGANIST-CURATE. H., 14, Harwood Road, S.W.

YOUNG LADY desires POST as ORGANIST. Willing to act as companion or teach young children. Clergyman's family preferred. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

ORGANIST (experienced) is open to DEPUTISE during AUGUST and SEPTEMBER. Good recommendations. Address, F. M. Taylor, 7, Ulverstone Road, West Norwood, S.E.

DEPUTISING WANTED, for SUMMER. Experienced Organist. Cathedral Service. Recitals if required. Highest refs. London preferred. H. Hawkins, Choir School, Eastbourne.

HOLIDAY ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST.—WANTED, by the Organist of the American Church, Nice (late Organist, Wigan Par. Ch.), ENGAGEMENT for JULY or AUGUST, in return for use of House or Apartment for himself and wife, with attendance. Neighbourhood must be pretty, with a river for fishing or boating. Address, J. W. Potter, 22, Queen Street, Deal.

SEASIDE.—ORGANIST would DEPUTISE, in August, in Exchange for Rooms, or pay nominal rent for the same. A. Carnall, Mus. Bac., Penge, S.E.

WELL-KNOWN London ORGANIST open to DEPUTISE in AUGUST. Consideration: small house or rooms, with attendance. Two Services on Sundays and choir practice. Seaside. H. X. Z., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

EXCHANGE of HOUSE for AUGUST.—Advertiser would EXCHANGE nice house in Brondesbury, and undertake Organist's duties, for house in country or at seaside. No duties required in return. Address, T. A., care of Kennett and Co., 12, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, HONORARY CHOIRMASTER. Good Anglican music. Small honorarium if wished. Address, or call Vicar, Christ Church, Endell Street, W.C.

ACCOMPANIMENTS. — Professional Singer desires to recommend excellent Accompanist (Lady) for Practice and Concerts. Most reasonable terms. Dean, 134, Junction Rd., N.W.

LYTHAM ASSEMBLY ROOMS, facing the Sea.—WANTED, HIGH-CLASS CONCERT PARTIES, for one, two, or three nights consecutively. Matinées; Sunday Sacred Concerts; Pianoforte, Violin, Harp, or Vocal Recitals. Manager, Assembly Rooms, Lytham, Lancashire.

WANTED, a First-class TUNER. Thoroughly reliable and an expert workman. Salary commencing at 50s. per week. Preference given to a man understanding small Organ and Harmonium repairs. Apply, North of England, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

GOOD TUNER WANTED, near London. Factory and show-room experience, who can undertake small repairs. Address, J. W., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Fair knowledge of American Organs, Harmoniums, ordinary repairs, &c. N. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

CLERK and SALESMAN WANTED. Young Man, with some years' experience and good references, for provincial house. State salary and full particulars to B. Z., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUNG MAN (19) seeks SITUATION in Music Shop (good pianist) where he could improve himself in tuning. Percy Willmer, Pianoforte Tuner, Pulborough, Sussex.

YOUNG LADY (aged 22) seeks ENGAGEMENT in Music Warehouse as ASSISTANT and to help with books. Live in. H., Springfield, Devizes.

ENERGETIC AGENT, well introduced to the Trade, WANTED, to represent in England an important Manufacturer of Musical Instruments, established in Markneukirchen (Saxony). Address, L. S., 2,816, c/o Rudolf Mosse, Leipzig, Germany.

WANTED, small MUSIC BUSINESS, with good Tuning Connection. S. of England preferred. Particulars to J. W., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate London, E.C. (Estd. 1827). Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

CHURCH ORGANS FOR SALE.

1.—The Organ now standing in Old Swinford Parish Church, Stourbridge Junction. 2 manuals, 21 stops, by NICHOLSON.

2.—"Walker" Organ. 1 manual, 7 stops, including CC open diapason and pedal Bourdon; general swell.

3.—One-manual Organ, 6 stops, by BATES, of London.

4.—The Organ now standing in St. Paul's Church, Thornton Heath. 2 manuals, 17 stops, by STARNES, of Croydon.

Apply, NORMAN AND BEARD, Ltd., Organ Works, Norwich; an 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

ORGAN for SALE. Three manuals, CC to A, and pedals; 18 stops; height, 9 ft. 3 in.; width, 9 ft. 6 in. Price £100. Apply, T. B. Mellor, Bakewell.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, 32 stops. Now standing in St. Bartholomew's Church. What offers? Vicar, 87, London Road, Brighton.

FOR SALE, Three-manual ORGAN, by GRAY AND DAVISON, belonging to R. Veevers, Esq., J.P., Fulwood, Preston. Apply, Ainscough, Organ Builder, Preston.

VARIOUS high-class ORGANS. Suit Church or Chapel. Two and three manuals. Constructed with all modern appliances. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester, and Preston.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE.—Three-manual (CC to G) and Pedals (CCC to F), 33 stops, £350; Two Manuals and Pedals, £175 and £145; One Manual and Pedal Bourdon (10 stops), £65; also Chamber Organs, 20 guineas and 15 guineas. Inspection invited. Specifications and estimates furnished on application. Eustace Ingram, Organ Builder, only address, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

TWO-MANUAL AMERICAN ORGAN, with sliding pedals, 19 stops and accessories, hand and foot-blowing. Beautifully carved walnut case, with ornamental pipes. Price £70. May be seen by arrangement. Enquire, Newth, 44, Percival Street, Clerkenwell, E.C.

CLEARANCE SALE of Organs, Æolians, &c., returned from hire:—

Original Price		Offered at
£104 0s.	Walnut Æolian and 12 Rolls	£65
£70 0s.	Oak Æolian and 12 Rolls	£45
£50 0s.	Oak Æolian and 12 Rolls	£32
£105 0s.	2-Manual Bell Organ. 18 stops	£35
£35 0s.	Alexandre Organ (automatic swell)	£15
£28 7s.	Estey Organ, Drawing Room Model	£15
£45 0s.	Alexandre Harmonium. 14 stops	£15
£31 0s.	"Beethoven" Organ. 20 stops	£15

Carriage free. Guaranteed perfect. Hire with option of purchase if desired.
C. Heaviside, 27, Torwood Street, Torquay.

A GENTLEMAN wishes to DISPOSE of his Two-manual AMERICAN ORGAN (Bell Organ Company), 165 guineas. Full compass pedals, 4 composition pedals, hand and foot-blowers, organ bench. The whole in perfect condition. Price £60. To be seen, twelve miles from London. Apply, in first instance, to Mr. Whomes, Bexley Heath, Kent.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

BROADWOOD DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, eight years old (180 gns.) and Alexandre Harmonium, 17 stops, percussion action, with full compass pedals and separate blowing action, tuned and toned for performing duets, TO BE SOLD, together or separate. Grand, 60 guineas; Harmonium, 25 guineas; together, £85. Both are in perfect condition. E. Whomes, Organist, Bexley Heath, Kent.

45 GUINEAS.—Erard Drawing-room GRAND PIANO. Modern iron frame, 7 octaves; hardly used, perfect tone. Cost 180 guineas. Apply, A. M., Fairmile Court, Cobham, Surrey.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

RUMMENS' ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT to PIANOFORTES for Home Practice of Organ Music. Straight and Concave, Radiating and Concave, or any other form of Pedal Board. Inspection invited. Lists free. 1, Wynne Road, Brixton, S.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.

(ESTABLISHED 1841.)

Specifications and Estimates sent free.

EVERY ORGANIST should send for DINHAM, BLYTH & CO.'S Specimens and Price List (free) for Lithographing Anthems, Kyries, Hymn Tunes, &c., from twenty-four Copies and upwards. 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights. Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

TO COMPOSERS

MARRIOTT AND WILLIAMS,

MUSIC PUBLISHERS,

92, GREAT PORTLAND STREET, LONDON, W.,

Undertake the Revising, Engraving, and Publishing of Authors' Musical Works, in the very Best Style and at the lowest charges. The Finest Paper used and the Best Workmanship in the trade. Estimates free on receipt of MSS. Composers' works included in list without extra charge.

Private Rooms for Practice and Teaching.

Lessons by competent Professors given in every branch of Music, Vocal and Instrumental.

SEND 4d. for new number MUSICAL OPINION to 35, Shoe Lane, London, E.C. About 250 columns of interesting Musical Literature and Advertisements. Founded 1876.

WANTED, original CHANTS & HYMN TUNES, for new Publication. For conditions, send stamped (3d. addressed envelope to G. Grove, Esq., 166, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.

TO CHORAL and ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.—Several CHORAL WORKS, PART-SONGS, and ORCHESTRAL WORKS for SALE. Applications for lists to Dr. Bunnett, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

Fourth Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By Alfred J. Dye. Price 4d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By Arthur Carnall, Mus.B., Cantab. 4d. Sample copies, Penge, S.E.

Sixth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By William S. Vinning, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

KYRIE ELEISON in D flat. By Rev. T. Normandale, B.A. Price 1d. Third Edition.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES. — "Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

SINGING CARDS for CHOIR BOYS:—
No. 1. Rudiments and Exercises (3rd Edition) .. .. 2d.
" 2. Exercises to teach boys to sing a second part .. 2d.
Compiled by C. Sydney Vinning.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

NEW EASY and COMPLETE COMMUNION SERVICE in D. By Frank Adlam. Price 6d. Novello & Co., Ltd., London. Written in same style and containing all the features which have made the Composer's famous Service in F so exceedingly popular.

AVE VERUM in G. By Frank Adlam. This beautiful Communio, sung for many years at St. Thomas's, Regent Street, is now published (Solo and short Chorus). Price 2d.
London: Hart and Co., Paternoster Row.

Just Published.

ANTHEM or Motet, SPRING and SUMMERTIDE, with Quintet, Chorus, Chorale, and Fugue. By Sir Herbert Oakeley. Schott and Co., Regent Street. Folio, 2s. Reduction to choirs.

EASY and BEAUTIFUL HARVEST ANTHEMS. "Feast of Harvest," F. Adlam, 3d.; "Great is the Lord and Marvellous," F. Adlam, 3d.; "All Thy Works praise Thee," Clement Locknane, 4d.; "The Earth is the Lord's," Dr. Abram, 4d.
London: Hart and Co., Paternoster Row.

A SERIES OF ORGAN PIECES

BY

JOHN E. CAMPBELL, A.R.C.O.

Price 4s. net, complete.

Much praise has been bestowed upon these seven pieces, and they are played by many prominent musicians of the day.
London: C. Vincent, 9, Berners Street, W.

POPULAR HARVEST ANTHEMS

BY

E. A. SYDENHAM

FULL, EASY, EFFECTIVE.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

O GIVE THANKS.
SING UNTO THE LORD.
GREAT IS THE LORD.

London: Novello and Company, Limited

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

INSTITUTED 1872.

MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.

President:
THE RIGHT HON. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.

Director of Examinations:
JAMES HIGGS, Mus.D.

The DISTRIBUTION of DIPLOMAS and CERTIFICATES, gained at the Fifty-fourth Half-Yearly Higher Examinations by the Warden (Edmund H. Turpin, Mus.D.) will take place on Wednesday, July 31, at Half-past Eleven o'clock.

MICHAELMAS TERM commences on Wednesday, September 25, when the individual tuition in all Practical and Theoretical Musical Subjects, as well as class tuition in the Theory of Music (during the day and evening), to professional and amateur students, will be resumed.

The Lessons in the Theory of Music by correspondence also recommence.

Students are received for Course or Single Studies.

Any or all of the following printed papers may be had on application to the undersigned:—(a) Regulations for the Local Examinations of Instrumental and Vocal Music, and regulations for the (Theoretical) Local Examinations in Musical Knowledge; (b) List of Local Centres; (c) Regulations for the Higher Examinations for Diplomas and Certificates; (d) Prospectus of the Teaching Department (including particulars of Scholarships, Exhibitions, &c.); (e) General Prospectus, containing List of Honorary Officers; (f) Regulations for the Enrolment of Institutions in Union; (g) Regulations for Membership; (h) Regulations for Clergy Examination.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

NOVELLO'S

Music Primers & Educational Series

EDITED BY

SIR JOHN STAINER AND SIR C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

RECENT NUMBERS.

		s.	d.
37.	Musical Ornamentation. Part I. .. .. E. Dannreuther	5	0
37A.	Musical Ornamentation. Part II. .. .. E. Dannreuther	5	0
38.	Transposition .. .. J. Warriner	2	0
39.	The Art of Training Choir Boys .. .. G. C. Martin	3	0
39A.	Do. (Exercises only) .. .. G. C. Martin	1	0
40.	Biographical Dictionary of Musicians W. H. Cummings	2	0
41.	Examples in Strict Counterpoint. Part I. Gordon Saunders	3	0
41A.	Do. Do. Part II. (In the Press.)
42.	Summary of Musical History .. .. C. H. H. Parry	2	0
43.	Musical Gestures .. .. J. F. Bridge	2	0
43A.	Rudiments in Rhyme .. .. J. F. Bridge	0	9
44.	Basses and Melodies .. .. Ralph Dunstan	2	6
45.	First Steps at the Pianoforte .. Francesco Berger	2	6
46.	A Dictionary of Pianists and Composers for the Pianoforte E. Pauer	2	0
47.	Organ Pedal Technique. Part I. .. .. B. W. Horner	2	0
47A.	Organ Pedal Technique. Part II... .. B. W. Horner	2	0
48.	Twelve Trios by Albrechtsberger .. ..A. W. Marchant	1	6
49.	Fifty Three-part Studies (Both Notations) J. E. Vernham	1	6
50.	Choral Society Vocalisation .. .. .. J. Stainer	2	0
50A.	Do. The Exercises Adapted and Arranged for Female Voices .. .. .. A. W. Marchant	1	6
51.	Two-part Solfeggi .. .. James Higgs	1	0
52.	History of the Pianoforte .. .. .. A. J. Hipkins	2	6
53.	Scales and Arpeggios .. .. .. Franklin Taylor	2	0
54.	Sonata Form .. .. .. W. H. Hadow	2	6
55.	A Dictionary of Violin Makers .. .. C. Stainer	2	6
56.	Analysis of Bach's 48 Preludes and Fugues (or in Four Parts, 1s. each) .. .. F. Iliffe	3	0
57.	350 Questions on the Form and Tonality of Beethoven's Pianoforte Sonatas (Appendix to "Analysis of Form") H. A. Harding	0	6
58.	First Steps in the Harmonisation of Melodies J. E. Vernham	1	0
60.	Five-part Harmony .. .. .. F. E. Gladstone	2	0

Any of the above may be had strongly bound in boards, price 6d. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

BROADWOODS' (ESTD. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (HIGHEST POSSIBLE AWARD)

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.
Established 1865.

Principal: T. H. YORKE TROTTER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. York Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

The NEXT TERM will commence on MONDAY, September 23. Entrance Examination, Friday, September 20.

Syllabus and official Entry Forms may be obtained at the College, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.

FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THIRD EDITION, REVISED.

BEETHOVEN

AND HIS

NINE SYMPHONIES

BY

GEORGE GROVE, C.B.

PRICE, CLOTH, GILT, SIX SHILLINGS.

"I recognise it, without the smallest hesitation, as one of the most important and valuable among recent contributions to musical literature. . . . The best informed of professional musicians may learn a great deal about the master-works of Beethoven from Sir George Grove, whose wide reading and acute perceptiveness have enabled him to marshal an astonishing array of facts, and whose intimate acquaintance with the spirit of the master has qualified him to throw light upon pages which, to many, are still obscure. . . . I must be satisfied with the remarks already made, earnestly recommending all who recognise Beethoven's greatness as shown in his immortal Symphonies to obtain Sir George Grove's volume, and walk in the luminous paths through which he is ready to conduct all who trust his guidance."—Daily Telegraph.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

JULY 1, 1901.

DR. BOYCE.

(1710—1779.)

'IN gratitude for the care he has taken of the productions of others, it becomes the duty of an historian of the musical art to pay a just tribute to his own memory, as an artist.' Thus wrote one of the most distinguished of musical historians, Dr. Burney, concerning the subject of this biographical sketch. In the spirit, if not with the ability, of the old scribe of more than a century ago, is the task undertaken of compiling a brief life of the honoured composer of English Church Music whose name appears at the head of this article.

William Boyce was born in London in 1710. The year is made additionally memorable from the fact that another eminent English composer —Thomas Augustine Arne by name—drew his first breath, also in the great Metropolis. Thus there is established an interesting connection between the composers of two typical patriotic songs—'Rule, Britannia' and 'Heart of Oak.' Every biographer of Boyce — and they are many—states that he was born at Joiners' Hall, Upper Thames Street. His father is variously stated to have been a 'housekeeper, a joiner and cabinet maker, and a beadle of the Joiners' Company.' But it does not seem to have entered into the heads of these writers to go to the fountain source of information—the records of the Worshipful Company of Joiners. Through the kindness of Mr. Henry Laverock Phillips, Past Master of the Joiners' Company, we are enabled to give the following epitome of Boyce information which he has been good enough to extract from the records of the Company specially for this article, such information being here made public for the first time.

In the first place, one John Rodgers was Beadle of the Company and was living at the Hall in 1710, the year of Dr. Boyce's birth, therefore the statement that he (Dr. Boyce) was born at the Hall at the time his father was beadle is hardly borne out by the facts. Here is the epitome from the records of the old City Company :—

JOINERS' COMPANY.

WILLIAM BOYCE, Son of JOHN BOYCE. Citizen and Joyner.

1706 April 2nd.—Apprenticed to his Father.
1713 Aug. 4th.—Took up his Freedom.
1717 Oct. 4th.—Took up his Livery and clothed.
1739 Sept. 11th.—Elected on the Court.
1755 July 25th.—Was elected Master.
1763 December.—The last time his Name is entered as being in attendance at the Court.

JOHN BOYCE (II.), Son of JOHN BOYCE (I.) Citizen and Joyner.

1711 August 7th.—Apprenticed to Wm. Birshott.
1718 Dec. 2nd.—Took up his Freedom.

JOHN BOYCE JUNR. (III.), Son of JOHN BOYCE Citizen and Joyner.

1739 Sept. 18th.—Was admitted into the Freedom of the Company by Patrimony, being introduced by Mr. Thos. Millward Citizen and Joyner of London and WILLIAM BOYCE Citizen and PLAYING CARD MAKER of London.

1739 Sept. 18th.—Was admitted into the Livery on payment of the Fines and Fees and was clothed accordingly.

1752 Dec. 5th—The place of Beadle was declared vacant by the death of Mr. John Boyce.

1753 Jan. 11th.—John Boyce elected as Beadle through the death of his Father, and after a Poll had taken place.

N.B.—The Name of WILLIAM BOYCE is mentioned as being present with the Court and the Livery.

1753 Feb. 6th.—The Master reported to the Court of Assistants the Election of John Boyce as Beadle—his Bond being executed by himself and William Godfrey of the Parish of Christchurch, in the County of Surrey, one of his Securities.

N.B.—The name of WILLIAM BOYCE does not appear as being present at the Court.

1753 Dec. 4th.—Mr. John Boyce the Beadle's Security Bond to the Company was at this Court Executed by DR. WILLIAM BOYCE the other Security.

N.B.—The name of WILLIAM BOYCE is mentioned as being present at the Court.

Here we have four Boyces — William, John I. (the father of the young gentleman apprenticed to Wm. Birshott in 1711), John II., and John III. It is quite certain that John II. and III. were beadles of the Company, but neither of them in 1710, the year of Dr. Boyce's birth, and it may be assumed that our Boyce was a son of John Boyce III. The William Boyce who was apprenticed to his father in 1706 and who 'took up his Livery and was clothed' cannot have been Dr. William Boyce, the composer. As to whether he was a 'Citizen and Playing Card Maker,' we are at present unable to say, as the Joiners' Company records furnish no information on that point.

It may not be without interest at this juncture to quote from a letter written by Dr. Burney to Dr. Callcott, and dated January 29, 1802, which throws a personal side-light on our composer's biography* :—

Dr. William Boyce was born at Joyners' Hall in the City, of which his father was House-keeper, and with whom he lived during his celibacy; but when he became a family man, his residence was in Chancery Lane (I remember visiting him in both these places). About the year 1760, soon after the death of George II., he removed to Kensington Gore, where he ended his days in 1779.

*We are indebted to the kindness of Mr. T. W. Taphouse, of Oxford, for the loan of this letter from his fine collection of autographs.

We believe he was educated in St. Paul's or Merchant Taylor's school, but began his musical career by being a chorister in St. Paul's Cathedral, of which Dr. Greene was then organist, and upon losing his treble voice, our young musician was bound apprentice to Dr. Greene. His first professional advancement was to the organ of Oxford Chapel in 1734. The second was being elected organist of St. Michael's, Cornhill, in 1736; and the same year, on the death of Weldon, he was appointed organist and composer in the Chapel Royal. In 1755, on the demise of Greene, he not only was continued in the Chapel Royal, but appointed Composer and Master of the King's band. The rest is well known. Now if you can get these facts ascertained or confuted, you will much oblige yours sincerely

Chas. Burney.

To Dr. Callcott.

It is evident from the foregoing that even Dr. Burney was not very sure of his Boyce biographical information, especially in regard to the earliest years. One thing is certain, Master Boyce became a chorister of St. Paul's Cathedral under the Mastership of Charles King, 'the serviceable man' (e.g., King in F). Upon the breaking of his voice he was apprenticed to Dr. Maurice Greene, organist of St. Paul's from 1718 to 1755, and thus began a friendship which was severed only by death. To use the polished phraseology of Dr. Busby,* 'not contented with his acquisitions under Dr. Greene, Mr. Boyce ardently proceeded in the prosecution of his studies, patiently explored the principles of harmony, and completed his theoretical accomplishments under the profoundest harmonician of his time.' That 'profoundest harmonician' was Dr. Pepusch, and among Boyce's fellow-students at that time were Travers and Keeble. In 1734, aged twenty-four, Boyce obtained his first organist appointment, that of Oxford Chapel, Marylebone, built as a proprietary chapel about the year 1724, but since 1832 known as St. Peter's Church, Vere Street. 'To the emoluments of this place,' to further quote Dr. Busby, 'his industry added those of teaching; and among the several schools which he attended was the then highly distinguished seminary of Mrs. Cavaller, in Queen Square, Bloomsbury,' that seat of learning being then in the aristocratic part of the town.

Two years after his Oxford Chapel appointment Boyce (in 1736) succeeded Joseph Kelway as organist of St. Michael's Church, Cornhill, for which post he had unsuccessfully competed two years earlier. He held the St. Michael's appointment for twenty-two years, till April 5, 1768. Boyce had evidently begun to make his mark as a composer, for upon the death of John Weldon he was appointed organist of His Majesty's Chapels Royal. Here are the entries relating thereto extracted from the Old Cheque Book of that regal sanctuary:—

1736. June 21.

Mr. John Weldon died May the 7th, 1736, and by virtue of a warrant from the Right Reverend Edmund Lord Bishop of London, Dean of his Maj. Chapels Royal, I have sworn and admitted Mr. William Boyce into his place of Composer, June 21st, 1736.

(Signed) Geo. Carleton,
Sub Dean.

Whereas the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of London, Dean of his Majesty's Chapels Royal, has appointed William Boyce to be Composer, and Jonathan Martin to be organist of the said chapels; and whereas the place of Organist has much more duty and attendance belonging to it than the place of Composer (both which were enjoyed by Mr. Weldon lately deceas'd, during whose long indisposition the two places were joyntly supply'd by the two persons aforesaid), I the said William Boyce do promise and agree that so long as I shall continue in the place of Composer, I will perform one third part of the duty and attendance belonging to the Organist, provided that I am allow'd one third part of the travelling charges belonging to the place. And I Jonathan Martin promise to compose Anthems or services for the use of his Majesty's Chapel whenever required by the Subdean for the time being. In witness whereunto We have set our hands this twenty-first day of June, 1736.

(Signed) William Boyce.
Jona. Martin.

It may be convenient at this point, even at the risk of some slight chronological dislocation, to give the remaining organ appointments held by Dr. Boyce. He became the first organist of Allhallows the Great and Less, Thames Street, in 1749, at a salary of £20 per annum, and held the appointment for twenty years. Those were days of unblushing pluralities, as although Boyce was appointed organist of the Chapels Royal (in succession to John Travers) in 1758, he continued to hold the organistships of St. Michael's, Cornhill, for nearly ten, and Allhallows the Great and Less for nearly eleven years longer. From the latter post he was actually dismissed (in 1769), and till his successor was appointed someone was paid the munificent sum of five shillings and threepence to officiate at the organ between May 18 and June 8!

'Mr. Arne and Mr. Boyce were frequently concurrents at the theatre and in each other's way, particularly at Drury Lane,' records one of his biographers somewhat ungraciously, as there is nothing to show that the two musicians were jealous of each other. Like Purcell before and Attwood after him, Boyce composed much for the stage. Here is an attempt at a list of his dramatic compositions:—

* 'Concert Room and Orchestra Anecdotes of Music and Musicians, Ancient and Modern.' By Thomas Busby, M.D. London: 1825, Vol. III., p. 166.

DRAMATIC COMPOSITIONS BY DR. BOYCE.

1734. 'Peleus and Thetis.' Masque. Written by Lord Lansdowne.
1749. 'Lethe.' Masque. Revived, at Drury Lane, January 2, with new songs by Boyce, composed for Mr. Beard (Handel's tenor) as Mercury.
'The Chaplet.' A musical entertainment by Moses Mendez. Drury Lane, December 2. Principal parts by Mrs. Clive, Mr. Beard, and Master Mattocks, the first appearance on the stage of that young gentleman.
1750. Garrick revived Dryden's 'Secular Masque' at Drury Lane (October 30), with Beard as Momus. Boyce wrote music for this, which had been performed at Hickford's Room, or the Castle Concert, in Brewer Street, Regent Street.
1751. 'The Shepherds' Lottery.' Libretto by Moses Mendez. Drury Lane, November 19. Mrs. Clive and Mr. Beard in the principal parts.
1758. Horne's 'Tragedy of Agis.' Drury Lane, Feb. 21.
1759. 'Harlequin's Invasion.' Boyce's last work for the theatre. Referred to below.

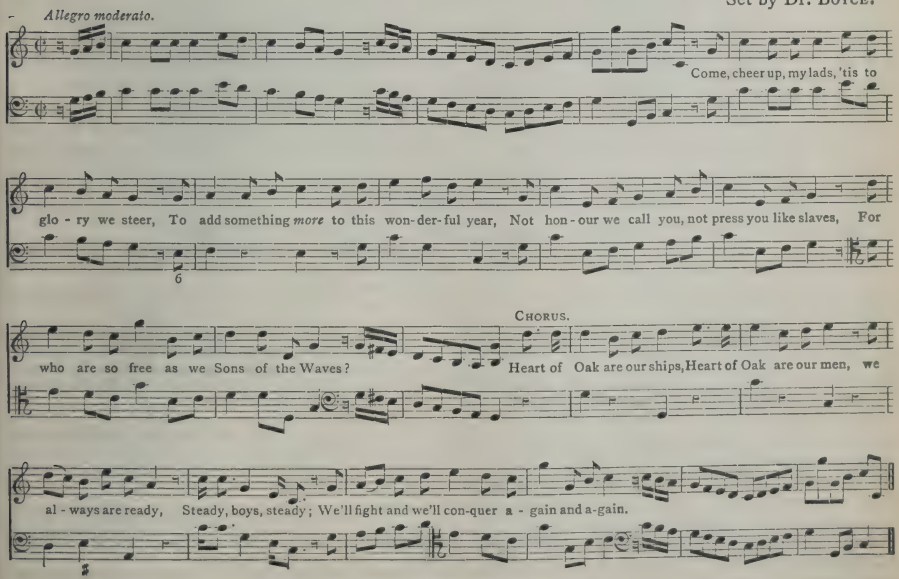
Music for the 'Tempest' (masque), 'Cymbeline' (dirge), 'Winter's Tale,' and 'Romeo and Juliet' (dirge).

Boyce's last work for the theatre included his fine song, 'Heart of oak,' which for some unknown reason is now called 'Hearts of Oak.' The song was sung in a pantomime, entitled 'Harlequin's Invasion [i.e., his invasion of Parnassus and the territory of Shakespeare], a Christmas Gambol,' written by Garrick, and first performed at Drury Lane, on December 31, 1759. Contrary to the pantomime custom of the day, 'the several personages had the use of their tongues.' The dialogue was written by Garrick, and the plot and machinery were of his invention, and we are told that 'Harlequin and his fantastic train were conquered in the end, and Shakespeare triumphed over the Smithfield group.' The original advertisement announcing the production of 'Harlequin's Invasion' contains the following notification: 'No gentleman can possibly be admitted behind the scenes, or into the orchestra, on account of the machinery and music.' 'Harlequin's Invasion' has never been printed. Garrick's 'Poetical Works' (published in 1785 and dedicated to Sheridan) contains, however, three of the songs, and one other is separately printed; but, curiously enough, there is no trace of 'Heart of Oak' in the 'Poetical Works.' The music seems to have made its first appearance in the form of a single sheet song, probably published early in 1760, soon after its success in 'Harlequin's Invasion.' As the song in its original form is practically unknown, we have much pleasure in placing it before our readers. It may furnish another instance of the tinkering propensities of successive editors of Boyce's best known composition.

A SONG.

SUNG BY MR. CHAMPNESS IN HARLEQUIN'S INVASION.

Set by Dr. BOYCE.



Allegro moderato.
Come, cheer up, my lads, 'tis to glo - ry we steer, To add something more to this won-der-ful year, Not hon-our we call you, not press you like slaves, For 6
CHORUS.
who are so free as we Sons of the Waves?
Heart of Oak are our ships, Heart of Oak are our men, we al - ways are ready, Steady, boys, steady; We'll fight and we'll con-quer a - gain and a-gain.

LONDON: PRINTED BY AUTHORITY.

The 'wonderful year' in the first verse is a topical allusion to our conquest of Canada by General Wolff in 1759, when the pantomime was produced. The nautical term, 'Jolly Tars,' in the present-day version of the song is not in the original. There is, however, a fourth verse which is not generally known. Here it is:

We'll still make 'em run, and we'll still make 'em sweat,
In spite of the Devil and Brussels Gazette:
Then cheer up, my Lads, with one Heart let us sing,
Our Soldiers, our Sailors, our Statesmen, and King.
Heart of Oak, &c.

In 1736 Boyce composed his first oratorio, written by John Lockman, on the subject of 'David's Lamentation over Saul and Jonathan,' the full score of which, partly in the composer's autograph, is preserved in the Library of the Royal College of Music. The work was performed by the Apollo Society.

To return to the strictly chronological incidents (other than the dramatic works) of Dr. Boyce's life. In 1737, aged twenty-seven, he was appointed conductor of the Three Choirs Festival of Gloucester, Hereford, and Worcester, a post he held for many years. He was one of the original members of the Royal Society of Musicians (circa 1738 or 9). In 1743 he composed his best work, the Serenata of 'Solomon,' the book of which was compiled from the 'Song of Solomon,' by Edward Moore, author of 'Fables for the Female Sex.' The work contains an air, 'Softly rise, thou southern breeze,' having a beautiful bassoon obbligato, which should be revived. Another important work is the Twelve Sonatas for two violins and bass' (1747), concerning which Burney says that they 'were larger and more generally purchased, performed, and admired, than any productions of the kind in this kingdom, except those of Corelli. They were not only in constant use, as chamber music, in private concerts, for which they were originally designed, but in our theatres, as act-tunes, and public gardens, as favourite pieces, during many years.'

The installation, on July 1, 1749, of the Duke of Newcastle as Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, gave Boyce the opportunity of composing an Ode in honour of the occasion, and which was duly performed. On the following day an anthem by him (Boyce), with orchestral accompaniments, was sung in Great St. Mary's Church as an exercise for the degree of Doctor of Music. The next most important event in the life of our composer occurred on the death of his old master, Dr. Greene, who departed this life December 1 (or 3), 1755. Dr. Greene was Master of the King's band of musicians, and it is evident that Boyce had a keen desire to obtain the post, even before the breath had gone out of Greene's body. The Newcastle correspondence in the British Museum (Add. MSS. 32, 861, f. 132) contains the following letter from Boyce to the Duke of Newcastle, written within a week of Dr. Greene's death:—

My Lord,—I intend myself the honour of waiting upon you, when you will please to give leave, to acquaint you with Doctor Green's Ill state of health, which is at present so far past a probability of cure, that it is thought he cannot live many more days, and to beg your Grace's interest, that I may succeed him as Master of His Majesty's band of musicians. I am the more encouraged to ask this, from the favour shewn me, upon a former application, when it was thought the Doctor would resign.

I set the last birthday Ode for him, am now setting that for the New Year's Day, and have conducted all the performances during his illness.

The place is in the gift of the Duke of Grafton.

I am, my Lord,
Your Grace's most devoted, and obedient humble servant,
William Boyce.

Nov. 26th, 1755.

Although Boyce was nominated by the Duke of Grafton for the post, he was not sworn in till June, 1757, a year and a half after the death of Dr. Greene; but he continued to discharge the duties appertaining to that Court appointment. From the year 1755 to 1779 he composed a number of Odes for the King's birthday and other royal functions, of which a large if not complete collection is preserved in the Bodleian Library at Oxford. Through the kindness of that zealous antiquary, Mr. T. W. Taphouse, of Oxford, we are enabled to give a complete list of the Boyce manuscripts in the Bodleian.

CATALOGUE OF DR. BOYCE'S MANUSCRIPTS IN THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY, OXFORD.

Wight MSS. 1801.

In No. 16689.—Eight anthems, including 'I was glad,' performed at Westminster on the Queen's Entrance in the West door of the Abbey. 'The King shall rejoice,' 'Come, Holy Ghost,' 'Behold, O God,' and 'Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem.'

In No. 16690.—'The Lord is a sun,' 'My heart is inditing,' 'Let my prayer come up.'

16691.—'The dying Christian to his soul.' Ode written by Mr. Pope, set to music by Dr. William Boyce; the words begin 'Vital spark.'

16719.—1. Music for the Masque in Shakespeare's 'Tempest,' by Dr. W. Boyce.
2. The music for animating the Statue in Shakespeare's play of 'Winter's Tale.'
3. An Ode to Shakespeare, by Dr. W. Boyce, beginning 'Arise, immortal Shakespeare'; apparently autograph.

16720.—1. Seven Sonatas.
2. Instrumental parts perhaps belonging to the foregoing.

16784-85.—Two copies of 'Peleus and Thetis,' a masque by Dr. William Boyce, in full score.

Music School Manuscripts, 1885.

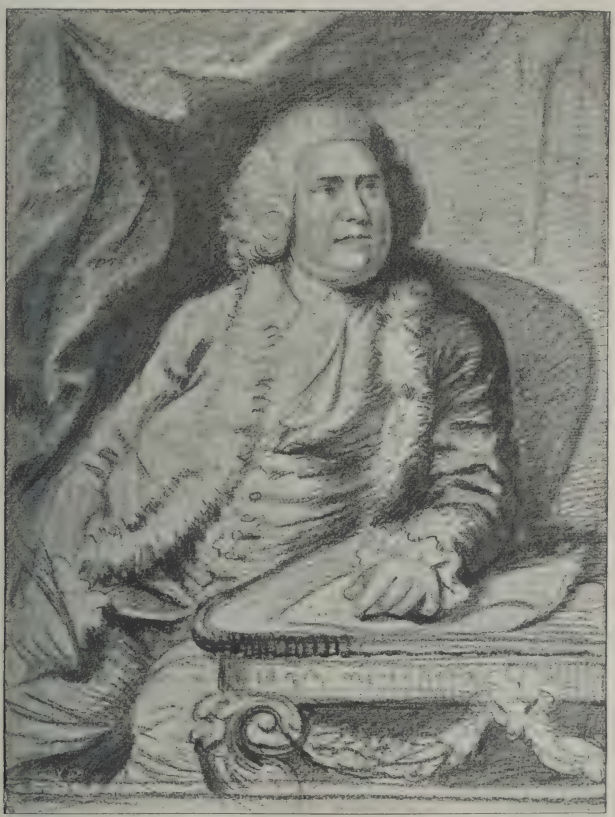
26504.—Three Concertos in full score, by Dr. William Boyce. [2 violins, tenor, and bass.]

26505.—A Concerto for an orchestra in D minor, score and parts.

26506.—Gavotta for an orchestra, score and parts. [Separate parts: 1st hautboy and 2nd ditto; 1st and 2nd violas, tenor, and bass. Also 2 organ parts, one of which is transposed a note lower.]

26634-36.—A 'St. Cecilia's Ode,' by the Rev. Mr. Vidal. The music by W. Boyce. Contains the score, four vocal parts; the remaining parts all instrumental except one.

26638-40.—'The Pythian Ode.' The poetry by Walter Harte, A.M. The music by William Boyce. Contains the score dated at end 1740-1; about forty vocal and instrumental parts, some imperfect.



PORTRAIT OF DR. BOYCE, DRAWN FROM THE LIFE AND ENGRAVED BY J. K. SHERWIN.
(From the original Drawing in the possession of Mr. T. W. Taphouse, and reproduced by his kind permission.)

26641-43.—'Peleus and Thetis,' a masque in Lord Lansdown's 'Jew of Venice,' set to music by William Boyce. Contains the score, the vocal and some instrumental parts; the remaining instrumental, about thirty-eight in all.

26646-48.—An Ode to Shakespeare, without title (begins 'Titles and ermine fall behind'), set to music, perhaps, by William Boyce, whose name occurs, though not necessarily, as the author or composer on folio 3. Contains two vocal parts and eleven instrumental, but the set is not complete.

—— 'Saul and Jonathan,' by William Boyce, stated to be in the composer's handwriting; the words were by John Lockman. Contains the score, twelve vocal parts, one vocal and thirteen instrumental parts.

26649-51.—An Anthem (beginning 'The Souls of the Righteous'), perform'd at the Funeral of King George the Second, in Henry the Seventh's Chapel, at Westminster, November 11th, 1760, presumably by W. Boyce. Note.—Began this anthem on Friday, October 31st, 1760. Rehears'd it at Hickford's Room the Friday following. Contains the score and the above title, and, note, thirty-one vocal parts, an organ part, and thirty-five instrumental parts.

26652-84.—The vocal and instrumental parts of the Anthems used in the Coronation Service of George III. and Queen Charlotte, September 22, 1761. ('The King shall rejoice!'; 'Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem'; 'The Lord God is a sun'; 'My heart is inditing'; and, covered up, 'Behold, O Lord'), presumably by W. Boyce. The table of contents on a few of the volumes shows that the original music for the service was cut down to about half the projected length.

26685-7.—An Anthem, performed on occasion of . . . King George the Third, his wedding with his Queen Charlotte, in the Royal Chapel at St. James's [London] on Tuesday, September 8th, 1761, presumably by W. Boyce ('The King shall rejoice'). Score, vocal, instrumental, and organ parts.

26688-90.—An Ode performed on the Sixth of June, 1763, before Their Majesties and the rest of the Royal Family, in the Garden of the Queen's Palace, St. James's Park [London]. Note the Performance was in the Evening, and the Garden was finely illuminated. The words were wrote by Mr. (David) Mallet. The Music by W. Boyce. The Ode begins 'See, white-rob'd Peace': the writing of No. 26688 appears to be Boyce's Autograph, and, if so, other volumes of pieces by Boyce in this series may be in the composer's handwriting. Score, eighteen vocal parts, and twenty-five instrumental parts.

26691-93.—An Anthem ('The King shall rejoice'), by Dr. W. Boyce. This anthem was performed at St. Paul's, for the first time, on April 22, 1766; the edition contains the Score, twenty-seven vocal parts and an organ part, and thirty-two instrumental pieces.

DR. BOYCE'S COURT ODES. 1755-79.

26694-822. The following volumes contain Odes composed by Dr. William Boyce for the King's Birthday and for the New Year, while he held the position of Master of his Majesty's Band of Musicians. The composer's name is only attached to the first piece. Each group of MSS. contains (1) the score, (2) the vocal parts, (3) the instrumental parts with slight irregularities. George II., whose birthday was October 30, died on October 25, 1760; George III.'s birthday was kept on June 4, the real day in Old Style having been May 24. Dr. Boyce died on February 7, 1779.

Birthday, 1755 ('Perian Sisters').
New Year, 1756 ('Hail, hail, auspicious day').
Birthday, 1756 ('When Cæsar's natal day').
New Year, 1757 ('While Britain').
Birthday, 1757 ('Rejoice, ye Britons').
New Year, 1758 ('Behold the circle forms').

This Ode was neither perform'd nor rehears'd, on account of the death of Princess Caroline, which happen'd in the Christmas holidays of the year 1757, on December 28.

Birthday, 1758 'When Othbert left').
New Year, 1759 ('Ye guardian powers').
Birthday, 1759 ('Begin the song').
New Year, 1760 ('Again the Sun').

George II. died on October 25, 1760, a few days before his birthday.

New Year, 1761 ('Still must the Muse').
Birthday, 1761 ('Twas at the nectar'd feast').
New Year, 1762 ('God of slaughter').
Birthday, 1762 ('Go, Flora').
New Year, 1763 ('At length th' imperious God').
Birthday, 1763 ('Common births').
Birthday, 1764 ('To wedded love').
New Year, 1765 ('Sacred to thee').

This Ode was originally intended for the first of January, 1764. But that happening on a Sunday, the Lord Chamberlain was pleased to consent that it should be performed on the first of January, 1765.

Birthday, 1765 ('Hail to the rosy morn').
Birthday, 1766 ('Hail to the man').
New Year, 1767 ('When first').

This Ode was originally intended for the New Year, 1766, but was postponed on account of the death of the King's youngest brother, and performed on the first of January, 1767, by appointment of the Lord Chamberlain. Prince Frederick William died in London on December 29, 1765.

Birthday, 1767 ('Friend to the poor').
New Year, 1768 ('Let the voice').
Birthday, 1768 ('Prepare your songs').

This Ode was not performed till the 23rd of June, on account of the death of the Princess Louisa Anne, the King's sister, who died on the preceding May 13.

Birthday, 1769 ('Patron of arts').
New Year, 1770 ('Forward Janus').
Birthday, 1770 ('Discord hence!').
New Year, 1771 ('Again returns').
Birthday, 1771 ('Long did the churlish East').
New Year, 1772 ('At length the fleeting year').
Birthday, 1772 ('From scenes of death').
New Year, 1773 ('Wrapt in stole').
Birthday, 1773 ('Born for millions').
New Year, 1774 ('Pass but a few').
Birthday, 1774 ('Hark, or does').
Birthday, 1775 ('Ye powers who rule').
New Year, 1776 ('On the white rocks').
Birthday, 1776 ('Western gales').
New Year, 1777 ('Again imperial Winter').
Birthday, 1777 ('Driven out').
New Year, 1778 ('When rival nations').
Birthday, 1778 ('Arm'd with her native force').
New Year, 1779 ('To arms, to arms').

The Boyce manuscripts in the British Museum are contained in the following press marks:—

ADD. MSS.

5,337, 94.—'Thou soft invader.' Duet from 'Solomon.' f 160. 'View here the youth,' elegy for three voices.

14,329 and 14,337.—Trios for two violins and bass. Autograph.

17,836.—Concerto in B minor. Full score. Autograph.

17,861.—Sacred Music. Greene, Croft, and Boyce. Partly autograph.

28,967.—Anthem, 'Blessed is he that considereth the poor and needy.' Autograph.

29,386.—Glees, &c. Copies.

31,462; 31,812, f 44; 31,813.—Catches, Glees, &c.

31,670.—Anthem, 'O be joyfull in God.' Organ score, followed by the tenor and drum parts. Autograph.

32,160.—Sonatas or trios, and vocal compositions. Autograph.

32,588, f 1.—'Te Deum, No. 5.' In D. Full score. Autograph.

32,677, f 10.—Pianoforte arrangement of the overture to Solomon.' In Dr. Callcott's hand.

34,279 B, f 40.—'Ye southern breezes.' Chorus for four voices, and some orchestral parts.

34,074-75, f 2; 34,076, f 1.—Sonatas for two violins and a bass.

34,126, ff 43 and 50b.—Duets in 'The Chaplet.'

35,040, ff. 27, 28b.—Hymn and sacred song.

Other manuscript compositions are in the libraries of the Royal College of Music, the Fitzwilliam (Cambridge), and Mr. T. W. Taphouse.

Another appointment was bestowed upon him upon the death of Dr. Greene—the conductorship of the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy in St. Paul's Cathedral. For one of these Festivals he wrote additional accompaniments to Purcell's Te Deum and Jubilate, besides composing specially for these occasions two of his finest anthems, 'Lord, Thou hast been our refuge' and 'Blessed is he that considereth the poor and needy.' For the wedding of George III. (September 8, 1761) he composed his anthem, 'The King shall rejoice,' a second setting of the same words, which followed five years later, was performed in St. Paul's Cathedral, on April 22, 1766.

In the year 1758 Boyce removed from Quality Court, Chancery Lane, to Kensington. He had suffered during the whole of his life from deafness, and this affliction increased as the years went on. He gave up all his teaching engagements and devoted himself to the great task with which his name is so worthily associated—Boyce's Cathedral Music. The inception of this important undertaking occurred simultaneously to Dr. Alcock and Dr. Greene about the year 1735. As the latter musician issued a prospectus on the subject, Dr. Alcock magnanimously presented his collection to Dr. Greene, who, however, did not live to carry out his projected design. But it was at Dr. Greene's wish that Boyce devoted himself to the task and brought it to a successful conclusion. As Mr. Barclay Squire (in his article on Dr. Boyce in the 'Dictionary of National Biography') rightly says: 'Although at the time of its publication it brought but little beyond honour to its editor, it still remains a most important work, and a monument to Boyce's erudition and good judgment.' The first volume appeared in 1760, the third and last in 1788, with the following title:—

Cathedral Music: | being | a collection in score | of the | Most Valuable and Useful Compositions | for that Service, | by the | Several English Masters | of the last Two hundred years. | The whole Selected and Revis'd | by William Boyce, | Organist and Composer to the Royal Chapels, and | Master of his Majesty's Band of Musicians. |
London: Printed for the Editor.
M.DCC.LX.

This work, by the way, contains the first appearance in print of John Robinson's celebrated double chant in E flat. Boyce also published a selection of the overtures to his New Year and royal birthday odes under the title of 'Eight Symphonies,' in addition to 'Lyra Britannica; being a collection of Songs, Duets, and Cantatas on various subjects' (six volumes).

Dr. Boyce died of gout at Kensington, on February 7, 1779. He was buried under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral. A contemporary newspaper account of the funeral furnishes proof, by reason of the length of the notice, that a great man had been laid in his last resting-place on the 16th of that month. Here is the report of the interment:—

Tuesday at noon the remains of Dr. William Boyce, a late organist and composer of his Majesty's Chapel Royal, and master of his Majesty's band of musick, were interred in the vault under St. Paul's Cathedral. The procession began from Kensington, and the corpse was carried into the Cathedral (attended by his son, a youth of about fifteen years of age, and several other mourners) at the south door, and went down the south aile, and then turned round into the grand aile, where it was received by the Rev. Dr. Wilson and Dr. Douglas, Residentiaries, and the gentlemen and choiristers of the choirs of the King's Chapel, St. Paul's, and Westminster Abbey, with many other gentlemen, professors of musick, all in surplices. The procession from thence began two and two, the gentlemen of the choirs singing the first verse of the burial service without the organ; and when it came under the dome, the organ struck up, and the voices sang to it the three verses of the said service; and the body being put upon tressels in the Choir, and the attendants having got into their seats, the Rev. Mr. Wright, senior minor canon, began the daily service; in the course of which the 39th and 90th Psalms were chanted to solemn musick. The first lesson was read by Mr. Hoyes, and the second by Mr. Gibbon. Before the prayer for the King, an anthem composed by the deceased, beginning, If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, was sung by Mr. Dine and Mr. Soper, and the chorus by the gentlemen and choiristers. After this, the Reader proceeded to the end of the daily service. The body was then taken up by the bearers, and carried down into the vault, and deposited under the brass grate, which is in the centre of the church. Whilst this was doing, the residentiaries, the gentlemen of the choir, &c., walked from the Choir, and formed a circle in the middle of the church round above the brass grate, the choirs began singing, the organ playing at the same time the four verses in the burial service, Man that is born of a Woman hath, &c. Which done, Mr. Wright proceeded with the prayer, committing the body to the ground, whilst a person with a shovel scattered some dust through the brass grate upon the coffin. The voices and organ then performed the verse, I heard a voice from Heaven, &c., and then the Reader went on with the prayers to the end of the Burial Service. The sound of so many voices singing directly in the centre under the cupola of the church, and the organ not being at too great a distance, had a most pleasing effect, and struck the audience with the utmost awe on this solemn service; and it may be truly said, that there was the utmost decency and regularity in the management of it.—(Morning Chronicle and London Advertiser, Thursday, February 18, 1779.)

The reference to the 'person with a shovel' who 'scattered some dust through the brass grate upon the coffin' is peculiarly quaint and touching.

His tombstone bears the following inscription:—

WILLIAM BOYCE, M.D.
Organist, Composer,
and
Master of the Band of Music
To Their Majesties
King George II. & III.
Died February ye 7th, 1779,
Aged 69.

Happy in his compositions
Much Happier
In a constant flow of Harmony
Through every scene of life
Relative or Domestic
The Husband, Father, Friend.

One hundred and nineteen years later—on May 18, 1888—the remains of Dr. Boyce's old master, Dr. Maurice Greene, were removed from the Church of St. Olave, Jewry (on its demolition), and re-interred in the crypt of St. Paul's, beside those of Dr. Boyce. Still later—on November 27, 1900—the mortal remains of Arthur Sullivan were laid to rest in close proximity to the two older musicians.

Boyce's will, dated June 24, 1775, and proved by his wife and daughter on February 20, 1779, directed that he should not be buried until seven days and seven nights after his decease. He had two children—Elizabeth, born April 29, 1749, and William, born March 25, 1764. The latter, after his father's death, entered an Oxford College, but did not distinguish himself at the University. He afterwards made some mark as a double-bass player, but his subsequent career added no lustre to the name of his distinguished father.

Dr. Boyce had a 'truly valuable and curious library of music,' which was sold by auction after his death, June 14-16, 1779. From a copy of the sale catalogue, kindly placed at our disposal by Mr. T. W. Taphouse, one of its most striking features is the large number of manuscript compositions by Italian composers that were in the collection. Whence came they? Did any of these Italian manuscripts formerly belong to Handel? Several manuscript compositions by Handel also appear, and, of course, many by Dr. Boyce himself.

We give a few specimens of the more striking entries in the catalogue :—

LOT 27. Scarlatti's twelve Concertos in score. MS. The Author's original.

,, 28. Italian Madrigals, Songs, Serenata, Cantatas, Duettos, &c., by Bigongiari, Abbate Steffani, Nic. L'Haym, Alessandro Stradella. MS.

,, 30. Mass for eight voices, by Ottavo Pittoni—Dixit Dominus for eight voices, ditto—Mottets by T. L. D. Victoria and Bernabei—Mass by J. Prenestini — Madrigals by the Prince of Venosa, Steffani, Stradella, Bononcini, Paoli Peth. A most valuable collection in score, MS., with parts for performance.

[The above three lots furnish specimens of the Italian compositions in MS. which bulked so largely in Dr. Boyce's library.]

,, 52. Anthems, composed by Mr. Handel, MS., viz.—In the Lord put I my trust—I will magnify thee—O come, let us sing—Have mercy upon me—The Lord is my Light. In all five.

,, 198. Messiah in score. MS. Handel.

,, 222. A fine score of Handel's Oratorio of Israel in Egypt. MS. Well bound and lettered.

,, 216. Two superb Books of Vocal Music, by Lewis Granom, Esq., fit for the use of the Grand Monarch, or the Emperor of Morocco, whose livery they wear.

,, 254. A Score of the fourth and last Acts of the Fairy Queen, by Purcel. MS. [!]

,, 255. Mackbeth, &c.

,, 259. An elegant large Morocco Case, with Asses Skins prepared, with Lines for Musical Characters, particularly serviceable to Composers.

,, 261. A most valuable Set of Plates of Overtures, in twelve Parts, composed by Dr. Will. Boyce, which have never been publicly sold; also thirty copies of the above Work. For the purchase of which, the Gentlemen in the Trade of Music-selling are humbly requested to attend, as they can never have a better opportunity of getting a Work of Credit into their Possession.

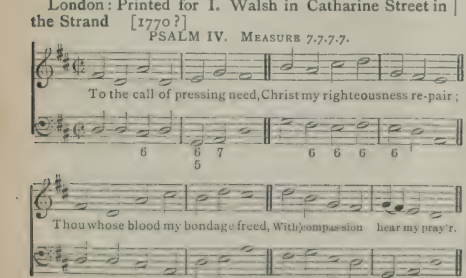
As a church composer Dr. Boyce is widely known by his Te Deum and Jubilate in A, and his masterly and intensely poetic setting of 'Oh! where shall wisdom be found?' We believe it was Sir John Stainer who once remarked to us, 'Old Boyce knew all about the reverberations in St. Paul's when he wrote that anthem, with its pauses after the word—Where?'

Many hymnals contain a devotionally melodious hymn tune by Boyce, named 'Sharon.' We give the title of the book in which the tune first appeared, and the original form of the metre, melody and bass :—

A | Collection of | Melodies | for the | Psalms of David, | According to the Version of | Christopher Smart, A.M. | By the most Eminent Composers of | Church Music.

London: Printed for I. Walsh in Catharine Street in | the Strand [1770?]

PSALM IV. MEASURE 7.7.7.7.



To the call of pressing need, Christ my righteousness re-pair;
Thou whose blood my bondage freed, With compassion hear my pray'r.

Dr. Boyce was a prolific composer of anthems. About seventy-five can be traced as having been written by him, and there are probably more. One characteristic feature of these compositions for the church is the prominence he gives to the male alto voice. His widow published (in 1780) after his death a volume containing 'Fifteen Anthems and a Te Deum and Jubilate,' and in 1790 a second volume, edited by Dr. Philip Hayes, was given to the world. Half-a-century later, that enthusiastic antiquary, Vincent Novello, edited several additional compositions, which he published in four volumes, containing forty-six anthems and five services, besides other pieces. Several anthems, including eight coronatios, anthems, still remain in manuscript.

The following trio of estimates of Dr. Boyce as a composer deserve attention for their sincerity and the truth that is in them. The first is by his friend, Dr. Burney, who says: 'Dr. Boyce, with all due reverence for the abilities of Handel, was one of the few of our church composers who neither pillaged nor servilely imitated him. There is an original and sterling merit in his productions, founded as much on the study of our own old masters as on the best models of other countries, that gives to all his works a peculiar stamp and character of his own for strength, clearness, and facility, without any mixture of styles, or extraneous and heterogeneous ornaments.'

The second is by the late William Alexander Barrett, who, in his 'English Church Composers,' writes: 'Boyce's style, as expressed in his Church music, is massive, dignified, and impressive. In what is now called picturesque writing he was probably without a rival. His anthems, "Give the King Thy judgments," with its noble concluding chorus, "All kings shall fall down"; "Wherewithal shall a young man?" and, above all, "O where shall wisdom be found?" are as good as anything in the repertory of cathedral music. . . . When his anthems are performed (not so frequently as they might be), their simple and pious eloquence reaches the heart of the worshipper, and stirs it to a depth of emotion that is never attained by the organ solos with vocal accompaniments which now to a great extent do duty for services and anthems in the Church.'

Mr. Barclay Squire furnishes the third appreciation of Boyce: 'He (Boyce) occupies a distinct position amongst his contemporaries. . . . He may be best described as the Arne of English church music; for the same characteristics of grace and refinement are to be found in his music as in that of his contemporary, and, like Arne, he had a reserve of power which was all the more effective for not being too often brought into play.'

In conclusion, Boyce seems to have been a very lovable and estimable man and an universal favourite of all with whom he came into contact. As the words of Dr. Burney furnished the opening of this inadequate sketch of one of England's great composers of Church music, so the old historian's tribute to the memory of his friend, written twenty-four years after his (Boyce's) death, may fitly form its close. 'There was no professor,' wrote Burney, 'whom I was ever acquainted with that I loved, honoured, and respected more than William Boyce.' He seems to have been the Stainer of his day.

The full-length portrait of Dr. Boyce, which forms one of our special supplements, is from the fine collection in the Music School at Oxford. It is reproduced, and for the first time, by the kind permission of the Vice-Chancellor of the University, through the friendly offices of Mr. Charles L. Stainer. F. G. E.

FIFTHS, PERMISSIBLE AND OTHERWISE.

Students groping in the deplorable slums of harmony may be thankful for Dr. F. E. Gladstone's recent article in The Musical Times; but, lest our continental friends should sniff and say—as is their wont—that England still remains fifty years behind other nations in her music, perhaps I may be permitted to add a few words on the actual state of the case in the present day with regard to consecutive fifths.

It cannot be too strongly borne in mind that music is ceasing to be a science and has now become a pure art, like painting, and consequently its laws are harder than ever to formulate, and contain vast quantities of exceptions. It may, however, safely be said that the whole of the examples cited by Dr. Gladstone are now regarded by composers as mere matters of course, and that the only case in which it is seldom good to follow a diminished fifth by a perfect one is between treble and bass (outside parts). But an exception to this is the resolution of the supertonic minor ninth, thus—a progression by no means uncommon in modern music.

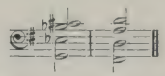
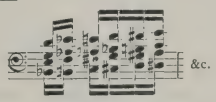
As regards consecutive perfect fifths the matter is far more complex than might be supposed. Sir Hubert Parry, writing in Grove's Dictionary twenty years ago, startled English musicians by saying that such fifths were only objectionable when they made the two parts appear to progress in different keys, and doubtless the disturbance of tonality is the disagreeable factor. For instance, no one surely would object to consecutive perfect fifths in one and the same chord, thus—

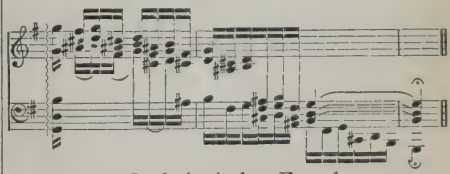
A charming example of this kind may be found in Grieg's song 'Margarethlein' (Op. 60). The next degree in harmlessness is found when we attempt to resolve the augmented $\frac{6}{5}$ (can we not abolish the silly term German sixth?) upon dominant harmony. What ear has ever been offended by the oft-quoted passage in Beethoven's 'Appassionata Sonata' (bars 6 and 7 of the slow movement), or would be offended by this—which, however, I have scarcely ever met with, though I often write it myself—



Since chromatic, or semitonal progressions interfere little with the prevailing tonality, it is not strange to find that the scales of diminished sevenths, so dear to the musician of the Hummel and Chopin period, have developed into scales of almost any chromatic chord, regardless of consecutive sevenths, fourths, or even fifths. Thus Sullivan, in 'The Golden Legend,' imitates the roar of the storm by passages entirely in $\frac{6}{4}_{3}$ chords. Raff has the same in his 'Rigaudon' for pianoforte, while Wagner, in the last scene of 'Götterdämmerung,' has a chromatic scale, and then a series of rising shakes, all in chords of this shape—



But, indeed, in the orchestra, even common chords could be rushed up the scale like this without ill effect; the question of part-progression does not arise. Here is a more exceptional case from Dvorák (Op. 85, No. 2): the end of a pianoforte piece—



I cannot say I admire it, but French composers occasionally do the like. The next kind of fifths—by step of a whole tone—is the hardest to the ear, and, though used now-a-days on that very account, is seldom acceptable. From subdominant $\frac{5}{3}$ to dominant $\frac{5}{3}$ is where the student and the amateur come to grief; indeed, has not Professor Prout, in his inimitable humour, dubbed this progression Quintus hortensis—common or garden fifth, as opposed to the supertonic to tonic progression, which he calls Quintus ferox, or glaring fifth. All the same, both of these are used with noble effect in the Cathedral scene of Gounod's 'Faust,' and, with similar rococo intention, in Verdi's 'Requiem.' Between ordinary melody and its bass only the youngest of composers, bent on achieving something audacious, would make fifths by step of a tone, save for some strong dramatic purpose (which excuses any mortal thing); but in instrumental music, where the inner parts are indefinite, one may often now find the kind of writing here quoted from a Mazurka of Paderewski's—

Grieg revels in this sort of thing, which Chopin also does not disdain. But I have seldom found anyone who could stomach Grieg's piece 'The Bell,' which is written entirely in consecutive fifths: one must draw the line somewhere. This brings us to the last class of fifths; those between tonic and dominant or tonic and subdominant triads. If these are made between the outside parts all you can say is that a certain hardness results. Instances in Beethoven's symphonies are familiar to all; in vocal writing (except solos) none but an ignoramus requires to make them. In ballads I find amateurs perpetually make a dominant half-close and then resume on the tonic, thus—but when the obvious course of making the second chord a $\frac{4}{2}$ on F and resolving it by 6 on E is pointed out to them, they invariably hail it with rapture—and, of course, make the same mistake next time. It isn't lack of ear, but too long ears.

In conclusion, I would remind students and mature musicians that the laws of harmony differ widely in their application to different resources: the rules for vocal writing are not applicable to orchestral writing, and things which will sound well on voices or in the orchestra may sound detestable on the pianoforte. Play a Palestrina mass or a Byrd madrigal, or the Prelude to the third act of 'Parsifal' on the pianoforte, and be convinced. The laws against consecutive fifths, then, only apply to vocal music, and are only intended as a precaution against ugliness, not as a needless hindrance to the composer. Fourths or sevenths are sometimes much uglier, but no one regards these blunders with anything like the horror they do consecutive fifths. I fear it is because this matter is a kind of pons asinorum which few English musicians ever really get over.

F. Corder.

HANDEL'S BORROWINGS.

In the February issue of The Musical Times the list of composers compiled by Dr. Crotch from whom Handel copied or quoted was given in an article entitled 'Music in England in the Nineteenth Century.' These names, which occur in a foot-note to page 122 of Crotch's 'Substance of several courses of Lectures on Music' (1831), are as follows:—

Josquin de Près, Palestrina, Turini, Carissimi, Calvisius, Uria, Corelli, Allessandro and Domenico Scarlatti, Sebastian Bach, Purcell, Locke, Caldara, Colonna, Clari, Cesti, Kerl, Habermann, Muffat, Kuhnau, Telemann, Graun, Mondeville, Porta, Pergolesi, Vinci, Astorga, Bononcini, Hasse.

At the end of the above list there is an '&c.' in which much meaning lies. In regard to this list the Editor asked these questions:—

(1) Did Dr. Crotch himself discover these quotations or copyings?

(2) Did he acquire his information from some other source?

(3) Has any student ever verified the Professor's statement by furnishing chapter and verse from the works of every one of these 'twenty-nine, &c.' composers?

As to furnishing chapter and verse, as suggested in No. 3 of the above, the idea was mooted long ago by John Groombridge, organist of St. John's Church, Hackney, who died in 1827, and by Dr. H. J. Gauntlett, as will be seen from his article in Notes and Queries, February 5, 1859, to which we shall refer later. Again, in a discussion on a paper entitled 'Musical Coincidences and Reminiscences,' read before the members of the Musical Association by the late Mr. G. A. Osborne, the late Sir George Grove said: 'There is one remarkable case of plagiarism which I wish very much the Musical Association would investigate, and that is the whole series of plagiarisms and adaptations "and of repetitions of himself" by Handel.'*

Burney appears to have been first in the field in noticing Handel's borrowings; some of his charges, however, are extremely vague. For instance, he says in his 'History of Music' that Handel 'adopted' a base from a cantata of Cesti's (Vol. IV., p. 153), that 'passages' in Purcell's 'Song on St. Cecilia's Day' were used by Handel in 'L'Allegro ed il Pensieroso' (Vol. III., p. 490); and once more, that 'divisions in Carissimi' were not disdained by Handel (Vol. IV., p. 145). Vague or even doubtful borrowings from Josquin de Près and Porta, the composer of 'Numitor,' are also noted by him. His remarks concerning Clari are, however, extremely curious. These are his words: 'Handel is supposed to have availed himself of Clari's subjects, and sometimes more, in the choruses of Theodora'

* Proceedings of the Musical Association, 1882-3, p. 112.

(Vol. III., p. 536). Burney also points to the subject of a Turini fugue which Handel borrowed (Vol. III., p. 521); this instance is also mentioned by Dr. Busby in his 'History of Music' (Vol. II., p. 272), and by Dr. Callcott in his 'Grammar of Music' (p. 303, second edition).

Burney, in his 'History of Music,' most probably first directed Crotch's attention to Handel's obligations to other composers. His (Crotch's) 'Substance of several courses of Lectures on Music' was published in 1831, and the list of names given above probably formed part of the lectures which he delivered in the University of Oxford and in London between the years 1800 and 1808.

In 1822 an interesting article, entitled 'Plagiarism,' was published in the Quarterly Musical Magazine and Review (Vol. IV.). Attention is drawn therein to Burney's remark with respect to some duets and trios of Clari—viz., that 'they had been dispersed in MS. long before 1720,' and, consequently, says the Quarterly Musical Magazine and Review writer, 'Handel had frequent opportunities of profiting from them, which we see he took advantage of pretty freely.' He adds: 'It is fortunate for him [Handel] that I have not these duets of Clari to compare with the choruses in Theodora, or I should very probably sentence him upon that charge alone.' We shall return later to this Clari question. In the same article mention is also made of a chorus, 'Pax hominibus,' from a Mass of Caldara, as being 'very similar' in its subject to '"They loathed to drink" in Handel's "Israel."'

Vincent Novello also touched upon the subject in the preface to his edition of Purcell's 'Sacred Music,' 1832. He gave a list of eighteen passages in the much discussed Urio Te Deum used by Handel, ten in the Dettingen Te Deum, six in 'Saul,' and one each in 'Israel' and 'L'Allegro,' having access at the time to the MS. of the Urio Te Deum, which afterwards came into his possession, and which is now in the library of the Paris Conservatoire; in this MS. a previous owner had made the list of eighteen passages just mentioned. Novello seems to have censured Handel mildly for his want of candour in concealing his obligations to others, thereby incurring the scorn of Dr. Chrysander, who will allow no wrong in the great composer.

The Musical World for March 20, 1849, contains an article by the late Sir George Macfarren on 'Handel and his Messiah.' Among other references to the plagiarisms of Handel, mention is therein made of those from Urio's Te Deum. Macfarren must have known the Novello preface, and probably he had conversed with Dr. Crotch on the subject.

In 1857 appeared Victor Schœlcher's 'Life of Handel,' in which Handel's plagiarisms are briefly dealt with. Under the heading of 'Pretended Plagiarisms' (page 284), Mr. Schœlcher refers to Vincent Novello's remarks in the preface to Purcell's 'Sacred Music,' mentioned above, also to the statements of Macfarren in the Musical World article. Both writers meet with scant appreciation from Handel's biographer, their allegations being summarized in the following sentence: 'These pretended thefts are nothing but accidental resemblances, fugitive, and quite involuntary' (p. 285). It was while Schœlcher's 'Life of Handel' was in the press that the question of the authorship of the Erba Magnificat was first raised by a writer in the Athenæum of April 4, 1857. Schœlcher, as might be expected, strongly maintained that this Magnificat was a relic of Handel's Italian days, and of course that it was his own work (p. 423), while Crotch, from whom he indignantly cites a list of twenty-one composers (p. 285), he rejects in toto.* Dr. Chrysander, however, informs us (Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, 1878, p. 531) that he succeeded in converting his friend Schœlcher to his own view that Handel had borrowed freely from Urio's Te Deum, by practical demonstration from the MS. copy of that composition, which Schœlcher himself acquired at an auction sale in London in 1863, and of which he, of course, knew nothing when engaged upon writing the 'Life of Handel.'

Dr. Gauntlett's article on Handel's Mode of Composing in Notes and Queries, to which we have referred, was suggested by a note of Mr. N. S. Heineken in the same journal (November 20, 1858), and it so far complied with the latter's request that the movements from which Handel had borrowed should be published, in that it stated where many of them were to be found. This is an important article, as will be seen from the following quotation:—'I conceive the works [from which Handel borrowed] ought to be issued in their integrity, and the most important to produce first would be (1) the Magnificat which forms so large a part of the second act of "Israel," (2) the Serenata of Stradella, which forms so much of the first, (3) the Te Deum of Uria, which is used up in "Saul" and the Dettingen Te Deum, and (4) the Muffat Sonatas.' It may be mentioned that Gauntlett possessed the copy of the Serenata of Stradella now in the library of the Royal College of Music. With regard to A. Gottlieb Muffat's 'Componimenti Musicali'—described by Gauntlett as 'sonatas'—there is a printed copy in the British Museum (E. 461) which contains a manuscript list of twelve passages used by Handel in 'Joshua,' 'Judas Maccabæus,' 'Samson,' and other works; and from this Gauntlett obtained his information concerning Handel's indebtedness to the composer.

* This list of twenty-one differs from the longer list of twenty-nine cited in the beginning of this article, in respect of the names of Leo, Luther, Morley, and Steffani.

In 1871 Dr. Chrysander published the Urio Te Deum, though without preface or notes, and Professor Prout's well-known article 'Urio's Te Deum and Handel's use thereof' appeared in the Monthly Musical Record in November of the same year. The learned Professor also wrote, in the same journal, an article on 'Handel's obligations to Stradella,' in December, 1871, and in May and June, 1894, one on Graun and Handel.

In 1878 Dr. Chrysander commenced a series of articles on Francesco Antonio Urio in the Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, in which he thoroughly examined the question of Handel's plagiarisms from Urio's Te Deum. The first appeared August 14, 1878, and the series continued week by week, with occasional intervals, and concluded February 19, 1879. Many instances of Handel's borrowings are cited, and we are told, 'If one or other of the names that Crotch reckons up fails somewhat in weight, I can furnish names of other masters of the greatest importance in this connection. Besides Dionigi Erba whom we first discovered, I give here three names of the first rank: Reinhard Keiser, Alessandro Stradella, and Giovanni Maria Clari' (August 28, 1878). Dr. Chrysander is nothing if not polemical, and most of the time he is attacking one critic or another, his enemies being divided into two classes; those who admit and deplore Handel's plagiarisms, for whom he has some consideration—such as 'der umsichtige V. Novello,' 'der selige George Smart,' &c., and (2) Those who deny them, for whom he has no mercy. Crotch he treats with great respect. He considers that Handel glorified any composer from whom he borrowed, and points triumphantly to the honour which had been paid to the Erba Magnificat and the Urio Te Deum—the latter he had himself published—solely on account of the use Handel had made of them!

The late Mr. W. S. Rockstro, in his life of Handel, published in 1883, also made several allusions to charges of plagiarism. He considers that the evidence in favour of Handel being the author of the Magnificat (Erba), the Te Deum (Urio), and the Serenata (Stradella), is at any rate as strong as that assigning them to the earlier masters; but his general verdict towards the charge of plagiarism may be summed up as 'not proven' against Handel, with a marked bias in his favour.

In 1888 Dr. Chrysander commenced to issue his Supplemente, &c. First appeared the Erba Magnificat, which Chrysander, in his preface, insists is not the work of Handel, and in which he specifies eight passages which the latter used in 'Israel.' In the same year came the 'Serenata a 3 con Stromenti' composed by A. Stradella. In this work seven passages are pointed out which Handel used, six in the 'Israel' and one used both in 'The Messiah' and in the Occasional Oratorio. In 1892 the Five Duets of Clari were published, each of which, according to the editor, supplied one passage in 'Theodora.'

The Componimenti Musicali of Gottlieb Muffat were published in 1896. Dr. Chrysander mentions eighteen passages in them, which, he says, recur in thirty places in Handel, some being used more than once.

The foregoing appeared as 'Supplemente enthaltend Quellen zu Handel's Werken,' in connection with the great Chrysander edition of Handel. The Urio Te Deum was advertised to make one of them, but, although actually printed, has not yet been published. It was advertised to form No. 2 of the series, and should, therefore, have appeared in 1888, between the Erba and the Stradella.

Mr. Joseph Bennett discussed Handel's borrowings from Muffat in THE MUSICAL TIMES for March, 1895, and finally we come to the article in THE MUSICAL TIMES for February last.

Taking the questions of 'F. G. E.' in order, it seems that the answer to the first will be in the affirmative. Dr. Crotch published over a hundred arrangements and adaptations of Handel's compositions; he must, therefore, have been familiar with his subject. In the foot-notes to his organ and pianoforte adaptations of the choruses, marches, &c., from 'Israel,' 'Samson,' 'Solomon,' the Dettingen Te Deum, 'Jephtha,' 'Belshazzar,' 'Judas Maccabæus,' and 'Saul,' he points to passages in these works taken from Kerl, Martin Luther, Carissimi, Porta, Cesti, Calvisius, Croft, Steffani, Urio, Graun, Habermann, and Bononcini. Some notes in his copy of the 'Triumph of Time and Truth,' now in the British Museum, give references to Alessandro Scarlatti, Graun, Corelli, Lotti, and Kuhnau; while in his 'Substance of Lectures' he mentions instances of borrowing from Josquin de Près, Carissimi, A. Scarlatti, and Purcell. He also wrote in his copy of Randall's score of the Utrecht Te Deum that the opening allegro 'is taken from Kuhnau's Organ Sonatas, Leipzig, 1696' (see letter in MUSICAL TIMES, April, 1889, p. 236). It seems clear, then, that the Doctor knew whereof he spoke.

As to the second question, it is probable, as we have said, that Crotch had taken a hint from Burney as to Handel's plagiarisms, and it is certain that he had seen one or more of the three known manuscripts of Urio, two of which contain lists of movements borrowed by Handel, made in the eighteenth century; but the portentous list we have quoted he must have compiled for the most part himself.

[J. S. S.]

(To be continued.)

WE venture to call the special attention of our readers to an article (on p. 463) by our special correspondent in America, Mr. H. E. Krehbiel, entitled 'A Wonderful Achievement.' It is not only exceedingly interesting from an historical point of view, but full of suggestiveness as to what may be done by enthusiasm fired by true devotion to the cause of music.

PSALM SINGING.

AN OLD-TIME CONTROVERSY.

There have been many disputes regarding the precise nature and extent of Puritan influence upon church music. On the one hand, we are told that it was wholly adverse, malignant, and even savage. On the other, it is contended—as by the late Sir George Macfarren, for example—that Puritanism was not hostile to music as such, but inclined rather to its encouragement. Both cannot be right generally, but both may be specifically correct—correct, that is to say, as regards certain periods and events in the course of a long and bitter conflict. It is not my intention here to deal with the matter in all its breadth and length, but it may be worth while to point out certain facts which go to show that, for many years after the Reformation, the more distinctly Protestant section of the English Church was not embittered against music as an art. On the assumption that a hostile feeling did exist, it is curious, indeed, that the historical and polemical literature of the period rarely mentions music as a matter of dispute. The old books are eloquent about vestments, the Cross in baptism, kneeling at the sacrament, and so on. These points, and others like them, are copiously and furiously debated, but the disputants have singularly little to say concerning music as employed in worship. It is true that when two leaders of the reform movement, Humphreys and Sampson, wrote to Zurich for the general advice of their brethren there, they said: 'But the dispute is not only about a cap and surplice; there are other grievances which ought to be redressed or dispensed with, as (1) Music and organs in divine worship.' This, as far as I can discover, is the only utterance against Church music to be found in the letters of Elizabethan clergy, and it is worthy of note that the replies of the Continental ministers do not touch this particular grievance. It should be remarked, moreover, that the articles for exact conformity drawn up by the ecclesiastical commission in 1564 contain no regulations regarding the music of worship. Many requirements touching vestments and procedure are expressly laid down. These matters were in dispute; music, apparently, was not—at any rate, to a serious extent.

Much to the same effect speak certain facts in the story of those very typical Puritans, the Pilgrim Fathers. One of the 'Mayflower' company was Winslow, who writes:

'We refreshed ourselves with singing of Psalms, making joyful melody in our hearts, as well as with the voice, there being many of our congregation very expert in music, and, indeed, it was the sweetest music that mine ears ever heard.'

Another Puritan leader, the Rev. John Cotton, some time Fellow and Tutor in Emanuel College, Cambridge, published (circa 1650) a treatise entitled 'Singing of Psalms as a Gospel Ordinance,' in which he said: 'We lay down this conclusion for a Doctrine of Truth: that Singing of Psalms with a lively voice is an Holy duty of God's worship now in the dayes of the New Testament. . . . We also grant that any private Christian who hath a gifte to frame a spirituall song may both frame it and sing it privately for his own private comfort and remembrance of some speciall benefit or deliverance. Nor doe we forbid the use of any instrument therewithall, so that attention to the instrument does not divert the heart from attention to the matter of song.' It should be added that Cotton's pamphlet was designed to prepare the way for an improved version of 'The Bay Psalm Book,' issued in 1640, and being the second book ever printed in America.

It is further to be observed that Mr. W. S. B. Matthews, in the Introduction to his 'Hundred Years of Music in America,' writes thus:

'It is a curious fact that the cultivation of the most refined and poetic of the arts in America should have its origin with the stern and prosaic Pilgrims and Puritans of the early days. And yet it is in that forbidding soil that we have to recognise the root of American musical effort, which has to-day grown to such fair and so noble proportions. True, their musical activity, and it is but a formula of words to call it such, was confined to psalmody alone, and it was directed by religious rather than by art impulses; but it was none the less the origin from which we have to trace the musical history of our country. Indeed, the history of music in America, for nearly two centuries after the landing of the Pilgrims, is simply the story of psalmody in its various periods.'

We must not, however, suppose that the progress of music, even in the restricted sense of the term above mentioned, was other than one of great difficulty and exceeding slowness. The churches at Salem and Ipswich (New England) did not adopt the 'Bay Psalm Book' till 1667, while at Plymouth, the landing-place of the Pilgrims, it came into use as late as 1682. In 1698 appeared the first printed collection of psalm tunes in America. Fourteen years later, a Puritan pastor, the Rev. Mr. Tufts, of Newbury, published the first American instruction book, entitled 'A very plain and easy Introduction to the Art of Singing Psalm Tunes, with the Cantus or Trebles of Twenty-eight Psalm Tunes, contrived in such a manner as that the Learner may attain the skill of singing them with the greatest Ease and Speed imaginable. Price 6d., or 5s. the duz.'

This book was followed, in 1714, by a second, with the tunes harmonised in three parts, the very natural sequel being (circa 1720) a movement towards educating the people in music, and thoroughly reforming the practice of psalmody. The liberal and enlightened ministers who headed it were obstinately opposed, but went on their way, some remonstrating, as did the Rev. John Eliot (a good name), who (1725) expressed surprise and grief that 'musick, which in itself is concord, harmony, melody, sweetness, charming even to irrational creatures, . . . should be an occasion of strife, debate, discord, contention, quarreling and all manner of disorder; . . . that, instead of one heart and one voice in the praises of our glorious Creator and most bountiful Benefactor, there should be only wrangle, discord and slurring and reviling one another. This is and shall be a lamentation.' But the good work prospered, and lamentation gave way to rejoicing.

In old England the conditions were of a more aggravated character, arising, in the first instance, out of the Laudian persecution, and, next, from the passions engendered by civil war. When disputants come to blows many things are broken besides heads; in this case the damage extended to organs, altars, images, painted windows, and what not savouring of Popery. These were swept away by angry passions that sprang up, a foul crop, from seed sown by other hands. There was, however, no special feeling against the organ, and it is interesting to note, in the accounts of spoliation given by 'Mercurius Rusticus,' that Puritan and military rage spent itself first on other objects. At Canterbury the troopers began with the Communion table, the screen, and the monuments; afterwards they 'spoyled the organs,' and tore up the service books. At Rochester, the organ appears to have been spared. At any rate, the royalist periodical simply states that Sir John Seaton, who, with Col. Sandys, was in command of the soldiers, contented himself with calling out, 'A devil on these bagpipes!' At Chichester, the cathedral was first plundered by the officers and then left to the privates, who 'brake down the Organs, and, dashing the pipes with their pole-axes, scoffingly said, harke how the Organs goe.' At Winchester, the first concern was, as usual, with the altar and service books; then 'they throw down the Organ.' The same rule was observed at Westminster; and eventually 'they brake down the Organ, and sold the pipes at various Ale-houses for pots of Ale.' So elsewhere; the instruments, as it would seem, suffering more for the sake of complete spoliation than on account of particular antipathy. We now contemplate these scenes with amazement and just reprobation, but he is a poor student of history who judges men's doings in the past by the light of the present, and neglects to put himself as far as possible en rapport with the circumstances and conditions under which they acted.

I come now to the particular controversy which is the occasion of this writing—a controversy tending to show that in England, as in America, there were Puritan leaders to whom music, as a 'means of grace,' was dear. One of these I single out in the person of Benjamin Keach, 'Preacher of God's Word, and Pastor of the Church of Christ meeting on Horsleydown, Southwark.' Keach was a remarkable man—a typical product of the strenuous times in which he lived, and a willing sufferer for conscience' sake. Born at Stoke Hammond, Bucks, in 1640, he joined the Arminian Baptists in 1655 and, four years later, became a preacher. In 1664 his preaching, at Winslow, landed him in prison. Having served his sentence, he wrote and published a book or tract called 'The Child's Instructor'—a Baptist catechism. Again the law laid hold upon him and, this time, the matter was serious. Tried at Aylesbury before Chief Justice Hyde (who behaved like the Jeffreys to come), he was condemned. 'Mr. Keach was convicted,' says Neal ('History of the Puritans,' v. 5, p. 174), and the sentence passed was that he should be committed to jail for a fortnight, stand in the pillory for two hours at Aylesbury, with a paper on his head with this inscription, 'For writing, printing, and publishing a schismatical book entitled "The Child's Instructor, or a new and easy Primmer;"' that the same punishment, under like circumstances, should be inflicted on him the next Thursday at Winslow; that there his book should be openly burnt before his face, in disgrace of him and his doctrine; that he should be fined £20, and that he should remain in jail until he had found securities for his good behaviour and appearance at the next assizes; then to renounce his doctrines, and make such public submission as should be enjoined him.' The sentence was rigidly carried out—and Keach, undismayed, went on preaching.

In 1668 Keach became pastor of a small Baptist community in Tooley Street. There he so prospered that, in 1672, when a change in the political wind brought a spell of fine weather to nonconformists, his congregation built for him a wooden chapel in Goat Yard Passage, Horsleydown. The preaching of Keach drew a crowd of hearers, and eventually the structure was enlarged for the accommodation of nearly a thousand people. The pastor died in 1704. Among his forty-three publications are 'Spiritual Melodies—Psalms and Hymns from the Old and New Testaments' (1691); 'A Feast of Fat Things—Spiritual Songs' (1692); and a treatise entitled 'The Breach repaired in God's Worship, or Singing of Psalms, Hymns and Spiritual Songs proved to be an Holy Ordinance of Jesus Christ. With an Answer to all Objections' (1691).

I confess to great admiration of Benjamin Keach. His theological opinions I do not judge. He was willing to suffer for them, and did suffer; the presumption being that they were honestly held, and that is always a just claim to respect. But it seems clear to me that this Horsleydown preacher was a manly and courageous as well, considering the time and his opportunities, as an enlightened person. His action in regard to psalmody supplies a very forcible case in point. It would have paid Keach better in various ways had he simply accepted the non-musical condition of his co-religionists and refrained from interference. But this he could not do, whatever happened. I gather from his 'Breach Repaired' that, years before the issue of that pamphlet, Keach exerted himself openly in favour of church music among his own people, not without a measure of success. He persuaded them to sing a hymn at every celebration of the Lord's Supper, and the singing went on even during the bad days of Charles II., when nonconformists were driven to worship in holes and corners. Keach promoted, further, some service of song in what was called 'mixt Assemblies'—that is to say, gatherings open to non-members of the community. 'What is done more now?' he asks, in 1691, ''tis only practised oftener, and sure, if it be God's ordinance, the often practising of it, by such who find their hearts drawn out so to do, cannot be sinful.' Logical Keach!

Our pastor reminds his flock, whom he styles 'Holy and Beloved,' that the question of singing in worship had been solemnly put to the vote, when 'almost everyone's Hand was up for it,' and only five or six opposed. But either the malcontents increased, or they made a noise out of proportion to their numbers. At any rate, the breach was made which the pastor's pamphlet sought to repair, and the objecting members seceded from the church, influenced, it may be, by the writings of Isaac Marlow, the author of two pamphlets—a 'Discourse against Singing,' and an Appendix thereto. I have been unable to discover, beyond these two tracts, any particulars concerning this Mr. Marlow. He was, probably, a Baptist minister; he was, certainly, a very poor opponent of the musical reformer on Horsley-down. Some of his arguments show the desperate straits to which he was driven. Marlow contended for 'heart-singing, without the tongue.' This, retorted Keach, 'could be no more a proper singing than the Blood of Abel, which is said to speak, is a proper speaking.' In the alternative, Marlow urged, let one sing for the rest, just as one prays and all present are understood to pray with him. Sidenham had previously answered this curious suggestion and Keach quotes him: 'That which is the confusion of other Ordinances is the Beauty of this (singing). For two to preach or pray together at the same time and place were the greatest Confusion imaginable; but for an hundred to sing together is most harmonious and pleasant, so far from the breach of Order that Harmony is most discovered by it.' Another of Marlow's arguments is worth attention. He said: 'If we are to sing Psalms in Gospel times, from the precepts given by David, why may we not, as David did, use an Instrument of ten Strings?' Here was an awkward question, but when did a theologian fail to wriggle out of a tight corner? Keach quotes in answer the Reverend Mr. Cotton, of New England: 'Singing with Instruments was typical, and so a ceremonial point of worship, and therefore ceased, but Singing with Heart and Voice is a moral Worship, such as is written in the hearts of all Men by Nature.' Both Cotton and Keach are mere casuists in dealing with the point and the advantage lies with Marlow.

Isaac Marlow's Appendix appeared before Keach could answer the main pamphlet, and he was much vexed thereat, complaining warmly in a 'General Epistle to the Baptized Churches,' striking a personal note thus: 'And though he (Marlow) hath so coarsely saluted me, &c., yet I am not concerned at it further than to bewail his Confidence and Ignorance, to say no worse. I know no Men in any Age who appeared first to vindicate a Truth which others call an Error, but have met with the same usage I meet withal from our Brother, who I hope is a good Man, and means well, yet is he strangely beclouded.'

The contest evidently began to wax warm, and soon became more than a little personal. Quoth Mr. Keach: 'Is it not a false assertion for him to say, as he doth, that as to our way of vocal Singing together, there is neither command nor example for it, either in the Old or New Testament, I shall leave it to the consideration of all wise and sober Men. Certainly all will conclude that the Man is strangely left of God, especially considering he builds his main Confidence from a remote and indirect signification of a Greek word, and yet, as I am told, understands not that Language neither.' The struggle went on and extended. One of Keach's reverend and learned friends came to his help with an answer to the Appendix; then three others, "Lovers of Truth and Peace,' as they called themselves, joined in the fray on the same side, and after them came yet others, all armed with pamphlets, and all laying about them like valiant soldiers.

The whole matter is interesting now mainly as evidence that there were steady workers on the side of church music among the nonconformists of the seventeenth century, and even in the darkest days of their trouble. They are not indiscriminately to be set down as wanting sweetness and light. For the rest, though we may wonder at a state of things now impossible, let us not be puffed up. Scarcely fifty years have passed since Dr. Candlish roused all Scotland on the great Organ question, by reproducing a report of the argument between Doctors Ritchie and Porteous in 1807-8. How the Rev. Alexander Cromar rose up against Dr. Candlish and smote him in his 'Vindication of the Organ' every student of such matters knows. It was Keach and Marlow over again, and in the one case, as in the other, light and liberality prevailed. Our modern Puritans praise the Lord in hymns and chants and anthems, and the frequent organ is heard North of the Tweed.

Joseph Bennett.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

SIR JOHN STAINER has left behind him an honoured name and a life-work of splendid achievement that calls for commemoration, especially in the two cities where his labours were so conscientiously pursued and so fully appreciated. It is, therefore, proposed to place a bronze relief in St. Paul's Cathedral—where Sir John was first a chorister and afterwards (from 1872 to 1888) organist—and to present to the University of Oxford a painted portrait of its late distinguished Professor of Music. In bringing this project before our readers, we feel sure that many of them will gladly join in the desire to honour the memory of Sir John Stainer by their practical co-operation. It is hardly necessary to refer to the services Sir John so unstintingly rendered to the cause which lay so near to his heart, or to mention the love and respect in which this warm-hearted, kindly-natured musician was held by all with whom he came in contact. Subscriptions to the Stainer Memorial Fund may be sent to the Rev. H. Scott Holland, 1, Amen Court, St. Paul's, E.C.; to Sir George C. Martin, 4, Amen Court, St. Paul's, E.C.; or to the London and Westminster Bank, Limited (St. Paul's Branch), 5, St. Paul's Churchyard, E.C.

THE growth of a taste for the Art Song is one of the gratifying features of recent musical progress. The drawing-room ballad, so much adored by the great British Public, is, unfortunately, not sensibly less popular than it was, but in some circles, at least, the rival cult is making much headway. Perhaps the greatest obstacle to a wider acceptance of the Art Song is the fact that most of the best examples of the type are made in Germany and, therefore, can only be 'understanded of the people' through the medium of translations, which are too often most repellent and absurd. We need a Burns to come to the rescue and provide us with words that will not offend with their puerility, and will fit the sentiment and rhythmic accentuation of the original. Some such translations are available, but still much remains to be done. The psychologic moment lends interest to a volume, entitled 'Songs and Song Writers,' by Mr. Henry T. Finck, recently issued by Mr. John Murray. In this book of 254 pages Mr. Finck gives a readable sketch of the history of the Lied, or lyric Art Song, from its creation by Schubert to its latest exemplification by 'the two greatest living song writers,' who are declared to be Grieg and—some will be surprised to learn—Edward MacDowell, the American composer.

MR. FINCK has very decided opinions upon the merits of the numerous composers whose works he reviews. He has rapturous admiration for many of Schubert's inspirations. Beethoven (who said to Rochlitz, 'Songs I do not like to write') and Mozart are not accorded a place in the Pantheon. Schumann, who, says Felix Dræseke, 'began with genius and ended with talent,' is allowed to have composed some songs that have the gift of eternal youth, and these are nearly all to be found amongst his earlier compositions. Of the 119 songs of the later period only one, 'Er ist's,' is said to rise above mediocrity. Full justice is rendered to Robert Franz (of whose songs Mendelssohn remarked 'there is no melody'), whose really beautiful compositions are far too much neglected. They are not good concert songs, it is true, and so singers fight shy of them—a fact that drew from Franz the bitter complaint of 'the boundless vanity of professional singers, "gentry," who never care for the thing itself, but only for their own personal success.' Mr. Finck allows his own subjectivity to be a too important factor in passing judgment. He does not like Brahms's songs, and says and quotes much against them. He denies that Brahms's melodies are, as Professer Niecks puts it, 'Distinguished by purity, simplicity, naturalness, and grace,' and he says they are like the 'musical small talk' of Mendelssohn, 'provokingly trite and commonplace,' and he is 'amazed that Brahms could pen and print such meaningless twaddle.' Jensen is discussed and allowed a niche in the temple, and that great genius, Richard Strauss, is recognised as another of the immortals. Others, including Liszt, Rubinstein, Tschaïkowsky, are discussed and placed. Chopin is enthusiastically admired. No. 12, in his Op. 74, 'My delights,' is said to be 'one of the most impassioned and dramatic lyrics ever created,' and to help us to believe this Mr. Finck solemnly tells us that he 'once saw a young lady faint, overcome by the intense emotion embodied in it.' We hope we have said enough of the book to induce lovers of modern art songs to read it. Mr. Finck's style is never heavy; in fact, it is sometimes curiously colloquial, and in view of explanations kindly given of the meaning of the words 'fioriture' and 'felix,' and the description of a passage in Schubert's 'Erl-king' as being 'an interval higher' than it was before, it is not clear for whom the book is intended. But all the same it must be said that there is no obscurity in the writing, and there is a quality of enthusiasm in Mr. Finck's criticisms that will stimulate many readers to desire to know more of the numerous songs the merits of which he so highly extols.

FUNERAL Marches have formed the subject of a correspondence in some recent issues of the Scottish Guardian, an ecclesiastical journal across the border. The question seems to have resolved itself into Christian versus non-Christian funeral marches. The divine, who started the correspondence, wrote:—

> It seems to me that the following are distinctively Christian funeral marches:—Handel's 'Dead March in Saul,' because it seems to rise from solemn grief to solemn triumph; Beethoven's, from the Sonata, Op. 26, because beginning in the minor it ends in the major, and because the last eight bars or so seem to convey a message o comfort; and Mendelssohn's from the 'Songs without Words,' on account of its chantlike or hymnlike character. But what of Chopin's well-known funeral march? That it is unsurpassed as a work of art by any of the others is no doubt true. Was there ever anything more lovely than the central melody? But what I am asking is not whether it is a splendid composition, but whether the view of death taken in it makes it suitable for use at a Christian funeral.

THE gentleman who contributes 'Notes on Music' to the above-mentioned journal sought the opinion of Professor Niecks as to the orthodoxy or heterodoxy of the funeral march composed by Chopin. In reply thereto the Professor wrote:—

> 'The views of the correspondent in The Scottish Guardian are strange and inexplicable. I fail to perceive in the opening part of Chopin's march anything non-Christian, and I fail equally to perceive in the other marches anything especially Christian. What one expects in a funeral march is the expression of human sorrow and divine comfort. Are not both found in Chopin's march?'

Anyone conversant with Scottish humour knows full well that funerals are not exempt from its spell. The border line between the 'awfu' solemn' and pawky risibility is often very thin, even across the border. It is, therefore, not surprising that a subsequent correspondent should approach the subject of Funeral Marches in a lighter vein—in fact, he treats it as a family matter. Here are his words:—

So far as Beethoven's is concerned, it does not seem very Christian. Its minor beginning, combined with its major ending, always suggests to me the story of the woman who had lost a large family. It was said to her one day, 'You must often miss them.' 'Ay,' she said, 'I wants them and I misses them, but I misses them oftener than I wants them.'

MR. W. BARCLAY SQUIRE has contributed a valuable article to the Sammelbände for April-June, issued by the Internationalen Musikgesellschaft, which gives further proof, if proof were needed, of his erudition and painstaking zeal. Though modestly described as 'Notes,' the article occupies no less than fifty octavo pages, and is entitled 'Notes on an undescribed Collection of English 15th Century Music.' This volume, of 112 folios, now preserved at the Catholic College of St. Edmund's Old Hall, near Ware, Hertfordshire, formerly belonged to Stafford Smith (1750-1836), the antiquary. It was presented to the Library of Old Hall by Smith's descendants. In the course of an exhaustive and learned description of this interesting old manuscript volume, Mr. Barclay Squire says:—

The MS., when it passed into the possession of Old Hall, was in a poor 18th century binding and in bad condition. Many of the initial letters, which were presumably illuminated, had been cut out, though curiously enough the Goth who had mutilated the pages had sometimes taken the trouble to replace the missing portions by rude restorations, in which he had noted the musical notes cut out with the initials. . . .

The volume, which measures 41.6cm. by 27.6cm., is mostly written in one bold ecclesiastical hand, though in various places other handwritings may be traced. Many of the remaining initials are in gold, but for the most part the caligraphy of the volume is poor in quality and without especial characteristics. Such evidence as may be gathered from it points to the writing being that of a rather unskilled English copyist of the latter part of the 15th century; in both music and text mistakes are not unfrequent.

The arrangement of the volume shows that it was intended for use in some choir. In regard to the notation employed, Mr. Squire observes:—

The notation is generally in black and red notes, but . . . white void notes are used; and [in two compositions] blue notes are introduced, the value of which is thus explained: Blodie notule cum pausis ubicunque inveniantur cantentur secundum proporcionem duplam. This rare use of blue notes is referred to in John Tucke's De Arte Musica, (British Museum, Add. MSS. 10, 336, fol. 21, 97, 98, and 100). Accidentals are frequently marked by the usual signs, and in some cases when it is wished to lower a note which has been raised in value by a sharp, instead of using the ordinary ♭ sign the scribe employs the letter F. A five-line stave is used throughout.

In regard to the contents of this important manuscript collection, we are told that:—

The most interesting feature of the Manuscript is that it presents us with a number of compositions by named English musicians, the greater part of whom are unknown to historians. A full thematic list of the contents will be found in Appendix I. to these notes, but it will be more convenient to give here a list of the composers whose names occur. They are as follows:—

Cooke, . . . zleyn, Sturgeon, Damett, Burell, Roy Henry, Gyttering, J. Tyes. J. Excetre, Lyonel or Leonel, Pycard, Rowlard, Queldryk. Gervays, ffonteyns, Oliver or Olyver, R. Chyrbury or Chirbury, W. Typp, Forest, Swynford, Pennard, Lambe, Mayshuet. To this list may be added the name of Dunstable.

Before proceeding to discuss the contents of the volume, Mr. Squire raises the interesting question in regard to the identity of 'Roy Henry,' as the composer of a three-part Gloria, Sanctus, and Benedictus. 'Who is this royal composer?' he asks. 'It would not be an improbable hypothesis,' he says in reply, 'to assume that the two numbers in the Mass in the Old Hall MS., even if not actually the composition of the King himself [Henry VI., 'the gentle and cultivated monarch'], may have been the work of some member of the Windsor choir [St. George's Chapel], and have passed under the name of the monarch who both in his life and after his death was so intimately associated with the place.' Mr. Squire, in conclusion, is of opinion that this 'Old Hall MS. is by far the most important collection of English 15th century music which has hitherto been discovered, and that taken in connection with the Trent and Modena MSS., and the somewhat later collection at Eton College, we now possess an amount of material for studying the position of English music during the 15th Century which no future historian can afford to neglect.' The article, which is most clearly and readably written, contains two Appendices—(1) a Thematic list of the contents of the Old Hall MS., and (2) Five compositions from it transcribed in modern notation, the latter being mainly the work of Miss Stainer and her brother, Mr. J. F. R. Stainer.

THE saying that 'nothing is improved by translation—except a bishop,' is overflowing with truth. One of the most recent proofs thereof is furnished in Eulenburg's Berlioz Scores. In Arthur Smolian's introduction to the Symphonie Fantastique of the French master a sentence reads thus (literal translation):—

And where could there be anything more thrilling than the introductory Adagio of the same symphony, this movement woven as it were out of glowing tears and breathing sighs?

But the English translator has confused the word Satz (movement) with Salz (salt), with the result that we get this briny enquiry:—

And where can one find anything more impressive than the interesting Adagio of the same symphony, this salt, condensed as it were from burning tears and despondent sighs?

May we not therefore assume that this translation should, at least, be taken cum grano salis?

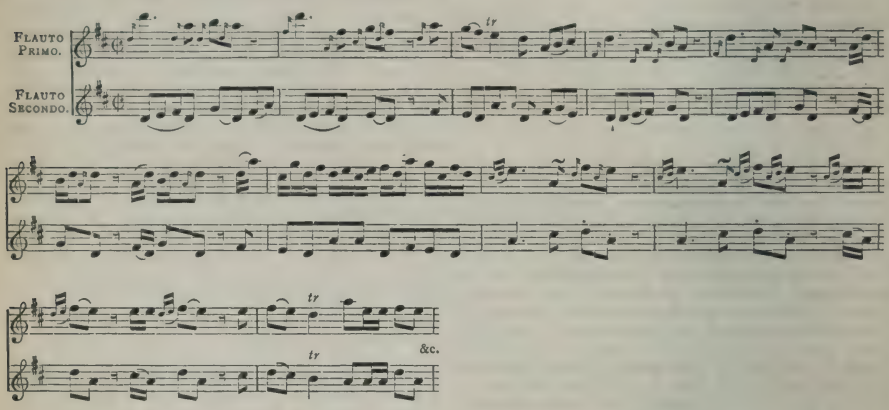
THE Berlin Museum of Musical Instruments has been presented by Herr Franz von Mendelssohn with a collection comprising over 400 portraits of musicians and lyrical artists, and including every one of those of any note in the nineteenth century. Some of the portraits in the collection are absolutely unique.

SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE received, on the 13th ult., the degree of LL.D., honoris causâ, from the University of Glasgow, in connection with the celebration of the Ninth Jubilee of that ancient seat of learning.

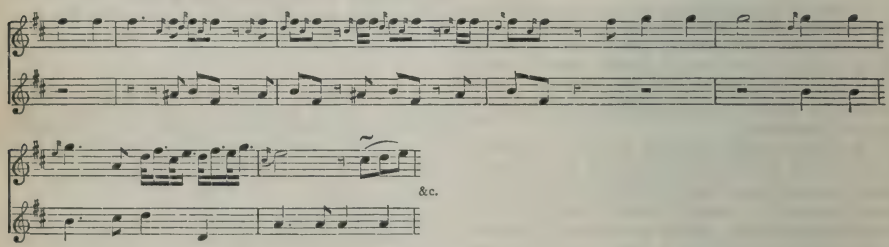
CURIOUS ARRANGEMENTS OF THE HALLELUJAH CHORUS.

'THE Hallelujah Chorus arranged as a Duet for Two German Flutes.' Is it possible? Yes, we have before us, recently discovered in a farm house in Herefordshire, the actual copy, printed by G. Walker, Publisher of Books and Music, 105 and 106, Great Portland Street. The name of the gentleman who is responsible for this arrangement (or derangement) is not given; but Mr. Frank Kidson, in his 'British Music Publishers,' suggests the year 1790 as that in which Mr. Walker started in business, and he can be traced at Great Portland Street till 1824.

The majestic opening of the sublime chorus is flutified thus:—



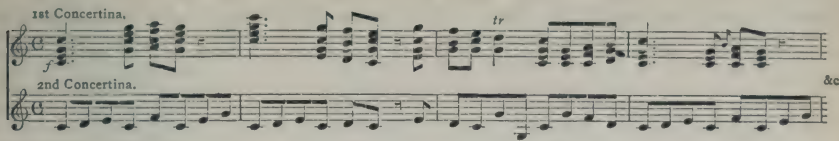
The reiterated 'King of Kings' by the sopranos is agitatingly concluded thus:—



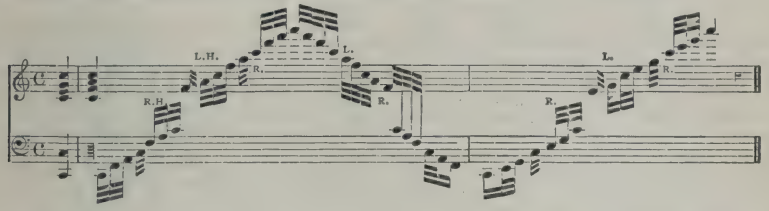
The concluding bars are as follows—notice that flauto secondo emulates the appoggiaturic propensities of his colleague for two bars, but he soon relinquishes this graceful ornamentation and settles down to the sweet simplicity of the unadorned quavers:—

Here is a concertina arrangement, which may be performed with or without a pianoforte accompaniment. The arranger is Mr. W. H. Birch:—

Another, for either one or two concertinas, prepared by Mr. Joseph Warren :—



Still they come. This is the concluding strain of the harp part in a transcription for that instrument and pianoforte (with ad lib. accompaniments for flute and violoncello), by J. F. Burrows :—



SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE ON SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

THE Principal of the Royal Academy of Music thought an exceedingly happy thought when he selected the life and works of his old friend Arthur Sullivan as the subject of three lectures delivered by him at the Royal Institution on May 2, 9, and 16. Sir Alexander Mackenzie is not the man to do things by halves, and it may be said, without fear of contradiction, that he threw his whole soul into the preparation of this distinctly interesting and research-ful trio of discourses. In the course of his exhaustive studies for the lectures we understand that he went carefully through every note—published and unpublished—of Sullivan's music, and there are few men who know their Sullivan so well.

From internal evidence it may be assumed that Sir Alexander set out to combat the prevailing idea that a composer's music cannot be good if it is not written in modern German idiom. He certainly proved that whatever the merits or demerits of Sullivan's music, it was his own, and, moreover, it possessed the quality of "touching the spot," so to speak—a quality which does not seem to be the possession of all our native composers. The tone of Sir Alexander Mackenzie's remarks was distinctly appreciative, and it is only the exigencies of space that prevent us from giving a verbatim report of the three lectures. The following extracts, kindly furnished by Sir Alexander specially for THE MUSICAL TIMES, will furnish a sample of this admirable appreciation of a distinguished British composer.

LECTURE I.—INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.

I remember Sullivan's remarking to me once: 'Mackenzie, there is so little common sense in music just now.' By that he meant to say, there is so little appreciation of the 'fitness of things' in music. Elaborate embellishment where it is not wanted; counterpoint in the wrong place; difficulties presented where simplicity would serve better; powerful orchestration where a lighter touch would answer the purpose more adequately, and so on.

Now to say, as has been said, that he wrote as if Wagner or Tschaïkowsky had never existed, is hardly correct. For he has at times, and in the proper place, been both elaborate and powerful, as in most parts of 'The Golden Legend' and 'Ivanhoe.' But whether he merely deemed it expedient or not, he certainly held tightly on to his maxim of respecting the 'fitness of things,' with the result that the 'human' touch in his music went very straight to its mark, and he took care that that touch should not be weakened or obscured by either unnecessary complications or diffuseness.

LECTURE II.—VOCAL MUSIC, SACRED AND SECULAR.

In Longfellow's 'Golden Legend' a subject was hit upon containing exactly that human touch which so well fitted the genius he has undoubtedly exhibited in its treatment. From the elaborate, vivid, and exciting Prologue, painted in the strongest colours of modern instrumentation, to the touching Finale, which brings tears to the eyes (as I confess it did to mine at its first performance), the composer has availed himself, in a masterly manner, of all the resources at the musician's command, and the gathered experience of a lifetime. And he does so with restraint, for I take it that at least one of the helps to the success of 'The Golden Legend' is that nothing is overdone. Everything, the sparing use of the Leitmotif, the unwonted freedom of the harmonic progressions, the orchestral colour, are all reserved for their appropriate places. And in the Schubert-like tone of the 'Journey to Salerno,' leading to the 'Scene by the Sea,' culminating in the soprano solo and chorus 'The night is calm and cloudless,' he reaches a height which, I say it deliberately, touches the sublime. That one of the scenes but poorly matches its companions is nothing to the purpose. 'The Golden Legend' remains, after the wear of some fourteen years, the masterpiece it was justly pronounced to be at its first performance. It has been seriously stated that the influence of Berlioz is apparent in this work, and that it is modelled on the French composer's style; but I confess that I fail to discover any trace of that influence. To be sure, both composers had to deal, musically, with the arch-fiend (always a popular and interesting character), but the only similarity between Berlioz's Mephisto and Sullivan's Lucifer is that they both seem to have some knowledge of counterpoint. After the blasphemous burlesque 'Amen' is bellowed by the tipsy students in Auerbach's 'Keller,' Mephisto remarks (I quote from the English translation): 'I' faith, good Sir, but your fugue is astounding, the style is really grand, art has never better expressed more pious sentiments.' But Lucifer in 'The Golden Legend' is much more true to Goethe's original conception, and the counterpoint is confined to an orchestral illustration of the descriptive line in 'Faust,' 'Was hinkt der Kerl auf einem Fuss' ('How he limps on one foot'). This line, indicating the physical consequences of an accident (very likely a severe fall), was seized upon by Sullivan, and he invested his Devil with a contrapuntal limp which generally accompanies his appearance, just as Jolly Friar Tuck is accompanied by mock serious ecclesiastical harmonies in 'Ivanhoe.'

The 'humour of it' is born of the spirit of comic opera, which, at the time, like 'La belle dame sans merci,' had him 'in thrall.' In connection with this very point, I remember that he remarked to me, 'I can't away from it. When I was writing the "Legend," and Elsie sings at the most serious point of the story, "I come not here to argue, but to die," I quite regretted the chance of letting the chorus respond, after the approved Savoy fashion, "Why, she doesn't come here to argue, but to die!"' But I fear that is a tale out of school, and one only for your private ear.

The passing mention of 'Ivanhoe' leads me to class it here (somewhere out of its order) amongst his most serious efforts. It contains many of his very best lyrics, and is certainly his most ambitious dramatic work. In it he again succeeds best when he adheres to that note, struck first in 'The Tempest' or 'Kenilworth.' When the sporadic question of national opera crops up, both 'Ivanhoe' and his local habitation are generally pointed to as little more than failures. 'Ivanhoe' was not a failure. It was played for a hundred nights without a break. Altogether 150 performances took place in London. This is not the proper place to enter into details. Neither the libretto nor the music was responsible for its withdrawal. But, as in the case of the proverbial 'one swallow,' it is obvious enough that one single English opera could not bring us the summer which we musicians desire so much to see. Although ready enough to start, no other birds accompanied its solitary flight. And if such a test of the vitality of the opera of any country were to be taken as final (as it frequently is), I question whether Auber, Meyerbeer, or even the all-absorbing Richard Wagner himself, could have succeeded in establishing a national house single-handed.

LECTURE III.—COMIC OPERA.

Mr. Sidney Colvin says somewhere, 'What most reasonable judges require of an artist, especially an imaginative artist, is, not that it (that is, his work) should conform to their own standard, but that it should be good of its kind and that that kind should be personal to himself.'

The quotation is quite in place here, since it is singularly applicable to the small library of humorous volumes we are discussing to-day. For the authors have, as universally admitted, certainly conformed to the ethical conditions here set forth. But not being like Mr. Silas Wegg, 'a literary man with a wooden leg,' I prefer to confine my remarks to the music, which, while being exceptionally good of its kind, not only possesses those personal qualities I have insisted upon on previous occasions, but exhibits them here just in that less complex form in which they so readily appealed to those who make no pretence to be classed among the learned in music.

Sir A. C. Mackenzie, in continuation, gave a brief history of comic opera in England, showing how Burnand and Sullivan's 'Cox and Box' first occupied the intermediate ground between burlesque and comic opera in the sixties. In speaking of 'Pinafore,' he said that much of its breezy music would likely pass into our folk-music, if it had not already done so; and of the 'Mikado,' that that eccentric potentate had, on his first visit to Germany, broken the ice that concealed the possibility of anything like humour being discernible in British music. The advent of a really good comic song tune of purely Teutonic origin would be an event worth discussing in a lecture devoted entirely to itself.

Taking one consideration with another—namely, that the demands upon Sullivan's vocal and instrumental forces became more and more exacting—it would almost seem as if his greatest ambition had been to arrive at the position in England which Auber occupies in the national opera in France. And had it not been for his chronic ill-health, which, unfortunately, cut his labours short, he might have succeeded in attaining that object even more completely than he did. But the establishment of English national opera is too long and difficult a process to be the work of a single individual. A variety of men, from Michael Balfe onwards, have, are, and still will be carrying stones towards the building before it is completed.

That Sullivan was enabled to do much, probably more than any other musician—by reason of his being in the fortunate possession of a theatre dedicated to his work—as distinctly a national composer, is not to be disputed. You would hardly thank me at this hour were I to begin upon the features which constitute an English manner in music. But as we know them—for example's sake let me say in Bennett's 'May Queen,' in Macfarren's 'Robin Hood'—so we may trace them (with the variations natural to his own individuality) through Sullivan's twenty comic operas. And the fact that they are apparent in his earliest, as in his latest completed works, is evidence enough that they were not reproduced artificially, but were part of his musical organisation. Indeed, in studying his later important works, I seem to have gradually become conscious of a growing protest against the encroachment of any modern foreign influence in them.

In spite of the melancholy circumstances under which the last opera (the 'Emerald Isle') was sketched, I find no falling off either in the dramatic intention (which is still as strong as ever in the first Finale), or the melodic swing of 'Brian Boru,' or Professor Bunn's 'Shillelagh Song,' to merely mention instances. And the sly humour, which in former days prompted the Lord Chancellor of England to make his appearance to an accompaniment of strict fugue, still causes the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to enter with 'God save the King' hidden in the bass part. But it must have been a toughish task for Mr. Edward German—who doubtless often inwardly invoked the spirit of the departed composer—when engaged on that delicate and difficult piece of work, which he has completed with so much credit to himself and loyalty to Sullivan's memory. I say with credit to himself, for in the original numbers he was obliged to add, he has struck the Irish note—which, by the way, is not the sole property of any particular composer—and made his redcoats—who, also by the way, have appeared in almost every Irish play or opera since Boucicault—sing in good Devon with equal success.

It is always a tender and difficult task for one of the same craft to discuss the accomplishments of another, however eminent or superior he may be. More especially in this case, when the emotion of his personal friends has hardly had time to subside. But I hope that anything that has been said has been offered in a spirit unbiassed and fair. And I cannot help thinking that the wish of the dead English composer would have been—if we could only have heard it—to ask for similar attention and justice to the living ones who have worked alongside of him, who will continue to follow him—and on his lines, I hope—in a long future array.

Whether he himself was completely satisfied with the sum of work he was permitted to do we shall never know. But, humanly speaking, he ought to have been as happily content with the result of his life labour as is the nation in the possession of the works of Arthur Sullivan.

Excellently rendered musical illustrations to the first and second lectures were contributed by the following students of the Royal Academy of Music: Miss Ethel Wood and Mr. W. R. Maxwell (vocalists), Miss May Mukle (violoncello), Messrs. Gascoigne (pianoforte), Spencer Dyke, Stephen Champ, and Lionel Tertis (strings), and Miss Mukle (accompanist). Several distinguished members of the Savoy Theatre company lent their illustrative aid at the third lecture (on Comic Opera) with their well known intuitiveness.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

THE fifteenth public Service of the American Guild of Organists, held in All Angels' Church, New York, on May 16, took the form of a memorial service to Sir John Stainer, all the music, with the exception of the Preces and Responses and the Offertory Sentence, being selected from his compositions. It may not be without interest to our readers if we print what may be termed the Creed of the American Guild of Organists, an association somewhat akin to the Royal College of Organists:—

DECLARATION OF THE RELIGIOUS PRINCIPLES OF THE AMERICAN GUILD OF ORGANISTS.

To be read by the Chaplain and Members of the Guild, standing.

For the greater glory of God, and for the good of His Holy Church in this land, we being severally members of the American Guild of Organists, do declare our mind and intention in the things following:

We believe that the Office of Music in Christian Worship is a Sacred Oblation before the Most High.

We believe that they who are set as Choirmasters and as Organists in the House of God ought themselves to be persons of devout conduct, teaching the ways of earnestness in the Choirs committed to their charge.

We believe that unity of purpose and fellowship of life between Ministers and Choirs should be everywhere established and maintained. We believe that at all times and in all places it is meet, right, and our bounden duty to work and to pray for the advancement of Christian Worship in the holy gifts of strength and nobleness; to the end that the Church may be purged of her blemishes, that the minds of men may be instructed, that the honour of God's House may be guarded in our time and in the time to come.

Wherefore we do give ourselves with reverence and humility to these endeavours, offering up our works and our persons in the Name of Him without whom nothing is strong, nothing is holy. Amen.

✠

AT Boston Parish Church (Lincolnshire), on the 20th ult., a special service was held in connection with the Dedication Festival. The orchestra and augmented choir (ninety voices) were under the direction of Mr. G. H. Gregory, organist, when his Evening Service in E flat was sung.

THE following is the specification of the new organ in the recently-erected Concert Hall of the Royal College of Music. The instrument has been built by Messrs. J. W. Walker and Sons, and presented to the College by its generous Director, Sir Hubert Parry:—

GREAT ORGAN (9 stops).

Double Diapason ...	16 feet	Harmonic Flute ...	4 feet
Open Diapason (large)	8 „	Twelfth	2⅔ „
Open Diapason ...	8 „	Fifteenth	2 „
Wald Flute	8 „	Trumpet (heavy wind) ...	8 „
Principal	4 „

CHOIR ORGAN (6 stops).

Gamba	8 feet	Suabe Flute	4 feet
Dulciana	8 „	Piccolo	2 „
Lieblich Gedact...	8 „	Clarinet	8 „

SWELL ORGAN (9 stops).

Open Diapason ...	8 feet	Dulciana Mixture ...	3 ranks
Stopped Diapason ...	8 „	Contra Fagotto ...	16 feet
Echo Gamba	8 „	Horn	8 „
Voix Celeste (Tenor C)	8 „	Oboe	8 „
Principal	4 „	Tremulant	—

PEDAL ORGAN (7 stops).

Space reserved for Sub-Bourdon ...	32 feet	Octave (lowest 20 Notes from Open Diapason) ...	8 feet
Open Diapason ...	16 „	Flute (lowest 20 Notes from Bourdon)	8 „
Violone	16 „	Posaune (heavy wind) ...	16 „
Bourdon	16 „

COUPLERS.

Choir to Pedal.	Swell to Choir.
Great to Pedal.	Swell to Great.
Swell to Pedal.

Manual Compass, CC to C.
Pedal Compass, CCC to G.

Four Electro-Pneumatic Combination Pistons controlling Great Organ Stops and four controlling Swell Organ Stops.

(In addition to the above Pistons, there is an extra one to both Great and Swell Organs on which any combination can be set by the organist by means of switches on the stop jambs.)

Four Electro-Pneumatic Combination Pedals controlling Pedal Organ Stops, and four duplicating Swell Pistons.

Coupler, Great Pistons to Pedal Combinations.

Coupler, Pedal Stops to Swell Combinations.

Double-acting Pedal coupler trolling Great to Pedal Coupler.

Tubular Pneumatic action to Manuals, Pedal and Draw-stops.

The Swell-shutters are controlled by a Balanced Pedal, or by the ordinary lever-pedal at the option of the player.

The organ is blown by four high pressure hydraulic engines supplied by Messrs. Watkins and Watson. The engines, feeders, and main bellows are situated in the basement of the building.

A GOOD IDEA.

IT is too often the experience of conductors and organisers of Diocesan Choral Festivals that some choirs are not quite so efficient as they ought to be. This difficulty seems to have been successfully met by the Edinburgh Diocesan Choral Association, an institution founded in 1865, and reconstituted in 1888. Rule VIII. of the Constitution is as follows:—

> No choir will be permitted to take part in the Festival Service unless certified after inspection as efficient by the General Choirmaster.

Rule VII. specifies that the Cathedral Organist shall be the General Choirmaster. In a conversation we recently had with Mr. T. H. Collinson, organist of St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh, and, of course, the General Choirmaster of the Association, he spoke of the great success which has attended the enforcement of the above Rule VIII. His inspection of the affiliated choirs, though, as might be expected of him, very kindly and tactfully done, is nevertheless very searching. He rightly pays special attention to the all-important matters of monotoning, chanting, &c., which are too often left to take care of themselves, with results that are slovenly and the opposite of devotional utterance. While every encouragement is given to honest effort by small choirs, such, for instance, as those who sing in Mission churches, discouragement is meted out to those whose work is not characterised by earnestness and efficiency. The result of this inspecting and weeding-out process has been very marked in the choral music throughout the Diocese. Choral Festivals are held annually—in the Cathedral one year, and in the next year in one or two country churches. To the latter Festivals each of the city choirs sends a small contingent of singers—e.g., three sopranos, one alto, one tenor, and one bass. This is an excellent plan; as it not only educates and stimulates local interest, but decentralises. A simple anthem, service, &c., are selected for all the choirs, and an elaborate anthem, which is optional, for the larger choirs. The Choral Communion Office (Merbecke) has recently been included in the Festival scheme. A few months before each Festival, the Cathedral organist gives an exposition of the music, illustrated by the Cathedral choir, to the various choirmasters, in order that matters of Tempi, expression, &c., may be in full accord. May all success attend the Edinburgh Diocesan Choral Association in its good work for the cause of church music.

WHERE there's a will there's a way. So thought the late Professor Rintoul, of the National Board of Education, Dublin. The way of this gentleman was his testamentary dispositions, in which he willed the sum of £400 for various objects, including Presbyterian churches in Ireland. But this bequest is conditional—that is to say, it is 'strictly limited to those churches who use no Hymnal, but the Psalms [i.e., the Metrical version of the Psalter] only, and in which no musical instruments of any kind whatsoever are used.' It seems evident that while this testator seems to have had a strong antipathy to hymns, he evidently showed a distinct predilection for whims.

ALDERMANIC ORGANISTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Dear Sir,

Your enquiry in 'THE MUSICAL TIMES' about 'Aldermanic Organists' prompts me to give you the following details about my father, who has been organist and the master of the Parish Church, Andover, Hampshire, for over thirty years. He has been a Councillor for twenty years, Alderman six years, Justice of the Peace three years, and he was Mayor of the town in 1893.

Yours very truly,

HERBERT W. CHUTER,

Organist and Choirmaster of Sherborne Abbey.

The Lawn, Sherborne,
June 16, 1901.

A CORRESPONDENT writes as follows:

Thinking the following incident might amuse the readers of 'THE MUSICAL TIMES,' I have taken the liberty of sending it to you.

The programme of an organ recital recently given in a church at Leicester included Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D minor. A gentleman, who arrived somewhat late, was shown into a pew occupied by a lady. The gentleman, wishing to know how many pieces had been played, turned to the lady and said, 'Excuse me, madam, but has the organist played the Bach?' 'Oh, dear, no!' she replied; 'he is only playing the organ this afternoon.'

ORGAN RECITALS.

Dr. Peace, St. George's Hall, Liverpool (his Sonata da Camera in D and Concert Fantasia and Moscheles's Hommage à Handel, adapted by Best).—Mr W. H. Speer, Trinity College Chapel, Cambridge (Præludium und Fuga in F major, Buxtehude).—Sir Frederick Bridge, Westminster Abbey (Organ Sonata, Clement Loret).—Mr. T. H. Collinson, St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh (Première Suite, Borowski).—Mr. William Reed, Chalmer's Church, Quebec (Marche Pontificale, Lemmens).—Mr. Albert E. Workman, Emmanuel Church, Bootle.—Mr. George Rathbone, Cartmel Priory Church (Sketch, Op. 55, Edward MacDowell, and Allegretto, W. Wolstenholme).—Mr. R. H. Turner, Parish Church, Portsmouth (Meditation, E. d'Evry).—Mr. R. E. Parker, Wilmslow Parish Church.—Mr. R. J. Pitcher, Holy Trinity Church, Scarborough (Handel's Concertos, Nos. 2 and 4, in B flat and F).—Mr. Fred. Gostelow, Ilford Congregational Church (Toccata, in G, Dubois).—Mr. Philip V. King, The Cathedral, Bloemfontein (March in B flat, Silas).—Mr. W. E. Fairclough, All Saints', Toronto (Caprice in B flat, Guilmant).—Mr. Fountain Meen, Mildmay Wesleyan Church (Fantasia, Silas, and Grand Solemn March, Smart).—Mr. H. T. Gilberthorpe, Parish Church, Lynton (Festal March, Baptiste Calkin).—Mr. J. Matthews, St. Stephen's Guernsey.—Mr. Thos. Curry, St. Stephen's Walbrook.—Mr. Arthur Clements, St. George's Catholic Church, Rowan (Allegretto in E flat, Wolstenholme).—Mr. R. Woodthorpe Browne, Parish Church, Cudham (Choral March on 'Ein fest' Burg,' Dudley Buck).—Miss Beatrice Thorne, Christ Church, Newgate Street (Variations on an original theme, E. H. Thorne).—Mr. Roger Ascham, Feather Market Hall, Port Elizabeth (In Memoriam recital, Sir John Stainer, which included the following compositions by the lamented musician: A Jubilant March, Præludium Pastorale, and On a Bass).—Mr. H. L. Balfour, St. Matthias', Richmond, Surrey (Introduction and Air with variations, Best).—Mr. Charles Stott, St. Andrew's, Oakenshaw-cum-Woodlands (Larghetto in F sharp minor, S. S. Wesley).—Mr. A. Alexander, St. John the Evangelist's, Edinburgh (Introduction, Air and Variations in F, F. E. Gladstone).—Dr. E. J. Bellerby, Holy Trinity, Margate (Triumph Song, on a Sarum Melody, Pearce).—Mr. C. H. Moody, Holy Trinity, Coventry.—Mr. B. Lofthouse, Hope Congregational Church, Wigan (Pastorale, Kullak).—Mr. Hallas, St. Michael's, Shelf (Andantino in D flat, Lemare).—Mr. Warren R. Hedden, St. John's, Waterbury, Connecticut (Grand Chœur in A, Salomé).—Mr. A. W. V. Vine, Tewkesbury Abbey (Rhapsodie, Op. 3, No. 7, Saint-Saëns).—Mr. A. Thompson, St. Paul's, Covent Garden.—Mr. M. B. Kidd, Forfar Parish Church (Three Pieces: The Question, The Answer, and Allegretto in A flat, Wolstenholme.)

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER AND CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Harry J. Allpress, St. Benet and All Saints' Church, Kentish Town.

Mr. Reginald Bartle, St. Mary's, Northampton.

Mr. Ernest Brentnall, St. Mary the Virgin, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Mr. Reginald Goss-Custard, St. John's Church, Deptford.

Mr. J. C. Long, St. James's Church, Marylebone.

Mr. Herbert D. Mackness, St. John's Church, Waterloo Road.

Mr. Samuel S. Page, Doune Parish Church, N.B.

Mr. Joseph Soar, All Saints' Collegiate Church, Derby.

Mr. C. W. Surridge, Old Ford Wesleyan Church.

Mr. Albert Thompson, Christ Church, Ealing.

Mr. Fred. Noakes (Bass), Canterbury Cathedral.

Mr. Horace Reid (Tenor), Parish Church, Birmingham.

A COMPLIMENTARY dinner to Dr. James Higgs, to celebrate the occasion of his receiving the honorary degree of Mus. Doc., was given at the Holborn Restaurant, on the 17th ult., when a gathering of some seventy ladies and gentlemen was presided over by Sir Frederick Bridge. The chairman made reference to many points of Dr. Higgs's career, dwelling specially upon his having been selected to fill the office of Dean of the Faculty of Music in the reorganised London University. A fitting crown to his life-work was found in this honour—'an honour,' said Sir Frederick, 'which has never been bestowed upon a man more worthy of it.' At the conclusion of Sir Frederick's speech he read an illuminated address, and presented Dr. Higgs with a cheque for £80. The amount was subscribed to by nearly every leading member of the musical profession, and was intended to defray the cost of a set of doctor's robes. Dr. Higgs, who then donned the robes, made a feeling and grateful reply.

A WONDERFUL ACHIEVEMENT.

(By our Special Correspondent in America.)

New York, June 10, 1901.

The alternation of opera seasons between Covent Garden and the Metropolitan Opera House must have taught my English readers long ago that New York's interest in music ceases about the time that London's becomes active. There was nothing worth while to report on a month ago and there would be little more now were it not for a little town in Pennsylvania, of which perhaps few Englishmen outside those interested in the manufacture of steel ever heard. This town, which rejoices in the name of Bethlehem (and has Nazareth and Emmaus as neighbours), accomplished a deed which deserves a lasting record in musical history. A year ago I mentioned a performance of Bach's Mass in B minor by the Bach Choir of Bethlehem. It was the first performance of the work in its entirety in the United States, and the comment which it caused stimulated the enthusiasm and ambition of the choir and its conductor in such a degree that a second festival was planned for this year at which the Mass was not only to be repeated in its integrity, but the 'Christmas Oratorio' and the 'Passion according to St. Matthew' were also to be performed without abridgment. This feat, which is quite without parallel so far as my knowledge goes, was accomplished in the three days from May 23 to 25. No conductor of a choral society in the country outside the little town of Bethlehem would have dreamed of attempting such an undertaking, but the conductor of the Bach Choir is an extraordinary man, and the conditions which enabled him to carry out his extraordinary project are absolutely unique. His name is J. Fred. Wolle. He is a native of Bethlehem, a most accomplished church musician, an excellent organist, a pupil of the Munich Hochschule für Musik, and a devoted disciple of the great Johann Sebastian.

The town of Bethlehem, small as it is, has a notable musical history, and the Bach festival was, in a sense, the outcome of a century and a half of a musical culture quite different from that prevailing in any other place on this continent. It was founded by some of the Moravians whom Oglethorpe brought to Georgia in the first half of the eighteenth century, but who sought new homes in the Lehigh Valley when an effort was made to compel them to take up arms against the Spaniards—warfare being contrary to their religious principles. Whitefield, John Wesley's coadjutor, had preceded them, and employed the first settlers in building his manor house, which still stands near the present town. Then Count Zinzendorf, who had provided the Moravians with their German home at Herrnhut, in Saxony, came and gave the little community a permanent establishment. On Christmas eve, 1741, he conducted religious services in the loghouse occupied by the community. Leading the way into the portion of this structure occupied by the cattle, he sang an old pietistic hymn, beginning—and then and there gave the name Bethlehem to the settlement.

> Nicht Jerusalem, sondern Bethlehem,
> Aus dem kommet, was uns frommet,

Those earnest Moravian settlers were not all cultured people, but they were under the guidance of cultured people who exercised a patriarchal influence and authority over them. They were no more pious and godfearing than the Puritans, but they brought different notions of religious worship with them, and prominent among these was a high appreciation of the beauty and efficacy of music as an agency of such worship. It seems extremely improbable that the Puritans brought a single instrument of music with them to America, but the colonists who came from Herrnhut, London, and other places to plant the Moravian Church in America must have done so; for though Bethlehem was founded in 1741, it is on record that viols of various kinds, French horns, and flutes were played in church two years later. As early as 1745 a custom was instituted, which still prevails and which added not a little to the beautiful solemnity that marked the recent festival. This custom is the use of trombones to make proclamations from the belfry of the church. Each concert was ushered in by the performance of chorals by a band of fifteen trombonists. It was real four-part trombone music, moreover, for the church trombonists at Bethlehem, whose duty it is to announce the deaths of members of the Moravian Unity and accompany the dead with solemn strains to the grave, use the full quartet of instruments—soprano, alto, tenor, and bass trombones. Nowhere in my musical pilgrimages, save in Bethlehem, have I found soprano trombones in use.

In 1744 a class of theological students who were learning the Indian language in order to prepare themselves for the chief duty to which the Moravian Church set itself at the outset—that of carrying the gospel to the heathen—formed a Collegium musicum on the lines of Collegia musica of the German universities; in 1746 came the first organ, and in 1756 Benjamin Franklin wrote to his wife that he had heard very fine music in the Moravian Church at Bethlehem, with flutes, oboes, French horns, and trumpets accompanying the organ. In 1780 Bethlehem already boasted an orchestra, and in 1795 a string quartet was organised for the special purpose of playing Haydn's music. There was, in fact, a direct connection between the great composer and the little band in the backwoods of America through one of the Bethlehem congregation. This was a wheelwright, named Antes, who went out from his American home as a missionary among the Turks in Egypt, was bastinadoed, composed string quartets while lying in prison recovering from his hurts, and made the acquaintance of Haydn, who is said to have interested himself in his music, in Vienna. It is very likely that Haydn gave such kindly recognition to Antes because he was a Moravian. Among the rarities of my library is a copy of the notebook kept by Haydn during his two visits to London. On one page I find a list of London's musicians, with an occasional memorandum made as a memory-help. After the name of La Trobe, Haydn wrote 'Moravian (Herrnhütter) dedicated his clavier sonatas to me.' The score of Haydn's 'Creation' was brought to Bethlehem, the parts copied, and a portion of the work performed in 1811.

But I must not continue the recital of Bethlehem's musical history, interesting and remarkable as it is. My purpose in the above narrative has been simply to explain the phenomenon of the Bach festival. It was not a Moravian affair, though it took place in the Moravian Church, of which Mr. Wolle is organist, as he is also of Lehigh University in South Bethlehem; but without such antecedents as I have hinted at, I cannot understand how a community could be found that would provide a choir of 110 amateur singers willing to meet for practice two, three, and finally four times a week, in order to sing the three masterpieces of Bach. It was a lovely tribute to the town's love of serious music, and a peculiarly eloquent testimonial of Mr. Wolle's knowledge, enthusiasm, tact, and popularity. But even now the credit account has not been fully stated, for there was a secondary choir of 100 boys, who sang the cantus firmus in the first chorus of the Passion with an effect the like of which I have never heard in this country or abroad, and the orchestra was largely composed of amateurs, professional musicians being employed only for the principal parts. Among them were two New York hautboyists, who played the oboi d'amore which Mr. Frank Damrosch had constructed for the performance of the Mass by the Oratorio Society a year ago. If the enthusiasm inspired by the festival continues, I shall hope to hear Bach's music performed at Bethlehem with all the archaic instruments for which Bach wrote.

In every respect the festival was a most memorable and delightful affair. Bethlehem became, for the nonce, a Bach Bayreuth. The town is one of idyllic beauty, and it was filled with enthusiasts. The meetings took place in the church to which the listeners, including a large number of musicians from far-away places, were summoned by the music of the trombone choir. Two concerts were given each day, the works being divided so that they could be heard in their integrity without weariness; and the chorales were sung by the congregation as well as the choir. The choir was letter-perfect in the music (so perfect, indeed, that for a time Mr. Wolle seriously thought of having the Mass sung without book), and the participation of the congregation in the chorales stimulated the interest marvellously. This device, which I had seen attempted in the performance of the 'Passion,' long years before, in Boston, but without success, was entirely successful in Bethlehem, where so many of the beautiful old Lutheran hymns were familiar as household words to a large element of the community. The enterprise was conducted with modesty and decorum, and its artistic significance was set down by the visiting critics from New York and Philadelphia in words of enthusiastic praise. Nothing finer has ever been done to develope a Bach cult in America.

H. E. KREHBIEL.

REVIEWS.

HARVEST ANTHEMS.

There shall be an heap of corn in the earth. By Cuthbert Harris.
Father of mercies, full of love. By John E. West.
I will give you rain in due season. By Herbert W. Wareing.
And the Lord said. By the Rev. T. W. Stephenson.
The earth is the Lord's. By J. Hopkins.
(Novello's Octavo Anthems.)
[Novello and Company, Limited.]

IT may be said that the various requirements of church choirs are all met in the above collection of harvest anthems. That by Dr. Cuthbert Harris provides short solos for soprano and tenor voices, and a section that could be sung as a quartet, in addition to stirring opening and closing choruses. Mr. West's anthem is eminently devotional in character, the text being a setting of the words forming Hymn No. 388 in 'Hymns Ancient and Modern.' The first six words are allied to a musical phrase which is used as a motto theme, and this, given out by a soprano soloist, imparts to the music artistic unity. The choral writing is simple, but so deftly designed that admirable variety and contrast are attained. The example by Dr. Wareing opens with a solo of some extent, suitable for tenor or soprano voice. The succeeding chorus is melodious and pastoral in character, and the anthem closes with the imposing hymn tune 'Nun danket alle Gott.' Mr. Stephenson's music makes small demands on the vocal and musical abilities of its exponents; but it is very bright and effective, and will doubtless be acceptable to many choirmasters. 'The earth is the Lord's,' composed by the late organist of Rochester Cathedral, and a brother of the late Dr. E. J. Hopkins, is a good example of English Church music. It commences with a solidly written chorus in four parts. This is succeeded by a bass solo, which leads into a section that would form an admirable quartet. The concluding chorus is flowing in character and contains some well designed contrapuntal passages.

EVENING SERVICES.

Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in E and F, by Edwin H. Lemare. In E, by Arthur Henry Brown. In C, by H. Walford Davies. In A, by George H. Westbury. In C, by J. Christopher Marks, Junr.
(Novello's Parish Choir Book.)
[Novello and Company, Limited.]

THE setting of the evening canticles in the key of E, by Mr. Lemare, is laid out for solo voices, chorus, orchestra, and organ, and possesses considerable musical importance. The Magnificat contains a tenor solo extending over thirty-four bars, and a 'verse' portion, the effectiveness of which would be increased if it were sung as a quartet. The choral writing demands a well-trained choir, and although the harmonic scheme is bold, no exceptional difficulties are presented, and, well rendered, the music would be very impressive. The other setting, in F, is, for the greater part, for voices in unison, supported by an effective organ accompaniment, but sundry transitions into vocal harmony are deftly managed, and produce excellent effects. Choirs stronger in men than in boys will find this service admirably suited to their means.

Mr. Brown's music is stated to be 'for use on festival days,' but it is by no means of an elaborate description, practically consisting of a series of richly harmonised chants. Dr. Walford Davies has written at some length, his music covering sixteen octavo pages. The composition includes short solo passages for soprano and tenor, and some of the entrances of the voices demand precision of attack, but the intervals will not be found difficult to read by average choristers. The work is most suitable to large choirs. Mr. Westbury writes with a keen sense of effect, especially with regard to the organ part, which, without being at all difficult or disturbing to the voices, greatly enhances the interest of the music. The example under notice is an excellent specimen of his talent and skill. The setting by Mr. Marks, Junr., is bright and melodious, and will be found admirably suited to choirs of limited means.

VIOLIN MUSIC.

Ballade for Violin and Pianoforte. By W. Handel Thorley. [Novello and Company, Limited.]

A PIECE of some merit. The middle section is strongly suggestive of the influence of Brahms. There are beautiful points in it, but the interest is not well maintained.

Arioso für Violine und Clavier. Componirt von J. D. Dabis. [Amsterdam: De Nieuwe Muzickhandel.]

A CLEVERLY written and effective solo piece.

Irish Romance for Violin and Pianoforte. By Ralph H. Bellairs. [Alfred Lengnick.]

AN Irish Rhapsody on two tunes, a lovely minor melody and a jig that will make an Irishman foot it at a pretty pace; these are skilfully wrought, and the whole is a stirring piece that will find many admirers.

Böhmishe Tänze und Weisen für Violine mit Begleitung des Pianoforte. Op. 10. Four books. By Otakar Sevcik. [Leipzig: Gebrüder Hug and Co.]

ONLY a violinist of the first rank could hope to deal with these exceedingly difficult works in public. They are dedicated to his pupil Jan Kubelik, who will doubtless include some of them in the répertoire of his recitals.

Bridal Song. Words by Shakespeare and Graceful Dance. Pianoforte Solo. By Paul A. Rubens.
[Metzler and Co.]

THE above music has acquired some distinction by being heard in Mr. Beerbohm Tree's recent production of Shakespeare's 'Twelfth Night' at Her Majesty's Theatre. The song and the dance are both very simple, but they possess melodic charm and, moreover, they are neatly written.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

DR. COWEN'S Symphony, No. 6, in E ('The Idyllic'), was the chief feature in the programme of the fifth concert, on May 23. The work, originally produced at a Richter concert in 1897, was then noticed in these columns, and we have only to add that under the composer's direction it was ably performed and well received. A new song cycle by Mr. Landon Ronald pleased greatly; the music is melodious and the scoring effective; the various numbers (Daybreak, Morning, Evening, and Night) follow one another without break, or, we should rather say, are connected by means of short interludes having thematic significance. Herr Jan Kubelik displayed his fine technique in Paganini's Concerto in D, but afterwards he showed by his interpretation of Bach's 'Chaconne' that he aspires to higher things.

At the sixth concert, on the 6th ult., Madame Carreño played Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto, and her rendering of this romantic work was excellent; she entered thoroughly into the spirit of the music—music which counts for little unless technical skill is allied with sympathetic feeling. The Hearken unto this.

EASY HARVEST ANTHEM.

Job xxxvii. 14; Ps. lxv. 6, 7, 9, Paraphrased; and two verses of a Hymn by Margaret Ann Headlam.

Composed by H. Elliot Button.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; and NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., New York.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

Tempo 1mo.
sid - er the won-drous works of God.
sid - er the won-drous works of God.
poco accel.
f sid - er the won-drous works of God. Who by His strength setteth fast the poco accel.
f sid - er the won-drous works of God. Who by His strength setteth fast the Tempo 1mo. ♩ = 84.
Sw.
mp
poco accel.
Full Sw. Gt. mountains, Who by His strength setteth fast the mountains; Who stilleth the roar - ing of the mountains, Who by His strength setteth fast the mountains; Who stilleth the roar - ing of the Sw.
Gt.
Sw.
Poco lento.
pp
Stand still, stand
pp
Stand still, stand
rall.
pp seas, and the roar - ing of their waves. Stand still, stand rall.
pp seas, and the roar - ing of their waves. Stand still, stand Poco lento. ♩ = 76.
rall.
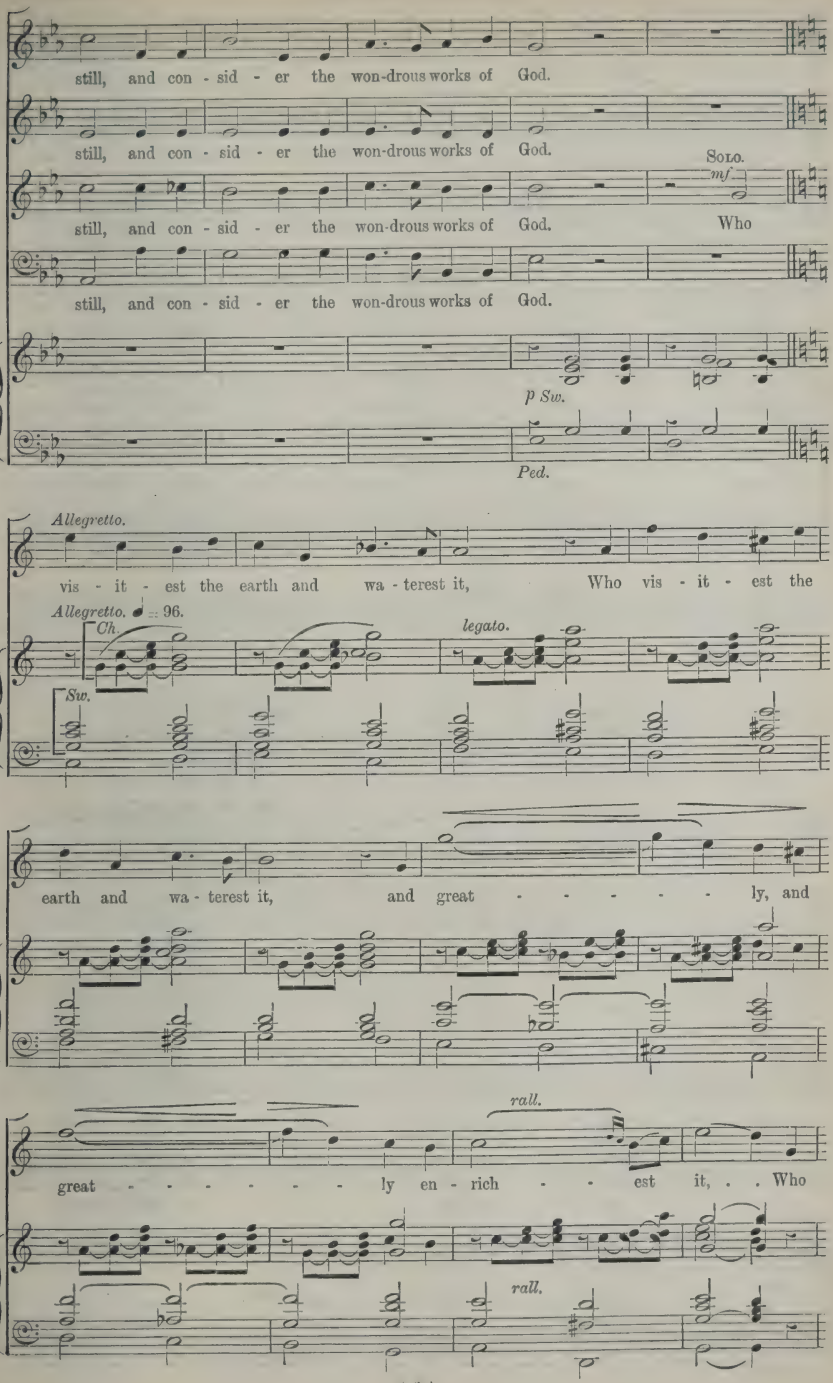
dim.
p



still, and con - sid - er the won-drous works of God.
still, and con - sid - er the won-drous works of God.
Solo.
mf still, and con - sid - er the won-drous works of God. Who still, and con - sid - er the won-drous works of God.
p Sw.
Ped.
Allegretto.
vis - it - est the earth and wa - terest it, Who vis - it - est the Allegretto. ♩ = 96.
Ch.
legato.
Sw.
earth and wa - terest it, and great - - - - - ly, and
rall.
great - - - - - - - ly en - rich - - est it, . . Who rall.

Soprano Solo.
a tempo. Who vis - it - est the earth, Who vis - it - est the Tenor Solo.
vis - it - est the earth, Who vis - it - est the earth and Full.
pp
Stand . . still, stand . . still, and con -
Stand . . still, . . stand . . still, and con -
Stand still, . . stand still, and con -
Stand . . still, . . stand . . still, and con -
Org. ad lib.
pp a tempo.
senza Ped.
cres - - - cen - - - do . . . molto.
earth and wa - terest it, and great - ly en - rich - est it, and great - ly en - wa - terest it, and great - ly en - rich - est it, and great - ly en -
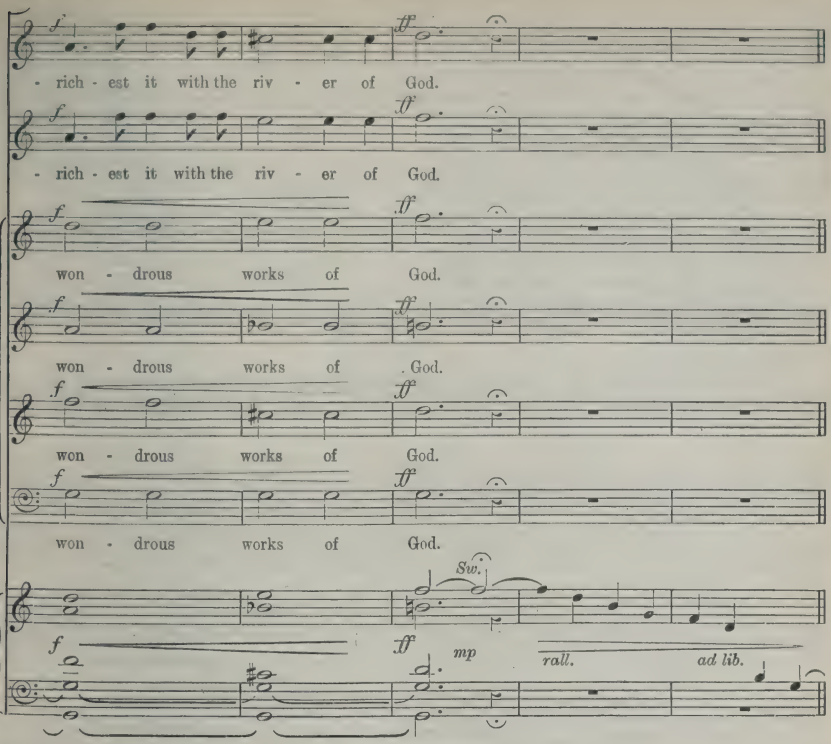
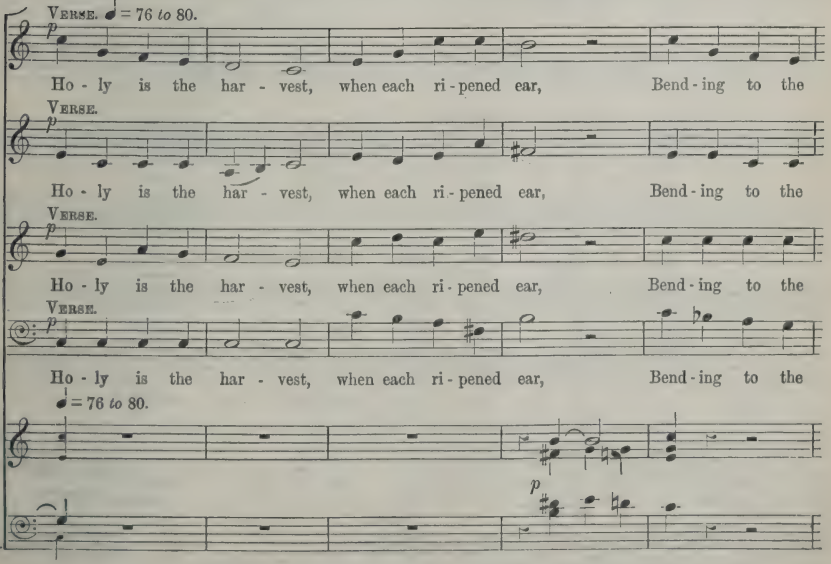
- sid - - - er, con - sid - - - er the won - drous,
- sid - - - er, con - sid - - - er the won - drous,
- sid - - - er, con - sid - - - er the won - drous,
- sid - - - er, con - sid - - - er the won - drous,
Ped.



- rich - est it with the riv - er of God.
- rich - est it with the riv - er of God.
won - drous works of God.
won - drous works of God.
won - drous works of God.
won - drous works of God.
Sw.
mp
rall.
ad lib.



Verse. ♩ = 76 to 80.
Ho - ly is the har - vest, when each ri - pened ear, Bend - ing to the Verse.
Ho - ly is the har - vest, when each ri - pened ear, Bend - ing to the Verse.
Ho - ly is the har - vest, when each ri - pened ear, Bend - ing to the Verse.
Ho - ly is the har - vest, when each ri - pened ear, Bend - ing to the ♩ = 76 to 80.

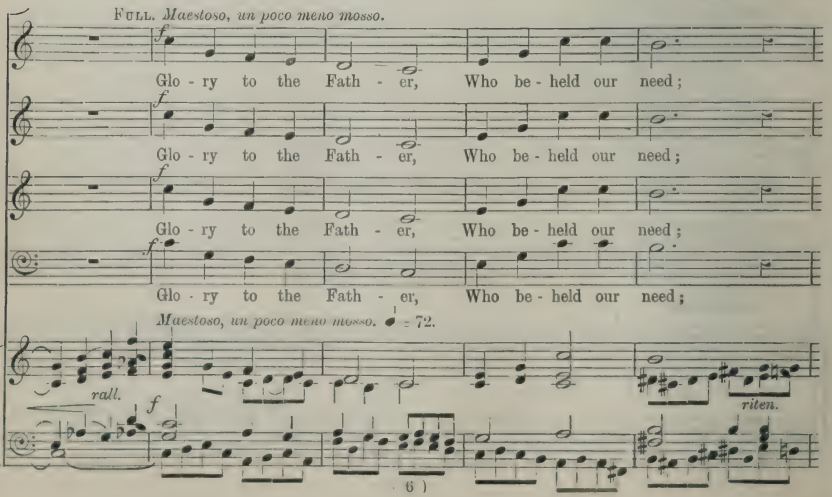
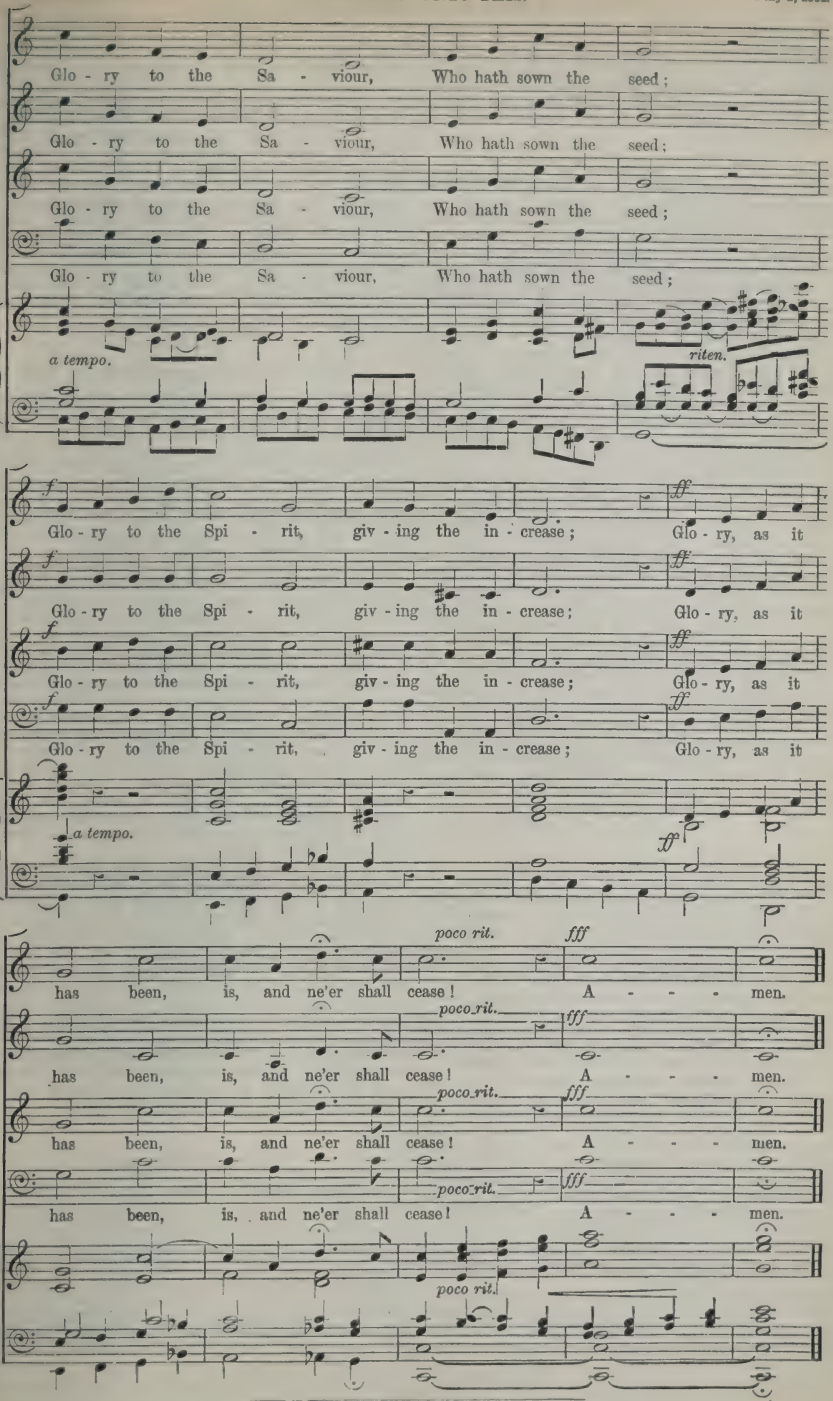
sick - le, crowns the gold - en year. Store them in our gar - ners:
sick - le, crowns the gold - en year. Store them in our gar - ners:
sick - le, crowns the gold - en year. Store them in our gar - ners:
sick - le, crowns the gold - en year. Store them in our gar - ners:
win- now them with care: Give to God the glo - ry in our praise and prayer.
win-now them with care: Give to God the glo - ry in our praise and prayer.
win-now them with care: Give to God the glo - ry in our praise and prayer.
win-now them with care: Give to God the glo - ry in our praise and prayer.
rall.
a tempo.
Ped.



Full. Maestoso, un poco meno mosso.
Glo - ry to the Fath - er, Who be - held our need;
Glo - ry to the Fath - er, Who be - held our need;
Glo - ry to the Fath - er, Who be - held our need;
Glo - ry to the Fath - er, Who be - held our need;
Maestoso, un poco meno mosso. ♩ = 72.
rall.
riten.



Glo - ry to the Sa - viour, Who hath sown the seed;
Glo - ry to the Sa - viour, Who hath sown the seed;
Glo - ry to the Sa - viour, Who hath sown the seed;
Glo - ry to the Sa - viour, Who hath sown the seed;
a tempo.
riten.
Glo - ry to the Spi - rit, giv - ing the in - crease; Glo - ry, as it
Glo - ry to the Spi - rit, giv - ing the in - crease; Glo - ry, as it
Glo - ry to the Spi - rit, giv - ing the in - crease; Glo - ry, as it
Glo - ry to the Spi - rit, giv - ing the in - crease; Glo - ry, as it
a tempo.
poco rit.
has been, is, and ne'er shall cease! A - - - men.
has been, is, and ne'er shall cease! A - - - men.
has been, is, and ne'er shall cease! A - - - men.
has been, is, and ne'er shall cease! A - - - men.
poco rit.

programme included Tschaïkowsky's interesting Overture 'Romeo and Juliet' and Dvorák's 'From the New World' Symphony. Madame Nevada was announced to sing; at short notice, however, Madame Marchesi appeared in her place, winning much favour by her forcible delivery of 'Divinités du Styx.'

DR. ELGAR'S NEW OVERTURE.

At the seventh and last concert, on June 20, was produced a new Overture, 'Cockaigne' ('In London Town'), from the pen of Dr. Edward Elgar, a composer from whom, after his Orchestral Variations and his 'Dream of Gerontius,' great things are naturally expected. One hearing of this 'Cockaigne' Overture is not sufficient for its due appreciation, but throughout one feels it to be the work of a composer of strong feeling and of rare power in expressing his thoughts. There is vigorous, healthy life in the music, though so full of interesting details of workmanship that it cannot be summed up in haste. The overture has not only a title, but also a programme, and we would frankly acknowledge that, however much it may add to the meaning of the score, the attempt to follow it while listening to the music proved somewhat arduous. The story, or 'argument,' is so intimately connected with the varying moods of the music, that it seemed unfair to try to judge the latter merely from a purely abstract point of view. For the moment, then, let us record the fact that in 'Cockaigne' we have a work of high purpose and of high merit, and one which ought soon to be heard again. It was brilliantly performed under the composer's direction, and if the audience could have had its own way the overture would have been repeated. Mr. Leopold Godowsky played the pianoforte part of Brahms's Concerto in D minor (Op. 15). The performance, as regards technique and taste, was admirable, albeit we should have liked a more intense reading of the first and last movements. Miss Maud Powell was heard to advantage in Tschaïkowsky's Violin Concerto in D. She plays with vigour and with feeling, and her brilliant execution won for her much applause. It was, however, in the expressive Canzonetta that she satisfied us best. Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony, with which the programme opened, was thoroughly well rendered; yet we think that the Andante would have gained by being taken one shade faster—it is marked con moto. Miss Lydia Nervil sang songs by Mozart and Massenet, and was much applauded. All the concerts have taken place at Queen's Hall.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

In the presence of the Duke of Cambridge and a large audience the inauguration of the new Concert Hall attached to this Institution took place on the 13th ult. The hall is built from designs by Mr. Sidney Smith, and will seat an audience of about 900 persons, while the platform will accommodate 230 performers. There is no decoration at present, the room being simply white throughout. Thanks to the generosity of Sir Hubert Parry, the hall is already provided with a three-manual organ, built by Messrs. J. W. Walker and Sons, the specification of which we give in our Church and Organ Music section.

The excellent acoustic properties of the new concert hall were fully demonstrated at the opening concert, when an exceptionally interesting programme was provided. It included Gibbons's noble anthem 'Hosanna,' sung under the direction of Sir Walter Parratt; the tenor song, 'Onaway! Awake, beloved!' from Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha,' sung by Mr. Harold White; the Overture to 'Die Meistersinger'; Saint-Saëns's Rondo Capriccioso for violin, played by Mr. Haydn Wood; the slow movement and Finale from Tschaïkowsky's Pianoforte Concerto in B flat minor, played by Miss Ethel Wilson; and last, but by no means least, a new Ode, composed specially for the occasion by Sir Hubert Parry.

The fine poem, 'Ode to Music,' is written by Mr. Arthur C. Benson. In the first stanza music is declared to be the earliest and the latest dream of the 'Soul of the World'; in the second the poet tells of voices of birds, of the sea's 'monotonous undertone' of moaning winds—'songs of earth,' to quote his words, 'in artless disarray'; in the third of the 'ampler message of the soul' which has come with the march of years; and, finally, the wish is expressed that the newly built temple may be the abiding-place of the best music. From this brief summary of the poem it will be seen how well it is fitted to inspire a composer. Sir Hubert Parry's music reflects admirably the spirit of the words, and, notwithstanding its outward simplicity, it shows the hand of a master. The second and third sections offer opportunities for some realistic touches, but they are not in any way forced, and are therefore effective. The final chorus lacks neither breadth nor dignity: it includes a soprano solo, excellently sung by Miss Gleeson White, and a quintet, in which Miss Esmé Atherden, Miss Bingham Hall, and Messrs. Walter Hyde and Samuel Epstein were associated with the first-named vocalist. The composer conducted, and the Ode was enthusiastically received. The remainder of the concert was directed by Professor Stanford.

PURCELL'S 'FAIRY QUEEN' MUSIC.

Reference was made last month in these columns to the music written by Purcell for an anonymous adaptation of Shakespeare's 'Midsummer Night's Dream.' Many numbers from the score were performed on Saturday afternoon, the 15th ult., at St. George's Hall, under the direction of Mr. J. S. Shedlock. The music had been judiciously selected from all the acts of the piece so as to give a fair idea of the whole, and it was received in a manner that testifies eloquently to the increasing estimation in which Purcell is held by all musicians.

The 'Fairy Queen' score was lost in 1700, five years after the composer's death, but after two centuries it has, as already stated in these columns, been found. The programme of the concert had been arranged before this important discovery was made; nevertheless, several numbers, hitherto completely unknown, were added to it—viz., 'See even Night,' a fine soprano song with accompaniment of three muted strings, a characteristic baritone solo and chorus, 'Hush, no more,' a bold 'Dance for the Green Men,' and a quaint 'Dance of Haymakers.' Of the remaining numbers of the programme we would single out for special mention two duets for soprano and baritone, a bright chorus, 'May the God of Wit,' with echo effects, the dignified 'Winter' song, a brilliant soprano solo, 'Hark! the ecch'ing air,' and a stately 'Symphony.' The music originally produced in 1692, three years before Purcell's death, certainly ranks amongst his finest efforts.

The music on this occasion was given in concert form, and was interspersed with judicious explanatory comments by Mr. E. F. Jacques, who indicated the connection of the music with the scenes. The solos were undertaken by Miss Evangeline Florence, Mr. John Strafford, and Mr. Denis O'Sullivan—the first and last-named singing with admirable effect—and the choruses were sung by a choir composed principally of members of the Purcell Operatic Society. The orchestra (led by Mr. Sigmund Beel) was excellent. It included two 'Bach' trumpets, two oboes, and a harpsichord, the last-named was ably played by Mrs. Dolmetsch and occasionally by the conductor, Mr. Shedlock, to whom every credit should be given for affording an opportunity of hearing this fine example of the great English composer's work.

THE ROYAL OPERA.

PROFESSOR STANFORD'S 'MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.'

The chief event, so far, of the present season has been the production of Professor Stanford's new opera, which was given in English, mirabile dictu, for the first time on May 30. From the days of Mozart and Gluck onwards, composers have found it extremely difficult to meet with a libretto to their taste. After Beethoven had written his 'Fidelio' he never made a second attempt, although many a text-book was offered to him. Mendelssohn, again, was always trying to secure a satisfactory libretto, yet did not succeed. Wagner, of course, stands at the head of the non-contents; but he took the bull by the horns and wrote his own texts. Professor Stanford has not been so

No. 540. HYMN—The Joy of Harvest.—J. H. Maunder. Price 2d.

NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK.

Te Deum Laudamus.

288. ADLAM, FRANK, in E flat .. .. 4d.
5. ALLEN, G., in D .. .. .. 3d.
230. AMBROSIAN TE DEUM .. .. 3d.
14. ARMES, PHILIP, in G .. .. 3d.
16. ARNOLD, G. B., in C .. .. 3d.
411. ATTWATER, J. P., in B flat .. 4d.
163. BAKER, A. S., in C .. .. .. 4d.
3. *BARNBY, J., in D (Unison) .. .. 3d.
4. *BARNBY, J., in B flat (Do.) .. .. 3d.
Do. Voice part only, octavo post 1½d.
523. BARNBY, J. (Chant form, with other Canticles) .. .. 4d.
35. BARRETT, E. R., in E flat .. .. 3d.
443. BARTHOLOMEW, Mrs. MOUNSEY (nine Chants) .. .. .. 3d.
18. BEST, W. T., in C .. .. .. 3d.
346. BREWER, A. H., in B flat .. .. 3d.
145. BROWN, A. H., in A .. .. .. 3d.
9. CALKIN, J. B., in D .. .. .. 3d.
38. CARNALL, ARTHUR .. .. .. 3d.
30. CHIPP, E. T., in D (Unison) .. 3d.
308. CHIPP, E. T., in D .. .. .. 3d.
311. CHIPP, E. T., in E flat .. .. 3d.
312. CHIPP, E. T., in C .. .. .. 3d.
12. CLARKE, J. HAMILTON, in F .. 3d.
476. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S., in F .. 4d.
26. *DYKES, Rev. J. B., M.A., in F .. 3d.
31. ELLIOTT, J. W., in F .. .. 3d.
49. ELLIOTT, J. W., in D .. .. 3d.
158. FIELD, J. T., in F (Chant, E. J. Hopkins) .. .. 3d.
408. FIELD, J. T., in A (Chant Form, with Benedictus, in D) .. .. 4d.
40. FISHER, ARTHUR E., in D .. .. 3d.
63. FISHER, ARTHUR E., in A .. .. 4d.
472. FORD, E., in F (with Jubilate) .. 6d.
392. FOSTER, M. B., in C .. .. 4d.
36. GADSBY, H., in E flat .. .. 3d.
207. GALE, C. R., in F .. .. .. 4d.
6. *GARRETT, G. M., in F .. .. 3d.
516. GAUNTLETT, H. J., in G (Chant, arranged by J. T. Field) .. 3d.
439. GERMAN, J. E., in F.. .. .. 1s.
246. GOSS, Sir J., in C (Chant) .. .. 2d.
248. GOSS, Sir J., in F .. .. .. 3d.
249. GOSS, Sir J., in D .. .. .. 3d.
267. GOSS, Sir J., in A .. .. .. 4d.
274. GOSS, Sir J., in A (Four voices) .. 4d.
340. GOSS, Sir J. (Thanksgiving) .. 6d.
10. HAKING, R., in C (Chant form) .. 3d.
504. HALL, E. VINE, in D .. .. 3d.
147. HAMILTON-GELL, Rev. A. W., in G (Chant form) .. .. .. 1½d.
22. HERBERT, E., in D .. .. .. 3d.
15. *HOPKINS, J. L., in G .. .. .. 3d.
378. HUNTLEY, G. F., in E flat .. .. 4d.
44. HUTCHINSON, T., in E flat.. .. 3d.
29 IRONS, H. S., in G .. .. .. 3d.
Do. Voice part only, octavo post 1½d.
380. JORDAN, C. W. (Gregorian Tone).. 3d.
131. LANE, E. BURRITT, in F .. .. 3d.
447. LEMARE, E. H., in F .. .. 4d.
449. LEMARE, E. H., in E flat .. .. 6d.
456. LITTLETON, A. H., in D (Chant form, with Benedictus) .. .. 3d.
27. LITTLETON, ALFRED H., in E flat 3d.
151. LUTKIN, P. C., in C .. .. .. 4d.
8. MACFARREN, G. A., in G (Unison) 3d.
17. MACFARREN, WALTER, in C .. 3d.
228. MACPHERSON, CHARLES, in F .. 4d.
164. MACPHERSON, G. W. (Chant form) 1½d.
153. MACPHERSON, STEWART, in E flat 4d.
83. *MARCHANT, ARTHUR W., in E flat 3d.
362. MARTIN, G. C., in A.. .. .. 6d.
39. MILLER, C. E., in D.. .. .. 3d.
7. *MONK, E. G., in A (Unison) .. 3d.
262. MONK, M. J., in G .. .. .. 4d.
13. MONK, W. H., in A .. .. .. 3d.
34. MORLEY, T., in F .. .. .. 3d.
437. NAYLOR, E. W., in E flat .. .. 3d.
25. NUNN, J. H., in F .. .. .. 3d.
11. OUSELEY, Rev. Sir F., in F .. 3d.
119. *OUSELEY, Rev. Sir F., in D (Chant Service) .. .. 3d.
231. PETTMAN, EDGAR, No. 1 (Chant).. 1½d.
238. PETTMAN, EDGAR, No. 2 (Chant).. 1½d.
42. PRATTEN, WILLIAM SIDNEY, in E 3d.
33. REAY, S., in F.. .. .. .. 3d.
28. REDHEAD, R., in D .. .. .. 3d.
104. ROBERTS, J. V., in F (Chant form) 1½d.
106. ROBERTS, J. V., in C (Chant form) 1½d.
107. ROBERTS, J. V., in G (Chant form) 1½d.
105. ROBERTS, J. V., in D (Chant form) 1½d.
497. SELBY, in D (Unison) .. .. 3d.
409. SHAW, J., in G .. .. .. 3d.
32. *SMART, H., in F .. .. .. 3d.
88. *SMITH, BOYTON, in F (Chant form) 1½d.
188. SMITH, BOYTON, in E flat (with Benedictus, Sanctus, and Kyrie) .. 3d.
375. SMITH, BOYTON, in E flat .. .. 4d.
388. SOMERVELL, A., in F .. .. 3d.
19. *STAINER, J., in C .. .. .. 3d.
136. STAINER, J., in G (Congregational) 3d.
413. STAINER, J., in A flat (Chant form) 3d.
237. STAINER, J. (1st Series, Greg. Tones) 2d.
255. STAINER, J. (4th Series, Greg. Tones) 3d.
282. STAINER, J. (3rd Series, Greg. Tones) 3d.
300. STAINER, J. (2nd Series, Greg. Tones) 3d.
273. STEANE, BRUCE, in F .. .. .. 3d.
1. STEGGALL, C., in A .. .. .. 3d.
24. STEPHENS, C. E., in C .. .. 3d.
21. STEWART, R. P., in G .. .. 3d.
2. *SULLIVAN, ARTHUR, in D .. .. 3d.
86. SUMNER, H. J. H., in E flat .. 3d.
20. THORNE, E. H., in C .. .. 3d.
474. THORNE, E. H., in G (with Jubilate) 6d.
23. TILLEARD, J., in F .. .. .. 3d.
73. TILLEARD, J., in G (Festival) .. 3d.
66. TOOP, AUG., in D .. .. .. 4d.
144. TOZER, FERRIS, in D .. .. 3d.
41. TRIMNELL, T. TALLIS, in D .. 3d.
294. TURLE, JAMES (Chant form) .. 1½d.
51. VINCENT, C., in D .. .. .. 3d.
109 WALMISLEY, T. F., in C .. .. 3d.
45. WESTBURY, G. H., in A .. .. 3d.
43. WEST, JOHN E., in B flat .. .. 3d.
70. WEST, JOHN E., in G .. .. 3d.
37. WOODWARD, Rev. H. H., in E flat 3d.

Benedicite, omnia opera.

501. BAINSTOW, E. C., in E flat .. 3d.
427. BENNETT, GEORGE J., in D .. 3d.
61. BENNETT, GEORGE J., in E flat .. 1½d.
62. BENNETT, GEORGE J., in G .. 1½d.
101. *BEST, W. T. .. .. 3d.
102. BLAIR, HUGH .. .. 1½d.
425. CHAMPNEYS, DE LACY, GIBBS, and STAINER .. .. 1½d.
205. ELLIOTT, J. W. .. .. .. 2d.
374. ELLIOTT, J. W., in G .. .. 4d.
499. ELLIOTT, R. B., in G .. .. 1½d.
343. ELLIOTT, M. B., in G .. .. 1½d.
65. EYRE, A. J. (No. 2), in F .. .. 1½d.
371. EYRE, A. J., in E flat (with a Quadruple Chant in D, for Te Deum) 2d.
328. FOSTER, M. B., in F (Chant form) 4d.
58. FROST, PERCY H., in D .. .. 2d.
93. GADSBY, HENRY, in G (Chant form) 1½d.
488. GALE, CLEMENT R., in D .. .. 1½d.
55. GLADSTONE, F. E. (Chant form) .. 3d.
67. GLADSTONE, F. E., in G (Unison) 1½d.
428. GODFREY, A. E., in C .. .. 3d.
493. GODFREY, A. E. (No. 2), in G .. 3d.
423. H. B. C. .. .. 1½d.
196. HERVEY, F. A. J., in A flat .. 1½d.
103. HUGHES, W. .. .. 1½d.
422. ILIFFE, F. .. .. 1½d.
429. LEMARE, E. H., in B flat .. .. 3d.
426. LLOYD, C. H., in E flat (Chant form) .. .. 2d.
96. MARTIN, GEORGE C., in F .. .. 4d.
98. MARTIN, GEORGE C., in G .. .. 4d.
100. MARTIN, GEORGE C., in E flat .. 4d.
210. MATTHEWS, T. R., in E flat .. 1½d.
421. MILLER, C. E. (No. 2) (Chant form) 2d.
225. PETTMAN, EDGAR. No. 1 in C; No. 2 in E flat .. .. .. 2d.
232. PETTMAN, EDGAR, in E flat .. 1½d.
157. ROBERTS, J. V., in B flat .. .. 4d.
74 SMITH, BOYTON, in A flat .. .. 1½d.
420. SMITH, C. W., in C (arranged for 5 or 4 voices) .. .. 6d.
195. STAINER, J., in D .. .. .. 1½d.
301. STAINER & BLAXLAND (Chant form) 1½d.
134. STAINER, WINN, and WALKER .. 1½d.
500. STEWART, C. HYLTON, in C .. 3d.
94. TURLE, HAYES, and BRIDGE, in A 1½d.
199. WEST, J. E., in C .. .. .. 1½d.
85. WOOD, W. G., in D .. .. .. 3d.
387. WRIGLEY, G. F. (Quadruple Chant) 1½d.

Benedictus.

288. ADLAM, FRANK, in E flat (with Te Deum) .. .. 4d.
523. BARNBY, J. (Chant, with other Canticles) .. .. 4d.
146. BROWN, A. H., in A .. .. 3d.
309. CHIPP, E. T., in D .. .. .. 2d.
417. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S., in F .. 4d.
56. ELLIOTT, J. W., in D .. .. 3d.
159. FIELD, J. T., in A (Chant, G. Holden) 1½d.
408. FIELD, J. T., in D (Chant form, with Te Deum, in A) .. .. 4d.
244 GOSS, Sir J., in A .. .. .. 2d.
247. GOSS, Sir J., in C (Chant) .. .. 2d.
254. GOSS, Sir J., in A (Four voices) .. 3d.
317. GOSS, Sir J., in D .. .. .. 3d.
442. HERBERT, E., in D (Chant form) .. 3d.
48. HUTCHINSON, THOMAS, in E flat 3d.
517. JACOBS, W., in A (Chant) .. .. 1½d.
382. JORDAN, J. W. (founded on the 8th Tone) .. .. 1½d.
432. LEMARE, E. H., in F .. .. 4d.
456. LITTLETON, A. H., in D (Chant form, with Te Deum) .. .. 3d.
154. MACPHERSON, STEWART (with Kyrie), in E flat .. .. .. 4d.
84. MARCHANT, ARTHUR W., in E flat 3d.
373. MARTIN, G. C., in A .. .. 4d.
121. READ, F. J., in D .. .. .. 1½d.
122. ROBERTS, J. V., in F (Chant form) 1½d.
123. ROBERTS, J. V., in D (Chant form) 1½d.
124. ROBERTS, J. V., in C (Chant form) 1½d.
125. ROBERTS, J. V., in G (Chant form) 1½d.
188. SMITH, BOYTON, in E flat (with Te Deum, Sanctus, and Kyrie) .. 3d.
216. STAINER, J. (1st Series, Greg. Canticles, 3rd Tone) .. .. .. 2d.
219. STAINER, J. (2nd Series, Greg. Canticles, 6th Tone) .. .. .. 2d.
307. STAINER, J. (3rd Series, Greg. Canticles) .. .. 2d.
337. STAINER, J. (4th Series, Greg. Tones) 2d.
297. STEANE, BRUCE, in F .. .. 3d.
322. TURLE, J., in D (Chant) .. .. 2d.
528. WEST, JOHN E., in E .. .. 4d.
468. WESTBURY, G. H., in A .. .. 3d.

(For continuation see other list.)

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

The Joy of Harvest

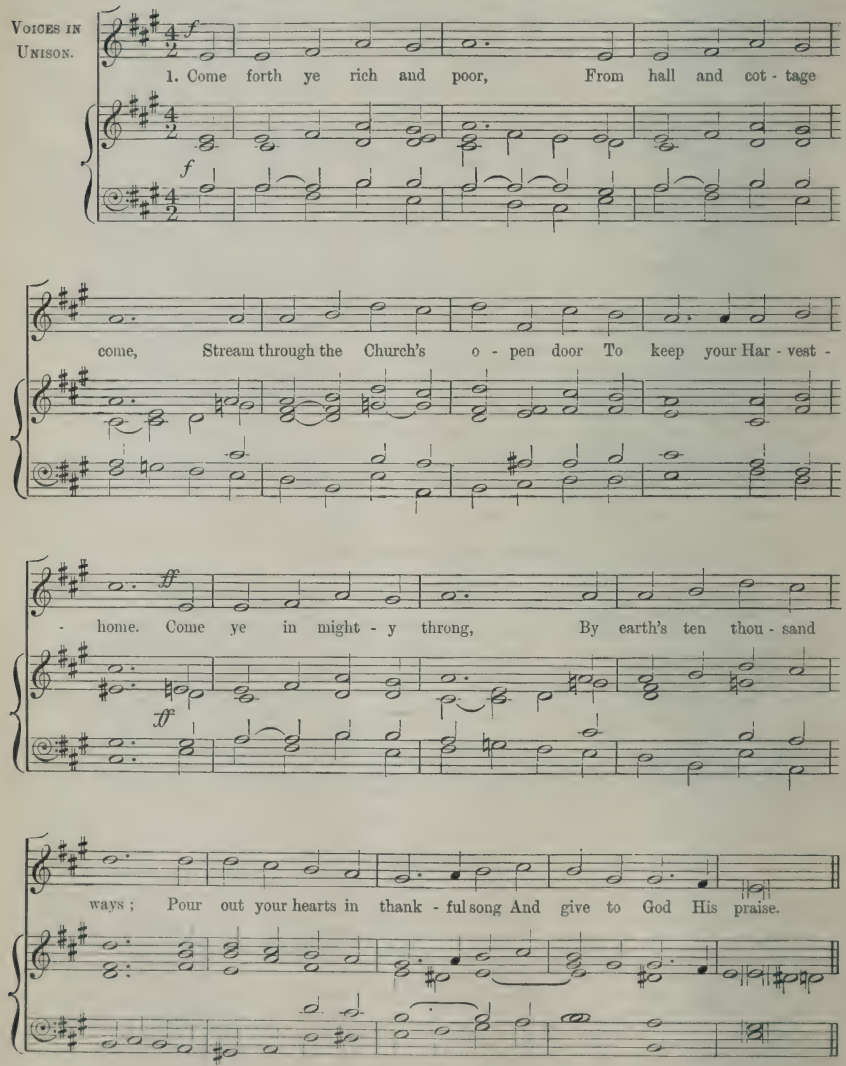
A HYMN OF THANKSGIVING

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY THE REV. W. H. DRAPER

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

J. H. MAUNDER.

"He giveth food to all flesh, for His mercy endureth for ever."



Voices in Unison.
1. Come forth ye rich and poor, From hall and cot - tage come, Stream through the Church's o - pen door To keep your Har - vest -
- home. Come ye in might - y throng, By earth's ten thou - sand ways; Pour out your hearts in thank - ful song And give to God His praise.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

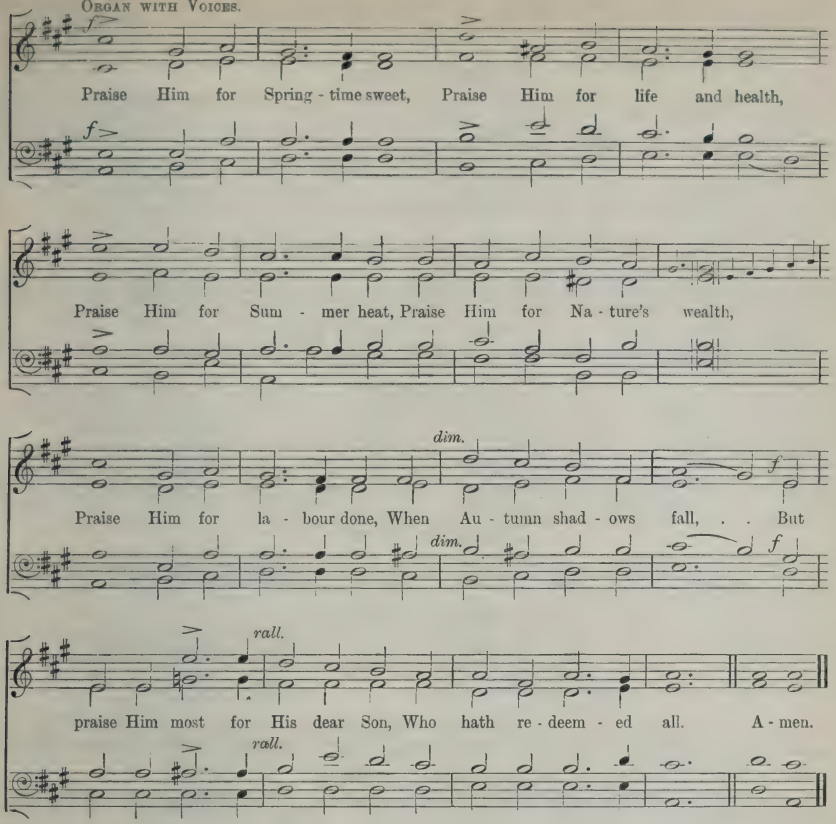
VOICES IN HARMONY.
ORGAN WITH VOICES.



Praise Him for Spring - time sweet, Praise Him for life and health, Praise Him for Sum - mer heat, Praise Him for Na - ture's wealth,
dim.
Praise Him for la - bour done, When Au - tumn shad - ows fall, . . But dim.
rall.
praise Him most for His dear Son, Who hath re - deem - ed all. A - men.
rall.

2.

(S.A. Unison.) mf His are the vine-clad hills,
The countries of the East,
And His the radiant South that fills
With fruit the joyous feast,
(T.B. Unison.) And His the frozen North,
The treasures of the snow,
cres. His Spirit calls the West wind forth
That makes the waters flow.
(Harmony). ff Praise Him, &c.

3.

(T.B. Unison.) mf The Day and Night are His,
And His the Sun and Moon,
dim. The heavenly midnight silences, cres. The splendour of the noon;
(S.A. Unison.) And riches from the mine,
dim. And birds that wing the air, cres. The corn that makes the earth to shine,
dim. The flowers that makes it fair.
(Harmony). ff Praise Him, &c.

4.

(Full Unison.) f Let children sing their praise,
Young men and maidens too, ff Yea, all one hymn of gladness raise,
As to our God is due.
mf He gives the daily bread
Of body and of soul,
cres. The life that raises from the dead,
The grace that makes us whole.
(Harmony). ff Praise Him, &c. Amen.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1208, price 1*d*. Words only, price 2*s*. 6*d*. per hundred.

Jubilate Deo.

441. ARNOLD, G. B., in C .. .. 1½d.
523. BARNBY, J. (Chant, with other Canticles) .. .. .. 4d.
347. BREWER, A. H., in B flat .. .. 1½d.
310. CHIPP, E. T., in E flat .. .. 2d.
313. CHIPP, E. T., in C .. .. .. 2d.
418. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S., in F .. 3d.
50. ELLIOTT, J. W., in D .. .. 3d.
472. FORD, E., in F (with Te Deum) .. 6d.
393. FOSTER, M. B., in C .. .. 3d.
208. GALE, C. R., in F .. .. .. 3d.
245. GOSS, Sir J., in A (Unison) .. 2d.
275. GOSS, Sir J., in A .. .. .. 2d.
75. HAMILTON-GELL, Rev. A. W., in E flat .. .. 1½d.
148. HAMILTON-GELL, Rev. A.W., in G (Chant form) .. .. .. 1½d.
509. MACFARREN, W., in C (with Kyrie and Sanctus) .. .. .. 2d.
229. MACPHERSON, C., in F .. .. 3d.
444. MATTHEWS, T. R., in C .. .. 3d.
410. SHAW, J., in G 1½d
389. SOMERVELL, A., in F .. .. 3d.
308. STEANE, BRUCE, in F .. .. 3d.
69. SULLIVAN, ARTHUR, in D (with Kyrie) .. .. 3d.
474. THORNE, E. H., in G (with Te Deum) 6d.
460. TILLEARD, J., in F with Kyrie) .. 3d.
295. TURLE, JAMES (Chant form, with Kyrie) .. .. .. 1½d.
120. WALMISLEY, T. F., in C .. .. 3d.

The Office of the Holy Communion.

479. ADAMS, T., in D .. .. 6d.
235. BLISS, W. H. The Communicants' Choral Card (on Card) 1½d.
234. BRYANS, F. R. A Simple Choral Communion Card .. 3d.
356. ELLIOTT, J. W., in F .. .. 6d.
263. HAYNE, LEIGHTON GEORGE, in G .. .. 6d.
352. JOULE, B. ST. J. B., in C .. .. .. 2d.
369. MERBECKE (from the Cathedral Prayer Book, Stainer) .. 6d.
221. OUSELEY, Rev. Sir F. .. .. 4d.
483. SELBY, B. L., in E flat (for Treble voices) .. .. .. 4d.
484. SELBY, B. L., in E flat (for Four voices) .. .. .. 6d.
438. SHAW, J., in G .. .. 6d.
390. SOMERVELL, A., in F .. .. 4d.
355. STEANE, BRUCE, in F .. .. 6d.
266. TRIMNELL, T. T., in C (Festival) .. .. 4d.

Kyrie eleison.

495. BUTTON, H. E. Four Kyries .. 1½d.
130. CALKIN, G. Six Kyries .. .. 1½d.
341. CLIFFINGDALE, J. Six Kyries .. 1½d.
430. GODFREY, A. E. Three Kyries .. 1½d.
414. ILIFFE, F. Six Kyries .. .. 2d.
214. KING, O. Five Kyries .. .. 3d.
453. LEMARE, E. H. Six Kyries .. 3d.
454. LEMARE, E. H. Five Kyries .. 3d.
401. MACPHERSON, C., in E flat .. .. 1d.
154. MACPHERSON, S., in E flat (with Benedictus) .. .. 4d.
505. MACPHERSON, S., in B flat (with Creed) .. .. 4d.
509. MACFARREN, W. (with Jubilate and Sanctus) .. .. 2d.
188. SMITH, BOYTON, in E flat (with Te Deum, Benedictus, and Sanctus) .. 3d.
482. STAINER, J. Four Kyries .. .. 2d.
69. SULLIVAN, A., in D (with Jubilate) 3d.
460. TILLEARD, J., in F (with Jubilate) 3d.
137. TRIMNELL, T. T., in F (with Creed) 3d.
295. TURLE, J. (with Jubilate) .. .. 1½d.
400. WEST, JOHN E., in E flat .. .. 1d.

Apostles' Creed.

197. BRIDGE, J. F., on G (with Lord's Prayer) .. .. 1½d.
527 BRIDGE, J. F., on F (with Lord's Prayer) .. .. 1½d.
320. CORNELL, J. H. .. .. .. 1½d.
348. CRUSE, E. .. .. .. 1½d.
111. ELLIOTT, J. W. .. .. .. 1½d.
321. MONK, E. G., in G .. .. .. 2d.
167. ROBERTS, J. V. (with Lord's Prayer) 1½d.
76. STATON, W., in F .. .. .. 1½d.

Nicene Creed.

95. BARNBY, J. (Merbecke) .. .. 1½d.
198 BRIDGE, J. F. .. .. .. 1½d.
349 CROWE, R. W. .. .. .. 3d.
204 ELLIOTT, J. W., in D .. .. 3d.
402. FOSTER, MYLES B., in C .. .. 4d.
550. GLADSTONE, F. E. .. .. .. 3d.
291. GOSS, Sir J. .. .. .. 3d.
505. MACPHERSON, S. (with Kyrie) .. 4d.
268. MERBECKE, in F (Arr. by J. Stainer) 1d.
168. ROBERTS, J. V. .. .. .. 1½d.
251. STAINER, J., in G (Easy form) .. 2d.
268. STAINER, J. (Merbecke) .. .. 1d.
203. TOURS, B. (from Service in F) .. 3d.
137. TRIMNELL, T. T., in F .. .. 3d.
156. WESLEY, S. S., in E .. .. .. 4d.

Athanasian Creed.

174. BEST, W. T., in F .. .. .. 3d.
155. BIRCH, E. H., in G .. .. 3d.
351. STAINER, J. (Plainsong. Unison) 3d.

Offertory Sentences.

333. FIELD, J. T. (Nos. 1 to 5) .. .. 3d.
334. FIELD, J. T. (Nos. 6 to 9) .. .. 3d.
335. FIELD, J. T. (Nos. 10 to 15) .. 3d.
336. FIELD, J. T. (Nos. 16 to 20) .. 3d.
270. JORDAN, C. WARWICK (with Processional Hymn) .. .. .. 3d.
149. KNIGHT, H. .. .. .. 6d.
287. MARTIN, GEORGE C. .. .. 6d.
330. STAINER, J. .. .. .. 3d.
223. TOZER, FERRIS .. .. .. 4d.

Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei.

114. CALKIN, J. B., in C .. .. .. 3d.
316. CALKIN, J. B., in D .. .. .. 3d.
117. ELVEY, Sir G., in E .. .. .. 3d.
404. FOSTER, MYLES B., in C .. .. 3d.
115. GARRETT, G., in A .. .. .. 3d.
331. GARRETT, G. (from Service in E).. 3d.
332. GARRETT, G. (from Service in E flat) .. .. 3d.
452. HAYNES, B., in E flat .. .. 3d.
112. MARTIN, G. C. (from Service in C) 3d.
314. MEACHAM, C. J. B., in F .. .. 1½d.
142. PAGE, ARTHUR (from Service in F) 3d.
116. STAINER, J., in F .. .. .. 3d.
462. STAINER, J., No. 1 (from Service in E flat) .. .. 3d.
463. STAINER, J., No. 2 (from Service in E flat) .. .. 2d.
464. STAINER, J., No. 1 (from Service in A) 3d.
465. STAINER, J., No. 2 (from Service in A) 2d.
118. TOURS, B. (from Service in C) .. 3d.

Sanctus.

403. FOSTER, MYLES B., in C .. .. .. 1d.
509. MACFARREN, W. (with Jubilate and Kyrie) .. .. .. 2d.
188. SMITH, BOYTON (with Te Deum, &c.) .. .. 3d.

Gloria in Excelsis.

405. FOSTER, MYLES B., in C .. .. 3d.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis.

476. ADAMS, T. (arr. to Greg. Tones) .. 1½d.
477. ADAMS, T. (arr. to Greg. Tones) .. 1½d.
478. ADAMS, T. (arr. to Greg. Tones) .. 1½d.
185. ADAMS, T., in C .. .. .. 3d.
584. ADAMS, T. (arr. to Greg. Tones, 3rd) 1½d.
585. ADAMS, T., ditto .. .. .. 1½d.
581. ADAMS, T., ditto .. .. .. 1½d.
229. ADLAM, FRANK, in G .. .. .. 3d.
140. AITKEN, G. B. J., in E flat .. .. 4d.
63. ALSOP, J. R., in E .. .. .. 4d.
166. ARMSTRONG, W. D. (Nunc dim. only) 1½d.
272. ATTWOOD, THOMAS, in C .. .. 4d.
52. BARNBY, J., in C (Unison) .. .. 3d.
139. BARNBY, J., in E (Chant form) .. 3d.
533. BARNBY, J. (Chant, with other Canticles) .. .. 4d.
176. BARNBY, J., in E flat .. .. 8d.
293. BARNBY, J., in D (Four voices) .. 4d.
89. BATSON, A. WELLESLEY, in D .. 4d.
194. BELL, W. H., in G .. .. .. 4d.
60. BENNETT, GEORGE J. (Greg. Tones) 3d.
78. BENNETT, GEORGE J., in D .. 3d.
217. BENNETT, GEORGE J., in G major 6d.
129. BREWER, A. HERBERT, in A .. 3d.
283. BREWER, A. HERBERT, in F .. 3d.
169. BREWER, A. HERBERT, in B flat .. 4d.
141. BROWN, A. H., in A .. .. .. 3d.
496. BROWN, A. H., in E .. .. 1½d.
277. CALKIN, J. BAPTISTE, in F .. .. 6d.
150. CLARKE, HAMILTON, in F .. .. 4d.
212. CLARKE, HAMILTON, in C .. .. 4d.
446. CLARKE, HAMILTON, in B flat .. 4d.
419. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S., in F .. 4d.
158. CRUICKSHANK, W., in B flat (Irreg. Chants) .. .. .. 3d.
161. CRUICKSHANK, W. A. C., in G .. 4d.
502. DAVIES, H. W., in C .. .. 4d.
377. DRIFFIELD, E. T., in B flat .. 4d.
132. EDWARDS, CHAS., in G .. .. 3d.
59. ELLIOTT, J. W., in D .. .. 4d.
258. ELVEY, Sir G., in E .. .. 6d.
209. FANING, EATON, in C .. .. 6d.
160. FIELD, J. T., in C and A .. .. 3d. (Chants by J. Turle and Sir G. Elvey)
253. FIELD, J. T., in D (Chant) .. 3d.
473. FORD, E., in F .. .. .. 6d.
206. FOSTER, M. B., in A .. .. .. 6d.
395. FOSTER, MYLES B., in C .. .. 4d.
338. FRICKER, A., in G .. .. .. 4d.
177. GADSBY, H., in D major .. .. 4d.
450. GADSBY, H., in D (Unison) .. 4d.
189. GALE, C. R., in D .. .. .. 6d.
353. GALE, C. R., in F .. .. .. 3d.
461. GARRETT, G. M., in B flat.. .. 6d.

(For continuation see other list.)

No. 711. NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS. Price 3d.

LOOK ON THE FIELDS

ANTHEM FOR HARVEST

St. John iv. 35; Isaiah xlix. 13; and a Verse by the Rev. BERNARD REYNOLDS, M.A., Prebendary of St. Paul's Cathedral.

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES MACPHERSON.

SUB-ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Andante tranquillo. ♩ = about 60.

Man. I.

L.H.

mf

Man. II.

Ped. 16 ft. to Man. I.

L.H.

poco rit.

Man. I.

L.H.

a tempo.

SOPRANO. mp

Look on the fields, . . for they are white al - rea - dy,

ALTO. mp

Look on the fields, . . for they are white al - rea - dy,

TENOR. mp

Look on the fields, . . for they are white al - rea - dy,

BASS. mp

Look on the fields, . . for they are white al - rea - dy,

a tempo.

Man. II.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

white al-ready to har - vest, look, look on the fields, . .

white al-ready to har - vest, look, look on the fields, . .

white al-ready to har - vest, look, look on the fields, . .

white al-ready to har - vest, look, look on the fields, . .

L. H.

look on the fields, for they are white, are

look on the fields, for they are white, are

look on the fields, for they are white, are look on the fields, for they are white, are

L. H.

white al - rea - dy to har - - vest, to har - vest, they are white . . al -

white al - rea - dy to har - - vest, to har - vest, they are white . . al -

white al - rea - dy to har - - vest, to har - vest, they are white . . al - white al - rea - dy to har - - vest, to har - vest, they are white . . al -

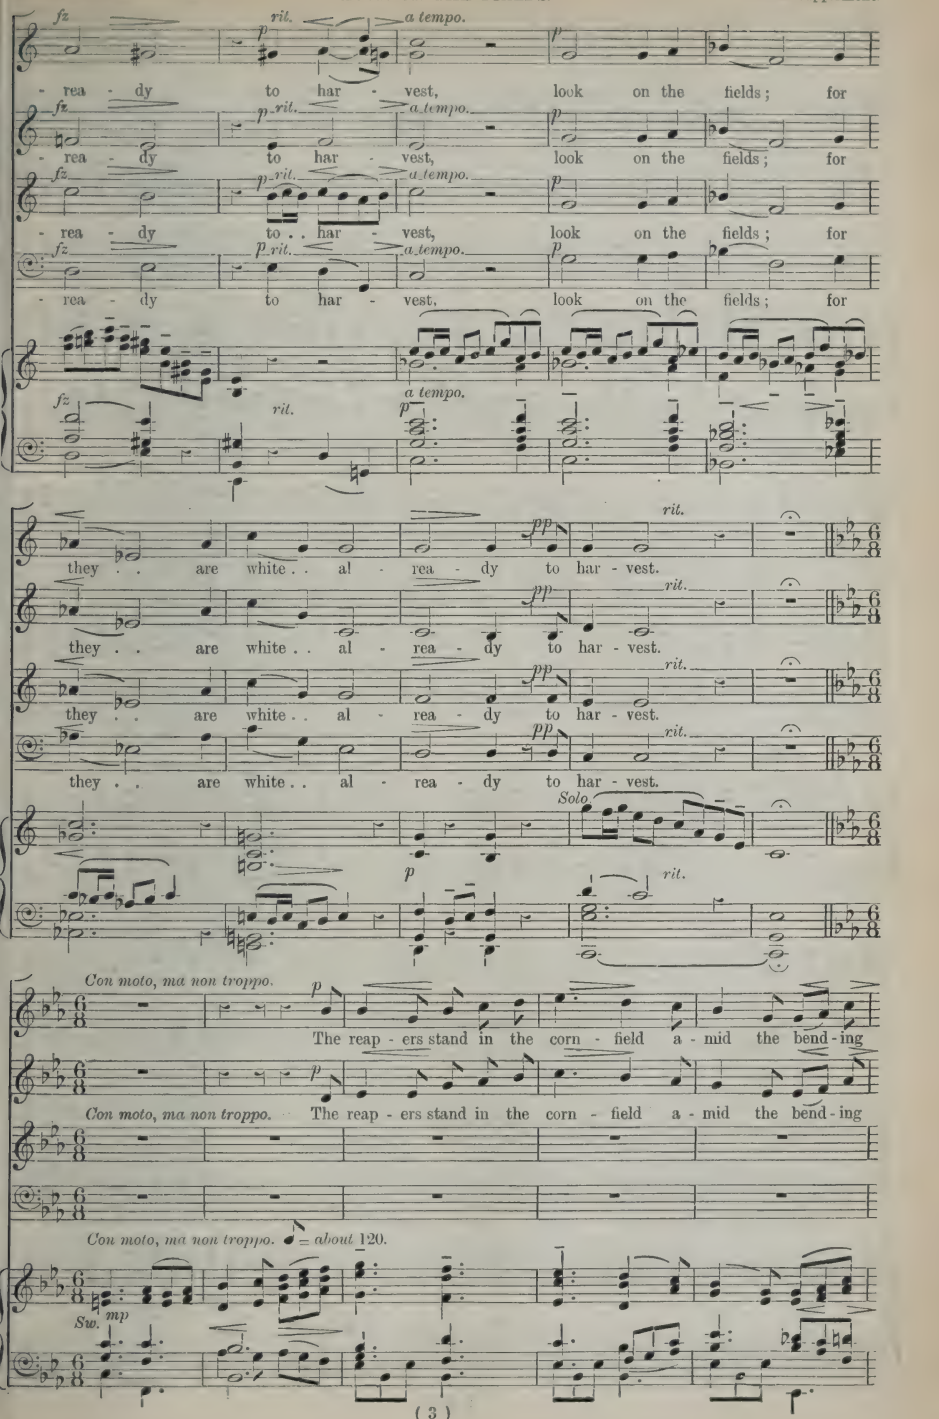
Ped.



fz
rit.
a tempo.
p
- rea - dy to har - vest, look on the fields; for
- rea - dy to har - vest, look on the fields; for
- rea - dy to . . har - vest, look on the fields; for
- rea - dy to har - vest, look on the fields; for
a tempo.
rit.
pp
they . . are white . . al - rea - dy to har - vest.
Solo.
Con moto, ma non troppo.
The reap - ers stand in the corn - field a - mid the bend - ing
Con moto, ma non troppo. ♩ = about 120.
Sw.
mp

poco animato corn, . . And in the gath'ring twi - light the sheaves are homeward borne. . . Some-day the
poco animato.
corn, . . And in the gath'ring twi - light the sheaves are homeward borne. . . Some - day the
poco animato.
p
Some - day . . the
poco animato.
Some - day the
poco animato.
cres.
f an - gel reap-ers, at God's own . . har - vest-tide, Shall fill the heavenly gar - - - -
an - gel reap-ers, at God's own har - vest-tide, Shall fill the heavenly gar - - - -
an - gel reap-ers, at God's own har - vest-tide, Shall fill the heavenly gar - - - - an - gel reap-ers, at God's own . . har - vest-tide, Shall fill the heavenly gar - - - - p a tempo.
pp molto tranquillo.
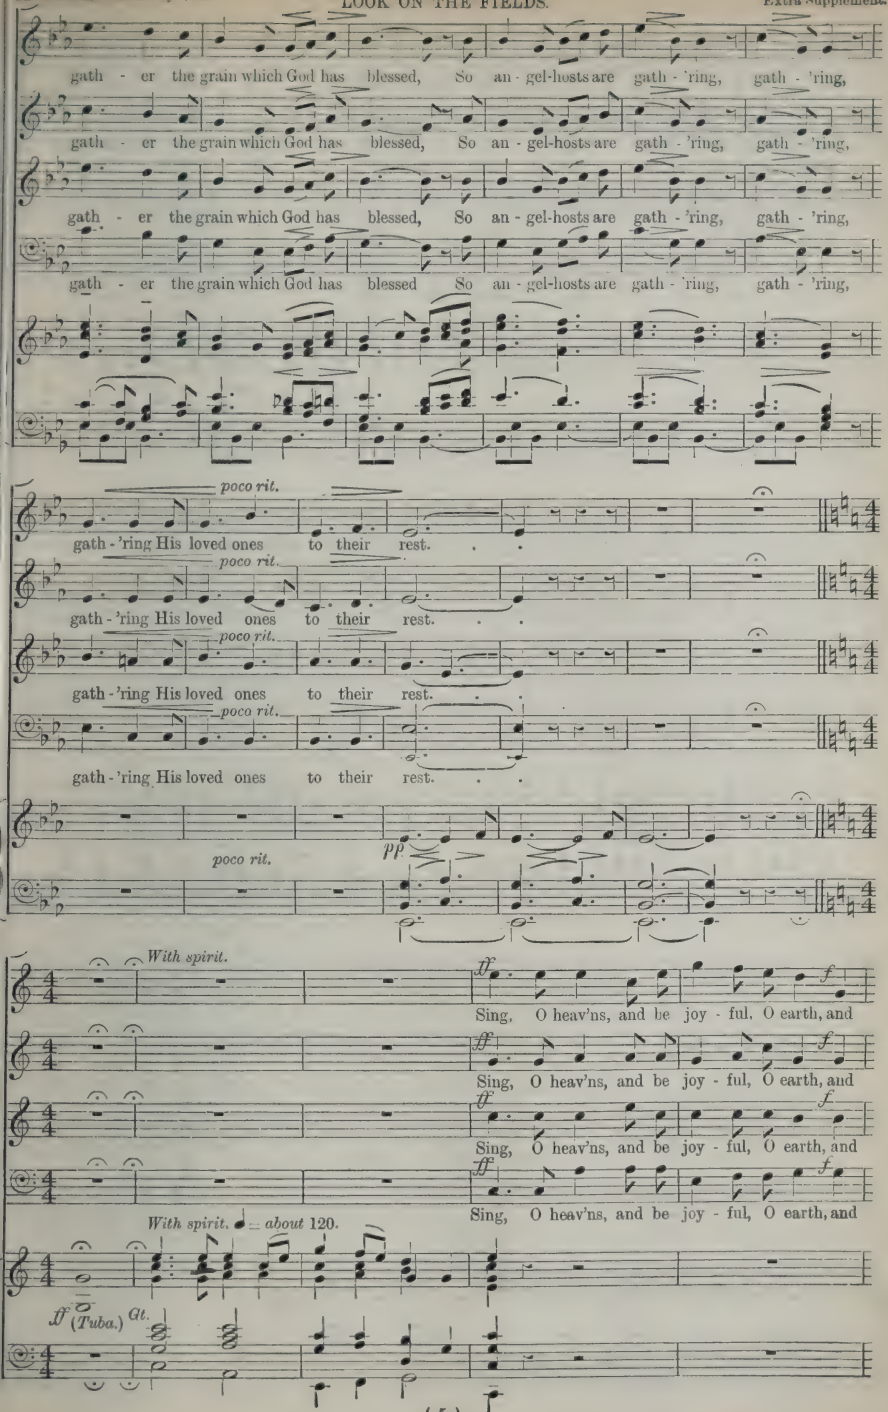
- ner, where bless - ed . . souls a - bide. . . . As on the earth we
- ner, where bless - ed . . souls a - bide. . . . As on the earth we
- ner, where bless - ed . souls a - bide. . . . As on the earth we
- ner, where bless - ed souls a - bide. . . . As on the earth we
a tempo.
pp
pp



gath - er the grain which God has blessed, So an - gel-hosts are gath - 'ring, gath - 'ring, gath - er the grain which God has blessed, So an - gel-hosts are gath - 'ring, gath - 'ring,
gath - er the grain which God has blessed, So an - gel-hosts are gath - 'ring, gath - 'ring, gath - er the grain which God has blessed So an - gel-hosts are gath - 'ring, gath - 'ring,
poco rit.
gath - 'ring His loved ones to their rest.
poco rit.
gath - 'ring His loved ones to their rest.
poco rit.
gath - 'ring His loved ones to their rest.
poco rit.
gath - 'ring His loved ones to their rest.
poco rit.
pp
With spirit.
ff
Sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, and Sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, and Sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, and Sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, and
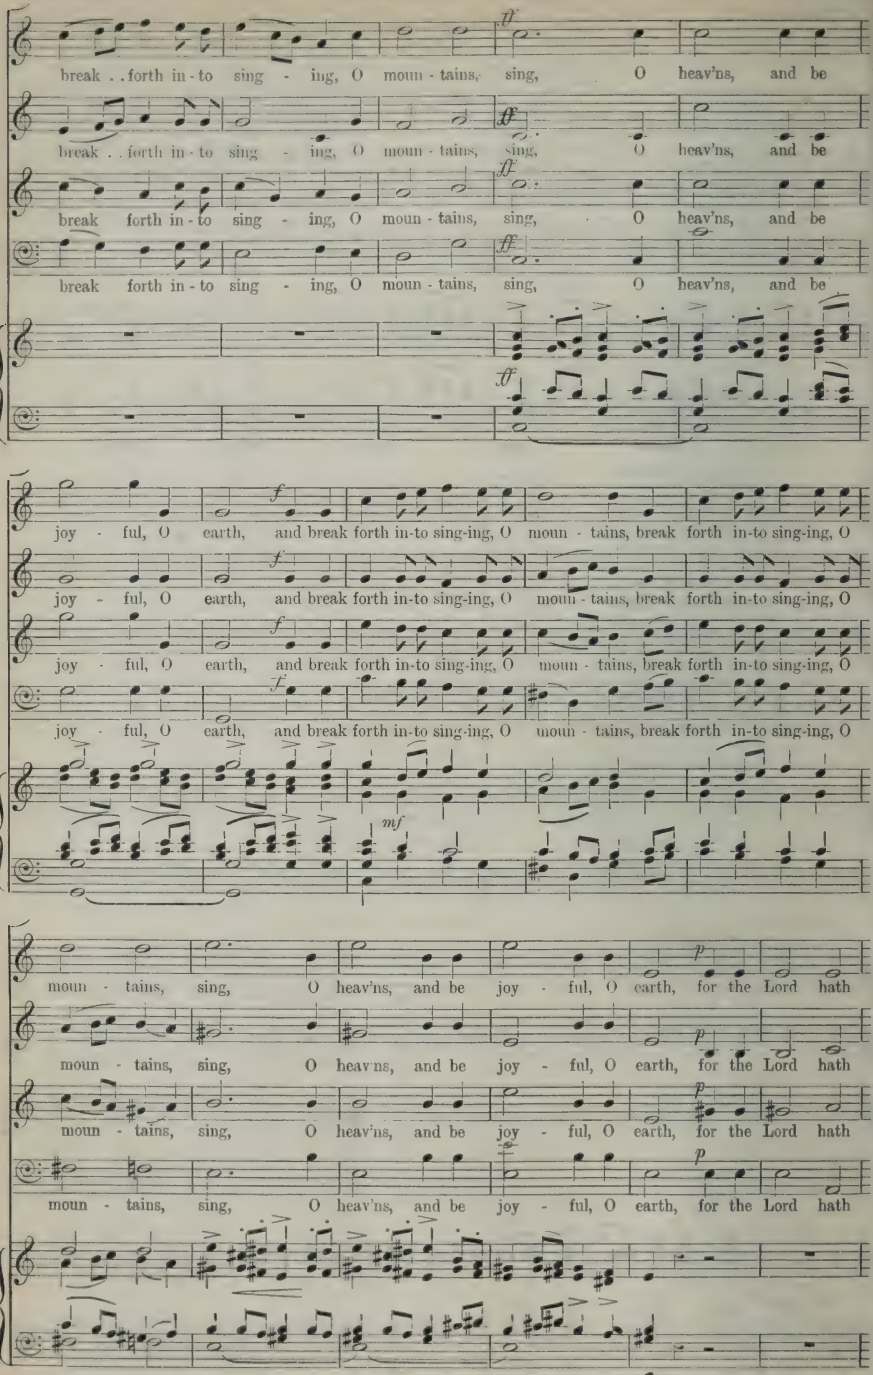
With spirit. ♩ = about 120.
ff (Tuba.) Gt.



break . . forth in - to sing - ing, O moun - tains, sing, O heav'ns, and be break . . forth in - to sing - ing, O moun - tains, sing, O heav'ns, and be break forth in - to sing - ing, O moun - tains, sing, O heav'ns, and be break forth in - to sing - ing, O moun - tains, sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, and break forth in-to sing-ing, O moun - tains, break forth in-to sing-ing, O
joy - ful, O earth, and break forth in-to sing-ing, O moun - tains, break forth in-to sing-ing, O
joy - ful, O earth, and break forth in-to sing-ing, O moun - tains, break forth in-to sing-ing, O
joy - ful, O earth, and break forth in-to sing-ing, O moun - tains, break forth in-to sing-ing, O moun - tains, sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, for the Lord hath moun - tains, sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, for the Lord hath moun - tains, sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, for the Lord hath moun - tains, sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, for the Lord hath

com - fort - ed His peo - ple, hath com - fort - ed His peo - ple,
com - fort - ed His peo - ple, hath com - fort - ed His peo - ple,
com - fort - ed . . His peo - ple, hath com - fort - ed His peo - ple, com - fort - ed . . His peo - ple, hath com - fort - ed His peo - ple,
p f Gt.
senza Ped.
f sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, and break forth in - to sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, and break forth in - to sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, sing, break sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth sing, break
fz
f
sing - ing, break forth in - to sing - ing, O moun - tains, sing, sing, . .
sing - ing, break forth in - to sing - ing, O moun - tains, sing, . . sing, . .
forth in-to sing - ing, O moun - tains, break forth in-to sing - ing, O moun - tains, sing, . .
forth in-to sing - ing, O moun - tains, break forth in-to sing - ing, O moun - tains, sing, . .

sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, for the Lord hath com - fort - ed His peo - ple, sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, for the Lord hath com - fort - ed His peo - ple, . .
sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, for the Lord hath com - fort - ed His peo - ple, sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, for the Lord hath com - fort - ed His peo - ple, animato.
sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, . . break forth in - to sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, . . break forth in - to sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, . . break forth in - to sing, O heav'ns, and be joy - ful, O earth, . . break forth in - to molto rit.
sing - - ing, O . . moun - tains. A - - - men. . .
sing - - ing, O . . moun - tains. A - - - men. . .
sing - - ing, O . . moun - tains. A - - - men. . .
sing - - ing, O . . moun - tains. A - - - men. . .

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1204, price 1½d.

bold. Mr. Julian Sturgis, however, has provided him with a book in which, for operatic purposes, Shakespeare's play is cleverly dealt with. Here and there, as in the plotting of Don John against the Prince, in the church scene, or in the dénouement, when the treachery of the former is discovered, the story, as told on the stage, loses something of its point and meaning. But then, it must be remembered that 'Much Ado about Nothing' is a play with which the general public is not unfamiliar. Mr. Sturgis no doubt felt, therefore, that he could safely compress his material.

And now for the music! When a composer sits down to write an opera he must feel the danger of yielding too much to the strong influence of Wagner. Some composers give themselves up to it and produce music, often clever, but of no real interest. In this matter Professor Stanford has kept within due limits, or, we should rather say, his catholic tastes, his wide knowledge, and his power of assimilating various styles have prevented him from slavishly imitating one master. He uses representative themes, and, we think, wisely. No fault is found with composers who imitate the form of the sonata or symphony as established by Haydn and Mozart. Why then should any blame attach to one who adopts means which are so natural, and, when skilfully employed, so helpful? It is only when attempt is made to out-Wagner Wagner that condemnation becomes just. Then again much depends upon the guiding themes themselves. In the opera under notice they have character, so that when they recur they are recognised without difficulty. There is no overture or prelude to the work, but our composer is not the only one now-a-days who avoids that which formerly seemed so essential a part of an opera in order to prepare the minds of the audience. We rather fancy the omission is due to the fear of coming into direct comparison with Wagner, who, like Bach in fugue, seems to have said the last word in prelude.

In Act 1, before the rise of the curtain, lively music is heard; guests gathering in the great hall of Leonato's house for the masque are singing in quaint, pleasing strains how ladies need 'sigh no more,' since 'men were deceivers ever.' When Benedick delivers his honest opinion concerning Hero, the somewhat Weberish music is well in keeping with the jaunty character of the man, and we afterwards find the same or similar music connected with him. Hero has a special theme, one, indeed, of considerable charm. And while on the subject of representative themes, we may mention one typical of Beatrice and another of Don John, the villain of the piece. To name all would, however, serve little purpose. We would rather point out some salient passages in the work. The revelry in Leonato's house commences with a dance, consisting of a quaint, dignified saraband, and this is followed by a sprightly Morris dance. The music accompanying the smart passage of words between Beatrice and Benedick is light and humorous. A bright quartet, with a merry 'Fa, la, la' refrain for Hero, Claudio, Don Pedro, and Leonato also deserves mention. This first act ends effectively with an extended version of the opening chorus. In Act 2, which we are inclined to regard as the best of the four, there is a graceful serenade sung by Claudio beneath the window of his fair lady love, and with such success that she comes down into the garden, and they both join in a love duet. The impassioned opening phrase of this duet plays an important part in the tragic scene when Claudio is led to believe that Hero is not faithful to him, and again towards the close of the opera when the villainous accusation brought against her is proved false. The hatching and the carrying out of the well-meaning plot whereby Beatrice and Benedick are induced to declare their mutual love is accompanied by music which fits the scenes like a glove; there is a Mozartian lightness and a spontaneity about it which are most delightful. At the close of the act, when Margaret impersonates Hero, the writing becomes truly dramatic, and the use of representative themes most striking. Both here and in the rest of the work the composer says what he has to say in terse manner; there are 'just the right number of notes, and no more.' When it is remembered that even the greatest of dramatic composers indulged in lengths, and not always heavenly ones, the restraint shown by Professor Stanford is altogether remarkable; it argues a strong power of commendable self-criticism.

The Third Act presents the exciting scene in the church. But we do not regard this as the most impressive section of the work, although there is some powerful writing—as, for instance, in the opening instrumental introduction, some clever and effective contrasts between the solemn singing of the Friars and the agitated music connected with the unhappy maiden and the deceived Claudio.

The last act contains the well-known scene with the two 'foolish officers,' Dogberry and Verges, and the music is exceedingly quaint and humorous. The happy ending to the play furnishes opportunity for bright strains, and by way of conclusion we have a brief chorus founded on the one heard at the commencement of the opera.

The performance, under the direction of Signor Mancinelli, was excellent. Miss Suzanne Adams (Hero) sang well and acted gracefully. Miss Marie Brema sang well; but the part of Beatrice is not one in which she appears to the best advantage. Messrs. Coates (Claudio), Bispham (Benedick), Blass (Dogberry), and M. Plançon (Friar) all deserve praise. The chorus, principally from the Royal College of Music, acquitted itself with credit. A new portable pipe organ, built by the Positive Organ Company, was used in this opera for the first time with good effect.

Another performance worthy of mention was that of 'Tristan,' in which Madame Ternina as the heroine—if the ill-fated Isolde can be thus named—made full display of her great vocal and histrionic gifts. With her were associated Miss Marie Brema (Brangane), Herr Van Dyck (Tristan), and Kurwenal (Herr von Rooy), who all helped towards a great rendering of a great work. The orchestral playing under Herr Lohse was of high excellence.

Verdi's 'Otello' was performed on the 15th ult., with Signor Tamagno in the title-role. His strongly realistic impersonation of the Moor, together with his powerful singing, created a deep impression. Miss Emma Eames, both in looks and voice, proved a most acceptable Desdemona. Herr Scotti as Iago also won great and well-deserved honours.

'CHROMATICISM IN HARMONY.'

AT the meeting of the Musical Association, held on the 11th ult., a paper, entitled 'Chromaticism in Harmony,' was read by Mr. Herbert Westerby, of Elgin.

The view put forward by the lecturer was in favour of the systematisation of the relations between the chromatic and diatonic elements, and this, he contended, could be conveniently accomplished by taking the principle of chromaticism as a basis. This principle he described as the 'temporary inclusion of any foreign element within the prevailing tonality,' which element could consist of either detached chords or complete passages—the latter designated as examples of chromatic tonality or chromatic keys—and those most in use were situated on the Minor and Major 6th, 3rd, and 2nd of the key, forming, as it were, two triads of chromatic tonality; others, in similar use, were the more nearly related keys.

The contents of these keys provided, from a composer's point of view, the chromatic chords available and in use at the present day—those from the tonic minor or major were considered so modally related, as the lecturer thought that for purposes of key relationship the two modes should be considered as forming 'duality of key or mode.' For the above scheme the 12-note so-called chromatic scale was shown to be insufficient, and though the 17-note scale would temporarily suffice, the complete scale of twenty-one harmonic intervals was advocated for harmonic purposes, while the tempered chromatic scale was, for Europeans, pre-eminently the melodic formula.

The relationship of keys was based, not on mathematical ratio of the tonics, as in the Day System, but on the lesser effect of key disturbance, in which the relative minor of the tonic and the subdominant stood first; the close connection between the respective scales of the same was also shown. The duality of mode as represented in the chords of mixed origin, as in the chord of the major 9th and minor 13th, provided a simple harmonic explanation of the chords of the augmented 6th, which thus appeared not, as in most English text books, on the minor 6th of the key, but on the minor 6th of the relative minor

(a connection noted before) and coinciding with the ground note as given in Jadassohn—viz., on the subdominant of the major.

Some objection might be taken to the upward resolution of the minor 13th (compound 6th) as representing the augmented 6th; but examples were given from Jadassohn and elsewhere, which justified the assertion that where there was no cadential position the direction of resolution of discordant notes was a matter of indifference so long as it was carried out by step. Where the cadence came in (or the simulation of one) its superior power compelled the orthodox resolution of one of the discordant notes by step; but the other was free to leap, especially if it occurred in the bass, and this accounted for the irregular resolution of chords of 'indefinite dominant aspect,' such as the 'added 6th,' secondary chords of the 7th, and some chords of the augmented 6th.

Finally, the lecturer advocated chromatic analysis, not according to root or ground note, nor fictitious assumption of chromatic alteration of notes which could not be altered, but according to the tonality of the intruding element.

In the discussion which followed, Mr. Thelwall advocated the theoretic recognition of the equal temperament system. Mr. Westerby, while sympathising with the idea, remarked that, from a practical point of view, the theoretic reduction of all music to equal temperament notation must be considered as Utopian. Mr. Arthur H. D. Prendergast presided.

SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE'S DRAMATIC SUITE 'CORIOLANUS.'

The incidental music to plays is often so commonplace that little heed is given to it; it serves to play the people in, to colour certain scenes, also to help on conversation between the acts. Anyhow, music has little chance under such circumstances of having any merits which it may possess recognised. Hence Sir Alexander Mackenzie did well to arrange some of the most important pieces written for the production of Shakespeare's 'Coriolanus,' in the form of a Dramatic Suite for orchestra, for the concert-room. It was produced, under his own direction, at the Verdi Memorial concert given at the Queen's Hall, on Saturday afternoon, the 8th ult. First came the fine Prelude, with its themes typical, the one of Coriolanus, the other of his wife and mother. The second movement is the Prelude to Act 3, containing the brisk march-tune identified with the Volscians, also treatment of themes of a pathetic character. The third, constructed from the music to two scenes, ends with the noble 'Dead March.' The final movement, which includes some graceful 'flower' music, commences vigorously, and ends with lively tarantella-like strains. At the conclusion of the Suite the composer was recalled to the platform. An exceedingly fine performance of Verdi's 'Requiem,' was then given, under the direction of Signor Mancinelli; the soloists were Madame Sobrino, Miss Marie Brema, Signor Anselmi, and M. Plançon.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Several young artists of promise appeared at the concert given by the Royal Academy of Music on the 21st ult., at the Queen's Hall. Mr. Claude Gascoigne's playing of the solo part of M. Saint-Saëns's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor (Op. 44) was clear, crisp, and intelligent. Mr. Herbert Macfarren also showed much skill in two movements from Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto, and the respective violin and violoncello playing by Miss Margaret S. Holloway and Miss Ethel Pettit testified to good training. The most successful of the singers was Mr. Dalton Baker of whom more may be expected to be heard in the future. Other vocalists who merit encouragement are Miss Margaret Llewellyn, Miss Edith Patching, and Mr. Henry F. Plevy. The programme contained two compositions by students, a song of ambitious character, entitled 'Riga's last song,' by Mr. A. von Ahn Carse, and two pieces severally named 'Dolly's lullaby' and 'A pillow-fight,' from an orchestral suite called 'Childhood,' by Mr. Alfred H. Barley. The vocalist in the first-named was Mr. Edward F. Barrow, who was somewhat overpowered by the orchestration. The orchestral pieces show imagination and aptitude, the 'Pillow-fight' in particular being a very bright and clever little piece. Sir Alexander Mackenzie conducted with his usual watchful care.

'THE GOLDEN LEGEND' AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

The 163rd anniversary festival of the Royal Society of Musicians took place at the Crystal Palace, on the 22nd ult., and was made memorable by an imposing performance of Sir Arthur Sullivan's Leeds cantata, 'The Golden Legend,' the work being given on the great orchestra by a band and chorus of about three thousand performers. The choir was an exceptionally capable body, and the voices were not only rich and pure in quality, but the tone was admirably balanced. Under these conditions, with Mr. August Manns as conductor, there resulted very fine renderings of the chief choruses, notably of the beautiful 'Evening Hymn' and 'O pure in heart.' Great dramatic perception was also shown by the choristers in the choral passages consequent on Friar Angelo's reception of Elsie, and the precision with which the exclamations of the people were delivered was a remarkable proof of the alertness and training of the singers. Very few words are needed concerning the soloists. Madame Albani, in excellent voice, sang the affecting air 'My Redeemer and my Lord' with her usual purity and fervour; Madame Marian Mackenzie was an admirable exponent of the music of Ursula; and Mr. Ben Davies and Mr. Andrew Black respectively delivered the tenor and bass solo passages and airs with the utmost effect attainable in so vast a space. The cantata was preceded by Wagner's 'Kaisermarsch,' the imposing element of which obtained full expression from the exceptionally large orchestra.

MUSIC COMPETITIONS IN NORTH YORKSHIRE.

Under the pleasant and fanciful title 'Tournaments of Song,' some music competitions have been established in the Yorkshire dales. One, for Wensleydale, has been held during four successive years at Leyburn, while the other, which serves the neighbouring Swaledale, was held last month for the second time. Some objection has been raised locally to these competitions, so far as they are directly aimed at the improvement of church music; but while one must sympathise with those who, very properly, desire to maintain the devotional element in psalms and anthems, it seems possible—and indeed experience has shown it is possible—to conduct these competitions in such a manner as to satisfy any reasonable objections on the side of reverence or the like, and to emphasise the educational principle which is at the root of all properly conducted competitions. Of their great practical value there can be no manner of doubt.

The Leyburn Tournament was held on May 17 and 18. The singing of the village choirs in Goss's anthem 'O taste and see' was rather worse than indifferent, but this only emphasized the need for the standard of comparison and critical remarks which are possible on such an occasion, and, if only Mr. T. T. Noble's sound and practical advice were taken to heart by the choirmasters and singers present, great good will have been done. The desirability of anthem singing in parish churches is a matter which may reasonably be debated, but in any case anthems are not a necessary part of divine worship, and much of their raison d'être has gone if they are not sung at least 'decently and in order.' The larger choirs did better, and their standard, in anthems by Ouseley and Stainer, was much higher. Askrigg was first in this class, while in the important Madrigal class the well-trained Bedale Musical Society sang so finely as to obtain fifty-six marks out of a possible sixty. There were also classes for vocal quartets, whose worst fault was, speaking generally, the very common one of exaggerating points of expression that besets so many amateur and not a few professional musicians.

An interesting and promising feature in Wensleydale is the ability shown by some of the juvenile instrumentalists. A concert was given in connection with the competitions, and was conducted by the Hon. Lucien Orde-Powlett, whose unassuming but thoroughly practical services to music in this district cannot easily be overrated.

The Swaledale Tournament, which is in a sense the daughter of the older one in Wensleydale, was held on the 5th and 6th ult., and here again Mr. Tertius Noble, the organist of York Minster, was the judge, and added to the usefulness of the competitions by his helpful and practical comments. The children were taken on the opening day. Reference has been made to a certain lack of resonant and beautiful tone in the voices of these country districts, but there was also evidence of lack of proper teaching, and it was very significant that the Richmond Parish Church choir boys, though presumably their physical gifts do not materially differ from those of their neighbours, far exceeded all others in the finish of their singing. Among the young violinists and pianists there were a small proportion—about two in each case—who had been soundly trained, but the others were immature. The senior pianists appeared to less advantage, but this was, at least in part, attributable to the choice of so difficult a test piece as Beethoven's Sonata in F (Op. 10, No. 1). This was surely a mistake, for while it is imperative to hold up a high standard, it is important not to unduly discourage competitors. There was some really excellent singing of Shield's Trio for female voices, 'O happy Fair'; both the competing trios did well, but the winners realised the spirit of the piece exceptionally well. Another interesting class was local choral societies, and here the two towns of Richmond and Northallerton had a hard struggle for superiority; but in the end the Richmond Society, under the organist of the Parish Church, Mr. W. Ellis, a zealous and able musician, won the day. The first place in the pianoforte trio class was won by three sisters, the Misses Yeoman, two of whom act as the honorary secretaries of these competitions, which owe much, in every sense of the word, to their active sympathy. At the concert in connection with the competitions, Mr. Orde-Powlett conducted a selection from Handel's 'St. Cecilia's' Ode.

LOWER RHINE MUSIC FESTIVAL AT COLOGNE.

My experience of the Lower Rhine Music Festivals dates from 1854, when, as a student at the Rhenish Music School in Cologne, under Ferdinand Hiller, I had the honour, as it was then regarded, of singing in the chorus of the Festival, which was held that year at Aix-la-Chappelle, under the direction of P. J. von Lindpaintner. This was my first taste of a German music festival, and never have I forgotten the pleasure and excitement which it brought me. It was like entering into a new world. Since that date I have attended several of these festivals, but always at Düsseldorf, and reported them either in the Musical World, Athenæum, or Guardian. Allowing for the Jubilee Festival of the Cologne Conservatory of Music, which I attended last year, and reported in these columns, the present was the first occasion of my being present at a Lower Rhine Festival held in Cologne. This interesting old city, which it is always a pleasure to revisit, both on its own account and from old associations, may well be proud of the magnificent concert-room which that fine old Gothic building, the Gürzenich, provides. Unfortunately, it is situated in the midst of the town, and opens out into narrow back streets. One therefore misses the comfort of Düsseldorf, where the concert-room is surrounded by an extensive garden, in which, during the pauses, one pleasantly perambulates and meets one's friends. That the concert-room of the Gürzenich is no longer sufficient for present-day requirements was made manifest by the fact that it was found necessary to erect unsightly galleries for the accommodation of the chorus on each side of the orchestra. It is therefore satisfactory to learn that there is a movement on foot for building a more spacious and more comfortably situated concert-hall in Cologne.

With some intermission and irregularity these Lower Rhine Music Festivals, which were founded in 1818, have been held alternately at Aix-la-Chapelle, Cologne, and Düsseldorf. The present was the seventy-eighth of these festivals. Being the first festival of the new century held in Cologne, instead of launching forth into new works, it was thought well to make a halt and take a retrospective view of the progress made in music during the nineteenth century. Manifestly this could not be made adequately apparent without contrasting its acknowledged masterpieces with some of those of a previous age. Thus specimens of Bach, Mozart, and Gluck were included in the scheme, from which Handel and Haydn should certainly not have been excluded. The representative composers of the nineteenth century included the names of Beethoven, Berlioz, Brahms, Liszt, Schubert, Schumann, Richard Strauss, and Wagner. To them, for completeness' sake, specimens of the work of Weber and Mendelssohn, who have exercised as great an influence upon nineteenth century music as any others, should most certainly have been added. A preponderance in favour of Beethoven having been determined upon, it is easy to account for the difficulty of carrying out a more comprehensive scheme. As it was, the programmes were all far too long drawn out—for instance, that of Whit Sunday evening included Beethoven's specially fine overture 'Die Weihe des Hauses' (Op. 124), which I, for one, am inclined to rank above those to 'Leonore'; the Grand Mass in D (Op. 123), and the Ninth Symphony (Op. 125). The performance of the two last-named works, on one and the same evening, was probably an unprecedented feat. All went extremely well on this and the two succeeding days. The orchestra included 153 performers and the chorus 569. Six vocal soloists were engaged—viz., Frau Dr. A. Noordewier-Reddingius, of Amsterdam; Frau Marie Wittich, of Dresden; Fräulein Tilly Koenen, of Berlin; Dr. Ludwig Wüllner, of Cologne; Herr Victor Klöpfer, of Munich; and Herr Baptist Hoffmann, of Berlin. All were fully adequate to the task assigned them, but as the old established plan of devoting the last day of the Festival to the virtuosic display of 'stars' was very properly abrogated on this occasion, no opportunity was accorded them of parading their virtuosity, except so far as this could be made manifest in the incidental solos of the concerted works in which they took part. Both on the part of soloists, chorus, and orchestra, I cannot recall a finer or more impressive performance of Beethoven's Mass. How truly religious and musically effective it is! I took the precaution of asking Dr. Wüllner how he intended to perform the 'Ninth,' whether in exact accordance with the score as it stands, or according to Wagner or Mahler. (N.B.—Mahler is said to have re-scored it from beginning to end.) He readily replied: 'Nothing of Mahler, but I have learnt something from Wagner, and shall interpolate horns in the Scherzo, without which the melody of the second subject does not sufficiently stand out.' The result of this was that one heard the melody distinctly, but in a somewhat blurred manner. I could not help wishing that he had added trumpets, as Wagner suggested, in case the horns should not suffice. But perhaps Dr. Wüllner has tried this experiment and found it wanting. In adopting this plan, Dr. Wüllner, whose experience as a conductor is only second to that of the veteran August Manns, proved himself to be, if not a 'secessionist' like R. Strauss, at least a broad and open-minded thinker. That he survived the onerous duties of conducting the rehearsals and performances of such an exacting festival can only be accounted for by his possession of an extraordinary iron will, which enables him to extort from his orchestra and chorus the fullest compliance with his wishes. It may here be recalled that he has made choir-training a specialty, and has published a very valuable school-book on this subject.

The programme of Whit Monday stood as follows:—

1. Cantata—"Gott, der Herr, ist Sonn' und Schild" .. Bach.
2. Scena—"Klage Iphigenie" ("Iphigenia's Lament"), from "Iphigenie in Tauris" .. .. Gluck.
3. Symphonic Poem—"Tasso: Lamento e Trionfo" .. Liszt.
4. Te Deum, for Three Choirs, Orchestra, and Organ.. Berlioz.
5. Symphony in C major .. .. Schubert.

Of these pieces, Bach's cantata was the only one which I had not heard before. It is a remarkably vigorous and effective work, which has not yet been brought forward by our Bach Choir, as I have learnt from Dr. Stanford, but is one which may be confidently recommended to the attention of that Society. In speaking of it in his biography of Bach,* Dr. Spitta tells us that it was composed for the Reformation Festival of 1735. He remarks that: 'One of the chief subjects of the opening chorus is instinct with martial vigour and the roar of battle . . . the words, "Gott, der Herr, ist Sonn' und Schild," clearly symbolising that every battle is to be fought in the Name of God.' The work is based, for the most part, upon Psalm lxxxiv., v. 12: 'For the Lord God is a light and defence; the Lord will give grace and worship, and no good thing shall he withhold from them that live a godly life.' The opening chorus is remarkable for its free and independent accompaniment, in which strings, horns, and drums all seem to have a way of their own. Strangely enough, this elaborate orchestral accompaniment is subsequently heard in conjunction with Luther's four-part chorale, 'Nun danket Alle Gott,' which Bach subsequently transferred to his Mass in G, with quite a different accompaniment.

This opening chorus is followed by a quaint aria for contralto, which was most expressively rendered by Fräulein Tilly Koenen, no stranger to London. Then follows the choral, 'Nun danket Alle Gott,' already described. A short recitative for bass (Herr Victor Klöpfer) then leads to a duet for soprano and bass (Frau A. Noordewier-Reddingius and Herr Victor Klöpfer). Dr. Spitta has amusingly described this by saying that, 'In this duet the violins do not content themselves with a contrapuntal accompaniment in Bach's usual manner, but paw the ground like impatient chargers, and burst in upon the voice-parts with unrestrained energy.' A chorale on the melody of 'Wach' auf, mein Herz, und singe,' very freely treated and extended, completes this fine work. If one compares it with choral works of a later date, one comes to the conclusion that more progress has been made in instrumentation than in form and construction.

'Iphigenia's lament at the death of Orestes,' from Gluck's 'Iphigenie in Tauris,' was splendidly declaimed by Frau Noordewier-Reddingius, who was well seconded by a female chorus. It is a movement which well deserves more attention than of late years has been accorded to it in England.

Liszt's symphonic poem, 'Tasso: Lamento e Trionfo,' a work which we have heard in England, but by no means too often, followed. Comparing it with Richard Strauss's symphonic poem 'Don Juan,' heard at the subsequent concert, it seemed simplicity itself, and very effective.

Berlioz's wonderful setting of the Te Deum immediately followed. I had had experience of three previous performances of this remarkable work—viz., on the occasion of its being brought forward, for the first time in England, by Mr. Manns, at the Crystal Palace, on April 18, 1885, and, subsequently, at two performances of the Bach Choir, under the direction of Professor Stanford. But never was I so much impressed with its beauty and originality as on the present occasion. The singing of the double choir, which was reinforced by a third choir of boys from the Dom, and two other choral institutions, placed apart from the general choir in a gallery above them, was most expressive and effective. Dr. Ludwig Wüllner was the only soloist, and did full justice to his part. Here, by way of parenthesis, it may be said that he has acquired fame throughout Germany as a Lied singer, and hopes next year to visit England. Apart from the general excellence of the orchestral playing, especial mention should be made of Professor F. W. Franke, who throughout the Festival presided at the organ, and especially on this occasion gave the fullest possible effect to Berlioz's strangely-written organ accompaniment. Thoroughly exhausted with what I had already heard, I did not stay for Schubert's Grand Symphony in C major, which, probably more familiar in England than in Germany, after half-an-hour's pause, served to complete this inordinately long programme.

* The 'Life of Bach,' by Philipp Spitta, translated from the German by Clara Bell and J. A. Fuller Maitland. London: Novello and Co., Ltd.

The third and last day's performance opened with Brahms's Symphony, No. 1, in C minor, Op. 68. Though the earliest of his symphonies to be produced, I have always thought it the best of the four he has given us. Full justice was done to it in performance. By way of contrast to Brahms's serious style, it was immediately followed by Mozart's lively Concerto in E flat, No. 9 (K. 271), for pianoforte and orchestra. In the rendering of the solo part in this, M. Raoul Pugno, of Paris, by his delicacy of touch and feeling, proved himself to be a thorough-going and exemplary exponent of Mozart. What more he is capable of I cannot say, for I could not stay for his performance of Beethoven's Choral Fantasia, which subsequently brought the Festival to a close.

Mozart's Concerto was immediately followed by Part II. of Schumann's cantata 'Das Paradies und die Peri,' a work which I first made acquaintance with at a Lower Rhine Festival held at Düsseldorf in 1855, and have ever since regarded as one of the finest, if not the finest, of cantatas in existence. On that notable occasion the part of the Peri was wonderfully interpreted by Jenny Lind. I recall that it was at her instigation that it was brought to a first hearing in London by the Philharmonic Society, for on being invited by that Society to sing at one of their concerts, she made it a condition that it should be in the 'Paradise and the Peri.'* With the exception of Herr Klöpfer, all the principal vocalists specified above took part in it, and in a most admirable manner. I was delighted to renew acquaintance with it, for the opportunities of doing so in London have been few and far between. That it has not been more frequently heard here can only be put down to the fact that for its due performance it requires an unusually large number of soloists. If the cost of these cannot be afforded, it may be hinted to concert-giving societies that excerpts from it might from time to time be given with advantage, as on the present occasion.

Wagner was represented by the 'Walküreritt,' Wotan's Abschied and Feuerzauber from 'Die Walküre,' in which the long parting-duet of Wotan and Brünnhilde, with its interminable and suffocating kiss, was effectively rendered by Frau Marie Wittich and Herr Baptist Hoffmann. But apart from its scenic surroundings, though it has become a favourite, I cannot but regard it as utterly unsuited for the concert-room.

Richard Strauss's symphonic poem, 'Don Juan,' as the work of a 'secessionist,' was the culminating point of the Festival. Having studied it some years ago, and having experienced more than one performance of it in London, I thought I knew all about it. But I found that I was mistaken, and had well-nigh forgotten it. By way of refreshing my memory, I took the full score with me to two or three rehearsals. Though by no means the most complicated of Strauss's scores, on reading it at rehearsal I had the feeling that one sees much that one does not hear, and hears much that one does not see. The lesson that this conveyed to me was that such complicated scores as Strauss's should not be read at rehearsals, unless they have been previously studied in private. At the public performance, to which of course I took no score, it came out with its full force; but I could not help feeling that it was taken in the main at a somewhat too rapid pace for its due effect. There is no denying that it is a very remarkable work of a very progressive kind. Curiously enough, Strauss began his life as a composer, somewhat after the manner of Brahms, as a 'classicist,' but during the period of Bülow's career at Meiningen, came under the influence of Alexander Ritter—whose works deserve far more recognition than they have yet attained—and by him was led to turn his attention to the so-called 'music of the future,' as exemplified by Berlioz, Liszt, and Wagner. To this he succumbed, and has gone ahead in a most decided manner. Whether he is right in this mode of procedure time alone can prove.

The Festival was supplemented by a banquet, at which I was not present, but at which, I am told, Dr. Wüllner, notwithstanding the fatigue he had gone through as sole conductor of rehearsals and performances, delivered a most impressive speech. Floreat Colonia! C. A. B.

* At the Hanover Square Rooms, under Sterndale Bennett, on June 23, 1856, when Queen Victoria was present and Jenny Lind sang.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF PUBLISHERS.

(BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Fourth International Congress of Publishers, under the presidency of Herr Albert Brockhaus, was held at Leipzig, on the 10th, 11th, 12th, and 13th ult. A special feature of this Congress was the formation, for the first time, of a Music Trade Section, now known as Section C. Between three and four hundred Publishers of all kinds, and from all countries, took part in the proceedings; and some sixty Music Publishers assembled in the historic city for the purpose of taking part in the deliberations and resolutions of Section C (The Music Trade). The English contingent included the following: — Mr. Augustus J. Littleton and Mr. Henry R. Clayton (of Novello and Co., Ltd.), Mr. Eugen Ascherberg, Mr. C. E. D. Willcocks (of Willcocks and Co., Ltd.), Mr. Reynolds, Mr. David Day (of Francis, Day and Hunter), Mr. J. A. Hammond (of A. Hammond and Co.), and Mr. Otto Kling (of Breitkopf and Härtel). On the evening of Sunday, the 9th ult., a reception was held by the President of the Congress at his residence, No. 17, Salmonstrasse, and largely attended by the members of the Congress.

The business of the Congress commenced at 9 o'clock on the morning of Monday, the 10th ult., at the famous Buchhändlerhaus. The scheme of the Congress was as follows:—

Section A.—Authors' and Publishers' rights.
" B.—For the Book Trade.
" C.—For the Music Trade.

The Meetings in the mornings were General Meetings of the three Sections combined, and it was the business of the General Meetings to adopt, qualify, or reject the resolutions passed by the three Sections individually. The afternoon Meetings were devoted to the papers to be read by, and the working generally of, the three Sections individually, each Section having had a special room, in the Buchhändlerhaus, allotted to it for the purpose of its own Meetings.

Section C had for discussion a programme which consisted of five papers—viz.:—

1. 'The territorial sub-division of Copyright property,' by Mr. Henry R. Clayton (Novello and Co.), in which the writer proposed that in all cases where the original publisher, having held an undivided copyright, internationally protected, afterwards divides his copyright, assigning portions of it to one or more foreign countries, the legislature, or other representative body in each country which recognises the copyright, should make it imperative (i.) That the assignor print, on all copies issued by him after the assignment, the name and address of the assignee of the copyright in each foreign country; (ii.) That the assignee notify by advertisement, in some specified official newspaper, the particulars of the copyright acquired by him for his own country, and (iii.) That until such advertisement shall have appeared no legal proceedings by the assignee to restrain the importation of copies from the country of the original publisher, be permitted.

2. 'The published price and discount in the music trade,' by Herr Henri Hinrichsen (C. F. Peters, Leipzig), in which the writer made many valuable suggestions for regulating internationally the publication of music at net prices, the marking of foreign music upon a uniform system according to the foreign rate of exchange, and the allowance of discount to the public.

3. 'The appropriation of Copyright music by the manufacturers of mechanical instruments,' by Mr. Arthur Boosey, represented at the Congress by Mr. Otto Kling, in which the writer advocated national legislation and international treaties, for the purpose of protecting copyright owners against the manufacturers of mechanical music instruments, and the interchangeable cylinders, sheets, rolls, bands, and discs, containing reproductions of copyright musical compositions, sold in connection with such instruments.

4. 'Piracies of Copyright property,' by street hawkers, by Mr. David Day (Francis, Day and Hunter), in which Mr. Day urged the necessity of making the piracy of copyright music by street hawkers a misdemeanour and punishable accordingly.

5. 'The international understanding of the music trade,' by Dr. Oskar von Hase (Breitkopf and Härtel).

Dr. Oskar von Hase's paper advocated the establishment of a permanent 'International Music Trade Association'; but, as the Congress in General Meeting had already decided to establish at Berne, with Mon. Henri Morel as honorary secretary, a permanent bureau of publishers generally, it was considered that Dr. von Hase's admirable paper had become practically unnecessary, seeing that the permanent Bureau at Berne would afford all the necessary machinery for the transaction of music publishers' business, as well as that of other publishers. It was accordingly decided not to proceed with Dr. Oskar von Hase's paper for the present, notwithstanding the many excellent propositions contained in it. With this exception the resolutions attached to the various papers above enumerated were unanimously adopted by Section C, and they subsequently received the official mark of approval of the entire Congress in General Meeting.

The reading of these papers and the discussion which ensued entirely engrossed the attention of the members of Section C throughout their meetings, and the resolutions passed by them constitute the net result of the Leipzig Congress as far as the Music Publishers' Section is concerned.

But besides the business of the Congress, the official programme included a series of perfectly bewildering entertainments of various kinds for the delectation and refreshment of those who attended the Congress. On Monday a sumptuous banquet was given to the entire Congress in the Buchhändlerhaus. Many excellent speeches were made, but perhaps the speech of the evening was that delivered by our own Mr. John Murray, of Albemarle Street, a former President of the Congress (London, 1899). The proceedings were marked throughout by the utmost cordiality, good fellowship, and 'internationality.'

On Tuesday a Gala Concert was arranged in the famous Gewandhaus, followed by a banquet in the large Hall which forms part of the building. It is almost impossible to conceive a finer rendering of the following programme than that achieved by Professor Arthur Nikisch and his orchestra, which is considered in Leipzig to be the finest in Germany. The programme consisted of the following: Overtures, 'Leonore' (No. 3), Beethoven, and 'Tannhäuser,' Wagner; Haydn's Symphony in G; Liszt's Symphonic Poem, 'Les Préludes'; the air 'Charmant oiseau,' from David's 'La Perle du Brésil,' sung by Fräulein Martha Perini, with flute obbligato by Herr Oscar Fischer; and Isolde's Liebestod, sung by Frau Paula Doenges.

A Bierabend, on Wednesday evening, in the hall of the Zoological Gardens, was the most attractive feature of the evening entertainments in which all took part, but the members of Section C were additionally favoured, having previously enjoyed the genial hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. von Hase at dinner at their house in Leipzig.

It is difficult to imagine a more splendid reception than that prepared for their brother publishers by the Leipzig Committee. Everything was done on a most sumptuous and imposing scale, and everybody was most cordial and kind. The success of the Meeting was absolutely unqualified, and Section C had reason to congratulate itself on the very satisfactory results of its first introduction to these Congresses. Where everyone was so attentive, so anxious to please, and so successful in pleasing, it is a little difficult to thank individuals, but Section C would be apparently ungrateful if it failed to place on record its keen appreciation of all that it owes to Herr Albert Brockhaus, to Dr. Oskar von Hase, to Herr Max Brockhaus, to Herr Fritz Schuberth, Junr., and to Mr. Arthur E. Bosworth, all of Leipzig.

PIANOFORTE RECITALS.

MR. FRIEDHEIM opened his recital, on May 30, at St. James's Hall, with Beethoven's 'Thirty-three Variations on a Waltz by Diabelli.' He printed in his programme a series of titles for the different sections, which for the most part agreed with those Von Bülow evolved out of his inner consciousness. These will be found in THE MUSICAL TIMES for September, 1895, p. 594, which our readers may like to compare with those given by Mr. Friedheim—namely, 1. March; 2. Whirls; 3. Duet; 4. Terzetto

5. Quartet; 6. Trills; 7. Club Strokes; 8. Arioso; 9. War Dance; 10. Haste; 11. Contemplation; 12. Activity; 13. Echo; 14. High Priests; 15. Scherzo giocoso; 16. Study for the left hand; 17. Study for the right hand; 18. Whims; 19. Scherzo in Canon form; 20. Sphinxes; 21. Contrasts; 22. Alla Leporello; 23. Outbursts; 24. Fugato (quasi-organo); 25. Elves' Dance; 26. Butterflies; 27. Humoresque; 28. Carneval; 29. Mourning; 30. Lament; 31. Elegy (after the style of Bach); 32. Double Fugue (after the style of Handel); 33. Menuet (after the style of Mozart). Mr. Friedheim played them without repeats and at an extreme pace, but many of the variations were very finely rendered. A second recital was given on the 21st ult.

The most memorable feature of M. Godowsky's playing, at his recitals at St. James's Hall, on May 31 and on the 12th ult., was his technical facility, which even in these days must be regarded as extraordinary. His arrangements of Chopin's Etudes are to be condemned. To alter such masterpieces with the chief object of increasing their difficulties for virtuoso display is inartistic and, moreover, quite unnecessary. The consummate ease with which M. Godowsky met the difficulties of his own creation was astonishing; but it is to be regretted that a pianist of such attainments should seek to attract by such devices, for his performances of other works were distinguished by intellectuality and reverence for the composers which excited esteem.

Concerning other recitals at St. James's Hall, little need be said of M. de Pachmann's, on the 5th and 22nd ult. As in previous years, his interpretations of Chopin were ideal. Madame Carreño's style is also fairly well known. It is essentially masculine in its breadth and robustness, but deficient in tenderness and poetical suggestiveness. The most memorable feature of her recitals, on the 10th and 17th ult., was a very fine reading, on the first occasion, of Beethoven's Sonata in E flat (Op. 31, No. 3). Herr Ernest Schelling, who gave a recital on the 7th ult., is one of those players who exact, rather than win, admiration, and this does not make for popularity; but he is an estimable artist. Witness was borne in The Musical Times for last month to the remarkable abilities of Mr. Harold Bauer, and the opinions then expressed were confirmed by his masterly and significant playing at his recital on the 13th ult.

Mr. Donald Tovey, who may be said to have revived the interest of pianists in variation form, is certainly one of the most intellectual pianists of to-day, and his great abilities were particularly shown at his third recital on May 23, and by his artistic playing of Brahms on the 20th ult., at St. James's Hall. Mention should also be made of the brilliant playing of Mr. Frederick Dawson at his recital, in the same hall, on the 15th ult.

There is no need to say more concerning M. Paderewski's recital on the 18th ult., at St. James's Hall, than that he gave remarkably fine readings of Beethoven's Sonata in C (Op. 53) and Schumann's Sonata in F sharp minor (Op. 11), and played a Chopin selection with great brilliancy.

The new Bechstein Hall will probably be much favoured by budding pianists. Two such merit special mention: Miss Evelyn Suart and Miss Kathleen Bruckshaw. The former gave a recital on the 3rd ult. which included Ludwig Schytte's Sonata in B flat (Op. 53), a little known but brilliant work, and her renderings of this and a series of commendably unhackneyed pieces testified to musical sensibility and considerable executive ability. Miss Bruckshaw's recitals, on the 4th and 18th ult., bore witness to her possessing talents of a high order. In common with the majority of young artists of keen sensibilities, her emotions are not always under that intellectual control which is necessary to secure effective expression; but her interpretations promise that greater power of repression will come with more experience. Mdlle. Girod, who gave a series of three recitals on the 5th, 13th, and 21st ult., is another artist who merits encouragement.

Mdlle. Marcia Pery made her first public appearance in England on the 19th ult., at Bechstein Hall, and proved herself to be a vivacious and fluent executant. Some pieces from her own pen testified to imaginativeness and musicianship.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS, &c.

Mr. Robert Newman's recent orchestral concerts, conducted by Mr. Henry J. Wood, at the Queen's Hall, have been distinguished by remarkably impressive readings of long acknowledged masterpieces; but the works performed are so familiar that detailed criticism would be superfluous. On the 4th ult. exceptional interest was imparted to the programme by the selection, consisting of Wagner's 'Faust' Overture and the overtures and preludes to his dramatic works, being played in chronological succession. At this concert Mdlle. de Larouviere made her first appearance in England, and created a favourable impression in Elizabeth's greeting and prayer from 'Tannhäuser.' The concert on the 11th ult. was devoted to Beethoven, M. Ysaye and Signor Busoni being respectively the soloists in the Violin and 'Emperor' concertos. On the 18th the programme was selected from Tschaïkowsky's compositions, and M. Ysaye was the soloist in the Violin Concerto in D (Op. 35).

At the Richter concert at St. James's Hall, on the 3rd ult., Tschaïkowsky's Sixth Symphony in B minor was the most important work, and received a finished though not entirely satisfactory interpretation. On the following Monday, the 10th ult., very fine renderings were secured of the Overtures to 'Rienzi,' 'Der Fliegende Holländer,' 'Tannhäuser,' and the preludes to 'Lohengrin,' 'Tristan und Isolde,' and 'Parsifal.' Mr. Andrew Black was the vocalist.

Mr. George A. Clinton concluded his ninth series of chamber concerts, on the 5th ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall, when the first performance was given of a Quintet in D for pianoforte, violin, clarinet, horn, and violoncello, by Mr. R. Vaughan Williams, a work in which he evinces considerable originality of conception. The composition was admirably interpreted by Miss Llewella Davies, Miss Jessie Grimson, and Messrs. Clinton, Borsdorf, and Parker. The programme also contained a set of old French dances (Altfranzöische Tänze), Op. 12, by Herr H. Scherrer, which had not previously been performed in London. The series comprises a Bourrée, Sarabande, Menuet, Gavotte, and Musette for wind instruments, and is very melodious and light-hearted in character.

A new enterprise, styled 'The Artists' Popular Concerts,' started at St. James's Hall, on the 6th ult., a subsequent performance taking place on the 20th ult. at the Bechstein Hall. A prominent feature of the scheme is the assistance rendered by a small orchestra, conducted by Mr. Johann Davies. These players gave, on the 6th ult., the first performance of a new Suite of pleasing character, consisting of three pieces, severally named 'Bagatelle,' 'Melody,' and 'Waltz,' composed by Mr. Arthur Somervell.

The Westminster Orchestral Society gave one of its concerts on the 12th ult., when commendable performances were given of Mr. Harry Farjeon's dainty little Suite on Hans Andersen's 'Fairy Tales' and Mr. A. H. Reed's Valse Brillante. Other works in the programme were Sullivan's Overture to 'Macbeth,' Stanford's 'Irish' Symphony, and Mozart's Overture to 'Figaro.' Mr. Stewart Macpherson conducted with his usual skill.

The South Hampstead Orchestra, conducted by Mrs. Julian Marshall, earned commendation at St. James's Hall, on the 17th ult., when its sixteenth annual concert took place. Ladies formed nearly half the number of executants, indeed, the lighter string department was almost monopolised by them. Spirit, expression, and well-controlled force marked the performance of Schumann's Symphony in C, Brahms's Variations on a theme by Haydn, and Schubert's 'Rosamunde' overture; Miss Amabel Marshall ably rendered the solo part in Bach's Concerto in G, for violin, two flutes, and strings, and Mr. Thomas Meux successfully sang pieces by Grétry and Wagner.

The series of violin and pianoforte recitals at the Queen's Hall, by M. Ysaye and Signor Busoni, have provided many enjoyable hours. The combination of these artists is singularly happy, they not only seem to perfectly understand each other's style, but to agree in their views of the requirements of each composer, and consequently ideal interpretations of many masterpieces have resulted. At the recital on the 6th ult. the programme consisted of three sonatas—Schumann's in D minor (Op. 121), that by Brahms, in the same key (Op. 108), Rubinstein's in B minor (Op. 98), which were superbly interpreted. On the 13th ult. the afternoon opened with César Franck's noble Sonata in A and concluded with M. Saint-Saëns's example in D, the artists playing solos intervening. The concluding recital, on the 20th ult., was entirely devoted to Beethoven, and comprised the Sonatas in G, C minor, and A (Op. 47).

Señor Sarasate and Madame Berthe Marx gave a second violin and pianoforte recital, on the 4th ult., at St. James's Hall. The concerted works were Beethoven's 'Kreutzer' Sonata, Bach's Third Sonata in E major, and M. Saint-Saëns's Concerto (Op. 20), the last being most brilliantly rendered.

M. Kubelik concluded his series of violin recitals at St. James's Hall, on the 8th ult., but they proved so successful that he was induced to give an extra performance on the 19th ult., when the gifted young artist showed that he is gaining greater command of the higher elements of his art.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederiksen's annual concert took place, on May 31, at Steinway Hall, when an interesting selection of Scandinavian music, including an effective and well-written sonata by M. Hugo Alven, was pleasingly interpreted.

Mr. F. Korbay, who has done so much to familiarise us with Hungarian songs, gave an attractive concert, on the 14th ult., at St. James's Hall. The programme contained some of his best songs and arrangements, which were sung by Miss Suzanne Adams, Miss Susan Strong, Mdlle. Marie Brema, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, and Mr. Plunket Greene.

Signor Aldo Antonietti, a young violinist whose exceptional ability has already attracted much attention, gave a recital, on the 14th ult., at the Bechstein Hall, when he again gave promise of becoming an artist of the first rank.

The scheme of the Curtius Club concerts has been disturbed by the illness of Mrs. Henschel and by Herr Van Rooy having to return to Germany; but an attractive evening was given at the Bechstein Hall, on the 8th ult., when Mdlle. Camilla Landi sang with great brilliancy an extremely interesting and comprehensive selection of songs, and Herr Kálmán Roney contributed violin solos.

A pleasing concert was given, on the 14th ult., at Steinway Hall, by Miss Cordelia Grylls, who sang with great taste a commendable selection of English songs, and was assisted by Mr. Denham Price, Miss Muriel Handley (violoncello), Miss Mukle, and Mr. Stanley Hawley; the enjoyment of the afternoon was enhanced by Mr. Charles Fry's recitations.

The Nonconformist Choir Union held its thirteenth annual festival at the Crystal Palace on the 15th ult., and had the largest attendance of visitors on its records. The choir, notwithstanding the adverse action of the railway companies in refusing easy terms for its members, made a large muster on the Handel orchestra. The vocalists were Miss Kate Cherry and Madame Edith Hands, who sang one song each, and were obliged to repeat the duet 'Quis est Homo,' by Rossini. Mr. Fountain Meen gave a very capital rendering, with the orchestra, of Handel's Organ Concerto in B flat. Mr. E. Minshall, as usual, conducted the choral numbers and Mr. T. R. Croger the solos and orchestral works, which included Gounod's Marche Nuptiale. All the instrumental work was done by the Union's own band. During the morning a competition was held, under the adjudication of Dr. E. H. Turpin. The prize offered for small choirs was taken by the Lytham Congregational choir and that for large choirs by Bilston Wesleyan choir. In the afternoon Mr. Arthur Berridge's new cantata, 'The Love of God,' was given by a choir of 150 voices and four soloists. It was a distinct success. Mr. W. C. Webb, of Clapton, brought the Union's work to a conclusion with an organ recital. The following is a record of the attendances at these Festivals during the past three years:—

1899.	1900.	1901.
14,182.	15,005.	20,563.

The Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society gave an exceptionally fine performance of 'Elijah,' on the 13th ult., under the able direction of Mr. Allen Gill. The choruses were sung with great spirit, and the principal solo vocalists were Madame Sobrino, Madame Marian Mackenzie, Mr. E. Branscombe, and Mr. Watkin Mills.

In the London Gregorian Choral Association's annual festival in St. Paul's Cathedral, on the 20th ult., no symptom of declining interest was apparent. Evensong was well carried through, with Dr. Warwick Jordan as organist, and there was a large attendance. The choralists alone numbered nearly a thousand, and their singing of the hymns, Psalm civ. (from a new edition of Helmore's Psalter), and the canticles was marked both by precision and heartiness. Justice was also done to Sir George Martin's imposing anthem, 'Hail, gladdening Light.' The share in the service taken by the congregation testified to the success of the Society in advancing the practice of plainsong.

The Tonic Sol-fa Association held its annual festival at the Crystal Palace on the 8th ult., when the diamond jubilee of the movement was celebrated by two concerts on the Handel orchestra. In the afternoon over 5,000 juvenile certificated singers, drawn from sixty-six choirs, of which all but four belonged to the metropolis, sang patriotic and humorous songs with a steadiness that spoke well for the skill of the conductor, Mr. S. Filmer Rook. Mr. C. H. Rowcliffe was at the organ. The second concert, with an adult choir of 1,500 and an orchestra of 300, Mr. L. C. Venables conducting and Mr. H. W. Weston being organist, was of a more ambitious character. Stanford's 'Last Post' and excerpts from Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen' were rendered with commendable spirit and observance of detail. Mr. Charles Knowles was the vocalist.

The annual Invitation concert of the Magpie Madrigal Society, directed by Mr. Lionel Benson, took place on May 23. The programme included the madrigals 'I will no more' and 'Come, lovers, follow me,' both by Morley, Weelkes's 'When David heard,' and 'Super flumina Babylonis,' by Orlando di Lasso; also the motet, 'Ecce prandium meum,' by Sweelinck, and three of Brahms's 'Fest und Gedenksprüche.' Modern composers were represented by Dr. Alan Gray's rondel, 'Long ago to thee I gave,' S. H. Nicholson's madrigal 'Phillida flouts me,' S. P. Waddington's 'O mistress mine,' G. von Holst's 'Ave Maria' for female voices, and two Irish folk-songs, arranged in four parts, by Dr. Stanford. Altogether a highly interesting selection. Mrs. Hutchinson, Mr. Lloyd Rand, and Mr. Plunket Greene were the vocalists.

The new handsome and commodious concert hall built by Messrs. Bechstein, adjacent to their premises in Wigmore Street, was opened on May 31. The hall is in the Renaissance style of architecture, from designs by Mr. Colcutt. It is handsomely decorated, the sides being panelled with mahogany, interposed with lofty pillars of Numidian marble. The cupola, which, supported by a marble arch, surmounts the platform, displays an allegorical painting appropriate to the divine art. The hall, which is well ventilated, is capable of seating nearly 600 persons, and a notable feature is the arrangement of the artists' rooms on a level with and immediately adjacent to the platform, a convenience which artists will fully appreciate. The artists who took part in the opening concerts, on May 31 and the 1st ult., were Messrs. Ysaye, Busoni, and De Pachmann, Mr. Ben Davies and Mr. Plunket Greene.

The Trinity College (London) students' and choir concert, at Westminster Town Hall, on the 10th ult., was marked by effective performances, under Dr. Henry J. Pringuer, of old and new part-music. Dowland's madrigal 'Come again, sweet days,' Morley's 'What saith my dainty darling?' and similar compositions were in interesting contrast with such modern works as Sullivan's 'Echoes,' Leslie's 'Charm me asleep,' and C. H. Lloyd's 'Allan-a-Dale.' Horsley's fine glee 'See, the chariot at hand,' in particular, was very spiritedly rendered.

The annual concert of the Girls' Friendly Society's Choral Union took place at St. Andrew's Hall, on the 8th ult., when Mr. J. Maude Crament's cantata 'Little Red Riding-Hood' was performed, together with a selection of part-songs, under the able direction of Mr. Edward G. Croager. Mr. William T. Croager was an efficient accompanist.

Mr. J. B. McEwen gave an Invitation concert at the Royal Academy of Music on May 24, when a number of original works by this clever young composer were performed. These included a Concerto for the viola and incidental music to two recitations—Hall Caine's 'Graih my Chree' and Tennyson's 'Romney's remorse.' The concerto is well written, although distinctly difficult, and was excellently played by Mr. Lionel Tertis and Miss Marion White. The music to the two poems, which were very ably recited by Mrs. Tobias Matthay, is appropriate and effective.

The Kensington Amateur Harmonic Society gave a concert at Philbeach Hall, on the 11th ult., when the chief features of the programme were Smart's 'Bride of Dunkerron' and Gounod's 'Gallia.' Mrs. Hutchinson sang the solo in the latter work, and in Smart's cantata was associated with Mr. Harry Stubbs and Mr. Francis Braun. The choir sang well in the cantatas, under the able direction of Mr. Cyril Miller, and was also heard in Gibbons's madrigal 'The Silver Swan' and an Elizabethan Pastoral by Dr. Stanford.

Mr. Arthur Somervell's operetta, 'Princess Zara,' was performed at Myddelton Hall, on May 23, by the pupils of Richmond College, Barnsbury. The children had evidently been well trained, their enunciation of the text being excellent, and they entered into their work with interest and enthusiasm. The singing of the choruses was good and there was a small orchestra under the direction of Mr. Vincent Betjemann. Every credit is due to Miss Rosalie Notrelle for the successful result of her training and for the manner in which the operetta was produced.

Other recitals and concerts meriting record are:—Queen's (Small) Hall: Miss M. Cracroft, concerts, 7th and 11th ult. St. James's Hall: Mr. J. Ivimey, concert, May 30; Miss Witting, concert, 1st ult.; Misses Evelyn and Bryer, concert, 7th ult.; Miss L. Devlin, recital, 11th ult.; Miss Adela Verne, pianoforte recital, 12th ult.; Miss Ellen Bowick and Mr. Mackinley, recital, 13th ult.; Miss Fennings, violin recital, 14th ult.; Miss A. May, concert, 19th ult. Bechstein Hall: Messrs. Cole and Baxter, vocal recital, 7th ult.; Mr. Beel, violin recital, 10th ult.; Miss H. Morgan, vocal recital, 11th ult.; Mrs. H. Trust, vocal recital, 12th ult.; Herr Lierhammer, vocal recital, 13th ult.; Miss T. del Riego, recital, 17th ult.; M. Carl Weber, concert, 19th ult.; M. Bowcherit, recital, 20th ult. Steinway Hall: Miss F. Smart, concert, May 30; Mr. Heathcote, concert, May 31; Mr. A. Humphrey, violin recital, 3rd ult.; Mr. J. Sutcliffe, violin recital, 5th ult.; Madame Rous and Mr. E. Spark, concert, 6th ult.; Miss E. MacCormac, recital, 7th ult.; Madame R. Bird, vocal recital, 10th ult.; Miss I. Herschfeld, pianoforte and vocal recital, 10th ult.; Miss Jessie King, concert, 19th ult. Salle Erard: Mr. Desider Nemes, violin recital, 6th ult.; Miss A. Landell and Miss E. Agar, concert, 6th ult.; Miss Daley, vocal concert, 13th ult. Portman Rooms: Miss Bryant, concert, 17th ult.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE musical matinées in connection with the Spring Exhibition of the Birmingham Royal Society of Artists ended on the 8th ult., and now the energetic director, Mr. Oscar Pollack, is starting a series of Summer concerts in the Exhibition Hall of the Edgbaston Botanical Gardens. They provide excellent openings for young local artists, and are well supported.

The Midland Institute School of Music held a Students' concert in the Town Hall, on the 18th ult. It was the most ambitious display yet attempted, and showed the influence already brought to bear by the principal, Mr. Granville Bantock. The work he got out of the students' choir and orchestra was really surprising. A very finished and artistic rendering of Brahms's 'Song of Destiny' was the great feature of the concert; and the choir afterwards gave Morley's 'Now is the month of Maying,' with crisp, playful expression. Vocal solos were contributed by Miss Rosina Buckmann, Miss Eva Dickinson, Miss Editha Sankey, and Miss Lillian Millward. Miss Bessie Clarke was the soloist in Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in G (Op. 58), and Mr. Harold Ketelbey played Wieniawski's Violin Concerto in D minor. All the accompaniments were admirably rendered by the orchestra, and Mr. Bantock, in this his first public appearance, proved himself a first-rate conductor. Everything passed off well, and the concert, which was open to the public, was fully appreciated by an audience that crowded the hall in every part.

On Monday, the 17th ult., at the Prince of Wales Theatre, the D'Oyly Carte repertory company began a week's season of Gilbert-Sullivan operas. 'The Rose of Persia' is now added. There were full houses, and the performances were of the usual order of excellence.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MISS PAULINE ELSNER'S vocal and instrumental recital on the last day of May was one of the most enjoyable musical events of the season. Mrs. A. McStewart sang some classical songs by Brahms, Schubert, and Franz, and two traditional Jacobite airs, arranged by Malcolm Lawson, in her usually charming manner. Mr. D'Alton also sang with much taste and expression. Mr. Wilhelmj played Ernst's 'Melodies Hongroises,' and Mr. Carl Fuchs's violoncello playing was the best thing of the kind we have heard for some time in Dublin, Tschaikowsky's 'Pezzo Capriccioso' being perhaps the most effective of the many beautiful pieces he performed. Miss Elsner played all the accompaniments.

The annual prize distribution to the Academy pupils took place on the 4th ult., in the Royal University, in the presence of an enormous crowd. After the Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor had distributed the awards, an excellent concert was given by the pupils, at which Dr. Jozé conducted an admirable string band composed of past and present pupils of the Academy.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A DISTRICT Festival of the Norwich Diocesan Church Choral Association was held in the Parish Church, Diss, on the 11th ult., conducted by Dr. Bates. About 200 voices from the neighbouring parishes were present. The service included Maunder's anthem, 'Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem,' and an unaccompanied anthem, 'I will lay me down in peace,' composed by Dr. Bates. Mr. Hemstock presided at the organ, and the Diss Church Orchestral Band took part in the service.

The annual concert, in aid of Framlingham College, arranged by the head-master, the Rev. O. D. Inskip, took place on the 10th ult. Two movements from Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor were well played by Miss Ethel Cave (pianoforte), Mr. Gerald Walenn (violin), and Mr. Herbert Walenn (violoncello); the two gentlemen were also heard in solos, the first in Wieniawski's 'Air Russe' and the second in Popper's 'Polonaise.' The vocalists were Miss Florence Bethell and Mr. Harry Stubbs, whose respective songs were greatly appreciated by the audience.

The Wymondham Amateur Operatic Company gave a series of four performances of Sullivan's comic opera, 'The Pirates of Penzance,' in Norwich Theatre, on the 6th, 7th, and 8th ult., conducted by Mr. A. S. Wilde. Considering that both principals and chorus were drawn from a small market town the result was highly satisfactory, and the performance reflected great credit upon the company, both vocally and histrionically.

A new Japanese Musical Masque, written by Mr. L'Aigle Cole, with music by Mr. J. A. Harcourt, entitled 'The Feast of Lilies, or the Mikado's Bravado,' was produced at a Japanese Fête, held in the Plantation, Norwich, on the 19th ult. The libretto, although slight in plot, has been well put together, and Mr. Harcourt has composed some very pleasing and taking music which was satisfactorily interpreted by local amateurs. At present the accompaniments are confined to pianoforte, harmonium, and violin.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Choir of St. Mary's Cathedral, assisted by those of St. Peter's and St. Paul's Episcopal Churches, and accompanied by an orchestra of forty-five performers (largely amateur), sang Gounod's 'Redemption' in the Cathedral, on May 23. The rendering was both artistic and devotional, the blending and tone of the voices being admirable. The boys' voices, especially, were excellent. Interesting and conscientious readings of the solo numbers were given by Messrs. Mackenzie, Howes, Gledhill, and Ballingall, and Masters Burns, Graham, Robertson, and Jenkison. Mr. T. H. Collinson conducted.

A most important musical event took place in the Music Hall on the evening of May 25, when the Union of Choirs of the Edinburgh Presbytery of the United Free Church gave their first service of sacred music. The service was on festival scale, no fewer than sixty-nine choirs in Edinburgh and Leith contributing each its quota to the body of 350 singers who filled the orchestra gallery. The Union was formed last year with the object of improving the music in the churches of the denomination, and, judging even from present results, the benefit to local psalmody must eventually be far-reaching.

All things considered, the service was a pronounced success. The numbers which were sung antiphonally were possibly not so steady, but the 'Hallelujah' chorus went admirably. The service also included Smart's Te Deum in F, 'Blessed be the God and Father' (Wesley), and hymns by Goss and Dykes; Mr. Alfred Hollins played his own Andante in D, Guilmant's Grand Chœur in E flat, and an offertory, with great charm and technical skill, and Mr. W. B. Ross accompanied the choral numbers. Mr. A. Scott Jupp conducted. The Rev. Dr. Rainy, Rev. Dr. Mair, and other prominent clergymen took part in the proceedings. All interested in the success of local church music must hope for the prosperity of the Union.

Dr. McNaught gave a most interesting and instructive address to the Edinburgh Musical Education Society in Charlotte Square Institution, on the evening of the 10th ult. His subject was 'Hints on Ear Training,' and a large and most representative body of musicians assembled to hear the address. The after-discussion was taken part in by, among others, Professor Niecks (who presided), Mr. Alfred Hollins, Mr. Walter Hateley, and Mr. Sneddon, and warm thanks were tendered to Dr. McNaught for his admirable and valuable address.

The lamented death of Sir John Stainer is as keenly felt in Scotland as elsewhere; and at this time of the year, when his annual visit of inspection to the Training Colleges was wont to be made, he is much in the minds of those who remember his charming personality, and the rare tact and geniality that characterised his dealings with the students with whom he had to do. In at least two of the local colleges compositions of his were included as a tribute to his memory, perhaps the most important of these being the 'Crucifixion,' which was most devotionally rendered by the students of the Established Church Training College. Stanford's 'Last Post' received its first hearing in Scotland on the same occasion. It is most satisfactory to know that the examiners find everywhere a continuance of that advancement in musical knowledge and feeling which has been a feature of Scottish Normal College work for some years past.

The Edinburgh Diocesan Choral Festival took place in St. Mary's Cathedral on the 22nd ult., too late for inclusion in the present notice.

MUSIC IN OXFORD.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Owing to the fact that there has been practically no Commemoration here this year, the festivities and concerts during the present term have not been anything like as numerous as usual.

The first concert of importance took place in the Town Hall, on May 1, when the Berlin Quartet, with Dr. Joachim as leader, gave an excellent chamber concert. The three works constituting the programme were Haydn's String Quartet, in C major (Op. 54, No. 2), Mozart's Quartet in E flat major, and Beethoven's Quartet in F minor (Op. 95).

The next concert—an orchestral one—took place in the same building, on May 21, when Dr. Stanford and the students of the Royal College of Music gave a delightful afternoon's music, commencing with a very striking and picturesque Fairy Suite, by Mr. W. Y. Hurlstone, an ex-scholar of the College. The performance also included Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor, the solo part being capitally played by Miss Florence Smith, while Beethoven's ever-welcome Symphony in F (Op. 93) concluded the programme.

On the evening of the same day Exeter gave its concert, in the College Hall, the principal features being Spohr's 'Dramatic' Violin Concerto, of which the solo part was admirably played by Mrs. Douglas Scott, and Grieg's 'Peer Gynt' Suite.

On May 27 an excellent concert was given at Queen's, the first part consisting of Mozart's Symphony in E flat, known as 'The Clarinet,' a remarkably fine performance being secured under the baton of Dr. Iliffe, and the cantata for men's voices, 'Delphi,' by the Rev. Dr. Mee. The cantata contains many features of interest, and went with great swing and vigour under the composer's direction.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Antwerp.—In memory of the late Peter Benoit a performance took place, on the 9th ult., in the Centenary Hall, of one of the Flemish master's most important and impressive works—viz., the 'Rubens Cantata,' composed in 1877, for the celebrations in connection with the tercentenary of the birth of the great painter. In the presence of a crowded audience, including the King and royal family, the colossal work was finely rendered by some 850 executants, under the direction of M. Keurvels, and received with enthusiasm.

Augsburg.—At the musical festival which took place here in Whitsun week, the programme was illustrative of the development of German music during the nineteenth century, and included works by Beethoven, Weber, Mendelssohn ('Elijah'), Brahms, Wagner, and others. Herr Wilhelm Weber was the principal conductor, while Herr Siegfried Wagner conducted the 'Parsifal' Prelude and Liszt's symphonic poem 'Les Préludes.' There was a choir of over 900 voices and an orchestra of 132 members.

Bayreuth.—At a concert given in honour of the anniversary of Wagner's birth, a most favourable impression was produced by Herr Beidler, the master's son-in-law, as conductor of the Eroica' symphony, by Beethoven, Liszt's 'Tasso,' and the Overture to 'Der Fliegende Holländer.' Herr Beidler had previously been known to the public only in his capacity of an excellent pianist.—— In the forthcoming performances at the Festspielhaus there will be four conductors—viz., Dr. Hans Richter, Felix Mottl, Dr. Muck of Berlin, and Siegfried Wagner. An unusually large number of tickets has been disposed of this year in Germany, this being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the inauguration of the Festspiele, and the season promises to be a very brilliant one.

Bremen.—The performance, which took place recently, of the 'Oresteia' of Æschylus, adapted for the modern stage by Dr. Oberländer, and with the music written for the work by Max Schillings, attracted great attention in literary and musical circles. The very efficient chorus of amateurs, together with the Philharmonic orchestra, under Capellmeister Jäger's direction, rendered the musical numbers with much effect, and contributed their full share to the success of a truly memorable performance.

Brescia.—Yet another one-act opera of the 'Cavalleria Rusticana' type, and entitled 'Celeste,' has recently been brought out with much success at the Guglielmo Theatre. The composer is Giuseppe Orsini.

Catania.—In connection with the coming celebrations of the centenary of the birth of Bellini, prizes consisting of diplomas of honour and gold and silver medals, have been offered by the committee of management for a string quartet, a pianoforte piece (solo or duet), and a song with pianoforte accompaniment.

Christiania.—A performance took place on May 26, at the new National Theatre, of Wagner's 'Der Fliegende Holländer,' this having been the first representation of an opera by the Bayreuth master in the capital of Norway.

Crefeld.—A very successful performance, by a select choir, under the direction of Herr Müller-Reuter, was given recently of Max Bruch's oratorio "Gustavus Adolphus."

Dresden.—The long-expected first performance of M. Paderewski's opera 'Manru' took place at the Royal Theatre, on May 29, with very considerable success. The libretto, from the pen of Dr. Alfred Nossig, is, on the whole, effective. In regard to the music, the characteristics of the composer's Polish nationality are set forth with great ability and effectiveness, the instrumentation particularly being most brilliant. The performance, under Herr von Schuch's direction, and with Fräulein Krull, Herren Scheidemantel and Anthes in the principal parts, was a very fine one, and the reception of the work, by an audience which filled every part of the house, most enthusiastic.

Ferni.—A new opera, 'Il Trillo del Diavolo,' by Signor Falshi, the libretto founded upon the well-known legend connected with Tartini's composition of the same name, was produced with great success recently at the Teatro Verdi.

Florence.—The well-known composer Enrico Bossi is engaged upon the score of an oratorio on the subject of St. Francis of Assisi, for which Gabriele d'Annunzio has written the libretto.

Geneva.—Mr. Harold Bauer has been engaged to give a series of instructive performances at Herr Richter's well-known Académie de Musique during the present month.

Lemberg.—The first performance in Poland took place here, on the 8th ult., of M. Paderewski's opera 'Manru,' amidst scenes of great enthusiasm. The composer, who was present, was the recipient of two silver wreaths and floral offerings without number.

Malines.—An excellent performance took place, on the 13th ult., of Edgar Tinel's oratorio 'Sainte Godelive.' This important but difficult work was first produced at Brussels during the Exhibition of 1897, and has since been successfully performed both in Germany and the United States. On the present occasion, under the composer's direction, it again produced a most marked impression.

Munich.—The performance, last month, at the Royal Theatre, of Beethoven's 'Fidelio,' under the new conductor, Herr Zumpe, aroused the admiration of all music-lovers. Fräulein Morena was a superb representative of the title-part. The curious experiment, tried on this occasion, of playing the great 'Leonora' overture at the conclusion of the opera did not, however, meet with unqualified approval. ——An interesting concert was given recently by the young Russian composer, N. de Kasanli, with the co-operation of the Kaim Orchestra, in which a number of compositions by Balakirew, Tanéïéw, Rimsky-Korsakow, and the conductor himself obtained a first hearing and highly favourable reception.

Palermo.—Mascagni's new opera, 'Iris,' achieved a brilliant success on its first performance, last month, at the Municipal Theatre.

Paris.—Verdi's 'Falstaff' has been revived at the Opéra Comique, with M. Maurel and Mdlle. Delna in the principal parts. At the opening performance last month special homage was rendered to the memory of Verdi in an epilogue, written by M. Harcourt, and admirably recited by Madame Segon-Weber, of the Comédie Française, in the character of the Muse, crowning the bust of the composer, and surrounded by the personnel of the theatre dressed in Verdian costumes. ——The rare opportunity of hearing Handel's Oratorio 'Judas Maccabæus' has been afforded to Parisian amateurs recently by the Société de Chant Classique. The work, which was given in its entirety, was well rendered by the choir and orchestra, under M. Danbé's direction. M. Guilmant was the organist.——The Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra has been accorded a most enthusiastic reception at the five concerts given by it recently under Herr Nikisch's direction. With the exception of Tschaïkowsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony, the performances were devoted entirely to works by German composers. ——M. Taffanel has resigned his conductorship of the Conservatoire concerts, greatly to the regret of music-lovers. He will most likely be succeeded in the post by M. Marty, one of the chefs d'orchestre of the Opéra Comique.

Rouen.—An oratorio, 'La Vision de Jacob,' was produced for the first time last month with very considerable success. Its composer, M. Marcel Dupré, a pupil of M. Guilmant, is only sixteen years of age, and has already occupied the post of organist of the Church of Saint Vivien for four years.

St. Petersburg.—The Czar has ordered a collection to be made throughout his dominions for the purpose of erecting a monument to the national composer Glinka, his majesty himself heading the subscriptions with a considerable donation.

Sinigaglia (Italy).—A commemorative tablet has been placed in the Theatre La Fenice, where Verdi conducted several performances of his opera 'I Lombardi.' The ceremonies, in which the fine arts ministry was represented, included an interesting discourse delivered by Signor Mascagni.

Turin.—A new sacred cantata entitled 'Baltassar,' by Giovanni Quartero, met with a very favourable reception at its first production, on May 30, at the Church of St. Francesco di Paolo.

Venice.—Signor Ciummei, the conductor of the Teatro Rossini, who, under the name of 'Alfredo Donizetti,' has produced several operatic works with some success, has been legally restrained—at the instance of the grand-nephew of the composer of 'Lucia'—from thus making use of the latter's patronymic. It will be interesting to see whether, even without the crutch-like aid of a distinguished name, Signor Ciummei's compositions will continue to find favour with his audiences.

Weimar.—Under the combined auspices of the Goethe-Schiller and German Shakespeare Societies, an interesting performance took place, on May 31, at the Hof-Theater, in memory of the Grand Duke Carl Alexander of Saxe-Weimar. The proceedings, which included the performance of Goethe's 'Iphigenie,' were also largely devoted to music, the composers of which were, in some way, connected with the artistically eventful reign of the late Grand Duke. Foremost amongst these was Franz Liszt, whose 'The Lord is my Shepherd,' for tenor solo, harp, and organ, and the 'Beatitudes,' from the oratorio 'Christus,' were exceedingly well rendered under Herr Müller-Hartung's direction. Other numbers in the programme were the overture to 'Der Barbier von Bagdad,' by Peter Cornelius, the 'Beethoven' overture, by Dr. Lassen, and a number of songs by Draeseke and Richard Strauss, the latter ably interpreted by Herren Giessen and Scheidemantel, of Dresden.

Worms.—At the second Hessian Musical Festival, held here on May 26 and 27, August Klughardt's oratorio 'The Fall of Jerusalem' was performed by a choir of 400 voices, under Musikdirector Kiebitz's direction and in the presence of a deeply impressed audience. Professor Gernsheim conducted, with excellent effect, Beethoven's Choral Fantasia and his own G minor Symphony.

Zwickau.—The statue erected to Robert Schumann was unveiled, on the 8th ult., in the presence of a very numerous concourse of spectators. In the two-day musical festival by which the event was followed, Professors Joachim and Carl Reinecke and Musikdirector Vollhart took part, amongst the works performed being a choral hymn, specially written for the occasion, by Professor Reinecke, as well as a number of compositions by Schumann, including the Symphony in C, 'Paradise and Peri,' and several chamber compositions and Lieder.

The Erard Centenary Pianoforte Scholarship (the gift of Mr. Daniel Mayer) at the Royal Academy of Music will be competed for at the Salle Erard on September 25. The successful candidate will be entitled to receive three years' free tuition at the Royal Academy of Music. Full particulars may be obtained from the Secretary of the Royal Academy of Music, Tenterden Street, Hanover Square, London.

CORRESPONDENCE.

'THOMAS AND SALLY' AND MISS BELLCHAMBERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—In reply to your correspondent's query concerning Dr. Arne's 'Thomas and Sally,' I beg to state that there is a copy of the work in the Library of the Royal Academy of Music. Any of the descriptions ('Afterpiece,' 'Operetta,' &c.) would apply to it, but the correct title is 'Thomas and Sally; or, the Sailor's return: a Dramatic Pastoral.' It is of very slight interest, but is published in compressed full score by the elder Walsh (consequently not later than 1736), engraved on pewter plates, and the title says 'as performed at Covent Garden Theatre.'

Your correspondent 'H. M. G.,' who enquires about Miss Bellchambers, may perhaps be interested in the following information—entered the Royal Academy of Music in 1823, and soon distinguished herself as a singer. Left the Institution in 1829, took a leading position as a vocalist, and married a gentleman named Nicholls. Perhaps her fellow-student, Mr. Kellow J. Pye, who is still alive and well, can supplement this sketch. He would remember how, when she received her first prize at the Academy in 1824, she burst into tears upon being presented with it by Princess Augusta. 'Such,' commented the Quarterly Musical Magazine and Review, 'a noble lesson is conveyed in Royalty bestowing the well-merited encouragements which Talent has earned, and thus allying, as it were, the patronage of Rank and the exertions of Ability.'

Miss Julia Bellchambers (b. 1810),

There was an elder sister, Maria, who, like elder sisters in general, had less talent, and gave up her musical studies after the first year. It will be noticed that in those days thirteen or fourteen was not deemed too early an age to begin the training of a female singer.

Faithfully yours,

Royal Academy of Music, F. CORDER.
London, June 4, 1901.

[Mr. Burnham Horner has very kindly offered to furnish our correspondent with some Bellchambers information from his fine collection of play-bills.—ED., M.T.]

DR. ARNE'S 'THOMAS AND SALLY' AND OBSOLETE MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—So far, all the letters that have appeared have confirmed my original contention that 'Thomas and Sally' was not acted in Dublin (as given by Grove and others) in 1743, but that it made its first appearance in London in 1760, and my own further researches have failed to discover any prior reference to it. Mr. Towers, your latest correspondent, asks as to its character, whether it is an 'Opera,' an 'Afterpiece,' 'Incidental music to a Play,' 'Farce,' or 'Comic Operetta,' as variously described by different authorities. It is probably all these; but, as a matter of fact, it made its first appearance as 'A New Musical Entertainment,' and, musically, it consists of a few bright lyrics strung together with dialogue; it is quite a short piece. The plot was the foundation of hundreds of Surrey-side dramatic pieces, vastly popular during the latter part of the eighteenth century, extending down to almost our own days. Mr. Gilbert's 'Ruddigore' is a splendid parody of the type. The chief features of the play 'Thomas and Sally' (it had a sub-title: or, 'The Sailor's return') is a Squire, with the usual characteristics of squires of the period; a virtuous maiden, Sally, true to her absent sailor; and Thomas himself, who arrives opportunely. The piece was for a great number of years very popular either as an afterpiece or curtain-raiser, especially in provincial theatres.

While turning over the musical treasures belonging to my Oxford friend, Mr. T. W. Taphouse, he directed my attention to an interesting little manuscript volume which, containing vocal compositions and other music, bears the date 1727 and the signature of Dr. Robert Creyghton, Professor of Greek at Cambridge, composer of several services and anthems. The volume is entirely of Creyghton's compositions, and contains his well-known anthem 'I will arise and go to my Father.' One of the features of the book is a curious verse signed 'R. C.,' and interesting on account of its naming certain obsolete musical instruments. It is as follows:—

I hear a Thunder rolling here beneath
Where Curtals and Bassoons their murmurs breathe:
And Sackbuts their unfolded tubes of Brass
Unsheathing, push and draw their counter Bass.
While Clarions, Hautboys, and Chirrimias mix
Here 7 with 5; there 4 and 2 with 6,
Loud Violin abruptly checks its bow
To listen to the harmony below.

R. C.

It is, of course, well known that the sackbut was the father to the trombone, and that it was provided at an early period with tubes to lengthen and shorten, but what are 'curtals' and 'chirrimias'? They are both absent from Grove, and 'curtal' is absent from the later edition of Stainer and Barrett. In turning, however, to Grassineau's Musical Dictionary (1740), we find an explanation: '"Curtail" double, a musical wind instrument like the bassoon which plays the bass to the hautboy.' 'Chirrimia,' or 'chirimia' (from the Spanish), is a kind of oboe.

I am, &c.,
FRANK KIDSON.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AT the moment of going to press we learn with deep regret of the death of the veteran Mr. Charles Salaman, on the 23rd ult., at the advanced age of eighty-seven. In our next issue we hope to furnish our readers with an account of the career of this interesting musician.

MR. C. L. PHILLIPS, conductor of the New Philharmonic Society, Cheltenham, was presented, on May 20, with a complete equipment for a study writing table. The clock of the silver writing service contained the following inscription: 'In appreciation of his great ability as their conductor, and of his untiring enthusiasm in the cause of music in Cheltenham, this clock, together with a silver writing set, was presented to C. J. Phillips, Esq., by the members of the Philharmonic Society, May 20th, 1901.'

THE Tonic Sol-fa College will hold its twenty-sixth annual Summer term, or holiday course, for music teachers at the School of Music, Earlham Grove, Forest Gate, from July 16 to August 13. The classes will, as heretofore, be under the direction of experts in their particular departments. Full information may be obtained from Mr. Walter Harrison, 27, Finsbury Square.

PROFESSOR NIECKS was announced to deliver the Queen Victoria Lectures at Trinity College (London), on the 20th and 27th ult., his subject being 'The Ethical Aspects of Music.' We hope to give an authorised digest of these valuable discourses in our next issue.

SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE gave a public organ recital in Westminster Abbey on the 13th ult. A collection was made for Westminster Hospital, and the large sum of £70 was contributed.

MR. F. DE G. ENGLISH, organist and choirmaster of Halifax Parish Choir, has been appointed conductor of the Halifax Choral Society.

WE regret that in the notice of the concert by Miss Amy Llewellyn Toms in our last number that lady's name was inadvertently given as Jones.

CORNELIUS GURLITT, the well-known composer of pianoforte music, died at Altona, on the 17th ult., aged 81.

THE REV. DR. S. J. ROWTON, of Epsom College, has been appointed organist and director of music at Bradfield College, Berks.

THE letter of our special correspondent in Berlin (Herr Otto Lessmann) is unavoidably held over till next month.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Abergavenny.—A Service of Praise was held in St. Mary's Church, on the 6th ult., when Gaul's cantata 'The Holy City' was performed. The solos were undertaken by Miss Ethel Thomas, Mrs. D. F. Thomas, Miss B. Jones, Mr. W. R. Carr, and Mr. J. Norton. Mr. R. Rosser presided at the organ.

Adelaide.—The first chamber concert of the present session in the Elder Conservatorium, University of Adelaide, took place in the Elder Hall, on April 29, a notable feature in the programme being the first performance in this city of Tschaïkowsky's Trio in A minor (Op. 50). Rubinstein's Sonata for pianoforte and violoncello (Op. 18) and a Sonata in A for pianoforte and violin by Ippolitoff-Iwanoff, were also performed. The instrumentalists were Mr. Bryceson Treharne (pianoforte), Herr H. Heinicke (violin), and Herr H. Kugelberg (violoncello). Miss Ethel Hantke and Mr. Clarence Degenhardt were the vocalists.

Bedford. — The Musical Society's last concert this season took place at the Corn Exchange, on May 21, when Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' was performed. The choir sang throughout with excellent attack and expression, especially in 'O gladsome light' and the final chorus; and the orchestra was fully efficient. The solo vocalists were Miss Winifred Wynne, Miss Edna Thornton, Mr. Gwyllym Richards, Mr. A. Beazley, and Mr. Charles Tree. Dr. H. A. Harding conducted with care and skill.

Chelmsford.—The thirty-fifth annual Festival service of the Chelmsford Association of Church Choirs was held at the Parish Church on the 18th ult. There were fourteen choirs, numbering 300 voices. The service included Dunstan's anthem, 'Sun of my soul,' Hall's Canticles in B flat, special Psalms to Anglican chants, and appropriate hymns, the whole of which were sung with steadiness and in an expressive manner. Dr. F. G. Huntley was organist, and Mr. F. R. Frye, organist and choirmaster of the church, conducted.

Chester.—The third part of Gounod's 'Redemption' was sung at St. Paul's Church, on Whit-Sunday, at the close of the evening service, under the conductorship of Mr. W. H. Churton, the choirmaster, the accompaniment being played most efficiently on the organ by Mr. R. Thomas, organist. The solos were ably sung by Miss Mary Langdon, Mr. A. E. Ward, and Mr. W. H. Churton. The choir, which is an exceptionally good one, consisting of twenty-four boys and fourteen men, did full justice to its share of the music.

Christchurch (N.Z.).—The customary performance of Sir John Stainer's 'Crucifixion' in the Cathedral, on Wednesday in Holy Week, was invested with an exceptionally mournful interest, the news of the lamented death of the gifted composer having been received the day before. Prior to the performance, the Bishop of Christchurch, himself a skilful amateur, in addressing the large congregation, made eloquent reference to the inestimable service the dead musician had rendered to Church music, and Handel's 'Dead March' was played by the organist, Mr. G. F. Tendall. The performance was a very satisfactory one, the choruses being well sung, and the solo work being in the capable hands of Mr. A. Millar and Mr. B. S. Collier.

Dover.—Mr. H. J. Taylor, conductor of the Dover Choral Union, was the recipient, on May 20, of a handsome silver salver, together with an album containing the names of the performers at the recent first Dover Musical Festival. Every performer had contributed to the present, which was given as a memento of the occasion.

Hampton Hill.—The Walton Lodge Choral Society gave a concert at the Victoria Hall, on May 21, when the chief features of the programme were W. H. Speer's 'The Jackdaw of Rheims' and Cunningham Woods's 'A Greyport Legend.' These cantatas were well sung by the choir under the direction of Miss Geraldine Cooke.

Lisburn (Co. Antrim).—The Choral Society, which has been recently revived under the able conductorship of Mr. William A. J. Ponton, organist of the Cathedral, gave an excellent concert on May 30, in the Orange Hall. Schubert's 'Song of Miriam" and Gounod's 'Redemption' (Part II.) were performed by chorus and orchestra, together with a miscellaneous programme. Miss Isa Moore was the solo vocalist. Miss M. Davies and Miss Powell presided at the pianoforte and organ respectively.

London (Ontario).—The first public performance of a new oratorio, entitled, 'Hezekiah,' by Mr. J. Truman Wolcott, took place at the First Methodist Church here, on April 18. The oratorio is in two parts, the text having been selected by the Rev. Howard Duffield, of New York. It opens with the removal of the idol worship by Hezekiah, and includes the destruction of the Assyrian host and the pathetic prayer of the King for the lengthening of his life. The music is spoken of favourably by the local press, and is said to be dignified and in sympathy with the theme. The choruses were excellently sung and the solo vocalists were Mrs. Clark Wilson, Mrs. C. H. Clements, Mr. Newton Large, and Mr. R. McDonald. The accompaniments to the choruses were well played on the organ by Mr. F. Ellis; the composer, who conducted, accompanying the solos.

Lowestoft.—On leaving this locality to take up an appointment at Hessle Parish Church, Hull, Mr. Philip Chignell was presented with a purse containing £31 by the congregation of Kirkley Parish Church, where, for the past eight and a half years, Mr. Chignell has been organist and choirmaster. At the same time Mr. Chignell was presented by the choir of the church with a brass inkstand and candlesticks to match, and with an illuminated address.

South Brent (Devon).— Mr. W. D. Saunders, the founder and conductor of the South Brent Choral Society, was presented, on the 11th ult., with an ivory and silver baton, as an appreciation of his efforts during the past season.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Elsie.—'The Lady of Shalott' (so-called from an Italian novellette, 'Donna di Scalotta') appeared in the 1832 volume of the poems; it was, therefore, written by Tennyson when he was twenty-three years of age. The poet himself gave the following interpretation of 'The Lady of Shalott' to Canon Ainger:—'The newborn love for something, for someone in the wide world from which she has been so long secluded, takes her out of the region of shadows into that of realities.' We quite agree with you that the musical setting of this poem by Mr. Wilfred Bendall is 'very charming.'

E. A.—The following anthems, by ancient and modern composers, contain alto solos: O give thanks (Purcell), Lord, what is man? (Boyce), O Lord, Thou hast searched me out (Croft), Acquaint thyself with God (Greene), Hear, O Thou Shepherd (T. A. Walmisley), Save me, O God (J. L. Hopkins), and Out of the deep (Hatton).

J. H. P.—An eminent conductor has said—'A metronome is not a musician.' Your musical feeling should dictate the speed at which Goss's 'O taste and see' should be sung. Yes, it is far better to sing it 'full' throughout than to run the risk of an inadequate rendering of the opening section by four voices that cannot be classed as 'good.'

Student.—There is a capital edition, by Hans von Bülow, of Mendelssohn's Andante and Rondo Capriccioso (Op. 14) for pianoforte, which contains an interesting preface and full directions as to the performance of the work from the pen of the Editor.

Strad.—The sign of the cross (+) above the notes in the piatti part in the lithographed full score of Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' is an indication by the composer that he wishes the cymbal to be struck with a stick.

W. B.—You cannot learn organ tuning from books. Perhaps you could make the acquaintance of an organ tuner and get some practical hints from him. If you are in a good situation, pray do not leave it for the 'music line.'

A. H. S.—(1) The theme you quote (though not in its right key) is the last movement of Handel's Second Organ Concerto in B flat. (2) Stainer's 'Music of the Bible' may be obtained from Messrs. Novello, price 2s. 6d.

H. M.—(1) Consult a medical man. (2) A grand pianoforte is a musical instrument and not a sideboard for the display of a 'duchesse cover' (whatever that adornment may be) and beautiful ornaments.

A. B.—(1) The sign + is an indication that the notes are to be played with the thumb on another manual. (2) We do not know of a treatise on the subject of the male alto voice.

J. H.—According to the British Museum Catalogue, the 'Pianoforte Magazine' extended to seventeen volumes, and the approximate date of its publication is given as 1810.

W. Sterne.—Your voice has probably been strained instead of trained. There are many similar instances. Sing naturally and softly, practising all the vowel sounds.

Tritonus.—We regret we cannot give the addresses of the sixteen musicians you name. Some of them, we believe, have no fixed abode, and one is dead!

Alpha.—Your 'little problem' of hidden octaves and fifths is not of general interest, or we would endeavour to solve it.

Rex.—See reply to J. H. P.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

Bradley, Charles Lister.—"Love's choicest gift." Song. No. 1, in E flat, for Soprano or Tenor; No. 2, in C, for Contralto, Baritone, or Bass. Each 1s.

Button, H. Elliot.—"Hearken unto this." Harvest Anthem. (No. 701. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

Carbery, Victoria Lady.—"Glory to Thee, my God, this day." Hymn. 2d.

—— "Another gone home." Hymn. 2d.

—— "O King of Glory, hear my humble cry." 2d.

Dvorák Anton.—"At Thy feet in adoration." Solo and Chorus from the "Stabat Mater." (No. 54. Novello's Services, Anthems, &c., for Men's Voices.) 3d.

Elgar, Edward.—"Mazurka" (Op. 10, No. 1). Arranged for a Military Band by Dan Godfrey, Jun. 5s.

—— "Sérénade Mauresque" (Op. 10, No. 2). Ditto. 5s.

—— "Contrasts" (Op. 10, No. 3). Ditto. 5s.

—— "Chanson de Nuit" (Op. 15, No. 1). Ditto. 3s. 6d.

—— "Chanson de Matin" (Op. 15, No. 2). Ditto. 3s. 6d.

Ford, Thomas.—"God save Britannia's King." A new Patriotic Song. For Solo with Chorus, or as a Four-Part Song for S.A.T.B. 2s.

Foster, Myles B.—"Minuet." (No. 20. The Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ. Edited by Edwin H. Lemare.) 1s. 6d.

Friedlander, Arthur M.—"Adôn 'Ôlom." An ancient Hebrew Hymn. 6d.

Gounod, C.—"Judex" ("Mors et Vita"). Arranged for Military Band (Harmonie). 3s.

—— Ditto. Arranged for Brass Band (Fanfare). 2s.

Hughes, Hugh.—"Wings to Heaven." Song for Soprano or Tenor. 2s.

Jordan, Warwick.—"Let all the world in every corner sing." Anthem for Soli and Chorus. (No. 706. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

During the last month—continued.

Macpherson, Charles.—"Look on the fields." Harvest Anthem. (No. 711. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

Maunder, J. H.—"The joy of Harvest." Hymn. (No. 540. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 2d.

McGrath, Alfred J.—(in D). Cantate Domino and Deus Misereatur. (No. 567. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

Needham, Alicia Adélaïde—"At Last." No. 2 (in G flat). Violin (ad lib.), 3d.; Organ (ad lib.), 3d.

—— Ditto. No. 3 (in D). Violin (ad lib.), 3d.; Organ (ad lib.), 3d.

Parry, C. Hubert H.—"Ode to Music." The poem written by Arthur C. Benson. 1s. 6d.

Porter, Walter—"Now wintry winds have lost their power." Two-part Song. For Soprano and Mezzo-Soprano, with Accompaniment for Pianoforte. 3d.

Roberts, J. Varley—(in G). A Morning and Evening Service. 1s.

—— (in G). Te Deum laudamus (No. 1, from the above). 4d.

—— (in G). Benedictus. (No. 2, from the above.) 3d.

Sanderson, H. K. St. J.—Shrewsbury School Football Song. 1s.

School Music Review. No. 109. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Come, lasses and lads." Unison Song. English air, 17th Century. "The merry bells of Hamburg." Round, for Three Voices. By Alfred Moffat. "The morn doth break." Round, for Four Voices. By Alfred Moffat. Two-part Sight-Singing Test. 1½d.

Sewell, William—(in E flat). Magnificat. (No. 31. Cantiones Sacræ). 4d.

Shaw, Martin Fallas—Reverie. For Violin and Pianoforte. 2s.

Stainer, J.—"My hope is in the everlasting" and "Awake, thou that sleepest," from "The Daughter of Jairus." 1st Violin, 9d.; 2nd Violin, 9d.; Viola, 9d.; Violoncello and Bass, 6d. Wind Parts, 4s. 9d.

—— "Drop down, ye heavens." (No. 703. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

—— "The Lord is in His Holy Temple." (No. 704. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

—— "They were lovely and pleasant in their lives." (No. 705. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

—— "O God of Grace." Hymn. For Holy Matrimony. Before the Service. (No. 563. Novello's Parish Choir Book." 1d.

—— "Now is the earth with God's glory rejoicing." Hymn. For Holy Matrimony. After the Service. (No. 564. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.

—— (in A). The Office for Holy Communion. (No. 565. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

Stark, Humphrey J.—"Sun of my soul." Hymn. 1d.

—— (in B flat.) Kyrie Eleison. 1d.

Taylor, Sedley.—"O God, Who hast prepared." Anthem for S.A.T.B. 2d.

Tonic Sol-fa Series. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—
No. 1195. The roseate hues .. .. Arthur Sullivan 1d.
Friedlander, Arthur M.—"Adôn 'Ôlom." Three-part Arrangement. 3d.
Handel, G. F.—"Israel in Egypt." 1s.

Williams, C. Lee—Two Introits: "I am not worthy" and "The Heavenly Word." (No. 111. Novello's Short Anthems.) 3d.

Wood, W. G.—(in B flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. For Voices, Organ, and Orchestra. (No. 566. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

Reduced Prices.

Haynes, Battison.—Six Vocal Duets. For Soprano and Contralto. 1s. 6d.

—— Six Two-part Songs. For Female Voices. 1s. 6d.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Dr. Boyce (with Portaits)	441
Fifths, Permissible and otherwise. By F. Corder	449
Handel's Borrowings. By J. S. Shedlock	450
Psalm Singing. By Joseph Bennett	453
Occasional Notes	456
Curious arrangements of the Hallelujah Chorus	458
Sir Alexander Mackenzie on Sir Arthur Sullivan	459
Church and Organ Music	461
A Wonderful Achievement. By H. E. Krehbiel	463
Reviews	464
The Philharmonic Concerts	464
Royal College of Music	472
Purcell's 'Fairy Queen' Music	472
Royal Opera—Stanford's 'Much Ado About Nothing'	472
Chromaticism in Harmony	473
Sir Alexander Mackenzie's 'Coriolanus' Suite	474
Royal Academy of Music	474
'The Golden Legend' at the Crystal Palace	474
Music Competitions in North Yorkshire	474
Lower Rhenish Musical Festival	477
International Congress of Publishers	477
Pianoforte Recitals	477
London and Suburban Concerts	478
Music in Birmingham	480
„ Dublin	480
„ East Anglia	480
„ Edinburgh	480
„ Oxford	481
Foreign Notes	481
Correspondence	483
Miscellaneous	483
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	484
Answers to Correspondents	484
Music published during the last Month	485
Easy Harvest Anthem—"Hearken unto this."—H. Elliot Button	465

Extra Supplements:
Anthem for Harvest, "Look on the Fields."—C. Stewart Macpherson.
A Hymn of Thanksgiving, "The Joy of Harvest."—J. H. Maunder.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

THREE Extra Supplements are given in this number: 1. A Portrait of Dr. Boyce, from the Music School Collection, Oxford; 2. An Anthem for Harvest, 'Look on the Fields,' by C. Stewart Macpherson; 3. A Hymn of Thanksgiving, 'The Joy of Harvest,' by J. H. Maunder.

MR. R. A. ELLIS (Tympanist)
Brook Lynn, Chester.

MR. JOHN COATES
(THE NEW TENOR)
Of the Royal Opera, Covent Garden; engaged for the Leeds Festival; is at liberty, after the Opera season, to accept Oratorio and Concert engagements.
9, Hyde Park Mansions, N.W.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN
(BASS),
Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music, of the Gloucester and Cheltenham Festivals, &c.
Concerts, Oratorios, At Homes, &c.
Please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

PUBLISHED ON THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH. Price 1½d. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW FOR JULY CONTAINS:—
GENERAL NOTES.
ELEMENTARY STATE-AIDED SCHOOLS AND SINGING.
THE LATE SIR JOHN STAINER.
TWO-PART MODULATOR POINTING.
SOCIETY OF ARTS EXAMINATIONS, 1901.
"CHROMATICISM IN HARMONY."
MUSIC COMPETITIONS IN NORTH YORKSHIRE.
SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING READER.—STAFF NOTATION.
MUSIC IN TRAINING COLLEGES, 1900.
THE MUSIC PERFORMED IN TRAINING COLLEGES, 1900.
BOOKS RECEIVED.
MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

THE JULY NUMBER CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC:—

"HEARTS FEEL THAT LOVE THEE." Trio. For Female Voices. By F. MENDELSSOHN-BARTHOLDY.
TWO-PART EXERCISES.
Also, EXTRA SUPPLEMENT, containing "I AM THE SILVER DAWN." Unison Song, with Two-part Chorus, from "The Hours." By J. L. ROECKEL. (No. 458. Novello's School Songs. Price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

MISS MARIAN JAY (SOLO VIOLINIST).

"MISS MARIAN JAY'S RECITAL.—That a violin recital can consist of something more interesting than a series of trashy show-pieces was proved last night by Miss Marian Jay, an accomplished violinist, who, though possessing an amount of technical skill which would have seemed astonishing a few years ago, did not disdain to include in her programme several pieces of real music. With Mr. Bird, she began with an excellent performance of Beethoven's early Sonata in G, Op. 30 (No. 3), and played Lalo's characteristic 'Symphonie Espagnole' as well as Tartini's Sonata in G minor, leaving such things as Vieuxtemps's 'Rêverie' and Sarasate's 'Bolero' for those who cared to hear them at the end of the concert. In Beethoven's sonata she showed intelligence and musical instinct, and Lalo's fine work was given with faultless brilliance; her tone is excellent, and her execution of difficult passages is wonderfully neat and accurate. She is not merely a virtuoso, but an artist."—The Times, May 14, 1901.
Concerts, &c., address, 5, Hollywood Road, South Kensington.

MISS ELLEN CHILDS
(CHROMATIC HARPIST)
Having studied in Paris under the direction of the Inventor, Miss Childs is prepared to give LESSONS on the NEW CHROMATIC HARP (without pedals). For terms, apply, 170, Belsize Road, N.W.; or, care of Messrs. Pleyell Wolff, Lyon and Co., 79-80, Baker Street, Portman Square, W.

ST. SWITHIN'S, London Stone (opposite Cannon Street Station). CHOIR BOY WANTED. Apply at the Church, on Fridays, at 6.30 p.m.

SOPRANO, TENOR, and BASS WANTED, for evening service only, at a Congregational Church in the North of London, from October to April next. Apply, by letter, to Treblig, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TENOR WANTED. St. Jude's, South Kensington. £20 per annum. Write to H. W. Hunt, 146, Finboro' Road, S.W.

ST. ANDREW'S PARISH CHURCH, Holborn.—BASS WANTED. Communicant. Church of England. Good reader. Salary, £20. Address, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Andrew's Church, Holborn, E.C.

THE ORGANIST of Dedham, Essex, will be glad to hear of ORGANISTS, VOCALISTS, and any INSTRUMENTALISTS who will assist him with RECITALS during the Summer.

WANTED, at the Presbyterian Church, Wandsworth, ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Salary, £30 per annum. Two Sunday services and Wednesday evening. Apply, by letter, to Mr. R. J. Burns, Garthorpe, Melrose Road, Southfields, S.W.

AN ORGANIST-DEPUTY REQUIRED, for the last two Sundays in July and the whole of August. North of London. Choral Service. Middle aged preferred, on account of training boys' voices. Apply, by letter, to W. H. T., 7, Lidlington Place, N.W.

ORGANIST (late of St. Andrew's, Surbiton, and St. John's, Kingston Vale) desires ENGAGEMENT, permanent or deputy. Z., 84, Horder Road, Fulham, S.W.

ORGANIST (aged 17) requires SITUATION. Church of England preferred. Brilliant performer. Good Recommendation. Willie Musgrove, Harrogate.

SOUTH-WESTERN POLYTECHNIC MANRESA ROAD, CHELSEA, LONDON, S.W.

The Governing Body invite applications for the POST of HEAD of the MUSIC SECTION. The fixed salary is £150 per annum, with one-half of the amount (estimated at £300) received in fees from students.
Forms of Application and Memorandum of Duties may be obtained, not later than July 1, from the Secretary.

FEIS CEOIL.—IRISH MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1902. — COMPETITIONS in all branches of Music, for COMPOSERS of IRISH BIRTH or Resident in Ireland. The revised Syllabus of above is now ready, and can be obtained from the Hon. Secretary, 37, Molesworth Street, Dublin.

£9 9s. in PRIZES for HYMN-TUNE COMPETITION will be given by the Meersbrook Park Sunday School Union. Enclose stamp for conditions, &c., to Hon. Sec., C. Sissons, 21, Woodhead Road, Sheffield.

PIANOFORTE TUNERS.—Several thoroughly competent YOUNG MEN WANTED. Permanent situations if suitable. Must have good references. Address, by letter, stating experience and wages required, to Smith, 179, Oxford Road, Manchester.

EXPERIENCED TUNER WANTED. Good references, good appearance. Good salary to smart business man. Apply, with testimonials, to Larg and Co., Union Street, Aberdeen.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER requires ENGAGEMENT. Must be permanent situation, out-door work, and good salary. Thorough knowledge of Am. Organs and Harms. 20 years' experience. H. C. B., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER and TONER WANTED, for Ware-room Work, by a first-class Firm. Applicant must be a skilful and experienced TONER. Apply to H. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER desires SITUATION, near London preferred. Good references. Aged 33. Unison, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER (Pianos, American Organs, Harmoniums, &c.) has one or two days a week open. London or suburbs. Twenty years' experience. Apply, A. G., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

AS IMPROVER to PIANOFORTE TUNING and GENERAL MUSIC BUSINESS, WANTED, by Youth, 19 years of age. 2½ years' experience. Apply, Mr. Winfield, Draper, The Square, Nuneaton.

WANTED, an experienced MANAGER, for a Branch Establishment in the North. Must have good references. Apply, No. 145, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUNG LADY ASSISTANT (experienced) REQUIRED for Pianoforte and General Music Business. Must be good Pianist and Harmonium Player. Knowledge of small instruments desirable. P. B. Y., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, to PURCHASE, a VIOLIN TEACHING CONNECTION, or the nucleus of one; or a large School. Address, V., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

A GERMAN COMPOSER, having set a series of English Songs, wishes to hear of an experienced SINGER who would help him to give the last touch to his work. Address, stating terms, W., 6739, Neyroud and Son, Advertising Offices, 14, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

ORGAN for SALE. Two manuals, 7 stops on Great, 5 on Swell, 1 pedal Bour., 2 man. couplers, 3 com. pedals. For particulars, apply, W. H. Hall, New Delph, Oldham.

FOR SALE, ORGAN, with Pedals. Used for all Organ purposes. Price £15 15s. Photo can be taken. Also Pedals, with fixtures. Price £7. Apply, Evans, 2, Pigott Villas, Denbigh.

Dedicated to and Sung by Mdme. Lillian Blauvelt.

TROIS POÉSIES

1. Je ne veux pas autre chose .. .. Victor Hugo.
I desire one only pleasure.
2. Partir .. .. .. Edmond Harancourt.
Parting.
3. Sérénade .. .. .. François Coppée.

MISES EN MUSIQUE PAR
PERCY PITT.
(OP. 34.)

ENGLISH WORDS BY PAUL ENGLAND.

Price Two Shillings.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

For Loyal and Patriotic Meetings.

Just Ready.

A TOAST
("GENTLEMEN! THE KING!")
FOUR-PART SONG FOR MEN'S VOICES (A.T.T.B.)
THE WORDS WRITTEN BY
H. GODWIN CHANCE
THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
A. HERBERT BREWER.

VERSES 3 and 4.
A mighty realm, an empire vast,
That of the noble British race;
A fateful future, glorious past,
A name that time shall ne'er efface:
"Gentlemen! the King!"

So shall it be through all the years,
In hours of joy, in days of strife;
In time of gladness as of tears—
Sovereign and Lord! To Death! Thro' life!
"Gentlemen! the King!"

Price Twopence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Performed by the Queen's Hall Orchestra
(Conductor, Mr. Henry J. Wood), on February 20 and March 24, 1901.

Prelude & Angel's Farewell
FROM
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS
COMPOSED BY EDWARD ELGAR.
(OP. 38.)
ARRANGED FOR
I. ORCHESTRA.
II. SOLO (MEZZO-SOPRANO) AND ORCHESTRA.
II. SOLO (MEZZO-SOPRANO), CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA.

String Parts, 3s. 6d.; Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SIX SONGS
COMPOSED BY
S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.
(OP. 37.)

1. You'll love me yet (in G minor and B minor) Robert Browning.
2. Canoe Song (in D flat and F) .. Isabella Crawford.
3. A blood-red ring hung round the moon Barry Dane.
4. Sweet evenings come and go, love (in F and B flat) George Eliot.
5. As the moon's soft splendour .. .. .. Shelley.
6. Elëanore .. .. Eric Mackay.

"The six songs by S. Coleridge-Taylor, making up the young composer's Op. 37, are one and all instinct with the high qualities that have brought him success. Warmth of feeling, characteristic phraseology, and admirable effect are all manifested in the whole group. 'You'll love me yet' is one of the best settings of Browning in existence, a 'Canoe song' has a charming figure of accompaniment, 'A blood-red ring' is strongly dramatic, 'Sweet evenings come and go' is tenderly lyrical and extremely grateful to the singer, 'As the moon's soft splendour' takes a suggestion for its accompaniment from the title of Shelley's poem, 'To a lady singing to her accompaniment on the guitar,' and the idea is most skilfully handled, while 'Elëanore' has a strong passion and a masterly treatment of climax that quite outweigh the unusual accentuation of the name."—The Times.

Price Two Shillings each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

THE MILITARY

CHURCH PARADE SERVICE BOOK

FOR THE USE OF MILITARY BANDS AND CHAPLAINS AT PARADE SERVICES IN CAMP AND CHURCH

CONSISTING OF

MORNING PRAYER, LITANY, AND HOLY COMMUNION

WITH A SELECTION OF HYMNS FOR OPEN-AIR SERVICES

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

THOMAS CONWAY BROWN,

Sergeant, Royal Artillery Mounted Band;
Organist of All Saints' Garrison Church, Aldershot.

CONTENTS.

Order of Service. Venite. Easter Anthem. Psalms. Te Deum. Benedictus. Jubilate. National Anthem. The Litany. Holy Communion.

HYMNS:—1. O God, our help in ages past. 2. All people that on earth do dwell. 3. New every morning is the love. 4. Rock of Ages, cleft for me. 5. The Church's one foundation. 6. Oft in danger, oft in woe. 7. Onward, Christian soldiers. 8. Be Thou my Guardian and my Guide. 9. Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven. 10. Through the night of doubt and sorrow. 11. O God, our Banner, Lord of might.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SONATA IN D MINOR

FOR THE

ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

J. G. TÖPFER

EDITED BY

JOHN E. WEST.

(No. 293. Novello's Original Compositions for the Organ.)

Price Two Shillings.

NOTE.—This Sonata has been chosen as a Test Piece for the R.C.O. Examination taking place this month.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SCENES

FROM

THE SONG OF HIAWATHA

BY

H. W. LONGFELLOW

SET TO MUSIC FOR

SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

BY

S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

FULL SCORE (complete). Price £3 3s.

SEPARATELY, FROM THE ABOVE:

HIAWATHA'S WEDDING-FEAST
Full Score. Price 25s.

THE DEATH OF MINNEHAHA
Full Score. Price 25s.

Just Published.

HIAWATHA'S DEPARTURE
Full Score. Price 30s.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

COMMUNION SERVICE

("ASSUMPTA EST MARIA")

COMPOSED BY

G. PIERLUIGI DA PALESTRINA.

EDITED AND ADAPTED TO ENGLISH WORDS BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

(No. 57. NOVELLO'S MUSIC PRIMERS AND EDUCATIONAL SERIES)

EDITED BY

Sir JOHN STAINER and Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

Three Hundred and Fifty Questions

ON THE

FORM AND TONALITY

OF

BEETHOVEN'S PIANOFORTE SONATAS

FORMING AN

APPENDIX

TO

"ANALYSIS OF FORM"

(Primer, No. 34)

BY

H. A. HARDING,
Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

FAR FROM MY HEAVENLY HOME

SACRED SONG

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

HENRY FRANCIS LYTE

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ALICIA A. NEEDHAM.

IN D MINOR AND C MINOR.

Price Two Shillings each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

INTERMEZZO

(DORABELLA)

FOR SMALL ORCHESTRA

(WOOD-WIND, DRUMS, AND STRINGS)

FROM THE

VARIATIONS ON AN ORIGINAL THEME

COMPOSED BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

(OP. 36.)

FULL SCORE. Price 3s.

String Parts, 2s. 3d.; Wind Parts, 1s. 6d.

Pianoforte Solo Arrangement by the COMPOSER.
Price 2s.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited

Eaton Faning

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 702.—Vol. 42. AUGUST 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

There are now VACANCIES in the CHOIR for Sopranos, Tenors, and Basses (especially Tenors). Only those who have good and powerful voices, and who can read music at first sight, will be accepted. Address, The Secretary, Royal Choral Society, Royal Albert Hall, S.W.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus.D., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

Michaelmas Term begins Thursday, September 26. Entrance Examination therefor, Monday, September 23, at 10.

Stainer Exhibition (value £20) for Organ Candidates will be awarded at the Entrance Examination in September. Particulars now ready.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.

Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

SEPTEMBER 8, 10, 11, 12, and 13, 1901.

PRINCIPAL SOLOISTS:

Madame ALBANI, Madame ELLA RUSSELL, Madame SOBRINO, Miss HILDA WILSON, Miss ADA CROSSLEY, Miss MURIEL FOSTER, Mr. BEN DAVIES, Mr. WM. GREEN, Mr. ANDREW BLACK, Mr. PLUNKET GREENE, Mr. LANE WILSON.

CONDUCTOR .. .. Mr. A. HERBERT BREWER.

Admission: Reserved Seats, 15s. to 1s. 6d. A Set of Tickets (transferable), admitting to best seats at all performances and rehearsals, £3 13s. 6d.; ditto, admitting to best seats Tuesday Evening, Wednesday Morning, Thursday Morning and Evening, and Rehearsal, £1 15s. Applicants for these tickets have priority of choice.

For Programmes, Tickets, &c., apply Minchin and Gibbs, Westgate Street, Gloucester.

P. BARRETT COOKE, Secretary, Gloucester.

LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, FRIDAY, AND SATURDAY,
October 9, 10, 11, and 12, 1901.

Conductor .. .. Dr. C. VILLIERS STANFORD.

Solo Vocalists: Madame ALBANI, Miss AGNES NICHOLLS, Miss MARIE BREMA, Miss ADA CROSSLEY, Mr. BEN DAVIES, Mr. JOHN COATES, Mr. ANDREW BLACK, Mr. DAVID BISPHAM, Mr. PLUNKET GREENE. Solo Violinists: Dr. JOACHIM and Senor ARBOS. Solo Pianist: Mr. LEONARD BORWICK.

BAND AND CHORUS OF 480.

SERIAL TICKET (transferable), admitting to the Eight Concerts £6 0 0
SERIAL TICKET (transferable), admitting to Seven Concerts, excluding Saturday Night 5 5 0
Only a few Serial Tickets are now left for Sale.
FIRST SEATS, SINGLE (MORNING), Ground Floor 1 1 0
FIRST SEATS, SINGLE (EVENING), Ground Floor 0 15 0
GALLERY TICKETS (except for Saturday Night) are all Sold.
SECOND SEATS (A) SATURDAY EVENING ONLY 0 10 6
SECOND SEATS (B) SATURDAY EVENING ONLY 0 8 0

Full Programmes on application.

With applications for Tickets remittances must be sent to—
FRED. R. SPARK, Hon. Sec.
Festival Office, 38, Great George Street, Leeds.

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

PROMENADE CONCERTS

(SEVENTH SEASON, 1901),

AUGUST 24 AND NIGHTLY AT 8.

CONDUCTOR:

Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA.

PRINCIPAL VIOLIN .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
ACCOMPANIST .. .. Mr. PERCY PITT.

SMOKING PERMITTED.

PROMENADE—ONE SHILLING.

Season Tickets (eleven weeks), 21s.

BALCONY, 2s.; GRAND CIRCLE (Numbered and Reserved), 3s. and 5s.; Season Tickets, £2 2s., £3 3s., & £5 5s.

To be obtained at ROBERT NEWMAN'S BOX OFFICE Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.

Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN is Sole Agent for the following Artists:—

Madame LILLIAN BLAUVELT.
Miss FLORENCE SCHMIDT.

Madame KIRKBY LUNN.
Miss JESSIE GOLDSACK.

Mr. FFRANGCON DAVIES.

Mons. YSAYE.
Madame VON STOSCH.

Herr HUGO BECKER.

Signor BUSONI.
Mr. MARK HAMBOURG.

All communications respecting engagements for the above Artists should be made direct to Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.
For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 17—December 22); Winter Term (January 21—March 30); Summer Term (April 1—June 22).
Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.
Prospectus and further information may be obtained from
ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF ARGYLL, K.G., K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
GEORGE PRIOR, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. BENTLEY, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: CHURCHILL SIBLEY, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.
First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.
Provincial Examinations in all subjects, for Certificates and Diplomas, A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., October, November, and December. Metropolitan Examination, December 5. Local Theoretical Examination at all Centres in December.
Holder of the Victoria College Vocal Scholarship, 1901: Miss Lottie L. Wakelin.
Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.
Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.
All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.
GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, BERNERS STREET, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Patron: His Grace the ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.
President: The Very Rev. FRANCIS PIGOU, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in November and December, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.
Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.
The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.
Free register for Organists requiring appointments.
For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE

OF MUSIC, LTD.

Warden: Professor ALEX. PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.
Musical Examinations held in all towns.
Diplomas—Associate, Licentiate, and Fellow granted.
Apply, Sec., 60, Berners St., London; or, 5, Hardman St., L'pool.

NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC, LTD.

Patron: THE DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH.
Warden: Dr. TINDALL, A.T.C.L.
Medals and Diplomas awarded.
During Vacation new members wanted for autumn work.
Composers note our publishing system, practically free through exchanges.
192, Sutherland Avenue, Maida Vale. W. J. Moss.

DR. HOCH'S CONSERVATOIRE for all branches of Music, in Frankfort-on-the-Main. The Winter Term commences September 1. Director, Professor Dr. B. SCHOLZ. Tuition is given by Messrs. Director B. Scholz, Professor J. Kwast, L. Uzielli, E. Engesser, K. Friedberg, A. Glück, Frl. L. Mayer, and Ch. Eckel (in Pianoforte); Mr. H. Gelhaar (in Organ); Professor H. Heermann, Professor Naret-Koning and F. Bassermann, A. Hess, A. Leimer, and F. Küchler (in Violin and Viola respectively); Professor B. Cossmann and Professor Hugo Becker (in Violoncello); Messrs. Ed. Bellwidt and S. Rigutini, and Frl. Cl. Sohn (in Singing); Director Dr. Scholz and Messrs. Professor J. Knorr (in Theory and Composition); Mr. K. Hermann (in Declamation and Mimics); Frl. del Lungo (in Italian Language). Prospectus to be had, gratis and post-free, from the Secretary of the Dr. Hoch's Conservatoire, 4, Eschersheimerlandstrasse. Applications for entry should be made immediately, as only a limited number of pupils will be accepted.—THE MANAGEMENT.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MISS GLADYS NORMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
6, Benedict Road, Brixton.

MISS MARGARET VON BARGEN (Contralto)
Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, &c.
Care of John Gray, 15, Francis Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MADAME ANNIE GREW (Contralto, Medalist)
Waverley Road, Bradford.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.)
Address, 21, Mysore Road, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. SAM HORTON (Tenor, Medalist)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
20, Norwood Road, Headingley, Leeds.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. WALTER CHIPPINDALE (Baritone)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Address, Rawdon, Yorkshire.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass)
Oratorios and Concerts.
45, Pentonville Road, N.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

B. E. KENT (Lyric Authoress).
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto). Engagements at Finsbury, Whitechapel, Highbury, New Cross, Highgate, City, Stockwell, Nottingham, Dudley, Brighton, Mile End, Lewisham, Blackheath. Address, 14, Gladsmuir Rd., Whitehall Pk., N.

MISS EMILY DAVIES

(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MADAME ADA LOARING

(SOPRANO),
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

MISS AMY SARGENT

A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
140, Marylebone Road, N.W.

MRS. TILTMAN

(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE

(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, 1898; Sheffield Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 13, Garway Road, Bayswater, W.

MR. JOHN COATES

(THE NEW TENOR)
Of the Royal Opera, Covent Garden.
Engaged for the Leeds Festival; is now booking Oratorio and Concert Engagements.
9, Hyde Park Mansions, N.W.

MR. TREVOR EVANS
(TENOR).

"Samson."—"Endowed with a voice of unusual power and compass, Mr. Trevor Evans carried his audience with him from his first solo, and quite enchanted them."—Ilfracombe Gazette.

"I am delighted with his voice, which I consider charming."—Madame Patti.

"Israel in Egypt."—"His singing of 'The enemy said' left the audience longing for more."—The Yorkshire Herald.

"They nearly shouted hosanna at his singing."—Western Mail.

Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 27, Warwick Road, Ealing, W.

MR. BRIGHT JONES
(PRINCIPAL TENOR, Moody-Manners Opera Company).
Terms, apply, Glenhurst, Bath; or, C. W. Sinkins, 63, Berners St., W.

MR.
JAMES LEYLAND.
"HIAWATHA."
DUNDEE CHORAL UNION CONCERT.

"Mr. James Leyland sang 'Onaway! awake, Beloved!' with freedom of style and warmth of feeling; at the conclusion of which, chorus as well as audience forgot in their enthusiasm the propriety of postponing their applause until the Symphony was ended."—The Courier, March 27, 1901.

"'Onaway! awake, Beloved!' was splendidly rendered by Mr. James Leyland."—The Advertiser, March 27, 1901.

"To Mr. James Leyland must be accorded the honours of the evening. His is a tenor voice of rare quality, and his phrasing and enunciation were delightful."—Evening Post, March 27, 1901.

"Mr. Leyland's singing of 'Onaway, awake, Beloved!' was admirable."—Evening Telegraph, March 27, 1901.

Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. HARRY TUDOR
(PRINCIPAL TENOR of the Church of The Holy Name, M'chester)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Terms, &c., 35, Mauldeth Road, Withington, Manchester.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE).

Mr. Henry J. Wood (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.

"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.

"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.

"Henry J. Wood."

AND

MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO).
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(BARITONE)
(Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts),
7, Station Terrace, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingnam.

MR. JOHN RIDDING
(BARITONE).
Sweetman's Agency, 135, Chatham Street, Liverpool.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN
(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. ENRICO NOVO
(BASS-BARITONE).
Concerts, Masonic Banquets, At Homes, &c.
Daisy Bank, Penhale Road, Portsmouth.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT
Begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to
105, Brondesbury Villas, London, N.W.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES
(BARITONE)
Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, Chester, and Dover Musical Festivals.
Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts.
Crystal Palace and principal Provincial Concerts.

"King Saul," Sheffield Musical Festival, 1899.—"Mr. Charles Knowles imparted to the character of Samuel much of the sternness and severity associated with 'Elijah.' His fine, powerful voice was hardly suggestive of the 'aged seer,' but he was most impressive throughout, and in the scene with the people he asserted the prerogative of the Prophet with all the dignity of one accustomed to command. In the dialogue with Saul he was excellent, and his interpretation throughout the part was very fine. In the scene at Endor the utterances of Samuel were solemnly delivered, and altogether Mr. Knowles advanced his already high position."—Birmingham Post, October 14, 1899.

"Samson and Delilah."—"Mr. Charles Knowles was excellent as Abimelech."—Morning Post, October 16, 1899.

"Mr. D. Bispham and Mr. Charles Knowles, as the High Priest and Abimelech, entered thoroughly into the spirit of the work."—The Times, October 16, 1899.

Chester Musical Festival, July 25, 26, 27, 1900.—"Zion" (Gade).—"The baritone solo was sung by Mr. Charles Knowles with much earnestness and effect."—Daily Telegraph, July 26, 1900.

"In which Mr. Charles Knowles sang the solo part very ably."—The Times, July 31, 1900.

"The solitary solo was powerfully sung by Mr. Charles Knowles."—Yorkshire Post, July 26, 1900.

"Faust."—"Mr. Charles Knowles had in Brander a part peculiarly suited to his powers. In the closing cadence of the burlesque Amen Chorus, his stentorian voice told against the whole body of men's voices with an effect quite unique."—Yorkshire Post, July 27, 1900.

"St. Paul," Hanley Philharmonic Society."—"Mr. Charles Knowles, a well-known Yorkshire bass, who now sung for the first time, won much favour by reason of his fine voice and artistic methods."—Staffordshire Sentinel, March 30, 1901.

"Golden Legend," Dover Musical Festival."—". . . with the vindictive 'Here am I, too,' were splendidly rendered. Mr. Knowles sang Lucifer's song with great vigour and power, and was loudly applauded."—Dover Express, May 3, 1901.

"Mr. Charles Knowles, as Lucifer, gave the opening, 'Hasten, hasten!' in the prologue in robust style, his fine bass voice being at once heard to advantage."—Dover Standard, May 4, 1901.

"Samson," Leicester New Musical Society."—"The treat of the evening was to hear Mr. Charles Knowles sing 'Honour and Arms.' This solo is, perhaps, the finest in the oratorio, and Mr. Knowles sang it with the greatest vigour and energy. At the conclusion he was rewarded with a burst of applause such as is not often heard, but he did not repeat the number. His splendid voice was heard to equal advantage in 'Thy glorious deeds' and in the duet 'Go, baffled coward,' with Mr. Saunders."—Leicester Post, November 30, 1900.

For terms and vacant dates, apply, 24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

MR. WATKIN MILLS

Has REMOVED to BROADLANDS, TORQUAY, for the summer months only, and has appointed Messrs. HEALEY & SON sole Business Managers, to whom all business communications should be addressed.

Notwithstanding rumours to the contrary, Mr. Watkin Mills has not the remotest intention of retiring from the profession.

HEALEY & SON,
17, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.,
Sole Business Managers.

MR. CHARLES TREE.

"Elijah" (Blackburn, Nov. 29).—"It was a fine treat to hear the Prophet's music interpreted with such pathos and fervour."—Telegraph.

"Elijah" (Coventry, Jan. 10).—"Sang Elijah's part with rare dramatic power and expression."—Standard.

"Golden Legend" (Stirling, March 27).—"Lucifer was presented with such dramatic power and force that the realistic effects were as powerful on the senses as the performance of a play."—Observer.

Among next season's engagements already booked are—

"Elijah"	Birmingham Choral Society.
"Elijah"	Stafford Choral Society.
"Golden Legend"	Sheffield Choral Society.
"Samson and Delilah" (High Priest) ..	Leeds Choral Society.
"Hiawatha"	Halifax Madrigal Society.
"Persian Garden"	Glasgow.
"Daisy Chain"	Edinburgh, &c.

Address, 23, Clifton Road, Maida Vale, London, W.

MR. AUGUSTUS KEMP
(BASS)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Pure tone, exceptional compass.
Sweetman's Musical Agency, 135, Chatham Street, Liverpool.

MR. ARTHUR SEDGLEY
(BASS).
For Oratorio, Opera, and Ballad Concerts.
Press Notice.—"Mr. Arthur Sedgley's rich bass voice was heard to advantage in that most exacting solo 'Arm, arm, ye brave,' which he sang with a style and dash which drew from the audience a well-deserved encore."—Birmingham Dart.
For terms, &c., apply, 51, Worcester Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. HERBERT WALENN
(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)
(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

MISS ELLEN CHILDS
(CHROMATIC HARPIST)
Having studied in Paris under the direction of the Inventor, Miss Childs is prepared to give LESSONS on the NEW CHROMATIC HARP (without pedals). For terms, apply, 170, Belsize Road, N.W.; or, care of Messrs. Pleyell Wolff, Lyon and Co., 79-80, Baker Street, Portman Square, W.

MISS HETTIE PEEL (Prima Donna) has just returned to England after two years' tour through India, Burma, Straits Settlements, China, Saigon, Ceylon, and the Philippine Islands. At liberty for Concerts. Address, 35, Newman Street, W.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON and Mr. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE beg to announce that during their Canadian tour (from which they expect to return on or about September 22) all communications respecting engagements will be promptly attended to if addressed, as usual, The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.
President, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
Principal, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.
Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.
A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

ORATORIO QUARTET, also Concert Party, with Specialty or Humorist. Artists' names, terms, and vacant dates, Mr. Egbert Roberts, 45, Pentonville Road, N.

MR. STEDMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY
(Established 1877).
Artists or Opera, Theatre, Oratorio, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Choruses, Choir Boys and Girls.
Singing Lessons and Coaching.
58, Berners Street, W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.

SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. James Bates, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, 289, High Road, Lee, S.E.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities. Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppel St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus.Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1901, 1900, and all previous years; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1900 and 1901; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music, Composition, and Pianoforte Teaching); CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that TWENTY-ONE of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1901. Hazelwood, Dollis Rd., Finchley, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1901, SEVENTY-SEVEN passes, L.R.A.M., 1897-1901, TWENTY-SEVEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O.. Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

MR. HERBERT C. MORRIS, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Organist of St. David's Cathedral), has a VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL. Recent Successes: 1899, A.R.C.O. (2), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., and Organ Scholarship R.C.M.; 1900, A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O.; 1901, F.R.C.O. (2), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. Address, The Cathedral, St. David's, Pembrokeshire.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES for EXAMS. Lessons follow closely lines of latest Exam. papers. Terms strictly reasonable. Many years' experience. 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

VOICE PRODUCTION and SINGING.—Mr. EGBERT ROBERTS gives PRIVATE LESSONS, and Coaches Artists in Opera and Oratorio at their residence, or at 45, Pentonville Road, N.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M. LESSONS at 60, Berners Street, W., in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. Letters, 87, Herbert Rd., Plumstead.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for REPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 31, Cathcart Hill, N.

DEGREE in MUSIC.—ORGANIST, and Director of Music in Public School, has one VACANCY for PRIVATE PUPIL, to read (with another) for Mus. Bac. (Oxford, Dublin, or Durham). All subjects. Unusual facilities. Letters, in first instance, to Dr. Rowton, Lindenhurst, Epsom.

MR. W. PRENDERGAST, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Paul's Church, Music Master in Fettes College, &c., requires RESIDENT PUPIL, able to undertake Organist's duties in Mission Church, for which small stipend is given. Preparation for Examinations. 2, Bellevue Terrace, Edinbro'.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

LICHFIELD CATHEDRAL CHOIR. — There will shortly be a VACANCY for a LEADING BOY. Board, lodging, and education, and (to a thoroughly efficient Boy) an extra payment half-yearly. Apply to Rev. M. Hardey, Sub-chanter, The Close, Lichfield.

TENOR WANTED, for City Church. Salary, £9. Good reader. Address, Organist, care of J. W. Vickers, 5, Nicholas Lane, E.C.

ST. PHILIP'S CHURCH, Birmingham.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Full Cathedral Service. Paid choir; Salary, £60. Applications (endorsed Organist) with full particulars to the Bishop of Coventry, St. Philip's Rectory.

KING STREET UNITED FREE CHURCH, Kilmarnock.—ORGANIST & CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Large three-manual organ. Salary, £60. Applications, with copies of testimonials, by August 24, with James Wyllie, 85, Portland Street, Kilmarnock.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of an important Parish Church desires APPOINTMENT within 20 miles of London. Experienced. Very successful with boys' voices. Mus. Bac. Highest references. B. C. D., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

GENTLEMAN'S SON (Pupil of Cathedral Organist) desires POST as ORGANIST. Country or seaside preferred. H. T., Buckhurst Lodge, Sevenoaks.

WANTED, POSITION as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, and also Conductor of Bands if desired. First-class ref. Med., R.A.M., 4, Grenville Place, Hotwells, Clifton.

EXPERIENCED ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires APPOINTMENT; or would take holiday work during September. Regular communicant. Highest possible testimonials and references, clerical and musical. Organ, 15, North Villas, Camden Square, N.W.

EVERY ORGANIST should send for DINHAM, BLYTH & CO.'S Specimens and Price List (free) for Lithographing Anthems, Kyries, Hymn Tunes, &c., from twenty-four Copies and upwards. 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

VIOLINIST, with three years' training in Leipzig under Sitt and Hans Becker, seeks ENGAGEMENT. German. Apply, H. T., Bosworth and Co., Princes Street, Oxford Street, W.

AN AMATEUR VIOLINIST (21) desires an ENGAGEMENT in a small Orchestra. Good testimonial and character. Apply to P. G. Turner, 2, Charlewood Terrace, Putney, S.W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER and TONER WANTED, for Ware-room Work, by a first-class Firm. Applicant must be a skilful and experienced TONER. Apply to H. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, first-class TUNER and REGULATOR with good knowledge of American Organs. Salesman. Smart appearance. Liberal salary to energetic man of good ability. Apply, with photo, references, experience, stating salary required, to Angelus, Regent House, Regent Street, London, W.

WANTED, First-class TUNER and REPAIRER. Repairing indispensable. Permanency suitable man. Send references, photo, &c. Bruton and Co., Ltd., 38, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER WANTED. One from the Country preferred. Age about 21. Edwin Miles, Music Warehouse, Lozells Road, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE TUNER and SALESMAN WANTED, for the East, with good address, factory experience, and first-class credentials. Unmarried preferred. Excellent opening for man between 25 and 30. Address Export, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, a First-class TUNER. Permanent situation for a steady and reliable man. Send testimonials; also state age and salary required to Whitfield and Co., Ramsden Street, Huddersfield.

PIANOFORTE TUNER REQUIRED. Must be first-class man. Outdoor. Permanency. Apply, stating salary required, and enclosing photo and testimonials, to Messrs. Godfrey & Co., Southsea.

PIANO TUNER WANTED, with knowledge of Organs. Previous out-door experience required. Send photograph and full information and salary required to Dale, Forty, and Co., Cheltenham.

TUNER REQUIRED, for Midlands. Must be steady and reliable. Permanent situation. Apply, enclosing photo, stating salary, experience, and references, D. W. E., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks SITUATION. Considerable experience all classes of Pianos, Amer. Organs, Harmoniums, ordinary repairs, &c. Anfield, Novello & Co., Ltd.

WANTED, PIANO and MUSIC SALESMAN, with good address and references. Apply, with photo, stating age and salary required, Wallace Ash, Elm Grove, Southsea.

YOUNG LADY WANTED. Must have thorough knowledge of the Music Trade, Books, Sheet Music, Small Goods, &c. Apply, with full particulars of experience, age, height, and photo, to Pianist, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUNG LADY, disengaged September, desires SITUATION in a good class Music Warehouse. Five years' experience; excellent references. Seaside preferred. F. B., Novello & Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A LADY (A.V.C.M.) desires ENGAGEMENT in Music Warehouse. Piano, organ, violin, mandoline, zither, guitar; also singing. Salary moderate. Address, Diplomée, care of Battersby, 5, Falcon Cliff Terrace, Douglas, I.M.

ENERGETIC AGENT, well introduced to the Trade, WANTED, to represent in England an important Manufacturer of Musical Instruments, established in Markneukirchen (Saxony). Address, L. S., 2,816, c/o Rudolf Mosse, Leipzig, Germany.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827). Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments, for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

VARIOUS high-class ORGANS. Suit Church or Chapel. Two and three manuals. Constructed with all modern appliances. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester, and Preston.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE.—Three-manual (CC to G) and Pedals (CCC to F), 33 stops, £350; Two Manuals and Pedals, £175 and £145; One Manual and Pedal Bourdon (10 stops), £65; also Chamber Organs, 20 guineas and 15 guineas. Inspection invited. Specifications and estimates furnished on application. Eustace Ingram, Organ Builder, only address, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

TWO-MANUAL PIPE ORGAN, £175, or payment arranged; 10 ft. high. Imposing appearance. Speaking front. Manuals CC to A; Pedals CCC to F. 18 stops. Splendid tone; perfect order. Lead about 700 voices. S., 52, Hazlewood Crescent, Westbourne Park Station, London. Appointments please.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

FOR SALE, First-class PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS. Only shop of its kind in town. Central position. Splendid tuning connection. Lancashire. Further particulars, apply, A. S., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE.—BOUDOIR GRAND PIANOFORTE, by Collard and Collard. Rosewood case and good condition. Apply, Spring and Son, Brigg.

PEDAL ATTACHMENT for PIANOFORTE for SALE. Very little used. £5. Can be seen any time. 2, Belitha Villas, Barnsbury, N.

RUMMENS' ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT to PIANOFORTES for Home Practice of Organ Music. Straight and Concave, Radiating and Concave, or any other form of Pedal Board. Inspection invited. Lists free. 1, Wynne Road, Brixton, S.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.

(ESTABLISHED 1841.)

Specifications and Estimates sent free.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights. Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

TO CHORAL and ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.—Several CHORAL WORKS, PART-SONGS, and ORCHESTRAL WORKS for SALE. Applications for lists to Dr. Bunnett, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

MUSICAL OPINION.—Send 4d. for new number to 35, Shoe Lane, London, E.C. About 250 columns of interesting Musical Literature and Advertisements. Founded 1876.

Fourth Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By Alfred J. Dye. Price 4d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By Arthur Carnall, Mus.B., Cantab. 4d. Sample copies, Penge, S.E.

Sixth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By William S. Vinning, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

KYRIE ELEISON in D flat. By Rev. T. Normandale, B.A. Price 1d. Third Edition.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—"Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

SINGING CARDS for CHOIR BOYS:—
No. 1. Rudiments and Exercises (3rd Edition) .. .. 2d.
„ 2. Exercises to teach boys to sing a second part .. 2d.
Compiled by C. Sydney Vinning.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

NEW EASY and COMPLETE COMMUNION SERVICE in D. By Frank Adlam. Price 6d. Novello & Co., Ltd., London. Written in same style and containing all the features which have made the Composer's famous Service in F so exceedingly popular.

AVE VERUM in G. By Frank Adlam. This beautiful Communio, sung for many years at St. Thomas's, Regent Street, is now published (Solo and short Chorus). Price 2d.
London: Hart and Co., Paternoster Row.

HARVEST ANTHEMS

BY

E. BUNNETT,

Mus.D., Cantab.

BLESSED BE THOU. Four Voices .. .. 3d.
„ „ Tonic Sol-fa .. .. 1½d.
O CLAP YOUR HANDS .. .. 4d.
„ „ Tonic Sol-fa .. .. 2d.
I WILL MAGNIFY THEE .. .. 3d.
„ „ Tonic Sol-fa.. .. .. .. 1½d.
HARVEST HYMN—SING TO THE LORD .. .. .. 1d.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

POPULAR HARVEST ANTHEMS

BY

E. A. SYDENHAM

FULL, EASY, EFFECTIVE.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.
O GIVE THANKS.
SING UNTO THE LORD.
GREAT IS THE LORD.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

POPULAR
HARVEST ANTHEMS, &c.

Write for Specimens and Catalogue to AMBROSE ABBOTT AND CO.,
14, Hanway Street, London, W.
(Note new address.)

HARVEST ANTHEMS

By EDWARD S. CRASTON, Mus. Bac.

The earth is full 4d
Thou crownest the year .. .. 3d.
The glorious Majesty of the Lord .. .. 2d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

EDWYN A. CLARE'S
NEW HARVEST ANTHEMS, &c.

Popular, attractive, effective, and not difficult.

HOW GREAT IS HIS GOODNESS. 8th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
For Parish Choirs. Easy and effective.
Fear not, O Land. 6th 1,000. An easy Anthem .. .. 3d.
*Thou crownest the year. 8th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
Sing unto God with thanksgiving. 12th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
Varied, effective, and pleasing for the Choir.
*The eyes of all wait upon Thee. 28th 1,000 .. .. .. 3d.
Sung by 1,500 voices at Newcastle-on-Tyne.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem. 24th 1,000 .. .. .. 3d.
Sung by 400 voices at Doncaster.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works. 6th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
*The Lord reigneth. 6th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D. 12th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
Sung at a Festival at Petersham, New South Wales.
Those marked * are also published in Tonic Sol-fa.
London: Novello and Company, Limited, 1, Berners Street, W.

EASY and BEAUTIFUL HARVEST ANTHEMS. "Feast of Harvest," F. Adlam, 3d.; "Great is the Lord and Marvellous," F. Adlam, 3d.; "All Thy Works praise Thee," Clement Locknane, 4d.; "The Earth is the Lord's," Dr. Abram, 4d.
London: Hart and Co., Paternoster Row.

£9 9s. in PRIZES for HYMN-TUNE COMPETITION will be given by the Meersbrook Park Sunday School Union. Enclose stamp for conditions, &c., to Hon. Sec., C. Sissons, 21, Woodhead Road, Sheffield.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS. By A. B. Allen.
"Tom, the Piper's son." S.A.T.B. Price 3d.
"Dickory, dickory, dock." S.A.T.B. Price 4d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

VOCAL SCORE OLD NOTATION. 45TH THOUSAND.

RUTH

A HARVEST PASTORAL

SUITABLE FOR USE IN PLACES OF WORSHIP

WORDS BY

EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL.

SUITABLE FOR

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

"The Biblical story of which Ruth is the central figure lends itself with remarkable suitability to an illustration of a harvest celebration. The country landscape, the ripened corn, the sturdy reapers, the standing sheaves, the active gleaners, and the busy farmer, all combine to fill the mind's eye with a pleasant scene of excitement. Set to music by a competent composer such as Mr. A. R. Gaul, the narrative of Ruth's eventual episode lends itself to a pathetic, picturesque, and pleasant performance. The bereaved and sorrowful trio of women on whom the calamity of poverty and famine has fallen, as if to give intensity to their greater grief, and the unexpected and happy influence of patriarchal benevolence displayed by the mighty Boaz, who so quickly transforms sorrow into joy, are all introduced and aptly take their allotted place in the melodious music of Gaul's interpretation of the tale."—Gloucester Citizen.

PERFORMED IN THE TOWN HALL, BIRMINGHAM, ON TWELVE OCCASIONS.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s.; ditto, paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s.

The Choruses (only) in Vocal Score, for Musical Societies, paper cover, 1s. Words, 5s. per 100.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 9d. Band Parts on loan.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

FOR HARVEST FESTIVALS.

NEW HARVEST CANTATA.

A Hymn of Thanksgiving

FOR SOPRANO SOLO AND CHORUS

WITH

ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT

COMPOSED BY

ERNEST HALSEY.

PUBLISHED BY

HUTCHINGS AND ROMER,

39, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence net.

Organists and Choirmasters can receive Specimen Copies gratis on forwarding 3d. in stamps, to cover postage, to the Publishers.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Crown 4to, cloth extra, price 3s. 6d.

SOUVENIR OF SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN

MUS. DOC., M.V.O.

A BRIEF SKETCH OF HIS LIFE AND WORKS

BY

WALTER J. WELLS.

WITH PORTRAITS, FACSIMILES, AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

 The Illustrations include facsimiles of his music writing, the house in which he was born, Portraits of Sir Arthur from the time he was a chorister at the Chapel Royal to the latest periods of his working days, and of some interesting persons associated with him. There are also pictures illustrating scenes from the operas in which Sir A. Sullivan was associated with Mr. W. S. Gilbert.

London: GEORGE NEWNES, Limited, Southampton Street, Strand.

Just Published.

THE

COMMUNION SERVICE

(WITH BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI)

Set to Music in the Key of C

By H. M. HIGGS.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

"Such settings as these cannot do otherwise than tend to popularise the Church Service."—Musical Standard, June 6, 1891.

"Good, effective, easy, and dignified."—Musical Times, April 1, 1891.

"Admirably adapted to meet the requirements of the majority of choirs and congregations." "Deserve extensive recognition and use."—Musical News, September 4 and 25, 1891.

Also recommended by the Guardian, Church Times, &c., &c.

POPULAR CHURCH MUSIC

BY

J. H. MAUNDER.

	Staff Notation.	Tonic Sol-fa
HARVEST ANTHEMS.
Sing to the Lord of Harvest	3d	2d.
While the earth remaineth	3d.	2d.
Blessed be the Name of the Lord	3d.	2d.
SERVICES.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C (partly in Unison)	3d.	1½d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D	3d.	2d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G	3d.	2d.
Te Deum in Free Chant Form	3d.	2d.
Te Deum in B flat	3d.	2d.
Communion Service in G	8d
Amen in G	1d.	1d.
ORGAN.
Voi Seraphique or Recitals)	2s.
CHURCH CANTATA.
Penitence Pardon, and Peace (for Genera Use)	1/6	1/-

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

WORKS by the late JOHN FARMER

Director of Balliol College, Oxford (formerly of Harrow School).

CHEAP EDITION. RECENTLY ISSUED.

Extra crown 4to, Words and Music, price 2s. 6d.

SCARLET AND BLUE; or, Songs for Soldiers and Sailors. Also published in cloth, 5s. Words only, royal 32mo, 9d. cloth, or 6d. paper.

GAUDEAMUS. One Hundred Songs for Colleges, Schools, and the Home. 5s. The Words only, cloth, 9d.; or paper covers, 6d.

DULCE DOMUM. 134 Rhymes and Songs for Children. Crown 4to (Old Notation and Words), 5s. Also issued in Crown 8vo size, in Two Parts (Tonic Sol-fa and Old Notation and Words), 6d. each.

London: CASSELL AND COMPANY, Limited, Ludgate Hill.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

INSTITUTED 1872.

President:
THE RIGHT HON. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, MUS.D.

MICHAELMAS TERM commences September 25.

The following are the Subjects included in the curriculum of the Day and Evening Classes:—Organ, Pianoforte, Solo Singing and Voice Production, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Harp, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet, Trombone, Timpani, Side-Drum, &c.; Harmony, Counterpoint, Canon, Fugue, Composition, Form, Orchestration, Musical History, Transposition, Sight Reading, Elocution, French, German, and Italian.

The College Orchestra and Choir and the various Ensemble Classes for students and non-students.

The Professors include:—Dr. J. Gordon Saunders, Dr. James Higgs, Dr. C. W. Pearce, Miss Florence Higgins, Mus.B., S. Coleridge-Taylor, Dr. E. H. Turpin, Frederick G. Cole, G. E. Bambridge, R. W. Lewis, Dr. John Warriner, Henry R. Bird, Edward D'Evry and Miss Margaret Carter, F. G. M. Ogbourne, Dr. W. Creser, A. Visetti, Wallace Wells, Frank Swinford, J. T. Hutchinson, R. B. Addison, Madame Hope Glenn, Madame Pauline Rita (Mrs. Radcliff), Cyril Streatfeild, Douglas Powell, F. Rizzelli, Rev. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, Mus.D., F.R.S.E., John L. Child, L. Szczepanowski, Victor Buziau, E. E. Halfpenny, E. Woolhouse, John Reynolds, Madame Josephine Chatterton, J. Radcliff, W. Lewis Barrett, W. M. Malsch, George A. Clinton, Edwin F. James, Albert E. Matt, Thomas R. Busby, John Solomon, V. A. Chaine, Dr. A. H. Walker, B.A., Dr. H. T. Pringuer, L. Ricci, Etienne Ruf, and T. Matthay.

FEES.

Per Term for the Course, Five and Six Guineas; from Two Guineas for single Instrument or Vocal Studies; One Guinea for the Theoretical Class Subjects.

Open Scholarships and Exhibitions for both sexes are awarded annually.

Prospectuses and all information from the undersigned.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

Just Published.

THE SEA-FAIRIES

CANTATA

FOR SOPRANO SOLO AND CHORUS OF FEMALE VOICES

With Accompaniment for the Pianoforte

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY LORD TENNYSON
THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
BATTISON HAYNES.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Tonic Sol-fa (in the Press.)

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

VERSICLES AND RESPONSES

ARRANGED FOR BOYS' OR LADIES' VOICES
BY
A. HERBERT BREWER,

Organist and Master of the Choristers, Gloucester Cathedral.

PRICE TWOPENCE.

PREFACE.

This arrangement of the Responses for Sopranos and Contraltos was originally intended to supply a need occasionally felt in Gloucester Cathedral when the Lay Clerks were away and the Choir consisted of Boys only. I am not aware that any similar arrangement has been printed, and I therefore offer this version to the public in the hope that it may be found useful in cases where Choirs are limited to Boys' or Ladies' voices.

A. HERBERT BREWER.

Palace Yard, Gloucester, July, 1901.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Ltd., and NOVELLO EWER AND CO., New York.

BROADWOODS' (ESTD. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (HIGHEST POSSIBLE AWARD)
PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.
Established 1865.
Principal: T. H. YORKE TROTTER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. Yorke Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

The NEXT TERM will commence on MONDAY, September 23. Entrance Examination, Friday, September 20.
Syllabus and official Entry Forms may be obtained at the College, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.

FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

Just Published.

FOUR CHORUSES

FROM

THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

COMPOSED BY

EDWARD ELGAR

(OP. 38)

1. LITANY ("Kyrie Eleison. Holy Mary, Pray for Him"). Price Twopence.
2. BE MERCIFUL, BE GRACIOUS. Price Threepence.
3. GO FORTH UPON THY JOURNEY (arranged for Bass Solo and four-part Chorus, S.A.T.B.). Price Fourpence.
4. FINALE: "Softly and gently, dearly ransomed soul." ("The Angel's Farewell.") For Mezzo-Soprano Solo and Chorus. Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

AUGUST 1, 1901.

EATON FANING.

Harrow-on-the-Hill is at its best on this lovely Midsummer Day. The perched-up little town is bathed in glorious sunshine; the red-brick houses, in their fresh vernal settings, are delightfully picturesque; and the broad expanse of view, extending over thirteen shires, is charming in its rural simplicity. Yes, it is a fair scene, and no one will deny that Harrow is beautiful for situation. The wayfarer who has reached the hill-top, crowned by the 'visible church,' has probably come to the conclusion that the great School, founded by old John Lyon in 1571, has, even from a geographical standpoint, every claim to be regarded as a high school. But this is purely a local matter, and suggests the wider question: Has not its fame reached unto the ends of the earth? Among old Harrovians who have made their mark in the world—some of whom have left their mark in the panelling of the Fourth Form Room—are Lord Byron, Bruce the Abyssinian, Theodore Hook, Cardinal Manning, Lord Palmerston, Sir Robert Peel, Lord Shaftesbury, Sheridan, Archbishop Trench, Anthony Trollope, and others. And from the roll of twenty-one past Head Masters, four names deserve at least 'honourable mention'—Bishop Christopher Wordsworth, Dean Vaughan, the Rev. Dr. H. Montagu Butler (the present Master of Trinity College, Cambridge), and last, but not least, the Rev. Dr. J. E. C. Welldon, now Bishop of Calcutta.

It is very pleasant to stroll through some of the buildings which form the outstanding features of the School — the Chapel, the Vaughan Memorial Library, the Speech Room, and the New Music School, of which more anon—in the genial company of one who has held an honourable position on the teaching staff of the great School for the past sixteen years, and who forms the subject of this biographical sketch.

Joseph Eaton Faning is a Cornishman, as he was born, on May 20, 1850, at Helston, not so very far from Land's End. The old market town—formerly called Helleston, 'the fortress on the marsh'—is noted for its Furry, or Flora Festival, which has been annually held from time immemorial on the 8th of May. At an early hour in the morning parties are formed, and, headed by bands of music, dance and sing through the principal streets, which are decorated with flags and flowers. Here is a specimen stanza of the traditional ballad, known as the Hal-an-tow, which used to be sung by the old townsmen to an appropriate air:—

God bless aunt Mary Moyses
With all her pow'r and might O!
And send us peace in merry England
Both day and night O!
And send us peace in merry England,
Both now and evermore O!
With Hal-an-tow,
Jolly rumble O!

Chorus.—And we were up as soon as any day O!
And for to fetch the Summer home,
The Summer and the May O!
For Summer is a come O!
And Winter is a gone O!

Soon after noon the principal inhabitants and visitors, headed by a band playing the Furry or Flora dance-tune (called also the Fadé, or Faddy dance), dance through the principal streets and in and through many of the houses. The origin of all these terms is extremely doubtful. The custom itself is no doubt a relic, and a very pleasant relic, of remote antiquity. But to return to the biography of a distinguished Helstonian, Eaton Faning. He received his first instruction in music (pianoforte and violin) from his parents, his father, the late Mr. Roger Faning, being a professor of music in the town. At the age of five the boy made a semi-public appearance at a local function, when he played a violin solo on a tiny fiddle. This instrument, although it only cost five shillings, he treasures as a precious possession.

EATON FANING
AT THE AGE OF 16.

EARLY YEARS AT IPSWICH.

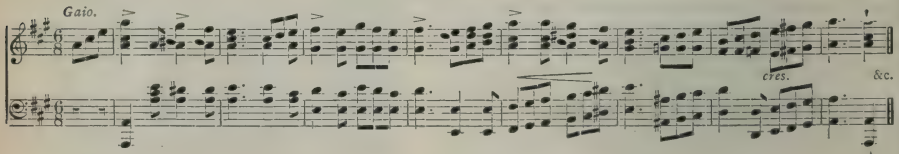
When he was only nine years old he lost his father. The family then removed to Ipswich, where his mother—now in her eighty-fifth year—still resides. Located at Berners Street, in the Suffolk county town, young Faning worked hard at music. He sang alto in the choir of St. Stephen's Church, and studied the organ under Mr. Norman, organist of St. Matthew's Church, for whom he deputised, and the violin with Mr. Cooke, a local teacher. At the age of twelve he became organist of Holbrook Parish Church, a village seven miles from Ipswich, whither he had to walk when the carrier's cart was not available. He subsequently studied under the late Mr. Lindley Nunn, for many years organist of the fine church of St. Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich, who appointed Eaton Faning his deputy. This post was of the greatest practical value to the young musician. He played at the daily evening service for five years, and was deputy trainer of the choir, which consisted of sixty voices.

THE VIOLAIST DANCING-MASTER.

He made much music at the house of a Mr. Pratt, who, although a dancing-master by profession, was an earnest-minded musician and an excellent viola player. Mr. Pratt had quartet parties on Sunday afternoons, at which young Faning used to play the violin. These meetings, purely for the love of the thing, were not only very enjoyable, but educationally beneficial to the young fiddler. But this was not all. Faning used to play the pianoforte while the young ladies were engaged in their light fantastic-toe operations under Mr. Pratt's tuition. May not that precious rhythmic faculty, which is so marked a characteristic of Dr. Faning's musicianship, have been nurtured at Mr. Pratt's dancing class? Moreover, he composed for those fair terpsichoreans a march and a set of quadrilles! Here are two specimen phrases of the latter achievement—which, it will be observed, is called a first set of quadrilles—composed at Ipswich in October, 1869:—

1st Set of Quadrilles.

1st Figure.



2nd Figure.

The canon—not in the least suggestive of pom-pomposity—in Figure 2, will not escape notice.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

In April, 1870, Eaton Faning, who had up to this time done much teaching in Ipswich, entered the Royal Academy of Music as a student. He was then just on the verge of twenty. His professors at the Academy were Sterndale Bennett (then Principal) and Sullivan for composition; F. B. Jewson, for pianoforte; Ciabatta, for singing; Aylward and Pettit, for violoncello; and Dr. Steggall, for organ. He recalls how much he learnt from Sterndale Bennett in regard to form, and Sullivan's invaluable lessons in orchestration. He soon began to make his mark at Tenterden Street, and his progress was very rapid. His first appearance at an Academy concert was in the capacity of a pianist, when he played (in October, 1870) Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata. In 1871 and 1874 he obtained bronze medals, in 1872 a similar award in silver, in 1874 he was appointed a sub-professor of harmony, in 1877 an assistant professor of the pianoforte, and a year later full professor. In 1877 he was elected an Associate, and in 1881 a Fellow of his alma mater, the highest honour the Academy can bestow upon an old student.

THE MAGNIFICAT IN C.

It was in the field of composition that Faning specially distinguished himself at Tenterden Street. A string quartet in 1871, and a symphony (in C minor, with a charming second subject in the horns) in 1872 gave excellent promise of future achievements in creative skill. In 1873 he was elected an extra Mendelssohn Scholar, and in 1876 he obtained the Lucas silver medal for composition by his fine setting of the Magnificat in the key of C. There are old Academy students who, like the present writer, can recall the first rehearsals, under Mr. Walter Macfarren's conductorship, of that bright yet dignified setting of the evening canticle. How our 'gorgeous sopranos' (to adopt the definition of Mr. Frederick Corder, then a humble bass in the choir) revelled in this brilliant phrase:—

and how little Marie Duval threw her whole soul into the soprano solo at the words 'For behold from henceforth.' It would be impossible to forget the subject of the fugato, with its triplet figure—rhythmically quite original, we fancy—in the Gloria :—

It was no wonder that the late Sir John (then Dr.) Stainer, after having heard the service, selected it for performance at the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy in 1878, and that the

THE SPEECH ROOM. THE CHAPEL. THE VAUGHAN LIBRARY.

HARROW SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

work found a ready publisher in Messrs. Novello. The old boys of those days in the seventies—amongst them Frederick Corder, Myles Foster, Spencer Curwen, Alfred Eyre, Tobias Matthay, Frye Parker, Henry Guy, and Henry Rose—will recall Faning's excellencies as the chief drummer in our orchestra: how rhythmic his playing and how keen his alertness in the manipulation of the sticks. He also played the violoncello in the Academy orchestra for some years. 'Picking-up,' one of the best of masters, he by no means neglected. When not engaged in drumming he might often be seen standing over the desks of Lazarus (the clarinetist), Horton (the oboeist), Charles Harper (the first horn and a special favourite), and others of 'the wind' while they were playing, watching their fingerings and phrasing, taking stock of the practical effect of the notes written by the great composers, and so on. In the present day, when students have so much—perhaps too much—done for them, it is desirable to direct their earnest attention to the careers of some of our most successful men, who owe so much to that grit in their characters which is born of self help.

'THE TWO MAJORS,' AND ITS SEQUEL.

Faning was the cause of the starting of the operatic class at the Royal Academy of Music. On July 18, 1877, the Academy was turned upside down for the performance of his comic operetta in one act, the libretto (founded on one of Mr. W. S. Gilbert's Bab Ballads) by Edward Rose, entitled 'The Two Majors.' The soloists included the late Madame Crosmond Turner (as Fillette, the vivandière and heroine), Henry Guy, Charles Tinney (Major La Guerre), and Arthur Oswald (Major Makredi Prepère), and in the ranks of the chorus were Misses Mary Davies and Clara Samuell, and Myles Foster and Alfred Eyre. This highly amusing and capital one-act piece, with its clever parodies of some of the absurdities of Italian opera, and in which Sullivan took a warm and practical interest, was capitally rendered, under the composer's direction, with the greatest success, and, as we have said, laid the foundation of the operatic class, which now flourishes at Tenterden Street.

COMPOSITIONS VARIOUS.

Other compositions of the Academy and subsequent period include an overture and a second quartet in G minor in 1871; an overture entitled 'The Holiday,' played at the Promenade Concerts, Covent Garden, in 1882; two comic operettas—'Mock Turtles' (Savoy Theatre, 1881) and 'The Head of the Poll,' performed by the German Reeds in 1882. 'Buttercups and Daisies,' a charming pastoral cantata for children's voices, made its appearance ten years later. Compositions for the pianoforte (published) include the 'Dream in a rocking chair' (first performed at a Fortnightly Meeting at the Academy), the 'Brooklet,' 'Psyche' (a Romance), and 'Diableries fantastiques' (a Study). In concerted music there is an interesting Allegro sostenuto for violin, clarinet, and pianoforte. A humorous 'Savage Dance' (intermezzo) for orchestra, in MS., with its droll effects of interpolated five-four rhythm, was specially composed and conducted by Dr. Faning, in the garb of a savage, for the Savage Club entertainment, Royal Albert Hall, July 11, 1883, when King Edward and Queen Alexandra, as Prince and Princess of Wales, were present. As becometh a pupil of Sterndale Bennett and Sullivan, Eaton Faning has been very successful as a song composer. His best known effort in this direction is probably his naïve setting of the words 'I've something sweet to tell you,' which will serve as a typical specimen of his melodic gift and artistic sensibility. Last, but not least, must be added a fine Mass in B minor, composed as an exercise for his Doctor's degree last year.

'THE VIKINGS.'

Dr. Eaton Faning is best known by his admirable part-songs, which have attained wide popularity. Foremost among them is 'The Song of the Vikings,' a setting of the stirring and wave-charged words of Mr. Somerville Gibney, whose portrait we give. Mr. Gibney is also the author of the words of 'Liberty' and several of Dr. Faning's solo songs: moreover, he is an old Harrovian! It is interesting to learn from the composer that the first phrase of the refrain, which we give (in facsimile) in the composer's autograph, furnished the germ of this vigorous part-song—a phrase that suggested its natural briny complement in the words:—

'Lords of the waves we are!'

The poet, however, naturally desired 'Lords of the waves are we.' 'No,' replied Faning, 'it must be a good open vowel—"we are."' Having laid the foundation, so to speak, of this breezy, billowy composition, Mr. Gibney thereupon built the superstructure—notwithstanding that the foundation thereof was water—with what success is well known.

'The Vikings,' originally written with pianoforte duet accompaniment, made its first appearance under very modest conditions. While yet a student at the Academy, Faning conducted the Wickham Park Musical Society (New Cross). The word-book of its 'Second amateur concert,' given at New Cross Public Hall, May 16, 1876, thus records the launching of 'The Vikings':—

PART SECOND.

Part Song .. .. 'The Vikings' .. Eaton Faning.
Duet Accompaniment, Miss Hogg and Miss Pawle.
Written specially for this occasion by Mr. EATON FANING.
Words by E. S. GIBNEY, Esq.

A local journal reported upon the novelty in these terms:—

The second part commenced with the part-song 'The Vikings,' the words and music of which were written and composed expressly for this occasion by Messrs. E. S. Gibney and Eaton Faning. It went capitally, and the last chord was the signal for a vociferous encore; but the composer, with praiseworthy modesty, contented himself with bowing his thanks, and refused to break the rule of the evening in favour of his own work.

'The Vikings' was placed in rehearsal at the Royal Academy of Music during the first term of 1877, as a promising student's composition. The late Mr. Weist Hill—then a professor of the violin at the Academy and a member of the orchestra, and subsequently the first Principal of the Guildhall School of Music—heard the work and told Faning that he should like to perform it at the opening festival (1877) of the Alexandra Palace, for which occasion Faning undertook to score the original pianoforte duet accompaniment. 'The Vikings' was duly performed at Muswell Hill, under the direction of the composer, on May 10, 1877. The word-book of the concert stated that it was 'composed for this occasion,' but —! Two days after the Alexandra Palace performance it was sung, under Mr. Walter Macfarren's conductorship, at the Students' concert at the Royal Academy of Music, when the composer's name appeared in the word-book as 'Eaton Faning (student).' The history of this favourite part-song—now accurately stated for the first time—is not without interest. It shows that, while 'The Vikings' was written for a local choral society of enthusiastic amateur singers, it rapidly made its way into the ocean of popularity—a popularity which has been increasingly maintained during the quarter-of-a-century of its existence. 'The Vikings' has by no means completed its voyage: it is unmistakably 'A1.'

PART-SONGS, ETC.

The remaining choral works—of which 'The Miller's Wooing' is a special favourite—are as follows (excluding the Harrow School songs, to be referred to later):—

Daybreak. Ode for chorus and orchestra. Words by Longfellow.

Liberty. Dramatic Chorus. A song of Ancient Rome (suggested by Macaulay's 'Virginia'). Words by Somerville Gibney. For soprano solo, chorus, and orchestra. First performed by the Wickham Park Musical Society (New Cross), of which Dr. Faning was conductor, May 11, 1882.

The Miller's Wooing. A choral ballad for chorus and orchestra. Words by Julia Goddard. Composed for the Wickham Park Musical Society, and first performed by them, May 15, 1884.

The Four Winds. A choral song for chorus and orchestra. Words by George Weatherly. Dedicated to Henry Leslie, and first performed by his choir on April 14, 1886.

There is dew for the flow'ret. Four-part song. Words by Tom Hood.

Moonlight. Four-part song. Words by Frederick Weatherly. First appeared in THE MUSICAL TIMES for January, 1886.

Somerville Gibney

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Alfred Ellis and Walery, and reproduced by their kind permission.)

The Shepherd's Waking. Four-part song. Words from John Attey's First Book of Airs, 1622.

Song of the silent land. For voices with (ad lib.) accompaniment for violin, violoncello, harp, and organ. Words by Longfellow.

The Fortune-teller's song. Four-part song. Words by Harold Boulton.

Boat Song. Junior unison song.

The Queen's Song. A.D. 1897. Words by Sir Edwin Arnold, K.C.I.E., C.S.I. For chorus and orchestra. Dedicated to Queen Victoria.

When Spring comes laughing. Four-part song. Words by Austin Dobson. Dedicated to the Morecambe Madrigal Society.

Obedient to the Call. A patriotic song. Words by E. W. Howson.

In regard to the last-named song it may safely be described as one of the best which the South African war has called forth. Apart from its musical excellence, the words have the merit of being absolutely free from the patri-idiotic.

APPOINTMENTS.

Before proceeding to refer to the Harrow period of Dr. Faning's career, it may be convenient to mention some of the appointments he has held at various times. During his Academy studentship he was organist successively of St. Thomas's Church, Paddington (now demolished), and St. John's Church, Lewisham High Road. He conducted the Amateur Musical Society, Tonbridge, the Wickham Park Musical Society (New Cross), and 'Mr. Eaton Faning's Select Choir.' The refined singing of the last-named and well-trained body of vocalists was a marked feature of Messrs. Boosey's London Ballad Concerts. He succeeded Sir John Stainer in the conductorship of the London Male Voice Club, and of the Madrigal Society, jointly with Sir Frederick Bridge. During the absence of Dr. Stanford, in Germany, Dr. Faning conducted, with much acceptance, the performances of the Cambridge University Musical Society. He also rendered the late Sir Joseph Barnby yeoman service in rehearsing the Royal Choral Society in 'Parsifal' for the two concert performances they gave of that work at the Royal Albert Hall, November 10 and 15, 1884.

In addition to his professorship at the Royal Academy of Music, Dr. Faning was formerly a professor of the pianoforte at the Guildhall School of Music; a professor of the pianoforte and harmony, and conductor of the choral class at the National Training School of Music; and he held the same offices at the Royal College of Music from its opening in 1883 till Easter, 1887. He took the degree of Bachelor of Music at the University of Cambridge in 1894, and that of Doctor of Music in 1900. He is President of the R.A.M. Club, an alma mater fraternity founded by his old friend and fellow student, Myles Foster, in May, 1889.

On August 24, 1882, at Holy Trinity Church, Roehampton, Dr. Faning was married to Miss Caroline Pare Galpin, third daughter of Mr. Thomas Dixon Galpin, formerly an active member of the great firm of Messrs. Cassell, Petter and Galpin.

MUSIC AT HARROW SCHOOL.

In the year 1885, Dr. Faning was offered and urged to accept the post of Music Master of Harrow School. The acceptance of this offer not only necessitated a change in his professional life, but placed him in a position of some difficulty. His predecessor, the late Mr. John Farmer, had implanted certain traditions of Harrow School music during the twenty-three years he had held the post. Like all public school traditions, these had become very deep rooted. Moreover, Mr. Farmer had become a veritable hero on the Hill. Dr. Faning therefore very wisely took a broad view of the situation, and, as Mr. E. W. Howson in a recent number of The Harrovian has said, 'he threw himself loyally into the work as he found it, wisely resolving to improve, refine, and develop, rather than to make any revolutionary change. The result has been just what we hoped and desired. The old system has been respected, but it has been enriched and extended in various directions.' Let us now survey that enrichment and extension of the music faculty in John Lyon's foundation.

THE NEW MUSIC SCHOOL.

The most tangible outcome of Dr. Faning's energetic regime has been the New Music School. This fine building, designed by Mr. E. S. Prior, was erected in 1891 upon the initiative of Dr. Faning, at a cost of £6,000, towards which Dr. Welldon, the late head master, contributed £500. It is situated in an isolated part of the grounds, with a view suggestive of a pastoral symphony, with 'Ducker' as the brook. In going over the building in the company of its instigator, one is struck by its adequate equipment. The various practice and lesson rooms, to the number of fifteen, which open into cloistered passages, are made as nearly as possible sound-proof. The space between the double walls of each little apartment is filled in with silicated cotton, in order that the sound may be deadened, and all the windows, doors, and ceilings are duplicated. In one room we find a boy taking a pianoforte lesson, in another an embryo fiddler is struggling with the third position, while down in the band room—upon whose walls hang in bright array the silvered instruments of the Volunteer band—a young Harrovian is giving proof that he bids fair to become a very respectable clarinet player. Various peeps into the music lockers furnish proof that classical music enters largely into the curriculum; and when it is borne in mind that all music lessons have to be taken when a boy is not 'up' and on half-holidays—of which there are only three in each week!—the self-denial of the musically inclined Harrovians deserves to be commended.

In the centre of the Music School is a concert hall, of excellent acoustical properties, capable of seating an audience of 200 persons. Its walls are adorned with portraits of the great composers, some of them being gifts from boys on leaving the School. At the end of the room, above the narrow gallery, is a board upon which is carved the names of those who have won music prizes at Harrow, but many others have distinguished themselves in music. It was an excellent idea of Dr. Faning's thus to make music no less worthy of recognition than a talent for classics, mathematics, or other subjects. In this spacious and cheerful Orchestra Hall the orchestral and choral practices are held.

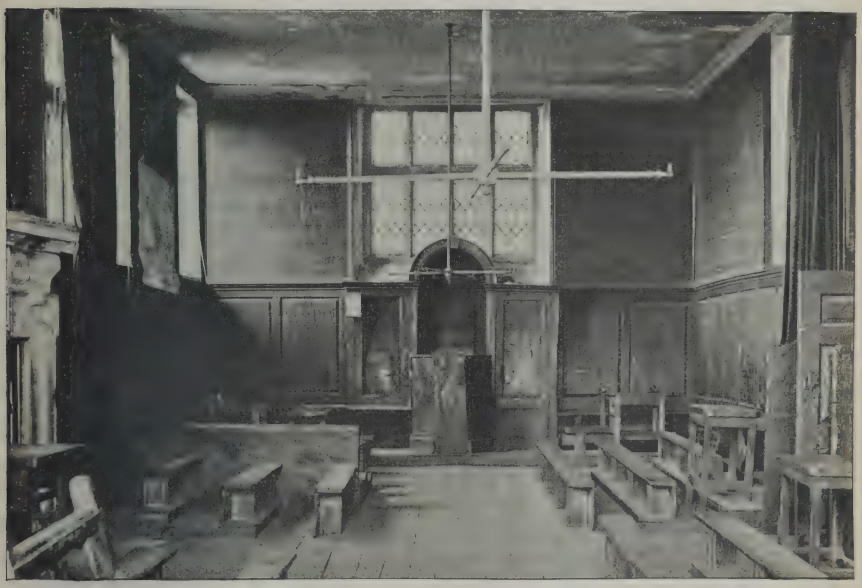
THE H.S.M.S.

The H.S.M.S. (Harrow School Musical Society) includes the Choral Class, Orchestra, and Cadet corps band. The orchestra, which consists of both boys and masters, numbers thirty performers. The record of their achievements, under Dr. Faning's conductorship, is a highly creditable one. The long list of works, carefully prepared by Mr. W. King, Dr. Faning's invaluable factotum, includes many symphonies (or movements therefrom) by Beethoven, Mozart, and Haydn; several overtures, such as the Prometheus, Egmont, Rosamunde, and Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage; many waltzes, with a good sprinkling of Strauss—why should we not have a Strauss waltz at a Philharmonic concert?—pianoforte concertos, such as Mozart's in D minor, Mendelssohn's Capriccio in B minor; violin solos with orchestra, flute solos and duets, and horn solos, all the solo portions being played by the boys. The Choral Class has a membership,



THE FOURTH-FORM ROOM AT HARROW.
(From a Photograph by Messrs. Hills and Saunders.)

exclusively of boys, of about one hundred. Madrigals and part-songs form the staple fare of the class, but they have practised 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' 'Phaudrig Crohoore,' 'The Pied Piper of Hamelin,' &c. On one occasion, fifty members gave a performance of 'The Revenge,' without any outside assistance—an achievement which testifies to the enthusiasm of these youthful dwellers on the Hill, and to the skill of their much-esteemed music-master. Performances of the standard oratorios by a professional band and chorus, under Dr. Faning's direction, have been given in the Speech Room by way of making the whole School acquainted with these works of the great masters. Onesidedness is by no means an article of Dr. Faning's musical creed.

HOUSE SINGING.

One of the traditions of Harrow—the swallow-tail coat, turned-up trousers and shallow straw hats are among them—is the House Singing, of which the late John Farmer was the founder. During the two winter terms of the year, Dr. Faning, on four nights in the week, visits two of the masters' Houses fortnightly for the vociferation exercise known as House Singing. These informal gatherings, if not of any particular musical value, yet serve to promote good fellowship and an esprit de corps, and are much enjoyed by the boys. Every boy in the House attends, and whether he has a voice or not, he has to join in the singing. The famous Harrow songs form the chief feature of the evening's music. The majority of these were written by Mr. Farmer, but Dr. Faning has added twelve others, including 'Here, Sir!' and 'Ducker.' Special mention must be made of the admirable words of these songs, of which the most distinguished poets are the late and revered Mr. E. E. Bowen, a former, and Mr. E. W. Howson, a present assistant-master in the School. Some specimen verses are given later on, in treating of the Speech Day. In order to raise the standard of the House Singing, Dr. Faning gave a silver Challenge Bell as a prize for the best rendering of a particular song, 'special attention to be directed to Attack, Precision, Distinct Articulation, Good Tone, and Intelligent rendering of the words.' This prize is competed for annually, and is held by the winning House (its name being engraved on the Challenge Bell) until the next award is made. A Glee competition and a House competition in Madrigals are similar features of a distinctly educative influence in the music of the School. Dr. Faning has, moreover, 'improved, refined, and developed' the Genius loci of the House Singing by orchestrating the songs in addition to raising the standard of their interpretation. Seeds may even be sown at the House Singing gatherings which may take root and some day fructify. The literary side of the art has not been neglected. In the beautiful Vaughan Library—a most inviting place for mental refreshment, and erected from the designs of the late Sir Gilbert Scott, in 1863—we find 'Grove's Dictionary,' the Histories of Burney and Hawkins, Helmholtz's 'Treatise on the Sensations of Tone,' and other useful books of reference and biographical utility, including 'The Dictionary of National Biography.'

SUNDAY MUSIC AT HARROW.

It is the last Sunday of June, and the last day of the first half of the first year of the present century. The afternoon hour of 4 is approaching, and groups of boys may be seen wending their way towards the noble Speech Room. This semi-circular, or horse-shoe shaped building, was erected in 1877. The orchestra is at the flat end of the room and contains a fine three-manual organ, by Father Willis, with its console in front of the platform, as shown in our illustration. Originally the organ was almost entirely sunk and out of sight, and it had only two manuals; but its improved location and enlargement are due to Dr. Faning. Every alternate Sunday afternoon he gives a short organ recital. Attendance on the part of the boys is quite optional, but a large number avail themselves of the opportunity, and stroll into the Speech Room with books under their arms, for have they not just come from a Greek Testament class? There is an unusually large attendance of masters, boys, and the public on this occasion, probably due to the fact that this is the last recital Dr. Faning will give, and that the Choral Class are to sing a Handel chorus.

The afternoon's music begins with the recitative and solo from the 'Messiah,' 'For behold' and 'The people that walked,' excellently sung and with clear enunciation, by one of the boys, W. L. Greenlees by name. To this succeeds the chorus 'For unto us a child is born,' which exactly suits the temperaments of these sturdy one hundred schoolboys. How they revel in the music! which, let us add, receives an excellent rendering. The attack is crisp, and the words perfectly intelligible; moreover, there is a complete absence of 'side'—the performance is distinctly schoolboyish, and the music is sung by these vigorous Harrovians as though their hearts were in it. Not a little of the success attending their efforts—and their fortes—is due to the enthusiastic beat of Dr. Faning, who is a conductor and not a time-beater. He by no means gives one the impression that he has recently graduated in a School of Cookery, with honours in stirring the pudding, as the batonings of so many conductors (so-called) would lead one to believe. His beat is very clear and easy to follow, and he knows the importance of indicating the points of rest of the baton, with the result that there is not the slightest ambiguity as to the one, two, three, four of the bar. The rotary, stir-the-pudding style of the stodgy time-beater is not conducting, it is misconducting.

The programme of the organ recital is as follows:—

1. Aria con variazoni in A .. .. .. Rea.
2. Allegro in A minor, from Three Pieces (Op. 22) .. .. Gade.
3. Allegretto and Menuetto from the 8th Symphony .. .. .. Beethoven.
   (An arrangement in MS. by Dr. Faning.)
4. Thanks be to God ('Elijah') .. .. Mendelssohn.

CHAPEL.

It is an impressive sight at this evening hour to look upon these six hundred boys gathered together for worship in their school chapel. The building, its style Second-pointed, was consecrated in 1857. The south aisle, besides containing many other memorials, is in itself a memorial to those Officers, educated at Harrow, who fell in the Crimea. The seats are arranged as in an ordinary parish church, and not in the orthodox college chapel form. The organ, a two-manual instrument, with only one stop on the pedals, is divided, and is placed in the west gallery. Prayers are read by the head master (the Rev. Dr. Wood) and one of the assistant masters. The lessons are read by the head boy (E. W. Mann) and another of the monitors, both of whom articulate their words with a naturalness and clearness of utterance, very devotional withal, and in a manner that would put to shame many a mumbling and exasperating curate. The singing, in unison throughout, is led by a choir of fifteen boys, who occupy seats in the gallery near the organ. The psalms are chanted and the responses are monotoned. The hymns are heartily sung, and one's emotions are stirred at such lines as these, written by the Rev. Dr. H. Montagu Butler, a former head master, and head boy exactly fifty years ago :—

1. 'Lift up your hearts!' We lift them Lord to Thee;
Here at Thy feet none other may we see:
'Lift up your hearts!' E'en so with one accord,
We lift them up, we lift them to the Lord.

. . . . . .

5. Lift us to Thee, each boy, each master here,
Our friends, our homes, and all we hold most dear;
Learning, and wit, grace, vigour, childish glee,
Lift them, O Lord, and lift them all to Thee.

6. Lift every gift that Thou Thyself hast given;
Low lies the best till lifted up to heaven:
Low lies the bounding heart, the teeming brain,
Till, sent from God, they mount to God again.

7. Then, as the trumpet-call, in after years,
'Lift up your hearts!' rings pealing in our ears,
Still shall those hearts respond with full accord,
'We lift them up, we lift them to the Lord.'

DUCKER. THE BATHING-PLACE OF THE HARROW BOYS.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Hills and Saunders.)

Dr. Faning concludes this simple service by playing a Bach fugue; and, as the congregation slowly passes out into the evening twilight, one cannot help thinking of the influence those six hundred boys may exercise in the world.

Poets and statesmen here,
The noble, the good, the brave,
Have learnt to hold their country dear,
And serve her on land and wave.

Oh, happy, happy place,
That thus can rear her youth
To a noble scorn of all that is base,
And a burning love for truth!

SPEECH DAY.

The great event of the year at Harrow is Speech Day. By no means the least typical feature of this important ceremony is the function called 'School Songs in the Speech Room, at 4.30 p.m.' The Speech Room is crowded to its utmost capacity, which means that upwards of 1,000 persons are gathered together within its walls. The scene is one not easily to be forgotten on this lovely July day. Sisters, and cousins, and aunts, not to mention proud mothers, are here in all the picturesqueness of summer garb, the daintiness of their costumes, no less than the charm of their presence, lending brightness and animation to the picture. The vocal performers are the House Twelves and Choral Class, who number in the aggregate about 150 singers. They are accompanied by the orchestra, led by Mr. Otto Peiniger (who has been professor of the violin at the school for thirty years) and supported by the organ, played by Mr. Archibald Hollier, another of Dr. Faning's able assistants. In this connection mention must be made of the admirable work done by the other assistant music-masters—Mr. H. W. Whatmoor (pianoforte), Mr. W. R. Cave (who has taught the violin at Harrow for twenty-five years), Mr. W. C. Hann (violoncello), and Mr. C. A. Vine (bandmaster of the cadet corps)—all of whom, with Mr. Peiniger and Mr. Hollier, merit 'full marks' for their tuition skill. But to return to the School Songs in the Speech Room. Fourteen songs form the programme. With three exceptions (the Harrow School version of 'Cheer, boys, cheer'—written by the late Lord Bessborough, a distinguished Harrovian—'Auld lang syne,' and 'God save the King'), they are Harrow products—the poems being by two Harrow masters, the late Mr. E. E. Bowen or Mr. E. W. Howson, and the music by the late Mr. John Farmer or Dr. Eaton Faning. Some of the verses are as amusing as they are clever. Here is a specimen of a song, the music by Mr. Farmer, entitled, 'Queen Elizabeth.' In the course of this ditty, good Queen Bess is supposed to be addressed by John Lyon, the founder of the School, when asking for its Charter, in these words:—

'Queen,' he says, 'I have got in store,
A beautiful school from roof to door;
And I have a farm of acres four,
And a meadow of grass and clover:
So may it please you, good Queen B.,
Give me a charter, firm and free;
For there is Harrow, and this is me,
And that is the bold sea rover!'

To which Her Most Gracious Majesty replies:—

'Bad little boys,' says she, 'at school
Want a teacher to rede and rule;
Train a dunce, and you find a fool—
Cattle must have their drover;
By my halidome, I propose
You be teacher of verse and prose—
(What's a halidome, no one knows,
Even the bold sea rover!)'

The first quatrain of the song furnishes the refrain to each verse—

Queen Elizabeth sat one day,
Watching her mariners rich and gay,
And there were the Tilbury guns at play,
And there was the bold sea rover.

Needless to say, these Harrow boys enter heartily into the spirit of the words, and sing the rollicking music with great gusto.

A martial ditty, 'Left! Right!' words by Mr. Howson, music by Dr. Faning, begins and ends thus:—

Solo.

Young Brown he was a little boy and barely four foot four,
But his manly bosom burned to join the Harrow Rifle Corps.
So he went to see the Serjeant and he made a grand salute,
And he said, says he, 'I want to be a Volunteer Recruit.'

Chorus—Left! Right! Left! Right! Left! Right!
O the H. S. R. V. C.
'Tis a gallant sight to see,
As they swing along so gaily with the Band;
With the trumpets blowing proud,
And the big drum beating loud,
There is not another finer in the land!

. . . . . .

And now he's in a Regiment a-fighting for the Crown,
And soon he'll be a K.C.B. and Major-General Brown.
So listen all, both great and small, and may there be some more
To rally round to the bugle-sound, and join the Rifle Corps!
Chorus—Left! Right! &c.

'Ducker,' the Harrovians' definition of their bathing place, of which we give an illustration, is the subject of another song—a pleasing setting of words by Mr. Howson, in waltz rhythm and most daintily orchestrated by Dr. Faning. We give the first and second verses:—

DUCKER.

See the summer sun is g'owing,
And the fields are cracked with heat,
Not a breath of air is going
In the hot and dusty street.
This is not a day to swelter,
Toss your book and pen away!
Ducker is the only shelter,
Ducker is the place to-day.
Come away! O come away!
To the splashing and the spray!
Come away! O come away!
Ducker is the place to-day.

O the joy of being idle
And heroically slack!
Would you always wear a bridle
With a burden on your back?
Truce awhile to toil and tasking,
Dream away the hours with us,
With a bun and towel basking
Puris naturalibus!
Come away! &c.

The appropriateness of the song on this sweltering summer day is not lost upon the large audience assembled in the Speech Room.

Another Howson-Faning collaboration with the happiest results must be quoted, as its sentiments are typically Harrovian. It is the school song 'Here, Sir!' We give the words complete and the music of the refrain, of which the responses 'Here, Sir!'—a very pronounced feature of 'Bill,' the Harrovian designation of roll call—are spoken, and in a variety of tones, by different boys in the choir, while the rhythmic accompaniment proceeds along its tuneful way:—

HERE, SIR!

Like an ancient river flowing
From the mountain to the sea,
So we follow, coming, going
To the wider Life to be—
On our course
From the source
To the wider Life to be!

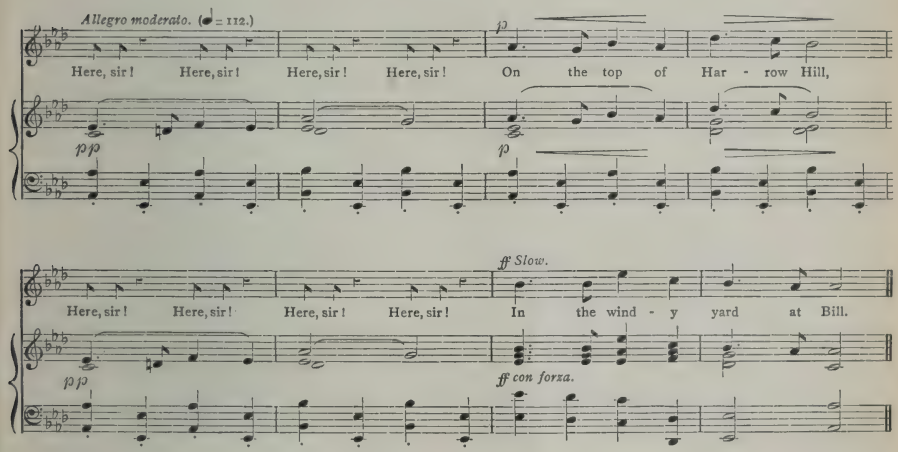
Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir!
On the top of Harrow Hill,
Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir!
In the windy yard at Bill.

Is it nought—our long procession,
Father, brother, friend, and son,
As we step in quick succession,
Cap and pass and hurry on?
One and all
At the call,
Cap and pass and hurry on?
Here, sir! Here, sir! &c.

One by one—and as they name us,
Forth we go from boyhood's rule,
Sworn to be renown'd and famous
For the honour of the School;
True as steel,
In our zeal,
For the honour of the School.
Here, sir! Here, sir! &c.

So to-day—and oh! if ever
Duty's voice is ringing clear,
Bidding men to brave endeavour,
Be our answer, 'We are here!'
Come what will,
Good or ill,
We will answer, 'We are here!'

Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir!
On the top of Harrow Hill
Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir!
In the windy yard at Bill.



Allegro moderato. (♩ = 112.)
Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir! On the top of Har - row Hill, ff Slow.
Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir! Here, sir! In the wind - y yard at Bill.
ff con forza.

Specially interesting, by reason of its pathetic note, is the song 'Forty years on,' which has been happily designated the Harrow National Anthem. Every Harrovian, past and present, old and young, in the Room stands and joins in this stirring and moving school song—the words by the late Mr. Bowen, the music by Mr. Farmer. Here is the first verse, which, with the other stanzas, is sung as heartily by the bald-headed and spectacled Old Boys as by the youngest youngster present:—

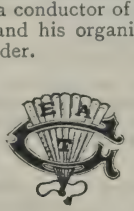
Forty years on, when afar and asunder
Parted are those who are singing to-day,
When you look back, and forgetfully wonder
What you were like in your work and your play;
Then, it may be, there will often come o'er you
Glimpses of notes like the catch of a song—
Visions of boyhood shall float them before you,
Echoes of dreamland shall bear them along.
Follow up! Follow up! Follow up! Follow up!
Till the field ring again and again,
With the tramp of the twenty-two men.
Follow up! Follow up!

FAREWELL TO HARROW.

The conducting of these school songs on this Speech Day is almost the last official act of Dr. Faning's music-mastership at the great School on the Hill. He has worthily held the post for sixteen years, and, as one who is well qualified to speak has said, 'he has presided over the music of the School with conspicuous success, and we are under a deep debt of obligation to him which we are not likely to forget.' Again, 'we are very grateful to Dr. Faning for the signal services he has rendered to the School. While bidding him farewell and wishing him every success in his future career, we would at the same time offer a hearty welcome to his successor, Dr. Buck, and express a hope that he may carry on the work with the same spirit and success as his distinguished predecessors.'

PERSONALITY.

It is not an easy matter to describe in cold print the personality of a man, but of Dr. Faning it may be said that he is a vivacious musician. By nature highly gifted, by training well equipped, he is essentially bright, vigorous, businesslike and alert; moreover, he is the same genial, good-hearted fellow that he was in those old Academy days of a quarter-of-a-century ago. Harrow has fortunately not robbed him of those precious qualities which are not always the characteristics of English musicians. As a conductor of choral music he has few equals, and his organising powers are of a very high order.



AN INGENIOUS MONOGRAM, DESIGNED BY

E A T ON FAN IN G.

We are fortunate in having obtained three side-lights on Dr. Faning and his work which may fitly close this sketch of his career. The first is from his friend and staunch supporter the Bishop of Calcutta, who, as the Rev. Dr. J. E. C. Welldon, was Head Master of Harrow from 1885 to 1898, and who had full opportunity of judging of his (Dr. Faning's) work at the great School. The Bishop writes us, under date of the 10th ult:—

'All I can say is that the music at Harrow when Dr. Faning went there was in its character social rather than artistic; and to him is owing an immense development of orchestral and choral music in the School.

'I found him always the kindest of colleagues and friends, nor is there any one whose departure from Harrow will leave a deeper void in the hearts of Harrovians than his.'

The second 'appreciation' is from the pen of an old Harrovian, the Rev. J. A. Cruikshank, an assistant-master from 1866 to 1891, and head boy of the School 1859-60, who writes:—

When Dr. Faning was appointed organist and Music Master at Harrow, in 1885, the conditions of the School music were peculiar. The first impulse had been given, in 1857, by the late Capel Henry Berger, one of the Sixth Form, and a few other boy-enthusiasts, who, with the help of Mr. Staton, the Church Organist, got up a small orchestra amongst themselves, and, thanks to the kind encouragement of some of the Masters, gave unambitious performances in the National School. Somewhat later, part-singing was introduced, under the direction of Mr. J. Bradbury Turner, the School Organist: but music was still the interest of the few, and hardly entered into the general life of the School. On the arrival of Mr. John Farmer a surprising change took place. I have not space to give the details of the movement; suffice it to say, Mr. Farmer determined to popularise music both in the Chapel and in the social life of the School. With this object in view, and by characteristic methods of his own, he encouraged unison singing in the Chapel; moreover, by the institution of 'House Singing,' he not only enlisted all the leading boys in support of his undertaking, but in the course of his career brought thousands of lads to look upon music, in some form or other, as an essential part of their school life. No instrumentalist was too feeble to have a special part assigned to him in the School Orchestra; no 'talker' so unmelodious but that at House Singing he must try to do his best.

In the course of Mr. Farmer's mastership a large number of School Songs had their origin; the words were contributed by Dr. Butler (the Head Master), Dr. Westcott (now Bishop of Durham), Dr. Farrar (now Dean of Canterbury), the late Dr. Bradby and Rev. J. Robertson (Head Masters of Haileybury), the late Canon Young (Head Master of Sherborne), Messrs. Holmes, Masson, Howson, and other Masters of the School; above all, by the Prince of School-Song writers, the late Edward Ernest Bowen.

This, then, was the state of things which Dr. Faning found in existence: an orchestra of some thirty performers, mainly consisting of boys and masters, under the accomplished leadership of Mr. Otto Peiniger as first violin; and a choir, for School Song purposes, consisting, potentially, of the whole School.

I do not venture to speculate how far the musical power, performances, and possibilities of this Society appealed to the artistic side of Dr. Faning's character, or to guess how long exactly he may have wavered between the conflicting demands of the enthusiasm of the many, and the perfection of the few; but I do know this, that, in an incredibly short time, Dr. Faning realised the situation, threw himself heart and voice into the House Singing, loyally continued his predecessor's work, enriched (again with the help of Messrs. Bowen and Howson) the splendid collection of School Songs, and produced them on Speech Day, at School Concerts, and on other occasions, with delightful crispness, alacrity, and force.

It would be impertinent for me to speak, in such a paragraph as this, of Dr. Faning's ability as a musician; but all who have had the pleasure of taking any part in choir or orchestra under the direction of his baton, cannot but speak with loyal enthusiasm, as well as affectionate regard, of his precision, dignity, quiet firmness, imperturbable good temper, and invariable courtesy to all.

The third side-light on Dr. Eaton Faning is a characteristic contribution by his old friend and fellow student, Mr. Louis N. Parker, Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music, now the well-known dramatist, who writes:—

One looks back to the old days of the Royal Academy of Music in the early seventies as to some of the happiest days of existence. We were all young then, and all our geese were swans. Eaton Faning came to the Academy a term or two after I had begun studying there, and at once a firm friendship grew up between us, which I love to think nothing has ever shaken in all the subsequent years. He was already a musician of brilliant accomplishments, and my affection for him was based in the first instance on the hero-worship which I, the duffer, very naturally offered to the object of my admiration. But he was also more than a musician, he had a pretty turn for kindly sarcasm, to which his immovable eyeglass gave added zest. He seemed to me a man of the world, and he very soon justified my opinion by taking the lead in all social matters among the students. I don't know whether the present alumni of the Academy enjoy themselves as much as we did. I have my doubts. The present students must lead anxious and harassed lives by reason of the innumerable examinations which bristle in their paths. They know that before they go out into the world to earn £20 a year as organists and three-and-sixpence an hour as teachers, they will have to satisfy a stern Board that they are fit for a bewildering number of diplomas and degrees. We had no such nightmares. There was no 'F.R.C.O.' in those days; no 'L.R.A.M.,' no nothing. Besides, we had no idea of teaching—not we! We were all going to write oratorios and operas, and sing in them, and become Rubinsteins and Joachims. And then there were so few of us that we were all chums, both young men and maidens. After the day's work we met again at concerts in the delightful Hanover Square Rooms, or at the Opera, and our lives were very much like a chapter out of 'Charles Auchester,' which we considered a great book. The professors looked on with kindly sympathy, and the Academy was one large family, every individual member of which lived in dreamland.

THE SPEECH ROOM, HARROW.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Hills and Saunders.)

As a natural outcome of this Arcadian life, Eaton Faning determined that the Gentlemen students must invite the Lady students to a ball, and you may be sure I fell in enthusiastically with his idea. We did the thing properly and in style. We formed a committee. The committee elected themselves stewards. The stewards voted themselves medals, principally, I fear, because some of us foresaw those were the only medals we should ever get. We collected subscriptions ruthlessly. I think I was treasurer. I know I met with no rebuffs. To our great surprise the Directors and Professors not only made no difficulties, but subscribed with generosity, and, what is even better, with grace. We hired the Hanover Square Rooms, Dan Godfrey provided the band, at a purely nominal fee, and Gunter sent a lavish supper at cost price. Faning and I went on the sly and took dancing-lessons, and practised together after tea in his rooms. It was all a gorgeous and epoch-making success, and was followed the next year by a similar but even more splendid entertainment at Willis's Rooms. After that, however, I fear the authorities ceased to beam on these frolics; at any rate they were discontinued.

My recollection of those bygone student days is all sunshine and laughter. There were wonderful meals in his chambers, consisting principally of anchovy paste and marmalade; wonderful readings of interminable piano-duets. Sometimes I brought him the libretto of a comic opera I had just written, which he always most unwisely rejected. At other times we would sally forth to a pit door to wait for a first performance—once we had a tall youth with us, who has since become known as H. Beerbohm Tree—or I would sit and listen to Faning as he played sketches of songs and of operettas; my favourite was 'The Two Majors.' And on Sundays we would go to St. John's, Lewisham High Road, where he was organist. Why I went, I don't know. I believe I used to sing in the choir. I know I always used to get a lunch or a supper at the houses of his admirers. Perhaps that is why. And we went to the old Her Majesty's together and heard the 'Nibelungen.' And we sang in the same chorus together at the Albert Hall when Wagner conducted—that is worth remembering! And we visited Bayreuth together, and Dresden. And always I think of him as a true and loyal friend, and the best of all good company.

Although Dr. Faning has retired—on his own initiative, let us add—from his worthily held position at Harrow, he by no means intends to devote himself to a life of idleness; it is not in his nature to indulge in a chronic dolce far niente. When these lines appear he will be on the high seas steaming to the Cape, where he will examine for the Associated Board of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music. Upon his return he hopes to devote much of his time, or, in Harrow parlance, to 'follow up' composition. From this change of work much may be expected, as Dr. Faning possesses the rare and precious gift of melody. He can write a tune, and when he has written it he does not disdainfully throw it into his wastepaper basket because it is a tune. His sketch-book is a very tune-besprinkled, miniature tome which contains the germs of some promising things—for instance, a part-song, which bids fair to become a Vikings the Second, and other melodious themes in embryo. A half-programme cantata is not beyond the bounds of possibility in the near future, and so on. May all these things and much else come in due time to maturity!

HANDEL'S BORROWINGS.

(Continued from page 452.)

We now come to the third question:

'Has any student ever verified the Professor's [Crotch's] statement by furnishing chapter and verse from the works of every one of these 'twenty-nine, &c., composers?'

Many scholars, from Burney onwards, have written, as we have seen, upon the question of Handel's borrowings. For the most part, however, they have confined themselves to the more important of these, and it seems safe to say that no one has yet 'furnished chapter and verse' bringing home to Handel Dr. Crotch's charge of plagiary from 'every one of these twenty-nine, &c., composers.' But we have been able to collect instances of Handel's borrowing from all except a few.

Putting aside those names concerning which the charge of plagiarism rests entirely on Dr. Crotch's word, the list falls naturally into two classes: (1) that containing composers from whom Handel borrowed wholesale, and (2) those of whom he apparently made slight and infrequent use. Among the latter we shall include doubtful cases in which the alleged theft proves to be the use of a fugue theme which was then common property, or of a subject of uncertain origin.

Commencing with the Erba Magnificat, which was used so freely in the composition of 'Israel in Egypt,' the earliest published reference to it in connection with Handel appears to have been made, in 1837, by Sir Henry Bishop in his 'Songs, Duets, and Trios from Handel's oratorios.' We quote his words, which occur in a footnote to 'The Lord is my strength' ('Israel'): 'This duet is from a Magnificat by Handel, to which there is no date. It is probable that it was composed at Rome, about the year 1707, and it was introduced in the above oratorio ["Israel in Egypt"] in 1738.' Sir G. A. Macfarren wrote an analysis of 'Israel' for the Sacred Harmonic Society's performance of that oratorio in 1857. He touched upon the Magnificat, and also concluded it to be Handel's own—influenced by Sir Henry Bishop; by the fact that in the MS. of the oratorio the borrowed passages are marked 'Mag.,' which Macfarren thinks is to identify them with an earlier work of the composer; and also by what he considers the Handelian character of the music. A writer in the Athenæum for April 4 of the same year (1857), in remarking on Macfarren's analysis, raised the other side of the question, pointing out that Handel marked the Pastoral Symphony in The Messiah 'Pifa,' which, indeed, refers to the ancient Christmas hymn of the Roman Pifferari, and not to an earlier work of his own.

Dr. Gauntlett, in Notes and Queries (February 5, 1859), asks that 'the movements from which Handel has borrowed' should be published, adding: 'The most important at first to produce would be the Magnificat, which forms so large a part of the second act of "Israel" . . . and might well be produced by Mr. Costa, under the auspices of the Sacred Harmonic Society.' Already, in 1858, in the same paper, under the heading, 'Handel as a Conveyancer,' he had mentioned the plagiarisms from Stradella, Urio, Erba, and Muffat; with regard to the last named, however, his statement that the march in 'Judas' is 'verbatim' is an exaggeration. Macfarren was evidently only acquainted with the MS. of the Magnificat belonging to the Sacred Harmonic Society (now in the Royal College of Music Library), which bears Erba's name. But in the Buckingham Palace Library there is a MS. copy (very incomplete), made by Handel himself, which, Dr. Chrysander argues, in his preface to the Magnificat, contains internal evidence that it is the work of a copyist, not of a composer. The same writer, as we have stated, speaks curiously enough of Erba as having been discovered by himself in one of the articles on F. A. Urio (Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, August 28, 1878). Dr. Crotch does not mention Erba, and as so acute an observer could not have failed to notice the resemblance between certain movements of this Magnificat and the 'Israel,' we may conclude that he had never seen the former work.

We now come to the Te Deum of Padre Urio, from which, as is well known, Handel borrowed unblushingly. We shall not here discuss the very interesting history of these borrowings in detail, our chief purpose being to show, so far as is possible, what Dr. Crotch knew of them and the source of his knowledge. Three MSS. of the work are known—viz., one in the Royal College of Music, inscribed John Stafford, which there is some reason to believe was Handel's own copy; one in the British Museum, which has a note supposed to be in the handwriting of Dr. Thomas Bever, a musician of the eighteenth century, referring to the borrowing of Handel from the Te Deum; and a third in the Library of the Paris Conservatoire, with the long list, already mentioned, of eighteen passages in Urio's work used by Handel. The third manuscript, containing a number of interesting notes (one mentioned by Dr. Chrysander, in Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, Aug. 14, 1878), belonged to Edmund T. Warren. It afterwards passed to J. W. Callcott, author of the 'Grammar of Music,' and a note in his writing shows that he was aware of the Handel plagiarisms; then to Charles Stokes, Vincent Novello's friend. Mrs. Stokes gave it to Novello in 1839, after her husband's death, and subsequently it was purchased at an auction in London (1863) by Victor Schœlcher, who presented it to the Conservatoire. Neither the date nor the authorship of the list of eighteen passages is known; Novello, by the way, quotes the latter in the preface to Purcell's 'Sacred Music' (1832). Dr. Crotch was acquainted with the Urio Te Deum, but whether he had already seen all three of the above MSS. is doubtful. We incline to think that he only knew the British Museum MS. for the following reason: In that copy the name is incorrectly spelt Uria, a spelling which Crotch invariably adopts; although in the other two MSS. the name is written correctly Urio, as printed in his published works. In the foot-notes to his organ adaptation of the Dettingen Te Deum, Crotch instances nine borrowings from Urio, and in his adaptation of 'Saul' he gives five. The list in the Paris MS. mentions ten in the Te Deum and six in 'Saul.' After Crotch, Vincent Novello, as we have seen, mentioned Handel's pillaging at Urio's expense, and later, Professor Prout (Monthly Musical Record, November, 1871) and Dr. Chrysander (Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, 1878-9) have published detailed accounts of the plagiarisms.

Five Duets of Clari form No. 4 of Chrysander's 'Sources of Handel's Works.' Handel borrowed from these for 'Theodora.' Chrysander specifies a passage in each duet used in that oratorio. Burney had already heard of these borrowings. 'Handel is supposed to have availed himself of Clari's subjects and sometimes more in the choruses of Theodora,' he remarks in his 'History of Music' (Vol. III., p. 536).

In the Notes and Queries article of 1859, quoted above, Dr. Gauntlett asks for the publication of 'The Serenata' of Stradella, which forms so much of the first [act of 'Israel']. Professor Prout dealt with Handel's borrowing from Stradella in the Monthly Musical Record in 1871, and Dr. Chrysander published the Serenata in question as No. 3 of his 'Supplements,' &c. Stradella, however, is not mentioned by Dr. Crotch.

We now come to Gottlieb Muffat, a composer from whom Handel borrowed as much, if in a less barefaced way, as from either Urio or Graun. Muffat's 'Componimenti Musicali' provided the material for movements in the 'St. Cecilia Ode,' 'Theodora,' 'Samson,' 'Judas,' 'Solomon,' &c., no fewer than thirty passages in 'Handel,' according to Dr. Chrysander (preface to 'Sources of Handel's Works,' No. 5), being taken from these works. The first to detect these plagiarisms may have been John Groombridge, at one time organist of St. John's, Hackney, and St. Stephen's, Coleman Street, who died in 1827. He possessed the copy of the 'Componimenti,' 'supposed to be the only copy in this Kingdom,' which is now in the British Museum. A list of twelve passages from which Handel borrowed is pasted into it, evidently written before 1827, in which year the volume was presented to the Museum Library.

The first published reference to Handel's obligations to Muffat, however, was made by Dr. Crotch, either in his 'Substance of Lectures,' 1831, or in his 'Arrangement of "Samson"' (p. 2), in which he has the following note on the overture: 'Many of the subjects of this overture are taken from the works of Muffat.' Dr. Gauntlett knew Groombridge's book, and cites the plagiarisms given in the above-mentioned list in his Notes and Queries article. Dr. Chrysander confirms all Groombridge's instances, and adds others of his own, bringing the number of movements in Muffat which Handel used up to eighteen, omitting doubtful and slight resemblances.

Handel's borrowings from Carissimi did not escape Burney, who remarks that the divisions in a fragment of Carissimi, and several of his 'cheerful movements, were not disdained by Handel.' What these cheerful movements were he does not say, but we presume that 'Plorate filiæ Israel,' 'Heu mihi, filia mea,' 'Et ululantes filii Ammon,' &c., from Carissimi's 'Jephthah,' all of which Handel used, are not intended. Crotch, however, mentions them and others in his 'Substance of Lectures,' pp. 94 and 95. The 'Plorate filiæ,' he says, 'is quoted in 'Hear Jacob's God' ('Samson') and in 'Father of Mercies' ('Joshua')'; while again, in his adaptations of 'Samson' for the organ, pianoforte, &c., a foot-note to 'Hear Jacob's God' reads: 'Several passages in this chorus are pretty exactly copied from Carissimi's chorus 'Plorate filiæ.'' The chorus 'With thunder armed,' in 'Samson,' is taken, Crotch tells us, from 'Et ululantes filii Ammon,' Carissimi's 'Jephthah' (see 'Substance of Lectures,' loc. cit.), and organ arrangements, 'Samson,' p. 27.

Passages from the same oratorio of Carissimi used by Handel are 'Et clangebant tubæ,'* imitated in 'We come in bright array,' from 'Judas'; 'Heu mihi, filia mea,' in 'He chose a mournful muse,' from 'Alexander's Feast' ('Substance of Lectures,' loc. cit.). Crotch also refers 'If there was any virtue' in Handel's Funeral Anthem to Carissimi, but does not name the passage in the latter.

Handel perpetrated some of his most flagrant thefts from the earlier of the two 'Brunswick Passion' oratorios of Karl Heinrich Graun. Professor Prout's two articles in the Monthly Musical Record for May and June, 1894, prove this conclusively. In these articles he describes a very curious chain of coincidences that led up to what he justly calls the 'discovery' that the chorus, 'Ere to dust is changed thy beauty,' in the 'Triumph of Time and Truth,' was taken practically without alteration from a movement in the above-mentioned earlier Graun Passion. Professor Prout found music in Handel's own handwriting, now in the Fitzwilliam collection, copied by Handel from the almost unknown Passion of Graun in a way which left no doubt that he meant to use it of malice prepense when and where he found occasion. But important as these results were, Professor Prout was not the first to glean in this curious by-way of musical criticism. Dr. Crotch many years before had written in a printed copy of the 'Triumph of Time and Truth,' which belonged to him, under the first two bars of the chorus 'Ere to dust is changed thy beauty' (p. 142): 'slightly altered from a Mass of Graun's.' Against the next three bars (p. 143), in the chorus, we find 'This is a Motet by Graun, the subject being slightly altered to suit the words.' On p. 146, still referring to the same chorus, Crotch has written 'the original subject and best'; on p. 150, at the end of the chorus, 'Graun's subject is this,' followed by the subject in question, written out in ink, just as it occurs in Latrobe; and finally, 'The whole is taken, key-time, modulations, &c.' In this copy, Dr. Crotch, above 'Loathesome urns disclose your treasure,' has written: 'This in the original is an alto song terminating in a chorus, which contains the subjects of 'Mourn, ye afflicted children,' and 'For Zion lamentation make' ('Judas Maccabæus'), and these are from Graun.' With regard to 'Mourn, ye afflicted children,' the passage is specially noted by Dr. Crotch in his organ adaptation of 'Judas,' as taken from a Graun Mass. On comparing it, however, with the supposed original, we find the same sequence of notes, yet different rhythm. Dr. Crotch's references to Graun are extremely interesting, though mere foreshadowings of what Professor Prout achieved with the aid of the Handel autograph and the Graun score. It may be added that the Dublin Professor has shown that Handel also made use of this Graun Passion for certain movements in his 'Giustino,' 'Atalanta,' 'The Wedding' Anthem, and 'Alexander's Feast.'

In the foot-notes to his organ adaptation of 'Jephtha,' Dr. Crotch mentions six instances of borrowing from a Mass of Habermann's. A copy of the Mass in question, in Handel's writing, is preserved among the Handel MSS. in the Fitzwilliam collection. The editors of the Fitzwilliam catalogue (p. 216) give four movements in it used by Handel in 'Jephtha,' but their list does not tally with Dr. Crotch's, except in the first instance, that of the chorus 'No more to Ammon's God and King,' in 'Jephtha.'

Franz Johann Habermann was born in 1706 at Kœnigswerth, and, after a course of literary and philosophical studies at Klattau and Prague, devoted himself to music. He completed his musical education in Italy, where he visited Rome, Naples, and other art centres, Spain and France. At Paris he entered the service of the Prince de Condé, in 1731, but on the death of that Prince he went to Florence, where he became Maëstro to the Grand Duke of Tuscany. This patron dying, he returned to Prague, where an opera of his, specially composed for the occasion, was successfully performed at the coronation of the Empress Marie Theresa. At Prague he lived some years as a teacher: his pupils were chiefly noble and wealthy amateurs of music, but Dussek, Misliweczek, and Cajetan Vogel were among them. He became musical director at the church of the Theatines, in Prague, and between 1750 and 1773 held the same post at the Maltese church in that city. In the latter year he became Kapellmeister at Eger, where he remained till his death in 1783.

Habermann's printed works consist of twelve Masses and six Litanies. Besides these he left in MS. two oratorios, the 'Conversio Peccatoris' and 'Deodatus,' and a good deal of ecclesiastical music of various kinds. [J. S. S.]

(To be continued.)

* In a manuscript copy of Carissimi's 'Jephthah,' which belonged to Dr. Crotch, he has again pointed to Handel's borrowing from this chorus.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

The London newspapers of the 22nd ult. gave accounts of the unveiling (on the 20th ult.) of a Memorial Tablet that has been placed on the house in which Sir Arthur Sullivan was born. The ceremony was performed by Dr. W. H. Cummings, Professor Prout, and Dr. Vincent on behalf of the London Section of the Incorporated Society of Musicians. The printed circular (undated) sent out by the Sectional Hon. Secretary (a copy of which reached us on the day before the event) stated that:

> The London Section has always taken a great interest in placing Memorial Tablets on Houses which have been in some way connected with the lives of Great Musicians.

But what about the question of discovery? In the preliminary notices of the above unveiling function sent round to the press, in the official circular announcing the ceremony, and in the newspaper reports of the proceedings on the 20th ult., not one word was said as to how, when, or by whom the actual site of Sir Arthur Sullivan's birth-house was discovered. No one questions the right of the Society to claim all the credit attaching to the Memorial Tablet itself, but it is difficult to see what motive there could have been for totally ignoring the source of discovery which enabled them in this manner to honour the memory of the composer. We venture to remind The Incorporated Society of Musicians that the discovery of the birthplace of Sir Arthur Sullivan was made by The Musical Times, and that the fact was first published in our issue of April last.

Notes and Queries, in its issue of the 13th ult., contains the beginning of 'A bibliographical account of the works of Charles Dibdin,' compiled by his great-grandson, Mr. E. Rimbault Dibdin. The bibliography forms a part of the preparation for a Life of the composer of 'Tom Bowling,' which, we are glad to learn, is nearly completed. Some of the entries are curious. For instance: 'A Collection of English Songs and Cantatas. Compos'd by Mr. Chas. Dibdin, Opera Primo [sic]. Printed for the Author, & sold at his lodgings, the Shoe and Saddle Warehouse, Catherine Street, in the Strand.' As the approximate date is given as 1763, Mr. Dibdin's 'lodgings' were in an unnumbered domicile, hence the 'Shoe and Saddle' designation. Another title is: 'Lionel & Clarissa, a comic opera, adapted for the German flute, violin, hautboy, and guittar. 1768.' Proofs do not seem to have been carefully read in 1768, but there was (and still is) the poor unfortunate engraver (or printer) upon whom to shift the responsibility of errors, otherwise (though they are far from being wise) 'misprints'!

The title-page of an edition of Dibdin's comic opera 'The Padlock' (tonalitily suggestive of a bunch of keys) contains this information:—

> The former edition being very incorrectly engraved, it has been Revised, Corrected, and Engraved again, and the Songs and Overtures may be had in single numbers.

Another curious title of a work performed at Ranelagh Gardens in 1769, reads thus: 'The Ephesian Matron, or, the Widow's Tears!' Mr. Dibdin, we may add, is anxious to hear of any letters and other MS. matter written by or concerning his great ancestor. His address is: Morningside, Sudworth Road, New Brighton. We may add that Notes and Queries of the 13th ult., also contains the existing Civil List Pensions under the head of 'Music,' granted during the reign of Queen Victoria. The recipients are all ladies, and the total amount of the annual grants is £340.

Passing round the hat is not an unknown operation in these modern times, but it appears that in its youthful days the Philharmonic Society passed round the plate. The future historian of that venerable concert-giving institution may be glad of the following information, dug out from the columns of the Morning Post of June 20, 1833:—

> The Directors of the Philharmonic Concert have given orders to Mr. Ellis, of John Street, to prepare elegant pieces of plate, of various descriptions, which are to be presented to Mesdames Pasta and Malibran, also to M. Herz, for singing and performing without making any charge; for they conceived it a duty incumbent on them to support by their talent an Institution founded for the avowed purpose of promoting the profession of which they are such distinguished members.

There is a certain ambiguity, however, in this apparently 'inspired' paragraph. It reads as if the Directors, and not the Pasta-Malibran-Herz trio, supported 'by their talent an Institution founded for the avowed purpose of promoting the profession of which they [the Directors?] are such distinguished members.' Perhaps the powers-that-be intended the announcement to be in the nature of a piece of platitude in praise of their noble selves!

Somewhat in the nature of a sequel to the biographical sketch of Dr. Boyce, which appeared in our last issue, is the following additional information bearing upon the career of that worthy man. In, or somewhere about the year 1760—that being the approximate date given in the British Museum Catalogue—appeared the following publication:—

> Twelve | Voluntarys | for the | Organ or Harpsichord. | Composed by the late | Dr. Green.
> London: Printed by J. Bland, No. 45, Holborn.

Dr. A. H. Mann, organist of King's College, Cambridge, possesses the autograph manuscripts of the above Voluntarys, which he has kindly placed at our disposal. The first page of the volume, however, contains the following startling information:—

> Supposed by Dr. Green, falsely. Composed by Dr. Boyce & his own MS.
>
> J. S. Smith, 1788.

This 'J. S. Smith' is, of course, John Stafford Smith, who was a pupil of Dr. Boyce! Is it possible that these Voluntarys by Boyce—published, be it noted, after Greene's death—have for all these years passed as the compositions of Greene? There is, apparently, only one answer to this question. Organists who are unfamiliar with these Voluntarys may be interested in the subject of one of the fugues contained therein—which, though short and sweet, opens uncommonly like one by Bach in the same key.

Mr. John S. Bumpus kindly supplies No. 2 of this Boyce addenda in the loan of an oblong MS. volume (163 pages) containing several anthems and the Te Deum and Jubilate in C by Dr. Boyce, but in the handwriting of Dr. Philip Hayes. A former owner of the book has written inside the cover, these words: 'All these anthems printed, except the Ode to the Memory of Mr. Gostling, page 138.' This Ode (which seems never to have been printed) bears the superscription: 'To the memory of the Rev. Wm. Gostling, Minor Canon of the Cathedral at Canterbury. Written by Sir Jn. Hawkins, set by Dr. W. Boyce.' Here is the first stanza of Sir John Hawkins's tear-bedewed poetry:—

> Hither, ye sons of harmony repair,
> And haste to pay the tributary tear.
> In crowds approach this monumental stone,
> And with the tears of marble mix your own.

How marbleously pathetic! Boyce's well-known anthem, 'By the waters of Babylon,' has, in this MS. book, parts for 1st and 2nd hautboys and 1st and 2nd violins. Should they not be made available for performance when the anthem is sung? In regard to the account of the funeral of Dr. Boyce, which we printed exactly as it stands in the Morning Chronicle of February 18, 1779, Mr. Bumpus writes:—

There are several names mis-spelt in the newspaper account of Boyce's funeral, but of course you followed the original. Thus Gibbon should be Gibbons. He was the Rev. John Gibbons, minor canon and senior cardinal of St. Paul's Cathedral (appointed, March 21, 1771; died, December 28, 1797, and buried in the crypt). As senior cardinal it fell to his share, by statute, to take part in the Office of the Burial of the Dead. Wright should be Wight—the Rev. Moses Wight, minor canon of St. Paul's (died January 5, 1795, and buried in the crypt). Hoyes should be Hayes—the Rev. William Hayes, eldest son of Dr. William Hayes, of Oxford. Dine should be Dyne, vicar-choral of St. Paul's (appointed February 3, 1772).

The third and last contribution to this Coda is a further quotation from the sale-catalogue of Dr. Boyce's library in 1779. The last, but by no means the least interesting lot, reads thus:—

LOT 267.

A most capital Violoncello, finely preserved, by Antonius Straduarius, of Cremona, the Signature of the Maker in his own Hand-writing on the Inside, with the Year 1700.

In this connection, Mr. Arthur Hill writes: 'The 'cello by Stradivari particularly interests us. We do not know of the existence of any Strad 'cello of the year 1700, and it is curious that it should have disappeared.' Can any of our readers throw any light upon the subject?

Winnipeg furnishes the following specimen of high falutinism in musical criticism:—

The key to the male voice cult lies in musical singing with well-balanced tones, ranging from the soft harmonic blend, crescendoing with sympathetic resonance into the fiery passion of the fortes, the ideal, the noble, and the beautiful in music being brought to an expressive climax in congenial tonal forms.

Cooler weather is necessary to appreciate this cult of the soft harmonic blend and the congenial tonal forms.

Mr. Edward Branscombe has arranged to take out a Glee and Madrigal party to Canada during the present month, the places to be visited including Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, Niagara, Buffalo, &c. The party will consist of the following gentlemen, past and present members of the Westminster Abbey choir: Messrs. J. Brown, W. Coward, W. Fell, Dan Price, Robert Hilton, and, of course, Mr. Branscombe himself. The soprano element in the combination will be furnished by Mr. Bates from his London Training School for choristers in the persons of Masters Harden, Craven, and Davis, with Madame Marie Hooton as lady vocalist. The programme will be formed almost exclusively of real glees and madrigals—the genuine British article—a branch of music that is comparatively little known in Britain beyond-the-seas. The party hopes to have the opportunity of singing a genuine old cathedral anthem—e.g., 'God is our hope' (Greene) in one or more of the Canadian cathedrals. Excellent! May all success attend Mr. Branscombe and his merrie men (and the lady) in their interesting enterprise.

A noble gift has been made to the Royal Academy of Music by Mrs. Ada Lewis, who has endowed practically fifteen scholarships, tenable for three years, at our oldest music school. Sir Alexander Mackenzie and his colleagues are to be heartily congratulated upon so munificent a benefaction.

Mr. Hubert W. Hunt has been appointed organist of Bristol Cathedral in succession to Dr. Buck, who follows Dr. Eaton Faning as Music-Master at Harrow School.

CHARLES SALAMAN.

An interesting link with the musical past of long ago has been severed by the death of Mr. Charles Salaman, which, we much regret to record, took place at his residence, 24, Sutherland Avenue, Maida Vale, on June 23, at the age of eighty-seven.

In regard to the ancestry of Charles Salaman, it may be interesting to note that he was of both German and Dutch origin. His great grandfather, Salaman Salaman, born in 1710 at Dessau, in Prussia, where he was a contemporary and acquaintance of Moses Mendelssohn (grandfather of the composer), removed to Berlin at an early age. It was in Berlin, in 1743, that his (Charles's) grandfather was born, but he came over to England in early life, and lived in the village of Kensington, where was born, in 1789, his son Simeon, the father of the subject of this notice. Charles Salaman's maternal grandfather, Henry Cowen, was born at the Hague, in 1746; but he, also as a very young man, settled in this country, and, being a man of considerable culture and learning, he became the friend of Edmund Burke and many distinguished men and women. His son, Isaac Cowen, was a literary dilettante who wrote occasional verse, and who delighted to introduce his musical nephew, Charles, to the artistic society of the day; while the daughter, Charles Salaman's mother, was a brilliant and most accomplished pianist. Here then may be traced the artistic influences which went to the encouragement of young Salaman's genius and to the literary and artistic talents of his sisters, two of whom made reputations as painters, the eldest, Mrs. Goodman, now in her 90th year!—being still industrious with her brush.

Born in London, March 3, 1814, Charles Salaman was a boy of thirteen when Beethoven died. He became a pupil of Charles Neate, one of the few English friends of Beethoven, and he subsequently studied under Herz, in Paris. His earliest compositions, written in his early teens, were dedicated to Neate and Herz. An Opus 3—a Grand Overture for two performers on the pianoforte—bears the dedication to two of his pupils, the Misses Charlotte and Fanny Grenfell, the latter of whom became the wife of Charles Kingsley. As a boy he played duets with another young gentleman three years his senior—Master Franz Liszt by name—who had a great enthusiasm for gooseberry tart! In 1830, aged 16, young Salaman composed an ode for the Shakespeare jubilee celebration, held at Stratford-on-Avon, which was performed there under his direction, and later, on May 29, 1830, at the King's Theatre, when Malibran figured in the programme, and the concert commenced with a prayer for the recovery of King George IV. His companion in the coach journey to the famous Warwickshire town was Charles Kean, then a youth of nineteen. He (Salaman) had previously made his first appearance in public as a performer and composer—a song entitled 'O come, dear Louisa'—at a concert given by Lanza, at Blackheath, on June 23, 1828; he also appeared as a soloist at the Lenten oratorios (so-called) given at Covent Garden and Drury Lane Theatres.

Mr. Salaman gave his first concert on May 30, 1833, at the Hanover Square Rooms. Strange as it may seem to us he had, by virtue of an old Act of Parliament — which we believe has not been repealed—to obtain a licence for this music-making from the Lord Chamberlain. Here is the wording of that permissive document, for which the young concert-giver had to pay his Lordship a fee of two guineas:—

MR. CHARLES SALAMAN, AT THE AGE OF 87, SEATED AT HIS 'BELOVED BROADWOOD.'

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Russell and Sons.)

I do hereby give Lease and Licence unto Mr. Charles Salaman to have a concert of Vocal and Instrumental Music performed for his Benefit at the Hanover Square Rooms within the Liberties of Westminster on Thursday, the 30th day of May next.

Given under my Hand and Seal this 10th day of April 1833. In the third year of His Majesty's Reign.

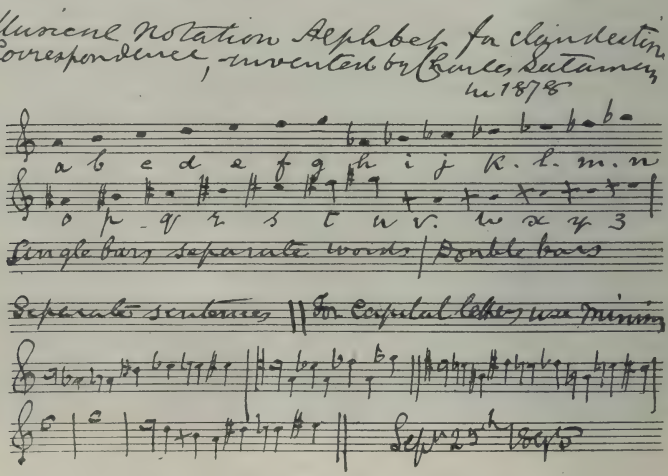
(Signed) Devonshire.

At this concert, Madame Pasta, for the sum of twenty guineas, sang 'Bel raggio,' three weeks before taking part in the first performance in this country of Bellini's famous opera 'Norma.' Also, Mr. Salaman gave the first public rendering, other than the composer's own, of Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor, composed the year before. The orchestra was the same that played with Mendelssohn, and old John Cramer lent Salaman the same manuscript band parts.

In the following year (1834) Grisi made her first appearance on the concert platform at Salaman's concert. These annual events were of more than ephemeral interest. For instance, he played (in 1836) Mozart's posthumous Concerto in C—then a novelty—'in a fine and masterly style; not after the modern snapping, banging fashion, but in the delightful manner of John Cramer.' The 'modern snapping, banging fashion,' from the criticism of sixty-five years ago, is good, and very applicable in the present day. At his concert a year later (May 22, 1837), we learn that 'the gem of the evening was Weber's grand Pianoforte Concerto in C, its first public performance in this country,' and in 1839 he played 'a new Serenade and Rondo, by Mendelssohn (for the first time in this country).' As a young man he had much to do with the Society of British Musicians and the Concerti da Camera—the latter a chamber music organisation, which, it would seem, gave the first performance of Mendelssohn's Ottet in this country (Hanover Square Rooms, Nov. 21, 1836). The Concerti da Camera were not, however, the first to give concerts of chamber music in London, as has been sometimes stated; the first public quartet concert in this country was given by the late Mr. Joseph Haydon Bourne Dando, September 23, 1835, two months before the West-End enthusiasts began their operations.

The most notable achievement in the life of Charles Salaman was the composition of his fine setting of Shelley's words 'I arise from dreams of thee.' He wrote it, at the age of twenty-two, in November, 1836, while staying at a house in Park Street, Bath. He was a frequent visitor to James Windsor, who resided there, and he dedicated the song (with five others) to his daughters, the Misses Windsor. This beautiful song, composed more than sixty-five years ago, has immortalised the name of Charles Salaman.

If a chronological digression be permitted, a Neate anecdote may find a place here. Neate gave private



Musical Notation Alphabet for Elucidation Correspondence, invented by Charles Salaman in 1878 a b c d e f g h i j k. l. m. n o p q r s t u v. w x y 3
Single bars Separate words | Double bars
Separate sentences || Or. Capital letters use Minim
Sept 25th 1845

FACSIMILE OF MR. SALAMAN'S INVENTIVE INGENUITY.

quartet parties at his residence in Charlotte Street, Fitzroy Square. In the summer of 1830 he wrote to Salaman a little note in these invitation terms:—

> Dear Charles,—I have a quartet this evening at eight o'clock, and shall be glad to see you. I shall want pianoforte players, as I shall only (sic) have Hummel, Moscheles, Ries, and your humble servant,
>
> C. Neate.

Neate, who was as good a pianist as he was a violoncello player, used to play violoncello and pianoforte duets with Salaman. One evening, when they were in the middle of a lighter composition—a very elegant concertante duo by Bochsa and Duport—a loud double knock was heard at the door. 'A visitor,' said Neate, 'who can it be?' The servant announced 'Mr. Mendelssohn.' 'He must not find us playing such music,' said the violoncellist, who flung the copy across the room. 'Mendelssohn,' recorded Mr. Salaman, 'was ushered into the room and, of course, received a very hearty welcome. We had no music, but most agreeable talk for an hour on the leading topics of the day, into which, in his delightful and animated manner, Mendelssohn entered with gusto, and with which he exhibited a familiar acquaintance.' On a similar quartet occasion, Mendelssohn played the viola and Neate the violoncello.

In his early manhood Mr. Salaman visited the Continent on more than one occasion, when he made the acquaintance of Schumann, and Mozart's widow and son, and resumed his personal intercourse with Czerny and Thalberg. For two years, 1846 to 1848, he resided in Rome, and became one of the leaders of music in the Eternal City. He was elected an honorary member of the Academy of St. Cecilia and of the Roman Philharmonic Society, and the first performance of a Beethoven symphony was given in Rome under his direction. On his return to England he played Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor at the Philharmonic Society's concert of March 18, 1850. In 1855 he began to deliver a series of lectures on the history of the pianoforte and other musical subjects in London and the provinces, which were greatly appreciated, and he was specially invited, in conjunction with Professor Faraday and Sir Charles Wheatstone, to lecture in private to Queen Victoria, Prince Albert, and their children, and to perform upon the ancient instruments. The foundation, in 1858, of the Musical Society of London was due to Salaman, who for seven years held the post of honorary secretary, and managed it with vigorous enthusiasm. The objects of the Society were:—

To promote social intercourse among its members and with musicians of this and other countries.

To form a musical library for the use of members.

To hold conversaziones at which papers on musical matters might be read and subjects of musical interest discussed.

To give orchestral, choral, and chamber concerts, and occasionally, lectures.

To afford the opportunity of trying new compositions.

To publish occasional papers, calculated to extend the theoretical and historical knowledge of music.

During the nine years of its life the Society fully justified its existence, and several excellent concerts were given under the able direction of the late Alfred Mellon, who, by the way, was an exceptionally good conductor of orchestral music.

One of the outstanding events of Mr. Salaman's busy professional life is associated with the birth of the Musical Association. He nursed it throughout its infancy with true devotion to its well-being and future life. In this connection, a private letter to the present writer from the late Sir John Stainer may be quoted. It is dated as recently as January 19, this year, and has reference to the initiation of the Musical Association, of which he (Stainer) was the father. Sir John wrote:—

'Salaman took up the matter warmly, and by his work, and tact, and knowledge of musicians, backed by W. Spottiswoode, he really placed the Musical Association on the sound basis on which it now stands. The idea was mine, but the construction was his; all praise to him!'

For the last twenty years, or more, Mr. Salaman had retired from the active duties of his profession, but within two days of his death, in spite of his eighty-seven years, he played his 'beloved Broadwood,' as shown in our illustration, with all the vigour of youth. Another favourite pastime was his extemporaneous performances on his double-keyboard harpsichord, a Jacobus Kirkmann of 1768, selected at the maker's by Dr. Burney. Notwithstanding his great age, he this year maintained his annual custom of composing a song on his birthday—this last contribution being entitled 'The burden of love,' published seventy-three years after his first song. He was happily spared a long illness. Almost his last words were 'I arise from dreams of thee.' He died just one hour before Midsummer Day had begun, and his remains were laid to rest in the Jewish Cemetery at Golders Green, Hendon.

FACSIMILE OF MR. SALAMAN'S MUSIC MANUSCRIPT.

Any attempt at an estimate of Mr. Salaman as a composer must be deferred to some other occasion. In the meantime his gifts and industry deserve full recognition. He was most successful in his songs, of which 'I arise from dreams of thee,' stands head and shoulders above the remaining ninety or more that he set. His 'Hebrew Love Song' (with Hebrew and English text) furnishes further proof of his melodic resources and poetical temperament. In regard to the words of many of his songs he had a sympathetic and able coadjutor in his elder son, Mr. Malcolm C. Salaman, the lyric poet and dramatist and author of the popular book 'Woman—through a man's eyeglass.' As Mr. Salaman was a very religious man, it is no wonder that the sacred music composed by him is of a very devotional character. It has been used in the services not only of the church of his fathers, but of the Protestant and Catholic churches—his anthems and hymns being sung in Hebrew in the Synagogue, in English in the Cathedrals (including Westminster Abbey), while an Ave Maria (unpublished) has been sung in St. Peter's, Rome. His literary ability favourably showed itself in his book 'Jews as they are' (1882), and in articles contributed to periodical literature, of which may be mentioned those of an interesting reminiscent character contributed to Concordia in 1875-6, and a valuable series of papers on 'Music in connection with dancing,' which appeared in The Musical Times, January to June (inclusive), during the year 1878.

ALFREDO PIATTI.

The greatest performer on the violoncello passed away, we regret to record, on the 19th ult., at the residence of his daughter, Countess Lochis, near Bergamo, in his eightieth year. Carlo Alfredo Piatti was born January 8, 1822, at Bergamo, the birthplace of Donizetti, where his father was first violin of the local orchestra. He received his earliest instruction in music from his maternal great-uncle Zanetti, an excellent musician and executant, and, at the tender age of seven he began to play in the orchestra led by his father. Upon the death of Zanetti, Piatti, at the age of ten, entered the Conservatorio at Milan and became a pupil of Merighi at that institution. As a child of thirteen he played in public at a concert given by Malibran, at which the death of Bellini (who died September 23, 1835) was announced to the audience. He made his debut in Germany at a concert given (at Munich) in 1843 by Liszt, who presented him with a magnificent violoncello by Nicolas Amati.

The great event in Piatti's life occured in 1844, when as a young man of twenty-two he made his first appearance in England. As he has said: 'I came to this country unknown to everybody, with no friends and no money. Some kind people advised me to go back at once; but I thought London was rather a big place and that I might find a hole for myself as others had done. I tried to get an opportunity of playing at one of Julius Benedict's concerts, but he said he could not think of giving me a place in his programme. At last, however, I got an opportunity of playing, and I think the public were not displeased; and that gave me the idea of coming here every year—and it was a happy thought!'

Most of the books of reference and the recent obituary notices of 'dear old Piatti' state that he made his first appearance in England at a Philharmonic concert, but this is not correct. The occasion was the 'Annual Grand Morning Concert,' given by Mrs. Anderson, the pianoforte teacher of Queen Victoria and the wife of Her late Majesty's Master of the Musick. It is significant of the obscurity of young Piatti that his name did not appear in the advertisements of Mrs. Anderson's concert, which was given in the concert room of Her Majesty's Theatre, on May 31, 1844. The galaxy of talent on that brilliant and fashionable occasion included, as vocalists, Grisi, Persiani, Mario, Lablache, and John Parry (for the comic element); Sivori and Master Joachim played the violin; Miss Kate Loder (now Lady Thompson), aged seventeen, and a pupil of Mrs. Anderson's, contributed a pianoforte solo, while the great Costa conducted. The second part of that monster programme contained the following number:—

Fantasia, Violoncello .. .. .. Piatti.
SIGNOR PIATTI.
(His first appearance in England).

The Musical World, after saying that 'every foreign artist of eminence, Italian, German, and French, assisted,' dismissed the new 'cellist in one sentence, in these words: 'A Mons. Piatti debuted successfully on the violoncello.' However, he at once made an impression as, on June 24, he appeared at the seventh Philharmonic concert of the season. It may not be without interest if we give the complete programme of that memorable concert:—

PART I.

Sinfonia in C (No. 1) .. .. .. Mozart.
Aria, 'La Gita in Gondola' .. .. Rossini.
MR. DE REVIAL.
Concerto in G, Pianoforte .. .. Beethoven.
DR. F. MENDELSSOHN-BARTHOLDY.
Air, 'Ere Infancy's bud' (Joseph) .. Méhul.
MISS M. B. HAWES.
Concerto, Violoncello .. .. .. Kummer.
SIGNOR PIATTI.
Overture and Suite .. .. .. J. S. Bach.
(First time of performance in this country.)

PART II.

Sinfonia in B flat (No. 9) .. .. .. Haydn.
Aria, 'C'est un caprice' (Cagliostro) .. Adam.
MADAME ANNA THILLON.
Adagio and Rondo, Concerto in A, Violin Molique.
MR. BLAGROVE.
Scene, 'La Religeuse' .. .. .. Schubert.
MR. DE REVIAL.
(Accompanied on the pianoforte by Dr. F. MENDELSSOHN-BARTHOLDY.)
Overture, 'Egmont' .. .. .. Beethoven.

Leader—MR. LODER.
Conductor—Dr. F. MENDELSSOHN-BARTHOLDY.

The Musical World briefly recorded that 'Piatti made a most brilliant debut and was encored in the last part of his fantasia—not concerto, as was erroneously stated in the bills.' His appearances during this his initial visit to London were mostly as a soloist, but he played in a 'Grand Trio' by Beethoven (key and opus number not stated) at a concert (one of three) given by Döhler, the pianist, on July 1. Piatti had a rival in London in Offenbach, then a solo violoncellist, who subsequently achieved fame as the composer of 'Orphée aux enfers.' Three violinists made their first appearances in England during this eventful season of 1844—Ernst, Joachim (then a boy of fourteen), and Sainton—and Mendelssohn conducted five of the octet of Philharmonic concerts. Mendelssohn met Piatti for the first time during this London visit at the house of Moscheles, in Chester Place, Regent's Park, when he (Mendelssohn) played with him his new Sonata for pianoforte and violoncello, in D (Op. 58). 'No one had a quicker eye for a great artist,' says Sir George Grove of Mendelssohn, 'and he at once became attached to the player who has now made London his winter home, and is so much admired by all frequenters of the London Popular Concerts. One of his latest words on leaving England for the last time (in 1847) were: "I must write a concerto for Piatti."' He had, in fact, already composed the first movement, but the MS. seems to have been lost.

The career of Signor Piatti in England, where he has been so long honoured as an artist and esteemed as a man, is too well-known to need dwelling upon in detail. At one time he played in the orchestras of Her Majesty's Theatre and at the Sacred Harmonic Concerts, both under Costa's conductorship. He led the violoncellos at the first concerts (1852), conducted by Berlioz, of the defunct New Philharmonic Society. For nearly forty years—from their commencement in 1859 to 1897—Piatti not only held the post of violoncello at the Monday and Saturday Popular Concerts with the highest possible distinction, but he was, so to speak, the most striking personality of the quartet. A 'Pop.' without Piatti seemed, somehow or another, not a 'Pop.', and not a few of one's most cherished musical experiences are associated with his superb playing and his ideal interpretations—in a word, Perfection.

As a composer he is favourably known by a concertino, two concertos, and smaller works for the instrument of which he was so consummate a master. To these must be added some graceful songs with

Alfredo Piatti.

(From a Photograph by Mr. A. G. Dew-Smith, of Cambridge, and reproduced by his kind permission.) violoncello obbligato, of which 'O swallow, swallow, flying South'—a charming setting of Tennyson's words—and 'Awake! awake!' are typical specimens of his melodic gifts. He has rendered violoncellists and the art excellent service by unearthing and performing many violoncello sonatas by Veracini, Valentini, Locatelli, and other old composers who were endowed with the gift of melody.

It is not generally known that Piatti was a great dealer in fiddles. He once told an English friend that he had made more money by buying and selling instruments than he had by his playing! A very modest and unostentatious man of a singularly genial disposition, Piatti was very fond of England and the English people. He married an English lady, the only child of the late Thomas Welsh, the vocalist, at Woodchester Church, Gloucestershire, March 27, 1855. On March 22, 1894, 'in honour of the fiftieth anniversary of their first appearance in England,' Professor Joachim and Signor Piatti were fêted at the Grafton Galleries, in the presence of a distinguished company of friends and admirers. On that occasion, Piatti, in reply to an address read by Sir Alexander Mackenzie, said: 'In my youth I heard so much about England and English hospitality that it was one of my dreams to come to this country and reside, if possible, never expecting that such a thing could come to pass. But before such a thing did come to pass, I had many ups and downs in my career—in fact, more downs than ups!' But, here in England, the genial old 'cellist will long be remembered for his rare artistic 'ups.' It was peculiarly characteristic of him when, in bidding adieu to Mr. Alfred Hill a few months ago, he should add, in the most touching tones of his voice: 'Say good-bye to England for me.'

Mr. Alfred Gibson, an old colleague of Signor Piatti in the 'Pop' quartet, has kindly favoured us with the following 'appreciation' of the distinguished violoncellist:—

The hold which Signor Piatti had on the musical public of London is without parallel, save in one instance—his friend Joachim, and take him for all in all we shall hardly look on his like again.

As a quartet player he had qualities beyond compare. A perfect intonation, wonderful tone, command of every shade and degree of expression, a masterly feeling for tempo, an intellectual grip of his subject, clearness in all rhythmic complications and an unfailing memory. Every quality in short that goes to the making of a great ensemble player, and this in all truth he was.

Certain passages he played in a way that, I think, will never be surpassed, and will live in the memory of those who have heard them. I will instance two or three. In the slow movement of the B flat quintet by Mendelssohn, when the second theme is given by the violoncello just before the coda, his perfect simplicity of expression, beauty of tone and shading, and the heavenly calm of it, went straight to the heart. Another glorious moment—when the violoncello takes the theme just before the end in Brahms's B flat sextet. Again in the 'Kol Nidrei' by Max Bruch. Who can forget these as played by Piatti?

Another side of him, and one that appealed strongly to me, was his love of lawn tennis. As soon as the 'Pops' had finished he used to come up to play on our asphalte court, and go on game after game with the keenest enjoyment. He was a staunch player, with considerable power over the ball, placing with great certainty. He was, however, much disturbed by a hard service. Once he got tennis elbow from a hard ball of mine. Many delightful games I have had with him at the house of Mr. Alfred Borwick (father of Leonard), a warm-hearted, sincere friend one cannot easily forget. An old pupil of Piatti, he simply worshipped him, and delighted to make him happy. When one thinks of Piatti, one recalls his matchless Stradivarius. Into whose hands will this wonderful instrument pass? I think it very probable that Herr Robert Mendelssohn, of Berlin, a most gifted amateur, will eventually be its proud possessor.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

THE ORGAN IN THE GLASGOW EXHIBITION.

Here is the specification of the concert-room organ erected by Messrs. Lewis and Company, Limited, in the Glasgow Exhibition, which, by the way, is a very good 'show' and well worth a visit.

Choir Organ (12 stops).

In a separate swell box.

Salicional	8 feet	Flauto Traverso	4 feet
Dulciana	8 „	Piccolo Harmonique	2 „
Lieblich-gedact	8 „	Cor Anglais (Tenor C)	16 „
Concert Flute (grooved into Lieblich-gedact)	8 „	Orchestral Oboe	8 „
		Clarionet	8 „
Unda Maris (Tenor C)	8 „	Vox Humana	8 „
Salicet	4 „

Great Organ (14 stops).

Open Diapason	16 feet	Octave Quint	2⅔ feet
Bourdon	16 „	Super Octave	2 „
Open Diapason, No. 1	8 „	Mixture (4 ranks)	1⅓ „
Open Diapason, No. 2	8 „	Trombone (In a separate swell box and on heavy pressure wind)	16 „
Bourdon	8 „	Trumpet	8 „
Flûte Harmonique	8 „	Clarion	4 „
Octave	4 „
Flûte Harmonique	4 „

Swell Organ (13 stops.)

Rohr-Bourdon	16 feet	Flautina	2 feet
Geigen Principal	8 „	Cornet (5 ranks)	2⅔ „
Rohr-flöte	8 „	Bassoon	16 „
Viole de Gambe	8 „	Horn	8 „
Voix Célestes (Tenor C)	8 „	Oboe	8 „
Rohr-flöte	4 „	Clarion	4 „
Geigen Principal	4 „

Pedal Organ (9 stops).

Harmonic Bass (derived)	32 feet	Octave (derived)	8 feet
Great Bass	16 „	Flute Bass (derived)	8 „
Open Diapason (derived)	16 „	Bombarde	16 „
Violon	16 „	Trumpet (derived)	8 „
Sub-Bass	16 „

Manual Compass, CC to C.
Pedal Compass, CCC to F.

Total number of speaking stops 48.
Total number of pipes 2,889.

Couplers.

Choir to Pedal.	Swell Octave.
Great to Pedal.	Swell Sub-octave.
Swell to Pedal.	Swell to Great Octave.
Swell to Great.	Swell to Great Sub-octave.
Swell to Choir.	Pedal Couplers to act on Keys.
Choir to Great.	Great to Pedal Coupler controlled by Pedal.
Choir Octave.
Choir Sub-octave.

Accessories.

Four Pedals of Combination to Pedal Organ, and, by an arrangement, to work Great and Pedal stops together; and four to Swell Organ.
Ten Key-touches to each of the three Manuals.
Three balanced Swell Pedals: (1) for Choir Organ, (2) for Swell Organ, and (3) for Great Organ reeds.
Tremulants to Choir and Swell Organs controlled by Pedals.

The Console is enclosed in a polished oak case.
The action throughout is Tubular-Pneumatic.
The Pipes throughout the Organ are of best 'Spotted Metal,' except those forming the front, which are of polished Zinc.
The Organ is tuned to the French Diapason Normal, C 517·3.
The two Electric Motors for working the Feeders are supplied by Verity's, Limited.

The instrument is at present located in the Grand Hall, a temporary circular building capable of seating some 3,000 persons, which stands in the sylvan vale of Kelvingrove, the pleasant grounds of the Exhibition. But the ultimate destination of the organ will be, in all probability, the noble hall of the Glasgow Art Galleries, a permanent and stately edifice erected from the proceeds of the last Glasgow Exhibition of 1888 at a cost of £130,000.

(Continued on page 542.)

All the world is bright.

PART-SONG FOR FOUR VOICES.

Words from The Century Magazine. Composed by HENRY EDWARD HODSON.

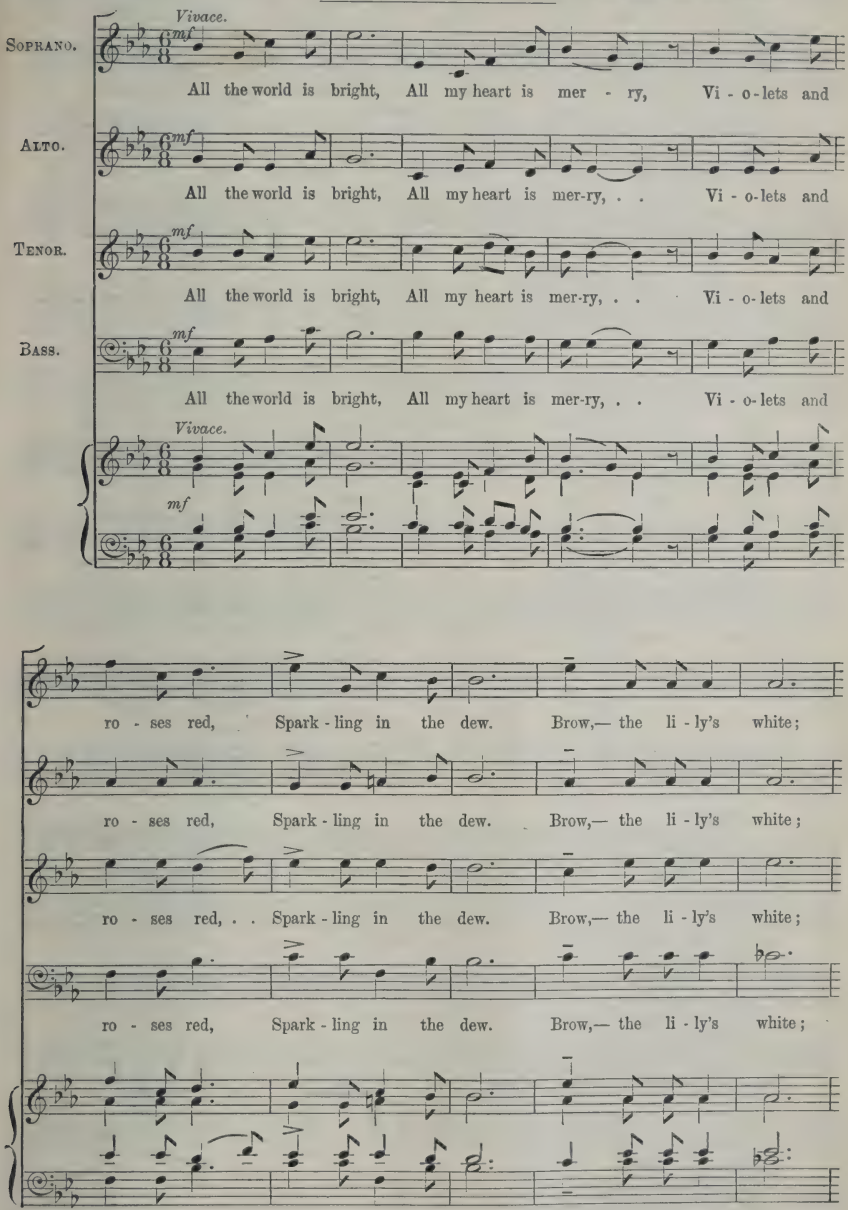
LONDON NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Vivace.
mf
SOPRANO.
All the world is bright, All my heart is mer - ry, Vi - o-lets and ALTO.
All the world is bright, All my heart is mer-ry, . . Vi - o-lets and
TENOR.
All the world is bright, All my heart is mer-ry, . . Vi - o-lets and
BASS.
All the world is bright, All my heart is mer-ry, . . Vi - o-lets and Vivace.
mf
ro - ses red, Spark - ling in the dew. Brow,— the li - ly's white;
ro - ses red, Spark - ling in the dew. Brow,— the li - ly's white;
ro - ses red, . . Spark - ling in the dew. Brow,— the li - ly's white;
ro - ses red, Spark - ling in the dew. Brow,— the li - ly's white;

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

p
Lip,—the crim-son ber-ry, . . Hark! I hear a light-some tread, Ah! my love 'tis
Lip,—the crim-son ber-ry, . . Hark! I hear a light-some tread, Ah! my love 'tis
Lip,—the crim-son ber-ry, . . Hark! I hear a light-some tread, Ah! my love 'tis Lip,—the crim-son ber-ry, . . Hark! I hear a light-some tread, Ah! my love 'tis p mf rit.
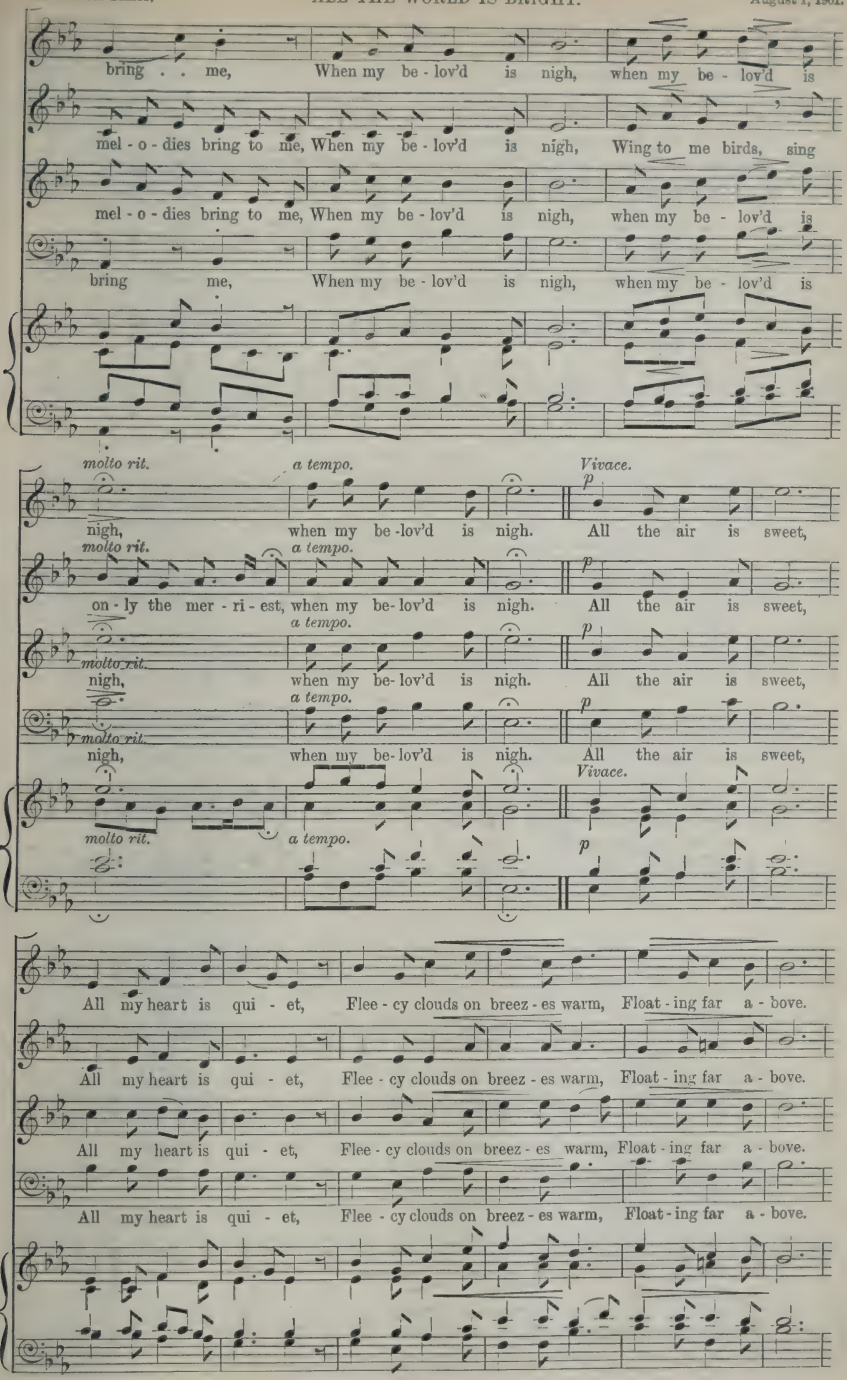
you! Hark! I hear a light-some tread, Ah! my love 'tis you.
you! Hark! I hear a light-some tread, Ah! my love 'tis you.
you! Hark! I hear a light-some tread, Ah! my love 'tis you.
you! Hark! I hear a light-some tread, Ah! my love 'tis you.
p very lightly.
Wing, birds, sing to me, None so hap-py as I, On-ly the mer-ri-est
p very lightly.
Wing to me birds, and sing to me, None so hap-py as I, On-ly the mer-ri-est
p very lightly.
Wing to me birds, and sing to me, None so hap-py as I, On-ly the mer-ri-est
p very lightly.
Wing, birds, sing to me, None so hap-py as I, On-ly the mer-ri-est
p very lightly.



bring . . me, When my be - lov'd is nigh, when my be - lov'd is mel - o - dies bring to me, When my be - lov'd is nigh, Wing to me birds, sing mel - o - dies bring to me, When my be - lov'd is nigh, when my be - lov'd is bring me, When my be - lov'd is nigh, when my be - lov'd is molto rit.
a tempo.
Vivace.
nigh, when my be - lov'd is nigh. All the air is sweet, on - ly the mer - ri - est, when my be - lov'd is nigh. All the air is sweet, nigh, when my be - lov'd is nigh. All the air is sweet, nigh, when my be - lov'd is nigh. All the air is sweet,
All my heart is qui - et, Flee - cy clouds on breez - es warm, Float - ing far a - bove.
All my heart is qui - et, Flee - cy clouds on breez - es warm, Float - ing far a - bove.
All my heart is qui - et, Flee - cy clouds on breez - es warm, Float - ing far a - bove.
All my heart is qui - et, Flee - cy clouds on breez - es warm, Float - ing far a - bove.

Eye—where soft lights meet, Cheek—where ro - ses ri - ot, . . Look! I see a
Eye—where soft lights meet, Cheek—where ro - ses ri - ot, . . Look! I see a
Eye—where soft lights meet, Cheek—where ro - ses ri - ot, . . Look! I see a Eye—where soft lights meet, Cheek—where ro - ses ri - ot, . . Look! I see a più rit. a tempo.
gra - cious form, Ah! 'tis you my love, Look! I see a gra - cious form, gra - cious form, Ah! 'tis you my love, . . Look! I see a gra - cious form, gra-cious form, Ah! 'tis you my love, . . Look! I see a gra - cious form, gra-cious form, Ah! 'tis you my love, . . Look! I see a gra - cious form,
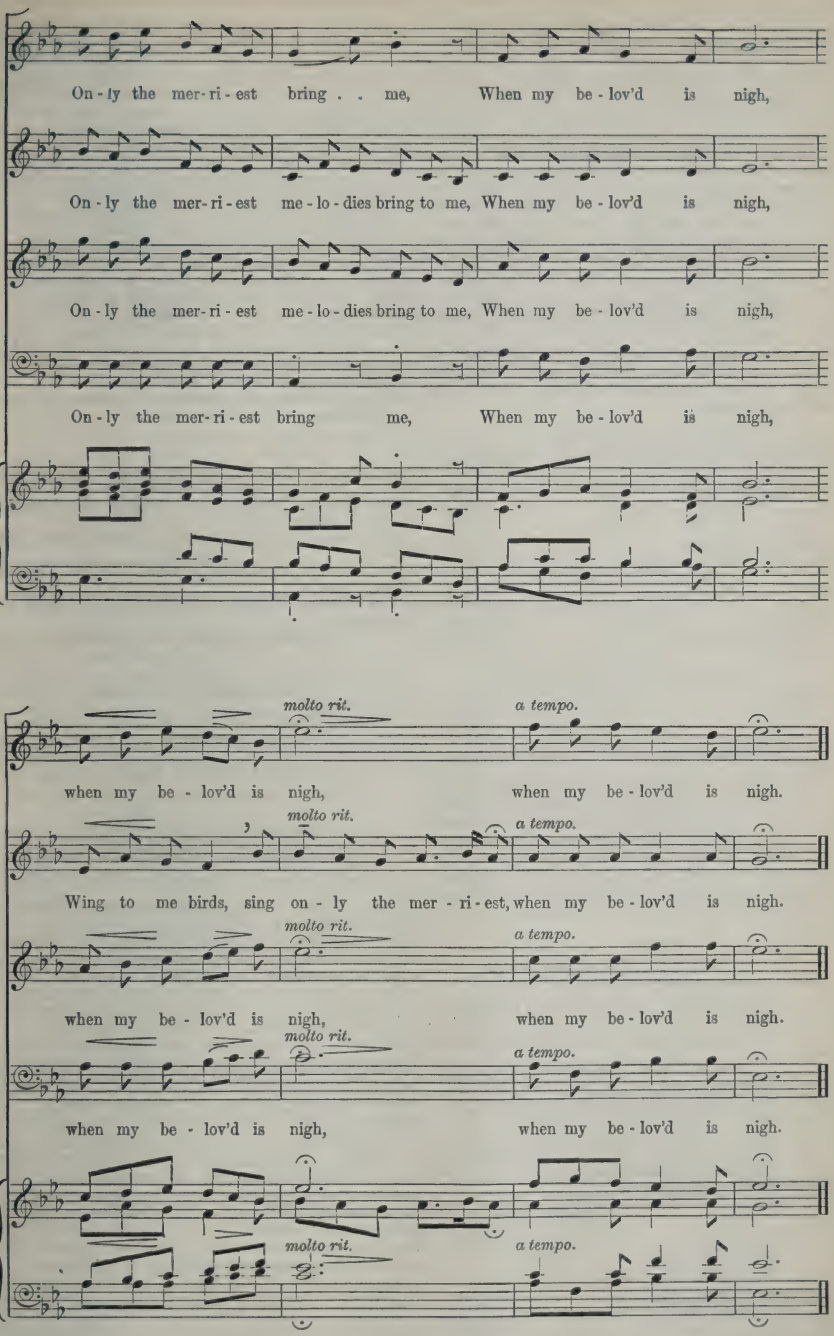
Ah! 'tis you my love. Wing, birds, sing to me, None so hap-py as I,
Ah! 'tis you my love. Wing to me birds, and sing to me, None so hap-py as I,
Ah! 'tis you my love. Wing to me birds, and sing to me, None so hap-py as I,
Ah! 'tis you my love. Wing, birds, sing to me, None so hap-py as I,



On - ly the mer - ri - est bring . . me, When my be - lov'd is nigh,
On - ly the mer - ri - est me - lo - dies bring to me, When my be - lov'd is nigh,
On - ly the mer - ri - est me - lo - dies bring to me, When my be - lov'd is nigh,
On - ly the mer - ri - est bring me, When my be - lov'd is nigh, molto rit.
a tempo.
when my be - lov'd is nigh, when my be - lov'd is nigh.
Wing to me birds, sing on - ly the mer - ri - est, when my be - lov'd is nigh.
when my be - lov'd is nigh, when my be - lov'd is nigh.
when my be - lov'd is nigh, when my be - lov'd is nigh.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC—Continued.

The chief and novel features of this fine organ are: (1) that it practically has two swells, as the large choir organ of twelve stops (only one stop less than the swell) is enclosed in a swell box; (2) that the three great organ reeds are also enclosed in a swell box; and (3) that it is plentifully supplied with key touches (ten on each manual) and other ample mechanical accessories. The effects that can be obtained from this unusual equipment of what may be termed the expressive side of the king of instruments are very remarkable, as we can testify from having heard the instrument under the able manipulation of Mr. Edwin H. Lemare, who in June last gave a series of performances. The daily recitals are well attended and have proved a very attractive feature of this most successful Exhibition. Among other organists who have played are Mr. Thomas Berry, who bears an honoured name in Glasgow, and Mr. Alfred Hollins, of Edinburgh. We give specimen recital programmes of these three representative performers.

MR. EDWIN H. LEMARE.

1. Overture, 'Der Freischütz' .. .. Weber.
2. Andante cantabile, from the Fifth Symphony Tschaïkowsky.
3. Concert Rondo .. .. Hollins.
4. (a) Contemplation } .. .. Lemare.
   (b) Elegy }
5. Fugue in C minor, from a Sonata .. .. .. Reubke.
   (Descriptive of the 94th Psalm.)
6. Improvisation.
7. Overture, 'Tannhäuser' .. .. Wagner.

MR. THOMAS BERRY.

1. Grand Solemn March .. .. Smart.
2. Minuet .. .. Boccherini.
3. Pastorale .. .. Guilmant.
4. Andante, from the Symphony in C minor .. .. Beethoven.
5. Overture, 'William Tell' .. .. Rossini.
6. National Air.

MR. ALFRED HOLLINS.

1. Overture, 'Prometheus' .. .. Beethoven.
2. Communion .. .. Grison.
3. Fugue in G .. .. Krebs.
4. Nocturne .. .. Hollins.
5. Improvisation.
6. Gavotte, 'Yellow Jasmine' .. .. Cowen.
7. Toccata .. .. Widor.

For the theme of his improvisation, Mr. Hollins took the air 'The Bonnie Banks o' Loch Lomond,' into which he 'introduced with wonderful realism a storm among the Scottish hills, and the calm of nature which follows.' At the recital given by Mr. Lemare a group of church organists vainly endeavoured to grasp the poetic basis of Reubke's fugue—not one of them could recall the words of the 94th Psalm!

Organ Music in the Antipodes.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—A regular reader of your well-known journal, and a lover of fine organ music, I take the liberty of enclosing programme of my most recent organ recital in Quirindi Parish Church.

We are a small though busy community of 2,000 souls, hundreds of miles from any city, and on the Great Liverpool Plains of N.S. Wales, far away from the towns of big orchestras, large organs, and big choral societies.

I would be glad if you will kindly find room for the recent programme enclosed, as I would like English organists to see that we play good, solid music out here in N.S. Wales, to our audiences of sheep-owners.

With best wishes for The Musical Times,

I am, yours very truly,

Hill Street, Quirindi, Lewis P. Dunn.
New South Wales.

St. Alban's, Quirindi, New South Wales.

Grand Fugue in E flat ('St. Ann') .. .. Bach.
Morgenstimmung ('Peer Gynt' Suite) .. .. Grieg.
Gavotte .. .. Bachmann.
Chorus of Pilgrims ('Tannhäuser') .. .. .. Wagner.
Grand Chœur in D .. .. Guilmant.
Toccata (from Fifth Symphony) .. .. Widor.

Organ Recitals.

Mr. Alfred W. V. Vine, Tewkesbury Abbey (Sonata, O Filii, Lemmens).—Mr. W. A. Gardner, St. Matthias, Poplar.—Dr. J. C. Bradshaw, All Saints', Scarborough (Fantasia in F, Best).—Mr. H. J. Taylor, Christ Church, Dover (Fantasia in C minor, Berens).—Mr. Francis G. Highe, Parish Church, Castleacre (Adagio in A, Otto Dienel).—Mr. George S. Evans, Parish Church, Leigh, Kent.—Mr. Alfred B. Choat, Emmanuel Parish Church, Camberwell.—Mr. E. S. Higham, Dean Vaughan Memorial Church, St. Martin's, Kensal Rise ('Fantasie' Overture, Garrett).—Dr. G. B. Arnold, All Saints', Southampton (re-opening of organ: Handel's Concerto in G).—Mr. Fred G. Hickson, Holy Trinity Church, North Malvern (Toccata in A, Purcell).—Mr. R. E. Parker, Wilmslow Parish Church (Offertoire in D flat, Salomé).—Mr. T. W. Ritson, Parish Church, Oystermouth (Cornelius March, Mendelssohn).—Mr. H. T. Gilberthorpe, Parish Church, Lynton.—Mr. G. H. Gregory, St. Peter's, Woodhall Spa (Air with Variations in D, Posthumous, Mendelssohn, and Finale alla Marcia, Stainer).—Mr. Fred Diggle, Longrow United Free Church.—Mr. H. D. Flowers, Parish Church, Lowestoft (Andante and Allegro, F. E. Bache).

Organist and Choirmaster and Choir Appointments.

Mr. George F. Coombes, Latimer Congregational Church, London.

Mr. James A. Crapper, Scoonie Parish Church, Leven, Fife.

Mr. George S. Evans, Parish Church, Berkeley, Gloucestershire.

Mr. William C. Hyde, All Saints' Church, Princes Park, Liverpool.

Mr. Alfred Maisey, Alveston Church, Stratford-on-Avon.

Mr. John Muir, United Free Church, Ayr.

Mr. J. C. Richards, Romsey Abbey.

Mr. T. J. Watts, Organist and Director of Music at Epsom College.

Mr. Percy West-Taylor, Parish Church, St. Neots.

Mr. Tom Pickles (Choirmaster), St. Philip's Church, Nelson.

Mr. Arthur Elsmore (Alto), St. Asaph Cathedral.

PROFESSOR NIECKS ON 'THE ETHICAL ASPECTS OF MUSIC.'

The key-note of the lectures which Professor Niecks delivered at Trinity College, London, on June 20 and 27, is to be found in the words with which he concluded the first, and, in a still more emphatic manner, the second lecture: 'It is high time to reconsider the question of the ethical aspects of music, and to examine it earnestly, carefully, and thoroughly.' The meaning of the title was explained by a well-known book, 'Music and Morals,' and the problem to be grappled with thus: 'Has music ethical qualities and powers—has it qualities and powers that can exercise an influence on the manners, character, and morals of its cultivators?' The lecturer stated at the outset that he would answer the question in the affirmative, but guarded himself by adding: 'I must ask you to note at once what my assertion does not imply. My assertion that music can exercise an influence on the character, morals, and manners of its cultivators implies neither that all music can do that, nor that music actually does that to a large extent. An immense mass of music is, for various reasons, non-ethic; and music, as at present cultivated, can exercise but a tithe and even less of the influence of which it is capable.'

Whatever trouble Professor Niecks may have taken about the facts and literary form, we cannot be for a moment in doubt that his main concern was not to provide a couple of hours' pleasant entertainment or instruction, but to make a strenuous missionary effort in a direction where his voice is the voice of one crying in the wilderness. The chief questions dealt with in the two lectures are these :—

1. What are the views held in the past and present on the ethic powers of music?

2. In what way does the æsthetic side of music educate those who cultivate the art?

3. Is music expressive? And if it is expressive, which are the means that enable it to be so?

4. What practical conclusions has the teacher of music, the educationist, the philosopher, and the statesman to draw from these facts?

To the illustration of the first of these questions the first lecture was devoted, in which the views in antiquity, in the middle ages, and in modern times are exemplified.

After these introductory remarks we shall let the lecturer speak for himself, confining ourselves to putting in a word or two where our omissions make this necessary. The reader will of course understand that, through the omissions in our report, much of the accumulated evidence and logical sequence are lost. Still, the general character of the evidence and the drift of the argument will be clearly recognisable.

Passing over the lecturer's remark as to the great attention paid by the ancient Greeks to the ethic powers of music, and his characterisation of Pythagoras's view, we come to Plato.

In the proposition that 'Rhythms and music in general are imitations of good and evil characters,' we have the root from which Plato's teaching springs. Now let me illustrate this teaching by a few characteristic quotations :—

Musical training is a more potent instrument than any other, because rhythm and melody find their way into the secret places of the soul, on which they mightily fasten, imparting grace, and making the soul graceful of him who is ill-educated; and also because he who has received this true education of the inner being will most shrewdly perceive omissions or faults in art and nature, and with a true taste, while he praises and rejoices over and receives into his soul the good, and becomes noble and good, he will justly blame and hate the bad, now in the days of his youth, even before he is able to know the reason why; and when reason comes, he will recognise and salute her as a friend with whom his education has made him long familiar.

The harmonious soul is both temperate and valiant, the inharmonious soul is cowardly and boorish.

Plato, in 'The Republic,' declares, through the mouth of Socrates, that all modes, except the Dorian and the Phrygian, should be banished—the Ionian and Lydian because they induce softness, indolence, and drunkenness, the Mixolydian, because it expresses sorrow, &c. On the other hand, the Dorian is the strain of necessity, of the unfortunate, of courage, the warlike mode, 'which will sound the word or the note that a brave man utters in the hour of danger and stern resolve, or when his cause is failing, and he is going to wounds or death or is overtaken by some other evil, and at every such crisis meets fortune with calmness and endurance'; and the Phrygian is the strain of freedom, of the fortunate, and of temperance, the mode 'to be used by him in times of peace and freedom of action, when there is no pressure of necessity, and he is seeking to persuade God by prayer, or man by instruction and advice; or, on the other hand, which expresses his willingness to listen to persuasion or entreaty or advice, and which represents him when he has accomplished his aim, not carried away by success, but acting moderately and wisely, acquiescing in the event.

Next in order to modes, rhythms will naturally follow, and they should be subject to the same rules, for we ought not to have complex or manifold systems of metre, but rather to discover what rhythms are the expressions of a courageous and harmonious life. . . . What rhythms are expressive of meanness, or insolence, or fury, or other unworthiness, and what rhythms are remaining for the expression of opposite feelings?

One more quotation shall conclude my statement of Plato's view. Damon says that when modes of music change, the fundamental laws of the State always change with them.

Here are some sayings of Aristotle's :—

Rhythms and melody supply imitations of anger and gentleness, and also of courage and temperance, and of virtues and vices in general, which hardly fall short of the actual affections, for in listening to such strains our souls undergo a change.

Even in mere melodies there is an imitation of character, for the musical modes differ essentially from one another, and those who hear them are differently affected by each. Some of them make men sad and grave, like the so-called Mixolydian, others enfeeble the mind like the relaxed harmonies, others, again, produce a moderate and settled temper, which appears to be the peculiar effect of the Dorian; the Phrygian inspires enthusiasm . . . . The same principles apply to rhythms; some have a character of rest, others of motion, and of those latter, again, some have a more vulgar, others a nobler movement. Enough has been said to show that music has a power of forming the character, and should therefore be introduced into the education of the young.

My last quotation from Aristotle will be on the study of music.

'The right measure will be attained if students of music stop short of the arts which are practised in professional contests, and do not seek to acquire those fantastic marvels of execution which are now the fashion in such contests, and from these have passed into education. Let the young pursue their studies until they are able to feel delight in noble melodies and rhythms, and not merely in that common part of music in which every slave or child, and even animals, find pleasure . . . . . thus then we reject the professional mode of education in music.'

Views like those of Pythagoras, Plato, and Aristotle were not exceptional individual views, but views which up to the appearance of the Sophists, in the 5th century, B.C., seem to have been universally held and subsequently to have largely preponderated. Owing to the scarcity of documents that have come down to us, especially documents referring to the opposite views, it is, however, difficult to dogmatise. On the side of the Pythagoreans, Academics, and Peripatetics, there were also the Stoics, whereas the Epicureans ranged themselves on the side of the Sophists.

Brief characterisations of the ethical views of the Peripatetics Aristoxenus and Theophrastus, the Stoic Diogenes of Seleucia, the Eclectic Aristides Quintilianus, Claudius Ptolemy, and Boethius, concluded this part. Then the lecturer turned to the anti-ethical views of the ancients, and a criticism of these and the ethical views :—

The ethical views did not remain unchallenged. This may have first been done in the fifth century B.C. by the Sophists. Unfortunately extremely little of early contemporary information exists, and for an account of some adequacy we must come down to the first century B.C., to the Epicurean Philodemus of Gadara, in Syria, who wrote a book on music, of which, however, only fragments remain. The ancient antagonists in matters musical of the Pythagoreans, Academics, Peripatetics, and Stoics, were the exact prototypes of our nineteenth century æsthetic formalists. In reading their objections and declarations we seem to be reading quotations from Hanslick's 'On the Beautiful in Music.' According to Philodemus, melodies and rhythms unconnected with words are meaningless, are mere formal combinations destitute of a content. This being the case, they cannot in any way affect the state of the soul, cannot in any way exercise an ethical influence either for good or evil. In fact, Philodemus goes so far as to maintain that music has as little to do with the soul-life as cookery, that it is a mere luxury, serving no useful purpose, except that of affording relaxation and lightening toil; that, in short, it has no other object than amusement.

The mistake of those who think differently arises, we are told, from two causes—from attributing the meaning and effect of the words which generally accompany music to the music itself; and from our readiness to accept as authoritative what has been believed by our forefathers, and what is told us by our elders. The formalists declare that the teaching of the philosophers whom they oppose consists solely of assertions. If this accusation were true, it could be effectively met by the question: 'What else but assertions do you proffer?' But is the accusation true? Not quite. Although there may be more assertion than proof, and the proof not scientifically set forth, it cannot in fairness be denied that there is observation as well as assertion in statements such as those about the correlation of the soul and music, the connection between musical and psychical motion, the effect of music as a rhythmical moving of the soul, and the different character, the different expression of different melodies and rhythms. . . . For the different expression of different melodies and rhythms, support may be found in the teaching of the rhetoricians and grammarians. Some of the rhetoricians laid great stress on the importance of melody and rhythm in speaking if persuasion was aimed at; and the grammarians never wholly lost sight of the ethos of rhythms in their treatment of verse.

Professor Niecks's opinion of the much-debated question as to the value of the ethical views of the Greek philosophers is as follows:—

We know far too little of Greek music to form an opinion of its powers, far too little to test the opinions of the ancients. It is not impossible that the philosophers may have been mistaken on some points, or that they may have indulged in exaggeration. I do not say that it was so, but say only that it may have been so. On the other hand, it seems to me that the sceptics overlook and misunderstand various things. They ask: 'How could such great effects be produced by so simple a music as that of the Greeks?' The answer to this is that in those early times simple musical combinations may have made deeper impressions on the hearer than the complicated modern combinations make on our jaded ears. Is not youth more impressionable than age? But although ancient Greek music was comparatively simple, it had more means of expression than are usually taken into account. They had a greater number of modes; they had three genera (diatonic, chromatic, and enharmonic, not to mention other modifications of their scales); they had modulation; and they had a very highly developed system of rhythm. Adverse critics laugh at the ascription of different qualities by different writers to one and the same mode. Most of these contradictions, however, arose not from the stupidity of the Greeks, but from the ignorance of the mediæval musicians, who misunderstood the Greek nomenclature, and confused the names of the modes. Some of the supposed contradictions are in reality reconcilable differences. In short, be our estimate of the prevailing Greek view ever so low, we cannot get rid of the fact that it represents the belief of the large majority of a pre-eminently intellectual and artistic race. Such a belief ought not to be ignored; on the contrary, it ought to be carefully noted and pondered.

In the literature of the middle ages there is hardly anything to be met with in regard to our subject that may not be described as an echo of the utterances of the ancients, or rather as an echo of echoes of them. Nevertheless there are differences between the later and the earlier writers. The character of these differences will be understood if we remember that the mediæval writers were for the most part Christian churchmen thinking of Christian Church music, and subjects of states whose governments and social conditions were as unlike those of the Greece of Plato and Aristotle as anything could be.

Quotations from St. Isidore, John Cotton, and Tinctoris brought out both the similarities and the differences.

A much more valuable contribution to our subject is made by the learned Venetian, Zarlino, a great composer, and a still greater theorist, in his famous book the 'Institutioni Harmoniche,' published in 1558, which contains chapters on the origin of music, in praise of it, on the end in learning it, and on its usefulness. He calls it a vulgar and gross notion to learn music merely for the solace and delight of the ear and the perfecting of the sense of hearing; and also wishes music to be something more than a discipline that inclines the mind to virtue and regulates its passions, a discipline that does for the mind what gymnastics do for the body. He who learns music, says our illustrious authority, learns it not only to attain the perfection of the intellect, but also to be able, when laying aside cares and business, be it of the body or the mind, to pass the time and amuse himself virtuously, so that shunning idleness and living uprightly and commendably, he may in that way become prudent and get to do better and more praiseworthy things. This end is not only estimable, but it is the true end.

Zarlino's explanation of how music is enabled to affect the soul can in our time only raise a smile. It is this: The passions of the soul, being placed as they are in the body, consist of certain proportions of hot and cold, and humid and dry; and as similar proportions of qualities exist in music, it can, owing to this similarity, act upon the soul.

After an account of Castiglione's 'Il Libro del Cortegiano,' Professor Niecks made his hearers look at the subject from a different point of view, continuing thus:

Not only of a much greater, but of the utmost interest and importance to us, are the discussions and achievements of a set of amateurs, poets, and musicians at Florence in the last quarter of the sixteenth century, who brought certain tendencies of the century to a head, and thereby revolutionised the art, changing it from one chiefly of harmonic proportion to one chiefly of expression, substituting instrumentally accompanied one-voice music for instrumentally unaccompanied many-voice music, or, to use technical terms, substituting the monodic for the madrigalesque style. These men—more especially the Counts Bardi and Corsi, Vincenzo Galilei, Peri, Caccini, and the poet Ottavio Rinuccini—were the founders of the musical renaissance, which came in the rear of that of the formative arts and of literature. But this renaissance was not a renaissance in the sense of being a revival of ancient Greek music, although the founders believed it to be that. They had, no doubt, been inspired by Plato, but the realisation of the ideas thus obtained led to very different results. It could not be otherwise, for there were no ancient musical monuments to study, the imperfectly understood theoretical treatises could not make up for the lack of art-works, and it was impossible to ignore and forget the harmonic acquisitions of the later middle ages. Count Bardi divided music into counterpoint and the art of singing well. The former he and the rest of the reformers rejected, because it seemed to them a hindrance to the latter. The moderns, like the ancients, Bardi remarked to Caccini, should aim first of all at intelligibility of the words, for as the soul is greater than the body, so are the words nobler than counterpoint; and then they should aim at correspondence between the character and mode of the music and the meaning of the poem. It is the staunch belief in the expressive power of music, and the institution of a style that favoured the development of this power, which makes this Florentine reforming brotherhood of the last quarter of the 16th century so interesting to us.

In regard to Luther, who is in this respect as unique as in many others, and comes before us not as a philosopher, but simply as an ardent lover of music and a thorough believer in its ethical powers, the lecturer remarked:—

Again and again Luther says that in his estimation the place of music is next to theology, the one as well as the other producing a calm and serene mind.

The usefulness of music is so great that no one, be he ever so eloquent, can say enough of it. . . . Music is a mighty ruler of all movements of the human heart, by which, nevertheless, men are often governed and subjugated as by a master.

Music has of necessity to be retained in schools. A schoolmaster must know how to sing, otherwise I won't look at him.

No. 791. NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES. Price 3d.

Be merciful, be gracious (Dream of Gerontius) EDWARD ELGAR.

BACH'S GOD SO LOVED.

No.		Pence.
749	That God doth love the world ...	3

BACH'S PASSION (St. Matthew).

360	Come, ye daughters	3
528	I would beside my Lord	3
334	My Saviour Jesus ... ... / Have lightnings and thunders ...	3
529	O man, thy heavy sin lament ...	3
530	Alas! now is my Saviour gone ...	2
336	Now doth the Lord	1
337	Here yet awhile	1½
362	Be not afraid (Motet)	6
661	Blessing, glory, and wisdom ...	6

BACH'S PASSION (St. John).

531	Lord, our Redeemer	3
532	Let us not divide	2
533	Beloved Saviour	2
534	Rest here in peace ... ... / Lord Jesus, Thy dear angel send ...	3
712	If this man	1½

BACH'S CHRISTMAS ORATORIO.

535	Christians, be joyful	3
536	Glory to God	2
537	Hear, King of angels	1½
538	Come and thank Him	3
539	Glory be to God Almighty	3
540	Lord, when our haughty foes ...	3
541	Now vengeance hath been taken ...	1½

BACH'S MY SPIRIT WAS IN HEAVINESS.

696	The Lamb that was slain for us ...	3

BACH'S MASS IN B MINOR.

718	Sanctus	4
720	Crucifixus and Et Resurrexit ...	4

J. C. BACH.

353	I wrestle and pray (Motet)	4

BARNBY'S 97th PSALM.

748	Gloria Patri. March and Chorus ...	6

BARNBY'S REBEKAH.

626	Lo! day's golden glory	4
627	Who shall be fleetest	1½
628	Fear or doubting	3
629	Protect them, Almighty	3

BARNETT'S THE ANCIENT MARINER.

753	Around, around	4
756	What loud uproar	6

BEETHOVEN'S ENGEDI. (MOUNT OF OLIVES.)

195	O triumph, all ye ransomed ...	3
196	Hallelujah	3
349	Where is he	3

BEETHOVEN'S MASS IN C.

190	Kyrie—When I call upon Thee ...	1½
191	Gloria—Praise the Lord ... ... / Qui tollis—Give ear ... ... / Quoniam—Thou alone art holy ...	4
192	Credo—Glory and great worship ... / Et incarnatus—O Lord, give ear ... / Et resurrexit—Be Thou exalted ... / Et vitam—O praise ye the Lord ...	4
193	Sanctus—Holy, Holy... ... ... / Benedictus—He is blessed	4
194	Agnus Dei—Hear my crying ... / Dona nobis—Blessed be the Lord...	2

BEETHOVEN.

No.		Pence.
670	A calm sea and a prosperous voyage	4
678	Meek, as thou livedst, hast thou departed (an Elegy)	2

BEETHOVEN'S RUINS OF ATHENS.

366	Daughter of high-thronèd Jove ...	1½
367	When thou didst frown	3
368	Twine ye the garlands	3
369	Susceptible hearts	2
370	Deign, great Apollo	3
371	Hail, mighty master, hail	3

BEETHOVEN'S MASS IN D.

344	Kyrie eleison	4
553	Gloria in Excelsis	1s.
554	Credo	1s.
555	Sanctus and Benedictus	6
556	Agnus Dei	8

BENEDICT'S ST. PETER.

610	They that go down to the sea ...	4
611	The Lord will not turn His face ...	3
612	The Lord be a lamp	1½
613	It is a spirit ... ... / Who would not fear Thee	1½
614	Praise ye the Lord	6
615	We have a law	1½
616	This man was also with Him—This is one of them... ... ... / Surely thou art also—They are all revolters	4
617	This is a day of wrath...	2
618	Thou that destroyeth the Temple ...	3
619	He is worthy to die ... ... / He will swallow up death	4
620	Fear thou not	2
621	Sing unto the Lord	2
760	O come, let us sing	2

BENNETT'S MAY QUEEN.

666	Wake with a smile	4
667	With a laugh as we go round ...	4
668	Hark! their notes the hautboys swell	3
669	Ill-fated boy, begone	3

BENNETT'S WOMAN OF SAMARIA.

	God is a Spirit (Sol-fa, 2d.)	6
	Ditto (Male voices, arranged by J. Hodges)	6
	Abide with me	6
	Blessed be the Lord God	6
	Therefore with joy	6
	Therefore they shall come	6
	Come, O Israel	4
	Now we believe	4
	I will call upon the Lord / And blessed be the Lord	6

CHERUBINI'S REQUIEM.

331	Introit—Requiem æternam—Give unto the pure in heart	2
557	Graduale—Requiem æternam ... / Give unto the humble ...	1½
332	Dies Iræ—Day of vengeance ...	6
558	Domine Jesu—Lord Jesus Christ ...	8
559	Sanctus—Holy, Holy	1½
333	Pie Jesu—God of mercy	1
560	Agnus Dei—Lord Almighty... ...	3

CHERUBINI'S MASS IN C, No. 4.

759	Praise Jehovah, all ye nations ...	4

CHERUBINI'S MASS IN D MINOR.

719	Agnus Dei	4

H. COWARD'S STORY OF BETHANY.

No.		Pence.
764	Behold, how good a thing it is ...	4

COWEN'S RUTH.

747	Chorus and Dances of Reapers and Gleaners	8
	How excellent is Thy loving kindness	6

COWEN'S SLEEPING BEAUTY.

722	At dawn of day...	6

COWEN'S SONG OF THANKSGIVING.

761	Except the Lord build the house ...	1½

COWEN'S ST. JOHN'S EVE.

770	Now joy shall be in cottage poor ...	4

CROTCH'S PALESTINE.

680	Reft of thy sons	2
681	O happy once	2
682	O feeble boast	3
683	Hence all his might	2
684	In frantic converse	3
685	Then the harp awoke	3
686	Nor vain their hope	3
687	Lo! star-led chiefs	2
688	Daughter of Sion	1½
689	He comes!	2
690	Be peace on earth	2
691	Then on your tops	2
692	Hosanna!	2
693	Worthy the Lamb, and Hallelujah!	3

DVOŘÁK'S LUDMILA.

758	Blossoms, born of teeming Springtime	4
773	Now all gives way together ...	4

DVOŘÁK'S STABAT MATER.

750	Fac me vere tecum flere	3

ELGAR'S BANNER OF ST. GEORGE.

775	It comes from the misty ages ...	4

ELGAR'S DREAM OF GERONTIUS.

790	Litany	2
791	Be merciful	3
792	Go forth upon thy journey	4

ELGAR'S KING OLAF.

774	The challenge of Thor	4

FARMER'S MASS IN B♭.

568	Kyrie eleison—Lord, have mercy ...	3
569	Gloria in Excelsis—Glory be to God	6
570	Credo—I believe in one God ...	8
571	Sanctus—Holy, Holy, Holy	2
572	Benedictus—Blessed is He	3
573	Agnus Dei and Dona nobis ... ... / O Lamb of God—Grant us Thy peace	4

GADE'S CHRISTMAS EVE.

710	Behold, a star appeareth	4

GADE'S THE ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER.

647	At eve, Sir Oluf reined	2
648	The sun now mounts	1½

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

BE MERCIFUL, BE GRACIOUS

CHORUS (S.A.T.B.) FROM THE "DREAM OF GERONTIUS"

COMPOSED BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

past ; From the per - ils of dy - - ing ;
molto espress.
p
From Thy frown and Thine ire ; From the per-ils, the liv - er him, Lord, de - liv - er him. From an-y com-ply - ing, . . comply-ing . . liv - er him, Lord, de - liv - er him. From per - ils of dy - - ing, Or de -
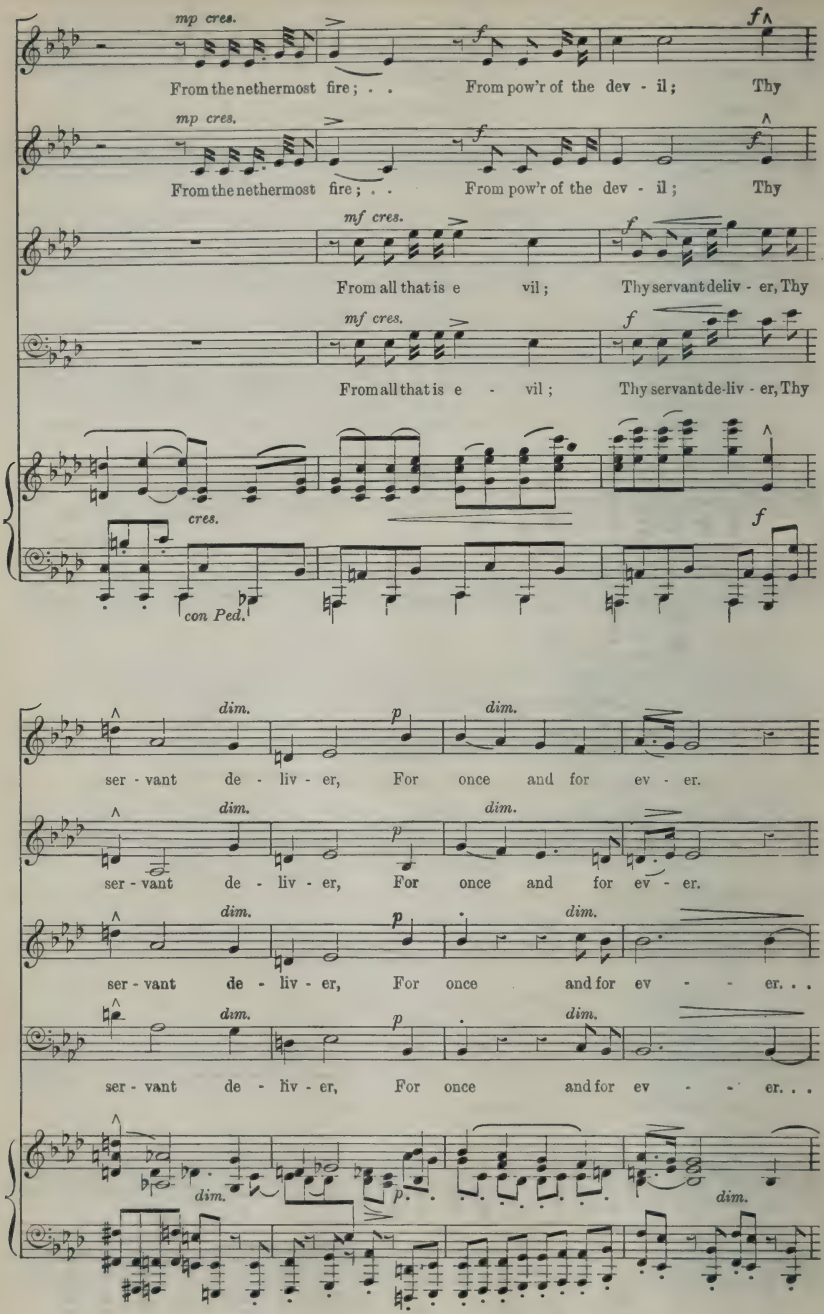
p
dim.
Or re - ly - ing On self, at the last ; . . . .
dim.
pp
per - ils of dy - ing, Lord, de - liv - er him. . . . .
pp
dim.
. . . with sin, Lord, de - liv - er him.
pp
dim.
- ny - ing his God, Lord, de - liv - er him. . . . .
espress.
dim.



mp cres.
f
From the nethermost fire; . . From pow'r of the dev - il; Thy mp cres.
f
From the nethermost fire; . . From pow'r of the dev - il; Thy mf cres.
f
From all that is e vil; Thy servant deliv - er, Thy mf cres.
f
From all that is e - vil; Thy servant de-liv - er, Thy
cres.
f con Ped.
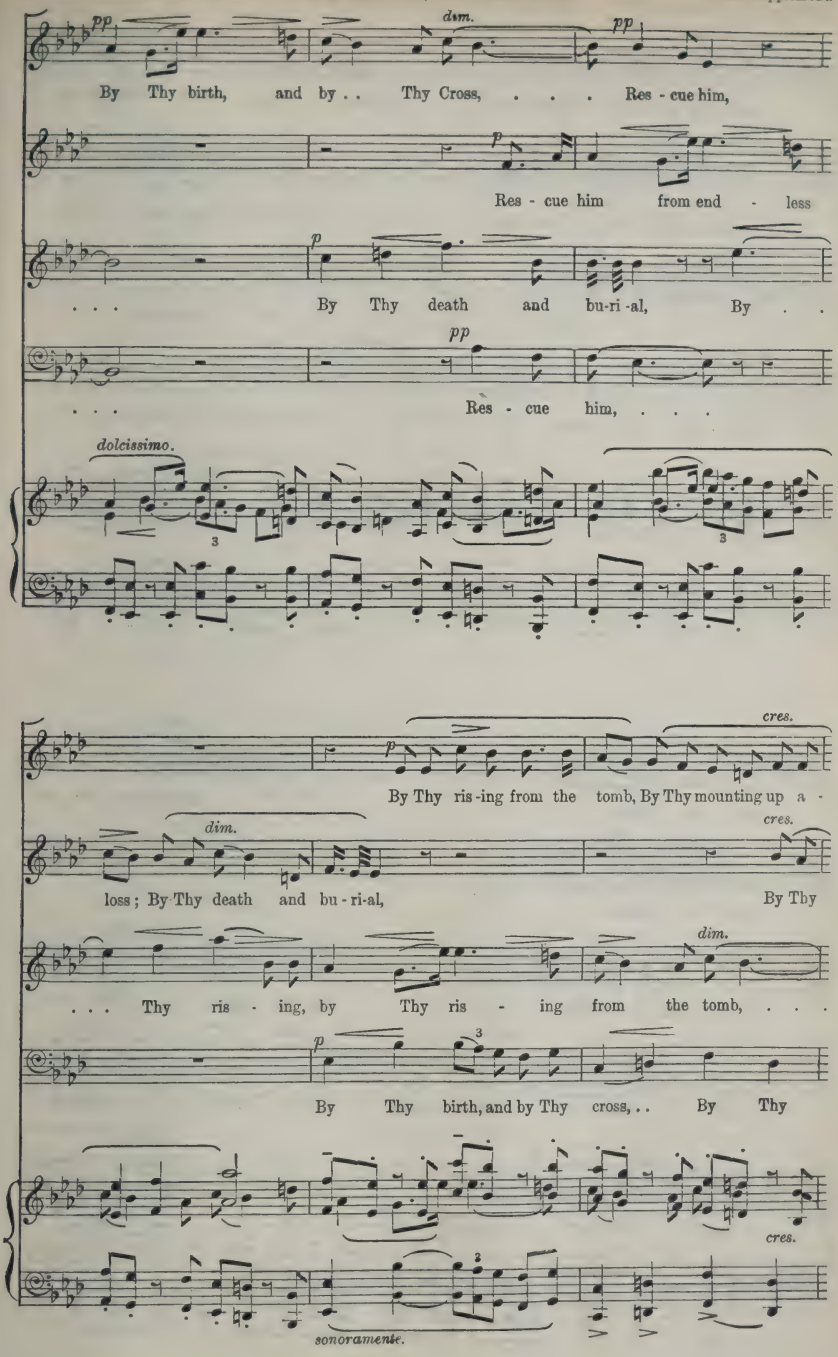
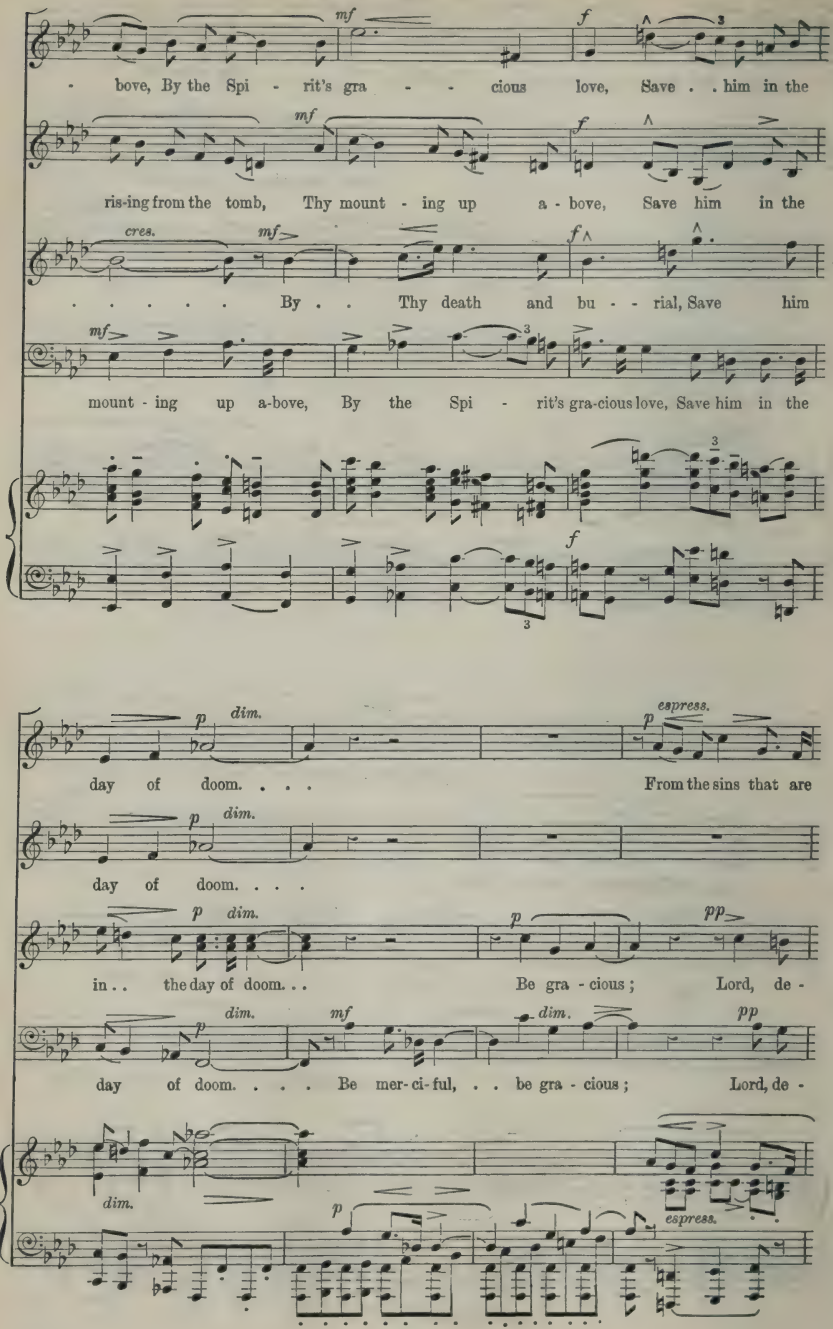
dim.
p
dim.
ser - vant de - liv - er, For once and for ev - er.
dim.
p
dim.
ser - vant de - liv - er, For once and for ev - er.
dim.
p
dim.
ser - vant de - liv - er, For once and for ev - - er. . .
dim.
p
dim.
ser - vant de - liv - er, For once and for ev - - er. . .
dim.
p
dim.



pp
dim.
pp
By Thy birth, and by . . Thy Cross, . . . Res - cue him,
p
Res - cue him from end - less
p
. . . By Thy death and bu-ri-al, By . .
pp
. . . Res - cue him, . . .
dolcissimo.
p
cres.
By Thy ris-ing from the tomb, By Thy mounting up a -
dim.
cres.
loss; By Thy death and bu-ri-al, By Thy
dim.
. . . Thy ris - ing, by Thy ris - ing from the tomb, . . .
p
By Thy birth, and by Thy cross, . . By Thy
cres.
sonoramente.



mf
f bove, By the Spi - rit's gra - - - cious love, Save . . him in the
mf
f ris-ing from the tomb, Thy mount - ing up a - bove, Save him in the cres.
mf
f
. . . . . By . . Thy death and bu - - rial, Save him
mf mount - ing up a-bove, By the Spi - rit's gra-cious love, Save him in the
f
p
dim.
espress.
day of doom. . . . From the sins that are p
dim.
day of doom. . . .
p
dim.
p
pp
in . . the day of doom. . . Be gra - cious; Lord, de - dim.
p mf
dim.
pp day of doom. . . . Be mer-ci-ful, . . be gra - cious; Lord, de - dim.
p espress.

past; From all that is e - vil; Thy ser-vant de - liv - er,
espress.
p
From Thy frown and Thine ire From the per - ils, the
- liv - er him, Lord, de - liv - er him; From all that is e - vil; Thy ser-vant de -
- liv - er him, Lord, de - liv - er him; From a - ny com - ply - ing With sin, or de - p
dim.
pp
Lord, de - liv - er him; For
dim.
dim.
pp.
per - ils of dy - ing; Lord, de - liv - er him;
dim
p
dim.
pp
- liv - er, Lord, de - liv - er him, For Lord, de - liv - er him,
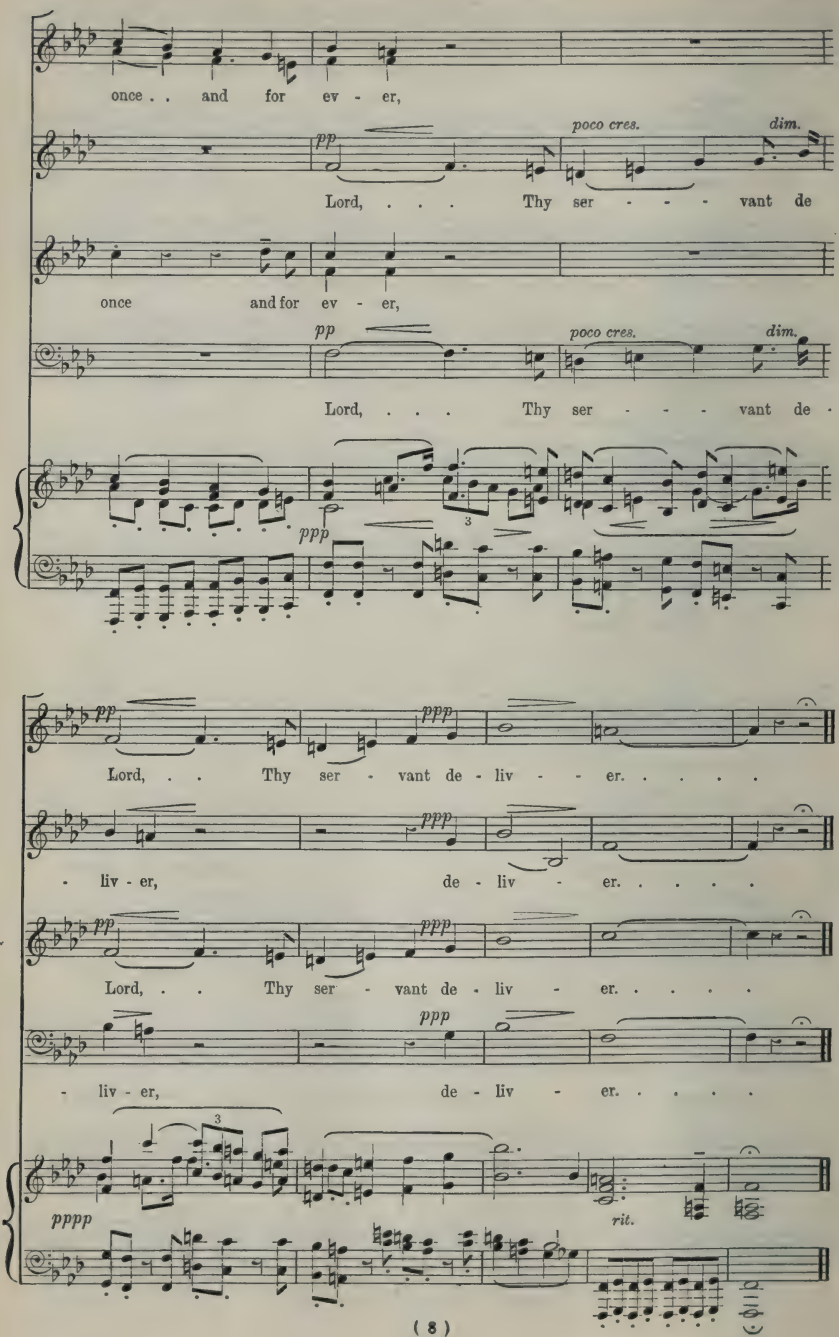
dim.
pp
dim.
- ny - ing his God; Lord, de - liv - er him, Lord, de - liv - er him;



once . . and for ev - er,
pp
poco cres.
dim.
Lord, . . . Thy ser - - - - vant de once and for ev - er,
pp
poco cres.
dim.
Lord, . . . Thy ser - - - - vant de - ppp
3
pp
ppp
Lord, . . Thy ser - vant de - liv - - er. . . . .
ppp
- liv - er, de - liv - er. . . . .
pp
ppp
Lord, . . Thy ser - vant de - liv - er. . . . .
ppp
- liv - er, de - liv - er. . . . .
3 pppp
rit.

As to the later periods, the Professor said :—

It would be waste of time to continue in detail our survey in more modern times. We should not find anything new or even anything in any way satisfactory. Generalities and echoings of the saws of the ancients form the staple pabulum.

It is inexplicably strange that in modern times, and even quite recently, so little has been said about music as an educational power, so infinitely less than in ancient days, when music, compared with what it is at the present day, was in its childhood, and in many respects rudimentary. Then harmony hardly existed at all, the contrapuntal interweaving of parts was undreamt of, the compass of sounds in use very restricted, the executive technique (as proved by the structure of the instruments) insignificant, and even melody and rhythm undeveloped. This last statement will surprise many and shock some, but I cannot stop to prove it. The eminent musician, Gevaërt, an undoubted admirer of ancient Greek music and the weightiest authority on it, describes it thus: 'A melodic design, sober in outline and expression, indicating the general sentiment by some exquisite traits of a supreme simplicity, and accompanied by a small number of harmonic intervals.' Suppose we accept this estimate, the most favourable I conceive to be possible; still, what an immense superiority the music of our time presents in the variety and amount of means, and, consequently, of expressiveness! But the more expressive the art, the greater must be its power of influencing us, not only momentarily, but also permanently, not only by rousing and soothing our emotions, but also by moulding our character. That music has become more and more expressive, especially since the latter part of the 16th century, when accompanied solo song and the musical drama began to be cultivated, is a fact too obvious to stand in need of proof. Not to go farther back, who can doubt the expressiveness and impassioned nature of the music of Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin, and Wagner? Not he who is musical. I repeat it is inexpressibly strange that, with the increase of the power, the recognition of the power has decreased. Instead of hearing of it as a mighty instrument of education, we hear of music only as an elegant accomplishment, by which we can make ourselves agreeable in company, while away weary hours, and keep ourselves out of mischief. Beyond this we hear of nothing that is not extremely vague. There is, for instance, a vague idea that music may have a refining influence, but how it has this is not explained. Even the books and pamphlets written with the object of recommending the study of music in elementary schools, at home, and in conservatoriums, fail to make it clear why they recommend it. You will search in vain in Pestalozzi's and Fröbel's works for a true perception of the powers of the art and an adequate utilisation of them. J. J. Rousseau, a musician as well as a philosopher, one who composed music and wrote on music, forgets the art in his treatise on education, 'Emile, ou de l'Éducation.' And, strangest of all, Herbert Spencer, than whom no one has shown a deeper insight into the nature of music, writes a book on education and hardly alludes to the art that can be made so powerful a factor in it. Moreover, the allusion is solely concerned with æsthetic culture and its pleasures.

It is high time to reconsider the question of the ethical aspects of music, and to examine it earnestly, carefully and thoroughly. What is wanted is not assertions as to the powers of music in this respect, but expositions of their nature and workings. In the next lecture I shall make an attempt at such an exposition, in the hope of thereby rousing the attention and curiosity of educationists and the public.

(To be continued.)

The Birmingham Festival Choral Society (conductor, Dr. G. R. Sinclair) announces the following works for performance during next season :—Verdi's 'Requiem,' Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' Berlioz's 'Faust,' Goring Thomas's 'The Swan and the Skylark,' Leo's 'Dixit Dominus,' Selections from 'Parsifal,' Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' trilogy, and 'The Messiah.'

THE GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

SOME PEEPS INTO THE PAST AND A TIME-TABLE.

The one hundred and seventy-eighth meeting of the Three Choirs of Gloucester, Worcester, and Hereford is this year to be held at Gloucester. How different the conditions to-day as compared with those of long ago! For instance, in 1733, the band consisted of 'French horns, trumpets, German flutes, and a fine treble harp,' probably all made in England. Among the 'female vocal performers' in 1769 was Mrs. Mattocks, 'for many years a well-known comic actress at Covent Garden,' and owing to the expenses of the band (£684 6s. 10d., to be quite exact) in that year 'the Bishop and his coadjutor, Mr. Southwell, were £100 a-piece out of pocket'—a piece of ill-luck. At the next festival (in 1772) there were engaged 'for the first time, to assist the trebles in the chorus, Miss Radcliffe, and others of the celebrated female chorus singers from the North of England.' Were these 'celebrated female chorus singers' an organised body, or only members of various singing societies in the North, probably Lancashire? Perhaps some of our readers can furnish information on this point. In 1817, Mr. Braham sang '"Comfort ye, my people" in a manner so ill befitting the subject, and with such redundancy of false ornament, as to draw upon himself the censure of the critics.' A Miss Cann played a solo on the flute at the meeting of 1826, but 'between the parts.' The performances were held in the Nave of the Cathedral for the first time in 1835, when a quartet, entitled 'Millions of spiritual creatures,' composed expressly for the occasion by S. S. Wesley, then the young organist of Hereford Cathedral, was sung. It was at the Gloucester Festival of 1841 that Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' was first performed in England in its present form. Three years later one of the attractions was John Parry and his inimitable drolleries. He was compelled to repeat a song called 'Matrimony,' and greatly amused his audience by his delivery of 'Miss Harriet and her governess; or, a Young Lady's thoughts on Education.' Coming to later times, we find another Parry—Hubert of that ilk—in the Festival programme of 1868, when that distinguished musician, then a youth in his twenty-first year, came prominently before the public as the composer of an 'Intermezzo Religioso' for orchestra, which he conducted. Six years later (in 1874), Dr. S. S. Wesley presided over the Festival for the last time. This Meeting was made memorable by reason of a sermon preached by Canon (now Bishop) Barry, which threatened the very existence of the Festival. It was eminently characteristic of the composer of 'The Wilderness' that, 'as a practical comment on the tendency of the sermon,' he played the Dead March in Saul!

So much for these glimpses into the past of Gloucester Festival doings. Let us now turn to the near future and give, according to our annual custom, a time-table of the Festival soon to be held on the banks of the Severn.

Time-table of the approaching Gloucester Festival :—

September 8, 10, 11, 12, and 13.

Sunday (September 8).—At 3 p.m.: Special opening Service in the Cathedral. 'Unfinished' Symphony in B minor, Schubert; *Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, B. Luard Selby; *†'Lord, I have loved the habitation of Thy house' (Anthem), John E. West; †Prelude, 'The Dream of Gerontius,' Edward Elgar.

* Composed expressly for the Festival.
† Conducted by the Composer.

Tuesday (September 10).—Morning, at 11.30: Funeral March, Chopin; the National Anthem; 'Elijah,' Mendelssohn.

Evening, at 8: Symphony in C, Mozart; †'A Harvest Song,' C. Lee Williams; 'Last Judgment,' Spohr.

Wednesday (September 11).—Morning, at 11.30: Symphony in C minor, Brahms; Mass in D minor, Cherubini; Organ Concerto in B flat, Handel (Soloist, Dr. G. R. Sinclair); *† Motet (for double choir), 'The righteous live for evermore,' Charles H. Lloyd; †'Idyll' (for orchestra), S. Coleridge-Taylor; †Scene II., Part II., from 'The Rose of Sharon,' A. C. Mackenzie.

Evening, Concert in the Shire Hall, at 8: †Dramatic Scene, 'The forging of the anchor,' J. F. Bridge; *†Symphonic Prelude, 'A song in the morning,' W. H. Bell; †Overture, 'Cockaigne' ('In London Town'), Edward Elgar; *†Orchestral Poem, 'A Phantasy of life and love,' F. H. Cowen; 'The last post,' C. V. Stanford, &c.

Thursday (September 12).—Morning, at 11.30: 'Eroica' Symphony, Beethoven; †'Job,' C. Hubert H. Parry; Requiem, Verdi.

Evening, at 8: *†'Emmaus' (a Biblical scene), A. Herbert Brewer; 'Sleepers, wake' (Cantata), J. S. Bach; 'Hymn of Praise,' Mendelssohn.

Friday (September 13).—Morning, at 11.30: 'Messiah,' Handel.

Choral Service by the Three Choirs on each day of the Festival (except Sunday) at 5 p.m., at which will be sung—Services: Smart in F, Walmisley in D minor, Stainer in E flat, and Tallis in D minor.

Anthems: 'Oh! clap your hands,' Greene; 'O where shall wisdom be found?' Boyce; 'Hosanna,' Gibbons; 'The Wilderness,' Wesley.

PRINCIPAL VOCALISTS.

Madame Albani, Madame Sobrino, Madame Ella Russell, Miss Hilda Wilson, Miss Muriel Foster, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Ben Davies, Mr. William Green, Mr. Andrew Black, Mr. Lane Wilson, and Mr. Plunket Greene.

Principal First Violin—Mr. A. Burnett.
Organists—Dr. G. R. Sinclair and Mr. Ivor A. Atkins.
Conductor—Mr. A. Herbert Brewer.

* Composed expressly for the Festival.
† Conducted by the Composer.

REVIEWS.

Sleepers, Wake! (Wachet auf!). A Church Cantata. By J. S. Bach. Edited by Ebenezer Prout.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

This is 'one of the finest of the one hundred and ninety Church Cantatas of Bach which are in existence.' So Professor Prout tells us in his interesting prefatory note, and who will question his judgment? Let us see what Spitta says about this 'magnificent composition,' as he designates it. After stating that Bach prepared the cantata for the Twenty-seventh Sunday after Trinity, in the year 1731 (November 25), Spitta goes on to say:—

> 'This Sunday, as is well-known, but rarely occurs in the ecclesiastical year; and for this reason, and because of its poetically and mysteriously solemn Gospel, Bach felt himself prompted to compose for it a creation of the very highest order.'

The cantata is founded on the chorale 'Wachet auf, ruft uns die Stimme,' of which both the words of the hymn and its tune are believed to be by Philipp Nicolai (1556-1608). It first appeared (according to Messrs. Cowan and Love's 'The Music of the Church Hymnary') in a book entitled:

> 'Frewden Spiegel des ewigen Lebens.....durch Philippum Nicolai, Franckfurt am Mayn, 1599.'

The tune has become familiar through its use by Mendelssohn in the overture to his oratorio of 'St. Paul,' and later on as a chorus in the same work; moreover, it has found its way into nearly all English hymnals. In the opening chorus of the cantata we find Nicolai's noble tune as a canto fermo in the soprano part, which majestically stands out, like unto a rock, above counterpoint such as only Bach could write. To this melodious chorus succeed a recitative (tenor) and a typical Bach duet for soprano and bass. The second verse of the chorale is then sung by all the tenors to a delightful flowing accompaniment. After another recitative (this time for bass) and duet (again assigned to a soprano and bass), the work concludes with verse 3 of the old tune in its 'unadorned simplicity' and massiveness. As Spitta well observes: 'The splendid melody has here once more an opportunity of producing its effect by its own beauty.' Any further eulogy of this beautiful cantata would be like attempting to gild refined gold. It is only necessary to refer to the English translation by Miss Georgina E. Troutbeck, who, in discharging this important task, has proved herself worthy to tread in the footsteps of her father. As to the pianoforte accompaniment and general editing of the cantata, is it not a sufficient guarantee of excellence merely to say that the work has passed through the hand of so reliable and conscientious an authority as Professor Prout? Unless we are greatly mistaken, many organists and choirmasters, no less than church choirs, will be glad to have their attention called to so characteristic and devotional a work by the Great Cantor as 'Sleepers, wake!'

HARVEST MUSIC.

Look on the Fields. By Charles Macpherson. (Novello's Octavo Anthems.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

'Look on the fields' opens with a twelve-bar introduction for the organ of tranquil character, which admirably prepares the way for the entrance of the voices. Mr. Macpherson has avoided vocal solos, and confined himself to four-part writing for the voices throughout. While these parts are of a flowing and graceful character, they contain some effective contrasts and changes of tonality. A feature of the work is the independence of the accompaniment, which considerably heightens the interest of the composition.

Harvest Praise. Short sacred Cantata for Harvest Festivals. By Percy E. Fletcher.

[Weekes and Co.]

Mr. Fletcher's cantata is designed for tenor and bass soli and chorus with organ or orchestral accompaniment. The words, selected chiefly from the scriptures, include the familiar hymn 'We plough the fields and scatter,' which is set with vigour, and ingenious variety of employment of the sections of the choir. Bright and pleasing music and easy to sing.

SONGS.

Last Night and Love Song. Words by Raymond Warner. Daffadowndilly. Words by Ellen T. Fowler. Music by Garnet Wolseley Cox.

Dream Thoughts. Words by Coleridge. Music by Fred Gostelow.

Sweet Lovers love the Spring. Words by Shakespeare. Music by Harold Jenner.

[Weekes and Co.]

Mr. Wolseley Cox is a young composer whose writings merit attention. The above-mentioned songs from his pen are well laid out for the voice, and the music possesses freshness and earnestness. 'Last Night' and 'Love Song' are designed for baritones. The vocal compass of 'Daffadowndilly' is contained in the octave, and the highest note is E on the treble stave. This is a simple and captivating little song. Mr. Gostelow's 'Dream Thoughts' are extremely pleasing. The music accentuates the significance and poetical suggestiveness of the lines, and the voice part is very melodious. Shakespeare's familiar lines have been allied to sprightly music by Mr. Harold Jenner, and the song will be found easy to sing.

Twenty-five Songs. By Ernest Lavigne.

[Montreal: Sohmer Park.]

The development of music on the other side of the Atlantic is one of the many signs of progress in intellectual pursuits in which true joys are to be found. Mr. Lavigne is one of the most prominent musicians in the city of Montreal, and judging by this collection of songs his reputation has been well earned. Although the settings are unpretentious and simple in design and character, they are very vocal and the music is in thorough sympathy with the text, which has been selected from the best-known modern French poets. 'Vous aimerez demain' and 'Tristesse d'Amour,' words by Armand Silvestre; and 'Absence,' words by Théophile Gautier, are pleasing examples of expressive vocal writing. An English translation is supplied, but the accentuation is very faulty. In the first page the second syllable of the words 'verdant,' 'winter,' 'trembling,' and 'morning,' comes on the first beat of the bar!

CHURCH MUSIC.

Communion Service in C. By John Stainer.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Any composition by the late Sir John Stainer possesses peculiar interest, and the setting of this Communion Service, composed expressly for the choir of St. Paul's Cathedral, where Sir John rendered such faithful and memorable service, attests to his talent and keen sympathy of the spirit of Anglican Church music. The music is set out for first and second sopranos, altos, tenors, and first and second basses, and is for unaccompanied singing. The service includes the Kyrie, Credo, Sanctus, and Gloria in Excelsis, and of these the most important, musically, is the Credo. Its opening phrase expresses the firmness of conviction which should accompany the declaration of belief, and its repetition at the opening of the Gloria in Excelsis is a distinctly happy thought. The Sanctus is very simple and impressive. The first and second basses sing a continuous and flowing counterpoint through the greater part of the number, while the other voices whisper the words 'Holy, holy, Lord God of Hosts.' The conclusion is reached by a finely worked-up climax.

In the Lord put I my trust. By Charles Macpherson.

Wisdom shall praise herself. By John E. West.

Blessed are the pure in heart. By A. Davidson Arnott.

Far from the world, O Lord, and Now sinks the sun. By Horatio W. Parker.

The people that walked in darkness. By Charles F. Bowes.

Thou art gone to the grave. By C. Lee Williams.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The first of this sextet of anthems contains much that testifies to the talent and cultured musicianship of Mr. Charles Macpherson. Dramatic perception restrained by recognition of means appropriate to the Church, and governed by a knowledge of what is effective, are prominent features on every page. The setting of the phrase 'and what hath the righteous done?' which commences fortissimo and ends piano, and the subsequent repetition of the single word 'What?' sung pianissimo to the chord of the relative minor of the preceding harmony, is an instance of the happy expression of the inner meaning of the text which distinguishes the music.

The text of Mr. West's anthem has been selected by Mr. John S. Bumpus, and is of uncommon character, being taken from the twenty-fourth chapter of Ecclesiasticus. It is, however, none the less suitable for musical illustration, and has been set in a simple but effective manner. The familiar Beatitude, 'Blessed are the pure in heart,' has been allied to music of devotional and flowing character by Mr. Arnott, and the anthem merits wide-spread recognition from choirmasters. Attention may be called to the freshness of the final cadence.

The words of 'Far from the world,' are by the poet Cowper, and the naïve lines have been set by Professor Parker to music thoroughly in sympathy with their spirit. The anthem opens with a solo, designed for soprano or tenor, the melody of which is subsequently repeated by the choir in four-part harmony. Afterwards the soloist superimposes a fifth part. The music is not only easy to sing, but grateful to those who sing it. 'Now sinks the sun' is an unaccompanied chorus from Professor Parker's oratorio 'St. Christopher.' The music requires a choir of some magnitude, the parts being occasionally doubled. It also demands well-trained voices, but these essentials being forthcoming, the anthem would be impressive. Mr. Bowes has written in a direct and simple manner that render his anthem well suited to choirs of moderate ability. The soprano solo is melodious, and the final fughetta is bright and vigorous. Mr. Lee Williams's anthem is written 'In Memoriam, South Africa, 1900.' The text is Bishop Heber's well-known hymn, which has been set in simple but expressive fashion that intensifies the significance of the lines.

VIOLIN AND VIOLONCELLO MUSIC.

Reverie. For violin, with pianoforte accompaniment. By M. Fallas Shaw.

Elegie. By H. Waldo Warner. Transcribed for violoncello by Tennyson Werg.

Cradle Song. For violin, with piano accompaniment. By W. H. Bell.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Mr. Shaw has written a charming little solo for the violin, with an interesting musicianly accompaniment. Mr. Warner's 'Elegie' is even more beautiful for the 'cello than the violin, and Mr. Bell's Cradle Song is a very pleasing solo.

Consolation. Pour Violoncelle avec accompagnement de Piano. By W. H. Squire.

[Bosworth and Co.]

Ah! Moon of my delight. Recit. and Air. Transcribed for violin, with piano accompaniment. By Liza Lehmann.

[Metzler and Co.]

The first of these two pieces is effectively written for the instrument and of moderate difficulty, and will find many admirers. The second is a very excellent transcription of one of the most beautiful numbers in the fascinating song-cycle 'In a Persian Garden.'

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

'MIGNON.'

The enterprise of the management of the Royal Academy of Music in engaging a theatre for the performance of their students is to be highly commended. The advantage of environment to young artists is invaluable, and much experience is to be gained by appearing in a modern theatre. At the first of the two performances of the opera of 'Mignon' at the Globe Theatre on the 16th and 17th ult., the name-part was interpreted with much charm by Miss Ida Mann, who possesses a rich-toned mezzo-soprano voice, in addition to considerable dramatic perception and admirable clearness of articulation—qualities which should enable her to become an acceptable artist. The character of Filina was sustained by Miss Lilian Kent, whose most successful achievement was the neatness with which she executed the florid passages which abound in this part. The hero, Wilhelm, was personated by Mr. Edward F. Barrow, who, although he has a tenor voice of pleasing quality, especially in the upper register, has yet much to learn. Mr. Charles Thompson showed histrionic aptitude as Laertes, and the other characters were efficiently sustained by Miss Daisy Drewe, Miss Jennie Bateman and Messrs. George Clowser, Henry Rojas, Walter Monck, and Harold R. Hammond.

At the second performance the heroine was impersonated by Miss Edith Hensler, who gave proof, especially in the latter scenes, of much intelligence and dramatic perception. The part of Filina was sung by Miss Wheeler with confidence. Mr. Ernest Torrence merits special mention for his admirable embodiment of Lothario, and Miss Mary Price Owen, as Frederick, may be complimented on her acting and her fencing; she also sang well. The remainder of the cast was the same as on the preceding evening. The choruses were brightly and intelligently sung, and the orchestra, although somewhat inclined to overpower the voices in forte passages, played meritoriously under the direction of Mr. G. H. Betjemann.

A new 'Fantasie Brillante' in E minor for violin, by Mr. W. W. Reed, was a prominent feature of the concert given by the students of the Royal Academy of Music, on the 19th ult., at St. James's Hall. The first of its three movements is the best. This is fluently-written and pleasing music. The work was effectively rendered by the composer. Much cleverness was apparent in the settings, by Miss Mary Burgess, of three short poems by Browning, and they were well sung by Miss Jessie Stewart. The singing of Miss Isabel Reaney and Miss Eleanor Coward also possessed praiseworthy features. Mr. Anderson Nicol rendered Lassen's 'Stars of the Summer night' with taste and refinement, and the violin obbligato was neatly played by Miss Irene Penso. Miss Phœbe Jay and Mr. E. Yorke Bowen played the pianoforte creditably, the former being heard in Brahms's Scherzo (Op. 4) and the latter in Chopin's Ballade in F minor. Much brilliancy distinguished the interpretation of Wieniawski's Variations in A by Mr. Spencer Dyke, and Miss Marjorie Hayward, in Mozart's Violin Sonata in E minor, showed that she is making satisfactory progress. The programme also contained Arensky's Trio in D minor, in which the Misses G. Law, M. Sutton, and E. Pettit took part with commendable results, and two movements from Schütt's Serenade in D, which were interpreted by the ensemble class, under the direction of M. Emile Sauret.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Excellence, of high-water mark attainment, has become a tradition of Royal College performances. The orchestral concert given in the beautiful and acoustically-perfect new concert hall of the Institution, on the 23rd ult., was especially good—in fact, a spring tide of excellence. The orchestra played the ever-welcome Figaro Overture and Tschaïkowsky's Suite for orchestra in G (No. 3, Op. 55), with good tone, artistic phrasing, remarkable precision, and wonderful verve. How enthusiastically those young people played! Not as a matter of routine duty only, but as though their hearts were in their work. Happy period of youth! The soloists — Alice Turner and Norman Ridley (vocalists), Tom Morris (violin), and William H. Harris (organ)—gave evidence of admirable training grafted on to natural talent. This most enjoyable music-making concluded with a fine performance of Sir Hubert Parry's Ode to Music, composed for the opening of the new College Hall and 'repeated by special desire.' The genial Director of the College was most enthusiastically received by students and audience alike on coming forward to conduct his expressive music. The remainder of the concert was ably conducted by Professor Villiers Stanford.

OPERA AT COVENT GARDEN.

LALO'S 'LE ROI D'YS.'

Thirteen long years have passed since Lalo's 'Le Roi d'Ys' was produced at the Opéra Comique, Paris. Though it has been performed at Brussels, and even at Rome, it was only given here, for the first time, on Wednesday evening, July 17. The composer's name, however, has long been familiar to us; the clever, brilliant 'Symphonie Espagnole,' introduced by Sarasate in 1878, and the 'Rhapsodie Norvègienne' are established favourites here. In Paris, Lalo's instrumental music is held in high esteem, and for good reason, seeing that it displays both skill and charm. But he was ambitious, and sought reputation at the theatre, and not only sought but found it; his opera proved successful, and among modern French operas holds an honourable place. Brittany is fertile in legendary lore, and the libretto of this opera, written by Edouard Blau, is based on the well-known story of the city swallowed up by the sea; although on the stage this final calamity is averted. Margared and Rozenn, the two daughters of the King of Ys, are both enamoured of the brave general Mylio; report of his death is spread, and Margared is induced to accept as a pledge of peace the hand of Prince Karnac, who has defeated Mylio. Mylio, however, returns unexpectedly, the maiden withdraws from her promise, and the first act ends with the sudden breaking-off of the peace negotiations. In the second act we have the return of Mylio, who now, in his turn, has vanquished Karnac, and receives as reward the fair Rozenn to wife. Karnac, and Margared who in the former sees an instrument to carry out her revenge, plot to flood and destroy the city. In the third and last act, Margared atones for her guilt by seeking death in the advancing waves, which now retreat, for justice has been accomplished.

In comparison with the rant of much modern Italian opera the music of 'Le Roi d'Ys' sounds tame. Yet, however it may fail to satisfy either Teuton or Italian, there is very much to admire in it; skill, freedom both from the Scylla of affectation and the Charybdis of commonplace, graceful melodies and excellent orchestration. The choruses at the opening of the first act, in their quaintness of melody and piquancy of rhythm are charming, and still more engaging is the wedding chorus at the commencement of Act 3, which, together with the flood sensation at the close, goes far to explain the favour which the work has met with in Paris. With regard to the performance we must be brief. Mdlle. Paquot and Madame Suzanne Adams impersonated the two sisters, Margared and Rozenn respectively—the former made a highly favourable début, both as a vocalist and actress; the latter sang the tender music assigned to her with purity and charm. MM. Jerome (Mylio), Seveilhac (Karnac), Plançon (the King of Ys), rendered able service. The opera was energetically conducted by M. Flon.

Among other events during the past month we may specially mention the performance of 'Carmen,' with Madame Calvé in the title-rôle; and Mr. De Lara's 'Messaline,' produced two seasons ago.

MR. FRED. E. WEATHERLY ON THIRTY-THREE YEARS OF SONG-WRITING.

Such was the theme upon which the popular song-writer pleasantly discoursed at Steinway Hall, on the 6th ult. Everyone knows Mr. Weatherly as the author of 'The Holy City,' 'They all love Jack,' 'The Children's Home,' 'Darby and Joan,' and a host of songs that have become favourites in the concert-room and in the drawing-room. He has written words of songs that are true to human nature, that are sentimental without being maudlin and mawkish, patriotic without being tainted with Jingoism—in short, songs that can be sung without making the singer appear ridiculous, as does the lady of fifteen stone when she warbles 'I'd be a butterfly.' He spoke of the importance of the first line in arresting the attention of the audience. (How true this is of all literary work!) For instance:

> They played in their beautiful garden,
> The children of high degree.

In that opening sentence the picture was before the listener, and the rest of the song would take care of itself. 'London Bridge' was a descriptive song of another type, dealing with classes, not with individuals, and was an example of the music having been written before the words. Molloy and Weatherly were in London together, when the composer gave the tune in a cab. 'What does it suggest to you?' he asked. 'It is the motion of people going over the bridge,' was the reply. 'Well, then, why not call it "London Bridge"?' And so it came to pass that the words and music were put together, though Molloy was careful to admit that the melody was that of an old Somerset folk-song. And so Mr. Weatherly chatted on to the delight of his audience. Some 'Nancy Lee' anecdotes must be quoted. No less than seventeen men took it to sing at one smoking concert; Punch had a picture of an organ-grinder stamping upon his organ, and saying to it, with a look of delight upon his face, 'You shall play that "Nancy Lee" no more'; a lady asked Mr. Weatherly if it was true he had written the song when at sea. 'Oh, yes,' said he, 'I wrote it sitting astride a bowsprit, bounding over the briny billow, with a fountain pen on an author's hairless patent paper pad!' 'Did you, really?' asked the fair one. 'Yes—nearly,' replied Mr. Weatherly, with a merry twinkle in his eye.

The lecture was capitally illustrated by Mrs. Ernest Newton, Miss Florence Bulleid, Mr. Jack Robertson, Mr. H. Lane Wilson, and Mr. Maurice Farkoa. Mr. Ernest Newton accompanied.

THE INCORPORATED STAFF-SIGHT-SINGING COLLEGE.

Under the presidency of Dr. W. H. Cummings the annual general meeting of the College was held at the Guildhall School of Music on the 13th ult.

According to the annual report read at the meeting a steady increase of membership, and a gradually widening sphere of work, continue to attend the progress of the College. Feeling reference was made to the death of its first patron—Sir John Stainer—which was thought to be peculiarly appropriate, as the Incorporated Staff-Sight-Singing College owes its inception to that much-lamented musician, Sir John having drafted the first prospectus with his own hand.

A summary of the examinations showed that the number of certificates granted during the year has risen to 241; and, among many items of interest referred to, were the rapidly increasing circulation of the 'Manual of Sight-Singing,' and to the large number of enquiries constantly received from many places abroad.

Thanks were accorded to the President, Dr. W. H. Cummings, as well as to Dr. Warwick Jordan, honorary treasurer, and Dr. Hamilton Robinson, honorary secretary.

The report concluded with a brief reference to the satisfactory financial condition of the College, resulting from the fact that the whole of the work up to the present time has been carried on by the various officers con amore, which was strictly according to the original plan of the late Sir John Stainer in regard to the early days of the College; and an appeal was made to all music lovers to assist (in one or more of various ways indicated) a work which no true musician could regard with indifference.

TWO CATHEDRAL FESTIVALS.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

PETERBOROUGH.

There are some who entertain conscientious objections to musical festivals in cathedrals. Their scruples deserve respect, but surely they hardly realise how well fitted to such a purpose are the spacious naves of our cathedrals, to which it would be difficult to assign a function more appropriate than the performance of sacred music on a large scale. This sense of fitness is intensified at Peterborough, where the Norman nave lends itself so well to music. Acoustically I know of no building, whether church or concert-room, that surpasses it, for it reconciles the usually conflicting qualities of resonance, of general effect and distinctness of detail in a remarkable fashion. The triennial festival that took place on Thursday, June 27, was excellent and enjoyable so far as it went, and indeed it might be said that its worst fault was the negative one that there was not enough of it. In a one-day festival, where the whole programme has to be rehearsed in the forenoon, and this is the sole occasion on which band, chorus, and principals meet, it is obviously necessary to confine the choice of music to very strict limits, so that it is no doubt unreasonable to look for much that is not hackneyed. On this occasion 'Elijah' occupied the afternoon performance, while in the evening Mozart's G minor Symphony and Spohr's 'Last Judgment' were given. By way of not seeming to neglect native art, a less familiar thing was introduced in the shape of Sir Frederick Bridge's 'Cradle of Christ,' a short choral work originally produced at the Hereford Festival of 1894.

For this Peterborough Festival, Dr. Haydn Keeton, organist of the Cathedral, who conducted, had got together a chorus of about 240 voices from the choral societies of Peterborough, Lincoln, Leicester, Northampton, Market Harborough, and Kettering. It was a well-trained, intelligent, and zealous body. The volume of tone it produced was, thanks no doubt in some measure to the resonance of the building, greater than might have been expected from its numbers. At Leeds, for example, where voices are stronger than in the Eastern Counties, the festival takes place in a much smaller building than the Peterborough nave, and the chorus is about 350 strong, so that choral effects are necessarily much more overpowering; yet it could by no means be said that at Peterborough the chorus was ever unequal to its task, while the brightness of the voices, especially the sopranos, was very noteworthy. The orchestra, consisting chiefly of London and Birmingham players, with Mr. W. H. Eayres as leader, was thoroughly efficient, and played the Mozart Symphony—which was in every sense the gem of the festival—with the pleasantest effect. Dr. Keeton's reading might, perhaps, have been a trifle more vocal and sympathetic in phrasing and the like, but he did as much as could reasonably be expected with a single hurried rehearsal, and with what, in spite of the ability of its individual members, was essentially a 'scratch' band. The choral works had justice done to them, though in Mendelssohn's music Dr. Keeton more than once showed a slight inclination to force the pace. The principals were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Muriel Foster, Miss Edith Phillips (a local contralto), Mr. Branscombe, and Mr. David Hughes; and minor parts were taken by Master Bradbury, Mrs. Stott, Mr. Clarke, and Mr. Smith. The organ part, which, though not indispensable, is so potent for good or evil in association with an orchestra, was taken with thoroughly artistic restraint and taste by Dr. G. J. Bennett, organist of Lincoln Cathedral.

RIPON.

The North-Eastern Cathedral Choirs of York, Durham, Ripon, and Wakefield are in the habit of meeting year by year in one or other of the three older Cathedrals, and holding a service on festival scale. This year it was the turn of Ripon, where the meeting took place on the 10th ult. The chief feature of the musical part of the service was the famous Te Deum which Handel composed—or should one say 'compiled'?—to celebrate the Victory of Dettingen. No matter, however, whence its source, the forcible, sturdy, masculine music sounded well in the Cathedral, and was very efficiently sung, especially when the small amount of preparation that was possible is considered. One is tired of having to make allowances on this score, and it points infallibly to the weak spot of all our music on a large scale that it should nearly always be necessary to do so. However, this may be said for Ripon: it is a small city, not in a populous district, and it need not be ashamed of having to collect the greater part of its forces from afar when Birmingham and Leeds do no better, but recruit their orchestras from London and Manchester. At Ripon a string orchestra was, for the second time, employed together with the organ, and here a distinct advance was noticeable, the players being not only more numerous and more efficient, but much more advantageously placed, a raised platform having been constructed for them. The position of singers and players on the level of the nave floor without platform or sound board, has hitherto been very detrimental to the effect of the music at all these festivals, and the example of Ripon is greatly to be commended. On this occasion the band played, as an opening voluntary, some of Grieg's Elegiac Melodies (Op. 34), which were effective, and not noticeably inappropriate. The canticles were Berthold Tours's setting of the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, and the organists of York, Durham, and Ripon appeared in the service paper as the composers of a hymn-tune, some chants, and an Amen respectively, while they, with the Wakefield organist, divided among them the duties of organist and conductor, though Dr. Crow, of Ripon, was of course primarily responsible for the musical arrangements.

EDUCATIONAL MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

The results of the annual examinations, in connection with the faculty of music in the Owens College in Manchester, are increasingly successful and satisfactory. It will be remembered that the course of study designed by Dr. Hiles, and carried on under his able and diligent supervision, demands from the aspirants for the degrees of the Victoria University the executive ability of a skilled performer, as well as an advanced knowledge of the principles, grammar, and construction of music. In addition to pursuing the prescribed three-years' course of study for the acquirement of an adequate knowledge of harmony, counterpoint, and orchestration, every candidate must show technical aptitude for the interpretation of classical works; he (or she) must study part-writing from an ancient as well as in accordance with the modern point of view, and, in fact, must be an all-round musician, familiar with orchestral and choral masterpieces.

The affiliation to the Owens College of the adjoining College of Music, so ably presided over by Mr. Adolph Brodsky, participation in the fortnightly concerts and open practices there given, free admission to the rehearsals of the Hallé orchestra held under Dr. Richter's direction, with unusual privileges of admission to the weekly subscription concerts held under him, and to the chamber music recitals given by the Brodsky quartet party—all these advantages enable the candidates for scholarships and degrees to acquire such an intimate acquaintance with all styles of music, as is beyond the reach of almost all other aspirants.

As a result of the Owens College session just concluded, among the two hundred or more degrees conferred in Arts and Science on Saturday, June 29, by Earl Spencer, K.G. (High Chancellor of Victoria University), two of Dr. Hiles's students graduated as Doctors and two as Bachelors of Music. Both the recipients of the higher degree—Mr. John C. Bradshaw, of Scarborough, and Mr. Thomas Keighley, of Stalybridge—were previously distinguished as Fellows of the Royal College of Organists, Licentiates of the Royal Academy of Music, and as Associates of the Royal College of Music, both of London and of Manchester. The new Bachelors—Mr. Edward Isaacs, well-known for his pianoforte performances at the Royal College of Music (Manchester), and Miss E. Boughey—have diligently pursued their technical training in that Institution under the care of Miss Olga Neruda, and have produced orchestral and choral motets that have satisfied all the requirements of the University. The requirements for the Doctorate include the composition of a symphonic movement, a choral work of more than 120 bars of complicated eight-part counterpoint; and, in the examination room, the writing of an orchestral scherzo, the working-out section of a string quartet, a set of six variations for various orchestral combinations, and sundry academic exercises in various contrapuntal patterns. Following Sir F. Bridge and the lamented Dr. Swinnerton Heap, Dr. Harding (of Bradford) is now the external examiner. Thus is insured to the Victorian Graduates a modernity of qualification which ought to satisfactorily conduce to a completeness of equipment which must be gratifying to the most ardent advocate of reform, as well as to the most conservative adherent to ancient principles.

Excellent work is being done at the Royal College of Music, Manchester. On four consecutive evenings the effects of the year's training in all departments were exhibited, and much young talent has been brought forward at the fortnightly practices open to the public. Especially rich will the College be during the coming winter in the instrumental sections, for both the Principal (Mr. Brodsky) and Mr. Rawdon Briggs have several violin pupils full of promise, while Mr. Carl Fuchs has at least a brace of young 'cellists who already play with something of the spirit of mature artists. Mr. Dayas and Miss Olga Neruda will be by no means behind in their contributions. The orchestra, under the immediate direction of Mr. Brodsky, is constantly advancing in skill, and will shortly be almost independent of outside aid, even in the wood-wind ranks. Altogether the College is in a most flourishing condition, with full assurance of success.

THE HEIDELBERG FESTIVAL.

(By our Special Correspondent in Berlin.)

Amongst the numerous musical festivals which are held annually in Germany after the expiration of the regular musical season, it is necessary to distinguish between two classes. There are those which have for their principal object the performance, under specially favourable conditions, of a number of familiar and cherished masterpieces. On the other hand there are those intended to keep their audience en rapport with the artistic doings of contemporary musicians and the relative progress in the different branches of the art represented by their works. Chief amongst those upholding the latter principle—and indeed bound by its statutes to do so—is the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik-Verein, or Representative German Musical Association. This Institution—founded, at the Initiative of Franz Liszt, towards the end of the fifties in the just-completed century—set itself the task of rendering every possible assistance to its members with a view to obtaining a public hearing for their works. It was then a time of complete artistic intolerance. Musical development was looked upon in authoritative quarters in Germany as having reached its final possibilities with Mendelssohn and—as some might concede—with Schumann. Hence all strivings after new forms and modes of expression, and a corresponding infusion of fresh artistic contents, were branded by the dominant orthodox party as a dangerous schism, inimical to the sacred traditions of the classical period, and of the romantic school which followed immediately upon it. From Weimar the signal was given for an energetic protest against such pretended dictatorship in the domain of artistic creativeness. It was Liszt who became the central figure round which gathered the musicians of a younger generation, animated by a common desire to breathe an atmosphere of freedom from the fetters which it was sought to impose upon the manifestations of their art. And their united protest against this autocratic and self-complacent attitude on the part of the leading concert institutions and their directors, eventually assumed a tangible form in the foundation of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik-Verein. Small wonder, then, if in thus placing itself openly in avowed opposition to the prevailing academical conceptions of musical art and art-cultivation, the 'neo-German' school forthwith encountered the derisive jeers and sarcasms of the majority in power. This opprobrium, however, the young and militant society little regarded. Eloquent of utterance, both spoken and printed, and backed up by substantial deeds, it persistently upheld its new ideals, until at length victory was assured. Who, it may be asked, is there to-day cares about these worthies, who so assiduously strove to stem the current of new ideas; who fain would have invoked the authority of the State for the compulsory adoption of a strictly circumscribed art conception? They are, in fact, almost completely forgotten, along with their works, immoderately lauded though these were by their contemporaries. Those, on the other hand, whose supposed spurious and flickering light it was thought such an easy matter to extinguish, have stepped into their place, and a new art has arisen which, both on the operatic stage and in the concert-room, has gained the ear of the world.

For the second time in its history, the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik-Verein (which, it should be said, in rightful recognition of the cosmopolitan character of all truly artistic aims, has enrolled among its members musicians of diverse nationalities) is being called upon to raise on high the banner of free progress in the art. As it had been its privilege once to espouse the cause of the great triumvirate of Berlioz—Liszt—Wagner as the originators of a new art development, so it is now specially concerned in lending its support, by all the means at its disposal, to the younger school of composers which the creative productions of these three great masters have called into existence. This principle asserted itself emphatically on the occasion of the thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Society, which was held this year from 1st to the 4th of June at Heidelberg. Although not all the works produced in the five concerts given in connection with this great gathering of musicians could be described as absolute novelties; yet, with but few exceptions, they were imbued with the progressive spirit which characterises the most modern movement in the art. Richard Strauss—foremost champion in the stress and strife as he undoubtedly is—was, of course, represented in the programmes with more than one of his works, viz., the prelude and an important fragment from his music-drama 'Guntram,' two vocal pieces for baritone and orchestra, and several songs, with pianoforte accompaniment. Strauss certainly is of all the moderns the boldest. His daring in regard to harmonic combinations, in the blending of orchestral colours and the polyphonous treatment of the orchestra surpasses everything with which former composers have made us acquainted. Nor does he make use of his stupendous technical mastery otherwise than as a means to an end, inasmuch as it enables him to widen the sphere of expressiveness in music. Nevertheless, great and beautiful as many of his achievements are, it cannot be denied that his imaginative flights not unfrequently carry him beyond the boundary line within the limits of which music, as an art, must, from its very nature, be confined. Not everything which can be represented by the word of the poet, the brush of the painter, or the chisel of the sculptor, may also be delineated in tonal language. And though it may be readily conceded that music may be able to indicate certain phenomena of real life, their detailed presentment must ever be reserved to the plastic and graphic arts or that of word-poetry. We may, it is true, look upon much in Richard Strauss's compositions as misapplied art (though who shall say that a coming generation will not judge differently?), yet at the same time one must admit that even these aberrations are undoubtedly indicative of the eminently gifted mind of an artist who commands the resources of his art to an altogether exceptional degree. This enormous power is apt to reconcile us to many an extravagance committed by the composer in his endeavours to fully realise his conceptions.

A worthy companion of Strauss in the vanguard of the musical 'forwards' is Max Schillings, a young composer, who has already acquired a certain transparency and grandeur of style. His symphonic prologue to 'König Œdipus,' notwithstanding its lengthiness, made a profound impression. Siegmund von Hausegger also has distinguished talent, and his 'Dyonisische Fantasie,' for full orchestra (albeit not free from a want of restraint both as regards form and the use of orchestral resources), shows considerable inventive power and an honest striving after truthful expression from which much may be hoped in the future. A scherzo entitled 'Junker Uebermuth' by Otto Naumann, a pupil of Richard Strauss, likewise obtained a hearing. The piece, which is clearly modelled upon his master's 'Till Eulenspiegel,' shows the young composer's unquestionable talent to be as yet in a state of immaturity.

In the performance of two orchestral legends—'Der Schwan von Tuonela,' and 'Die Heimkehr Lemminkäinens,' both scenes from the Finnish folk-epic 'Kalevala,' by Jean Sibelius, a native of Finland—the audience were introduced to a true tone poet and an equally expert musician. The two little pieces are veritable gems, intensely fascinating in their descriptive moods and highly characteristic invention. The Czechish composer, Josef Suk, the excellent second violin of the Bohemian Quartet, was represented in the programme by an orchestral suite, in four movements, 'Ein Märchen,' originally written by him for a dramatised fairy tale, showing considerable ability, and in which the national element, though distinctly in evidence, does not become obtrusive. A folk-dance, the second part of the suite, more particularly produced a most charming effect. Engelbert Humperdinck's 'Mauresque Rhapsody' and Xaver Scharwenka's smoothly and effectively written pianoforte concerto in C sharp minor, had an almost strange appearance, framed, as they were on the present occasion, in the productions emanating from an ultra-advanced school. They appeared to appertain to a period far remote from that in which they were actually written. A similar experience was occasioned by Lalo's violin concerto, superbly played by M. Jacques Thibaud. The song interpretations were limited to some few numbers by Thuille, Strauss, Sommer, Kahn, Hugo Wolf, and Liszt, ably rendered by Mesdames Beines, Blyenburg, and Noordewier-Reddingius.

In the chamber music concert, which was principally in the hands of the Bohemian quartet party, highly finished interpretations were given of a very interesting, spiritual, and distinctly 'modern' quartet from the pen of the Russian composer, Tanajeff, and of Beethoven's quartet in E flat major, Op. 127. Here again, in the presence of this great assemblage of professional musicians, the triumph achieved by the truly magnificent playing of the Bohemian artists was complete.

An excellent performance was given of the 'Weihnachts Mysterium,' by the gifted conductor of the festival, Phillip Wolfrum. The extremely interesting and effective use made of the old ecclesiastical Volkslied, together with its essentially modern scoring, render the work a truly remarkable one, and it produced a correspondingly marked impression. That the name of Franz Liszt should occupy a prominent place in the programmes was but just. His 'Bergsymphonie,' a work replete with glowing imagination, his 'Sonnengesang des heiligen Franciscus,' for baritone solo, male choir, orchestra, and organ, filled with deepest feeling and pious sentiment, as well as the brilliant and stately 'Krönungs Messe,' bore witness to the versatility of his genius. Great technical mastery and characteristic invention were the distinctive features of a fantasia and fugue on B.A.C.H, by Max Reger, a highly gifted young artist. It was followed by the marvellously fine solo-cantata for a bass voice, with the accompaniment of orchestra and organ, 'Ich will den Kreuzstab gerne tragen,' by the great 'Zukunfts Musiker,' Johann Sebastian Bach himself, the interpretation of which by Johannes Messchaert was in every respect a masterly one. Thus it will be seen that the festival performances, which opened with an organ concerto, with orchestra, by Rheinberger, and concluded with Wagner's 'Kaisermarsch,' did not lack variety; and it is satisfactory to be able to add that the execution of the different works was not only in every way worthy of the occasion, but created the best possible impression upon the minds of all who assisted at the festival.

Otto Lessmann.

THE SECOND SWISS MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

(By our Special Correspondent in Berlin.)

With objects in view somewhat similar to those pursued by the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik-Verein—the advancement, namely, of the artistic and material welfare of its members—a society was formed some years ago by the musicians of Switzerland. There is, however, one element in the constitution of the latter wherein it differs materially from the much older German institution, and that is its exclusively national character. The German Musik-Verein, by its admission to membership and to the privilege of having their works produced under its auspices, of musicians of all nationalities, not only recognised the cosmopolitan claims of all art manifestations, but has thereby considerably enlarged the sphere of its influence. Moreover, in so doing, it has secured to its native members the satisfaction and the advantage of constantly remaining in touch with the musical life of other nations. Thus, it numbers amongst its adherents Russians, Scandinavians, Frenchmen, Italians, Englishmen, Americans, Czechs, Hungarians—all of them more or less distinguished representatives of countries where the art of music is extensively cultivated.

The Association of Swiss Musicians, on the other hand, appeals to the patriotism of its members. It calls upon them, who have been content hitherto to follow the lead of other nations, to create a distinctly national art for Switzerland, by impregnating their artistic creations with the spirit of the melodies which are to be heard on their mountains, and which have been handed down by the people from generation to generation. Hence the Society admits only Swiss musicians to its membership, and compositions of Swiss origin only have been allowed in the programmes of the two musical festivals which have so far been held. Whether it is possible to develop a national art in a population which thinks and feels either wholly in a German, or wholly in a French, and partly also in an Italian way, remains to be seen. At all events, the amicable inter-communion, even on linguistic grounds, on the part of these diversified elements, would seem to justify the hope that the ideals of Swiss musicians may be eventually realised. Meanwhile all the efforts made in this direction are worthy of our sympathy.

That there is no lack of musicians who are ready to contribute their share to this national undertaking, has been fully demonstrated by the programmes of both the first and the second musical festivals organised by the Society in question. On the other hand, the fact cannot have escaped the notice of the impartial observer, that but few of these have proved themselves, by their works, to be really qualified for such a task. I do not consider it necessary to refer in detail to the four concerts which took place in connection with the second Swiss Musical Festival, held from the 22nd to the 24th of June, at Geneva, when so much of the music presented to the audience was of a mediocre or immature kind. On the whole, however, it must be admitted that there has been no want of diligent application on the part of Swiss musicians for the acquisition of such knowledge as may be gathered from the best models. Even in works whose musical contents were insignificant enough, it was evident that their composers had studied form and modes of expression in music assiduously and to some purpose. The influence of the great masters, particularly those of Germany, was apparent in all the works produced; and those of the Romantic School, more especially, seem to have drawn the younger generation of Swiss musicians within their magic circle. But only a few amongst them have as yet succeeded in so far inwardly digesting their acquired knowledge and artistic experience as to be able to produce individualised works of their own. I believe that in referring to Gustav Weber, E. Jacques Dalcroze, Joseph Lauber, and Friedrich Klose, I have named those artists who are best qualified to assist in the building up of the national monument desired by the musicians of Switzerland.

Unfortunately for the cause, and that of music generally, the first-named and highly-gifted musician, Gustav Weber, is no longer amongst the living workers, he having died young. A pianoforte sonata from his pen, interpreted on the occasion by Herr Robert Freund, and other chamber compositions bear witness to an ability far above the average. The sonata was written presumably in the early part of the seventies, and if so, one cannot fail to be greatly struck by the similarity of its style to that of the early chamber works of Brahms. Swiss musical art has certainly lost a truly representative musician in Gustav Weber. At the previous musical festival, in Zürich, marked attention had already been drawn to Jacques Dalcroze, and in the present instance this was the case to an even greater degree. In a string quartet in E major, capitally played by the Marteau quartet party, the composer introduced to our notice, a spirited and finely modelled work, in which both serious and humorous moods are most ably and artistically represented. It presents many difficulties of execution, the last movement especially with its constant rhythmical changes, making considerable demands upon the skill of the interpreters. A violin concerto by the same composer, albeit an intellectual composition and interesting in its contents, made a rather exorbitant demand upon the attention of the hearers on account of undue length. The work, which will gain in effect by curtailment, is, in reality, a series of three rhapsodies for orchestra and violin solo, the latter, although having its full share of the thematic treatment of the leading ideas, being considerably restricted in its virtuosic ascendency by the symphonic treatment of the orchestra. The solo part was superbly rendered by M. Henri Marteau, who intends including the concerto in his concert programmes during next season, when it will have an opportunity of being judged by audiences of various tastes and predilections. A third number in the programme, from the same pen, viz., a highly effective and warmly-coloured lyrical scene, 'La Mort du Printemps,' for solo soprano and orchestra, found in Madame Nina Faliero-Dalcroze, the wife of the composer, a very charming and vocally gifted interpreter. In Jacques Dalcroze's artistic individuality are blended the idiosyncrasies of three nations. Born in England, he pursued his studies in Germany, and lives and works in Switzerland, French being his mother tongue. He is a musician endowed with great natural gifts, who has learned much and introspected not a little, who looks upon life with the eyes of an artist, the result being an artistic individuality of essentially modern proclivities. Joseph Lauber, too, is a composer of unquestionable ability, although the works by him, brought out at the present festival, have not entirely justified the expectations raised by the performance last year at Zurich of a very interesting and characteristic quintet. These were a pianoforte concerto—played with great technical mastery by the festival conductor, Herr Willy Rehberg—and a sestet for pianoforte and stringed instruments, both exhibiting much thought and many ingenious traits in the thematic elaboration, which latter, however, did not appear to me to have been sufficiently clarified in the mind of the composer; there was too great a tendency to over-elaboration for the thoughtful contents to be fully appreciated by the hearer. In the motet, 'Vidi aquam,' for chorus, organ, and orchestra, by F. Klose, we were made acquainted with a work of an essentially modern type, lofty in conception, well developed in form, and highly effective in its vocal and orchestral scoring. An oratorio, 'Les sept paroles du Christ,' for solo voices, chorus, organ, and orchestra, by Gustave Doret, also deserves to be honourably mentioned. It is the work of a distinctly talented and earnest musician, in which, however, the means employed are but too frequently calculated to produce a merely superficial effect. An excellent and truly musicianlike work was the 'Chaconne' for organ, on the name of Bach, by which the distinguished organist of the Cathedral of Geneva, Otto Barblan, was represented, in his capacity as a composer, at the festival.

Interesting and, in part, remarkable vocal compositions were contributed by Pierre Maurice, E. Combe, F. Niggli, and Edgar Munzinger; a song-cycle, entitled 'Eine Lenzfahrt,' from the pen of the last-named being particularly admired. Other compositions worthy of mention were an artistically conceived and ably constructed sonata for violoncello and pianoforte, by Hans Huber, a humorous and well worked out fantasia, in overture form, on the German Volkslied, 'Freut euch des Lebens,' by Aloys Obrist, and a symphony, for full orchestra, by V. Andreae, the work of respectable, but as yet immature talent. As for the quantity of other pieces making up the different concert-programmes, they were really out of place at a festival intended to furnish a criterion of the status of musical art in Switzerland. Swiss composers will be well advised in first thoroughly pondering and practically utilising the experiences gained at the two festivals before proceeding with the organisation of a third. Let them nevertheless take heart of grace in looking towards the future and in continuing to exercise their powers in the elaboration of serious art-works. And when the time for another festival comes round, let them bestow far greater care than has been the case hitherto in the selection of the works to be produced, even though programmes should thereby become materially shortened.

Otto Lessmann.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS, &c.

M. Paderewski's second pianoforte recital took place on the 2nd ult., and merits, from the position he holds, some detailed notice. His interpretation of Schumann's Etudes Symphoniques was objective rather than subjective, but it was powerful and fervid. A magnificent reading was given of Beethoven's Sonata in C minor (Op. 111) and of Chopin's Ballade in F (Op. 38); the same composer's Polonaise in F sharp minor (Op. 44) was marred by exaggeration. The rendering of Liszt's arrangement of Schubert's 'Erl König' was not altogether satisfactory, but it was remarkably vivid and might be compared to the painting of an impressionist.

An exceptionally attractive vocal recital was given by Mr. David Bispham, on the 9th ult., at St. James's Hall, in which the versatility of this artist was made prominent. His selection included Loewe's settings of Goethe's 'Wedding Song,' and 'Edward,' from the 'Percy Reliques,' both remarkable examples of this German composer's picturesque and dramatic style. Three songs, severally named 'Cradle Song,' 'The Miller,' and 'Killiecrankie, deserve special mention; these are by Mr. H. H. Wetzler, organist of Trinity Church, New York, who is manifestly a musician of great ability. Some excellent violin playing was contributed by Madame Leonora Von Stosch.

Herr Kubelik's success has been so great that he was induced to give a farewell orchestral concert on the 5th ult., at Queen's Hall. His most important achievements were in Mendelssohn's concerto, and Vieuxtemps's concerto in E. As on former occasions, he was most successful in the latter. The orchestra, under Mr. Landon Ronald's direction, rendered sympathetic support, and gave a spirited performance of the conductor's pleasing 'Suite de Ballet.' Mdlle. Aurelie Révvy contributed vocal solos.

Mr. John Thomas's annual harp concert took place at St. James's Hall on the 6th ult., when a number of well known pieces by this artistic Harpist to the King were effectively played, and songs were contributed by Miss Ethel Wood, Mr. Hirwen Jones, and several other vocalists.

A somewhat novel scheme was carried out successfully at Bechstein Hall, on the 5th ult., the programme, with the exception of Bach's cantata 'Liebster Jesu, mein Verlangen,' for soprano and bass soloists, consisting entirely of vocal quartets. These comprised Dr. Villiers Stanford's cycle of songs from Tennyson's 'Princess,' and Dr. Ernest Walker's settings of five songs from 'England's Helicon.' The music of the latter, though simple, is very pleasing, and admirably laid out for the voices. The executants were, Miss Marie Fillunger, Miss Evelyn Downes, Mrs. Seth Hughes, and Mr. Arthur F. Ferguson, whose singing was distinguished by good balance of tone and precision. The accompaniments were excellently rendered by Mr. Donald F. Tovey.

Mr. Jan Mulder brought forward at his concert, at the Salle Erard, on the 2nd ult., a sonata in G, for pianoforte and violoncello, of his own, which he played with the help of Mdlle. Johanna Heymann. The themes of this work are for the most part pleasing, but the development is somewhat erratic and the harmonic scheme of a strained character.

One of the most remarkable first appearances in this country of late was that of Herr Wilhelm Backhaus, a young pianist seventeen years of age, who, associated with Miss Elsie Southgate, gave a pianoforte and violin recital on June 26, at St. James's Hall. Herr Backhaus is manifestly gifted with exceptional executive ability, and his rendering of Brahms's Variations on a Theme by Paganini was a wonderful exhibition of youthful talent. His playing, moreover, in Beethoven's 'Kreutzer' Sonata indicated a sensitive temperament.

Madame Grimaldi's pianoforte playing at her concert on the same afternoon, at the Salle Erard, was distinguished by earnestness and neatness. Four songs by M. Emil Sauer, said not to have been previously performed in England, were well sung by Mr. Frederick Keel. The most pleasing of the set was the fourth, entitled 'Ständchen.' Violin and violoncello solos were respectively contributed by Mr. Louis Pecskai and Mr. Ludwig Lebell.

A very attractive vocal and pianoforte recital was given by Mrs. Henry J. Wood and Mdlle. Tosta de Benici, on June 26, at the Empress Rooms, Kensington. No less than twelve of the numbers were new to English audiences, and of these the most memorable were three songs severally entitled 'Soir d'Été,' 'Complainte,' and 'Violoncell,' by M. Lennart Lundberg, a young Scandinavian composer. A happy example of the talent of M. Emil Sjögrenn was a song called 'Im Träume bist du mir nahe,' and this and other songs by MM. Christian Sinding, Berger, and Körling, were rendered with the utmost finish by Mrs. Wood. Mdlle. de Benici's pianoforte solos included two attractive caprices by M. Sinding, and other pieces of pleasing character by Balakirev and Leschetizky, all of which were interpreted with refinement and brilliancy.

Don Narciso Garay, who gave a concert on June 26th at the Salle Erard, is an artist of much versatility. He appeared as violinist, vocalist, and composer, being, perhaps, most successful in the first-named capacity. As a vocalist, the production of his baritone voice was somewhat nasal, and as a composer, judging by his Sonata for the violin and pianoforte in D, he would seem to lack the perception of the most effective means to an end, the sonata, although possessing some good themes, being so involved in style as to be extremely difficult do follow.

Mr. Herbert Fryer may be congratulated on his progress, as manifested at the pianoforte recital he gave on June 27 at St. James's Hall. He was most successful in two preludes and fugues from Bach's '48,' which we are glad to notice are now being more played by pianists.

The Oxford House Musical and Dramatic Association gave their Annual West-End Orchestral Concert, on June 27, at the Westminster Town Hall. Amongst the works given were the Meistersinger and Rienzi overtures, and a very original and striking composition, a Dirge for orchestra, by A. Troubridge, and Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor (the solo part capitally played by Miss Rihll). These works received an excellent rendering by the Oxford House orchestra under their enthusiastic conductor, Mr. Hugh A. Barry. The following soloists very kindly gave their services. Mesdames Lilian Eldée and Alice Gomez, Miss Ulrikka Wiley, and Mr. Gregory Hast. The Association, which exists for the purpose of providing the East End with good musical and other entertainments gave, last winter, thirty-eight performances at the Excelsior Hall, Bethnal Green, at which upwards of 32,000 people were present.

Mrs. Halkett Halkett is to be commended for presenting at her recital, on June 28th, at Steinway Hall, an unhackneyed selection, her programme including a sonata in B flat (Op. 53) by M. Schytte, and a suite for pianoforte, in E (Op. 61), by M. Schütt, both works possessing considerable musical interest. Mrs. Halkett's playing was distinguished by neatness and conscientiousness. She received most able assistance from Mr. Henry Such.

A concert of most artistic and pleasing character was given on June 28, at Bechstein Hall, by Miss Esther Palliser, who sang with her wonted charm and finish a number of new songs by Miss Maude V. White, M. Arensky, and Madame Liza Lehmann. A second set of 'Meditations' by Mr. R. Walthew for clarinet and pianoforte is also worthy of mention, and was admirably played by the composer and Mr. Draper.

Miss Ethel Hirschbein, who gave a concert on the 1st ult., at the Bechstein Hall, is the possessor of a remarkably rich-toned and powerful contralto voice which, when it has received more training, should enable her to take a prominent position in the concert room.

The first public appearance in England of Miss Susan Metcalfe, on the 11th ult., at Bechstein's Hall, merits record, for she is a singer gifted with a rich-toned soprano voice, and possesses an admirable method. We shall hope to hear her again at no very distant date.

Miss Louie Parkin, who gave a pianoforte recital at Steinway Hall on the 12th ult., may be encouraged to pursue her studies. She played a selection of pieces by Chopin with much vivacity and no little intelligence.

Concerning the military concert at the Crystal Palace on the 6th ult., it is only necessary to record that about seven hundred instrumentalists of the leading military bands took part, and the chief item on the programme was Eckersberg's Fantasia 'The Battle of Waterloo.' To give greater realism to this sensational piece, several of the bands were marched playing from different parts of the Palace to the Handel orchestra to represent the arrival of sections of the British army at the field of battle, and guns were fired in the Palace grounds to heighten the effect.

The London Sunday School Choir held their twenty-ninth annual meeting, at the Crystal Palace, on June 26. In the afternoon the children's choir, under the direction of Mr. J. Rowley, sang with much spirit some part-songs and and action songs, as well as the chorus, 'O lovely peace,' from 'Judas Maccabæus.' In the evening the adult choir, consisting of about 4,000 voices, supported by an orchestra numbering 200 players, occupied the Handel Festival Orchestra, and gave selections from 'Judas Maccabæus,' 'Acis and Galatea,' Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' Stainer's cantata, 'The Daughter of Jairus,' an anthem by by J. H. Maunder, 'While the earth remaineth,' and some part-songs. The singing was marked throughout by steadiness and good expression. Mr. William Whiteman conducted, with the exception of the purely orchestral pieces, which were directed by Mr. David M. Davis. Mr. Horace G. Holmes officiated at the organ, and Mr. Arthur Hatchard also gave a recital on the same instrument in the afternoon.

A performance, of Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' trilogy, of which the conductor, Mr. Allen Gill, and all others concerned therein may justly be proud, was given, on the 16th ult., by the Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society. The fresh-voiced, well-trained and well-balanced choir manifestly enjoyed their tuneful, though arduous task, and exhibited throughout an intelligent appreciation of the various picturesque and emotional moods of the epic and their delightful musical illustration, which only the most careful study under a highly efficient conductor could have so completely realised. Madame Medora Henson, Mr. Gwilym Richards, and Mr. Watkin Mills impressively rendered the solo parts, and came in for a due share of the applause freely bestowed by a numerous audience.

The terminal concert of the Croydon Conservatoire of Music was given on the evening of the 12th ult., in the large Public Hall, Croydon. The principal feature of the evening was the admirable playing of the String Orchestra, which was conducted, as usual, by Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor. The programme included a Serenade in D, by Hofmann, a Serenade in C, by Volkmann, both for string orchestra, and pieces by Grieg, Götze, Svendsen, Sulzbach, etc. The vocalist was Miss May Cooke, who gave refined and intelligent renderings of songs by Elgar, Massenet, Schubert, E. German, and M. V. White. Miss Alice Carr was a satisfactory accompanist.

The following concerts and recitals merit 'honourable mention':—St. James's Hall: Messrs. Frank Haskoll and Donald Hall (concert), June 25; Miss Macintyre (concert), the same evening; that excellent pianist, Miss Gertrude Peppercorn (recital), June 26; Mr. Landon Ronald (concert), June 27; Mdlle. Manía Séquél and Manuel Garcia (pianoforte and vocal recital), June 29; Mr. Frank Ross (concert), 8th ult. Bechstein Hall: Miss Lucia Fydell (vocal recital), June 26; Herr Willibald Richter (pianoforte recital), June 26; M. Hegedüs (violin recital), June 28; M. and Mdlle. Boucherit (violin and pianoforte recital), 4th ult.; Miss Sieveright (vocal recital), 8th ult.; Miss Downey (concert), 9th ult. Steinway Hall: Mr. Alfred Gallrein (concert), 1st ult. Piccadilly Galleries: The London Trio (chamber concert), June 26.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The new syllabus of competitions for composers issued by the Feis Ceoil has two new features. The first is the offering of a prize for the best suite or symphony, founded upon Irish Traditional airs, for full orchestra. The idea of this prize was suggested by the recent performance in Dublin of Dvorák's Symphony, 'In the New World,' founded upon negro melodies. The second feature, which has not previously found a place in the syllabus, is a prize offered for the best work for solos and chorus with organ or pianoforte accompaniment. This is offered in addition to that for the usual work for solo voices, chorus, and orchestra. The remaining competitions are unaltered.

The Feis Committee has issued a circular, addressed to the heads and managers of large commercial establishments, appealing to them to institute choral societies in connection with their firms, the members of such choral societies to be their employees. The committee is prepared to find the money for several new choral competitions for this class of choirs. The importance of forming and maintaining such societies is quite inestimable as a source of happiness and culture among classes which have little legitimate amusement provided for them, and we venture to think the movement will be a popular one.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

A sweet-toned organ, sufficiently large for its surroundings, has just been erected in the Parish Church of Shernborne by Messrs. Norman and Beard. The village being in the near neighbourhood of Sandringham, their Majesties the King and Queen have taken much interest in this latest musical addition to the parish by generously subscribing towards the cost. The dedication service was held on June 23, when the vicar, the Rev. F. J. W. Girling, who has considerable musical taste, presided at the instrument, and, after the service, favoured the congregation with a recital interspersed with several solos sung by Mr. Rutter.

At a meeting held on June 28, in St. Peter Parmentergate Institute, it was decided to form a company, called the 'Norwich Amateur Operatic Company,' to be composed entirely of local amateur talent. Sir Samuel Hoare, M.P., and Sir Harry Bullard, M.P., will be asked to be President and Vice-President. The various officials were elected—Mr. George Harris, musical director, and Mr. Cecil Corrie, stage manager, with Mr. Will Smith as assistant. The business management of the company is in the hands of Mr. Sherington, and the secretary, pro tem., is Mr. O. H. Sleightholme. The first performance will take place in the course of next season, at Norwich Theatre, when 'The Yeomen of the Guard' will be staged.

A district festival of choirs, in union with the Diocesan Church Choral Association, was held in St. Peter's Church, Lower Sheringham, on the 11th ult., when a large congregation was present. The choirs, numbering 327 voices, were conducted by Dr. Frank Bates, organist of Norwich Cathedral, and supported by a band of seventeen performers, led by Mr. F. W. B. Noverre, for whom Dr. Bates had orchestrated the service. The Rev. L. Meadows White presided at the organ. The anthem was Maunder's 'Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem,' and in this, as well as in Dr. Bates's unaccompanied anthem, 'I will lay me down in peace,' very good results were obtained, proving how much this Association is doing to improve the musical part of the services of the church in the rural districts.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. Henry J. Wood gave a lecture on John Sebastian Bach, at the University, on the 17th ult. He treated his subject with such regard to detail that it comprised a complete survey of the rise and downfall of the Bach family. Stripping the hero of his halo, and denuding him of his glorious wig, Mr. Wood presented the giant among musicians as an ordinary human being, struggling for his existence amidst the worries and petty vexations of life. Not the least attractive feature of the lecture was a selection from the works of the master—admirably rendered by Mr., Mrs., and Miss Dolmetsch, on the instruments for which Bach originally wrote his chamber compositions. There was something cool and pleasant about the music, especially suitable to the hot July afternoon in a crowded room, which was, perhaps, gained at the expense of the masterly vigour of Bach's works as heard now-a-days, on more modern and powerful instruments.

The annual general meeting of the Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society offers its members an agreeable surprise in having a small balance in hand after the season's work. This is a novel feature upon which the Society is to be congratulated.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The festival of the Edinburgh Diocesan Choral Association, a fore-word concerning which was spoken last month, took place on the 22nd ult., in St. Mary's Cathedral, and proved the great success it was expected to be. This large mustering of local Episcopal Church choirs was admirably organised and skilfully carried through in all its details, and two most impressive services—Holy Communion and Evensong—were the result. The manner in which such a considerable body of choristers—700 in all, representing thirty choirs—was marshalled and conducted in procession to its place without the least obvious hitch, reflected the greatest credit on Mr. W. Prendergast, the honorary secretary, and spoke eloquently for the admirable nature of his arrangements. Mr. T. H. Collinson, organist of St. Mary's Cathedral, was responsible for the musical arrangements for the festival, and these must necessarily have involved considerable thought and toil. The result of these labours proved more than merely satisfactory, and great praise is due to Mr. Collinson for his choice of music, selection of voices, and clear and vigorous beat, which kept his forces well together.

The outstanding feature of the morning service was Marbecke's 'Office of the Holy Communion,' which has been translated by Mr. Collinson into modern notation and supplied with an organ accompaniment specially for these Festivals. At the evening service the organ was supplemented by an excellent band of brass instrument players—four trumpets and six trombones—who rendered in admirable style the part which had been carefully and artistically prepared for them. Specially noteworthy was the effect they produced in the 'Laudate Dominum.' Mr. Carruthers was the organist, and Mr. T. Richardson assisted as subconductor. The service was Garrett in F, and the anthems were: 'From the rising of the sun' (Ouseley) and 'They who seek the Lord' (Collinson). The Cathedral was crowded on both occasions.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Berlin.—The performance took place, on June 22, by the choir and orchestra of the Hochschule, under the direction of Professor Joachim, of the posthumous oratorio 'Erntefeier,' by Heinrich von Herzogenberg. The new three-act opera, 'Der Improvisator,' by Eugene d'Albert is to be first brought out by the Royal Opera, which re-opens its doors on the 11th inst., with 'Tristan und Isolde.' Many were the congratulations and tokens of universal esteem which gratified Professor Joseph Joachim on the occasion of his seventieth birthday, on June 28.

Bologna.—In the Church of San Francesco, whence, in the sixteenth century, arose the great Bolognese school of composers, a very interesting special performance was given recently of the following works—viz.: A sacred Concerto in A minor for string orchestra and organ, by Dall'Abaco; an Antiphony for two choirs, by Palestrina; the Fourth Psalm, by Benedetti Marcello; a Canzone and Toccata for organ, by Frescobaldi; a Prayer to the Virgin, by Durante; and, finally, a Te Deum, by Sgambati. Signor Fano conducted the orchestra and choir, the latter consisting of a number of trained amateurs from the élite of Bolognese Society, and Signor Filippo Sussare presided at the organ.

Bremen.—An interesting and much appreciated concert was given recently at the Cathedral by the Teachers' Choral Society, under the direction of Herr Martin Hobling. The programme consisted of compositions by the old masters of church music, Palestrina, Vittoria, Orlando di Lasso, and others, but rarely introduced to general audiences nowadays.

Cologne.—At the fifth Popular Concert given at the Gürzenich Hall, a fine performance took place of Niels Gade's charming 'Frühlings Phantasie,' for solo voices, orchestra, and pianoforte, under the direction of Professor Wüllner. In sharp contrast to this essentially melodious work, was the performance, for the first time, of a new pianoforte concerto in B flat minor, by Felix vom Rath, a young composer and a native of Cologne, who has evidently thrown in his lot with the modern 'secessionist' school. The very difficult solo part was well rendered by Fräulein Hedwig Meyer.

Darmstadt.—At a recent meeting of the Artists' Society, a number of new compositions by Arnold Mendelssohn, including pieces for pianoforte and violin, and a ballade for baritone, 'Vom treuen Kanzler,' obtained a first hearing, and were received with high appreciation.

Dresden.—Richard Strauss has just completed the score of his new comic opera 'Feuersnoth' (Conflagration), which is to be brought out at the Hoftheater during the coming autumn.

Frankfurt-on-Main.—The veteran, Julius Stockhausen, gave a concert last month with his pupils, in which the excellent training received by the latter was demonstrated in a number of solo and concerted pieces. A particularly charming effect was produced by Brahms's Rhapsody for contralto, in which the choral part was interpreted by sixteen male voices, as well as by the quintet from 'Die Meistersinger,' with which the performances concluded.——A monument, for which a considerable sum has already been subscribed, is to be erected to Joachim Raff. The execution has been entrusted to the Munich sculptor, Herr Sand.

Hall.—At the Male Choir Festival, held last month, 215 societies from different parts of Würtemberg attended, no less than eighty-seven of these taking part in the customary prize competitions. There is, we believe, no foundation for the rumour of a monument being erected to the members of the jury, who went through their severe ordeal with such admirable fortitude.

Louvain.—Edgar Tinel's oratorio 'Sainte Godelive' achieved a brilliant success on its recent production, under the direction of its composer. The performance of the difficult work, by the chorus and orchestra of the Brussels Opera, was an excellent one, and, at its conclusion, the composer received quite an ovation from the numerous audience.

Mannheim.—A three-act opera 'Brigitte,' by André Messager, met with a very favourable reception on its first representation, last month, at the Court Theatre.

Milan.—The Society formed for the purpose of producing the oratorios of Don Lorenzo Perosi has closed its first financial year with a deficit of 28,000 lire.

Munich.—Under the direction of Herr Stavenhagen, a successful first performance was given, on June 28, at the Royal Theatre, of Felix Mottl's characteristic 'Tanzspiel,' entitled 'Pan im Busch.'——The newly erected Prince Regent Theatre, constructed in all essentials upon the Bayreuth model, is to be opened on the 21st inst., when a series of model performances of Wagner operas will be given, extending towards the end of September. In the early part of this month performances of Mozart's operas, with a small orchestra, are to take place at the Residenz Theater.——Much public interest was shown in the concert given at St. Luke's Church by the organist, Herr Engelhardt, and in which were included the four-part choruses 'Ecce quomodo moritur,' by Jacobus Gallus (Handl), 'Ehre sei Dir, Christe,' from the Passion music by Heinrich Schütz, a 'Passions Gesang' by J. G. Herzog, and 'Jesus auf Golgotha,' by Fr. Schneider. The programme also included an Andante for the harp, by Parish-Alvars, finely interpreted by Fräulein Leonore Buff, and organ pieces by Bach and Mendelssohn, contributed by the concert giver.

Olmütz.—A new mass, 'Missa Theodori,' by Theobald Kretschmann, produced a highly favourable impression at its first performance, last month, at the Cathedral.

Paris.—M. Taffanel will be succeeded in the conductorship of the Conservatoire Concerts by M. George Marty, a composer of some distinction. M. Charles Malherbe, the erudite librarian of the Opéra, has recently been enabled to include in his valuable collection of musical autographs, that of a polonaise for military band, composed by Beethoven in 1810, and formerly in the possession of Aloys Fuchs. It is inscribed by the composer, in French, 'Polonaise, par Beethoven, 1810, Baden,' and had been for many years considered lost.

Pesaro.—Mascagni makes an announcement in the Italian papers that he is about to establish, in association with a capitalist and a number of Italian composers, a co-operative society for the publication of operas, with a view to securing to their authors the full material advantages to be derived therefrom. Mascagni is said to be engaged upon the score of a new one-act opera, which is to form a pendant to his 'Cavalleria Rusticana.'

Pyrmont.—Complete success attended the festival performances in connection with the unveiling, on June 30, of the monument erected to Lortzing. A number of distinguished artists co-operated with the local choral societies in the performance of excerpts from the popular composer's works, and the production, in its entirety, of the little-known comic opera, 'Casanova,' which greatly interested the very large audience.

Rome.—A new opera entitled 'Friedemann Bach,' by the young composer, L. G. Fazio, has been brought out with much success at the Adriano Theatre. The libretto is founded upon a rather curious drama by the Duke di Maddalona, the scene being laid partly at Leipzig and partly at Berlin.

St. Petersburg.—The widow of the recently deceased composer, Barshanski, has presented her husband's valuable library to the St. Petersburg Conservatoire. The public-spirited lady has likewise given to that institution two sums of 10,000 roubles, the interest of which is to be devoted, half to the increase of the library, and the other half to a prize to be offered every two years for a chamber composition or symphonic work.

Sondershausen.—The recent scenic performance by the pupils of the Conservatorium, under the direction of Herr Rudolf Werner, of Lortzing's 'Die beiden Schützen,' while reflecting great credit upon the executants, was rendered doubly interesting by the surprising freshness of the music. This early work of the composer of 'Czar und Zimmermann' was first produced in 1837, at Leipzig, and, though highly successful at the time, had fallen into complete neglect upon the appearance of the later and more elaborate works of the genial master.

Trieste.—A biblical opera, 'Sulamith,' by the Hungarian composer, Abraham Goldfaden, was brought out with some success last month, at the Politeama Theatre, by a Hungarian company, under the direction of M. Orban.

Utrecht.—At a festival performance, held last month, under the auspices of the Maatschappy tot Bevordering der Toonkunst, and under the conductorship of the veteran Richard Hol, a very fine interpretation was given of the 'Beatitudes,' by Cesar Franck, the programme also including a new 'Rhapsodie Hollandaise,' by M. van Anrooy, which was received with much favour.

Zurich. — The well-known 'Züricher Männerchor,' founded by the Swiss composer, Hans Georg Nägeli, has just celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of its foundation. In the festival concert organised for the occasion Frau Welti-Herzog and Herr Scheidemantel, of Dresden, took leading parts, the principal work produced being Max Bruch's cantata 'Frithjof.' Dr. Attenhofer, who for over thirty-five years has been the director of the Society, conducted the very excellent performance.

OBITUARY.

JAMES CAXTON DIBDIN.

We record with regret the death, on the 4th ult., of James Caxton Dibdin, a very well-known figure in the musical life of Edinburgh. Mr. Dibdin was born at Morningside, Edinburgh, December 9, 1856, the youngest son of Henry Edward Dibdin (1813-1866), musician, compiler of the 'Standard Psalm Tune Book' (1850), and composer. He was thus a great-grandson of the celebrated Charles Dibdin, to whom he bore a remarkable facial resemblance. He was educated at the Edinburgh Institution and the North London Collegiate School and then entered the service of Messrs. Paterson and Sons, of Edinburgh, with whom he remained associated until his death. For a good many years he had devoted himself entirely to concert management, for which he showed exceptional ability. From inconsiderable beginnings this department of Messrs. Paterson and Sons' establishment has so developed that they have for a long time held the first place in the North in the dramatic and concert business. Mr. Dibdin's literary, antiquarian, and musical knowledge led him to give especial attention to the analytical programmes of the Edinburgh Orchestral Concerts, for which he wrote many of the notices; moreover, in the matter of typography and illustrations they were without parallel in Great Britain.

Apart from the business for which Mr. Dibdin laboured so incessantly and well, he had varied interests in life. As an illuminator he had marked skill; he played the violin, and he had a fine baritone voice. The range of his social interests was considerable; he was a prominent local Freemason, an important member of the Pen and Pencil Club, an original member and for a long time secretary of the Edinburgh Society of Musicians. In the history of the stage he took a life-long interest and his principal literary effort was an exhaustive 'History of the Edinburgh Stage,' published in 1888. Other publications included 'The Clickum Inn,' a romance of the '45,' and a volume of shorter tales and sketches entitled 'Scottish Border Life.' A great deal of journalistic and magazine work (chiefly on musical and dramatic topics) has also to be added to the list of Mr. Dibdin's activities. His death took place at his house, 8, Howard Place, Edinburgh (the birthplace of Robert Louis Stevenson), and he was buried on the 8th ult., at Rosebank Cemetery, in the presence of a very large concourse of musical, literary, and masonic friends, his only surviving brother, Mr. E. Rimbault Dibdin, being chief mourner.

JOHN FARMER.

Many old Harrovians from 1862 to 1885 and Balliol men of the last fifteen years will have heard with regret of the death of Mr. John Farmer, which event, we regret to record, took place at his residence, 21, Beaumont Street, Oxford, on the 17th ult. A nephew and pupil (violin and pianoforte) of the late Henry Farmer, of Nottingham, John was born in that town on August 16, 1836. In 1851 he became a student of the Conservatorium, Leipzig, and subsequently studied at Coburg under Albert Spaeth, court conductor. For six years, 1856 to 1862, he settled in Zurich and saw much of Wagner, then exiled there. In 1862 John Farmer entered upon the great work of his life as organist and music-master of Harrow School. He instituted the House-Singing, composed his famous Harrow School songs, and for twenty-three years he was a veritable hero of the Hill. Since 1885 he has been organist of Balliol College, Oxford, where, as at Harrow, he has successfully carried out his methods for popularising music from its social side rather than from the artistic point of view. Mr. Farmer composed 'Christ and His Soldiers,' an oratorio for children; 'Gaudeamus,' a book of songs for schools and colleges; 'Dulce Domum,' a book of songs and rhymes for children; 'Cinderella,' a fairy opera for children, in addition to a Requiem, in memory of departed Harrow friends, and the 'Harrow School Songs' already referred to. He edited 'Hymns and Chorales for Schools and Colleges.' An 'appreciation' of Mr. Farmer has been kindly supplied by Mr. Alfred Gibson in the following terms:—'Mr. Farmer had the wonderful power of making nearly everyone with whom he came in contact enthusiastic for music—the best music, the masterpieces of the great classical composers. Orthodox musicians did not love him or understand his methods, but those who consider the matter without prejudice cannot withhold from him the praise and honour that are his due. He collected a number of fine hymn-tunes and chorales for use at Balliol, erasing the 'improvements' that many editors had prettily decorated them with, and, from old editions, restoring the original harmonies. For this work he deserves the heartiest thanks of all musicians. To those who had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Farmer intimately, it was a great delight to meet him at home after his day's work and to get him to the piano and improvise. In this he had wonderful skill. Also to hear his laughable stories of years ago—Church bands, the old-fashioned Methodists of his native town, and his varied experience as a boy musician. John Farmer was genial and kindly to a fault.'

MRS. LIDDELL (MISS EMILY SHINNER).

Death has removed a gifted lady violinist in the person of Mrs. Liddell, well known as Miss Emily Shinner, at the age of thirty-nine. The sad event occurred at 64, Victoria Street, on the 17th ult. A native of Cheltenham, Miss Shinner studied under Professor Joachim for five years in Berlin, and became one of the most distinguished of the great violinist's English lady pupils. Mrs. Liddell played with much acceptance at the Crystal Palace and Popular concerts. Latterly she rendered excellent service as leader of Mr. Williams's orchestra at the Bermondsey Settlement; but she is best known as the founder and first violinist of the 'Shinner Quartet,' a party of clever ladies who, since 1887, have given many chamber concerts of high artistic excellence. Mrs. Liddell frequently played before Queen Victoria, who sent her a diamond bracelet as a wedding present on her marriage with Captain A. F. Liddell, R.A.

CORRESPONDENCE.

'THOMAS AND SALLY.'

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Mr. Corder, in your last issue, boldly by one stroke of the pen sweeps the date of 'Thomas and Sally' (1760) back to 'before 1736.' This by the statement that the Library of the Royal Academy of Music contains a copy of the piece issued by the elder Walsh, who died in 1736. It is frequently rather difficult to define the father's and the son's issues, as they both had the same Christian name, and 'junior' or 'senior' were never used on their publications. But in the present instance, a glance at the full title-page of the particular copy to which Mr. Corder refers shows him to have been mistaken in his assertion. This title-page runs:—

> 'Thomas and Sally; or, the Sailor's return: a Dramatic Pastoral, with the overture in score, songs, dialogues, duettos, and dance tunes, as peformed at the Theatre Royal in Covent Garden, by Mr. Beard and Miss Brent, Mr. Mattocks, Mrs. Vernon, and Chorus. The music compos'd by Dr. Arne. London: Printed for I. Walsh, in Catharine Street, in the Strand. Entered at Stationers' Hall.' pp. 51, folio (contains autograph of R. J. Stevens).

As all authorities agree in the fact that Dr. Arne took his degree at Oxford in 1759, this fact at once disposes of Mr. Corder's date, 'before 1736.' Even if Arne's degree was not a strong link in the historical chain, the names of the singers furnish evidence of a very late issue of the work. For instance, on pp. 50-1 is 'A song sung by Mrs. Cibber in "The Way to Keep Him," set by Dr. Arne.' This comedy was first acted in 1760, and again, with alterations, in 1761. As a matter of fact, the publication is from Dr. Arne's own plates, which originally bore the date 1761. This date, together with Arne's own imprint, Walsh erased, and then substituted his own name and address. It may be presumed that he bought the plates and copyright from the Doctor.—Yours truly,

Frank Kidson.

128, Burley Road, Leeds.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Royal College of Organists.—The following candidates passed the recent Fellowship Examination:—

Abdey, A. W., Hove.
Annis, H. R., Oxford.
Barber, L. L., Halstead, Essex.
Barraud, G. P., London.
Bath, S., Edgbaston.
Black, P. A., London.
Clarke, Miss F. B., Godalming.
Cliff, Miss M., Hunstanton.
Dann, J., Gainsborough.
Dunnill, W. F. B., Surbiton.
Dyer, F. G., Oxford.
Goodall, E. L., Plymouth.
Hanson, S. H., Oldham.
Hollingshead, F. E., Derby.
Illsley, P. J., Montreal.
Parker, W. V., London.
Reid, A., Canterbury.
Trevitt, H. S., Lincoln.
Wadely, F. W., Kidderminster.
Wéalé, S. H. F., St. David's.
Wood, P., London.

Royal Academy of Music.—The following prizes and medals have been awarded:—The Robert Newman Prize (for organ playing) to Stanley R. Marchant, a native of Sevenoaks. The Walter Macfarren Gold Medals (for pianoforte playing) to Hedwig Cole, of Brunswick, and Cuthbert Whitemore, of Clifton, Bristol. The Charlotte Walters Prizes (for elocution) to Lizzie Davies, of Tredegar, and Cyril Wilton Cole, of Quinton, Northants. The Frederick Westlake Memorial Prize (for pianoforte playing and reading at sight) to Cuthbert Whitemore.

Trinity College London.—The following awards have been made: Corporation Pianoforte Scholarship to Miss A. M. Jones; Corporation Violin Scholarship to Miss L. Lambert; Corporation Scholarship for an instrument other than Violin—Harp to Miss A. C. Winter; Benedict Pianoforte Exhibition to Miss M. E. Withycombe; Violin Exhibition to Frank W. Greenfield; Sims Reeves Vocal Exhibition to Miss A. Worthington; College Organ Exhibition to John Newton.

The annual practical examinations in music at the Society of Arts were concluded on the 6th ult., having lasted for eleven days. The examiners were Dr. Ernest Walker and Mr. Burnham Horner. The number of candidates who presented themselves for examination were 551, an increase of five as compared with last year; and of these there were 476 passes and 80 failures, five of the candidates having taken two subjects.

The tenth annual Summerscales Musical competitions are to be held at Keighley on Saturdays, October 19 and 26. The nine classes include solo and choral singing, and violin string quartet and orchestral playing. The Secretary is Mr. Allan Bradley, 70, North Street, Keighley, who will gladly furnish all particulars to intending competitors.

The London Organ School gave three successful performances of Sullivan's 'Mikado' at Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill, on the 9th, 11th, and 13th ult., under the direction of Mr. Henry Beauchamp.

The Virgil Piano School announces a Normal or Teachers' course of instruction and lectures (to be delivered by Mr. Emlyn Lewis) between the 5th and 31st inst. at 12, Princes Street, Hanover Square.

Errata.—In the review of an 'Arioso for Pianoforte and Violin,' on p. 464 of our July issue, the composer's name should have been Davis not Dabis.—The Harvest Anthem, published as one of our extra supplements last month, is by Mr. Charles Macpherson, sub-organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, not by Mr. C. S. Macpherson as stated.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Coventry.—A performance of Schubert's 'Song of Miriam' and Palestrina's 'Super Flumina Babylonis' was given in Holy Trinity Church, on the 8th ult., by the choir, under the direction of Mr. C. H. Moody, the organist and choirmaster. There was a large congregation, who followed the music with evident appreciation. Both works were new to Coventry, and they made an excellent impression. The singing of the choir was thoroughly satisfactory, and in the unaccompanied Palestrina motet it rose to a high standard of excellence. Miss Annie Warden, a promising local soprano, sang the solo work in the Schubert cantata, and Dr. H. P. Allen, organist of New College, Oxford, rendered excellent service at the organ.

Deane (Bolton).—The annual festival of the Deane Church Schools took place on Sunday, June 30. The anthems were Elvey's 'I was glad' and 'O give thanks unto the Lord,' 'Angel voices ever singing,' by the Rev. E. V. Hall, and Handel's 'Hallelujah' Chorus. The choir (including a section of thirty young children) had been admirably trained by Alderman John Miles, J.P., who it will be remembered, as recorded in our May number, has been for thirty-seven years organist of the church.

Exeter.—The annual festival of the Exeter Diocesan Choral Association was held in the Cathedral on the 2nd ult. The choirs which took part were drawn from the Archdeaconry of Totnes and the Deanery of Christianity; these, together with the regular and voluntary choirs of the Cathedral, and including some members of the Royal Marine Band, numbered over 1,100. The Te Deum was sung to a setting by Dr. J. Varley Roberts, and the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis to one by Dr. C. Vincent. The anthem was 'O God, Thou art my God,' by Dr. Ferris Tozer. The music was excellently sung throughout, giving evidence of careful training by the sub-conductors. Mr. T. Roylands Smith was conductor-in-chief, and Dr. Wood presided at the organ.

Grahamstown.—An interesting pianoforte recital was given by Miss Grace Batchelder in the Town Hall, on May 2, when the programme included Bach's Prelude and Fugue in C sharp minor (No. 4), Beethoven's Sonata in C (Op. 53), Schumann's 'Carnival Scenes' (Op. 9), Toccata in A, by Paradies, and various other pieces. Miss Batchelder, who is a pupil of Mr. Franklin Taylor, is the only pianist in the locality, and her efforts in giving such recitals, which are of considerable educational value, have met with much success.

Kimberley (South Africa).—The newly-formed 'Kimberley Musical Association' (Choral Section) gave their opening concert, on June 12, in the Town Hall, before a crowded audience, and under the baton of Mr. J. Frank Proudman. The Association has made an excellent start with a choir of fifty efficient singers. The principal feature of the programme was Bennett's 'May Queen,' the solo parts being undertaken by Miss Dallas, Mrs. Watson, Mr. J. D. Mackenzie, and Mr. T. B. Fredrea. The miscellaneous second part included the part-songs, 'Tell me, Flora,' and 'Good night, beloved,' both by Pinsuti, and Mackenzie's 'Three merry dwarfs.'

Lisburn (Co. Antrim).—The organ in the Cathedral, which has been undergoing extensive alterations and additions at the hands of Messrs. Telford and Telford, of Dublin, was re-opened on Sunday, the 14th ult. After the Evening Service a recital was given by the organist of the Cathedral, Mr. W. A. J. Ponton, whose programme included Mendelssohn's third Organ Sonata, and compositions by Guilmant, MacMaster, &c.

Troon (Ayr).—A choral festival, arranged by the Presbytery Choir Union, was held in the Parish Church on the 6th ult., the music being rendered by the Choir Union, numbering over 200 voices, and composed of a large number of choirs in the Presbytery. The service included Berthold Tours's setting of the Magnificat, and Sullivan's anthem, 'Hearken unto me, ye people,' in which the fine tone and good quality of the voices were effectively displayed. Mr. Henry Graves, organist of the New Church, Ayr, is conductor of the Union, and secures uniformity of style by visiting the different choirs at the rehearsals. Miss McLetchie, organist of the church, officiated at the organ with taste and judgment.

Weston-super-Mare.—A concert was given by Miss Margaret von Bargen, at the Victoria Hall, on the 6th ult. Miss von Bargen, possesses a contralto voice of great power and beautiful quality, which she used with excellent effect in 'Che faro' (Gluck), 'The Three Fishers' (Hullah), and Tosti's 'Good-bye.' The concert-giver was assisted by Mr. S. J. Halliley and Mr. John Gray; Miss Lillie Davis (violin), and Mr. H. W. Stratton (pianoforte). Miss Ethel von Bargen acted as accompanist.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Bow Arm.—In regard to the origin of the sign 'Cat and Fiddle,' the natural connection between the animal and the instrument is that the strings of the violin are made from pussy's entrails, and that a small fiddle is called a kit, and a small cat a kitten. One original explanation offered is that a certain Caton Fidèle, a staunch Protestant, in the reign of Queen Mary, became corrupted into cat and fiddle. Another suggestion is that the phrase has some connection with Catherine fidèle, the faithful saint. As early as 1589 we find a record of one Henry Carr, 'signe of the Catte and Fiddle in the Old Chaunge.' There was formerly a Cat and Fiddle tavern at Norwich, the cat being represented playing upon a fiddle, and a number of mice dancing around her. 'Le chat fidèle' is, or was, the sign of a Devonshire hostelry on the road between Sidmouth and Exeter. The first line of the old nursery rhyme, 'Heigh diddle, diddle,' is doubtless a rhyming convenience for the words that follow. The muse suggestion, as a source of origin, is rather too far fetched.

Constant Subscriber.—Why not take a lesson now and then from a first-rate teacher in London? The passing of the Senior Associated Board examination should encourage you, but you will have to work hard. Perseverantia omnia vincit!

J. H.—'The Military Band,' by Lieutenant S. C. Griffiths (Rudall, Carte and Co.), treats of scoring for military bands.

H. C.—There is a known instance of the wood of the flute irritating an abnormally sensitive skin with the result that a rash came out on the face of the performer, but it did not extend to his throat. Perhaps you have been blowing too hard. There is a reputed instance (not so well authenticated as the one given above) of a flautist blowing so terrifically hard—gale-like, in fact—that the process dislodged his teeth. Verb. sap.!

H. G.—Pedals attached to the pianoforte, by all means. As to whether 'a small two-manual organ would make too much noise for a house,' it is all a question of the size of the house and whether it is detached or not. The neighbours might have something to say in regard to the noise.

Durien.—The French song (containing the words 'Plaisir d'amour,' &c.) in 'Trilby' to which you refer is probably by Martini. Messrs. Novello can supply the music.

Eve.—Yes, Bertha's grand aria in Adolphe Adam's 'La Poupée de Nuremberg' has a violin obbligato, and the song may be obtained separately from the score.

Country Organist.—Your stretch does not appear to be abnormally short. Consult a doctor, but do not play tricks with nature.

Florita.—Pauer's primer, 'A Dictionary of Pianists and Composers for the Pianoforte,' may answer your purpose.

TWO Extra Supplements are given with this number: (1) A Portrait of Dr. Eaton Faning taken specially for this paper by Messrs. J. Russell and Sons; (2) Chorus, 'Be merciful, be gracious,' from the Dream of Gerontius, by Edward Elgar.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

THIRD EDITION, REVISED.

BEETHOVEN

AND HIS

NINE SYMPHONIES

BY

GEORGE GROVE, C.B.

Price, cloth, gilt, Six Shillings.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

ADAMS, JOSEPH H.—"The Gentle Shepherd." Song. No. 1, in F. For Contralto or Baritone. No. 2, in A flat. For Soprano or Tenor. 2s. each.

ALLWORK, REV. R. L.—Vesper Hymn ("Now our day of praise is over.") On Card. 1d.

BARNARD, REV. D. J. J.—Twelve Settings of well-known Hymns. 6d.

BEAUMONT, HENRY—(in D). Kyrie. 1d.

BENSON, WILLIAM—"The Lament." For Violin and Pianoforte. 2s.

BOOTH, JOSIAH—"He that dwelleth in the secret place." Anthem for Whitsuntide or General Use. (No. 707. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

BREWER, A. HERBERT—Versicles and Responses. Arranged for Boys' or Ladies' Voices. 2d.

CALKIN, J. BAPTISTE—"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace." Full Anthem. For A.T.B.B. (No. 55. Novello's Services, Anthems, &c., for Men's Voices.) 2d.

—— Ditto. For S.A.T.B. (No. 714. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 2d.

CARBERY, VICTORIA, LADY—"Shelter me, Lord." Hymn. 2d.

CHERITON, W. W.—"Spring's Bridal Day." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

CLEMENTI, MUZIO—"Adagio sostenuto." From the Pianoforte Sonata in A. Op. 50, No. 1. Edited and arranged for Organ by Arthur W. Marchant. (No. 58. Organ Arrangements edited by George C. Martin.) 1s.

DAVIES, H. WALFORD—"If any man hath not the Spirit." Anthem for General Use. (No. 710. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

DISTIN, THEODORE—"The last rose of summer." For A.T.T. (or B.) B. (No. 345. The Orpheus.) 2d.

—— "Jack Horner." For A.T.T. (or B.) B. (No. 344. The Orpheus.) 4d.

—— "Twilight on the lake." For S.A.T.B. (No. 865. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

ELLICOTT, CONSTANTIA A.—New Tunes to Favourite Hymns. 3d.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—"Good night, beloved." For A.T.B.B. (No. 346. The Orpheus.) 3d.

—— "My Dearie." For A.T.B.B. (No. 347. The Orpheus.) 2d.

—— "When through the Piazzetta." For A.T.B.B. (No. 348. The Orpheus.) 3d.

GOULD, MONK—Two Songs (Second Set)—(1.) "To a Skylark"; (2.) "I wait for thee." No. 1, in D flat. For Contralto or Baritone. No. 2, in F. For Soprano or Tenor. 2s. each.

HALL, REV. E. VINE—"Praise our God, ye people." Anthem for Harvest. (No. 712. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

HARRIS, CUTHBERT—"Behold I have given you every herb." Anthem for Harvest. (No. 713. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

HAYDN, JOSEPH—Sonata in G (No. 8). For Violin and Pianoforte. (No. 20. A Modern School for the Violin, by August Wilhelmj and James Brown.) 2s.

HIGGS, H. M.—(in C). The Communion Service (with Benedictus and Agnus Dei). 1s.

HODSON, HENRY E.—"All the world is bright." Part-Song for S.A.T.B. (No. 702. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

LLOYD, C. H.—"Resignation." Hymn. (No. 568. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d. Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

MARCHANT, A. W.—"Great is the Lord." Anthem for Harvest. (No. 708. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

MAUNDER, J. H.—"The Joy of Harvest." A Hymn of Thanksgiving. Words only, by Rev. W. H. Draper, 2s. 6d. per 100.

MORGAN, T. MILES—"Ye Mariners of England." Arranged for S.A.T.B. from Dr. Callcott's Trio. 2d.

OLD FRENCH—Gavotte. Edited and arranged for the Organ by Arthur W. Marchant. (No. 57. Organ Arrangements edited by George C. Martin.) 1s.

POWELL, REV. JAMES BADEN—"Hail! Festal Day." No. 5. Second Setting, for Ascension Day. 3d.

During the last month—continued.

REYNOLDS, W. JOHN—"I heard a voice from Heaven." Anthem. 2d.

RODE, PIERRE—Concerto in A minor (No. 7). For Violin and Pianoforte. (No. 22. A Modern School for the Violin, by August Wilhelmj and James Brown.) 2s. 6d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 110. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Hearts feel that love Thee." Trio. For Female Voices. Composed by F. Mendelssohn Bartholdy. Two-part Exercises. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

	A.	B.
Book No. 90. The School Round-Book. A Collection of 100 Rounds, Catches, and Canons	—	6d.

SELBY, B. LUARD—(in A). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis (No. 2). For Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra. (No. 561. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

SMIETON, JOHN MORE—Romance, "Fair is thy form." From the Cantata "Connla." For Tenor. 1s. 6d.

STARK, HUMPHREY J.—"O Salutaris Hostia" ("Bread of the world"). Hymn. 1d.

STAINER, J.—"Now is the earth with God's glory rejoicing." Wedding Hymn. Words only, by E. M. Gordon, 2s. 6d. per 100.

—— "O God of Grace." Wedding Hymn. Words only, by E. M. Gordon, 2s. 6d. per 100.

STORER, FRANK—"The Lord is righteous." Anthem. 2d.

SULLIVAN, ARTHUR S.—"O Lord, on this last holy day." Hymn. For a "Last Sunday Evening" School Service. 2d. Words only, by Rev. A. N. Malan, 2s. per 100.

THORNE, E. H.—(in E flat). The Communion Service. (No. 534. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—

No. 1189.	Weep you no more, sad fountains	A. Redgrave Cripps	1d.
„ 1196.	Song of the Vikings	Eaton Faning	2d.
„ 1197.	Battle Song	T. R. G. Jozé	1d.
„ 1198.	Arranmore Boat Song.. ..	„ „	1½d.
„ 1199.	The Irish Reel	„ „	1½d.
„ 1200.	Far away	„ „	1d.
„ 1201.	Hearken unto this ..	H. Elliot Button	1½d.
„ 1202.	Great is the Lord ..	Arthur W. Marchant	1½d.
„ 1203.	Praise our God, ye people	Rev. E. Vine Hall	1½d.
„ 1204.	Look on the fields ..	Charles MacPherson	1½d.
„ 1205.	Behold, I have given you every herb	Cuthbert Harris	1½d.
„ 1206.	Sun of my soul	R. Dunstan	1d.
„ 1207.	The Lord is exalted	John E. West	1½d.
„ 1208.	The Joy of Harvest	J. H. Maunder	1d.

VIEUXTEMPS, HENRI—Rêverie. For Violin and Pianoforte. (No. 25. A Modern School for the Violin, by August Wilhelmj and James Brown.) 2s.

WESTOBY, CHARLES F.—(in G). Festal Responses. 2d.

WOLSTENHOLME, W.—Fantasia in E. (No. 23. The Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ. Edited by Edwin H. Lemare.) 2s. 6d.

ZIMMERMANN, AGNES—(in G). Benediction Service. (No. 32. Cantiones Sacræ.) 2d.

MR. BARTON McGUCKIN

Begs to state that, notwithstanding rumours to the contrary, he has not the slightest intention of retiring from professional life. He is prepared to accept Concert Engagements for the Autumn and Winter. Address, Mr. McGuckin, care of Cramer and Co., 207, Regent Street, W.

MR. R. A. ELLIS (Tympanist)
Brook Lynn, Chester.

CHORAL SOCIETY, N.W. District.—CONDUCTOR WANTED. Small remuneration. Further particulars, apply S., 12, Connaught Road, Harlesden, N.W.

INDIA.—TUNER and REPAIRER WANTED; also a Salesman. Age about 23. Apply, by letter, to S. Harraden and Co., 11, Rose Street, Newgate Street, London, E.C.

OLD-ESTABLISHED PIANOFORTE Tuning & Repairing BUSINESS for Disposal. 800 connections including several good contracts. Dixon, 7, Sainsbury Rd., Gipsy Hill, Norwood.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—ORGANISTS can PRACTISE on the Grand four-manual Organ by Willis (blown by hydraulic engines controlled from keyboard) in the Concert Hall of the Hampstead Conservatoire. The Hall is warmed by hot water. Specification of the organ, and terms of practice on application to the Secretary, Hampstead Conservatoire, Swiss Cottage, N.W.

N.B.—The Conservatoire is eight minutes by rail from Baker Street, Metropolitan Railway. Trains every ten minutes.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Eaton Faning (with special Portrait and Illustrations)	513
Handel's Borrowings (continued). By J. S. Shedlock	526
Occasional Notes	529
Charles Salaman (with Portrait and Facsimiles)	530
Alfredo Piatti (with Portrait)	534
Church and Organ Music	536
Professor Niecks on the Ethical Aspects of Music	542
Gloucester Musical Festival	545
Reviews	546
Royal Academy of Music	547
Royal College of Music	548
Royal Opera at Covent Garden	548
Mr. F. E. Weatherly on Thirty-three years of Song-Writing	548
The Incorporated Staff-Sight-Singing College	549
Two Cathedral Festivals (Peterborough and Ripon)	549
Educational Music in Manchester	550
The Heidelberg Festival	550
The Second Swiss Musical Festival	551
London and Suburban Concerts	552
Music in Dublin	554
" East Anglia	554
" Nottingham and District	554
" Edinburgh	554
Foreign Notes	555
Obituary	556
Correspondence	557
Miscellaneous	557
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	557
Answers to Correspondents	558
Music published during the last Month	559
Part-Song—'All the world is bright.'—H. E. Hodson	537
Chorus—'Be merciful, be gracious' ('Dream of Gerontius.')—Edward Elgar.—(Extra Supplement.)

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

Published on the 1st of every Month. Price 1½d. Annual Subscription, including Postage, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW for AUGUST

CONTAINS:—

General Notes.
Two-part Modulator Pointing.
The House in which Sir Arthur Sullivan was born.
"School Music Abroad."
Theory Questions.
Morecambe Musical Festival and Competition.
Music in Scotch Training Colleges.
School Sight-Singing Reader.—Tonic Sol-fa.
Music in Scotch Elementary Schools.
Death of Mr. John Farmer.
Answers to Theory Questions.
Temperance Fête at the Crystal Palace.
London Sunday School Choir.
Working Girls' Clubs' Choir Competition.
School Music Competitions at the Cape.
Miscellaneous Items.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

The AUGUST number contains the following music:—

"O Lovely Peace." Duet, from "Judas Maccabæus" (Transposed). By Handel.
"Our Native Land." Unaccompanied Two-part Song. By Methfessel.
Two-part Exercises.
Also, Extra Supplement, containing "To Primroses." Trio for S.S.A. (Unaccompanied). By Henry Hiles. (No. 568. Novello's School Songs. Price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Established 1887.] [Telegrams, "Vocalist, Liverpool."

SWEETMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY.

FOR ORATORIOS, RECITALS, ORCHESTRAL AND BALLAD CONCERTS, &c.,

135, Chatham Street, Liverpool.

Musical Notes.—Oldham Chronicle, Saturday, February 9, 1901: "There is probably no medium of the kind that is more wide in its operations and more honourable in its dealings than the Sweetman Musical Agency."

Sweetman's Professional Date Book now ready, 1s. Post-free.

NOVELLO'S ALBUMS FOR PIANOFORTE AND STRINGED INSTRUMENTS

(Two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello).

The Pieces in most of these Albums are so arranged that if any Part, or Combination of Parts, in addition to the First Violin and Pianoforte is used they will sound complete.

No. 1.
SUITE OF FOUR PIECES
By ARNOLD DOLMETSCH.
Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 2.
SUITE OF FIVE PIECES
By HENRY PURCELL.
Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 3.
THREE DANCES
From the Music to "Henry VIII."
By EDWARD GERMAN.
Price 5s. Separate String Parts, 1s. each.

No. 4.
GAVOTTE IN D
By RAMEAU.
Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 5.
SIX PIECES FROM THE WATER MUSIC
By G. F. HANDEL.
Price 3s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 6.
TWO BOURRÉES
By G. F. HANDEL.
Price 2s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 7.
BENEDICTUS
By A. C. MACKENZIE.
Price 3s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 8.
JUDEX FROM "MORS ET VITA"
By CHARLES GOUNOD.
Price 3s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 9.
WEDDING MARCH
By MENDELSSOHN.
Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 10.
WAR MARCH ("Athalie")
By MENDELSSOHN.
Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 11.
CORNELIUS MARCH
By MENDELSSOHN.
Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 12.
FUNERAL MARCH
By MENDELSSOHN.
Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 13.
GAVOTTE ANCIENNE
By GEORGE ELVEY.
Price 2s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

Nos. 14—17.
FOUR ENGLISH DANCES
By F. H. COWEN.
Price 2s. 6d. each. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

Nos. 18—21.
FOUR CHARACTERISTIC WALTZES
By S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.
Price 2s. each. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 22.
ANDANTINO
From the Symphony "The Consecration of Sound."
By L. SPOHR.
Price 3s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Maria L. Malibran

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 703.—Vol. 42. SEPTEMBER 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

There are now VACANCIES in the CHOIR for Sopranos, Tenors, and Basses (especially Tenors). Only those who have good and powerful voices, and who can read music at first sight, will be accepted. Address, The Secretary, Royal Choral Society, Royal Albert Hall, S.W.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus.D., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

Michaelmas Term begins Thursday, September 26. Entrance Examination therefor, Monday, September 23, at 9.30.

"THE ADA LEWIS SCHOLARSHIPS."—A Competition for the first five of these open free Scholarships will be held on Tuesday, September 24. Subjects: Singing, Pianoforte, Viola, Violoncello, Double-Bass. Full particulars on application.

"THE ROSS SCHOLARSHIPS" for Male Vocalists and Wood-wind Instrument Players. The first Competition for these Scholarships will be held on October 31. Full particulars on application.

Stainer Exhibition (value £20) for Organ Candidates will be awarded at the Entrance Examination in September. Particulars now ready.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

The NEXT TERM will commence on MONDAY, September 23.
Entrance Examination, Friday, September 20.
The NEXT EXAMINATION for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will be held in April, 1902.
Syllabus and official Entry Forms, may be obtained at the College, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.

FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Christmas F.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 6, 1902. The solo-playing tests are: Passacaglia in C minor, Bach (Vol. I., Peters' ed.; Book X., Novello & Co.: Vol. V., Augener & Co.). Sonata No. 2, in G minor, Op. 42, Merkel (Novello & Co., Augener & Co.). Concert Fantasia in D minor, R. P. Stewart (Novello & Co.).
The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 13.
The Book of Examination Papers may be obtained by Members, price 5s., postage 5d.
The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.
Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.
The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK.

SESSION 1901-02.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 16 to December 21), Winter Term (January 20 to April 5), Summer Term (April 7 to June 21). Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.
Prospectus and further information may be obtained from

ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

PROMENADE CONCERTS

(SEVENTH SEASON, 1901),

AUGUST 24 AND NIGHTLY AT 8.

CONDUCTOR:

Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA.

PRINCIPAL VIOLIN .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
ACCOMPANIST .. .. Mr. PERCY PITT.

SMOKING PERMITTED.

PROMENADE—ONE SHILLING.
Season Tickets (eleven weeks), 21s.
BALCONY, 2s.; GRAND CIRCLE (Numbered and Reserved), 3s. and 5s.; Season Tickets, £2 2s., £3 3s., & £5 5s.
To be obtained at ROBERT NEWMAN'S BOX OFFICE, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.

Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN is Sole Agent for the following Artists:—

Madame LILLIAN BLAUVELT.
Miss FLORENCE SCHMIDT.

Madame KIRKBY LUNN.
Miss JESSIE GOLDSACK.

Mr. FFRANGCON DAVIES.

Mons. YSAYE.
Madame VON STOSCH.

Herr HUGO BECKER.

Signor BUSONI.
Mr. MARK HAMBOURG.

All communications respecting engagements for the above Artists should be made direct to Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.

GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

September 8, 10, 11, 12, and 13, 1901.

Patrons: T.M.G.M. The King and Queen Alexandra

Principal Soloists:

Madame ALBANI, Madame ELLA RUSSELL, Madame SOBRINO, Miss HILDA WILSON, Miss ADA CROSSLEY, Miss MURIEL FOSTER, Mr. BEN DAVIES, Mr. WM. GREEN, Mr. ANDREW BLACK, Mr. PLUNKET GREENE, Mr. LANE WILSON.

Conductor .. .. Mr. A. HERBERT BREWER.

In the Cathedral:—

SUNDAY, at 3, Grand Opening Service.
TUESDAY, at 11.30, "Elijah."
TUESDAY EVENING, at 8 o'clock, Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony; "A Harvest Song" (Lee Williams); "Last Judgment" (Spohr).
WEDNESDAY, at 11.30, Symphony in C minor (Brahms); Mass in D (Cherubini); Organ Concerto (Handel); Motet for Double Choir (Lloyd), &c.
THURSDAY, at 11.30, "Eroica" Symphony (Beethoven); "Job" (Sir Hubert Parry); Requiem (Verdi).
THURSDAY EVENING, at 8, "Emmaus" (Brewer); "Sleepers, wake" (Bach); "Hymn of Praise."
FRIDAY, at 11.30, "Messiah."

In the Shire Hall:—

WEDNESDAY EVENING, at 8, GRAND MISCELLANEOUS CONCERT. New Orchestral Works by Cowen and Bell and New Cantata (Sir F. Bridge); "Cockaigne" (Elgar); "Last Post" (Stanford).
Admission: Reserved Seats, 15s. to 1s. 6d. A Set of Tickets (transferable), admitting to best seats at all performances and rehearsals, £3 13s. 6d.; ditto, admitting to best seats Tuesday Evening, Wednesday Morning, Thursday Morning and Evening, and Rehearsal, £1 15s. Applicants for these tickets have priority of choice.
For Programmmes, Tickets, &c., apply Minchin and Gibbs, Westgate Street, Gloucester.

P. BARRETT COOKE, Secretary, Gloucester.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.
For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.G., K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.
First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.
Provincial Examinations in all subjects, for Certificates and Diplomas, A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., October, November, and December. Metropolitan Examination, December 5. Local Theoretical Examination at all Centres in December.
Holder of the Victoria College Vocal Scholarship, 1901: Miss Lottie L. Wakelin.
Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.
Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.
All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.
President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in November and December, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.
Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.
The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.
Free register for Organists requiring appointments.
For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC, Ltd.

Patron: The Duchess of Marlborough.
Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L.
Examinations, November and December.
Local Examinations. Diplomas. Medals.
Publishing Association. Members wanted. Co-operate! Become free from publishers (great advantages). Join for Oct. Catalogue.
W. J. MOSS, Sec., 193, Sutherland Avenue, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS ANNIE DAYMOND, A.R.A.M. (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Peverey, New Clive Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS AMY FLETCHER (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.
11, Highbury Grange, N.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MISS KATE WELCH (Soprano)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Address, 4, Halliwell Street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MISS MARGARET VON BARGEN (Contralto)
Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, &c.
Care of John Gray, 15, Francis Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS MARIE BISHOP (Contralto)
Oratorio, Operatic, Ballad Concerts, Recitals, and Lessons.
Terms, &c., 31, Great Western Street, Alexandra Park, Manchester.

MISS FLORENCE DAWNAY (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
"She has an agreeable voice, well trained, and a good method."—The Times, July, 1901.
Address, 10, Wetherby Terrace, Bolton Gardens, S.W.

MISS KATE GREGORY
(The new Yorkshire Contralto)
Professional Pupil of Albert Jowett, Esq., Yorkshire Training College of Music, Leeds).
Oratorios and Ballad Concerts.
Terms, apply, Doncaster.

MADAME ANNIE GREW (Contralto, Medalist)
Waverley Road, Bradford.

MISS GERTRUDE HEY (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Lawn Side, Clarendon Road, Whalley Range, Manchester.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.)
Address, 21, Mysore Road, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. CHARLES ELLISON (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c.
Engaged: Hull, Liverpool, Lancaster, Glasgow, Aberdeen, and Newcastle.
Address, 42, Florence Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. SAM HORTON (Tenor, Medalist)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
20, Norwood Road, Headingley, Leeds.

MR. BARTON McGUCKIN
Begs to state that, notwithstanding rumours to the contrary, he has not the slightest intention of retiring from professional life. He is prepared to accept Concert Engagements for the Autumn and Winter. Address, Mr. McGuckin, care of Cramer and Co., 207, Regent Street, W.

MR. FRANK PEMBERTON (Tenor)
Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, &c.
Address, care of 10, King Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. WALTER CHIPPINDALE (Baritone)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Address, Rawdon, Yorkshire.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. HESKETH MEADE
(Principal Bass, Church of the Holy Name, Manchester).
Terms, &c., 50, Clarendon Road, Manchester.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass)
Oratorios and Concerts.
45, Pentonville Road, N.

SIGNOR NICOLA COVIELLO (Cornet Soloist)
Clubs, Dinners, Lessons, &c.
Write to Balham School of Music, S.W.

MR. R. A. ELLIS (Tympanist)
Brook Lynn, Chester.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

B. E. KENT (Lyric Authoress).
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto) is now booking ENGAGEMENTS for Seasons 1901 and 1902. Engaged August and September in Provinces. All communications to be addressed to 14, Gladsmuir Road, Whitehall Park, N.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON and Mr. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE beg to announce that during their Canadian tour (from which they expect to return on or about September 22) all communications respecting engagements will be promptly attended to if addressed, as usual, The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

MISS TERESA BLAMY
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios and Concerts.
Among next season's engagements already booked is the Liverpool Philharmonic Society, November 5.
Address, 36, Westwick Gardens, W. Kensington; or, usual Agents.

MADAME LOUISE BURNS
(SOPRANO).
Silver Medal, R.A.M.
Erin, Riffel Road, Willesden Green, N.W.

MISS NINA CARLTON
(DRAMATIC SOPRANO).
Concerts, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
Address, 10, Chalk Farm Road, N.W.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N

MISS CORDELIA GRYLLS
(SOPRANO)
(Pupil of Miss Marie Fillunger.)
For Chamber Music Concerts, Instrumental Recitals, &c.
"A sweet voice, and her method is perfect."—Standard.
Recently engaged: Oxford U.L., Mus. Soc., Balliol Concerts.
MR. LEONARD BORWICK'S PIANO RECITAL, RUGBY.—"The vocalist was no unworthy coadjutor of the pianist."—Rugby Advertiser.
10, Swiss Terrace, N.W.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO),
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MISS KATHERINE NASH
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A.
Address, 10, Mount Pleasant Mansions, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MADAME
ANNIE NORLEDGE
(SOPRANO),
23, Millgate, Newark-on-Trent.

MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
39, Blandford Square, N.W.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MISS NELLIE WILLIS
(SOPRANO).
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
For terms, &c., address, 120, Bentley Road, Doncaster.
"Miss Willis met with a flattering reception and the heartiest appreciation. She possesses a voice of remarkable range, flexibility, and sweetness. She received an ovation for the 'Nightingale's trill.'"—Lancaster Standard.
"Miss Willis, who has a fine, clear soprano voice, sang excellently, and her singing was very highly appreciated."—Malton Messenger.

MADAME ELIZA THOMAS
(CONTRALTO).
For Oratorios, Ballades, &c. Now booking dates.
For terms, new circular, &c., address, Zion House, Harlesden, N.W.

MISS K. KELYN WILLIAMS
(CONTRALTO)
(Late John Thomas Welsh Scholar).
Goldberg Prize, Silver Medalist, and Certificate, R.A.M.,
Medalist, Society of Arts.
15, South Grove, Peckham, S.E.

MR. JOHN COATES
(THE NEW TENOR)
Of the Royal Opera, Covent Garden; engaged for the Leeds Festival; is now booking Oratorio and Concert Engagements.
9, Hyde Park Mansions, N.W.

MR. TREVOR EVANS
(TENOR. HIGHLY COMPLIMENTED BY MADAME PATTI).
"I am delighted with his voice, which I consider charming."—Adelina Patti.
Booking for all the Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, London, N.W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 27, Warwick Road, Ealing, W.

MR. BRIGHT JONES
(Late PRINCIPAL TENOR, Moody-Manners Opera Company).
Terms, apply, Glenhurst, Bath; or, C. W. Sinkins, 63, Berners St., W.

MR.
JAMES LEYLAND.
"HIAWATHA."
DUNDEE CHORAL UNION CONCERT.
"Mr. James Leyland sang 'Onaway! awake, Beloved!' with freedom of style and warmth of feeling; at the conclusion of which, chorus as well as audience forgot in their enthusiasm the propriety of postponing their applause until the Symphony was ended."—The Courier, March 27, 1901.
"'Onaway! awake, Beloved!' was splendidly rendered by Mr. James Leyland."—The Advertiser, March 27, 1901.
"To Mr. James Leyland must be accorded the honours of the evening. His is a tenor voice of rare quality, and his phrasing and enunciation were delightful."—Evening Post, March 27, 1901.
"Mr. Leyland's singing of 'Onaway, awake, Beloved!' was admirable."—Evening Telegraph, March 27, 1901.
Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. HARRY TUDOR
(PRINCIPAL TENOR of the Church of The Holy Name, M'chester
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Terms, &c., 35, Mauldeth Road, Withington, Manchester.

MR. DAN BILLINGTON
THE CELEBRATED YORKSHIRE BARITONE (Vide Press)
(Soloist of the Leeds Festivals, Sir Chas. Hallé's and the Principal Provincial Concerts).
34, Hanover Square, Leeds.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE).
MR. HENRY J. WOOD (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.
"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.
"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.
"HENRY J. WOOD."

AND

MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO).
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(BARITONE)
(Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts),
7, Station Terrace, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES

(BARITONE)

Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, Chester, and Dover Musical Festivals.
Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts.
Crystal Palace and principal Provincial Concerts.

"KING SAUL," SHEFFIELD MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.—"Mr. Charles Knowles imparted to the character of Samuel much of the sternness and severity associated with 'Elijah.' His fine, powerful voice was hardly suggestive of the 'aged seer,' but he was most impressive throughout, and in the scene with the people he asserted the prerogative of the Prophet with all the dignity of one accustomed to command. In the dialogue with Saul he was excellent, and his interpretation throughout the part was very fine. In the scene at Endor the utterances of Samuel were solemnly delivered, and altogether Mr. Knowles advanced his already high position."—Birmingham Post, October 14, 1899.

"SAMSON AND DELILAH."—"Mr. Charles Knowles was excellent as Abimelech."—Morning Post, October 16, 1899.

"Mr. D. Bispham and Mr. Charles Knowles, as the High Priest and Abimelech, entered thoroughly into the spirit of the work."—The Times, October 16, 1899.

CHESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL, July 25, 26, 27, 1900.—"ZION" (Gade).—"The baritone solo was sung by Mr. Charles Knowles with much earnestness and effect."—Daily Telegraph, July 26, 1900.

"In which Mr. Charles Knowles sang the solo part very ably."—The Times, July 31, 1900.

"The solitary solo was powerfully sung by Mr. Charles Knowles."—Yorkshire Post, July 26, 1900.

"FAUST."—"Mr. Charles Knowles had in Brander a part peculiarly suited to his powers. In the closing cadence of the burlesque Amen Chorus, his stentorian voice told against the whole body of men's voices with an effect quite unique."—Yorkshire Post, July 27, 1900.

"ST. PAUL," HANLEY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—"Mr. Charles Knowles, a well-known Yorkshire bass, who now sung for the first time, won much favour by reason of his fine voice and artistic methods."—Staffordshire Sentinel, March 30, 1901.

"GOLDEN LEGEND," DOVER MUSICAL FESTIVAL.—". . . with the vindictive 'Here am I, too,' were splendidly rendered. Mr. Knowles sang Lucifer's song with great vigour and power, and was loudly applauded."—Dover Express, May 3, 1901.

"Mr. Charles Knowles, as Lucifer, gave the opening, 'Hasten, hasten!' in the prologue in robust style, his fine bass voice being at once heard to advantage."—Dover Standard, May 4, 1901.

"SAMSON," LEICESTER NEW MUSICAL SOCIETY.—"The treat of the evening was to hear Mr. Charles Knowles sing 'Honour and Arms.' This solo is, perhaps, the finest in the oratorio, and Mr. Knowles sang it with the greatest vigour and energy. At the conclusion he was rewarded with a burst of applause such as is not often heard, but he did not repeat the number. His splendid voice was heard to equal advantage in 'Thy glorious deeds' and in the duet 'Go, baffled coward,' with Mr. Saunders."—Leicester Post, November 30, 1900.

"HIAWATHA," CLIFTON CHORAL SOCIETY.—"Mr. Charles Knowles imparted a good deal of character and vividness to the personality of Hiawatha by his fine delivery of the several baritone solos assigned to the young Indian Chief, and especially in the admirable solo, with chorus, in which the latter takes leave of Nokomis and his people."—Bristol Times, May 7, 1901.

"GATE OF LIFE," CRYSTAL PALACE.—"Mr. Charles Knowles' powerful organ delivered the utterances of the High Priest with full effect."—Daily Telegraph, August 19, 1901.

For terms and vacant dates, apply, 24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

MR. JOHN BROWNING

(BARITONE),

SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1898,
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal, Leeds Parish Church, &c.

"ELIJAH."—"One of the best interpretations of the music and words of the Prophet that we have heard for many years was given by Mr. Browning."—Huddersfield Examiner, December 14, 1900.

"JUDAS."—"His superb rendering of 'The Lord worketh wonders' will long be remembered by all who heard it."—Annandale (Scotland) Observer, March 15, 1901.

"LAST JUDGMENT" AND "CRUSADERS."—"His voice is of fine volume, and his enunciation and declamation are perfect. He was conspicuously successful."—Dumfries Standard, March 9, 1901.

"KING OLAF."—"As Ironbeard, his masterly rendering of the lines allotted to the heathen chieftain was fine in the extreme."—Rotherham Advertiser, March 30, 1901.

"CREATION" AND "A STRONGHOLD SURE."—"He is never content with past triumphs, and on every appearance sings like a giant refreshed. He puts his soul into his song, and this is the secret which makes him a favourite wherever he goes. The duet, 'Our utmost might,' was superbly sung."—Saltburn Times, March 22, 1901.

Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. ROLAND HOYLE

(BARITONE).

Terms, Press notices, &c. Dalby Street, Longsight, Manchester.

MR. JOHN RIDDING

(BARITONE).

152, Lambeth Road, London, S.E.

MR. ARTHUR BARLOW

(BASS).

Address, 6, Beech Mansions, West Hampstead, N.W.
Telegrams: "Arthanita, London."

MR. CHARLES TREE.

"ELIJAH" (Coventry, Jan. 10).—"A powerful rich voice of great compass. Sang the Prophet solos as they have not been sung in Coventry for a long time. Took his audience by storm."—Herald.

Address, 23, Clifton Road, Maida Vale, London, W.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN

(BASS-BARITONE).

Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. WATKIN MILLS

Has REMOVED to BROADLANDS, TORQUAY, for the summer months only, and has appointed Messrs. HEALEY & SON sole Business Managers, to whom all business communications should be addressed.

Notwithstanding rumours to the contrary, Mr. Watkin Mills has not the remotest intention of retiring from the profession.

HEALEY & SON,
17, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.,
Sole Business Managers.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT

Begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to
105, Brondesbury Villas, London, N.W.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MR.

WILLIAM LLEWELLYN

(Principal Bass, Royal Opera House, Covent Garden; Royal Choral Society's Concerts, Albert Hall; Crystal Palace Concerts; Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society's Concerts, &c.) begs to announce his

RETURN TO LONDON

and that he is booking dates for the coming season for

ORATORIO, CLASSICAL AND BALLAD CONCERTS.

ENGAGEMENTS BOOKED INCLUDE—

Birmingham Festival Choral Society (Verdi's "Requiem")
Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society ("Elijah").
Cardiff Musical Society ("Alexander's Feast").
Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society ("Israel in Egypt")
Hereford Festival Choral Society ("Acis and Galatea"), &c., &c., &c.

Address: Principal London Agents: or,

13, MARGARET STREET, CAVENDISH SQ., LONDON, W.

MR. STEDMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY

(Established 1877).

Artists or Opera, Theatre, Oratorio, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Choruses, Choir Boys and Girls.
Singing Lessons and Coaching.
58, Berners Street, W.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)

(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

BASS.—Advertiser requires POSITION as SOLOIST or ASSISTANT-SOLOIST in Catholic Choir, W. or N.W. Catholic. Good voice; extensive range. Experienced. Vox, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. ARTHUR SEDGLEY
(BASS).
For Oratorio, Opera, and Ballad Concerts.
PRESS NOTICE.—"Mr. Arthur Sedgley's rich bass voice was heard to advantage in that most exacting solo 'Arm, arm, ye brave,' which he sang with a style and dash which drew from the audience a well-deserved encore."—Birmingham Dart.
For terms, &c., apply, 51, Worcester Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. HERBERT WALENN
(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MISS ELLEN CHILDS
(CHROMATIC HARPIST)
Having studied in Paris under the direction of the Inventor, Miss Childs is prepared to give LESSONS on the NEW CHROMATIC HARP (without pedals). For terms, apply, 170, Belsize Road, N.W.; or, care of Messrs. Pieyell Wolff, Lyon and Co., 79-80, Baker Street, Portman Square, W.

MISS GERTRUDE WESLEY
(SOLO HARPIST AND CONTRALTO),
High Street, Doncaster.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.
PRESIDENT, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.
Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.
A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Road, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

ORATORIO QUARTET, also Concert Party, with Specialty or Humorist. Artists' names, terms, and vacant dates, Mr. Egbert Roberts, 45, Pentonville Road, N.

HUGO GÖRLITZ,
MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC AGENCY,
119, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON, W.

Sole Manager for "Phil May."
Correspondents throughout the World.
Representative of all leading Artists.
Nine years Private Secretary to Mr. Paderewski.
Director of all PADEREWSKI TOURS in America, Mexico, Canada, Russia, Holland, and Germany.
Telephone: 4013 "Gerrard."
Telegraphic address, "Hugonotas," London.
Sole Manager for KUBELIK for Great Britain and America.
Kubelik American Tour, December, 1901, to April, 1902, under the management of Messrs. DANIEL FROHMAN and HUGO GÖRLITZ.
All communications to be addressed to HUGO GÖRLITZ, 119, New Bond Street, London, W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.

SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. JAMES BATES, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, 289, High Road, Lee, S.E.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppel St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac. Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MISS ADELINE M. JELF, A.G.S.M. (Accompanist); also gives Lessons in Pianoforte and Harmony. Address, 25, Winterbrook Road, Herne Hill, S.E.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1901, 1900, and all previous years; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1900 and 1901; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music, Composition, and Pianoforte Teaching); CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M., L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that TWENTY-ONE of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1901. Hazelwood, Dollis Rd., Finchley, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1901, SEVENTY-SEVEN passes, L.R.A.M., 1897-1901, TWENTY-SEVEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

MR. HERBERT C. MORRIS, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Organist of St. David's Cathedral), has a VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL. Recent Successes: 1899, A.R.C.O. (2), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., and Organ Scholarship R.C.M.; 1900, A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O.; 1901, A.R.C.O. (2), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. Address, The Cathedral, St. David's, Pembrokeshire.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c.—Mr. JOSEPH SPAWFORTH, A.R.A.M. (formerly pupil of Professor Ebenezer Prout, Mr. Frederick Corder, and Mr. Davenport, at the Royal Academy of Music), gives LESSONS, Privately or by Post. Pupils prepared for the theoretical portions of all examinations. Apply, by letter, for terms, &c., to 67, Parliament Hill, N.W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

MR. STRETTON SWANN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS or prepares for EXAMINATIONS Personally or by Post.
New Hydraulic Organ, seven minutes from London Bridge, 181, Longley Road, Tooting, S.W.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES for EXAMS. Lessons follow closely lines of latest Exam. papers. Terms strictly reasonable. Many years' experience. 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

VOICE PRODUCTION and SINGING.—Mr. EGBERT ROBERTS gives PRIVATE LESSONS, and Coaches Artists in Opera and Oratorio at their residence, or at 45, Pentonville Road, N.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

VOICES TRAINED (Altos included) and Sight-Singing and the PIANOFORTE TAUGHT by Mr. W. A. FROST (Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral), at 16, Amwell Street, Myddelton Square, E.C. Many pupils of Mr. Frost have obtained Cathedral and other Choir Appointments in open competitions.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M. LESSONS at 60, Berners Street, W., in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. Letters, 87, Herbert Rd., Plumstead.

TRAINING of TENORS.—Mr. E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N. The principles on which Mr. Davidson Palmer's Method is based are fully explained in his book, "THE RIGHTLY-PRODUCED VOICE," which contains information of the utmost importance to tenors. Price, bound in cloth, 2s. 6d., Post-free, from the Author.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for RÉPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

CHOIR TRAINING.—Mr. AUGUSTUS TOOP'S speciality.—Clergy can hear Choir at St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, W., any Friday evening, by appointment. Address, 34, Winchester Avenue, Brondesbury, N.W. Assistance given to young organists by arrangement.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir for an ALTO, either a Lay Clerk or Choral Scholar. Stipend offered, £80 a year (with certain allowances in case of Choral Scholar).

The Competition will be held some time in October next.

For further information, apply to the Dean, King's College, Cambridge.

Applications to be sent in by Ocober 9.

ALTO REQUIRED, for West-End Church. £15. Communicant. Precentor, All Saints', Notting Hill.

ALTO and TENOR WANTED, at Michaelmas, for St. Clement Danes, Strand, W.C. £10. Practice, Thursdays, 7.45. Write F. J. Marchment, Wingfield, Hamlet Rd., Upper Norwood.

TENOR WANTED, at St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, W. Good quality voice and experienced sight-reader essential. One understanding Part-singing, and enthusiastic in his art, desired. Salary, £20. Three Sundays holiday in August. Write, stating past experience, to Mr. Augustus Toop, 34, Winchester Avenue, Brondesbury, N.W.

VACANCY for TENOR, in City Church. £5 for expenses. Apply, Mr. Gough, 69, Allerton Road, Stoke Newington.

WANTED, a TENOR (for Essex Church, Kensington, near Tube). Salary, £15. Apply to A. Joll, 37, Bark Place, W.

TENOR WANTED, Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Surrey. Two services, Sunday. Rehearsal, Wednesday. Musical service and opportunity of solo work. £10 per annum. Apply, by letter, R. P. Hart, 7, Aloa Road, Putney, S.W.

BASS WANTED, for Holy Trinity Church, Gray's Inn Road. £8 to commence. Apply, Organist.

SOPRANO, highly cultivated (compass 3 octaves), will accept low terms this season for Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Répertoire, over eighty works. Address, Soprano, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE PRINCIPAL of a very important SCHOOL is willing to receive YOUNG LADIES of MUSICAL ABILITY, who play the Violin or Cello, at very moderate terms, for the encouragement of Music. Name and address may be obtained from Mr. Hurry, 2, Lower Clapton Road, N.E.—The Daughters of Clergymen are received in the same way.

WANTED, a further selection of original HYMN TUNES and CHANTS. For particulars send ½d. stamped addressed envelope to G. Grove, 166, Goldhurst Terrace, London, N.W.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC, Ltd.

Warden: Professor ALEX. PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.

Musical Examinations held in all towns, November and December. Diplomas—Associate, Licentiate, and Fellow granted.

Apply, Sec., 60, Berners St., London; or, 5, Hardman St., L'pool.

ORGANIST.—WANTED, Gentleman (Catholic) as ORGANIST for Church of The Sacred Heart, Exeter. Salary, £50. Apply, Very Rev. Canon Hobson, Exeter.

WANTED, an experienced ORGANIST for a small organ, at Woodford Union Church. Salary, £30. Apply, by letter, with refs., to H. E. Kaye, Inglenook, Woodford Gn., Essex.

CHRIST CHURCH, Woburn Square.—ORGANIST REQUIRED. Thorough Choir Training essential. Address, Rev. Prebendary Glendinning Nash, 92, Gower Street.

WANTED, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for St. Peter's Church, Sudbury, Norfolk. Salary, £50. Applications to Dr. H. A. Harding, Bedford.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Christ Church, Cork. £50 per annum. Applications, with copies of testimonials, addressed to the Hon. Secretary, Select Vestry, not later than September 7.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of an important Parish Church desires APPOINTMENT within 20 miles of London. Experienced. Very successful with boys' voices. Mus. Bac. Highest references. B. C. D., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

GENTLEMAN, F.R.C.O., experienced Organist and Choir-trainer (Anglican or Gregorian), Organ Recitals, &c., desires immediate APPOINTMENT. Country or near London. Lately Organist and Director of the Choir of well-known church. Highest testimonials and references. Apply, Positive, Messrs. Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

EXPERIENCED ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (L.Mus., T.C.L., F.R.C.O.) desires APPOINTMENT. Successful with boys' voices. Satisfactory reason for change. Highest refs. H., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

EXPERIENCED ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires APPOINTMENT. Country town preferred. Very successful with boys' voices. Excellent testimonials. Seven years present appointment. F., 8, Sumner Road, Peckham.

LADY offers ASSISTANCE with ORGAN. Norwood, Croydon, Crystal Palace district, or distance by arrangement. Good refs. W., c/o Mr. Smyth, Organ Studio, Forest Hill, S.E.

EVERY ORGANIST should send for DINHAM, BLYTH & CO.'S Specimens and Price List (free) for Lithographing Anthems, Kyries, Hymn Tunes, &c., from twenty-four Copies and upwards. 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827.) Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smith's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—ORGANISTS can PRACTISE on the Grand four-manual Organ by Willis (blown by hydraulic engines controlled from keyboard) in the Concert Hall of the Hampstead Conservatoire. The Hall is warmed by hot water. Specification of the organ, and terms of practice on application to the Secretary, Hampstead Conservatoire, Swiss Cottage, N.W.

N.B.—The Conservatoire is eight minutes by rail from Baker Street, Metropolitan Railway. Trains every ten minutes.

WANTED, thoroughly qualified TUNER, for outdoor work, by leading house in the West of England. Good permanent situation for competent man of good address. Send references, photo (to be returned), and full particulars, to C. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER (First-class) WANTED. Good references indispensable. Good salary and a life-long position for a good man. Address, H. B. L., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER WANTED. Must be first-class Man, with knowledge of Repairs. Liberal salary to energetic man. Send photo and references, and state salary required. Maxwell and Sons, Wimbledon.

WANTED, First-class TUNER, able to do small repairs and to understand American Organs and Harmoniums. Permanency. Good references required. Apply, stating age, height, and salary wanted, to H. Austin Storry, 16, Palmerston Road, Southsea.

GOOD REPAIRER and TUNER WANTED, for High-class Firm in Midlands. Must be first-class repairer of pianos and thoroughly understand American organs. Good salary and permanency to a competent man. Apply, F. N. and Co., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER seeks RE-ENGAGEMENT. Knowledge of Organs and Harmoniums. Aged 25. Apply, R. H., 283, Harvest Road, Kensal Rise, London.

EXPERIENCED TUNER and REGULATOR requires ENGAGEMENT in London. Address, F. G., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

TUNE YOUR OWN PIANO.—Easy INSTRUCTIONS by Professional Tuner with extensive experience. Postal order, 1s. J. Bagshaw, 69, Park Road, Blackpool.

PARTNER WANTED, in an old-established TEACHING CONNECTION. Must be a good practical musician. Apply, stating qualifications and giving references, X. Y. Z., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PARTNERSHIP OFFERED in first-class PROVINCIAL PIANOFORTE BUSINESS, doing splendid and increasing business. Capital required, from £1,000 upwards. Apply, Provincial, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

APPRENTICE REQUIRED, for high-class Piano and Music Warehouse. To live at proprietor's country residence by arrangement. Dewey, Sutton, Surrey.

WANTED, an ASSISTANT for Sheet Music Counter. Must be of gentlemanly appearance and address, well up in catalogues, and able to buy when required. Full particulars, in confidence, and photo, which will be returned, to Musicus, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, young LADY for Music Trade. Good player indispensable. Apply, XX., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS.—A GENTLEMAN, with four years' factory experience (Messrs. Kirkman's and Collard's), and four in the highest class provincial music warehouse, desires POST for experience in sale and counter work, with view to partnership. Highest references given and required. Address, P. P., care of Messrs. R. F. White and Son, General Advertising Agents, 33, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

ORGAN for SALE. Eight stops and Pedals. Apply, Messrs. Telford, 109, Stephen's Green, Dublin, where organ can be seen. Price £35.

ORGAN for SALE (New). 2 manuals, 12 stops. Bourdons and Pedals. Organs tuned and repaired. R. Cope, Organ Builder, 74, Asylum Road, Peckham, S.E.

ORGAN (Fine-toned modern two-manual). Contains twelve stops, and all the latest improvements. Price, £180. Warranted for ten years. Organist, 24, Endsleigh Gardens, Gordon Square, London, W.C.

PIPE ORGAN for SALE.—1 manual, pedals, foot and hand blower, 7 stops. Height, 7-ft. 9-in.; width, 5-ft. Excellent condition; polished mahogany; pipes gilded. Cost £80; accept £40. E. Bates, 74, High Street, Chatham.

CHURCH ORGAN (Two manuals). Contains seventeen stops. Decorated front pipes. Price, £100. Space urgently required. Full particulars on application. Organist, 24, Endsleigh Gardens, Gordon Square, London, W.C.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments, for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

VARIOUS high-class ORGANS. Suit Church or Chapel. Two and three manuals. Constructed with all modern appliances. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester, and Preston.

A LADY wishes to DISPOSE OF her CHAMBER ORGAN, built by BEVINGTON AND SONS. 10 stops, 4 couplers, Bourdon on separate pedal organ, 4 composition pedals. Blown by hand or water. Pump and fittings. Apply to A. B., Kirkfell, Tunbridge Wells.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case: in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron-frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage paid, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher-class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

UNIVERSITY of ADELAIDE.—ELDER PROFESSOR of MUSIC and DIRECTOR of the ELDER CONSERVATORIUM of MUSIC.—APPLICATIONS for the above offices, to be held jointly, will be received by the State Agent for South Australia, at 1, Crosby Square, London, E.C., up to and including Monday, September 23 next. Salary, £800 per annum. The duties will commence on March 3, 1902. Further information re terms and conditions may be inspected at the office of the State Agent as above.

THE Master, Wardens and Court of Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Musicians offer a PRIZE of FIFTY GUINEAS, together with the Freedom and Livery of the Musicians' Company, for the COMPOSITION of an ORCHESTRAL MARCH, suitable for performance at Festivities which may be held in celebration of the Coronation next year.

Adjudicators: Sir Frederick Bridge (Past-Master of the Musicians' Company), Sir Walter Parratt (Master of the Music to the late Queen), and Sir Hubert Parry (Director of the Royal College of Music).

All particulars and conditions of the prize may be learned on application to the Clerk of the Company, J. T. Theobald, Esq., 35, Bedford Row, London, W.C.

By order,
(Signed) JOHN CLEMENTI COLLARD, Master.
July 24, 1901.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE.—Three-manual (CC to G) and Pedals (CCC to F), 33 stops, £350; Two Manuals and Pedals, £175 and £145; One Manual and Pedal Bourdon (10 stops), £65; also Chamber Organs, 20 guineas and 15 guineas. Inspection invited. Specifications and estimates furnished on application. Eustace Ingram, Organ Builder, only address, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

VIOLIN, labelled "H. FURBER, London, 1886," with bow and case. £10. Miss Grigg, Orchard Court, Stevenage.

FOR SALE.—RUMMENS' ORGAN PEDALS (best Birch). Only used a few times. Perfect condition. 5 guineas. Can be seen by appointment. Apply (by letter only) to Munro Davison, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

RUMMENS' ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT to PIANOFORTES for Home Practice of Organ Music. Straight and Concave, Radiating and Concave, or any other form of Pedal Board. Inspection invited. Lists free. 1, Wynne Road, Brixton, S.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.

(ESTABLISHED 1841.)

Specifications and Estimates sent free.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights. Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

TO COMPOSERS.

MARRIOTT AND WILLIAMS,

MUSIC PUBLISHERS,

92, GREAT PORTLAND STREET, LONDON, W.,

Undertake the Revising, Engraving, and Publishing of Authors' Musical Works in the very Best Style and at the lowest charges.

The Finest Paper used and the Best Workmanship in the trade.

Estimates free on receipt of MSS. Composers' works included in list without extra charge.

PRIVATE ROOMS FOR PRACTICE AND TEACHING.

Lessons by competent Professors given in every branch of Music, Vocal and Instrumental.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

(INSTITUTED 1872.)

MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.

President:
THE RIGHT HON. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.

Director of Examinations:
JAMES HIGGS, Mus.D.

Registrar:
J. GORDON SAUNDERS, Mus.D.

FIFTY-SIXTH HALF-YEARLY HIGHER EXAMINATIONS.

Diplomas and Certificates were presented at the Public Distribution by the Warden (Dr. E. H. Turpin), on Wednesday, July 31, 1901, at 11.30 a.m., to the following SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES:—

LICENTIATES IN MUSIC.

Samuel Bath, Mus.B., Harold Edward Mackinlay, Percy Fairbrother Ramsey.

ASSOCIATES IN MUSIC.

Catherine Berry, Edward Brown, Marion Elsie Carlile, Ernest John Downer, George W. Hedges, Catherine Stapledon Hiley, Samuel Douglas Baker Hughes, William Henry Lees, Thomas Charles Newland, William Ratcliffe, Louise Rex, Ethel Alice Rowland, Myles Frederick Taylor, Emily Trigger, Evelyn Mabel Walkley, Ethel Muriel Theresa Woollatt.

MATRICULATION.

HONOURS.—Louisa Isabel Allen, Gertrude Annie Brookfield, Ida Elizabeth Denne, Harry Lawson Lake, Alfred Lawrence Potter.

PASS.—Blanche Elizabeth Ballantine, Thomas Arthur Hollister Sheppard.

ORGAN ASSOCIATES.

Emma Bowman, Thomas Arthur Hollister Sheppard.

CERTIFICATED ORGANISTS.

Albert Alphonse Nicholls, Arthur William Robinson, Winifred M. Smyth.

CERTIFICATED VOCALISTS.

Beatrice Maud Beard, Marguerite Ethel Boyton, Lillian Rose Coleman, Florence Marshall, Silas Palmer.

ASSOCIATE VIOLINIST.

Bernard Hahn.

CERTIFICATED VIOLINISTS.

Benjamin Albert Gill, Kate Skudder.

ASSOCIATE PIANISTS.

Emily Bratt, John Humby Cowan, Mary Ethel Rosamond Cox, Rose Keen, Hilda King, Winifred Mabel Nash, Alice Neale, Arthur M. Reeves, Margaret Whitty.

CERTIFICATED PIANISTS.

Edith Adams, Jessie Haines Adcock, Ethel Mary Alston, Muriel Dupen Baxter, Fanny Helen Bennitt, Rose Alice Boyling, Georgina Maud Breeze, Enid Mary Brown, Annie Brownhill, Ruth Hannah Byrne, Edith Clark, Katherine Rosa Clements, Edith Florence Cook, Edward Dunton, Walter Elliott, Maude Evans, Florence Finn, Lillibelle Gibson, Violet Gladwell, Ida Kjerstin Goulding, Dorothy Harris, Ellen Maud Hill, Frances Mary Holbrooke, Nellie King Hollands, Florrie James, Nina Elizabeth Jefferies, Clara Beatrice Jones, Edith Mary Lancaster, Mary Barnhill Macdonald, Archibald Victor May, John Henry McBratney, Ethel McMillan, Gertrude Lucy Morris, Lilian Adelaide Newton, Isaac Nicholson, Frances Louise Peake, Mildred Pepper, Annie Griselda Porter, Hilda Geraldine Powell, Bertha Louise Susie Prout, Lizzie Radcliffe, Jane Clark Reid, Madeline Betsy Reynolds, Bertha Riedlinger, Kathleen Maud Ruel, Vivienne Scott, May Shepherd, Winifred Rose Shrimpton, Kathleen Harriet Smith, Susan Anne Maud Taylor, Maud Thompson, Annie Louise Toogood, Cissy Wale, Emily Harriet Wellington, Daisy White, Eglantine Beatrice Wood, Lillie Agnes Woodrow, Marguerite Campbell Worth, Frances Wotton.

HARMONY CERTIFICATE.

HONOURS.—Francis William Harris, Rev. Frederick H. Reichardt, M.A.

PASS.—Eveline Ellen Armstrong, Gertrude M. Boys, Frances Emma Fox.

COUNTERPOINT CERTIFICATE.

George Henry Sadler.

Number of Candidates, 276. Total number of passes, 112.

EXAMINERS.—G. E. Bambridge, Granville Bantock, Francesco Berger, Henry R. Bird, Sir Frederick Bridge, Mus.D., Charles Copland, W. Creser, Mus.D., A. E. Drinkwater, M.A., Myles B. Foster, Charles Gardner, Alfred Gilbert, A. J. Greenish, Mus.D., James Higgs, Mus.D., Rev. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, Mus.D., Haydn Keeton, Mus.D., Walmsley Little, Mus.D., F. G. Mitford Ogbourne, Guido Papini, C. W. Pearce, Mus.D., Rev. Edgar Sheppard, D.D., E. H. Turpin, Mus.D., and A. H. Walker, B.A., Mus.D.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

BROADWOODS' (ESTD. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (HIGHEST POSSIBLE AWARD)
PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.
Established 1865.
Principal: T. H. YORKE TROTTER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. Yorke Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

Score, 6s.; Parts, 12s. 6d.

ALEX. C. MACKENZIE

CORIOLANUS SUITE.

Written for the Coriolanus production at the Lyceum, and also performed with great success at the recent Verdi Memoriam Concert at the Queen's Hall. To be performed, Sept. 2, at Harrogate, conducted by the COMPOSER; also by Dr. F. H. Cowen's Orchestra; and at Boston, U.S.A., &c.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

OSCAR BERINGER

SCALE & ARPEGGIO MANUAL. 2s.

English and Foreign fingered Editions. Used at the Royal Academy, Royal College, and at the Conservatoriums of Leipzig, Vienna, Stuttgart, Würzburg, &c. Daily Technics, complete, 6s. net.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

SEVCIK VIOLIN METHOD.

KUBELIK. KOCIAN.

Another Sevcik pupil, Kocian, three years younger than Kubelik, has scored, if possible, an even greater success at his Examination Concert in Prag than Kubelik or any other pupil—Ondricek, de Sicard, Kubelik, Kocian. These continued successes speak sufficiently for this really great Method. Particulars from any Musicseller.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

Moore, Graham P.—First Principles of Technic, 3s. 6d.; Hohman, Hans Sitt—Violin Tutor, 3s.; Krimaly—Scale Studies (Violin), 2s. 6d.; Singer, E.—Studies for Violin, 2s. 6d.; Pischna, Ruthardt—Piano Studies, 2s.; Stanford, C. V.—Piano Trio, 6s.; Arensky—Trio in D, 8s.

BOSWORTH AND CO., 5, PRINCES ST., OXFORD ST., W.
And at LEIPZIG, PARIS, VIENNA.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
SEPTEMBER 1, 1901.

MALIBRAN AND MUTLOW.

The reason for the juxtaposition of these two names may not at first sight appear very obvious. Such justification as may be necessary is furnished by the near approach of the Gloucester Festival, at the Meeting of which, in the year 1829, Malibran drew crowded audiences, and drew Mr. Mutlow. No attempt will be made in this holiday article to give detailed biographies of the lady or gentleman in question, but only such incidents in their careers will be set forth as are consonant, for the most part, with light reading.

The prima donna of the past was a capricious creature, with a pet poodle, pussy, or parrot, and an unpetted husband. But Maria Felicità Malibran, one of the greatest of the craft, was made of sterner stuff. The daughter of Manuel Garcia the elder, she was born at Paris on March 24, 1808. Her brother Manuel, long resident in London, and now hale and hearty in his ninety-seventh year, is three years her senior, and her highly-gifted sister, Madame Viardot Garcia, the fortunate possessor of the autograph score of Mozart's 'Don Giovanni,' has recently become an octogenarian. At the age of five, Maria played a child's part in Paër's opera, 'Agnese.' 'So precocious was she that, after a few nights of this opera, she actually began to sing the part of Agnese in the duet of the second Act, a piece of audacity which was applauded by the public.'

In the autumn of 1817 her father brought her to England. She could then, at the age of nine, speak fluently the Spanish (her father was a Spaniard), Italian and French languages. She soon acquired a knowledge of English during the two and-a-half years she was a schoolgirl in a convent at Hammersmith. Not long after, she learned to speak German with equal facility. In London she received good lessons in pianoforte playing whereby she was able to play Bach, a specially favourite composer of her father's.

It was in London, on June 7, 1825, that Malibran made her debut in opera, in the character of Rosina in Rossini's 'Il Barbiere.' Although she took the part as a stop gap and did not make a specially great sensation, the management engaged her for the remainder of the season (about six weeks) at a fee of £500. This young girl of seventeen—too young, indeed, to be put forward as a prima donna—was referred to as the daughter of Garcia, then the principal tenor of the opera company. At the end of the season, Garcia took his daughter to the York Festival—September 13 to 16, 1825—where she sang 'Rejoice greatly' and 'On mighty plumes' (as the Harmonicon has it) in the Cathedral, and took part in the secular concerts.

Immediately after the Festival at York, she accompanied her father to New York, 'where,' she said, 'I kept up my English, but did not improve it.' The enthusiasm of the New York public knew no bounds in regard to the young singer's wonderful vocalization. In the midst of this popularity, and much against her will, her father gave her in marriage to M. Malibran, an elderly Frenchman, whose supposed riches were doubtless regarded as a set off against his grey locks. The marriage, which took place exactly one day after her eighteenth birthday, proved to be a ghastly failure. Whatever may have been M. Malibran's musical attainments, his only known composition was a composition with his creditors. The bankruptcy of the elderly bridegroom took place within a year of the nuptial ceremony, and Maria left him. She subsequently married Charles August de Beriot, the celebrated violinist, who survived her. Curiously enough, however, notwithstanding that her first marriage was annulled, she professionally retained the name of Malibran—a name by which she is always known. For the remaining few years of her short life the successes of Malibran, as one of the great queens of song, were in the nature of a series of triumphs, not only in opera on the continent and in London, but also as an exponent of sacred music at the various provincial musical festivals in England—in fact, Maria Malibran, both as a singer and as a woman of a remarkable personality, was a great favourite in this country.

She died while fulfilling an engagement at an English musical festival—that of Manchester, in 1836. She arrived at Manchester, from Paris, on Sunday, September 11, in that year, and sang in no less than fourteen pieces on the following evening. Though weak and ill on the Tuesday, she insisted upon singing both morning and evening. On Wednesday, notwithstanding her critical state, she sang 'Sing ye to the Lord' with 'a sustained fervour and brilliancy of tone, as if she had been in perfect health.' In this heroic achievement her magnificent voice was heard for the last time in sacred music. At the evening concert she took part in a duet with Madame Caradori Allan—'Vanne se alberghi in petto,' from Mercadante's 'Andronico.' It was received with immense enthusiasm, and she actually repeated the performance; but while the concert room was ringing with applause, she was fainting in the arms of her friends. Nine days later—September, 23, 1836—at the Mosley Arms Hotel, Manchester, Maria Malibran passed away, after a period of great suffering, at the age of twenty-eight. Mrs. Vincent Novello was one of the kind-hearted English friends who watched at the bedside of the great singer during the last six days of Malibran's fast-ebbing life, when the fever-stricken patient suffered agonising pain. In a sympathetically written account of that wearisome week in the Manchester inn, Mrs. Novello has related that Malibran, when in a very low-spirited condition, said to her: 'Manchester will have my bones.'* This utterance proved, alas! to be only too true. Her remains were laid to rest in the south aisle of the Collegiate Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Manchester (now the Cathedral), on October 1; but on the following December 20, they were removed from Manchester for re-interment in the cemetery of Laeken, near Brussels.

The glorious voice of Malibran was contralto in quality, with a compass of three octaves. Her speaking voice also exercised a peculiar charm over those who came under the spell of her fascinating personality. H. F. Chorley—no mean judge of a good thing—thus wrote of her in the Athenæum of October 1, 1836:—

In both characters [as a singer and an actress] she was distinguished above all her contemporaries by versatility, power and liveliness of conception. She could play with music of every possible style, school, and century. We have heard her, on the same evening, sing in five different languages; giving with equal truth and character the intense and passionate scena from 'Der Freischütz,' and those sprightly and charming Provençal airs, many of which were composed by herself. The extensive compass of her voice enabled her to command the whole range of songs which is usually divided between the contralto and soprano. She was, it is true, often hurried away by the tameless vivacity of her spirits into flights and cadences which were more eccentric than beautiful; we have heard her, in the very wantonness of consummate power, rival the unvocal arpeggi of De Beriot's violin, and execute the most sudden shakes and divisions upon those highest and deepest notes of the voice which less perfectly trained singers approach warily and with preparation. But those know little of the dignity Madame Malibran could assume, or of the unexaggerated expression which she could throw into music, even the plainest and least fantastic, who are not familiar with her Oratorio performances;—with the earnest pathos of her scena, 'Deh parlate' (Cimarosa's noblest song); with the calm and holy sweetness of her Pastorale from 'The Messiah,' 'He shall feed his flock,'—or, in a strain loftier than these, her delivery of that most magnificent of recitatives, 'Sing ye unto the Lord,' from 'Israel in Egypt.' In this last she so completely identified herself with the spirit of the scene, that no painter of 'Miriam the Prophetess' ever dreamed of face, form, or attitude more appropriate—more instinct with sublime triumph than hers at that moment!

Mr. Julian Marshall has well said, 'It was, after all, her mind that helped to enslave her audience.' As Sir Joshua Reynolds once answered an admirer as to how he (Sir Joshua) mixed his colours, 'With brains, madam,' so it was with Malibran. But she was by no means a mere warbling songstress. Her interests and accomplishments were extraordinarily varied. She was an intrepid horsewoman, a capital dancer, an inimitable caricaturist, a humorous concocter of charades and riddles, and—though some 'superior' persons may regard this as a weakness in her character—she could make a very good pun. Yet, upon the slightest indication, she would set aside any trifle that apparently absorbed her whole attention, and discuss with discriminate enthusiasm the genius of Dante or Shakespeare, Raphael or Michael Angelo. She was an excellent pianist, and composed many very creditable songs. Moreover, she had considerable talent for drawing—in short, her versatility was quite phenomenal.

Her kindness knew no bounds. When John Parry, the humorous vocalist, gave a concert, he engaged Malibran on her usual terms—twenty guineas. When he called to pay her she would not take a single shilling, but told him that as she had passed many pleasant evenings with him at Naples, and as he was a young man just commencing his professional career, it afforded her much pleasure 'to lend him a helping voice'!

Two incidents will illustrate the 'good company' side of Malibran's personality. The first is told by Moscheles, who says:—

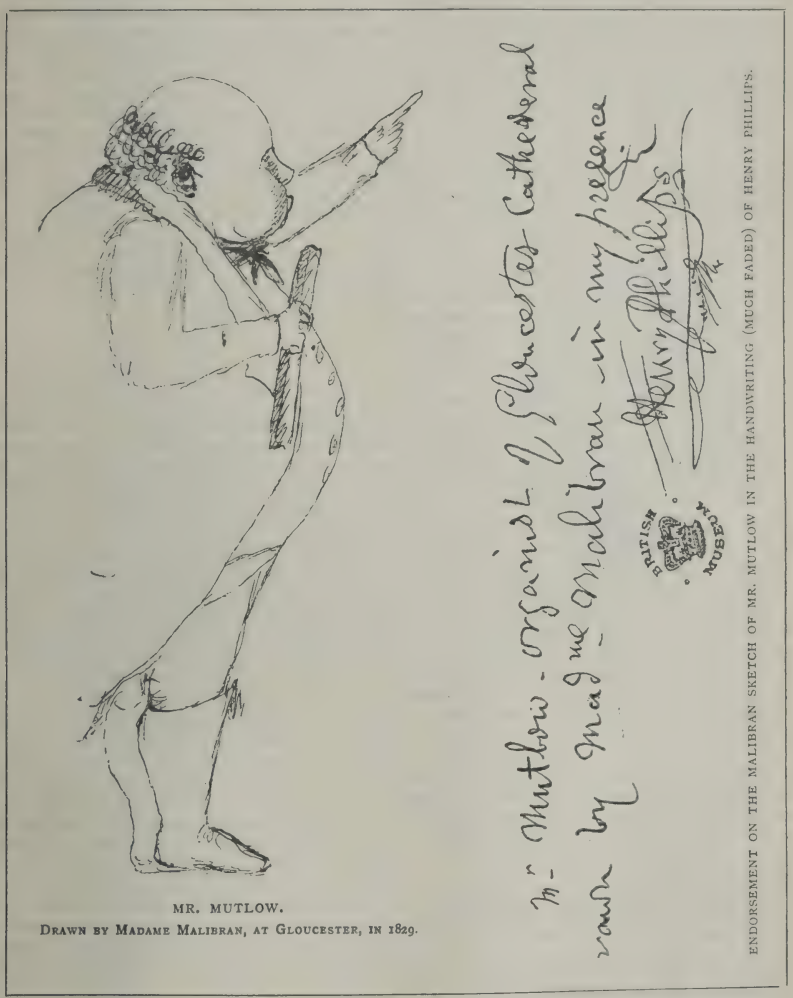
We had great fun the other day when Malibran and De Beriot joined us at our early dinner. The conversation turned upon Gnecco's comic duet, which Malibran sang so frequently and so charmingly with Lablache. In this, man and wife ridicule each other's shortcomings. When she came to the passage 'La tua bocca è fatta apporta,' she said, 'Just like my mouth, as broad as you please, and I'll just put this orange in to prove it.' One must have known De Beriot to appreciate his amazement and agony at seeing his wife open her mouth so wide, and to see the orange hidden between the rows of her beautiful teeth. Then she roared with laughter at her successful performance.

Immediately after our early dinner—Thalberg, Benedict and Klingemann being of the company—Malibran sat down to the piano and 'sang for the children,' as she used to call it, her Rataplan and some of her father's Spanish songs. For want of a guitar accompaniment to the latter, she would, while playing, every now and then mark the rhythm on the board at the back of the keys.

Then followed a visit to the Zoological Gardens, and after supper Malibran kept us all on the go. She gave us the richest imitations of Sir George Smart, the singers Knyvett, Braham, Phillips, and Vaughan, who had sung with her at a concert given by the Duchess of C., taking off the fat Duchess herself, as she condescendingly patronised 'her' artists, and winding up with the cracked voice and nasal tones of Lady ——, who had inflicted 'Home, sweet home' on the company. Suddenly her comic vein came to a full stop, when she gave in the thorough German style the scena from 'Der Freischütz,' with German words, and a whole series of songs in German by Mendelssohn, Schubert, and Weber; lastly, she took a turn at 'Don Giovanni,' in which she was not only familiar with the music of Zerlina, but she knew by heart every note in the opera, which she could play from beginning to end. She went on playing and singing alternately until eleven o'clock, fresh to the last in voice and spirits. When she left us we were all in raptures about her music, languages, and painting; but what we liked best of all was her artlessness and amiability.

* 'The Last Days of Madame de Beriot.' By Mary Sabilla Novello. Contributed to the Musical World of October 14, 1836.

Let us change the scene to a musical evening given nearly seventy years ago by Vincent Novello, at his house, No. 67, Frith Street, Soho. After Malibran had sung several songs, concluding with a spirited mariner's ditty with a heave-ho burden, and which she accompanied herself, she went up to one of the heartiest among the applauding guests—Felix Mendelssohn—and, in her most winning and playfully-imperious manner, made all the more fascinating by her foreign accent, said: 'Now, Mr. Mendelssohn, I never do nothing for



MR. MUTLOW.
DRAWN BY MADAME MALIBRAN, AT GLOUCESTER, IN 1829.

ENDORSEMENT ON THE MALIBRAN SKETCH OF MR. MUTLOW IN THE HANDWRITING (MUCH FADED) OF HENRY PHILLIPS.

nothing; you must play for me, now I have sung for you.' He, nothing loth, allowed her to lead him to the pianoforte, where he dashed into a wonderfully impulsive extemporaneous performance—masterly, musicianly, and full of vivacity. One of the company on that occasion was Abraham Mendelssohn, father of Felix, then on a visit to London with his son. In a letter to his wife Mr. Mendelssohn, Senr., describes the Novello party. Here is an extract, written by an exceedingly shrewd, level-headed man nearly sixty years of age, relating to Madame Malibran's performances:—

Although this lady commands four languages in her singing (Italian is a matter of course), that does not show, any more than I can describe it, with what flowing, glowing, and effervescing power and expression, with what caprice and boldness, passion and esprit, with what assurance and consciousness of her powers, this woman, whom now I do appreciate, sang these ditties. From the same throat issued Spanish passion, French coquetry, with again a touch of primitiveness, English unpolished soundness, and also that somewhat frivolous but fresh and most characteristic French audacity, with plenty of her own remarkable individuality — she loved, yearned, rowed, and drummed with such wonderful self-possession, such bold command and lavish expenditure of her inexhaustible means, that one may truly say she sang songs without words, she sang sentiments, effects, situations. It was something quite new to me, and I wish you could have heard her!

Malibran had an ingenious and effective, if painful method of inspiring her tenor, John Templeton (a Scotchman, by the way), with a due sense of emotional feeling in operatic performances. For instance, if she could not otherwise attain her object, she would give him a good pinch on the arm, an operation which to the audience simply appeared as the bestowment of a tender caress which her jealous lover so naturally resented! On one occasion Malibran gave poor Templeton such a sharp nip that he stamped his foot in sheer agony. To his surprise this unpremeditated piece of 'stage business' brought down the house; it thenceforth became one of the great effects in the opera. She used often to sing with Henry Phillips, the Santley of that day, who made a great success with a ballad by Balfe, entitled 'The light of other days.' One evening, Balfe gave a little supper party at his lodgings in the Quadrant, Regent Street, to which Malibran and Phillips were invited. When the latter arrived at the house, the passage and stairs were in darkness. On asking the servant how far he should ascend, Phillips heard Malibran calling out at the top of the stairs: 'Quick, quick, give me a candle: here is the "light of other days" coming up in the dark!'

Her gift of letter-writing in the English language is shown in the three following letters addressed to the impresario and poet, Alfred Bunn. We print them in their original form:—

My Dear Mister Bunn,

I am so horse that I am really afraid not to be able to sing to-night. I tell you this in order to give you time to do something to prevent a noise this evening at the Theatres.

It makes me the most unhappy being in the world. Do come and see me; you'll judge by yourself. You know, also, that unless it was quite impossible for me to sing, I would not give it up upon the mere consideration of hurting myself a little.

Come—that's the best way to see the evidence of what I tell you in the greatest distress. Maria.

My dear Bunn,

I cannot promise to play the part of Count Belino. The music is exceedingly weak, and, after the Sonnambula, I am not capable of singing baby's music; however, I don't say positively no until I have seen both the Music and the pice again, for it is about eight years that I have not even herd the part; therefore, be so good as to send the whole to me, and I shall give you a conscientious answer, quite A la Malibran.

St. James Street, Mardi.

Again and again, alwais me, and eternally me, my dear Mister Bunn, I have been tormenting poor Chelard out of his wits. I want to have my part to practice it, know it, and be able to play in 10 days the latest. I am sure if you give proper orders for the copy of the parts, we shall be all ready, at least I will be ready in 8 days. . . . but . . . rehearsals, parts, rehearsals, parts, orders, rehearsals, no rehearsals without parts, no parts without orders, and no orders without my eternal hints, and my never ending letters, since it appears you will not do me the high honour of comming at my house for a quarter of an hour to have a little settling chit-chat. However it may be, I wait your pleasure, noble cousin, and humbly beg for an answer when it may suit your Majesty. Nonsense apart, pray say yes or no, for it would be too late to give orders for the copies in a few days. We should not have the necessary time for learning.

Believe me,
Yours, &c., &c.
Maria Malibran.

Once, on the stage of Drury Lane, Malibran heard the manager-poet in a bad temper speaking very harshly to a humble member of his company. 'I shall call you Good Friday,' she shouted, 'because you are a hot, cross Bunn!'

The portrait of Madame Malibran, which forms one of our Extra Supplements, is by Alfred Edward Chalon, R.A. (1780-1860), painter in water colours to Queen Victoria, and, in his day, a fashionable portrait painter. It was drawn in 1830, when Malibran was twenty-two, and it is considered the best representation of her. A note by the artist states: 'After playing Fidalma in Cimarosa's opera "Il Matrimonio Segreto," Malibran went into a pit box to see the Ballet, or rather to afford the public a better opportunity of appreciating her powers of transformation.'

It is now time to turn to the consideration of Mr. Mutlow, who was connected with the music of Gloucester Cathedral for the long period of sixty-three years. William Mutlow was born, probably at Gloucester, in 1761.* The following interesting particulars concerning him have been kindly extracted from the Dean and Chapter Act-Books, specially for

* A Thomas Anthony Mutlow, son of Thomas Mutlow, of Gloucester, Gent., may have been a brother of William. He (Thomas Anthony) was admitted a chorister of Magdalen College, Oxford, on January 18, 1788. He matriculated in 1793, and graduated in 1797. He held a minor canonry at Canterbury Cathedral, 1803-28, and was rector successively of St. Andrew's with St. Mary's, Beardman, Canterbury, and of Preston, near Wingham, Kent. As a chorister, Thomas Anthony Mutlow sang a solo at two out of the three concerts given at Oxford, in July, 1791, at which Haydn was present when taking his degree. Master Mutlow's name is duly recorded in C. F. Pohl's interesting and valuable book 'Haydn in London.' The young gentleman was engaged as one of the soloists at the Gloucester Festival of 1790.

this article, by Mr. A. Herbert Brewer, the present organist of Gloucester Cathedral :—

16th Jan. 1769.	Ordered that Willam Mutlowe be admitted a Chorister upon probation in the room of John Birt.
23rd June 1780.	William Mutlow was and is elected Master and Teacher of the Choristers and his salary to commence from Lady day last. And it is also ordered that he be paid a guinea as a gratuity and as a mark of the satisfaction of this Chapter in his exertion in teaching the boys.
29th Nov. 1781.	Martin Smith resigned as Organist.
18th Dec. 1781.	William Mutlow appointed Organist.
In Nov. 1781. — 2. — 3.	£5 voted to Mr. Mutlow (in each year) for extraordinary diligence in teaching the boys.
1809.	£10 added to his salary.
3rd June 1812.	£20 added to his salary, as a proof of the satisfaction of the Dean and Chapter with his attention to the duties of his office.

From the above it will be seen that Mr. Mutlow, unlike some cathedral organists, even at Gloucester, was not in the habit of getting into hot water with the Dean and Chapter. It should be added that he was apprenticed to Martin Smith, organist of Gloucester from 1740 to 1782, and the father of Stafford Smith; also that, at the age of twenty-one, he succeeded Smith, and held the post of organist of Gloucester Cathedral for fifty years and fourteen days. Although Mutlow was much engaged in tuition, he led the tranquil life of a country cathedral organist of a hundred years ago, before the time of railways and similar contributions to the rush of modern life. He is said to have been remarkable for the kindness and benevolence of his disposition, and a man who was greatly esteemed. He died on New Year's Day, 1832, and his remains are interred in the Cloisters of Gloucester Cathedral. His pupil, John Amott, succeeded him in the organistship, and Amott in turn gave place to Samuel Sebastian Wesley.

Mutlow was not at first appointed conductor of the Festivals of the Three Choirs held at Gloucester by virtue of his office.* His first Festival was in 1790, at which time he had held the post of organist for nearly nine years. It appears that in 1788 King George III., with his queen and three of the elder princesses of that monarch's numerous progeny, attended divine service in Gloucester Cathedral, 'when,' according to the Gloucester Journal, 'their Majesties (both good musicians) expressed to Dean Tucker their admiration of Mr. Mutlow's performance.' This royal expression of opinion may have paved the way to the instalment of Mutlow in the conductorship of the Festivals.

It was at the Festival of 1829 that Malibran made the acquaintance of Mr. Mutlow. On that occasion she sang for the first time at a Meeting of the Three Choirs, and it was her only appearance at Gloucester. From the columns of the Gloucester Journal, a newspaper which goes back as far as 1722, we learn that 'The Choral Band, which will be numerous and supported by the celebrated Female Singers from Lancashire, with those from Birmingham, has been selected with great care.' In regard to the attainments of the 'Instrumental Band,' we are told that 'every finger seemed to obey the beck of Cramer, who led with his accustomed skill,' which, of course, implies that Cramer

WILLIAM MUTLOW,
ORGANIST OF GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL, 1782—1832.
(From 'Annals of the Three Choirs,' by kind permission of Mr. H. Godwin Chance, M.A., one of the Editors.)

was virtually the conductor. A great crowd attended the morning service, at which 'many females were carried out in a fainting state.' The prayers were read by the Rev. W. W. Mutlow, a son of the organist-conductor and a minor canon of the cathedral. The subjoined extracts from the Gloucester Journal, recording Malibran's demeanour and achievements at the Festival, speak for themselves :—

To remarkable powers of voice, she unites singular clearness of articulation; and her style of singing is strongly characterised by that depth of feeling which constitutes the very soul of music. There is something in her demeanour, too, which is very pleasing; and we were delighted to observe that both she and Mrs. Knyvett invariably took a prominent part in the responses of the day—a point not always attended to by the principal singers on such occasions as the present.

. . . For the song of Jeany Gray, Madame Malibran substituted a very pleasing French ballad, in which she accompanied herself on the piano-forte.

. . . The whole company were enraptured with Madame Malibran's execution of Bishop's air, Should he upbraid, and a general encore was the natural consequence. Madame Malibran still further charmed the company by the ready and obliging manner in which she complied with the request of one of the Stewards to favour them with another song, when she instantly took her seat at the piano,

* The Gloucester Festivals of 1784 and 1787 were conducted by Mr. Elias Isaac, organist of Worcester Cathedral from 1748 (?) to 1793. He was a pupil of Dr. Greene, and, although organist of Worcester, he conducted five, if not six, festivals held at Gloucester.

and with a degree of archness and good humour peculiarly her own, gave the lively and playful air Rampataplan, which was loudly commended. (Gloucester Journal, September 26, 1829.)

The Rampataplan above referred to was Malibran's own composition—her 'Rataplan'—which she used to sing with wonderful verve and abandon.

The sketch of Mr. Mutlow drawn by Madame Malibran, which we reproduce in facsimile, together with an endorsement of its genuineness in the handwriting of Henry Phillips, was made at the Gloucester Festival of seventy-two years ago. It depicts the old cathedral organist as the possessor of a considerable amount of avoirdupois—in other words, as a man of weight.

F. G. E.

NOTES ON THE WORDS OF BEETHOVEN'S CHORAL SYMPHONY.

It is remarkable how an author of words set to music has to take a back seat in comparison with the composer. This is curiously exemplified in Wagner's well-known analysis of and article upon the Choral Symphony, in which he makes no mention whatever of Schiller. The following remarks upon Schiller's poem are offered as a small contribution to the history of Beethoven's symphonic masterpiece.

The Lied an die Freude, a portion of which forms the choral section of Beethoven's 'No. 9,' was written by Friedrich Schiller in the year 1785. He was then twenty-five, and lived in a house at Gohlis, a pretty village in the Rosenthal, near Leipzig. We give a photograph of the house, upon which a tablet has very properly been fixed.

Schiller shared this modest dwelling-place with his friend, Herr Goschen, grandfather of Viscount Goschen. This is verified in a letter to us from the Viscount, dated the 8th ult., in which he says:—

> It is quite correct that at the date when Schiller wrote Lied an die Freude he shared a little cottage at Gohlis with my grandfather, then just a beginner in the publishing business, but afterwards a famous publisher and printer. I visited the cottage myself a few months ago. It is kept much as it was in those days; the accommodation must have been most simple and rural.*

Schiller had a love affair at Gohlis, in which one Margareta Schwan played a part, but the poet's proposal to the fair damsel was ruthlessly set at nought by the young lady's father in consequence of Schiller's pecuniary shortcomings. May it not be assumed that the Ode to Joy was written while Cupid held possession of his breast? Carlyle calls the Ode 'one of his (Schiller's) most spirited and beautiful lyrical productions.' He says 'it bespeaks a mind impetuous even in its gladness, and overflowing with warm and earnest emotions.'

Beethoven first conceived the idea of setting to music the Ode to Joy 'verse by verse' as early as 1792, just after he had entered upon the twenty-third year of his life. A resident at Bonn, writing to Schiller's sister Charlotte, on January 26, 1793, said:—

> I enclose a setting of the Feuerfarbe on which I should like your opinion. It is by a young man of this place whose talent is widely esteemed, and whom the Elector has sent to Haydn at Vienna. He intends to compose Schiller's Freude, verse by verse. I expect something perfect; for, as far as I know him, he is all for the grand and sublime.

No traces of the music to the Ode of that date remain, and it was not till thirty years later that Beethoven carried out, though in a very different manner, the intention formed in his youth. The story of its gradual evolution and complete achievement as a masterpiece of music has been so admirably told by the late Sir George Grove in his 'Beethoven and his Nine Symphonies,' that there is no need to repeat it here. One specially interesting extract, as having an important bearing on the subject of the choral portion of the symphony, may, however, be quoted:—

> Beethoven has not used half of Schiller's words, nor has he employed them in the order in which they stand in the poem; and the arrangement and selection appear to have troubled him much. The note-books already cited abound with references to the 'disjointed fragments' (abgerissene Sätze) which he was trying to arrange and connect—so as not necessarily to employ the whole of Schiller's long Ode—'*Abgerissene Sätze wie Fürsten sind Bettler u.s.w. nicht das Ganze.' In making his selection Beethoven has omitted, either by chance or intention, some of the passages which strike an English mind as most risqués in Schiller's Ode: such as—
>
> Dieses Glas dem guten Geist
> Ueberm Sternenzelt dort oben!
>
> Here's a glass to the good Spirit
> Up above the stars so high!
>
> and the omissions furnish an example of the taste by which his colossal powers were, with few exceptions, guided. Another point which puzzled him greatly was how to connect the vocal movements with the instrumental ones. His biographer, Schindler, gives an interesting description of his walking up and down the room endeavouring to discover how to do it, and at length crying out, 'I've got it, I've got it.' Holding out his sketch-book, Schindler perceived the words, 'Lasst uns das Lied des unsterblichen Schiller singen'—Let us sing the song of the immortal Schiller—as a recitative for the basses, with the words of the Ode itself following immediately for soprano solo. And though this was altered almost as soon as written down—the words of the recitative being changed into 'O friends, not these tones; let us sing something pleasanter, and fuller of joy!' and the words of the Ode itself being given first to a solo voice—yet the method of the connection remained the same. How strongly is all this hesitation corroborated by Beethoven's own words to

* The interesting fact may be recalled that Viscount Goschen's father, then resident in England, was one of the small circle of friends at the house of Sir George Smart, in Great Portland Street, who were the last to speak to Weber before he retired to rest on the bed from which he was never to rise again. (Vide The Musical Times, July, 1893, p. 399.)

* These strange words refer to a line, 'Bettler werden Fürsten-Brüder' ('beggars shall be royal brothers'), which formerly stood in Schiller's poem. Schiller's original title of the Ode is said to have been 'An die Freiheit'—to Freedom, not to Joy; which throws a light on the tumultuous revolutionary phrases of the poetry.

*Rochlitz in 1822—'You see, for some time past I have not been able to write easily. I sit and think, and think, and get it all settled; but it won't come on the paper, and a great work troubles me immensely at the outset; once get into it, and it's all right.'

In a paper read before the Musical Association on February 12, 1895—his only contribution to the 'Proceedings' of that learned Society—Sir George Grove called attention to a characteristic alteration by Beethoven of Schiller's text. It occurs at the words 'Was die Mode streng getheilt' (Novello's octavo edition, p. 83, et seq.).† 'Beethoven,' says Grove, 'excited with the subject, and indulging his usual love of plain speaking, has changed Schiller's word streng (or strictly) into frech (or insolently)—namely,

THE HOUSE AT GOHLIS, NEAR LEIPZIG, WHERE SCHILLER WROTE HIS 'ODE TO JOY.'
(From a Photograph taken by Herr Franz Hoffmann, of Leipzig.) from 'that which fashion strictly parts,' into 'that which fashion rudely parts.' Surely,' he continued, 'so characteristic and personal a touch of the great composer's might have been suffered to remain! But no! in the octavo and subsequent editions the word streng has been restored, and here again without a word to show that any alteration has been made. Had Beethoven,' eloquently argued this enthusiastic Beethoven-lover, 'Had Beethoven been a second-rate composer, we might have challenged his changing a word in the text; but Beethoven was not second-rate. He

* Für Freunde der Tonkunst, iv., 358.

† On the authority of Pölitz, a well-known German litterateur, an older version of this line is said to have been—
'Was der Mode Schwert getheilt.'

held the same rank in music as Schiller in poetry, if not a higher rank,' and so on in the same enthusiastic and hero-worship strain.

Three other known settings of Schiller's Ode to Joy may soon be dismissed. The first is by Baron J. F. H. Dalberg (1752-1812), and consists of a few bars for solo and chorus in A, six-eight rhythm, repeated verse by verse ad nauseam. The second is an anonymous inspiration, a feeble thing of eighteen bars to which the eight stanzas of the poem are intended to be sung, one after another, with wearisome reiteration. The third claims a little more attention by reason of its scope and attempt at something better. It is the composition of one Tepper von Ferguson, a native of Warsaw, who was Kapellmeister at St. Petersburg in 1801. It is for solo voices and chorus, and the date assigned to it is 1797. The list of subscribers to the work includes two who were resident in London, set forth as Herr P. J. F., one copy, and Herr J. V. P., eight copies. Why did these two dwellers in the Metropolis modestly withhold their full patronymics? Curiously enough, under the place-heading 'Berlin' in the subscription list, is a 'Mister Levi of Cowes'!

It appears that in the year 1879, Dr. Joachim told Sir George Grove that 'Weber, writing in June, 1811, to Simrock, the publisher, of Bonn, says that he is composing Schiller's Ode An die Freude for orchestra, solos, and chorus, and asks if he (Simrock) will publish it.' Is anything known of this composition? How interesting it would be to compare the settings of Schiller's Ode by the composers of Der Freischütz and Fidelio.

SCHUBERT'S SETTING OF THE TWENTY-THIRD PSALM.

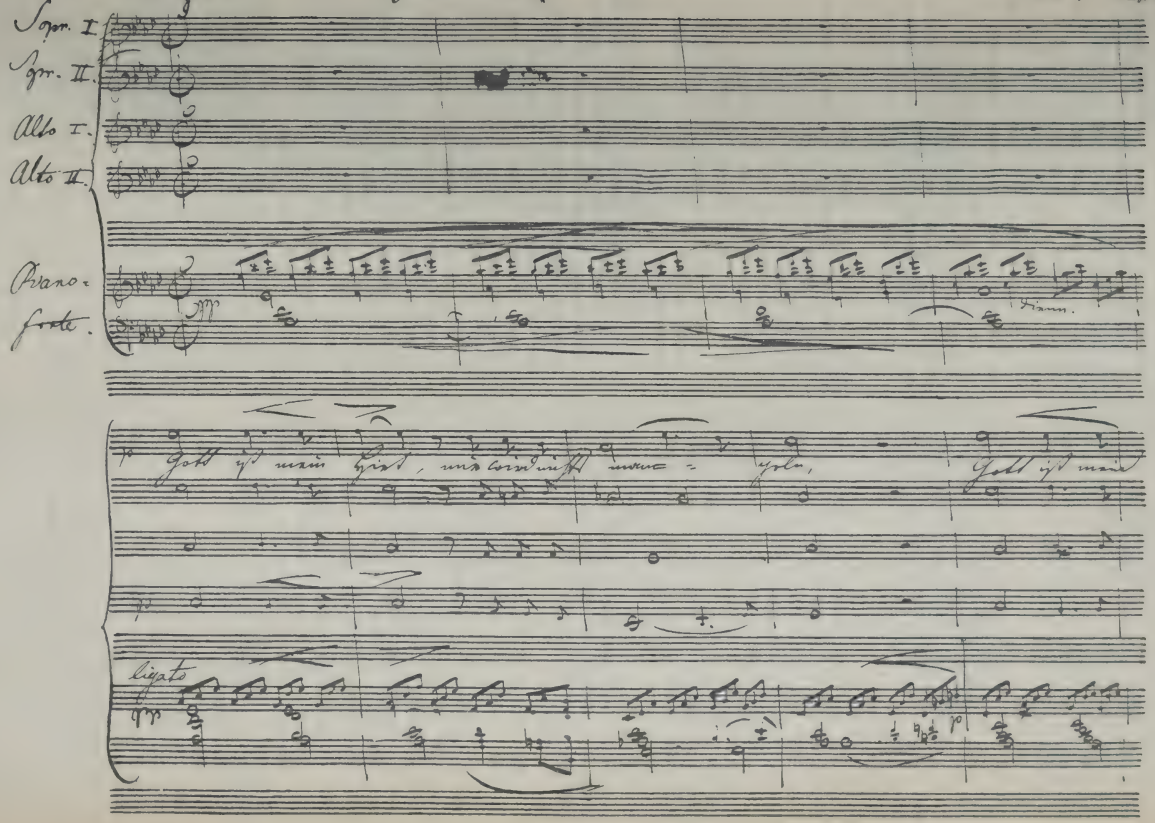
Of the many precious productions which emanated from the brain of Franz Schubert, one of the most beautiful is his setting of the Twenty-third Psalm. In this exquisite composition pure art and true devotion go hand in hand along perfection's highway. The particular form of the work—four-part female chorus with pianoforte accompaniment—owes its origin to four young ladies named Fröhlich, great friends of Schubert's. Anna, of this fair quartet, was the chief singer at some private concerts given on Thursdays in the Old Hall of the Musikverein at Vienna, at which the Psalm was probably first performed. It may be assumed that the piece was in the nature of a Christmas present from Schubert to the four sisters Fröhlich, as the autograph—of which we give a reduced facsimile of the first page—is dated 'December, 1820,' the year of the composition of the fine overture known as 'Rosamunde.' Schubert was then almost twenty-four years of age. In the year following its composition, the Psalm was sung (August 30, 1821) by the students of the Vienna Conservatorium at one of their rehearsals and from manuscript copies, as the work was not published till 1831, three years after the composer's death.

It may not be generally known that the text of the Psalm—'the resting pilgrim's song,' to adopt the designation of Professor Cheyne—used by Schubert is a German metrical translation from the Hebrew by Moses Mendelssohn, grandfather of Felix Mendelssohn. In regard to Schubert's autograph score of the music, the neatness of his writing is a marked feature of the manuscript. The time signature is misleading if taken literally; but the adagio direction is a sufficient safeguard against the adoption of a rapid speed in performance. Dr. Eusebius Mandyczewski, in his valuable 'Revisionsbericht' to the complete edition of Schubert's works, calls attention to the fact that till recently the published editions of the Psalm contained an erroneous natural sign before the B in bar 50 in the first soprano part and in the accompaniment. This unnatural B natural is doubtless an editorial excrescence, because, as Dr. Mandyczewski says, 'considering the care with which Schubert wrote down the notes of this piece, it is scarcely to be thought that in both cases (the voice part and the accompaniment) he could have forgotten the natural sign.' Schubert also inserted the expression indications with great care. Ten bars from the end a curious emoriendo finds a place in the manuscript — it is doubtless Schubert's Italianization of the Latin emorior. The frequent pp and the twice recurring ppp are important factors in obtaining a poetic rendering of this intensely poetic composition.

The work does not seem to have been published with English words till 1854, thirty-four years after the date of composition, when it was issued by Messrs. Ewer and Co. A review of the publication appeared in the Musical Transcript of September 2, 1854, a little-known and short-lived periodical devoted to music. Here is the notice:—

> This is written for two soprano and two contralto voices, with an accompaniment for the pianoforte. As far as true musicianship and the disposition of the voices are concerned, this setting of the sacred canticle is free from fault, and flows with sufficient freedom. But the elevation of feeling, and the deep sanctity of the devotional spirit is absent. It is more operatic than sacerdotal, and its length is too protracted for the due expression of the sentiment. The restlessness of the accompaniment also damages the proposed effect.

Well, there is no accounting for taste or criticism, or even critics who seem to be destitute of poetry in their natures. Who would wish to reduce the 'heavenly length' of the setting by a single bar, or to damage the restfulness of the gentle ripple of the quavers by the deletion of even one triplet? And as for the absence of 'the deep sanctity of the devotional spirit,' may not Schubert's setting of the Twenty-third Psalm be classed among the perfect specimens of pure art in the domain of vocal music?



REDUCED FACSIMILE OF THE AUTOGRAPH (FOL. 1) OF SCHUBERT'S TWENTY-THIRD PSALM.

WAGNER AS A CONCERT-GIVER.

Everyone knows Richard Wagner as a composer, but the knowledge of him as a concert-giver is not so extensive or peculiar. The fortunate and accidental possession of the programme of an actual concert given by the composer of 'Parsifal' in St. Petersburg enables us to reproduce it in facsimile for the benefit of our readers, and, at the same time, furnishes us with an opportunity of saying a few words concerning Wagner's concert-giving experiences.

In the year 1862 Wagner, then in his fiftieth year, was very hard up. At that time only a part of Der Ring des Nibelungen had been written, and he had just commenced the composition of Die Meistersinger. In order to bring a little grist to the mill and keep body and soul together, Wagner appeared at a concert given on November 1, 1862, by Wendelin Weissheimer in the Gewandhaus at Leipzig, when he conducted the overture to Die Meistersinger. It was the first performance of that masterly achievement. Mr. Dannreuther, then a student of the Leipzig Conservatorium, who was present on that eventful occasion, 'distinctly remembers the half empty room, the almost complete absence of professional musicians, the wonderful performance, and the enthusiastic demand for a repetition, in which the members of the orchestra took part as much as the audience.' Apropos of that particular concert, Wagner, during his sojourn in London in 1877, and when staying at the house of Mr. Dannreuther, said to his host :—

> 'That curious concert at Leipzig was the first of a long series of such absurd undertakings to which my straitened means led me. At other towns the public at least appeared en masse, and I could record an artistic success; but it was not till I went to Russia that the pecuniary results were worth mentioning.' (Grove. Dictionary of Music and Musicians, vol. iv., p. 362.)

Mr. Dannreuther states that Wagner conducted concerts at Vienna, Prague, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Pesth, Karlsruhe, Lowenberg, and Breslau, and that the programmes consisted of Beethoven's Symphonies, fragments of the Nibelungen Ring, &c.

It is, however, to Wagner's concert operations in St. Petersburg, as an accompaniment to our facsimile, that we wish specially to call attention. Wagner found a friend in the Russian capital in the person of the distinguished critic-composer, Alexander Nikolaevitch Seroff (Syeroff), who was not only very kind to the composer-conductor, but who, according to Sir George Grove, subsequently became 'an extreme and enthusiastic partisan for Wagner.' Glasenapp tells us that Wagner found the musical press of St. Petersburg and Moscow untainted by Jewcraft (Judenschaft), and that both the newspapers and the public received him (Wagner) with favour. The orchestra at St. Petersburg consisted of 130 players. At the first concert the programme comprised Beethoven's Eroica Symphony, the Sailors' chorus, Senta ballad, and overture from the 'Flying Dutchman'; the Introduction to 'Lohengrin,' and the march, Wolfram Romance, and overture from 'Tannhäuser.' At the second concert Beethoven's C minor Symphony and a Wagner selection were performed. The programme of the third concert (March 6, 1863) we give in facsimile. The actual document is twenty inches long, of which the lower half is a duplication in the Russian language of the upper (French) portion. The second part of the concert—'Fragments des opéras: la Walkyrie, et le jeune Siegfried (!) appartenant au cycle des Nibelungen'—is specially interesting.

It appears that at the concerts Wagner was showered with laurel wreaths, which he handed over to the orchestral players as the more deserving recipients. He also attracted the attention of the Grand Duchess Helen, to whom he read the poems of the 'Nibelungen Ring,' 'Die Meistersinger,' and 'Tristan.' News of the success of the concerts given in the land of the Czar soon found its way to England. The Musical World of June 27, 1863, the journal of Mr. J. W. Davison, contains this information :—

> NOT SO BAD!—It is asserted that Herr Richard Wagner has made a clear sum of 50,000 francs by his concerts in Russia, besides an estate in Switzerland, a present, if report be trusted, from the Grand Duchess Helen.

Wagner furnished Mr. Davison with many a page of militant 'copy.' The issue of the Musical World of June 20, 1863, one week before the above extract appeared, contained an article entitled 'Wagner-cholera,' written by Mr. Davison above his favourite pseudonym 'Dishley Peters of Tadcaster,' which began in these words :—

> Figaro reports a fearful case of Wagner-cholera, and from the symptoms described it would seem that Asiatic-cholera, in its worst form, is but a slight indisposition compared with the other.

The concluding paragraph opened with a question to the 'dear Reader' :—

> Do you know, dear Reader, any prime donne aspiring to Glory? We might give them a letter to the directors of the Carlsruhe Theatre. Ladies having studied under Garcia a few months, and having kept a note or two of their voices, might, perhaps, try their luck at shouting Wagner; and they would, in all probability, succeed, for their few months' tuition would have served them as a kind of vaccination calculated to preserve them from Wagner-cholera.

The foregoing is quite in harmony with a previous leader in the Musical World (June 28, 1856), which commenced :—

> 'Robert Schumann has had his innings, and been bowled out—like Richard Wagner. Paradise and the Peri has gone to the tomb of the Lohengrins.'

How delightfully Davisonesque!

18 63

GRAND CONCERT

vocal et instrumental,

donné Mercredi, 6 Mars,

au Grand Théâtre,

par

M-r RICHARD WAGNER.

Avec l'assistance amicale des artistes (musiciens et chanteurs) des théâtres Impériaux.

PROGRAMME:

1-ère partie.

1) Ouverture	de l'opéra „Tannhäuser".
2) a. Scène d'entrée „d'Eli abeth"
b. Duo „d'Elisabeth" et de „Tannhäuser"
3) Réverie nocturne d'Elsa	de l'opéra „Lohengrin".
4) Introduction (Vorspiel).

2 ème partie.

5) Cavalcade aérienne des „Walkyrie"	Fragments des operas: „la Walkyrie et „le jeune Siegfried" appartenant au cycle des Nibelungen.
6) Chant d'amour de „Siegmund
7) Chants de forge de Siegfried
a. Schmelzlied.
b. Hämmerlied
8) Adieux de „Wotan" à Brünhield et incantation du feu

On commencera à 8 heures du soir.

On peut se procurer des billets au magasin de musique de Johanson, perspective de Nevsky. vis-a-vis le Gostinoi Dwor № 44 et le jour du concert à la caisse du Grand Théâtre.

FACSIMILE (SLIGHTLY REDUCED) OF A WAGNER CONCERT PROGRAMME, ST. PETERSBURG, 1863.

HANDEL'S BORROWINGS.

(Concluded from page 528.)

For our present purpose, Erba, Stradella, Clari, Muffat, and Urio have formed a class by themselves, both on account of the number and extent of the contributions levied upon them. We shall now deal with minor, though certainly not less curious, Handel borrowings. We begin then with Josquin des Près. Crotch finds Handel using one of his subjects in the final 'Amen' of the 'Messiah.' Burney had already remarked that Handel had taken a 'point' from the 8th Motet of Petrucci's 4th Book Motteti della corona of Josquin des Près, for the first Allegro of his first organ concerto, and for several of his choruses ('History of Music,' Vol. II., pp. 502 and 506). The 'point' of imitation in question is, however, to be found in many old composers, and it is well nigh impossible to say who first used it.

In a foot-note to his organ and pianoforte adaptation of the choruses in 'Samson,' Crotch says that a subject in the first chorus, 'O first created beam,' is taken from a psalm-tune by Martin Luther. The psalm in question is Luther's paraphrase of Ps. cxxx., 'Aus tiefer Noth schrei' ich zu dir,' the music to which, in Joh. Walther's 'Geistliches Gesangbüchlein,' Wittenberg, 1524, is generally attributed to him. The opening of this same chorus is to be found, by the way, in an aria in Cesti's opera of 'Orontea,' given in the 'Specimens.' In the latter there is also a 'Deposuit potentes,' by Palestrina, in which we again meet with a point of imitation similar to the one in the first Handel organ concerto. Those 'Specimens' were collected by Crotch for the purpose of illustrating the lectures of which he afterwards published the 'Substance'; and while collecting his material he no doubt jotted down many if not all, of the names which are in his footnote list. In No. 12 of the second volume of the 'Specimens' there is a theme used, rather than invented, by Palestrina, and this will be found (in its 'answer' form) in 'Let their celestial concerts all unite' ('Samson').

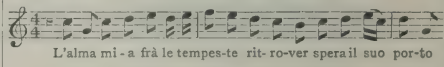
Sethus Calvisius, born in 1556, became Cantor of St. Thomas's, Leipzig, in 1594, and held that post until his death in 1615. He was a learned musician, and wrote treatises ('Melopeia,' 1582, 'Musicae artis praecepta,' 1612, &c.), and composed music (motets, hymns, and the 150th Psalm in twelve parts). He was also a distinguished mathematician and astronomer. In his organ adaptation of 'Solomon,' Crotch has the following foot-note on the chorus 'Throughout the world Jehovah's praise': — 'The subjects are taken from a canon by Calvisius'; but the canon in question is not further specified.

Turini is mentioned by Burney as having been useful to Handel. He says that Handel composed 'one of his finest instrumental fugues' upon the subject of a canon by Turini, which he reproduces in his 'History of Music,' Vol. III., p. 521. It is also noted by Busby. The Handel fugue is the one in B flat commencing—

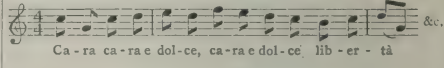
Burney states that Handel 'adopted a base' from a cantata composed by Marc Antonio Cesti, and also used a 'division' from a motet in his overture to 'Saul.' A more definite charge, however, is made by Crotch in his organ adaptation of 'Samson,' wherein he says of a passage in 'Great Dagon hath subdued our foe:' 'This passage is from the last chorus of Cesti's opera of 'La Dori.'' It is curious that Crotch should not have pointed out the above mentioned resemblance between the opening of the chorus 'O first-created beam' in 'Samson' and the opening of an aria of Cesti's— ('Specimens,' Vol. II., No. 76)— when mentioning the former in connection with Luther.

Burney, in his 'History of Music' (Vol. IV., pp. 153-155), quotes a 'division' from a Cesti Cantata in the Christ Church Collection—one evidently well known to Crotch—and states that it was used by Handel in his overture to 'Saul.' If such a 'division,' however, be accepted, one might multiply ad infinitum the number of Handel's borrowings.

Dr. Chrysander (G. F. Händel, pp. 196-202) has something to say about Handel's indebtedness to Cesti or to Alessandro Scarlatti. In 'Agrippina' we find:—



In a duet of Cesti's, however, occurs:—



But it is more likely that Handel was acquainted with an Arietta of A. Scarlatti's, which contains the same Cesti phrase, and even more like it than we have quoted; borrowing then was not a speciality of il caro Sassone, though perhaps he excelled in the art.

'See a fugue by Kerl in Dr. Burney's 'History of Music,' from which Handel took this chorus with little or no alteration.' Thus runs a note in Crotch's adaptation of the chorus 'Egypt was glad,' from 'Israel.' (Hawkins's 'History of Music' is probably meant, as it is not given in Burney; and we may add that the Hawkins version is by no means correct.) So far as the boldness of the borrowing is concerned, Kerl might well have been classed with our first set of names. But, with one exception, it is the only serious instance of Handel having been indebted to him. A passage in his 'Capriccio Kuku' is mentioned by Dr. Max Seiffert in the Fleischer-Seiffert edition recently published of C. F. Weitzmann's 'Geschichte der Klaviermusik,' as having been adopted by Handel in an allegro of one of his organ concertos. Johann Kasper Kerl (1621-1693) was organist of St. Stephen's, Vienna. He published 'Toccate, Canzoni et altre Sonate,' 1673, in conjunction with Borro and Krieger, and 'Modulatio Organica super Magnificat,' 1686.

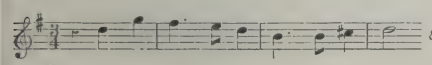
Coming to Corelli, we find Crotch in his copy of 'The Triumph of Time and Truth' writing against the air 'Dryads, Sylvans, with fair Flora,' 'from Corelli's Pastorale 8th Concerto.' The resemblance between the two passages is, however, slight. Corelli himself, by the way, was not above commandeering the ideas of another composer on occasion. Geminiani told a friend of Burney that 'he [Corelli] availed himself much of the compositions of other masters . . . he acquired much from Lulli . . . and from Bononcini's famous 'Camilla.'' On his own authority Burney adds that he finds in Corelli 'frequent imitations of the more natural passages of Scarlatti, particularly in the beautiful Adagio of his 8th Concerto.' There are several excerpts from Corelli in Crotch's 'Specimens,' from which the veriest tyro would be able to pick out passages, figures, progressions, &c., reminding one more or less of Handel.

In his organ adaptation of 'Solomon,' Crotch refers the air and chorus 'Music spread thy voice around' to a 'Qui diligit Mariam' by the Abbate Steffani, and the same instance is mentioned in his 'Substance of Lectures' (p. 109).

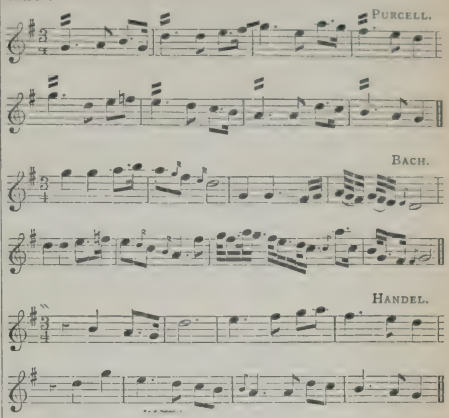
The passage in Steffani's Motet commences thus:—



and Handel writes—

A longer quotation would show that the resemblance continues. Chrysander also mentions these passages.

The name of Purcell is on our list. Burney, Macfarren, and others have noticed Handel's obligations to Purcell; but we here confine ourselves to Crotch. In the third act of Handel's 'Saul,' he detects a strong resemblance to Purcell's 'Saul and the Witch of Endor'; of direct borrowing, however, he practically makes no charge. The 'King Arthur' Chaconne, he says, 'was employed by Handel in his harpsichord lessons,' referring, of course, to the Chaconne in G of the Second Collection, both of which are built on what we may perhaps call 'Welsh' ground. Bach also used it for his great 'Goldberg' Variations, and Purcell in his harpsichord piece 'A Ground in Gamut.' And not only is the bass the same, but there is so striking a resemblance between the melodies of the three respective composers that we are tempted to place them side by side:—



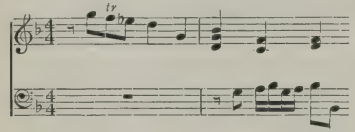
The above are given in chronological order. According to Crotch, Locke also used it. Crotch states further that a section of 'Brave souls to be renowned in story' was imitated by Handel in 'All we like sheep' at the words 'And the Lord hath laid.' The influence of Purcell over Handel has been frequently discussed, so, having given one or two examples, I pass on to Alessandro Scarlatti, with whom Handel was personally acquainted. One of his cantatas, 'Fortunate miei martiri,' was used by Handel, says Crotch in his 'Substance of Lectures,' while in his printed copy of 'Triumph of Time and Truth,' he has scribbled opposite 'Pensive sorrow' the words, 'Italian canzonets Aless. Scarlatti: Ch. Ch. Collection.' Part of the above-mentioned cantata occurs, by the way, in the 'Specimens.'

Leo, Hasse, and Vinci are names to be met with in one or other of the lists. Without mentioning any special place, it may be said that there are many passages in the excerpts from the first two composers in the 'Specimens' of decidedly Handelian character. One air, 'Pupillette vezzosette,' attributed to Vinci, may through its general resemblance to 'Love in her eyes,' in 'Acis,' account for that name in the list, although Crotch says he afterwards discovered that it was by Hasse.

Handel was not deterred by Bononcini's fate from a stray nibble at that determined biter. Crotch, in his organ adaptation of 'Judas Maccabæus,' remarks of the chorus 'Zion now her head shall raise,' that some of the subjects are from a cantata by Bononcini; also that the movement was composed after Handel had become blind, when the oratorio was already finished. The cantata seems to be the song by Bononcini, 'Peno, peno e l'alma fedele'; it is in the Fitzwilliam Collection, and the theme, according to a note of Bartlemann's, is identical with the theme of 'Zion now her head shall raise.'

Dr. Gauntlett, by the way, in his Notes and Queries article (Feb. 5, 1859) speaks of a theme of Bononcini converted into the overture of the 'Messiah,' without telling us where to look for the original theme!

Passing on to Johann Kuhnau, we find Crotch in his copy of 'Triumph of Time and Truth,' against the chorus 'Comfort them, O Lord,' at the words 'Keep them alive, let them be blessed,' writing, 'see Kuhnau's Organ Pieces, Leipzig, 1696,' and, at the same place, 'compare this with a chorus in "Susanna."' The theme in both is, in fact, taken from the first Sonata in Kuhnau's 'Frische Klavier Früchte'; and it is curious to note how, in both instances, Handel has also worked in Kuhnau's semi-quaver figure. The theme and the figure are as follows:—



The 'Susanna' chorus referred to is 'Virtue shall never long be oppressed.'

In the above-named chorus from 'Triumph of Time and Truth' we find Handel actually laying a second composer under contribution. At bars 8-14 Crotch writes, 'This passage all from Lotti, see Latrobe, No. 16.' The Lotti passage is in 'Qui tollis peccata mundi,' from a Mass.

Look on this picture—and on this—

Lotti's name, by the way, is not in the Crotch 'Substance' list.

A writer in the Quarterly Musical Magazine and Review (1822, p. 145) remarks that there is a chorus in a Mass by Caldara 'very similar in its subject to "They loathed to drink" ("Israel"), and it is just possible that he referred to the theme of "Qui tollis" in the Mass à 5 in F by that composer—

The resemblance is not very strong, yet there are many passages in Caldara's masses which might be described as Handelian. Antonio Caldara was born at Venice in 1670 and died at Vienna in 1736. He wrote many operas, oratorios, and masses. The dates of his birth and death are incorrectly given in most dictionaries; the above are according to official records.

Although the name of Bach is on our list, it is difficult to find out what particular charge or charges of borrowing from the great Cantor Crotch brought against Handel. In his 'Specimens' he gives the Fugue in E from Part II. of the Well-tempered Clavier, the theme of which is also used by Handel, but it was an old theme which existed long before Bach. Yet it is just possible that Crotch may have counted it as a Handel borrowing, for we even find Macfarren, in discussing Handel's plagiarisms in an article in the Musical World, pointing out that the subject of 'And with his stripes' in 'The Messiah,' is identical with that of a fugue of Bach. But it seems more than probable that both Bach and Handel evolved their respective themes from one by Kuhnau—which may itself be an out-growth—in his 'Neue Clavier-Uebung' of 1696—just as Handel may have evolved the fugue theme in his F minor suite—from a fugue of J. K. F. Fischer (capellmeister to the Margrave of Baden from 1669 to 1707)—

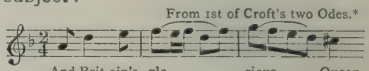
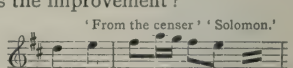
In the edition of Weitzmann's 'Geschichte der Klaviermusik,' mentioned above (p. 596), there are some interesting illustrations, including the above, of the metamorphoses of themes.

'This subject,' remarks Crotch of a passage in 'From the censer' ('Solomon'), 'is an improvement on one by Dr. Croft.' The plagiarism and the improvement were also noticed by Dr. Gauntlett (Notes and Queries, Feb. 5, 1859), who names Dr. Croft's fugue for his degree exercise as the original. Is this, perchance, the subject?



and this the improvement?



In several of his organ and pianoforte adaptations of Handel, Crotch points out the composer's obligations to Porta. Of the chorus 'To fame immortal go' in 'Samson' he says:—'The accompaniment is taken from Porta's opera of "Numitor" . . . from which opera also Handel took many other passages.' Similarly a part of the opening symphony of the third act of 'Solomon' he says is 'from a song in 'Numitor,'' and the double chorus 'The name of the wicked shall quickly be past' in the same oratorio is also ascribed to the same work. If we are correct in supposing that Crotch alludes to the songs 'Si t'intendo' and 'Altro da voi non chiedo,' the charge of borrowing can scarcely be maintained.

* In the preface to the Two Odes published under the title 'Musicus Apparatus Academicus,' the author states that they 'were performed as a Preparatory Exercise to the taking my Doctor's Degree.'

Crotch himself did not know of much borrowing by Handel from Pergolesi. He says, in his adaptation of 'Belshazzar,' of a passage in the chorus 'O glorious Prince': 'This is one of the very few passages of Pergolesi copied by Handel.' This chorus may be compared with No. 105 (Vol. II.) of the 'Specimens,' and it will be seen that the copying is not very close. In his adaptation of 'Jephtha,' Crotch has the following note on the semi-chorus, 'Welcome as the glorious light':—'This passage is copied, but not closely, from Pergolesi' (the italics are ours). If he refers to Pergolesi's 'Euridice e dove sei' ('Specimens', Vol. II., No. 106)—and it seems to us just possible that such is the case—then the 'but not closely' is, indeed, a most appropriate qualification.

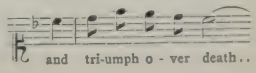
Dr. Burney, we have already said, appears to have been the first to call attention to Handel's borrowings—i.e., the first to point out any. His attention to the subject may, however, have been drawn by Scheibe, who, in the Preface to his 'Ueber die musikalische Composition,' published in 1773, three years before the first volume of Burney's History of Music appeared, asserts, on the authority of Telemann and Mattheson, that Handel frequently made profitable use of the ideas of Reinhard Keiser, and he adds that he has other good grounds for the statement.*

Some of Crotch's examples are somewhat far-fetched, and this, seeing that he has so many substantial illustrations, is to be regretted. On the whole, however, his list is, we think, justified, and, if he had made the subject a speciality, there is little doubt that he could have produced further examples. As it was he seems merely, en passant, as it were, to have recorded those instances which came under his notice while preparing his lectures and adaptations. I have touched upon all the names of the two Crotch lists mentioned except six: Domenico Scarlatti, Colonna, Telemann, Mondonville, Astorga, and Morley. Other names however have been mentioned, and I might also have added something about Krieger, Poglietti, Mattheson, Buxtehude, Pasquini, and others, but the patience of the reader has already been sorely tried. It must not for a moment be imagined that Crotch in giving his famous list wished to bring the composer into discredit. In discussing borrowings from Carissimi, he says:—'In most cases he merely took ideas, and greatly improved them; but when he introduced passages entire and unaltered, it must be considered as a quotation of a well-known classical author, and not as plagiarism which results from poverty of invention, and with the hope of escaping detection.' This explanation of the larger conveyances is, however, generous rather than just. We quote it, not for its own merit, but merely to show critic Crotch's attitude towards Handel. The name of Carissimi recalls a curious passage in Hawkins concerning an imitation of that master by Dr. Blow, undertaken by royal command, or perhaps, one might say, request. 'The king (Charles II.) admired very much a little duet of Carissimi to the words 'Dite o Cieli,' and asked of Blow if he could imitate it. Blow modestly replied that he would try.' The result was his song 'Go, perjured man,' and the imitation is evident. I have constantly referred to adaptations by Crotch of Handel's choruses, yet have only been able to see a few of them. In the other numbers (of which a list is given at the end of the 'Substance of Lectures') there are, no doubt, similar footnotes pointing to other copyings, or quotations, of the great master.

POSTSCRIPT.

After I had seen a proof of above I received a letter from Mr. William Wallace most kindly offering to lend me Dr. Crotch's own copy of the score (Arnold edition) of Handel's oratorio of 'Samson.' I at once gladly accepted. It contains many marginal notes. I have already quoted the doctor's comment on the overture (see The Musical Times for August, p. 527), and here above the heading 'Overture' is written:—'subjects from Muffat. See also the March in 'Judas Maccabæus' and the Introduction to 'Joshua.'' The borrowing from the 'Martin Luther' Psalm-tune mentioned above (p. 596) is also noted. I named the Walther 'Gesangbüchlein,' in which the tune is to be found, but Crotch tells where he discovered it; he says 'the subject may be seen in Miss Cecil's collection of Psalm tunes.' He also remarks that Handel borrowed from another Luther tune 'in his last chorus of 'L'Allegro' (or 'Il Moderato') which may be seen in Tattersall's Psalmody.' And on these borrowings he remarks, 'It was natural enough for a Handel, a Lutheran, and a Saxon to use Luther's hymns. It was also the practice of young composers.'

With regard to the name Bach in Crotch's list, I suggested that he had in his mind the Fugue in E in the second part of the Well-tempered Clavier. In this score against—



* 'Händel und Hasse, diese berühmten Männer, die Deutschland in Italien und Engelland Ehre gemacht haben, haben sich, insonderheit der erste, gar oft seiner Erfindungen bedienet und sich dabey sehr wohl befunden. Sie verstunden aber die Kunst, sich diese Erfindungen so zuzueignen, dass sie unter ihren Händen in neue und Originalgedanken verwandelt wurden. Mattheson und Telemann haben mir dieses mehr als einmal bekräftiget, und ich kann auch nach andern zuverlässigen Nachrichten gar nicht daran zweifeln.'
Scheibe's 'Ueber die musikalische Composition.' Vorrede, p. LIII.

is a cross, which evidently refers to a note at foot of page, 'See Bach's Fugue in E.' This theme, however, is much older than Bach. The name of Vinci is mentioned. A division in 'Why does the God of Israel sleep?' is said to be from that composer's 'Alessandro in Indie.'

There are five references to Porta's 'Numitor'—a 'passage' in Dalila's air, 'To fleeting pleasures'; a 'subject' in Samson's air, 'My strength is from the living God'; two phrases in 'Go, baffled coward, go'; the demisemiquaver passage in Samson's recitative, 'Jehovah's glory known'; and a passage in Micah's air, 'The Holy One of Israel.' The one mentioned above, 'To fame immortal go,' is not noted in this score.

There are interesting, and at times, quaint remarks besides those relating to the borrowings. Against Micah's aria 'No more of earthly joys' is written 'A favourite of Mr. Battishill's—not of mine!' At Samson's aria 'Ne'er think of that,' the words 'and fair enchanted cup' suggest to him the following query 'Did Milton borrow this idea from his own Comus?' He refers evidently to the line in Comus in which Circe's 'charmed cup' is mentioned, but the borrowing is not very marked; anyhow, the poet could do what he liked with his own. Of Samson's aria 'It is not virtue,' the worthy Doctor says: 'surely this is the worst of Handel's songs.'

J. S. Shedlock.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

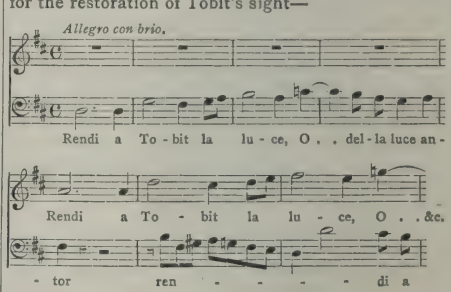
Haydn is to be represented at the approaching Leeds Musical Festival by his so-called motet, 'Insanæ et vanæ curæ,' known also by its English text, 'Distracted with care and anguish.' Like many other familiar compositions, the knowledge of its history is in inverse ratio to its popularity. The result of some recent investigations may therefore not be unacceptable to our readers. In the first place it is not an original work, but, after the manner of much of Haydn's smaller church music, it is an adaptation. In the winter of 1774-5 Haydn (ætat 42) composed his first oratorio, 'Il ritorno di Tobia,' to an Italian libretto, which was first performed in Vienna, and under his direction, on April 2, 1775. Nine years later he added to Part II. of this initial effort in oratorio, a 'storm chorus,' which, however, must not be confused with the 'Storm chorus' (in the same key, but in triple rhythm) which he afterwards composed during his sojourn in London. This 'storm chorus' immediately follows, in fact it forms the conclusion of a fine soprano air in F minor and major, sung by Anna in the original work, a portion of which forms the beautiful second subject (in F) of the 'Insanæ.' The original words of this chorus—'Svanisce in un momento'—are to the effect that the soul threatens to yield to the fury of its enemies, yet trust in God keeps one stedfast. The music admirably reflects these opposites, first in the tumultuous D minor section, and then in the tranquillity of the F major portion which follows, no less than the trustful quietude of the D major conclusion.

It is interesting to know that Haydn brought the score of his 'Il ritorno di Tobia' with him to England on the occasion of his first visit to these shores in 1791, probably with a view to its performance here. Messrs. Novello's private library contains an oblong volume in the handwriting of Vincent Novello, in which he has copied some numbers from 'Tobia,' including the air of Anna, already mentioned, but not the 'Insanæ' chorus. The inside cover of the book contains the following interesting note in Novello's hand, written, not later than 1820, under the contents of the volume:—

The whole of the above are unpublished manuscripts, and were copied from an extremely rare volume, containing the full orchestral score of the entire oratorio, kindly lent to me for the purpose by my friend, Mr. Shield, who had obtained it from Haydn himself during the visit of the latter to England in the year 1791.

Vincent Novello, 240, Oxford St.

'Il ritorno di Tobia' is practically unknown. The late Mr. W. S. Rockstro, in his article 'Oratorio' in Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians' (ii., 550) says of it: 'The airs throughout are overflowing with melody, such as Haydn alone knew how to produce. The choruses are powerful and well-developed fugues, with bold yet tuneful subjects, like those familiar to us all through the medium of his well-known masses. The first is a prayer for the restoration of Tobit's sight—



The final fugue is in 6-8 time, and founded on a highly characteristic subject:—

Latin words were adapted to both these choruses as well as to the 'storm chorus.' Rockstro, however, makes no reference to the 'Insanæ' adaptation. Probably the copy of the 'Tobia' score which he consulted did not contain it. As to who made the adaptation it seems impossible to say. A full score of the motet (so-called), published by Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel in 1809, was reviewed in the Allgemeine musikalische Zeitung, of August 15, 1810, as if it were an original work! The source of the Latin words is also at present wrapped in mystery. We have sought information on this point from the Rev. Dr. Julian, editor of the 'Dictionary of Hymnology,' the Rev. James Mearns, assistant-editor of that invaluable work, and Dr. Wilhelm Baeumker, author of 'Das Katholische deutsche Kirchenlied in seinen Singweisen'; but in their courteous replies all these experts have had to admit being baffled. Dr. Baeumker, the greatest authority on the subject in Germany, is of opinion that the Latin words were put together to fit Haydn's music, but by whom is not known. The Rev. S. Ould, who speaks with authority, says that such adaptations are quite common, and he instances the melody of 'O rest in the Lord' being adapted to Latin words to fit the music. These weak points in the history of the 'Insanæ et vanæ curæ' adaptation by no means lessen the strength and beauty of Haydn's characteristic music.

The annual Blue-Book of the British Museum, under the head of Department of Printed Books, records that no less than 5,562 Musical publications have been added to the collection, of which 5,236 have been received under the provisions of the Copyright Act, 275 by Colonial Copyright, and fifty-one acquired by purchase. This productivity of genius (or otherwise) in one year seems almost incredible. What becomes of all this new music?

The following are the most important additions to the collection of old music:—

'Lux Bella,' by Duran Domingo, Seville, 1492, the first musical work printed in Spain. The only other known copy of this work is in the Library of Evora.

A Hieronymite Processional on Vellum, printed at Alcala de Henares, 1526.

A folio collection of Magnificats by C. Morales and other composers, Lyons, 1550. A work of which no other copy is known to exist.

'Inchiridion de Missas solemnes,' by Matthias de Sousa, Villa Lobos, Coimbra, 1691.

'Erminia sul Giordano,' Rome, 1637. An early opera by M. A. Rossi, containing a series of engravings representing the scenery and mounting of the opera which occur in no other known copy of the work.

In regard to the Department of Manuscripts we are glad to find that the Motets by John Dunstable (15th century), copied from MSS. in Modena, Bologna, and Trent by Mr. W. Barclay Squire, have been generously presented to the nation by that gentleman, the courteous chief of the music department in the printed books section of our great National Library.

The National Co-operative Festival, held at the Crystal Palace on the 17th ult., has this year undergone a change so far as its musical performances are concerned. Hitherto the selection of music performed on the Handel orchestra has consisted of part-songs and detached pieces. This year, however, a new departure was made in the selection of a complete work as the chief feature of the great choral concert. The choice of Leoni's 'The Gate of Life' was a judicious one, as the music, in addition to being agreeable to the singers, has the merit of being simple and straightforward, and, therefore, presents no difficulties to the choir. The appointment of Mr. Allen Gill to the conductorship of the Festival is one upon which the promoters are to be congratulated. Mr. Gill is no longer 'a coming man' as a conductor; he has certainly arrived and intends to stay, if we may judge by the number of conducting appointments he holds in London. He led his forces—in number upwards of 3,000—with such tactful precision and skilful resources as to call forth the highest praise. The singers responded well to the call of their chief, and, considering all the inevitable drawbacks in regard to the preparation of the music, the results were most encouraging. In the competitions (adjudicated upon by Dr. E. H. Turpin) the prize choirs were Coventry Co-operative Choir (Mr. A. Petty), Wollaston (Mr. H. Speight), and in the junior section the Portsmouth choir (Mr. George Adams) gained the Challenge Shield, which they now retain, having won it three years in succession.

The Athenæum of July 27, in a notice of a performance of Mozart's 'Don Giovanni' at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, says:—

The greatness of the music of 'Don Juan' lies in its simplicity, its directness, its marked power of characterisation. Beethoven admired Handel because with simple means he achieved such grand results, and for a similar reason we ought to admire Mozart. In every note the hand of the master is felt; with a little figure, a chord, or a choice bit of colouring he often works wonders, and one cannot help contrasting the spontaneity and freshness of his music with much of what is now written.

Perfectly true!

The Pall Mall Gazette, of the 20th ult., contains an interesting article entitled 'Munich—an Operatic Art Centre,' which has Mozart for its theme. It is in the form of a letter, evidently written by the able musical critic of our contemporary, from which we extract the following:—

Once again, then, at the Residenz Theater, I have encountered Mozart, the understood, the admired, the beloved of those who here undertake to be honoured by him at this theatre. Year by year, moreover, it is clear that the efforts to make Mozart a modern cult, a power for attraction, a definite operatic target for the enthusiast, grow more and more successful in their results. In the early years of the last decade, when first I came to understand Mozart, under the light of the Munich presentation of his work, even over here the movement was not completely understood. It was more or less an easy matter then, I remember, to secure seats for any performance of the master's works, even at so small a theatre as is the Residenz. Nowadays the advance booking is almost on the scale of the advance booking of a new London success—always remembering the relative size of this tiny rococo house and the scale upon which a London theatre is customarily built. The Wagner theatres up and down the land seem to empty their audiences in small contingents upon this little island of an art, the youth of which seems perpetual and assured. And if one inquires into the essential reason of that success, the natural answer is, first and last, Mozart himself.

But there is a secondary reason; and though that secondary reason is to a great extent (altogether, nevertheless, from the theoretical point of view) swallowed up in the primary cause, it is one which in its non-fulfilment too amply accounts for the indifference with which the great master's operatic work is regarded in so many quarters of the world, particularly in England. That reason is nothing more nor less than a matter of mounting.

The fact is that Mozart's mind was given over to an intense happiness in mere pictorial realization which, in its turn, found an utterance in amazingly dramatic music—music, however, which invariably coloured the picture, the two acting with a sort of double reflex influence one upon the other. With this result: that the music drama of Mozart requires, no less than does the music drama of Wagner, a setting as beautiful and as suggestive as the music itself. It is then that you realize to the full that the elder master was not by the smallest manner of means a mere composer of songs strung together by a more or less intelligible chain of recitative. Munich, most luckily for its own artistic reputation, possesses an organizer, a director endued with the true Mozartian spirit.

The writer, in conclusion, says: 'Munich has once more justified itself in its artistic ambition, in its delicate desire to deify the golden qualities of Mozart's immortal and too neglected work.'

From the official Mitteilungen of the Allgemeiner Deutscher Musikverein we learn that its members at the present moment number 712, or 99 more than last year. Next year's festival is to take place at Krefeld, in Rhenish Prussia, and manuscripts of compositions intended for production thereat are to be submitted to Herr Max Schillings (the gifted composer of the music drama 'Ingwelde'), 4, Aiblinger Strasse, Munich. The monument now being erected at Weimar to Liszt, the revered founder of the Verein, is expected to be unveiled next year, and in connection with the festivities which will be arranged to celebrate the event, the General Intendant of the Grand-ducal Court Theatre has promised to give a dramatic (scenic) performance of Liszt's oratorio, 'The Legend of St. Elizabeth.' This will not be the first time that the work has been staged, nor is 'St. Elizabeth' the first oratorio to be presented on the boards, the present writer having, as a boy, taken part, in Düsseldorf, in a scenic performance of 'St. Paul' in which a distinguished English painter of battle scenes (then a pupil of the German artist, Emil Hünten) looked quite handsome as a princess or some such distinguished female personage. What a princess has to do with Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' is another tale, the telling of which we cannot here attempt.

Professional jealously is said to predominate over brotherly love in the musical profession, especially among composers. Without endorsing so serious a calumny, it is pleasant to call attention to a recent instance of 'the other way about.' From an official letter, signed by the chairman and honorary secretary of the Leeds Musical Festival Committee, we learn that Professor Stanford, the new conductor of the Festival, proposed that Sullivan's 'The Golden Legend' should be performed at the opening of the Meeting. 'The Committee, however,' the letter goes on to say, 'in view of the fact that the work had been already performed three times at the Leeds Festivals, selected the In Memoriam Overture in its place. The responsibility of the choice rests, of course, with them.' As Professor Stanford hasbeen 'jumped upon'—though not in THE MUSICAL TIMES—for a wrongly assumed neglect of Sullivan in drawing up the Festival scheme, it is only fair to him to record the facts of the case, and at the same time to express satisfaction at the tribute he desired to pay to the memory of his predecessor in the conductorship of the Festival.

The late Mr. Henry J. Lincoln, to whose death we refer in another column, had a large collection of pianoforte duets, and he much enjoyed playing a selection of them with a friend. On one occasion, when the present writer was his colleague at the keyboard, he related a funny story of his friend, the late Mr. J. W. Davison, the former musical critic of the Times. The two critics had arranged for an evening of duet-playing at Lincoln's rooms. Six o'clock was the time agreed upon for tea as a preliminary to the commencement of operations. That hour arrived, but no Davison. At the striking of eight by the clock, Lincoln partook of his delayed meal. At ten, J. W. D. arrived—four hours overdue! A little chat occupied the next sixty minutes, and at eleven p.m., he of the Times said: 'Now then, Lincoln, the duets.' Lincoln, however, demurred to disturbing the house and neighbours at that time of night, but he agreed to play till twelve, but no longer. At the midnight hour, Davison began to take his departure; he kept on going to go, but as often returned from the door in order to tell Lincoln 'just one more story.' He said his final good-bye at six o'clock in the morning!

It was at one of Mr. Lincoln's lectures ('Evenings with the Great Composers') on Mendelssohn, that that composer's Violin Concerto was performed for the first time in England. The place was the Western Institution, 47, Leicester Square, now the sale rooms of Messrs. Puttick and Simpson; the date December 23, 1845. In a letter to the present writer, Mr. Lincoln related the incident in these words:—

4, Great Coram Street,
Russell Square, W.C.
March 13, 1893.

Dear Sir,—You are quite correct as to the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto; and I dare say as to the date, which I have not at hand. Unfortunately I did not keep a Diary, as I ought to have done—but I believed then, as I do now, that the Concerto had never been previously played before any public audience in London; nor, I think, in England. The violinist was a near relative (I forget in what degreee) of Rodolphe Kreutzer, the eminent violinist of Paris, whose name is associated with Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 47. Of course I could not have an orchestra, but I played the accompaniment (arranged from the score) on a Broadwood Grand Pianoforte. Long ago as it is, I remember (forgetting much else) an enthusiastic member of the audience, sitting in the front row, marking his satisfaction by thumping the floor with a heavy stick, or umbrella, against the rhythm, in a way that might well have confounded nervous players, such as I am now, but (fortunately) was not then.

I am, yours truly,
H. J. LINCOLN.

One of our oldest readers, whose memory goes back to the twenties and thirties of the last century, sends us the following incident from the rich store of her recollections.

In the earliest days of the Sacred Harmonic Society, when an oratorio was performed, the chorus singers had a signal given to them when a chorus was at hand. At a few bars before the end of a movement preceding a chorus, a gentleman with a long wand would step in front of the singers at one side of the orchestra and raise high his wand. He would then walk across the orchestra and again raise his wand in front of the vocal performers at the other side. If I remember rightly, the singers stood up in response to his signal.

What would Costa have said to the wand and the wanderer across the platform?

Musical critics, under the conditions of their avocation, are not always up with the lark in the morning; but to rise just in time for afternoon tea may be considered as rather late in the day. That the latter, or later hour was favoured by the late distinguished critic of a London daily is proved by the following letter, written by him, about forty years ago, to an eminent amateur in music:—

Friday.

My dear G (in haste)—

It is 4½ o'clock P.M.—I have just risen—your letter came only to-day—so I couldn't answer it by pillar last night—and only answer on pillow now.

B. Cellini was given once, at the Academie Royale, September, 1838 (damned).

" " " once, at Royal Italian Opera, June 25, 1853 (damned).

At Weimar very successful (Liszt, of course).

The distinguished critic and the eminent amateur, like Berlioz, have both entered upon their last long sleep; but in regard to the writer of the note it would have been perfectly correct, even during his lifetime, to have greeted him on his appearance as 'the late Mr. ——!'

Mr. Arthur Chappell has retired from the directorship of the Popular Concerts, of which he was the founder, after having held that post with distinction for upwards of forty years. In our issue of September, 1898 (p. 595), we gave some historical particulars concerning the inauguration of these famous concerts, tracing their origin to the Cattle Show of 1858, and endeavouring to show the connection between bullocks and Beethoven, pigs and Pops. In referring to Mr. Chappell's retirement, an evening contemporary recently spake thus:—

MR. CHAPPELL AS 'TURNOVER.'

In one minor art, which, however, largely contributes to the amenities of concerted music, Mr. Arthur Chappell, whose retirement from the concert-room is announced to-day, was unapproached. No one ever 'turned over' for a pianist with equal skill and tact. Not to reckon the fumbler who knocks over the score or turns two pages at once, there are three types to which most amateur 'turn-overs' can be referred. One is always a bar or two too quick, another equally too late, while the third watches and waits for a nod or sign from the pianists. It was a treat to watch Mr. Chappell as he held the top of the sheet just as the pianist approached the last line, then bent it over so that the first bar or two of the next page were visible, then swiftly and silently completed the turn-over at the exact moment when the last bar on the page was being finished. Amateur 'turn-overs,' please copy!

As 'copy,' amateur or otherwise, this is above reproach, but it will hardly obtain 'full marks' for accuracy. The 'turn-over'—should it not be turner-over?—at the Pops. has not been Mr. Chappell, but his faithful and able henchman, Mr. William Saunders, who having turned-over and sub-managed the concerts for a great many years, has literally grown grey in discharging, with conspicuous ability, those duties. A weekly journal devoted to music, in commenting upon the above paragraph, states that in the art of turning-over 'Mr. Chappell was unsurpassed.' Well, he may have been so concerning the financial turn-over of the Pops. But may we not venture to suggest that, in regard to accuracy, our two contemporaries should turn-over—a new leaf?

The degree of Doctor honoris causa, has been conferred upon Joseph Joachim by the University of Göttingen on the occasion of his recently completed seventieth year. The great violinist was at one time a student at the Hanoverian alma mater.

The University of Adelaide, South Australia, through the London office of the State, is seeking the services of a Professor of Music, who, at the same time, will have the direction of the Elder Conservatorium of Music, established in connection with the University, at a salary of £800 per annum.

The German Emperor has conferred upon Dr. Camille Saint-Saëns the great honour of the Prussian order 'Pour le Mérite' (Civil Division). It appears that the order may be bestowed on thirty Germans and thirty foreigners. The latter, however, must be recommended to the Kaiser by the unanimous vote of the academies of Science and Arts. This pleasant episode is an instance that music, which rises above creeds and denominationalism in religious worship, knows no international limitations. The composer of 'Samson et Dalila' is to be heartily congratulated.

Mr. Morton Latham, who is preparing a Life of Signor Piatti, writes to us as follows in correction of the death-date of the eminent violoncellist:—

All the papers have given Piatti's death as having occurred on July 19, and from a telegram that his daughter sent me, I supposed it to have been on that day. But the death, in fact, took place before midnight—that is on the 18th. I mention this in case you should think it worth notice in your September number.

Dr. Antonin Dvorák has been appointed director of the Conservatorium, Prague, upon the retirement of Herr Anton Bennewitz, who occupied the important post for twenty years, and who numbered amongst his pupils such excellent musicians as the members of the famous 'Bohemian Quartet.' Dr. Dvorák, who, it will be remembered, was the director of the National Conservatorium in New York, from 1891 to 1896, is in his sixtieth year.

Dr. Elgar's 'Dream of Gerontius' is to be performed at Düsseldorf in December next, under the direction of Professor Julius Buths, who has translated Cardinal Newman's poem into the language of the Fatherland. Professor Buths has a very high opinion of the music of our countryman's, and is taking special interest in this, the first performance of the work in Germany.

Dr. E. T. Sweeting has been appointed organist and music-master of Winchester College. He is succeeded in the organistship of St. John's College, Cambridge, by Mr. Cyril B. Rootham, organist of St. Asaph Cathedral. Dr. Edwin J. Crow, who has held the organistship of Ripon Cathedral for nearly thirty years, has resigned that appointment.

Place aux dames! By the unanimous vote of the Chapter, the most unusual appointment of a lady to the organistship of the Cathedral of Würzburg has been made. The fortunate fair one is Fräulein Hoeller, the gifted daughter of the late organist.

Mr. Alfred Hollins will form the subject of the Biographical Sketch in our next issue. An account of the Gloucester Festival will also appear, with a full-page view of the Cathedral, and a portrait of the conductor, Mr. A. Herbert Brewer.

BELLINI IN ENGLAND.

The centenary of the birth of Vincenzo Bellini falls this year, the composer of 'La Sonnambula' and other operas having drawn his first breath at Catania, the capital of Sicily, on November 1, 1801. In anticipation of what may be written about him a few weeks hence, it may not be without interest if we give some particulars concerning the first performances of Bellini's operas in England and his visit to this country.

Seventy years ago (on July 28, 1831) 'La Sonnambula' was performed at the King's Theatre, Haymarket, within five months of the production of the opera in Milan. The representation was for the benefit of the great tenor, Rubini, who appeared for the first time in London in 1831. The 'we' of the Harmonicon, the only musical journal of that day, in criticising this 'semi-serious' opera, said:—

It was performed twice, then suddenly withdrawn; and having been out of town [!] when it was represented, we never had an opportunity of hearing it.

Those on whose judgments we place reliance tell us that this opera is feeble, that it could not have sustained another representation in London. We are surprised at such an opinion, considering what trash has to a certain extent succeeded here, and having expected something respectable from the composer of Il Pirata, a work to which so much injustice was done at the King's Theatre in the season 1830. A critic, with whom we generally agree, says: 'In the present enfeebled state of Italian dramatic music, Bellini's opera, La Sonnambula, stands out as something worthy of notice. It is not great—it is not original; but it is not dull. . . . It is not abundant in melody; but some of the concerted pieces, particularly the Finale to the first act, are well written.' [Spectator.] On the other hand, a writer in a Sunday paper states, that 'The music is, for the most part, a light and pleasant series of lively melodies.' [Examiner.] Such are the discrepancies in criticism! We will not refer to the musical articles in the daily morning papers; still less so to those of the evening, which most generally copy from the morning journals.

No fault can be found with the outspokenness of the critic, who took the opportunity, while enjoying rural amenities, of 'going for' his brother critics, who, whatever their shortcomings, dutifully stuck to their posts in Metropolitan July weather. In 1835, 'La Sonnambula' was brought out at the English opera-house under the title of 'The Female Sleep-Walker'!

On June 20, 1833, two years after the presentation of 'La Sonnambula,' 'Norma' was performed—also at the King's Theatre, and also at 'a benefit,' that of Madame Pasta, who took the title-rôle, and for whom, by the way, Bellini wrote both the above-named operas. According to the Harmonicon—how curiously these criticisms strike us nowadays—'Her [Pasta's] acting alone saves it here, as it did at Milan, where it was first produced last year.' Wrong, Mr. Critic, it was first produced on Boxing-day, 1831! But having corrected him, we may let the good scribe continue:—

Considered as a whole, the music, though not censurable in regard to the rules of composition, possesses the most fatal of all faults—it is deplorably uninteresting; except the motive of the duet, 'Deh! con te li prendi,' an aria, 'Norma! che fu?' and the Finale, not a piece has the slightest pretence to originality, or produces the least effect. The overture and introduzione stun one with all kinds of noisy instruments, and half, or more, of the first act is accompanied by the same intolerable din.

The last of the Bellini trio of operas in our survey is 'I Puritani.' This, Bellini's swan-song, was first produced in Paris, January 25, 1835. Four months later (May 21) opera frequenters of the King's Theatre heard the work for the first time in England at the benefit—another benefit!—of the famous Giulia Grisi, whose age at that, or at any time of her career, it is impossible to tell. The cast included Rubini, Lablache, and Tamburini, who, with Grisi, formed a superb quartet. In May, 1835, the Harmonicon had been defunct nearly two years; therefore in regard to periodical musical literature of that time recourse must be had to the Musical Library Monthly Supplement, which followed the literary lines of the Harmonicon and filled the gap between the demise of that journal and the birth of the Musical World, now also defunct. From this (the Monthly Supplement) our quotation tells the old, old story—insufficiency of rehearsals in these 'election-cry' words:—

We should willingly praise the chorus, but the manner in which this is executed renders it impossible to utter a syllable but in reproof. The excuse pleaded is, that a sufficiency of rehearsals is not allowed. This certainly exonerates the individual chorists (sic), though it is no excuse for the management. But the house fills; and M. Laporte is one of those who will say, in the language of the old borough-buyers, 'look at the poll!'

Soon after the production of 'I Puritani,' Bellini went on a visit to an English friend, a Mr. Lewis (or Lewy), at Puteaux, near Paris. Under that hospitable roof he was attacked with dysentery from which, after a fortnight's severe illness, he never recovered. He died at Puteaux, September 23, 1835, at the early age of thirty-four. After a splendid funeral service in the Church of the Invalides, his remains were laid to rest in the cemetery of Père la Chaise, but in 1876 they were transferred to his native Catania. His wife survived him only five years. In the meantime she had married an English gentleman, according to the following information, under Deaths, in the Gentleman's Magazine of December, 1841:—

Oct. 21. In Shakspere's-walk, Shadwell, aged 35, Mrs. Eliza Bingham, wife of a gentleman connected with the Customs, and widow of Bellini, the eminent composer.

Whether Mrs. Bellini was an English lady or not, is unascertainable, as none of her first husband's biographers seem to make mention of the composer's marriage.

All the English biographies of Bellini ignore the fact that he visited this country, apparently for the only time, in 1833. Considering his reputation as an opera composer one would expect him to have been lionized during his sojourn in London, but this does not seem to have been the case, and the newspapers of the day are not over profuse in their references to him and his doings. The Morning Chronicle (the Chronigle of Beethoven) of April 29, 1833, has an interesting paragraph in which his name appears. Here it is:—

Madame Pasta, Madame Malibran, Rubini, Paganini, De Beriot the fiddler, and husband of Malibran, Bellini, the composer, Hummel, Vaccaj, Mendelssohn, Henry Herz, the unrivalled pianist, Madame Schrœder Devrient, Haitzinger, Dobler, and Uetz, the German actors formed a portion of the audience at the King's Theatre on Saturday. Pasta and Malibran excited particular attention.

No one will deny that a distinguished audience listened to the performance of Rossini's 'Cenerentola' on that occasion. The Globe also mentions Bellini as having been present at the performance of 'La Sonnambula,' for the first time with English words, at Drury Lane Theatre, May 1, 1833, under Bishop's direction. Malibran was splendid in impersonating Amina, and it is said that Templeton, as Elvino, made such an impression upon Bellini that after the performance the composer embraced him and, 'with many compliments, promised to write a part that would immortalise him.' Bellini's opera 'I Capuletti e Montecchi' was first performed in London during his stay here, on July 20, 1833, at the King's Theatre. The Court Journal states that a 'Countess C——, who is particularly musical, attended the rehearsal and was accommodated with a score of the opera during its performance.' Who was the Countess C—— ?

We are enabled, through the kindness of Messrs. John Broadwood and Sons, to furnish some interesting information in regard to Bellini's London lodgings. Not for the first time have the books of that eminent firm of pianoforte makers been turned to good account in such matters. The first entry is from Messrs. Broadwood's 'Day Book,' and stands thus:—

Friday, 10th May, 1833.

Bellini. Taking S. P. pln pl[e] N° 41537 on Hire to Sig[r] Bellini, 3 Old Burlington Street, per Mr. Denza.

The next extract is from the same tome:—

Wednesday, 7th Augt. 1833.

Bringing S. P. N° 41537 from Mr. Bellini, 3 Old Burlington Street. Hire since 10 May. Bill to Mr. Denza, 20, Hanover Square.

[S. P. = Square piano. Pln. = plain pattern. Pl[e] = with metal plate.]

And now for the Broadwood Ledger W. N. On turning to folio 397, this a/c greets the eye:—

Mr. Bellini, 3, O. Burlington St.

1833. May 10	Hire 6 O[ctave] Sq. Pianofte 41537 pl. plate to 7 Aug[t] £2. 5. o. and Carrg 4/- pr. Mr. Denza			1833. Sept. 20.	By Cash	2	9	0

According to Boyle's Court Guide of 1833 and 1834—the earliest London Directory containing streets is of the year 1841—the occupants of 3, Old Burlington Street, are given as 'Mrs. Anne Waite and C. Waite, surg.' The identity of Mr. Denza is not discoverable by this means. In 1833, the occupant of 20, Hanover Square, was the Duke of Cannizzaro, evidently an Italian nobleman. Next door to him resided the French Ambassador. It is evident that in those days Hanover Square was the residential quarter of the 'hupper suckles.'

In sending copies of these interesting extracts, Mr. Algernon Black (of Broadwood's) says:—'The first entry in the Day Book was made by one Corri, then a clerk of Messrs. Broadwood and a relative by marriage of the composer Dussek; the Ledger entry is in the handwriting of Joseph Ries, a clerk in this office, and brother of Ferdinand Ries, the friend and pupil of Beethoven.' Thus it will be seen that Bellini was in London for at least three months, if not longer. The exact location of his lodgings is now made known for the first time.

GLOUCESTER FESTIVAL NOVELTIES.

CHORAL WORKS.

'Emmaus' (A Biblical Scene). Words written by Joseph Bennett, music composed by A. Herbert Brewer. The familiar Bible story is here presented by Mr. Bennett in his own words, arranged so as to allow of fitting musical contrast. The opening plaintive chorus, 'With weary footsteps, eyes, of those who watch and weep,' refers to the disciples, while a soprano solo explains the weeping by telling of the shattered faith 'that kindled hope for Israel.' Another solo, still of mournful mood, is followed by a choral recitative, in which we hear of the disciples sad at heart, who 'towards Emmaus pass,' and of the voice of 'Him, the Lord, to Whom their eyes were blind.' Soon a chorus, mentioning the blessed scene of Jesus within the 'lowly hut' of the disciples, comments, as it were, upon the love and condescension of the Lord of heaven and earth. In like manner, until the end, Mr. Bennett has amplified the simple gospel narrative by means of solos and choruses, dwelling on certain important moments. Of the thoughtful and skilful music we may venture to name the choruses, 'O love most wonderful' and 'Dear Lord, the Bread of Life,' as two of the most impressive numbers in this meditative work by the organist of Gloucester Cathedral and conductor of the Festival.

Sir Frederick Bridge contributes to the Festival scheme a Dramatic Scene for bass solo, chorus and orchestra, entitled 'The Forging of the Anchor.' This work is certainly not open to the charge of excessive length; composers, like novelists, are now-a-days fully alive to the advantages of brevity. The poem of this Scene is by the late Sir Samuel Ferguson, who wrote it at the age of 21. It appeared in 1832 in Blackwood's Magazine, and attracted the notice of the famous Christopher North, who read it to some of his literary colleagues. He was asked if it was his own, and his brief yet significant answer was, 'I wish it were.' The subject of the poem suggests vigorous music, at times also of a certain realistic character: the shouting row of smiths, the swinking, Ho-panting crowd, the ringing hammers, and so forth. The setting is not lacking in these qualities, although the realism is ever kept well within bounds. The opening bars furnish a sturdy 'anchor' theme, which at fitting moments is introduced. Appropriate is the solemn ending at mention of those 'whose bones he [the anchor] goes among.'

In Piam Memoriam Victoriæ Reginæ: thus reads the dedication of a motet for eight-part chorus, unaccompanied, by Dr. Charles Harford Lloyd, entitled, 'The Righteous live for evermore,' words from the Book of Wisdom. The memory of the late Queen is dear to all, so that this work, quite apart from its musical merits, will make a strong appeal to the hearts of the hearers. In the orchestra, with its rich and varied tones, a composer possesses an instrument of mighty power, yet there is nothing so pure, so solemn, as a choir of voices unaccompanied. The motet is divided into three sections. The first, in which eternal life is the reward promised to the righteous, is slow and stately. The words of the second tell of the glorious kingdom which will be to them for an heritage; the music is an Allegretto Grazioso with fugal writing, but the characteristic theme on which it is based, and which, like a Gothic arch, points upwards, is never obscured by cloudy counterpoint. The third section, 'For with His right hand shall He cover them,' is bold and vigorous; it ends, however, in softest tones to the words 'With His arm shall He protect them.'

ORCHESTRAL WORKS.

'A Phantasy of Life and Love' is the designation of Dr. Frederic H. Cowen's orchestral poem, and, as its title implies, the music is a sort of picture of life with its emotions, struggles and yearnings, such as a young man might sit down and day-dream about. The work is scored for full orchestra, including four horns, three trombones, tuba and harp. There is no mistaking the storm and stress of the opening section; in it we have both emotion and struggle. And a new expressive theme, assigned at first to the clarinets, is equally clear as to its meaning; it is a 'love' motive. Then follow various sections in which different moods are represented—a vivacissimo, attracting special notice; here the day-dream becomes truly light and fantastic. When the principal theme returns, it is presented in less agitated form, and the 'love' theme not only follows in due course, but it has the last word; and the soft peaceful coda shows, so it seems to us, that love has triumphed over all the storms of life.

The orchestral Prelude composed by Mr. William Henry Bell is evidently not a work written in haste, and therefore there is no reason to think that he will have to repent of it at leisure or otherwise. It is scored for a large orchestra; besides the strings, wood-wind and brass, a cor anglais, a bass clarinet, a bass tuba, harp, also various instruments of percussion are employed. The Prelude has, by way of motto, two lines from Wordsworth, and this indicates on the part of the young composer a healthy love of nature—a favourable contrast to the weird stories and legends wherewith some seek to quicken thought and feeling. It opens with an andante tranquillo, in which the subject matter of the allegro vivace is set forth. The allegro itself is full of strong life, stirring rhythms, bold harmonies and effective contrasts. Throughout one feels that it is the work of one who has something to say, and wants to say it; it is not an ordinary pièce de circonstance.

Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's contribution to the Gloucester meeting, like that of two years ago at Worcester, is of very modest proportions. It takes the form of an orchestral piece bearing the simple title 'Idyll.' The principal theme is of quite reposeful character; it is, however, a real theme, not a short phrase or mere figure to be afterwards twisted and tortured by cunning devices. A middle section offers variety of key and character. The first theme is again presented, and in somewhat impassioned form, and then in a coda of delicate structure the music softly dies away.

SERVICE MUSIC.

Mr. John E. West contributes a Festival Anthem for soprano and bass soli, chorus, orchestra and organ, which will be performed at the Special opening Service in the Cathedral, on Sunday morning, the 8th inst. The title is, 'Lord, I have loved the habitation of Thy House,' the words being selected from Psalms 26, 27, and 32, also from the 47th chapter of Ecclesiasticus. In the opening section there is a broad flowing theme, which is heard several times, also a short motive for the brass, with which from the context, is associated the idea of praise. Other special features of this well-written anthem are an expressive 'Alleluia' phrase, first sung by female voices, a fully harmonised chorale, consisting of an old melody which for many years has been played by the chimes of Gloucester Cathedral, and which is said to have been composed by Stephen Jefferies, organist of the Cathedral from 1682 to 1710. A solid fugal section brings this fine festival anthem to an impressive conclusion.

The Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, for soprano solo, chorus and orchestra, by Mr. Bertram Luard Selby, written for the special Sunday Service, contains some thoughtful, expressive writing. The Magnificat is broad and dignified; and the Nunc Dimittis calm and soothing.

A NEW FESTIVAL COMPOSER: MR. W. H. BELL.

Although the subject of the subjoined biographical remarks has already won his spurs as a composer, he has yet to set his face towards the goal of success in the Festival field. In a few days, however, Gloucester will give him his opportunity.

William Henry Bell was born at St. Alban's, August 20, 1873. He received his earliest tuition in music from his father, who taught him to play the violin when only six years of age. Two years later he became a chorister at St. Alban's Cathedral, and attended the Grammar School of his native city. He received what he calls his 'first real lesson in music' at the age of thirteen, though he had practised the violin and even tried his hand at composition in a haphazard way ever since he was little more than a baby. Not that he was ever an infant prodigy; on the contrary, he preferred a game of football, or a long country ramble, a birds'-nesting expedition, &c., to a sickly life indoors, practising. His first teacher in theory was Miss Mary Toulmin (afterwards Lady Carbery), an old pupil of Mr. Frederick Corder's at the Academy, who gave him lessons in harmony, counterpoint and composition without fee or reward, but purely for the interest she took in the boy.

An important incident in his boyhood happened in 1889, when he was only fifteen years of age. Dr. Turpin told him that the Goss Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music was very soon to be competed for, and he advised young Bell to enter his name. But the chief condition of the test was organ-playing, and Bell had scarcely touched that instrument; and there was only a fortnight before the date of the competition. Nothing daunted, the boy, with that grit and earnestness of purpose which we generally attribute to the grandfathers of the present generation rather than to the young bloods, set to work practising the organ seven hours a day, and at the end of the fortnight won the scholarship! During his studentship of five years at Tenterden Street he had as teachers Dr. Steggall (organ), Mr. Alfred Burnett (violin), Mr. Alfred Izard and Mr. Septimus Webbe (pianoforte), and Mr. Frederick Corder (composition). Although by virtue of the Scholarship the organ was his principal study—and like many other 'old boys' he speaks in the highest terms of Dr. Steggall's valuable lessons—he gave his chief attention to composition. Stimulated by Mr. Corder's enthusiasm and breezy optimism he trod the path of perseverance, and while a student at Tenterden Street he wrote several orchestral works, some chamber music, and two cantatas, 'all of which,' he says, 'have long ago been relegated to the limbo of forgotten things.' For six years he was organist of St. Stephen's Church, St. Alban's, for six months (in 1896) he held a similar post at Oswestry Parish Church, and for the last two years he has been organist of All Saints' Church, Tufnell Park.

Since Mr. Bell left the Academy, in 1894, he has worked hard at serious composition. His creative achievements include a 'Gipsy Symphony,' two pianoforte quartets, a setting of Psalm 51, and

William Henry Bell

(From a Photograph by Mr. Furley Lewis, Stratford Studios, Kensington.)

several smaller works, besides 'A Prologue to Chaucer's Canterbury Tales,' produced by Mr. Manns, at the Crystal Palace Saturday Concert, April 30, 1898. Concerning its production, Mr. Bell says: 'This was the first work of mine that received a public hearing, and I, like so many more, can never be grateful enough to Mr. Manns for all his kindness to me. The amount of trouble he would take over the performance of an unknown composer's work, the kindly advice and valuable criticism he would offer, the gentle manner in which he would point out faults and the generous way he would mete out praise, where he thought it was deserving, all combine to make the memory of the four performances of works of mine at the Crystal Palace amongst the happiest remembrances of my life.' There is a true ring about this 'Honour to whom honour is due.' No one more richly deserves the tribute than the kind-hearted young-artist helper, the veteran August Manns, of Sydenham.

The above-mentioned 'Prologue' was intended as the forerunner of several Symphonic Poems founded upon Chaucer's immortal 'Tales,' and in the following year Mr. Bell wrote, and Mr. Manns produced, 'The Pardoner's Tale.' It was while rehearsing this that the kindly conductor suggested that the young composer should write a symphony, with the promise that he would perform the work, if he liked it. 'I had sometime before this,' says Mr. Bell, 'been very much impressed by the fine utterances of the American poet 'Walt Whitman,' and I found his poetry to fit in with my 'mood' so perfectly, that I resolved to try and suggest his outlook on life in a musical work. The result was a Symphony in C minor, performed by Mr. Manns, in two instalments, during the spring of last year. He was somewhat alarmed at its length—it occupies fifty-five minutes in performance—and at first only played three movements of the work, but these were so favourably received, that at his Benefit Concert he brought forward the omitted movement, a Theme with variations and Finale.'

In conclusion, it may be inferred from what has been said that Mr. Bell is poetic, and a well-read musician, of whom much may be expected as the years roll on. Since the composition of the 'Walt Whitman' symphony, he has written, besides smaller works, a symphonic poem, 'In great waters,' consisting of three movements dealing with sailor-life, viz.: No. 1, Outward bound; No. 2, The night watches; No. 3, On the fo'c'sle; and also a symphonic poem, entitled 'Toil'; and he is now at work on another symphony.

Mr. Bell's new orchestral work for Gloucester will be looked forward to with interest and expectation. It is a Symphonic Prelude for orchestra, entitled 'A song in the morning.' It bears this exhilarating motto from Wordsworth's poem 'Resolution and Independence'—

> All things that love the sun are out of doors;
> The sky rejoices in the morning's birth.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

THE LATE BISHOP WESTCOTT ON CHANTING THE PSALMS.

The death of the Bishop of Durham, on July 27, has occasioned widespread regret. Any utterance of so distinguished a prelate and so scholarly a theologian, as Dr. Brooke Foss Westcott undoubtedly was, is one that commands respect and serious attention. This is especially the case in so important a feature of the church service as the chanting of the psalms. Bishop Westcott said (we quote from his valuable Preface to the Paragraph Psalter):—

> In our Cathedrals and great Churches the Psalms are the centre of the service. They furnish splendid opportunities for the consecration of the highest gifts of musical genius and musical skill; and no nobler task can be given to the religious artist than to interpret them in a universal language. This is his proper office. The student of Theology can only offer him some clue to their structure and to their characteristic lessons, in the hope that it may be of service to him as he comes to offer his own gift in Divine worship.

Omitting the qualification 'great' in the first sentence of the above quotation, these beautifully-expressed words of the good Bishop should be written in letters of gold upon the heart of every church organist, choirmaster, and member of a church choir, irrespective of denomination.

A FESTIVAL NORTH OF THE TWEED.

The completion (or practical completion) of the cathedral of St. Ninian, Perth—signalised, on July 30, by the presence of the Archbishop of Canterbury and eleven other Bishops of the Anglican Communion—was an occasion for a musical function which was worthily sustained by the cathedral organist, Mr. Stephen Richardson, and those associated with him. The choral programme was brilliantly carried through by the cathedral choir, unassisted by any other voices. Stainer in E flat was sung at the choral celebration; at the dedication service a Festal Te Deum in G, composed by Mr. Richardson for choir, organ, and orchestra, revealed many points of interest and expressive treatment. At evensong, Stanford in B flat and Goss's ever fresh 'Praise the Lord' formed the chief musical features of a most successful service. Throughout the day the organ accompaniments were safe in the hands of Mr. T. H. Collinson, organist of St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh. In addition to the organ were accessory parts for strings and drums, carefully arranged by Mr. Richardson. The excellent tone-production of the choristers and the acoustical perfection of this charming petite cathedral impressed many by their happy effect. The organ, a large instrument, re-built by Mr. John Miller, of Dundee, is one of four manuals, of cathedral proportions and fine tone; the console, which stands some sixty feet or more from the organ, has a delightfully prompt touch, and the stop-keys are on an improved system, which needs only to be seen and tried to be admired.

Within the octave of the above Festival, on the 3rd ult., a meeting of the choirs of the Diocese was held, at which about 200 voices were present, the cathedral choir being also assisted by a contingent from St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh. The psalms were taken from the Cathedral Paragraph Psalter, of which the pointing—so admirably clear and definite in its time symbols—is fast gaining recognition as the most certain of Psalters for interpretation by a large number of voices. The canticles were Richardson in D, composed specially for the Association on plain and practical lines, chiefly unisonal, with a melodious Nunc Dimittis for men's voices. Elvey's 'I was glad,' and Tours's Te Deum in F were also sung, the last-named enhanced by a very fine part for the drums. Mr. Richardson secured an excellent rendering of the service in spite of the ebullient tendencies of a small section of the singers whose 'forte' was not 'piano,' though they would fain have made piano their forte.

TRACTS ON CHURCH MUSIC.

A group of interesting tracts on hymn-tunes, hymn-singing, and church choirs consists of the following:—A practical Discourse on some Principles of Hymn-Singing. By Robert Bridges. (Oxford: B. H. Blackwell.) A paper, reprinted from the 'Journal of Theological Studies, October, 1899,' in which the author pleads for 'dignified melody' and simplicity of expression in hymn-tunes, with a strong predilection for the old church tunes of a strict type. Mr. Bridges, who is one of the editors of the 'Yattendon Hymnal,' states his views in thoughtful and well-reasoned language.——Notes on the Singing of Hymns. By Clement Antrobus Harris. (Published by the author, Ellangowan, Crieff.) A pamphlet which treats of 'common faults in common tunes, jottings, and what-not,' by the organist of St. Columba's, Crieff.——The Training and Capabilities of Voluntary Church Choirs. By the Rev. O. P. Fisher. (Chester: Phillipson and Golder.) A critical and practical paper, read before the Chester Junior Clerical Society, containing much food for reflection.——Renderings of Church Hymns from Eastern and Western Office Books. (C. J. Clay and Sons.) By the Rev. R. M. Moorsom; music by Rev. G. W. Griffith and Mr. W. S. De Winton.

INTERESTING OLD-TIME MUSIC.

An unusually interesting Recital of Polyphonic Church Music, by English and Italian composers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, was excellently rendered at Downside Abbey, near Bath, on July 20, under the able direction of Mr. R. R. Terry, who has made this old ecclesiastical music a special study, with Mr. H. J. Davies at the organ. It will be noticed that, with three exceptions, all the composers in the scheme were English. Moreover, most of the works may be considered practically unknown, as the occasions on which they have been performed are very few—indeed, some of them have not been heard beyond the walls of Downside. We give the entire programme:—

A lamentation for five voices (MS.) ... } Thomas Tallis Benedictus from a four-part Mass (MS.) } (1515?—1585).

Agnus Dei from a six-part Mass entitled 'Euge bone' Dr. Christopher Tye (died about 1580).

Sanctus and Agnus Dei from a five-part Mass ... ... } Wm. Byrd
Motet, five voices, 'Laetentur cœli' ... } (1538?—1623).

,, eight ,, (double choir) Stabat Mater } Palestrina
,, ,, ,, ,, Surge illuminare } (1514?—1594).

,, five ,, 'Hodie Sanctus Benedictus' Peter Philips (1612).

Anthem for six voices, with organ, 'O Thou the central orb' Orlando Gibbons (1583—1625).

Quartet (T.T.B.B.), 'O sacrum convivium' Ludovico Viadana (born about 1565).

Motet, five voices, with organ, 'Salvator Mundi' Dr. Blow (1648—1708).

,, four ,, ,, 'O vos omnes' ... Durón (17th century).

,, five ,, ,, 'Jehova quam multi' Purcell (1658—1695).

Chorus for four voices, 'Adoremus' ... Gregorio Allegri (1580—1652).

Subjoined is a specimen of the annotations:—

Anthem for six voices, S.S.A.A.T.B., with organ, 'O Thou the central orb' } Orlando Gibbons (1583—1625).

Orlando Gibbons, sometimes called the English Palestrina, was a pupil of Byrd. He only survived his master by two years, although he was his junior by forty. Although he belongs chronologically to the seventeenth century, his work shows none of the characteristics of that period. His methods, his style, his sympathies, were wholly those of the sixteenth century. He was (although the last) by no means the least representative of that great school of polyphony, which, in England expired with him. He wrote many fine madrigals, but it is by his sacred works that he will be remembered. For simple grandeur and solemn dignity they have seldom been surpassed. How many of his contrapuntal motets have been adapted from the Latin, will never be known, as none were printed until after his death. Amongst others, his best known anthem, 'Hosanna to the son of David,' bears every trace of having passed through the hands of the arch-adapter Barnard; the English words (contrary to custom) do not exactly agree with either the Book of Common Prayer or any then extant (1641) English version of the Bible, but on the other hand they do follow closely the Antiphon 'Hosanna Filio David' which occurs in the Latin office for Palm Sunday. A very large number of his anthems, however, were clearly written to English words, and amongst them is the present too-little-known example. The original is headed:—'A thanksgiving for the king's rapid recovery from a great dangerous sickness,' and the flattery then accorded to monarchs was not absent, as may be seen from the following couplet:—

'His life is worth ten thousand, therefore give
Our souls ten thousand thanks that he doth live.'

The present words were written by Dean Bramley. The organ part was arranged from the original string accompaniments by the late Sir Frederick Ouseley.

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER AND CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Herbert Antcliffe, St. Michael and All Angels' Church, Northfield, Rotherham.

Mr. George A. Baker, Woodchurch Parish Church, Birkenhead.

Mr. Joseph W. Burt, Holy Trinity Church, Stroud, Gloucestershire.

Mr. C. Elvey Cope, St. Peter's Church, St. Leonard's-on-Sea.

Mr. H. Collier Grounds, Holy Angels Church, Buffalo, N.Y.

Mr. Frank T. Lowden, St. Paul's Church, Forest Hill.

Mr. Frederic G. Palmer, Fishguard Parish Church.

Miss Scriven, Christ Church, Weston-super-Mare.

Mr. Latimer Tertius Sharp, Parish Church, Greenock.

Mr. Cyril J. Smith, St. Peter's Church, Walworth.

Mr. Eustace Turner, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Paul's Church, Beckenham, and Choirmaster of St. Barnabas Church, Beckenham.

Mr. Sydney H. F. Wéalé, Parish Church, Newark-on-Trent.

Mr. Harry Collins (Tenor), King's College, Cambridge.

PROFESSOR NIECKS ON 'THE ETHICAL ASPECTS OF MUSIC.'

(Concluded from page 545.)

II.

If the first lecture was difficult to curtail, the second is ten times more so. The reader must here and there be content with a hint instead of an explanation. In opening the second lecture, Professor Niecks laid down the proposition that music is educative, or rather, can be educative in three ways—physically, intellectually, and morally; adding, however, that although separable in discussion, they are closely connected in reality. 'The affected body affects the mind, and the affected mind affects the manners and character.'

The study and cultivation of music educate physically by developing the capacity of the organs of hearing and of song and speech. Just as by the practice of drawing and painting our eye gains in accuracy of vision, and our hand in precision and delicacy of touch, so by the practice of music our ear gains in accuracy of hearing, and our larynx, mouth, tongue, hands, &c., in precision and delicacy of action. The usefulness of training the eye to perceive and the hand to render size, distance, form, and tints of colour, although insufficiently understood, is nevertheless more widely recognised than that of training the ear to perceive and the vocal organs to render height and intervals of pitch, rate and proportion of time, and qualities of tone. In the case of instrumental music, there come also more or less into play fingers, hands, arms, and even feet. . . .

If the intellectual advantages of the study and cultivation of music are less obvious than the physical, they are not less real. Reflection cannot but quicky disclose to us that the physical developments have intellectual concomitants, that hand in hand with the development of the organ of hearing and of the other organs goes that of the mental faculties. In short, we shall see that the proper study and cultivation of music develop our power of mental perception, our power of analysis and synthesis, our tonal memory, the form sense, and the imagination. The enjoyment of a piece of music implies a mind as well as an ear. He who is able to enjoy a Beethoven symphony, though he may not have learned to sing, or play, or compose, shows thereby that he has attained a high degree of intellectual acuteness and vigour, that he has attained the power of analysis and synthesis necessary for the comprehension of melodic, rhythmic, harmonic, contrapuntal, structural, colouristic combinations. The enjoyment of less complex compositions likewise implies this analytical and synthetical power, although in a proportionately less degree. But mark, I am speaking of active, intelligent enjoyment of music, not of mere passive, sensuous enjoyment. The former alone is the full enjoyment. Little intellectual profit is to be obtained from the latter.

Now we come to the third way in which music can become educative. It can become morally educative, and can become so both by the formal and by the expressive side of its nature. Instead of formal and expressive, we may also use the terms æsthetic and ethic. By the æsthetic we mean that which makes for the beautiful. . . .

Whatever else the beautiful comprises, we feel and know that it must comprise orderliness, harmoniousness, and sweetness. The orderly, the harmonious, and the sweet pervade music wholly. You find them in it everywhere; in the primary material, tone, which, as distinguished from noise, is the result of periodic, that is, regularly recurring vibrations; in the systematised materials, scales and chords, tuned according to certain ratios; in melodies, harmonic progressions, and modulations from key to key, regulated by the law of relationship called tonality; in the resolutions of dissonances into consonances; in rhythm, from the tiniest group of notes forming a motive, group of motives, group of phrases, group of periods and passages, up to long complex movements, and grand works of many movements; and, lastly, in the blending and opposing of tone-colours. There, everywhere you find orderliness, harmoniousness, and sweetness. Now, by the study and cultivation of the art we can make these qualities, which belong more peculiarly to music than to any other art, our own. If you do not shut yourself up against the influences of music, its orderliness, harmoniousness, and sweetness will gradually be instilled into you, more and more permeate you, and finally become absorbed and amalgamated by you. Consider what a refining and sweetening power there is in tone alone! Think of a single note produced by a great singer or violinist! Is it not a symbol of perfect purity, calm, and loveliness? Then call up as many as you can of the linked sweetnesses in melody, harmony, rhythm, and tone-colour; and consider how much of refining and sweetening power there must be in these ineffable infinitudes of fair proportions, graceful movements, and charming concords and colouristic variation and combination. . . .

To diminish as much as possible the misunderstandings which my arguments may raise, I shall say that in vindicating the expressiveness of music I by no means assert that all music is expressive, or that it can express everything. Only the composer who has something to express, has the natural power and the acquired skill to express it, and, lastly, has the conscious intention, or the unconscious impulse, to express something, can produce expressive music. But there are composers who have nothing to express; composers who lack the natural power or acquired skill to express what they wish to express; and composers who, skilful in the handling of the means, know nothing of the expressive capability of the art, and regard composition merely as a display for the pleasure of the ear and the entertainment of the mind, chiefly the first. In fact, a good deal of music is out-and-out formal, a mere play with sounds, a kind of tonal arabesques; an immense mass of music has interwoven with the prevailing formalism dim, confused, stray, and aimless echoes of expressiveness; and even truly idealistic music contains much that is purely formal, for the most poetic musician will occasionally indulge in play and find satisfaction in empty beautiful forms. There is nothing illegitimate about purely formal music. It may be fine art, and afford æsthetic pleasure. But grand art and noble art you get only when the beautiful form has a content. The highest in art necessitates both content and form. You cannot move deeply by arabesques, though you may please and amuse. But let us not overlook this: while in art form without content is possible, content without form, without beautiful form, is not. Art to be art must be formally beautiful; this is an absolutely indispensable condition. Nothing whatever can make up for the want of it.

Well, then, we are confronted by three questions:—(1) is music expressive in the sense of being capable to express emotions and ideas? (2) What are the means that enable it to be so? And (3) What is the extent of its expressiveness? We have not time to investigate these problems thoroughly, but I think it is possible to point out a moderate number of facts that will prove sufficient to convince you of the expressiveness of music and make you acquainted with its means and limitations.

Liberal deductions made of self-delusion and parrot-like repetition, there remains an important body of ancient testimony in favour of the expressiveness of music. It cannot be set aside by a smile or wave of the hand. But, be our estimate high or low, we must admit that a modern wants more particulars about the physical facts implied and a more scientific statement of the mental process involved. Nevertheless, to speak as the ancients did of the correlation of music and the soul, and of the connection between musical and psychical motion, is not so fantastic an explanation as it appears to be at first sight. This modern theories make clear.

While many writers before Herbert Spencer occupied themselves with the expressiveness of music, ascribing it to the imitation of the motions of the feelings, or to the imitation of the accents of speech, and also to the imitation of sounds in the external world, it was he who first gave us, in 1857, a scientific theory. I shall let the author explain it for the most part in his own words. Herbert Spencer regards music as the developed language of emotion, as having its root in the vocal sounds caused by feelings of all kinds. In short, he bases his theory of music on the fact that all feelings are muscular stimuli, that there is a direct connection between feeling and motion, the latter growing more vehement as the former grows more intense. 'All vocal sounds,' he writes, 'are produced by the agency of certain muscles. These muscles, in common with those of the body at large, are excited to contraction by pleasurable and painful feelings. And therefore it is that feelings demonstrate themselves in sounds as well as in movements. . . . The muscles that move the chest, larynx, and vocal chords, contracting like other muscles in proportion to the intensity of the feelings, every different contraction of these muscles involving, as it does, a different adjustment of the vocal organs; every different adjustment of the vocal organs, causing a change in the sounds emitted; it follows that variations of voice are the physiological results of variations of feelings; it follows that each inflection or modulation is the natural outcome of some pressing emotion or sensation; and it follows that the explanation of all kinds of vocal expression must be sought in this general relation between mental and muscular excitements. The various modifications of the voice produced by the emotions and sensations are of three kinds:—modifications of loudness, of quality, and of pitch. . . . .' Herbert Spencer points out also, on the one hand, the exhilaration, resolution, and confidence expressed by the staccato, and the muscular action which produces sharp, decisive, and energetic movements of body indicating these states of mind, and, on the other hand, the gentler and less active feelings expressed by slurred intervals, which imply the smaller vivacity due to a lower mental energy. And, lastly, he points out that to the same law is attributable the difference in time and, perhaps, even in rhythm.

Herbert Spencer's theory is excellent as far as it goes, but incomplete; and of this the author was very well aware. The modifications of the voice with regard to pitch, quality, and loudness, to which he gives most of his attention, receive a far from exhaustive treatment, tempo and rhythm are little more than alluded to, and several means of expression he does not mention at all. To understand the expressiveness of tempo and rhythm we have to note that our emotions not only manifest themselves audibly and visibly, but also make themselves felt within us. Of the various rates and forms of respiration and circulation of the blood under various mental conditions nobody can fail to become conscious. We all have felt the languor of the circulation in sorrow, its briskness in joy, the palpitation of the heart and its knocking against the ribs in fear. And how many rates and forms, regular and irregular, of breathing accompany our emotions. Moreover, inspiration and expiration, heart-beats, and the pulse, are our first teachers of time and rhythm. They are also our metronome, indicating the mean or normal time and what deviates from it towards the quick or slow side. Tempo and rhythm are also present in our gestures and in the movements of our limbs. These belong to the visible, but, as we shall see, the audible can express the visible analogically.

In connection with this visible motion we must be careful not to overlook that it comprises both motion in time and in space, or, as I like to call them, both rhythmic and melodic motion. It is the melodic element of motion that makes—at least to a large extent—the walk of one person graceful, of another majestic, of a third tripping, and so on. You have intervals of all sizes no less in things visible than in things audible. In creeping you proceed as it were in semitones, in quietly walking by diatonic degrees, and in skipping and leaping by larger intervals. Moreover, gliding, crawling, and creeping imply legato; tripping, hopping, and leaping, staccato. To this analogy of the visible and audible we owe an enormous extension of the expressive powers of the arts, especially of music. The senses acting vicariously for each other, music cannot only make us hear, but also see, and painting not only makes us see but also hear. And that is not all, these arts can also make us feel, sight and hearing acting as substitutes for touch.

Besides the elements of expression already passed in review there is a class of quite a different kind. The latter differ from the former in that they are not imitations of the expressions of the emotions, at least not direct imitations, and that they are means of expression peculiar to the musical art. I am speaking of (1) consonance and dissonance, and the combination of intervals in harmony; (2) tonality in the narrower and in the wider sense; and (3) orchestration.

Passing over the descriptions of these three means of expression, we come to a systematic enumeration of all the means of expression at the disposal of the composer:

1. The imitation of the human cries and the modulations of speech with regard to pitch, intensity, quality, tempo, and rhythm.
2. The imitation of tempo, rhythm, and intensity in respiration and the circulation of the blood.
3. The imitation of tempo, rhythm, intensity and melody, in gestures and other movements of the body and limbs generally.
4. The imitation of sound and motion in the external world.
5. Consonances and dissonances and their combination in harmony.
6. Tonality, i.e., tone and key relation.
7. Orchestration, i.e., instrumental colouring.

We regret the necessity of abbreviating Professor Niecks's answers to some trying questions that arise in the study of his problem. He said:—

What is the process which enables us to understand the meaning of the physical conditions that accompany the emotions? Experience teaches us that to every condition of the soul corresponds a condition of the body; and, consequently, we recognise an emotion on meeting with its expression. In short, it is the experience of our own hearing, seeing, and feeling that teaches us the psychical meaning of physical signs—such as cries and accents of pain, sorrow, joy, ecstasy, wonder; of gestures and movements of the body and parts of the body; of the variations of respiration, of the circulation of the blood, etc., etc.

Have we in music the exact reproduction of the elements of emotional expression enumerated a little while ago? The answer to this is 'No.' As art must be formally beautiful to be art, the materials it makes use of, whatever they may be, cannot be used in their raw state. They have to be idealised, and, moreover, adapted to the peculiar nature of the art. In music, sound has to be changed into tone, indefinite tone progression into definite, irregular rhythm into regular, inarticulate consecution into articulate structure conditioned by the laws of tonality and form. The idealisation of the natural expression, the intermingling of form and expression, leads to a something from which arises a difficulty. When the material is, as in this case, living, not dead, speaking, not dumb, the idealisation, the intermingling of form and expression, leads to a veiling of the real, to seeing through a glass darkly. But this difficulty exists almost entirely for the intellect, and hardly at all for the feeling soul, that is, for the organ of divination. From this idealisation of the living materials, from the intermingling of form and expression, springs all the intellectual strife between the formalists and the idealists, and from it, too, spring all the doubts of the neutrals, whom innumerable symptoms seem to show to be at heart all at one.

For proofs of the expressiveness of music, the lecturer referred his audience to the sayings of the great masters; to the musical public, which finds in music what the composers believe to have laid into it; and to the analysis of masterpieces, beginning with accompanied recitatives, arias, and songs, and only afterwards proceeding to purely instrumental compositions. But, he continued:

Can music express everything? No, it cannot. I shall answer the question summarily, and stoutly resist the temptation of going into detail. Music can neither narrate nor reason. It has often been called a language, and rightly so called. But if you had no other language than music for asking a person's name, the direction of the way, the time of day, the amount of an account, or for ordering your meals, you would not get on comfortably in this world, nay, would be in danger of coming to an untimely end by starvation. What is it then that music can express? It can express the emotions, and can express these better than any other language. However, even of these it cannot express all. There are feelings compounded out of heterogeneous and contradictory elements held together by an intellectual bond which it is not in the power of music to express—such are jealousy, envy, suspicion, etc. In fact, the musical expression ignores the intellectual element in the emotions. On the other hand, it is a mistake to say that emotional expression is indefinite. Mendelssohn is right in maintaining that words are more ambiguous than music, that the meaning of music is unmistakable. What those people who speak about the indefiniteness of music really mean is that the circumstances of the emotions expressed by music are either wholly absent or only vaguely indicated by the depicting of external sounds, movements, colours, and light and shade, either directly or analogically. Through the emotions and through the picturing of external things, music can, however, also act in a variety of ways on the imagination.

If we remember that on meeting with the expression of an emotion, we not only understand it, but also at the same time more or less experience it ourselves sympathetically, it is self-evident that the goodness or the badness of the emotion we are made to experience is by no means an indifferent matter. The repeated stirring up of noble emotions cannot but have a strengthening and purifying influence on the moral character, and the repeated stirring up of ignoble emotions a weakening and vitiating influence. It is likewise self-evident that, be the influence of the æsthetic side of music on the manners and morals ever so great, the influence of the ethic side must be greater, at least on the morals if not on the manners—it must be more direct, more powerful, and more penetrating.

Seeing how important a part music can play in education, it behoves all concerned and interested in the work, especially teachers of music, to see that music really plays the part it can play. Mere mechanical drilling in the technics of the art, and even a more artistic, but unintelligent and promiscuous, cultivation of it, do little for the mind and heart of the student. It is therefore incumbent on the teacher that he should constantly, from first to last, keep in mind the æsthetic and ethic qualities and powers of music, and accordingly form his methods of teaching, and choose the works to be studied by his pupils.

Let us see what are the most important matters that have to be attended to by the teacher of music who wishes to fulfil the duties of his calling.

The training of the ear is of course an indispensable condition, for on the capacity of distinguishing pitch and time relations and qualities of tone depends the successful cultivation of the art. The æsthetic education demands the development of the sense of beauty with regard to tone, melody, harmony, rhythm, and form. Instead of being left to itself this sense ought to be carefully nurtured. Unconscious growth does not achieve the best possible results. The pupil should not only learn to feel the beauty dimly but also to see it clearly. Hence example and explanation must go hand in hand. The pointing out should be with the beauty of tone, the appreciation and production of which is fundamental in the æsthetic development, and should be continued with the beauty of melody, rhythm, form, and harmony. In order to remove the impediments to smooth and steady progress it is necessary to set out from the simple and only gradual advance to the more and more complex. The teacher has to draw the attention of the pupil to the beauty of the several constituents of music, especially to that of form, which is less easily perceived and understood than tone, melody, rhythm, and perhaps harmony. The unsystematic, thoughtless choice of music for study does incalculable harm to learners; it retards their progress, and does worse, stunts their growth. The thoughtfully graduated choice of music alone can secure the attainment of the best object of æsthetic culture—refinement of manners and character, transmutation of the artistic orderly and harmonious into the moral orderly and harmonious.

In the ethic education, too, the pupil should not be left without guidance from his teacher. The latter ought to point out the ethic characteristics of the compositions studied, and give into the pupil's hands only such music as is suitable to his age and temperament. In what I am going to say now I am convinced that I offer sound advice to teachers. Do not give to a child music that demands a grown-up person's intellect and emotional experiences; for instance, most of Beethoven and Chopin. Avoid everything vulgar, weak, unwholesome, and vicious. Erotic compositions, such as Liszt's 'Mephisto' Waltz, and much in Wagner's operas—such as the 'Venusberg' music and the love scenes in 'Tristan and Isolde' have a baneful influence. A music teacher of long and wide experience, a good observer, told me that he had found Chopin's and Jensen's music quicken amativeness in young people. Effeminate, languid music has certainly a relaxing effect. Too much of Spohr's ultra-sentimental though noble music, and too much of Chopin's to a large extent morbid though refined music, cannot but have a deleterious effect. If, on the other hand, you make your choice wisely, you will be able to inculcate into your pupils purity, tenderness, firmness, and other moral qualities. A great deal, however, that must be altogether withheld from a child, or administered to him in very small doses, may be enjoyed in moderation by a man. But let us distinguish between occasional and habitual indulgence. Habitual and exclusive indulgence in Spohr, in Chopin, and in Wagner makes a moral wreck of a man. It requires a strong constitution or strong antidotes to escape the natural results of such indulgence.

I foresee the objections that will be raised against my propositions. Many will say, 'Your facts and your reasonings seem correct, and almost convince us; but in looking around us we fail to discover the signs that would confirm your theory. We have not been able to find that the teaching of music improves, as a rule, people's manners and morals. We have not been able to find that musicians are in these respects superior to other people, as they ought to be, seeing how much more they study and cultivate the art.' These objections are not so formidable as they appear. My answer is this: Music to have the power claimed for it must be taught and cultivated properly. Now, my experience has convinced me that there is hardly any proper teaching of music and an immense deal of miscultivation. As to musicians, they are, like all specialists, abnormal. Only a harmoniously developed man is a full and normal man. He who develops solely or chiefly a part of himself is a cripple, be he ever so athletic in that part. It is for this reason that Aristotle says: 'The right measure will be attained if students of music stop short of the arts which are practised in professional contests.'

Professor Niecks concluded his valuable discourses in the following eloquent peroration:—

'What Plato says of good or bad dances and songs—namely, that they have the same effect on a man as bad company—applies equally to music. Noble music induces and strengthens nobleness, vulgar music vulgarity, pure music purity, voluptuous music voluptuousness, vigorous music vigour, languid music languor, and so on. Our highly developed modern music is a wondrously subtle and powerful instrument of enormous range, which, with the greatest ease, can cause our souls to undergo an infinitude of changes, and in consequence of this can influence in an infinitude of ways our manners and characters. This being so, it is clearly the duty of parents, of guardians, of teachers, and last, but not least, of the State, to make the utmost use of this powerful instrument.'

REVIEWS.

Denkmäler der Tonkunst in Desterreich. VIII Jahrgang. Erster Theil, Andreas Hammerschmidt; Zweiter Theil, Pachelbel. [Vienna: Artaria and Co.]

The two composers whose music is contained in the volumes mentioned above were both predecessors of Bach, and quite apart from any merits of their own, a study of their works offers deep interest; for they prepared the way. Bach is justly regarded as the greatest of what may be called the old dispensation, but we need reminding of the men who developed form and technique, and made him possible. We often talk glibly of great geniuses like Bach and Handel surpassing all their predecessors, yet it is only by actually seeing what the latter accomplished that we can fully realize what those geniuses owed to them. This in itself would be a profitable study in evolution, but much pre-Bachian music has a distinct interest of its own.

The Hammerschmidt volume is edited by Dr. A. W. Schmidt, who, in a preface, gives valuable information respecting the composer, who was born about 1612, and became organist at Freiberg, and, afterwards, at Zittau, where he remained until his death in 1675. His 'Musikalischer Andachten,' published in five parts, between the years 1641 and 1652, was his most comprehensive work; but the 'Gespräche zwischen Gott und einer gläubigen Seelen' (1645) specially influenced Bach in writing his 'Passions.' Wonderful is the dignity, also the religious fervour of the music, and there is also a grand simplicity, but one, however, in which skilful art is carefully concealed. These 'Dialogues' cannot be dismissed with the common-place 'very interesting considering the period,' comment. There is real life and power in the music, and, if only space permitted, we would gladly call attention to many interesting points.

The second volume is not a whit behind the Hammerschmidt in interest. Pachelbel, the famous organist of St. Sebaldus, Nuremberg, was born in that city in 1653. Not only was he on intimate terms of friendship with various members of the great Bach family, but the elder brother of J. S. Bach studied under him, and when the father died, in 1695, Johann Sebastian was placed under his care; thus from early youth the great cantor came indirectly but strongly under Pachelbel influence. Dr. Hugo Botstiber, who furnishes a highly interesting preface, is not satisfied with the ordinary description of the composer as 'one of the most important predecessors of Bach.' He considers that he created forms which not even Bach surpassed; also that much of his music claims note on its own account. We doubt whether he is quite justified in his first statement, but with his estimate of the value of Pachelbel's music per se we fully agree. Dr. Botstiber has much to say about the form of the three-part fugues which served as basis to Bach, but the relationship between Bach's themes and general phraseology—especially in his early fugues—and those of Pachelbel is also most striking. The preface contains many interesting details concerning Pachelbel's life and the various organ appointments which he held.

The music consists of fugues or fugal pieces on the 'Magnificat' in all the eight modes. Kerl, as Dr. Botstiber remarks, had already published his 'Modulatio organica super Magnificat octo Tonorum.' Then Kuhnau also published suites in the various modes, so that Bach's order of keys in his Well-tempered Clavier had been to some extent foreshadowed.

G. W. Körner, who died in 1865, planned a complete edition of Pachelbel's works, and, in fact, published one Heft. Then Franz Commer, in his 'Sammlung der besten Meisterwerke des 17. und 18. Jahrhunderts für die Orgel,' published the 'Magnificat' pieces from a manuscript in the Royal Institute for Church Music, Berlin. Dr. Botstiber has however consulted a manuscript volume in the British Museum which contains other fugues and different readings, so that the present critical edition is more complete and one, therefore, of greater value.

Pachelbel is said to have visited Oxford, and Dr. Botstiber thinks the Museum volume may be in some way connected with that visit. It is just possible that he may be right; but it seems—from what Mr. Hughes-Hughes, of the British Museum, knows of Carl Zoeller, from whom the volume was purchased—that he originally picked it up in Germany; Zoeller, it appears, bought many books at Dresden.

MUSICAL LITERATURE.

Souvenir of Sir Arthur Sullivan, Mus. Doc., M.V.O. A brief sketch of his life and works. By Walter J. Wells. [George Newnes, Limited.]

No fault can be found with the general appearance of this book and the profuseness of its illustrations, facsimiles and the like, nor would it be fair to adversely criticise the sketchiness of its biographical matter, considering that only a 'brief sketch' of Sir Arthur Sullivan's life is here put forward. The author has succeeded in compiling a popular life of the eminent musician which is likely to have many readers. In view of a second edition of the book, we venture to point out a few errors which call for correction: (p. 27) Sullivan set only eleven of the 'Wren' cycle of songs by Tennyson, not the complete twelve; (p. 28) his Festival Te Deum was not 'performed by an orchestra (!) of over 2,000 performers'; and Sullivan did not insert the arpeggio tenor notes in line 10 of 'Onward, Christian Soldiers' in the proof of the original edition (which, by the way, first appeared in The Musical Times), but in the 'Church Hymns' version (1874) of his famous tune; and that his music to the 'Merchant of Venice' was first performed at Manchester, not Birmingham. The date of the composer's death is not given, and in regard to those dates that are furnished, several are unfortunately wrong—e.g., 'The Sorcerer' is stated to have been first publicly performed on a Sunday!

Brother Musicians. Reminiscences of Edward and Walter Bache. By Constance Bache. [Methuen and Company.]

'Look here upon this picture, and on this,' is the natural comment the reader makes when perusing this interesting dual-biography, not that it is by any means a 'counterfeit presentment of two brothers' by a gifted and devoted sister, but it is a study in contrasts. Edward, the elder of the two Baches, lived his short life at a time when music in England was more or less parochialized, so to speak; and, although he studied at the Leipzig Conservatorium, we find him writing (in 1854) from the Saxon capital: 'I heard no opera in Dresden, as Hector Berlioz was there, monopolizing the opera house with his horrid rubbish. I prefer Wagner to Berlioz, though Wagner is so abominable that you cannot imagine such a noise as yet in England.' Again, from Leipzig, in October of the same year (1854): 'Zampa—most melodious, brilliantly scored, tender feeling, melodramatic effects, in fact one of the most charming operas I ever heard, fully coming up to the glorious overture.' And still further: 'I have lately played much of Schumann's music, and every successive piece increases my dislike to it in toto. He has musical learning enough, but everything is confused, and noisy (the Schumannites say deep), and when you do hear a melody it is not at all original.' All this reads very strangely to us; but, as Miss Bache says, it must not be inferred that, had her brother Edward lived to the present time, he would have held to the opinions he then expressed. But such views must not detract from the high qualifications of Edward Bache, who was a victim to the scourge of consumption at the age of twenty-five. His published compositions give every indication of a gifted musical organism that in due time would have attained to a ripe fruition in creative genius.

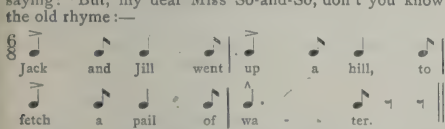
Walter, the younger brother, may be designated the apostle of Liszt in England. How he came into close intimacy with the King of pianoforte players, his unselfish devotion to Liszt as a composer, his self-denying labours and loss of hard cash in the cause of this enthusiastic hero-worship — the whole story is related, and very charmingly—by Miss Constance Bache in these pleasant pages. As a pianoforte teacher, Walter Bache had a large circle of pupils, all of whom were not Clara Schumanns in embryo. We learn that 'on one occasion he had a pupil who could not give any idea of rhythm. He tried one way after another to drum some hint of his meaning into her mind; at last, nearly beside himself to find a better simile, he walked up and down the room saying: 'But, my dear Miss So-and-So, don't you know the old rhyme:—



Again: 'In a singing-class of young girls, when teaching them to sing chords from dictation, there was one chord which he used to call 'Clapham Junction,' because it led everywhere! The result was that when he called out for 'Clapham Junction,' the girls were all wide-awake and ready for it; whereas, if he had asked for the chord of the diminished seventh, they would probably have looked utterly blank, or sung some other at haphazard.' In one of his amusing letters, Walter writes: 'People are so stupid; they won't take lessons, confound them; so that now all my money is gone except about £10; but perhaps I am going on a tour with a little opera company, so that I shall get several pounds by that; I have got an organistship for £40 a year.' We think that we can give the place of this organistship; it was St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, where, in 1866, Bache was succeeded by the late Dr. E. F. Rimbault, and of which a former organist was Dr. Boyce. The place of Walter Bache's interment is, doubtless inadvertently, omitted; he was buried in Hampstead Cemetery, where G. A. Macfarren, Henry Smart, and Joseph Maas found their last resting places.

The temptation to quote from a book which contains so many plums of interest must, however, be resisted. We have nothing but praise for the excellent manner in which Miss Constance Bache has related the life stories of her distinguished brothers. It has, we are sure, been a labour of love to her, so reverently, simply, and beautifully has she discharged her sisterly task. The book, which is one that will repay reading from cover to cover, contains sixteen illustrations. Its dedication to Mr. A. J. Hipkins—the 'Hip' of 'The Working Men's Society'—is in the highest degree appropriate.

FUNERAL MUSIC.

Day of Wrath. The words translated by the Rev. W. J. Irons, from Thomas of Celano. Music composed by J. Stainer.

The Face of Death. Words by Lord Tennyson. Music by Walter Parratt.

Out of the Deep. By George C. Martin.

Blessed are the dead. By Luard Selby.

Novello's Octavo Anthems.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The late Sir John Stainer's setting of the Dies iræ is described as a hymn-anthem, a term which well defines the form and character of the music. It is simple in design, and, sung as directed, would be most impressive at a funeral or memorial service. Sir Walter Parratt's anthem is intended to be rendered unaccompanied, and is laid out for first and second sopranos, alto, tenor, and bass. The part-writing, however, presents no stumbling blocks to the singers, and a fairly-trained choir should find no difficulty in doing justice to the devotional and short composition. The setting of the suggestive final words, 'Mourn in hope,' is strikingly original.

The church music of Sir George Martin is always laid out with a manifest perception of what is effective, and the most direct means to attain a desired end; and these factors are very apparent in his setting of the De Profundis. The treble voices are reserved for the passage beginning, 'I look for the Lord,' and the full choir does not enter until the words 'O Israel, trust in the Lord,' when the voices are written for in seven parts. By these means variety and impressiveness are secured in a striking manner. 'Blessed are the dead' was composed by Mr. Luard Selby in memory of Queen Victoria, and is a good example of his style when writing for the Church. The anthem requires a good soprano soloist, whose part is superimposed upon that of the choir. The music is solemn but by no means gloomy, and, moreover, it will not be found difficult.

PART-SONGS.

Lordly Gallants. Words by G. Wither. Music by Agnes Zimmermann.

Weep you no more, sad fountains. Words Elizabethan. Music by A. Redgrave Cripps.

Far away. Battle Song. Words by George Sigerson. Arranmore Boat Song. The Irish Reel. Words by Alfred Perceval Graves. Music arranged by T. R. G. Jozé.

(Novello's Part-Song Book.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The music allied by Miss Agnes Zimmermann to 'Lordly Gallants' is gay and bright as it should be, and the débonnaire spirit of the words has been happily caught. Mr. Redgrave Cripps has set the familiar anonymous words of an Elizabethan poet in a manner in sympathy with their sentiment and that will interest trained vocalists. The four part-songs written by Dr. T. R. G. Jozé show his skill in arranging traditional airs for voices. The melody of 'Far away' is stated to be of Londonderry origin, and its florid character has enabled Dr. Jozé to introduce some effective contrapuntal passages. 'The Battle Song' (The Defence of Dublin) is directed to be sung Allegro feroce. Let it be done. The text of the other two compositions being supplied by Mr. Graves is a guarantee of its appropriateness to the music, and the 'Arranmore Boat Song' and 'The Irish Reel' are very pleasing examples of song in the Emerald Isle.

SONGS.

Love Letters, No. 2. Our Dream of Happiness. Words by Victor Hugo. Music by Benjamin Godard.

Ma Nacelle. Words by Béranger. Music by W. H. Kirby. [Metzler and Co.]

Why do I love thee? Words by Edward Teschemacher. Music by Ernest Newton.

A Song of the Morning. Words by J. Anthony McDonald. Music by Mrs. Arthur Goodeve.

[Leonard and Co.]

The Magic of Thy Voice. I am Thine. Words by Paul England. Composed by Eric Meyer-Helmund.

A Dance and a Dream. Words by Paul England. Composed by P. Tschaikowsky (Op. 38. No. 3).

[Bosworth and Co.]

The two songs composed by Benjamin Godard are posthumous, but show no signs of having been reserved from the composer's waste-paper basket, on the contrary, they are pleasing examples of his light and delicate style. 'Ma Nacelle' is a dainty specimen of the song which poets credit lovers with singing when they take the object of their affections on the 'dancing waves.' In this instance the lover is a baritone. All three songs are furnished with English translations of the original text. The two first-named by Paul England, one of the most competent undertakers of this difficult and somewhat ungrateful work.

Mr. Ernest Newton has written a very bright and pleasing little song wherein a lover who can sing up to F sharp will find reasons for his affection which can scarcely fail to satisfy the most exacting fiancée. Songs of the morning greatly differ. That composed by Mrs. Goodeve is optimistic in character, and should induce a cheerful frame of mind in the singer and listener.

The style of Herr Meyer-Helmund is too well-known to vocalists to necessitate detailed criticism of 'The Magic of Thy Voice' and 'I am Thine.' The former song is exceedingly graceful, and the voice part possesses melodic charm which is enhanced by the effective accompaniment. It is published in three keys. The second example by the gifted German composer is simple in design and character, but is an elegant and captivating little ditty, 'A Dance and a Dream' is an unpretentious setting of a pleasing sentimental episode. The compass of the voice part is contained in an octave from E to E, and the song merits the attention of baritones.

HYMNS FOR THANKSGIVING.

Praise the Lord. Words by A. C. Ainger. Music by J. Barnby.

Thanks be to God. Words by S. Childs Clarke. Music by George C. Martin.

Lord of Hosts, who hast endued us. Words by Arthur Christopher Benson. Music by Walter Parratt.

(Novello's Parish Choir Book.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Now that the termination of the war in South Africa is within measurable distance, the attention of choirmasters may be drawn to the admirable series of thanksgiving hymns for peace issued in convenient leaflet form. The names of the writers of the words and composers of the music are a sufficient guarantee of their appropriateness as well as literary and musical worth. May the time soon come when such hymns shall be heard throughout the length and breadth of our land!

Mazurka. Sérénade Mauresque. Contrasts (The Gavotte, A.D. 1700 and 1900). Chanson de nuit. Chanson de matin. Op. 10 and 15. Composed by Edward Elgar, and arranged for a military band by Dan Godfrey, Junr.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Bandmasters and conductors of military bands may be glad to have their attention called to this quintet of pieces by Dr. Elgar. They furnish proof that music can be bright, tuneful, and interesting, even to an out-of-doors audience, without being smirched with the least taint of vulgarity. The fact that the military band arrangements of these art creations of a native composer have been made by Mr. Dan Godfrey, Junr., is a sufficient guarantee of their excellence.

How to start a men's choir. By Walter James Kidner. (J. Curwen and Sons, Ltd.) A capital little book; full of useful hints by a practical man who knows his business.—Manchester Philharmonic Society. 21 Years' Review. 1880-1901. By Joseph Lawson. (Privately printed.) A souvenir which tells of the coming of age, and the history, of the Society which Mr. G. W. Lane founded, and so skilfully manages and conducts.—The Fallacy of Modern Music. By Alfred J. Allen. (Elliot Stock.) A tract on acoustics, containing a suggestion for a re-arranged keyboard.

We are sorry that the name of Mr. Richard Cummings was omitted from the list of the musical staff at Harrow School, in the biographical sketch of Dr. Faning which appeared in our last issue. In addition to being a professor of singing at the Royal Academy of Music, Mr. Cummings teaches that subject at Harrow, and Mr. Greenlees (to whose singing we called attention) is a pupil of his. We may add that Miss Ida Mann who sang so well in the recent performance of 'Mignon,' given by the students of the Royal Academy of Music (see p. 547 of our August number), is also a pupil of Mr. Richard Cummings.

A TWENTIETH-CENTURY PROMENADE CONCERT.

Comparisons are not always odious: they are often interesting and profitable. For instance, the first English Promenade Concert of the nineteenth century—given at the Lyceum Theatre sixty-three years ago—comprised four overtures, four waltzes, four quadrilles, and one instrumental solo. By no means on all fours with this selection was the scheme of the first English Promenade Concert of the twentieth century. Here it is:—

Funeral March		Chopin.
(In memoriam the late Empress of Germany.)
Capriccio Italien		Tschaikowsky.
Overture	Oberon	Weber.
Two Hungarian Dances		Brahms.
Scherzo	A Midsummer Night's Dream	Mendelssohn.
Overture	William Tell	Rossini.
Grand Fantasia	Cavalleria Rusticana	Mascagni.
Hungarian March	Faust	Berlioz.

When to the above are added songs contributed by Madame Amy Sherwin, Miss Jessie Goldsack, and Mr. Gregory Hast, and instrumental solos by Madame von Stosch (violin) and Mr. Jaques Renard (violoncello), any odiousness in the comparison is displaced by that which is interesting and profitable—moreover, does it not furnish matter for congratulation in regard to our improved musical taste?

A huge mass of humanity—for the most part straw-hatted—attended at Queen's Hall on the evening of the 24th ult., to hear the above programme which so successfully inaugurated Mr. Robert Newman's season of Promenade Concerts. How well the orchestra played, and with what artistic enthusiasm Mr. Henry J. Wood (fresh from Bayreuth) conducted his four-and-twenty (and more) fiddlers and others, is an oft-told tale which admits of no variation from the definition 'irreproachable.' For the next ten weeks music-loving Londoners and country-cousins—even once or twice removed—should be moved to attend Queen's Hall, there to enjoy, as the large audience on the opening night enjoyed, and at a modest outlay, the feasts of music which Mr. Robert Newman so lavishly provides.

THE NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

(By our own Correspondent.)

The National Eisteddfod was held at Merthyr Tydvil on the 6th, 7th, 8th, and 9th ult., and proved a success musically and financially.

England again captured the chief prize of £200, and a baton, the winners being the North Staffordshire choir, conducted by Mr. J. Whewall, who had already and upon more than one occasion secured premier position for his choralists. Exceptional interest was evinced in the competition this year, by reason of the new departure as to the conditions, and the number of choirs which had entered. Instead of selecting two or three specified pieces as has been the rule hitherto, the 'Hymn of Praise' was chosen as a work that had to be prepared in its entirety and from which the adjudicators would select two or three choruses on the day of the competition. Ten choirs entered—a considerably larger number than usual, and they all appeared. Although the nine Welsh choirs were beaten, Wales may find encouragement in the fact that those from Swansea and Mountain Ash were bracketed as being only two marks below the winners, whilst Newport came a good third.

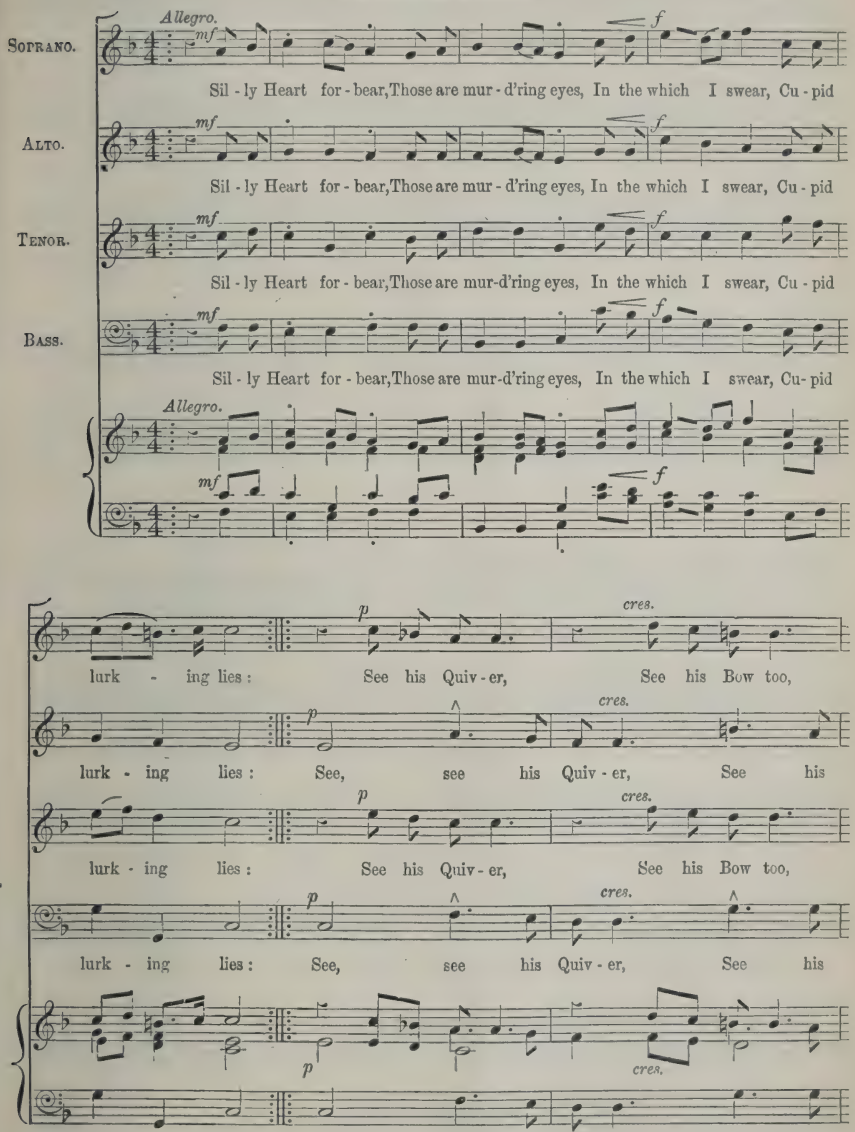
In the second mixed-voice choral competition the Cardiff Blue Ribbon choir, led by Mr. J. F. Proud, proved victors, against choirs from Pontypridd, Llanidloes, and Merthyr, the prize being £50. The test piece was 'Brother, thou art gone before us' (Sullivan). Six Welsh male voice choirs contended for the £60 offered for singing Saint-Saëns's 'Soldiers of Gideon,' and a Welsh piece by B. Treharne, Rhymney (Mr. D. Owen) being declared first. Swansea was announced as full worthy of the double prize—£25 in all—offered in the glee class, the test pieces being Faning's 'Song of the Vikings' and Emlyn Evans's 'How sweet the moonlight sleeps,' and reading a glee at sight. Four ladies' choirs competed on 'The Lord is my Shepherd' (Schubert) and 'The Spinning Chorus' (Wagner);

Cupid detected.

FOUR-PART SONG.

Composed by HENRY LAWES (1653).
Arranged by J. FREDERICK BRIDGE.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Allegro.
mf
f
SOPRANO.
Sil - ly Heart for - bear, Those are mur - d'ring eyes, In the which I swear, Cu - pid
ALTO.
Sil - ly Heart for - bear, Those are mur - d'ring eyes, In the which I swear, Cu - pid
TENOR.
Sil - ly Heart for - bear, Those are mur-d'ring eyes, In the which I swear, Cu - pid
BASS.
Sil - ly Heart for - bear, Those are mur-d'ring eyes, In the which I swear, Cu- pid Allegro.
mf
f
p
cres.
lurk - ing lies: See his Quiv - er, See his Bow too,
lurk - ing lies: See, see his Quiv - er, See his
lurk - ing lies: See his Quiv - er, See his Bow too, lurk - ing lies: See, see his Quiv - er, See his
p
cres.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

See his Dart, Fly, O fly! thou fool - ish Heart. 2. Greed-y Eyes, take heed, They are Bow too, See his Dart, Fly, O fly! Thou fool - ish Heart. 2. Greed-y Eyes, take heed, They are
See his Dart, Fly, O fly! thou fool - ish Heart. 2. Greed-y Eyes, take heed, They are bow too, See his Dart, Fly, O fly! thou fool - ish Heart. 2. Greed-y Eyes, take heed, They are scorch - ing Beams, Caus - ing Hearts to . . bleed And your eye - spring streams.

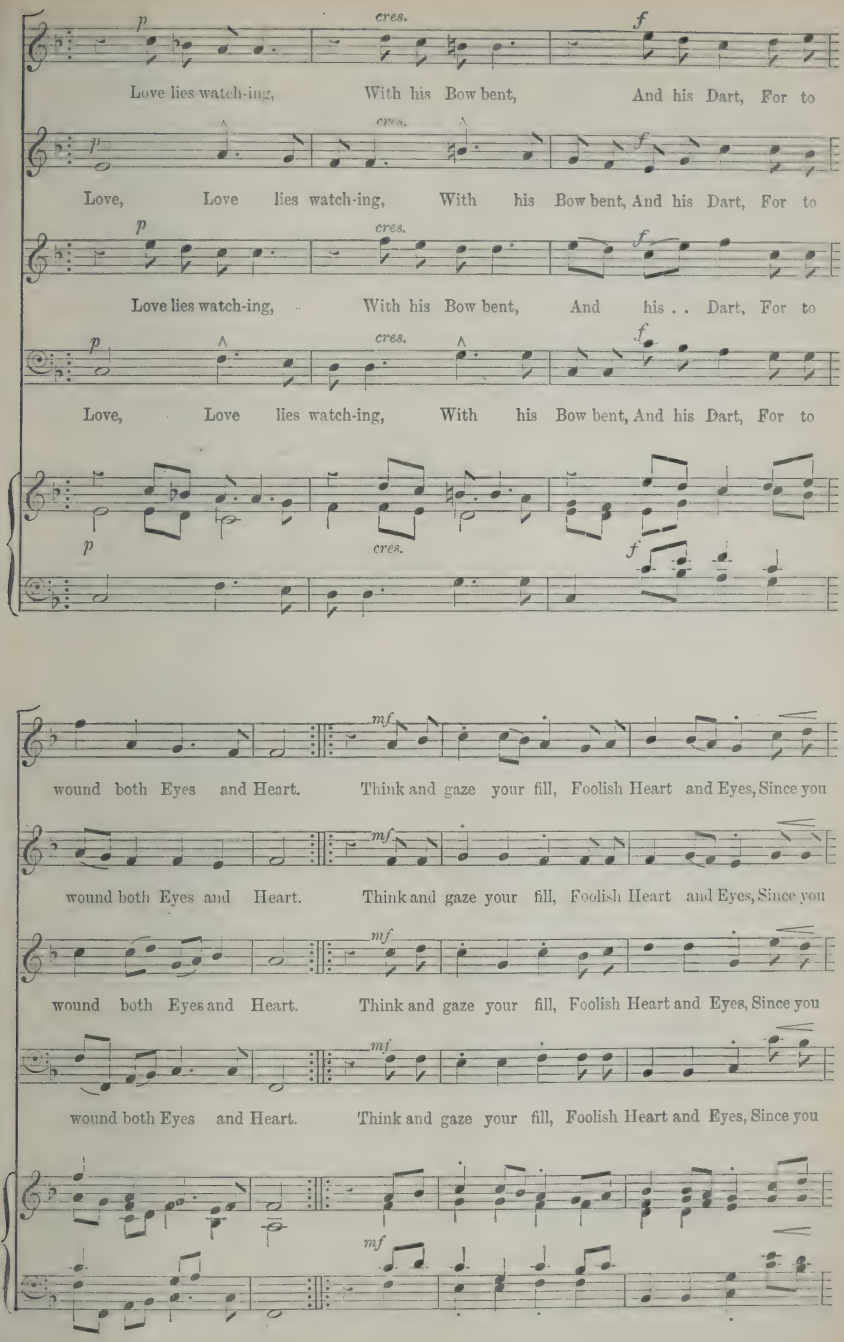
scorch - ing Beams, Caus - ing Hearts to bleed And your eye - spring streams.
scorch - ing Beams, Caus - ing Hearts to bleed And your eye - spring streams.
scorch - ing Beams, Caus - ing Hearts to bleed And your eye - spring streams.



p
cres.
f
Love lies watch-ing, With his Bow bent, And his Dart, For to Love, Love lies watch-ing, With his Bow bent, And his Dart, For to Love lies watch-ing, With his Bow bent, And his . . Dart, For to Love, Love lies watch-ing, With his Bow bent, And his Dart, For to
mf
wound both Eyes and Heart. Think and gaze your fill, Foolish Heart and Eyes, Since you wound both Eyes and Heart. Think and gaze your fill, Foolish Heart and Eyes, Since you wound both Eyes and Heart. Think and gaze your fill, Foolish Heart and Eyes, Since you wound both Eyes and Heart. Think and gaze your fill, Foolish Heart and Eyes, Since you

f
p love your ill, And your good . . des-pise. Cu-pid Shooting, love your ill, And your good des - pise. Cu - - pid, Cu - - pid love your ill, And your good des - pise. Cu-pid Shooting, love your ill, And your good des - pise. Cu - - pid, Cu - - pid cres.

f
2nd time rall. and pause.
Cu-pid Darting, And his Band Mor-tal pow'rs can - not with-stand.
Shooting, Cu - pid Darting, And his Band Mor-tal pow'rs can - not with - stand.
Cu-pid Darting, And his Band Mor-tal pow'rs can - not with - stand.
Shooting, Cu - pid Darting, And his Band Mor-tal pow'rs can - not with-stand.

prize £25: Carmarthen (Mr. H. F. Ellingford) being placed first. 'Night sinks on the wave' (Smart) and 'I sing because I love to sing' (Pinsuti), were the subjects for juvenile choirs, ten of whom appeared on the platform, the prize being awarded to Pontypridd (Mr. F. M. Evans). Three congregational choirs, all of which were from the locality, competed on 'The waters of Babylon' (Boyce) and 'The law of righteousness' (D. Jenkins), Libanus, Dowlais (Mr. S. George) taking first place.

A prize of £40, which was offered for the performance by an orchestral band of the overture to 'The Magic Flute' (Mozart), was awarded to the Merthyr Orchestral Society (Mr. W. Hughes)—two competing. Four amateur orchestral bands essayed the Andante from Haydn's 'Surprise' Symphony; and the prize was divided between Merthyr and Mid-Rhondda. The adjudicators were Dr. Henry Coward, Dr. Joseph Parry, Messrs. David Jenkins, C. F. Lloyd, and Daniel Price.

EISTEDDFOD CONCERTS.

On the evening of the 6th a prize cantata, by Mr. D. C. Williams, 'The Sands of Lavan,' was performed by the Eisteddfod choir of 500 voices, and a full orchestra led by Mr. E. T. Roberts, of Cardiff, the composer conducting. The soloists were Miss Maggie Davies, Mrs. Hannah Jones, Mr. Herbert Emlyn, and Mr. David Hughes. The performance was satisfactory throughout, and the work — first produced at the Festiniog National Eisteddfod—was very warmly received. On the following evening a very satisfactory performance of 'Israel in Egypt' was given by the same choir and orchestra, with Mesdames Eleanor Jones, Kirkby Lunn and S. M. Lewis; Messrs. Ben Davies and Daniel Price as principals, Mr. Harry Evans conducting. 'Elijah' followed on the evening of the 8th. Miss Esther Palliser and Madame Kirkby Lunn, Messrs. Ben Davies and Daniel Price were the leading soloists, and Mr. Dan Davies conducted.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH YEAR OF BAYREUTH.

This year's Bayreuth performances, which took place from July 22 to August 20, derived a special interest from the fact of a period of twenty-five years having elapsed since the inauguration of this unique undertaking with the first production of the gigantic 'Nibelungen' tetralogy. Owing partly to this circumstance, and partly also to the apparently widely spreading enthusiasm for Wagner's works, the demand for seats to witness the Festspiele this year had been greater than on any previous occasion. Even the places in the gallery usually reserved for artists and others connected with the management, had to be thrown open to the general public in response to urgent appeals. Amongst the audience were to be seen Frau Materna, the superb representative of the part of Brünnhilde, as well as the veteran Albert Niemann, the redoubtable Siegmund, in the initial performance of the 'Ring des Nibelungen,' in 1876.

On the eve of the Festspiele, a deputation from the municipality of Bayreuth waited upon Frau Cosima Wagner to present an address of thanks to the gifted lady to whose single-minded energy and devotion the continuance and increased appreciation of the great national art-institution founded by her husband, and, indirectly, the renewed fame and prosperity of the little Bavarian city, are in no small measure due. In accordance with the original intentions of the master, there have been produced at the Bayreuth theatre, under her personal supervision, nearly all the other recognised lyrical stage works of Wagner, besides the 'Ring' and 'Parsifal,' brought out by himself. Since his death, in 1883, excellent representations have been given here successively of 'Tannhäuser,' 'Lohengrin,' 'Tristan und Isolde,' and 'Die Meistersinger,' in the mounting and artistic management of some of which Wagner's son, Siegfried (himself the composer of two operatic works), has taken an active part. To these has been added this year 'Der fliegende Holländer,' the earliest of what may be described as the specifically Wagnerian works, leaving only 'Rienzi' and 'Die Feen' (hitherto reserved to the Munich theatre) as yet unperformed here.

There is but one voice as to the almost ideal excellence of the 'Holländer' performance, with which the Festspiele opened, on July 22, and in which the poetic and psychological contents, as well as the scenic possibilities of that remarkable musical drama were, in the opinion of many, for the first time adequately realised on the stage. The scenic management had been entirely in the hands of Herr Siegfried Wagner, the opera being conducted, with his usual ability and zeal, by Herr Felix Mottl. Fräulein Destin (Senta), Frau Schumann-Heink (Mary), Herr van Rooy (Holländer), Herr Burgstaller (Erik), and Herr Heidkamp (Daland), were the highly efficient interpreters of the principal parts. Amongst the leading vocalists in the two other works produced this year—viz., 'Der Ring des Nibelungen' and 'Parsifal'—were Mesdames Gulbranson (Brünnhilde), Wittich (Sieglinde and Kundry), Reuss-Belce (Fricka), and Verhunk (Freia); Herren Schmedes (Siegfried), van Rooy (Wotan), Ernst Kraus (Siegmund), Breuer (Mime), Friedrichs (Alberich), van Dyck (Parsifal), Knüpfer (Gurnemanz), and Berger (Klingsor).

Dr. Munck, of Berlin, made his very successful debut at Bayreuth as the conductor of 'Parsifal,' and Dr. Richter once more conducted, as he did on the memorable first occasion (in 1876) with consummate ability, the two 'Nibelungen' performances. Nor were the great services rendered by the genial conductor to the cause of Bayreuth altogether unrecognised by her citizens, on whose behalf he was presented with a huge album, containing views of the picturesque town as well as pictorial illustrations of the various festival plays.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Baden (near Vienna).—A handsome monument, the work of the sculptor Herr Bock, has just been unveiled of Carl Milloecker, the popular composer of operettas. Milloecker had bequeathed his not inconsiderable fortune, together with all his manuscript works, to this town, formerly associated with Beethoven.

Berlin.—Richard Strauss, with a newly organised orchestra of his own, will give a series of concerts, chiefly devoted to modern music, during the coming season. The series is to be inaugurated by the performance, in chronological order, of the symphonic works by Liszt; a most interesting undertaking, for which there is no precedent.

Brussels.—An influential committee has been formed with the object of honouring the memory of the late Peter Benoit, by the publication of a carefully edited issue of his complete works, and by the erection of monuments over the distinguished musician's grave, and at Antwerp, the principal scene of his artistic activity.

Cologne.—Miss Blanche Hubbard, a young English violinist, has recently appeared in a concert at the Gürzenich Hall with most marked success, her technical mastery and general artistic qualities being highly praised in the leading press organs.

Corneville.—A festival performance was given last month of Planquette's 'Les Cloches de Corneville.' The popular operetta, which has rendered this town famous, was produced on a rustic stage in the open air, with the fir-clad hills for a background.

Dortmund.—Under the direction of Herren Huettner and Holtschneider, a Conservatorium has been founded here, the principal object of which is to be the training of orchestral musicians. The new Institution is to be opened next month.

Düsseldorf.—Life-size statues of Mendelssohn and of the poet Immermann, by the sculptor Buscher, have recently been placed in the recesses over the front entrance of the Stadt Theater.

Frankfurt-on-Main.—Among recent additions to the well-known Museum of Musical History of Herr Manskopf, is a beautifully engraved portrait of the Italian singer, Teresa Saporiti, one of the most enthusiastic admirers of Mozart, who interpreted the part of Donna Anna at the original performance of 'Don Giovanni,' in 1787, at Prague. She was, at that time, in her twenty-fourth year, and only died in 1869, at Milan, having attained the great age of 106 years.—Julius Stockhausen entered upon his seventy-sixth year on July 22. The great baritone still continues to superintend the teaching carried on at his famous Gesangschule, where so many excellent singers of our time have laid the foundations of their subsequent fame.

Leipzig.—At a concert given last month by the academical choral society 'Arion,' under Dr. Goehler's direction, a very effective interpretation was given of Bruch's 'Normannenzug.' Much interest was created by the first performance of three secular choral songs by Johann Hermann Schein, one of the most gifted forerunners of Bach, which, notwithstanding their somewhat monotonous harmonies, were greatly appreciated by the audience. The new musicdrama 'Orestes,' which Felix Weingartner has just completed, is to be first produced at the Stadt Theater early in the coming season.

Lisbon.—A brilliant success was achieved by the first performance recently of an opera 'Dona Mecia,' by the young Portuguese composer, Oscar da Silva. The very ably written libretto, from the pen of Julio Dantas, deals with a national subject.

Madrid.—Amongst the symptoms of a growing disposition in competent quarters to encourage the national art, has been the competition promoted by the directors of the Buen Retiro Theatre, for the composition of a Spanish opera. The award, which has just been made, has been in favour of a three-act work entitled 'Marcia,' by Cleto Zavala, a Bilbao musician. There were only seven competitors for this prize of 2,000 francs.

Montecatini.—Accompanied by impressive ceremonies the unveiling took place, last month, of a monumental stone erected to the memory of Verdi, who, for many years past, was in the habit of spending a few weeks in Midsummer at this charming Tuscan holiday resort.

Neustadt.—The tenth annual choral festival of the Palatinate, which took place on July 21 and 22, included the performance of an important new cantata for male choir, soli, and orchestra, entitled 'Hermann,' from the pen of Carl Zuschneid. Under the composer's direction, and with able interpreters of the solo parts, the very effectively scored work achieved a complete success.

Ostend.—In connection with the unveiling of the equestrian statue of Leopold I., on the 5th ult., a cantata entitled 'Een Koningslied,' specially written for the occasion by M. Rinskopf, was produced, and was also subsequently performed at the Kursaal, with considerable success. At the subscription Concert of the 8th ult., under M. Rinskopf's direction, the programme included the first performance of a 'Divertissement Russe' for orchestra, by Henri Rabaud, which met with much appreciation.

Palermo.—A very successful performance took place recently, at the Grand Theatre, of a new orchestral composition entitled 'Quo Vadis,'' by Signor Sandrone. The work, which represents a series of 'symphonic impressions' called forth by M. Sienkiewicz's celebrated novel, is divided into four numbers headed respectively 'Lidia,' 'Orgia,' 'Incendio di Roma,' and 'Morte di Nerone.'

Prag. — At the recent Austritts-Prüfung of the Conservatorium, Jaroslav Kocian, among other pupils of Professor Sevčík, greatly distinguished himself by the performance of the Paganini Concerto and was recalled more than twenty times! The youth, who is only just over seventeen, is not only an artist of remarkable technical attainments, but what is more, he plays with emotional warmth and feeling in quite an unusual degree.

Rome.—The well-known composer of church music, Father Hartmann, has been appointed director of a new musical college, founded under the auspices of Pope Leo XIII., with a view more especially to the cultivation of the Gregorian style and traditions. A staff of competent professors will assist the director, including the distinguished maëstro Filippo Capocci, who will instruct pupils in organ playing.

Salzburg.—The Mozart Festival, held from the 6th to the 8th ult., was extremely well attended, many of the visitors being English and American who had been present at the Bayreuth festival. There were three grand concert performances, and two of 'Don Giovanni,' the programmes of the former consisting almost entirely of Mozart's works. The orchestra was the excellent one of the Vienna Philharmonic Society, conducted by Court-Capellmeister Hellmesberger, and amongst the solo vocalists were Mesdames Lilli Lehmann, Edith Walker, and Erika Wedekind, as well as Herren Klöpfer, of Munich, and W. Hesch, of Vienna. Herr Sauer was the pianist, and M. Alexander Petschnikoff the greatly admired solo violinist.

San Francisco. — A successful first performance has taken place at the College of St. Claire of a religious drama 'The Passion of Christ,' by Clay M. Greene, a former pupil of the Institution.

Scheveningen. — An interesting and numerously attended concert of music by French composers was given last month, under the direction of M. Vincent d'Indy, by the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra. The programme included the symphonic poems 'The Tempest,' by Ernest Chausson, and 'Psyche,' by Cesar Franck; the 'Wallenstein' trilogy of Vincent d'Indy, and pieces by Lalande and Rameau.—In a subsequent concert of the Philharmonic orchestra, under Herr Rebicek, a symphony by the recently-deceased young Russian composer, Kalinnikoff, was produced for the first time and generally considered a very important and interesting work.

Teplitz. — Commemorative tablets have just been unveiled at the houses inhabited at different periods by Schopenhauer and Richard Wagner—viz., by the former in 1816, and by the latter in 1834 and 1843.

Vienna.—At the annual concours of the Conservatorium, a young student, Herr Bruno Eisner, pupil of Professor Fischhof, obtained all the first prizes, including that of a grand pianoforte offered by Herr Boesendorfer. He is regarded by the authorities as the most gifted young artist formed at the Institution during the last quarter of a century.

Warsaw.—The façade of the handsome new building of the Philharmonic Society has just been ornamented with the statues of Mozart and Beethoven, artistically executed by the sculptor Ladislas Mazur.

OBITUARY.

A VETERAN CRITIC.

Death has removed a veteran critic, Henry John Lincoln, whose long life of eighty-six years ended, we regret to record, on the 16th ult., at 67, Adelaide Road, Hampstead, the residence of his sister, Mrs. H. C. Lunn. The son of the organ builder, H. C. Lincoln, he was born in London on October 15, 1814. He studied the organ under Thomas Adams and, for a time, held the post of organist of Christ Church, Woburn Square. Mr. Lincoln soon achieved fame as a lecturer on musical subjects. Testimony to the excellence of his discourses was furnished by Mr. J. W. Davison in the Musical World of October 4, 1843, who characteristically wrote: 'Mr. Henry Lincoln, the eminent organist and clever composer, is engaged to deliver four lectures on Music at Crosby Hall. The subjects are to be Bach, Handel, Haydn, Mozart. The lectures will be a real treat to the lover of art, since, unlike the Gresham perpetrations, and other absurd historico-biographico-nonsensical hodge-podges, they will have music for their basis.' At these lectures, on a variety of subjects and which were delivered annually in London, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Liverpool, and elsewhere, the lecturer had the able assistance of his sister (who afterwards became Mrs. Edmund Harper), a singer of great ability, who had the honour of singing at the Gewandhaus concerts at Leipzig. At one of the lectures Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto was played for the first time in England, a circumstance to which we refer more particularly in another column (p. 602).

It was, however, as a musical critic that Mr. Lincoln did his most important work. On January 21, 1846, the Daily News issued its first number under the editorship of Charles Dickens. At the start, or soon after, Lincoln became secretary to the paper, and held this post for twenty years. He ably served the journal for another twenty years—1866 to 1886—in the capacity of musical critic, in which avocation he succeeded George Hogarth, Dickens's father-in-law. 'The Organist's Anthology,' a series of organ arrangements (now published by Messrs. Novello & Co.), and the articles 'March,' 'Overture,' and 'Pollini' contributed to Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians,' constitute the permanent work of this busy journalist of the past, who, in addition to the appointment already mentioned, was for many years musical critic of the Illustrated London News. One who knew him well, writes to us: 'I liked Lincoln. He was an upright, humble, sincere man. His character was no doubt influenced by his solitary bachelor life. He dwelt unduly on his disappointments in life and the absence (as he thought) of adequate reward for his hard, unselfish work.' His remains were interred in Highgate Cemetery on the 19th ult. Mr. Lincoln bore a strong resemblance to Tennyson, in fact he was more than once mistaken for the late Poet Laureate.

THE COMPOSER OF 'LA MASCOTTE.'

Edmond Audran, the famous composer of operettas, died at Paris on the 16th ult., aged fifty-nine. He was a pupil of the Ecole Niedermeyer, where he obtained the first prize for composition, and at the age of seventeen was appointed to an organistship at Marseilles. It was at the great French port that his first successes as a composer of light opera were made. Upon his removal to Paris, where at first he occupied a humble lodging in a garret, he was soon enabled to take up his residence in a more fashionable quarter by the enormous vogue which attended the bringing out of his 'Les Noces d'Olivette' in 1879, and, in the following year, of the still more successful 'La Mascotte.' These graceful, sparkling and melodious works have been equally popular in this country, and indeed, together with the composer's subsequent productions—'La Cigale,' 'Miss Helyett,' and 'La Poupée'—have delighted audiences all over the world.

We regret having to record the death of Mr. Alexander Biggar, Musicseller, of Sauchiehall Street, Glasgow, which took place on the 9th ult., aged sixty-two. Mr. Biggar, who was a native of Paisley, commenced his musical career as an assistant with Mr. Harrison, in Clifton. Returning to Scotland, he started business on his own account in Rothesay, subsequently removing to Glasgow, where since 1876 he has been a familiar and much respected and appreciated personage in musical and commercial circles. Mr. Biggar, along with Mr. William Adlington, founded the Glasgow Music Trades Association in 1893, and almost up to the last acted as its secretary. With Mr. Elliot Bell (of Messrs. James Graham and Co.) he was joint secretary of the Scottish Music Trades Association. He was also an original member of the Glasgow Society of Musicians, and in which for many years he held office. Mr. Biggar accomplished much good work for music in Glasgow, and his demise will be keenly felt in the West of Scotland. The business so successfully established by Mr. Biggar will be continued under the management of his son, Mr. J. A. H. Biggar, who has been associated with its leading departments for many years.

Mr. Charles Woolhouse, the music publisher, of Wardour Street, we regret to state, died, after a short illness, on the 11th ult., aged sixty-two. He was a son of the late Mr. W. S. B. Woolhouse, a mathematician of very high attainments and author of 'A treatise on musical intervals.' We understand that the business will be carried on by the deceased's son, Mr. F. R. Woolhouse.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A LAST WORD ON 'THOMAS AND SALLY.'

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Mr. Kidson is perfectly correct as to the date of Dr. Arne's 'Thomas and Sally.' The work was printed in 1761, and the libretto was by a Dublin man, Isaac Bickerstaffe, born in 1733. Apart from other arguments it is ridiculous to suppose that the author of 'Thomas and Sally' could have produced a musical comedy at the age of three! He was a page to Lord Chesterfield, Viceroy of Ireland, in 1746, and was subsequently an officer in a marine corps. His libretto was printed in 1760, and set to music by Dr. Arne in 1761. Our Irish author wrote 'Love in a village' in 1763; 'Judith,' in 1764, &c., &c., and died in November, 1816.

Yours very truly,
Wm. H. Grattan Flood.

Lismore,
August 3, 1901.

MUSIC AT BALLIOL.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—In your obituary notice of Mr. John Farmer, it is stated that he popularised music at Balliol 'more from the social than the artistic side.' With regard to the latter half of this, may I, as his successor and his colleague here for several years, be allowed to quote a handful of names taken practically haphazard from the list of performers at our Sunday concerts of comparatively recent date—Dr. Joachim, Mr. Leonard Borwick, Miss Fanny Davies, Miss Marie Fillunger, Miss Gabriele Wietrowetz, Madame Marie Soldat, Miss Maud MacCarthy, Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Muriel Foster, Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. David Bispham, Mr. Plunket Greene, Mr. Johann Kruse, Mr. Alfred Gibson, Messrs. Josef and Paul Ludwig, &c., &c. All our programmes are of the most uncompromisingly artistic standard as regards choice of music; there are few of the great chamber works or the great songs that have not been heard, and nearly all the later piano compositions of Brahms, as well as some important solo vocal works of Bach, have been given at Balliol for the first time in England.

Yours faithfully,
Ernest Walker.

Balliol College, Oxford,
August 1, 1901.

JEWISH METHOD OF RENDERING PSALM XLVI.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—May I bring the following under the notice of your readers? Dr. Margoliouth some years ago told me that a square choir, controlled by Fuglemen, sang the 46th Psalm antiphonally—the verse 'The Lord of Hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge' being used as a full chorus, and the verse 'Be still then, and know that I am God' as a solo, sung by the High Priest concealed in the 'Holy of Holies.' Dr. Margoliouth was a friend of Mendelssohn, and so impressed was the latter by the idea, that he said the Psalm should be produced in London in the way described, under his direction, and set to his music. Mendelssohn, alas, did not live to carry out the idea. Will some one of the many present-day composers care to do so? I venture to think that a magnificent effect could be obtained with a choir of, say, 1,000 voices, a central orchestra, and possibly, an organ placed in a gallery.

Yours faithfully,
Cameron Brock.

Upper Norwood,
August, 1901.

Royal Academy of Music Scholarships.—Several important and valuable Scholarships will shortly be competed for at Tenterden Street. The first five, founded by Mrs. Ada Lewis, are open to British subjects of either sex not exceeding twenty-one years of age, except that no one shall be eligible who is, or ever has been, a student of either the Royal Academy of Music or the Royal College of Music. These Scholarships are tenable for three years, and the subjects are singing (soprano and tenor voices), pianoforte, violoncello, viola or double-bass. The Ross Scholarships (two, of the annual value of about £60 each), tenable for three years, are open to students of the Academy only; one will be awarded to a male vocalist (tenor, baritone or bass), and the other to a player on a wood-wind instrument (flute, oboe, clarinet or bassoon). The Stainer Exhibition (value £20) is the gift of a friend of the Academy who desires to remain anonymous. It will be awarded by the Committee of Management to the best candidate for admission as a student (of either sex) in organ playing at the entrance examination to be held on the 23rd inst. Full particulars of all these aids to students may be obtained by applying without delay to the Secretary of the Royal Academy of Music, Tenterden Street, London, W.

The Berlin Photographic Company have recently published an excellent photogravure of the pleasing picture, entitled, 'The gentle music of the bygone day.' The subject is one that specially appeals to musicians, and the manner of its reproduction sustains the high reputation of the publishers.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Bradwell (near Sheffield). — The newly-formed Choral Society here gave its first concert on July 20, when Dr. Henry Coward's 'Magna Charta' was sympathetically rendered by a full orchestra and chorus of eighty performers, under the baton of Mr. H. E. Middleton. Miss Kathleen Frankish, Mr. A. H. Dooley, and Mr. W. H. Hamer were the principal vocalists. The quality of tone, the power, attack, expression, and the general musicianly finish of the singing were wonderful in a choir so young and formed of such raw material as it must of necessity be in an out of the way village of only one thousand inhabitants. The interest in the miscellaneous part of the programme centred in a new part-song by the conductor, 'Wake and awake!' which was well received.

Dunedin (New Zealand).—The Dunedin Liedertafel—a society which has been in existence since 1877—had the honour of appearing before their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York on the evening of June 25. The Governor of New Zealand, Lord Ranfurly, gave the choir the necessary permission to serenade the Royal party at the Fernhill Club, the Royal residence pro tem. The following part-songs were rendered with good expression and effect: 'A true and trusty heart' (Otto), 'I long for thee' (Hartel), 'Spin, spin' (Jüngst). The above pieces comprised the original programme, but the Society was twice requested to give further selections from their repertoire, which included 'The Soldier's Farewell' (Kinkel), 'Always more' (Seifert), and 'The night' (Schubert). Before the last piece was sung, the Duke and Duchess appeared at the open window and very graciously thanked the Society. Mr. Jesse Timson conducted.

Durban.—The Durban Orchestral Society gave their second concert (one of a series of four) on July 12, when Mr. Lorenzo Mancini played Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto. The orchestra performed Mendelssohn's 'Son and Stranger' overture, German's Coronation March (Henry VIII. music), Délibes's Pizzicato, and the Bridal music from 'Lohengrin.' The vocalists were Miss Alice Scrivener and Mr. Graham Williams. Mr. R. H. Macdonald accompanied, and Mr. Charles Hoby conducted.

Hunstanton.—A choral festival under the auspices of the Church Choral Association, was held in St. Edmund's Church, Hunstanton, on July 31, in which about 150 singers from the churches in the neighbouring villages in West Norfolk took part. Under the conductorship of Dr. Frank Bates, organist of Norwich Cathedral, the service was excellently rendered, Maunder's Anthem 'Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem' being especially well sung.

Liverpool.—The excellent work which Mr. A. E. Rodewald is doing Sunday by Sunday, is well worth recording. This enthusiastic amateur gives his services week by week to the work of directing really distinguished programmes in the Theatre at New Brighton Tower. He has a fine orchestra of about 70 performers under his command, and musical Liverpool may be found listening each Sunday to the works of Tschaïkowsky, Wagner, and others. An ambitious programme on the 25th ult. included Dr. Elgar's overture 'Cockaigne,' and the 'Pathetique' Symphony.

Sleaford.—The fine Organ in the Parish Church, which has just been cleaned and renovated by the builders (Messrs. Forster and Andrews), was re-opened on the 18th ult. At the close of evensong a recital was given by the organist, Mr. J. H. McCann, whose programme included 'March upon a theme of Handel' (Guilmant), and 'Air and Variations on God save the King' (Hesse).

Weymouth.—The Weymouth College Musical Society gave a concert in the Burdon Hotel Assembly Rooms on July 29, when the first part of the programme consisted of Mendelssohn's oratorio 'Athalie.' The soprano solos were well sung by Master W. Peskett, and in the duets and trios, Masters J. Peskett and A. R. Inglis took the first soprano and alto parts respectively. The alto solos were very effectively rendered by Mr. R. F. Lyne. In the second half of the programme a Polonaise of Chopin's was admirably interpreted by Mr. W. L. Creech, who also played the pianoforte accompaniment to 'Athalie' with much skill.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A. A. P.—We fear that there is no market among composers of operas for 'a number of melodies, unharmonised,' even though they be 'undoubtedly original and of considerable value.' Composers of operas have a way of preferring to invent their own melodies, or at least they endeavour to do so, even if, as is sometimes the case, they are not altogether successful in the attainment of originality. When you are more advanced in the study of harmony, you may be glad to draw from the store of themes which you have already made—perhaps for your Opus 1, even though it may not be an opera.

Slayando.—Beethoven's pianoforte sonata 'Les Adieux, L'Absence, Le Retour' (Op. 81a) has been metronomised by Hans von Bülow (an excellent guide) as follows: 1st movement, Adagio, quaver = 60, Allegro, minim = 120; 2nd movement, Andante espressivo, quaver = 72; 3rd movement, Vivacissimamente, dotted crotchet = 108 to 112.

Langham.—The extract from Bach's First Invention which you submit to us is purely a question of phrasing. The dot over the second of the tied notes is not an indication that the note has to be struck again, but that the hand has to be raised. The dot is distinctly misleading, and is doubtless an editorial excrescence.

A Subscriber of over twenty years.—Mr. Henry Davey, in chapter I. of his 'History of English Music' (Curwen), treats, in an epitomised form, of music in Anglo-Saxon times (page 1 of the Appendix should also be consulted). See also Vol. I. of Sir John Hawkins's History of Music.

Bassoon.—The song, with bassoon obbligato, 'Softly rise, thou southern breeze,' by Dr. Boyce, is, we regret to say, out of print. Dr. Boyce's 'Solomon' was first published in 1743. You may be interested to know that the list of subscribers to the work contains the name, 'George Frederick Handel, Esq.'

An Old Reader.—The Peters edition of Paganini's 'I Palpiti' (Op. 13) answers to your requirements. We cannot speak for the other two solos. The Paganini Fantasia for one string is published by Schuberth & Co., price four shillings.

Enquirer.—The extracts you send are evidently from some technical exercises for the pianoforte, in which the first note of each of the four groups in the bar bears a somewhat abnormal accent.

Flute.—We are not sure if a Guild of Tuners, started some ten or twelve years ago, still exists; but perhaps Mr. Dyson, of Windsor, could give you the information.

Carlton.—If you will send us the name of the composer of 'The Owl' we will do our best to try and trace the song for you.

G. H. T.—The Technicon may be procured, we believe, from Messrs. Augener & Co., 199, Regent Street.

Executant.—You probably refer to Sullivan's Imperial, not Festal March, which is published by Messrs. Chappell and Co.

B. A. P.—We are sorry that we cannot trace Gregory's 'Gregorian Grand March.'

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

Adams, Joseph H.—"Sun of my soul." Sacred Song. No. 3, in C, for Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

Booth, Josiah—Alexandra March. For the Organ. 2s.

Brewer, A. Herbert—"Emmaus." (A Biblical Scene.) The words written by Joseph Bennett. 1s. 6d. Paper boards, 2s.

Bridge, J. Frederick—"The Forging of the Anchor." Dramatic Scene. For Bass Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra. Words by Sir Samuel Ferguson. 1s. 6d.

Campbell, H. A. J.—"Songs of the Seasons." (No. 1. An Autumn Song.) 1st Violin (ad lib.), 3d.; 2nd Violin (ad lib.), 3d.

—— Ditto. (No. 2. A Winter Song.) 1st Violin (ad lib.), 3d.; 2nd Violin (ad lib.), 3d.

—— Ditto. (No. 3. A Spring Song.) 1st Violin (ad lib.), 3d.; 2nd Violin (ad lib.), 3d.

—— Ditto. (No. 4. A Summer Song.) 1st Violin (ad lib.), 3d.; 2nd Violin (ad lib.), 3d.

Clarke, Hamilton—"They that go down to the sea in ships." Anthem. For Soprano Solo and Chorus. (No. 709. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

Cowen, Frederic H.—"The Butterfly's Ball" ("Le Bal des Papillons"). Concert Overture. For Full Orchestra. Full Score, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts, 13s. 9d.

Dyson, J. O.—"Through the day." Anthem. For Treble Solo and Chorus. 4d.

Elgar, Edward—"The Dream of Gerontius." Book of words, with Analytical and Descriptive Notes by A. J. Jaeger. 1s.

—— "Chanson de Nuit" (Op. 15, No. 1). For Small Orchestra. Full Score, 2s. 6d.

—— "Chanson de Matin" (Op. 15, No. 2). For Small Orchestra. Full Score, 2s. 6d.

Faning, Eaton—"Daybreak." Chorus with Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniment. (No. 866. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 6d.

Farquharson, John—(in A). Te Deum laudamus. 3d.

Goodhart, A. M.—"Luce Magistra." A Commemoration Ode. For S.S.A. 4d.

Grieg, Edward—"God's peace is peace eternal." (No. 715. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

Haydn, J.—Air with Variations. Arranged for Organ by A. B. Plant. (No. 59. Arrangements for the Organ. Edited by George C. Martin.) 1s. 6d.

Haynes, Battison—Twelve Two-part Songs. For Female Voices. The words written by Edward Oxenford. In Two Books, 1s. 6d. each. (For Contents, see p. 638).

During the last month—continued.

Hodgson, James—(in E flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 4d.

Hopkins, E. J.—(in A). Te Deum laudamus. (No. 572. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

—— (in A). Jubilate Deo. (No. 573. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

Lawes, Henry—"Cupid detected." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. Arranged by J. F. Bridge. (No. 703. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

Lemare, Edwin H.—"Chant sans paroles." Arranged for small Orchestra by W. H. Bell. 1st Violin 3d.; 2nd Violin, 6d.; Viola, 6d.; Violoncello, 3d.; Basso, 3d. Wind Parts, 2s.

Lennard, Lady Barrett—"Christmas Clouds." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

Lewis, George E.—Hymn Tune and Double Chant. On Card. 1d.

Lloyd, Charles Harford—"The righteous live for evermore." Motet. For Eight-part Chorus, unaccompanied. 1s. 6d.

Lovecock, Nellie—"Man that is born of a woman." Anthem in the Burial Service. Set to music in chant form, for men's voices. 3d.

Macpherson, Charles—"Why art thou so vexed." (No. 109. Novello's Short Anthems.) 2d.

—— "Whom the Lord loveth." Anthem. For Saints' Days, or General Use. (No. 110. Novello's Short Anthems.) 3d.

Mendelssohn—"All blessing, honour, glory, might." Hymn of Praise. For Festival Use. Arranged by J. Stainer. Words by S. Childs Clarke. (No. 550. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.; words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

Parker, Horatio—"An Even Song." Two-part Song. (S.A.) (No. 113. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs for Female Voices.) 2d.

Parry, C. Hubert H.—"The Soldier's Tent." Song. For Baritone. The words from "The Bard of Dimbovitza." English version by Alma Strettell. 2s.

Roberts, J. Varley—(in F). Te Deum laudamus. (No. 1. A Morning and Evening Service in F.) 4d.

—— (in E). Te Deum laudamus. (No. 1. A Morning and Evening Service in E.) 4d.

Sauret, Emile—"Mazourka." From "Trois Morceaux de Salon." For Violin and Pianoforte. 2s.

School Music Review. No. 111. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "O lovely peace." Duet, from "Judas Maccabæus." Composed by Handel. "Our native land." Unaccompanied Two-part Song. Composed by Methfessel. Two-part Exercises. 1½d.

School Songs.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

		A.	B.
No. 386.	Sweetly o'er the meadows fair. Sabbath Evening Hymn .. F. A. Challinor	—	1d.
„ 387.	Queen of fresh flowers. Easy Two-part Song .. .. .. F. A. Challinor	—	1d.
„ 388.	Sabbath Repose. Easy Two-part Song Franz Abt	—	1d.
„ 389.	The Sunbeam. Easy Two-part Song Thomas Facer	—	1½d.
Book 118.	Five Two-part Songs. By various Composers	6d.	—

Steggall, Charles—(in C). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 571. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

Stelfox, May—Five Songs: 1. "Little white lily." 2. "Temptation." 3. "War Song." 4. "My dearie." 5. "They know not my heart." 2s. 6d.

Tonic Sol-fa Series:—

Adams, Joseph H.—"Sun of my soul." Anthem. 2d.

Waddington, S. P.—"Whimland." An Operetta. For Children. The words by R. G. Waddington. Staff notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa only, 8d. Book of words, 25s. per 100.

West, John E.—"Lord, I have loved the habitation of Thy house." Festival Anthem. For Soprano and Bass Soli, Chorus, Orchestra, and Organ. 1s.

Wood, C. J.—A Wedding Hymn. 1d.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Malibran and Mutlow (with special Portrait and Illustrations)	585
Notes on the words of Beethoven's Choral Symphony (Illustrated)	590
Schubert's Setting of the Twenty-third Psalm (with Facsimile)	592
Wagner as a Concert-Giver (with Facsimile)	594
Handel's Borrowings. By J. S. Shedlock	596
Occasional Notes	600
Bellini in England	604
Gloucester Festival Novelties	605
A New Festival Composer—Mr. W. H. Bell (with Portrait)	606
Church and Organ Music	607
Professor Niecks on the Ethical Aspects of Music	609
Reviews	612
A Twentieth-Century Promenade Concert	614
The National Eisteddfod	614
The Twenty-fifth year of Bayreuth	619
Foreign Notes	619
Obituary	620
Correspondence	621
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	622
Answers to Correspondents	622
Music published during the last Month	623
Four-part Song, 'Cupid detected!' By Henry Lawes (1653). Arranged by J. Frederick Bridge	615
Four-part Song, 'The Dawn of Song' By E. C. Bairstow.—(Extra Supplement.)

TWO Extra Supplements are given with this number: (1) A Portrait of Madame Malibran, from a drawing by A. E. Chalon, R.A.; (2) Four-part Song, 'The Dawn of Song,' by E. C. Bairstow.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

MR. AUGUSTUS KEMP
(BASS)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Pure tone; good enunciation.
Terms moderate. 100, Melton Road, Leicester.

ALTO WANTED, for St. Paul's, Paddington. Good reader. Salary, £14. Apply to R. T., 60, Barclay Road, Walham Green.

WANTED, ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. £20. Address, before 21st, Secretary, Linden Grove Congregational Church, Peckham, S.E.

ORGANIST WANTED, for All Saints' Parish Church, Hereford. Salary, £25. Apply to the Vicar.

MR. W. PRENDERGAST, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Paul's Church, Music Master in Fettes College, &c., requires RESIDENT PUPIL, able to undertake Organist's duties in Mission Church, for which small stipend is given. Preparation for Examinations. 2, Bellevue Terrace, Edinbro'.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER and REPAIRER of PIANOS, ORGANS, and HARMONIUMS desires CHANGE. Eight years London and Provincial experience. Aged 22. Good pianist. Address, D. D., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

PUBLISHED ON THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH. Price 1½d. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW FOR SEPTEMBER CONTAINS:—

REVISED INSTRUCTIONS AS TO SINGING IN DAY SCHOOLS—ENGLAND AND WALES.
THE ROYAL NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD, MERTHYR.
SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING READER.—STAFF NOTATION.
TWO-PART MODULATOR POINTING (continued).
THEORY QUESTIONS.
REVIEW.
ANSWERS TO THEORY QUESTIONS.
ACTION SONGS IN THE OPEN-AIR.
CORRESPONDENCE.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

THE SEPTEMBER NUMBER CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC:—

"O HAPPY THE HEART OF A CHILD." Two-part Chorus. By S. P. WADDINGTON.
JUNIOR SCHOOL MUSIC COURSE.
Also, EXTRA SUPPLEMENT, containing "THE SOLDIER-BOYS." Action Song. By MYLES B. FOSTER. (No. 532. Novello School Songs. Price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SHEFFIELD SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.

WHITSUNTIDE, 1902.

A PRIZE of TEN GUINEAS is offered in open competition for ORIGINAL TUNES for the WHITSUNTIDE DEMONSTRATIONS of 1902.
Full particulars will be forwarded on application to the Hon. Sec.—Mr. ROBERT MOSS, Jun., Monmouth Street, Sheffield.

SCENES
FROM THE SONG OF HIAWATHA
BY
H. W. LONGFELLOW
SET TO MUSIC FOR
SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA
BY
S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

FULL SCORE (complete). Price £3 3s.

SEPARATELY, FROM THE ABOVE:

HIAWATHA'S WEDDING-FEAST
Full Score. Price 25s.

THE DEATH OF MINNEHAHA
Full Score. Price 25s.

HIAWATHA'S DEPARTURE
Full Score. Price 30s.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

WANTED, for South Wales, TUNER and REGULATOR. Must be able to tune, and knowledge of American Organs necessary. A. B. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, for the North, PIANOFORTE TUNER IMPROVER. One who understands Organs and Harmoniums preferred. Apply, Excel, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TWO-MANUAL PIPE ORGAN, £175, or payment arranged; 10 ft. high. Imposing appearance. Speaking front. Manuals CC to A; Pedals CCC to F. 18 stops. Splendid tone; perfect order. Lead about 700 voices. S., 52, Hazlewood Crescent, Westbourne Park Station, London. Appointments please.

The Musical Times. EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. September 1, 1901.

No. 868. NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK. Price 3d.
(SECOND SERIES.)

THE DAWN OF SONG

PRIZE PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY JOHN RINDER

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ED. C. BAIRSTOW
Mus. Doc.; F.R.C.O.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

pp con espress.
p
Low, in our ear, thro' childhood's slumber stealing,
cres.
That we the theme of an-gels might pro-long. à bouche fermée.
dim.
Sweet . . lul-la-by, a mag-ic power re-veal-ing,
It gently whisper'd of a mo-ther's love; . . à bouche fermée.
Soft, soft . . as the coo-ing . . of a ten-der dove. à bouche fermée.
ppp

Più animato e ben marcato.

Youth's joy - ous song with glad-ness fills the morn - ing, No tone of sad-ness

Youth's joy - ous song with glad-ness fills the morn - ing, No tone of sad - ness

Youth's joy - ous song with glad-ness fills the morn - ing, No tone of sad - ness

Youth's joy - ous song with glad-ness fills the morn - ing, No tone of sad - ness

Poco animato e ben marcato. ♩ = 72.

sweeps its tune - ful string, . . Of fu-ture strife no mi - nor chord gives sweeps its tune-ful string, Of fu- ture strife no mi - nor chord, no mi - nor chord gives sweeps its tune-ful string, Of fu- ture strife no mi - - nor chord . . gives sweeps its string, Of fu-ture strife no mi - nor chord gives warn - ing, . .

warn - ing, Sweet Hope and Love from it e-ter - nal spring. . . The warn - ing, Sweet Hope and Love from it . . . e - ter-nal spring. . . The warn - ing, Sweet Hope and Love . . . from it . . . e - ter-nal spring. . . The . . Sweet Hope and Love from it . . . e - ter - - nal spring. The storms of life like

dim.
storms of life like thun - der break - ing, break - ing o'er . . . .
dim.
storms of life like thun - der break - ing, break - ing o'er . . . .
dim.
storms of life like thun - der breaking o'er us, May mar the blend and of - ten
mf thun - der, like thunder breaking o'er . . us, May mar the blend and
dim.
p
cres.
us, And of - ten change the key; But . . . He who guides for mf
p
cres.
us, May mar the blend and of - ten change the key; But He who p
cres.
change the key; . . . . . But He who guides for aye, who guides for p
f
of - ten, of - ten change the key; But cres.
cres.
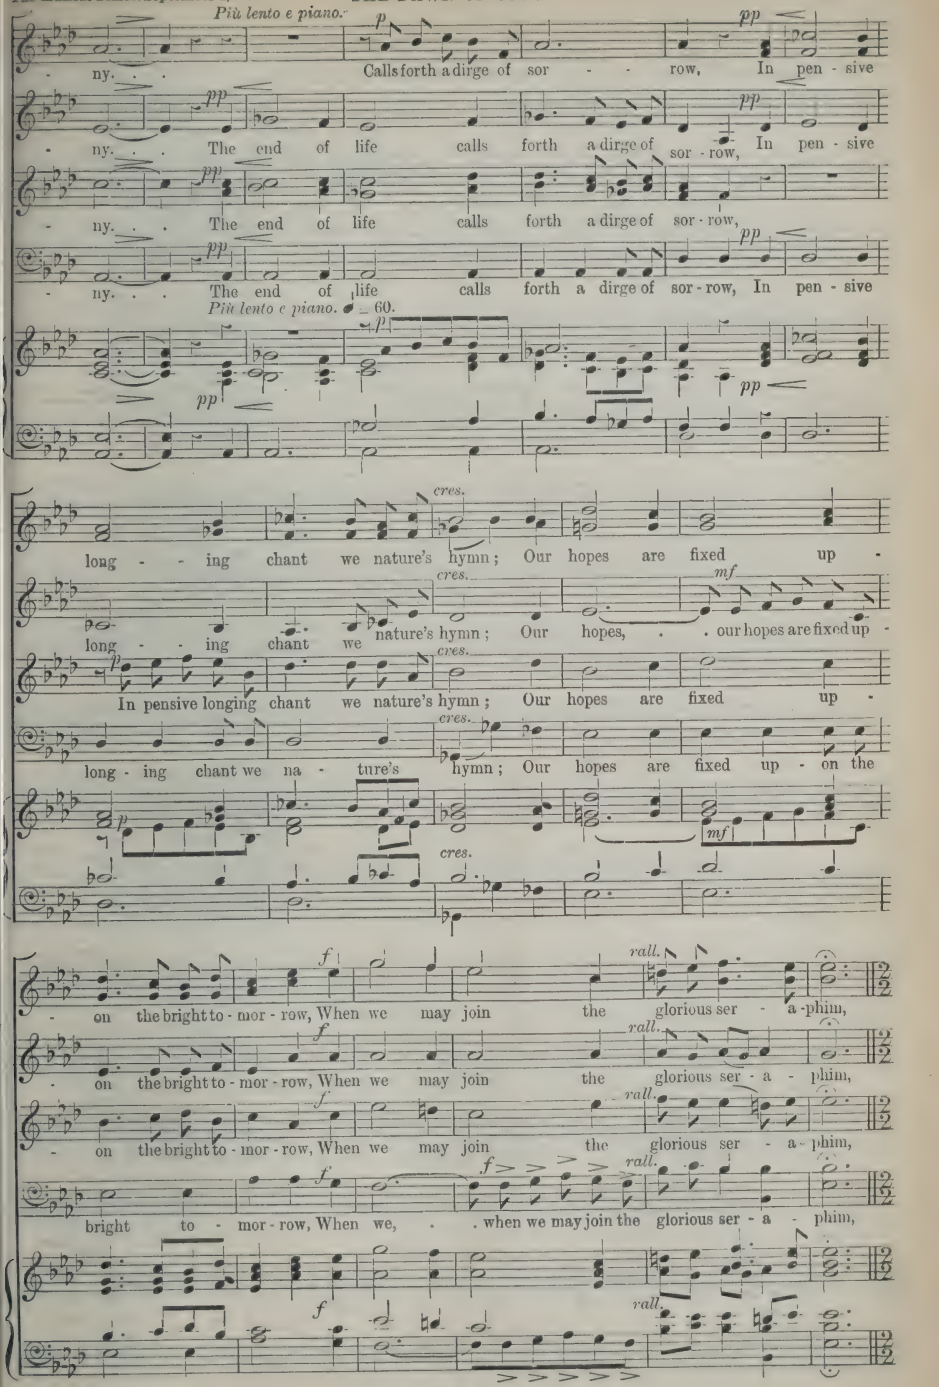
f
p
rall.
aye the mighty chor - us Will lead us back to perfect har - mo -
rall.
guides for aye the mighty chor - us Will lead . us back to perfect har - mo -
p
rall.
aye the mighty chor - us Will lead us back to perfect har - mo -
p
rall.
He who guides for aye the mighty chor - us Will lead us back to per-fect har - mo -
p
rall.



Più lento e piano.
ny. . . Calls forth a dirge of sor - - - row, In pen - sive ny. . . The end of life calls forth a dirge of sor - row, In pen - sive ny. . . The end of life calls forth a dirge of sor - row, ny. . . The end of life calls forth a dirge of sor - row, In pen - sive Più lento e piano. ♩ = 60.
long - - ing chant we nature's hymn; Our hopes are fixed up - long - - ing chant we nature's hymn; Our hopes, . . our hopes are fixed up -
In pensive longing chant we nature's hymn; Our hopes are fixed up - long - ing chant we na - ture's hymn; Our hopes are fixed up - on the
- on the bright to - mor - row, When we may join the glorious ser - a - phim,
- on the bright to - mor - row, When we may join the glorious ser - a - phim,
- on the bright to - mor - row, When we may join the glorious ser - a - phim, bright to - mor - row, When we, . . when we may join the glorious ser - a - phim, Allegro con spirito.

f

Whose mu - sic o'er the earth is ev - er ring - ing In praise of Him who Allegro con spirito. ♩ = 72.

f

f

Whose mu - sic o'er the earth is ev - er ring - ing In sits en-thron'd on high, Whose mu - sic o'er the earth is ev - er, ev - er ring - ing In

f

Whose mu - sic o'er the earth is ev - er praise of Him who sits en-thron'd on high, Whose mu - sic o'er the earth is ev - er, ev - er praise of Him who sits on high, Whose mu - - sic o'er the earth is ev - er.

ring - ing In praise of Him who sits en-thron'd on high, Whose mu - sic o'er the earth is ring - ing In praise of Him who sits on high, Whose mu - sic o'er the earth is ring - ing In praise of Him who sits en-thron'd on high, Whose mu - sic o'er the earth is
f Whose mu - sic o'er the ev - er, ev - er ring - ing In praise of Him who sits en-thron'd on high; In rap- ture
ev - - er ring - ing In praise of Him who sits . . on high; In rap-ture
ev - - er ring - ing In praise of Him . . who sits on high; In rap-ture earth is ev - er ring - ing In praise of Him who sits en-thron'd on high; In rap-ture sweet our voi - ces join in sing - ing The mu - sic of the sky, In rap-ture sweet our voi - ces join in sing - ing . . The mu - sic of the sky, In rap-ture sweet our voi - ces join in sing - ing The mu - sic of the sky, In rap-ture sweet our voi-ces join in sing - ing Ce - les - tial songs, the mu - sic of the sky, In rap-ture sweet our voi - ces join in sing - ing Ce - les-tial songs, the mu-sic of the sky, In sweet our voi - ces join in sing - ing, The mu - sic of . . the sky, In sweet our voi - ces sing - ing, Ce - les-tial songs, the mu-sic of the sky, In rapture sweet our voices join in sing - ing Ce - les-tial songs, the mu - sic of . . the sky, . .

ff rall.
rapture sweet our voi - ces . . join in sing - ing, in rapture sweet our voi - ces join in rapture sweet our voi-ces join in sing - - ing, . . in rapture sweet our voi - ces join in sweet our voi-ces join . . in sing-ing, join in sing - ing, in rapture sweet our voi-ces join in
. . . . In rapture sweet our voi - ces join in sing - ing, in rapture sweet our voi-ces join in Adagio. rall.
sing - ing Ce - les - tial songs, the mu - sic of . . . the sky.
sing - ing Ce - les - tial songs, the mu - sic of . . . the sky.
sing - ing Ce - les - tial songs, the mu - sic, the mu-sic of the sky.
sing - ing Ce - les - tial songs, the mu - sic of . . . the sky.
Adagio.
100
rall.

ALFRED HOLLINS.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 704.—Vol. 42. OCTOBER 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,
ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

THIRTY-FIRST SEASON, 1901-2.

PROSPECTUS.

The Series will comprise Eight Concerts, at which the following works will be performed:—

Nov. 7. "Elijah."
Dec. 5. "The Song of Hiawatha."
Jan. 1. "Messiah."
Jan. 23. "The Blind Girl" (Coleridge-Taylor) and Handel's "L'Allegro" (Selections).
Feb. 12. "The Redemption."
Mar. 6. "The Spectre's Bride" and "Walpurgis Night."
Mar. 28. "Messiah."
April 17. "The Golden Legend" and "The Forging of the Anchor" (J. F. Bridge).

Arrangements have been made with the following artists:—

Madame Albani	Mr. Ben Davies
Miss Ella Russell	Mr. Lloyd Chandos
Miss Esther Palliser	Mr. William Green
Madame Sobrino	Mr. Charles Saunders
Miss Agnes Nicholls	Mr. Fred Norcup
Madame Mary Beare	Mr. Andrew Black
Miss Marie Brema	Mr. Watkin Mills
Mdlle. Giulia Ravogli	Mr. Daniel Price
Miss Ada Crossley	Mr. Ivor Foster
Miss Edna Thornton	Mr. Harry Dearth
Miss Emily Foxcroft	Mr. Bertram Mills

Organist: Mr. H. L. Balfour.

The Band and Chorus will consist of 1,000 performers.

Of the eight Concerts to be given, seven will be included in the Subscription Series. Prices of Subscription for these seven concerts: Stalls, £2 2s.; Arena, £1 15s.; Balcony (Reserved), £1 8s.

Prices for each Concert: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony, Reserved, 5s.; Unreserved, 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

Subscribers' names can now be received, seats secured, and prospectuses obtained, at the Royal Albert Hall, and the usual Agents.

FIRST CONCERT, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 7, at 8.

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH."

Artists: MISS ELLA RUSSELL, MISS ADA CROSSLEY, MR. BEN DAVIES, and MR. ANDREW BLACK.

There are VACANCIES in the CHOIR for Sopranos, Tenors, and Basses. Only those who have good and powerful voices, and who can read vocal music at first sight, will be accepted. Address, The Secretary, Royal Choral Society, Royal Albert Hall, S.W.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Christmas F.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 6, 1902. The solo-playing tests are: Passacaglia in C minor, Bach (Vol. I., Peters' ed.; Book X., Novello & Co.: Vol. V., Augener & Co.). Sonata No. 2, in G minor, Op. 42, Merkel (Novello & Co., Augener & Co.). Concert Fantasia in D minor, R. P. Stewart (Novello & Co.).

The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 13.

The Book of Examination Papers may be obtained by Members, price 5s., postage 5d.

The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.

Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK.

SESSION 1901-02.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 16 to December 21), Winter Term (January 20 to April 5), Summer Term (April 7 to June 21). Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from

ALFRED HAYES Secretary.

QUEEN'S HALL,
LANGHAM PLACE, W.

MR. ROBERT
NEWMAN'S CONCERTS
1901-2.

1901.
Aug. 24 to Nov. 9. PROMENADE CONCERTS nightly, at 8.
Sept. 29 to Mar. 23. SUNDAY CONCERT SOCIETY'S CONCERTS, every Sunday Afternoon, at 3.30.
Oct. 5, 19 / Dec. 21 } Mr. MARK HAMBOURG'S RECITALS, at 3.
Oct. 21 to Feb. 8. CHEVALIER RECITALS daily, at 3; also Thursdays and Saturdays, at 8.30.
Oct. 26 / Nov. 9, 23 / Dec. 7 } SATURDAY SYMPHONY CONCERTS, at 3.
Nov. 7. YSAYE-BUSONI RECITAL, at 3.
Nov. 13, 20, 28 / Dec. 4, 11 } ORGAN RECITALS by Mr. E. H. LEMARE, at 3.30.
Nov. 14, 21, 27. YSAYE-BECKER-BUSONI RECITALS, at 3.
Nov. 22. "GOLDEN LEGEND," at 8.
Nov. 29 and Dec. 10. SIGNOR BUSONI'S RECITALS, at 3.
Nov. 29. SCOTCH CONCERT, at 7.30.
Dec. 12. "ELIJAH," at 8.
Dec. 25. CHRISTMAS DAY CONCERT, at 3.30.
Dec. 26 to Feb. 1. CHRISTMAS PROMENADE CONCERTS nightly, at 8.

1902.
Jan. 1. NEW YEAR'S DAY CONCERT, at 3.
Jan. 18 / Feb. 1, 22 / Mar. 8 } SATURDAY SYMPHONY CONCERTS, at 3.
Feb. 8. HERR HUGO BECKER'S RECITAL, at 3.
Feb. 12. ASH WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON CONCERT, at 3.
Feb. 15. YSAYE-BUSONI RECITAL, at 3.
Mar. 17. ST. PATRICK'S DAY CONCERT, at 7.30.
Mar. 28. GOOD FRIDAY CONCERTS, at 3 and 7.30.
Mar. 31 to June 28. CHEVALIER RECITALS daily, at 3; also Thursdays and Saturdays at 8.30.
Apr. 28 to May 3. LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN is Sole Agent for the following Artists:—

Madame LILLIAN BLAUVELT.
Miss FLORENCE SCHMIDT.

Madame KIRKBY LUNN.
Miss JESSIE GOLDSACK.

Mr. FFRANGCON DAVIES.

Mons. YSAYE.
Madame VON STOSCH.

Herr HUGO BECKER.

Signor BUSONI.
Mr. MARK HAMBOURG.

All communications respecting Engagements for the above Artists should be made direct to Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.

QUEEN'S HALL.
LESSEE AND MANAGER - - - Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN.

The Queen's Hall (Large and Small Halls) may be engaged for Concerts and Recitals; also for Public Meetings (non-political), Balls, Cinderellas, Banquets, Wedding Receptions, Bazaars, Conversaziones, Dinners, Suppers, Lectures, and Social Gatherings.

TERMS.

LARGE HALL.		SMALL HALL.
Afternoon Concerts	20 Guineas.	Afternoon Concerts	4 Guineas.
Evening "	25 "	Evening "	6 "
Cinderella Dances -	40 "	Cinderella Dances -	8 "
Balls - - -	45 "	Balls - - -	10 "
Banquets - - -	45 "	Banquets - - -	10 "
Bazaars, per day -	45 "	Bazaars, per day -	10 "
Including Use of Organ, Lighting, Warming, and Numbering of Seats Excluding Attendants and Piano.		Including Lighting, Warming, and Numbering of Seats. Excluding Attendants and Piano.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: His most gracious Majesty the King.
President: H.R.H. The Duke of Connaught, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. Mackenzie, Mus.D., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

Michaelmas Term began Thursday, September 26.
"The Ross Scholarships" for Male Vocalists and Wood-wind Instrument Players. The first Competition for these Scholarships will be held on October 31. Full particulars on application.
Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: His Majesty the King.
Director: Sir C. Hubert H. Parry, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: Charles Morley, Esq., M.P.

The NEXT EXAMINATION for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will be held in April, 1902.
Syllabus and official Entry Forms, may be obtained at the College, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.

FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.
For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.G., K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.
Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.
First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.
Provincial Examinations in all subjects, for Certificates and Diplomas, A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., October, November, and December. Metropolitan Examination, December 5. Local Theoretical Examination at all Centres in December.
Holder of the Victoria College Vocal Scholarship, 1901: Miss Lottie L. Wakelin.
Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.
Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.
All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.
President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in November and December, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.
Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.
The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.
Free register for Organists requiring appointments.
For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,

Limited.
Principal: Edwin M. Lott, Mus. Doc.
Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.
Central Office: 113, Great Portland Street, W.
Local Theoretical Examination, November 19, 1901.
Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.
W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE

OF MUSIC, Ltd.
Warden: Professor ALEX. PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.
Musical Examinations held in all towns, November and December.
Diplomas—Associate, Licentiate, and Fellow granted.
Apply, Sec., 60, Berners St., London; or, 5, Hardman St., L'pool.

NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC, Ltd.

Patron: The Duchess of Marlborough.
Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L.
Exams. (all towns). Local four grades, and Diplomas, November and December.
Music published practically free through exchanges.
Members wanted; great advantages.
W. J. MOSS, Sec., 192, Sutherland Avenue, W.

MANCHESTER SCHOOL OF MUSIC,

Founded 1892.] MOUNT ST., ALBERT SQ. [Extended 1897.

Patrons:
Sir W. Houldsworth, Bart., M.P., Sir Anthony Marshall,
Dr. Prout, Dr. Carl Reinecke, W. Macfarren, Esq.
Principal: Mr. Albert J. Cross,
Of the Royal Academy, London, and Leipzig Conservatorium.
Consultative Board:
Dr. Horton Allison, F.R.A.M., J. A. Cross, Esq. (Founder), and the Principal. Staff of forty Professors.
Lessons given in every branch of Music. Full and String Orchestras, Operatic, Dramatic, and Elocution Classes meet weekly.
Tenth year commences on Monday, October 7.

BAKER STREET CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Ltd.,

6, UPPER BAKER STREET, N.W.
(One Minute from the Metropolitan Station).
The Rev. Canon Francis J. Holland, Chairman.

PIANO.—Mr. Oscar Beringer, Miss Ethel Boyce, A.R.A.M., Miss Bryant, certificated Frankfort Hoch Conservatoire, Miss Jessie Davies, A.R.A.M., Miss Kate Robinson, certificated Raff Conservatoire, Frankfort, Misses M. Moore and D. Lucas.
VIOLIN.—Herr Josef Ludwig, Miss L. M. Nunn, R.A.M., Miss Eveleigh, L.R.A.M., Silver Med., R.A.M.
VIOLONCELLO.—Miss A. F. Vernet, L.R.A.M.
ORGAN.—Mr. F. A. W. Docker, A.R.A.M., Organist of St. Andrew's, Wells Street, Professor of the Organ at the Guildhall School of Music, &c.
SINGING.—Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Margaret Barter.
SIGHT READING AND ENSEMBLE PLAYING.—Miss Harrison and Miss Holland: Piano and Strings.
ELOCUTION.—Miss Chute.
HARMONY CLASSES.—Orchestral Practices, during Lent and Christmas Terms.
For Prospectus, &c., apply to the Headmistress, Miss Lilla B. Strong, 6, Upper Baker Street, N.W.

THE CHURCH ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

Hon. Conductor: G. F. Huntley, Esq., Mus. Doc.

Rehearsals are held on Tuesdays (commencing October 1), at 7 p.m., in St. Peter's Mission House, adjoining Victoria Station (L. C. & D. Ry.). The Society's Band undertakes Festival and Special Services. There are vacancies for Violins, Flute, Clarinet, Double-Bass, Tympanist. For terms of membership (professional and amateur), apply to the Secretary, Hon. Richard Strutt, Rayleigh House, Chelsea, S.W.

THE FOURTH ANNUAL COMPETITION for LADIES' CHOIRS will be held in KENSINGTON TOWN HALL early in MARCH, 1902. Rules, List of Music, and all information from Miss C. E. Denison, 2, Strathmore Gardens, W.

Mr. Munro Davison's Male Voice Choir

(THE NORTH LONDON).
SEVENTH SEASON commences October 7.
Particulars of Membership from the Conductor, 142, Stroud Green Rd.

Just Published.

VERSICLES AND RESPONSES

ARRANGED FOR

BOYS' OR LADIES' VOICES

BY

A. HERBERT BREWER,

Organist and Master of the Choristers, Gloucester Cathedral.

Price Twopence.

PREFACE.

This arrangement of the Responses for Sopranos and Contraltos was originally intended to supply a need occasionally felt in Gloucester Cathedral when the Lay Clerks were away and the Choir consisted of Boys only. I am not aware that any similar arrangement has been printed, and I therefore offer this version to the public in the hope that it may be found useful in cases where Choirs are limited to Boys' or Ladies' voices.

A. Herbert Brewer.

Palace Yard, Gloucester, July, 1901.

London: Novello and Company, Ltd., and Novello, Ewer and Co., New York.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano Vocalist)
And Teacher of Singing.
444, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS ANNIE DAYMOND, A.R.A.M. (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Peverey, New Clive Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
"Voice of rare beauty and sweetness."—Liverpool Courier.
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS AMY FLETCHER (Soprano)
Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.
11, Highbury Grange, N.

MRS. S. FORD (Soprano)
For Oratorio or Miscellaneous Concerts.
For terms, address, Avondale, Park Road E., Wolverhampton.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano)
Address, Rawtenstall, near Manchester.

MISS LILIAN TURNBULL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Address, 10, Cecile Park, Crouch End, N.

MISS AGNES WALKER (Soprano)
(Medalist, Diploma, Exhibitioner).
147, Brockley Road, Brockley, S.E.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MADAME FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto) and MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor),
New Haslemere, Woodside Park Road, North Finchley, London, N.

MISS KATE GREGORY
(The new Yorkshire Contralto)
Professional Pupil of Albert Jowett, Esq., Yorkshire Training College of Music, Leeds).
Oratorios and Ballad Concerts.
Terms, apply, Doncaster.

MADAME ANNIE GREW (Contralto, Medalist)
Waverley Road, Bradford.

MISS GERTRUDE HEY (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Lawn Side, Clarendon Road, Whalley Range, Manchester.

MADAME JENNY HOLDEN (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS ANNIE McBRIDE (Contralto)
Oratorio, Concerts, &c.
Address, 5, Hartham Road, Camden Road, N.

MR. WALTER LE NEAVE
Solo Alto (Principal), St. Paul's Church, Avenue Road, N.W.
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes. Sacred and Ballad Songs a speciality.
Address, 85, Belsize Road, N.W.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.)
Address, 21, Mysore Road, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. SAMUEL MASTERS (Tenor)
Has had the honour of being specially engaged to sing before H.R.H. The Prince of Wales (in 1899) and His Majesty The King of Sweden. He also sang at the following important Concerts, viz., Royal Albert Hall Concerts, Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts, Crystal Palace Concerts, Albani Concerts, Boosey Ballad Concerts, St. James's Hall Concerts, Royal Amateur Orchestral Society and Popular Concerts, St. James's Hall, W., &c.; and has secured some of the most important engagements in the Provinces.

Extensive Répertoire of Oratorios.

Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society.—"The Messiah."—"The tenor music was rendered by Mr. Masters with praiseworthy conscientiousness and artistic feeling. The spirit of 'Every valley' no less than the execution was a highly-finished production, and the Passion music was invested with a true but unexaggerated perception of the theme. 'Thou shalt break them' was given with plenty of fire and dash."—Birmingham Mail, December 28, 1900.

Mr. B. C. Crossley's Choral Concerts.—"Elijah."—"Mr. Masters, the tenor, has a pleasing voice. It is more than ever difficult to find a really fine tenor with that rich timbre in it that thrills and recalls to mind some of the best tenors that have passed away. Mr. Masters has the organ, and he reminds us of some of the past voices. His singing on Tuesday night was artistic and cultured, and we expect him to take a still higher place in musical circles."—Rochdale Times, March 23, 1901.
61, Alexandra Road, Wimbledon.

MR. J. G. BLANCHARD
(Principal Tenor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, 41, Savernake Road, N.W.

MR. SAM HORTON (Tenor, Medalist)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
20, Norwood Road, Headingley, Leeds.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. WILLIAM A. SHEEN
(Principal Tenor, The City Temple).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 116, High Street, Kingsland, N.E.

MR. JAMES STEEL (Robust Tenor)
Concerts, Operatic Recitals, Oratorios, &c.
Address, 10, Nineveh Road, Stocks Hill, Leeds.

MR. CHARLES WIGNALL (Solo Tenor)
Oratorios, Ballads, &c. 40, Coniston Street, Anfield, Liverpool; or, St. James's Parish Church, New Brighton, Cheshire.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. GEORGE STUBBS (Baritone)
Oratorio, Concerts, &c.
5, Cardozo Road, Hillmarton Road, N.; or, St. Paul's Cathedral, E.C.

MR. EATON COOTER (Basso-Cantante), A.R.C.M.
St. George's and H.M. Private Chapels, Windsor Castle.
Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass)
Oratorios and Concerts.
45, Pentonville Road, N.

MR. ARTHUR BASSON (Violinist)
For Concerts, &c., Solo or Orchestral; also Lessons.
Address, 35, Swaffield Road, Wandsworth, S.W.

SIGNOR NICOLA COVIELLO (Cornet Soloist)
Clubs, Dinners, Lessons, &c.
Write to Balham School of Music, S.W.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

B. E. KENT (Lyric Authoress).
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON and Mr. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE beg to announce that their Canadian tour being ended, they have now returned to town for the season. The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

MISS LUCIE JOHNSTONE has pleasure in intimating her NEW ADDRESS, The Torrs, Rosendale Road, West Dulwich, S.E.; also care of N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork St., W.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MISS HONEYBONE
(SOPRANO).
"Miss Honeybone is an artist who possesses a voice of exceptional range. Her rendering of song, 'O divine Redeemer' (Gounod), was a most artistic effort."
41, Hampden Street, Nottingham.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO),
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MISS KATHERINE NASH
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A.
Address, 10, Mount Pleasant Mansions, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MADAME
ANNIE NORLEDGE
(SOPRANO),
23, Millgate, Newark-on-Trent.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
39, Blandford Square, N.W.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy o Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square W.

MISS BERYL CLIVE
(CONTRALTO)
14, Gladsmuir Road, Whitehall Park, N.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE
(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, Sheffield Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 13, Garway Road, Bayswater, W.

MR. TOM CHILD
(THE YORKSHIRE TENOR),
Winner of the 100 Guineas Prize, London.
Over one hundred engagements booked this season.
Permanent address: The Poplars, Calverley, Leeds.

MR. JOHN COATES
(THE NEW TENOR)
Of the Royal Opera, Covent Garden; engaged for the Leeds Festival; is now booking Oratorio and Concert Engagements.
9, Hyde Park Mansions, N.W.

MR. ALBERT DERRICK
(TENOR)
(Pupil of Mr. Albert Visetti, Royal College of Music).
For Oratorio, Concerts, &c.
Address, 448, Harrow Road, W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks

MR. CYRIL FLAMSTEED
(TENOR)
Of Queen's Hall, St. James's Hall, Crystal Palace Concerts, &c.
Address, 29, Carleton Road, London, N.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 27, Warwick Road, Ealing, W.

MR. JAMES LEYLAND
(TENOR).
On tour October 14 to November 23 inclusive, and December 2 to the 9th inclusive. For vacant dates apply, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. CHARLES STRONG
(TENOR)
Has removed to 35, Oakfield Road, Stroud Green, N., where all communications should be addressed.

MR. HARRY TUDOR
(PRINCIPAL TENOR of the Church of The Holy Name, M'chester)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Terms, &c., 35, Maulderth Road, Withington, Manchester.

MR. DAN BILLINGTON
THE CELEBRATED YORKSHIRE BARITONE (Vide Press)
(Soloist of the Leeds Festivals, Sir Chas. Hallé's and the Principal Provincial Concerts).
34, Hanover Square, Leeds.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE).
Mr. Henry J. Wood (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.
"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.
"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.
"Henry J. Wood."

AND

MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO).
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(BARITONE)
(Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts),
7, Station Terrace, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. JOHN BROWNING
(BARITONE),
SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1898,
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal, Leeds Parish Church, &c.
Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. WILLIAM DYOTT
(BARITONE).
CHANGE OF ADDRESS to 13, Nemoure Road, Acton, W.
Agents and Managers kindly note.

MR. CHARLES TREE.
Among future Engagements are—

"Elijah"	Birmingham, Bath, Stafford, &c.
"Hiawatha"	Glasgow, Halifax, Coventry, &c.
"Dream of Jubal" & "Lohengrin"	Finsbury Choral.
"Samson and Delilah"	Leeds.
"Golden Legend"	Sheffield, Accrington, &c.
"Israel in Egypt"	Manchester.
"Daisy Chain	Edinburgh, Glasgow, &c.
"Ancient Mariner"	Warrington.

Newcastle, Middlesbrough, Perth, Dundee, &c.
Address, 23, Clifton Road, Maida Vale, London, W.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES
(BARITONE)
Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, Chester, and Dover Musical Festivals.
Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts.
Crystal Palace and principal Provincial Concerts.

"King Saul," Sheffield Musical Festival, 1899.—"Mr. Charles Knowles imparted to the character of Samuel much of the sternness and severity associated with 'Elijah.' His fine, powerful voice was hardly suggestive of the 'aged seer,' but he was most impressive throughout, and in the scene with the people he asserted the prerogative of the Prophet with all the dignity of one accustomed to command. In the dialogue with Saul he was excellent, and his interpretation throughout the part was very fine. In the scene at Endor the utterances of Samuel were solemnly delivered, and altogether Mr. Knowles advanced his already high position."—Birmingham Post, October 14, 1899.

"Samson and Delilah."—"Mr. Charles Knowles was excellent as Abimelech."—Morning Post, October 16, 1899.

"Mr. D. Bispham and Mr. Charles Knowles, as the High Priest and Abimelech, entered thoroughly into the spirit of the work."—The Times, October 16, 1899.

Chester Musical Festival, July 25, 26, 27, 1900.—"Zion" (Gade).—"The baritone solo was sung by Mr. Charles Knowles with much earnestness and effect."—Daily Telegraph, July 26, 1900.

"In which Mr. Charles Knowles sang the solo part very ably."—The Times, July 31, 1900.

"The solitary solo was powerfully sung by Mr. Charles Knowles."—Yorkshire Post, July 26, 1900.

"Faust."—"Mr. Charles Knowles had in Brander a part peculiarly suited to his powers. In the closing cadence of the burlesque Amen Chorus, his stentorian voice told against the whole body of men's voices with an effect quite unique."—Yorkshire Post, July 27, 1900.

"St. Paul," Hanley Philharmonic Society.—"Mr. Charles Knowles, a well-known Yorkshire bass, who now sung for the first time, won much favour by reason of his fine voice and artistic methods."—Staffordshire Sentinel, March 30, 1901.

"Golden Legend," Dover Musical Festival.—". . . with the vindictive 'Here am I, too,' were splendidly rendered. Mr. Knowles sang Lucifer's song with great vigour and power, and was loudly applauded."—Dover Express, May 3, 1901.

"Mr. Charles Knowles, as Lucifer, gave the opening, 'Hasten, hasten!' in the prologue in robust style, his fine bass voice being at once heard to advantage."—Dover Standard, May 4, 1901.

"Samson," Leicester New Musical Society.—"The treat of the evening was to hear Mr. Charles Knowles sing 'Honour and Arms.' This solo is, perhaps, the finest in the oratorio, and Mr. Knowles sang it with the greatest vigour and energy. At the conclusion he was rewarded with a burst of applause such as is not often heard, but he did not repeat the number. His splendid voice was heard to equal advantage in 'Thy glorious deeds' and in the duet 'Go, baffled coward,' with Mr. Saunders."—Leicester Post, November 30, 1900.

"Hiawatha," Clifton Choral Society.—"Mr. Charles Knowles imparted a good deal of character and vividness to the personality of Hiawatha by his fine delivery of the several baritone solos assigned to the young Indian Chief, and especially in the admirable solo, with chorus, in which the latter takes leave of Nokomis and his people."—Bristol Times, May 7, 1901.

"Gate of Life," Crystal Palace.—"Mr. Charles Knowles' powerful organ delivered the utterances of the High Priest with full effect."—Daily Telegraph, August 19, 1901.

For terms and vacant dates, apply, 24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

MR. EDGAR ARCHER
(PRINCIPAL BASS of the City Temple, of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, Langdale, Rutland Park, Willesden Green, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR BARLOW
(BASS).
Address, 6, Beech Mansions, West Hampstead, N.W.
Telegrams: "Arthanita, London."

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN
(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. WATKIN MILLS

Has REMOVED to BROADLANDS, TORQUAY, for the summer months only, and has appointed Messrs. HEALEY & SON sole Business Managers, to whom all business communications should be addressed.

Notwithstanding rumours to the contrary, Mr. Watkin Mills has not the remotest intention of retiring from the profession.

HEALEY & SON,
17, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.,
Sole Business Managers.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT
Begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to 105, Brondesbury Villas, London, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR SEDGLEY
(BASS).
For Oratorio, Opera, and Ballad Concerts.
For terms, &c., apply, 51, Worcester Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)
(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

MR. HERBERT WALENN
(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MISS ELLEN CHILDS
(CHROMATIC HARPIST)
Having studied in Paris under the direction of the Inventor, Miss Childs is prepared to give LESSONS on the NEW CHROMATIC HARP (without pedals). For terms, apply, 170, Belsize Road, N.W.; or, care of Messrs. Pleyell Wolff, Lyon and Co., 79-80, Baker Street, Portman Square, W.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.

PRESIDENT, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.
Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.
A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Road, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

ORATORIO QUARTET, also Concert Party, with Specialty or Humorist. Artists' names, terms, and vacant dates, Mr. Egbert Roberts, 45, Pentonville Road, N.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.

SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. JAMES BATES, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities. Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, 289, High Road, Lee, S.E.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppel St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT LESSONS, personally or by correspondence. Highest professional testimonials; terms moderate. B. E., 307, Upland Rd., Dulwich Park, S.E.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac. Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc. Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1901, 1900, and all previous years; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1900 and 1901; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music, Composition, and Pianoforte Teaching); CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that TWENTY-ONE of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1901. Hazelwood, Dollis Rd., Finchley, N.

OLIVER IVE, Mus. Bac., Oxon.—LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., by correspondence or otherwise. Candidates prepared for University and other Exams., as well as for Preliminary Arts. Moderate terms. Address, 24, Carmalt Gardens, Putney, S.W.

DR. A. W. MARCHANT (who is leaving Dumfries) wishes to CORRESPOND with a PROFESSIONAL MAN, with a view to the transferring of his teaching practice. The post of Organist and Choirmaster (Episcopal Church) would most likely be offered to the applicant accepted. Voice Production essential. For full particulars, address, 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1901, SEVENTY-SEVEN passes, L.R.A.M., 1897-1901, TWENTY-SEVEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

"FROM BRAIN TO KEYBOARD."

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM
OF TOUCH AND TECHNIQUE.

"The most striking discovery of the present generation for practical musicians."—Musical News.

"Wonderful work is being done by Mr. Macdonald Smith in the application of his new system. . . . He is giving hundreds of lessons by mail with the very best results."—Musical Courier (New York).

"It is clear that Mr. Macdonald Smith has studied the subject carefully, and acts upon well-ascertained scientific grounds."—The Daily Telegraph.

"The great, the supreme merit of Mr. Smith's system consists in the fact that it involves the total abolition and disestablishment of all that terrible scale-practising and five-finger exercising."—Westminster Gazette.

"May be distinctly regarded as a boon and a blessing to men."—The Referee.

"Mr. Macdonald Smith's system of training the fingers, hands, &c., for pianoforte playing is most excellent, and in every respect well worth the high fees charged for lessons."—Organist and Choirmaster.

"The excellence of his methods had been abundantly proved."—The Times.

Extracts from reports of Correspondence Pupils:—

"Difficulties which were once almost insurmountable now seem to fall to pieces as I play. The keyboard, which once seemed hard and unyielding, has now become like velvet to my fingers."—D. Parkes, Plymouth.

"Allow me to take this opportunity of thanking you for your attention, and once again to testify to the marvellous improvement I have made under your system. It is worth any money to a teacher, and I sincerely hope, for his own sake, every professor will avail himself of it."—Ralph Horner, Mus. Bac.

"I have found the system of the greatest possible use in teaching the piano, more particularly in the case of adult pupils, to many of whom music is now a delight instead of a toil as formerly. To teachers whose time is so fully occupied that they have no time for practice, Macdonald Smith's system is worth ten times the modest fee which he charges for lessons."—Chas. G. Bryan, Southport.

"I have tried all the technical methods in vogue for many years for the improvement of the technical difficulties in pianoforte playing, and I unhesitatingly affirm that the system employed by you for the speedy development of the muscles is the nearest approach to perfection I can find."—C. Davieson (Pupil of Liszt).

"I can play very much better; indeed, the change is just as some of your critics say, 'marvellous.' I always wondered how with careful practice and a fair knowledge of music I could not do better—the riddle is now solved. Every day I feel I have done something by adding a little to my proficiency. Let me say once more I am delighted with your system. I have derived benefit from your exercises and advice far, far beyond my expectations."—Mrs. H. W. (age 45), N.S. Wales.

"As far as your system is concerned, I can heartily say that it has helped me more than all the technical work I ever did."—F. J. F., Toledo, Ohio, U.S.A.

"Am hugely delighted with results . . . and consider you a public benefactor. The manuscript exercise I think perfectly splendid."—A. W. S., Windsor.

"I am finding it most useful in teaching, especially with examination pupils."—A. M. C., Edinburgh.

COMPLETE COURSE OF SIX LESSONS, BY CORRESPONDENCE, THREE GUINEAS.

"PIANOFORTE PLAYING" and other articles by Macdonald Smith, 32 pp., Post-free, 7d.

Experience with over twelve hundred pupils by correspondence. Full Prospectus Post-free.

MACDONALD SMITH, Steinway Hall, London, W.

MR. HERBERT C. MORRIS, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Organist of St. David's Cathedral), has a VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL. Recent Successes: 1899, A.R.C.O. (2), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., and Organ Scholarship R.C.M.; 1900, A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O.; 1901, A.R.C.O. (2), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. Address, The Cathedral, St. David's, Pembrokeshire.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c.—Mr. JOSEPH SPAWFORTH, A.R.A.M. (formerly pupil of Professor Ebenezer Prout, Mr. Frederick Corder, and Mr. Davenport, at the Royal Academy of Music), gives LESSONS, Privately or by Post. Pupils prepared for the theoretical portions of all examinations. Apply, by letter, for terms, &c., to 67, Parliament Hill, N.W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

MR. STRETTON SWANN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS or prepares for EXAMINATIONS Personally or by Post.
New Hydraulic Organ, seven minutes from London Bridge, 181, Longley Road, Tooting, S.W.

MR. H. TAYLOR, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by correspondence. For terms, &c., apply, 13, Reservoir Rd., Birmingham.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES for EXAMS. Lessons follow closely lines of latest Exam. papers. Terms strictly reasonable. Many years' experience. 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for RÉPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M. LESSONS at 60, Berners Street, W., in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. Letters, 87, Herbert Rd., Plumstead.

TRAINING of TENORS.—Mr. E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N. The principles on which Mr. Davidson Palmer's Method is based are fully explained in his book, "THE RIGHTLY-PRODUCED VOICE," which contains information of the utmost importance to tenors. Price, bound in cloth, 2s. 6d., Post-free, from the Author.

VOICE PRODUCTION and SINGING.—Mr. EGBERT ROBERTS gives PRIVATE LESSONS, and Coaches Artists in Opera and Oratorio at their residence, or at 45, Pentonville Road, N.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

MISS NELLIE RIDDING (Violin and Viola), L.R.A.M., A.G.S.M., Medallist and Prizewinner, G.S.M. Lessons, Concerts, At Homes, Ensemble playing. Flat No. 2, 10, Colville Square, Bayswater, W.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir for an ALTO, either a Lay Clerk or Choral Scholar. Stipend offered, £80 a year (with certain allowances in case of Choral Scholar).
The Competition will be held some time in October next.
For further information, apply to the Dean, King's College, Cambridge.
Applications to be sent in by October 9.

ETON COLLEGE CHAPEL.—There will be a VACANCY for an ALTO LAY CLERK after Christmas. Salary, £100. Age not over thirty. Candidates must have strong voices and be good readers. Apply by letter, enclosing copies of two testimonials, one as to character, one as to musical qualifications, to the Precentor, Dr. C. H. Lloyd, Eton College, Windsor.

ALTO WANTED, for Holy Trinity Church, Knightsbridge, S.W. Good reader. £12. Apply, C. S. Knight.

TENOR WANTED, Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Surrey. Two services, Sunday. Rehearsal, Wednesday. Musical service and opportunity of solo work. £10 per annum. Apply, by letter, N. Brown, 33, Mount Ararat Road, Richmond, S.W.

BASS WANTED, All Saints', Devonshire Road, South Lambeth. Salary, £12. Address, Walter Attersoll, 15, Thurlby Road, W. Norwood.

BASS (not Baritone) REQUIRED, for All Saints', Margaret Street, W. A good reader indispensable Salary, £25. Apply, by letter, to W. S. Hoyte, 68, Boundary Road, N.W.

VOLUNTARY MEMBERS WANTED, for Choir of Church near Marble Arch. Cathedral Service. Address, V. V., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

SOPRANO, highly cultivated, will accept low terms this season for Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Répertoire, over eighty works. Address, Soprano, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

CONTRALTO (Med., R.A.M.) will give SERVICES at CONCERTS, &c., for expenses, in London and 30 miles radius. Address, Vox, Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827.) Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smith's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—ORGANISTS can PRACTISE on the Grand four-manual Organ by Willis (blown by hydraulic engines controlled from keyboard) in the Concert Hall of the Hampstead Conservatoire. The Hall is warmed by hot water. Specification of the organ, and terms of practice on application to the Secretary, Hampstead Conservatoire, Swiss Cottage, N.W.

N.B.—The Conservatoire is eight minutes by rail from Baker Street, Metropolitan Railway. Trains every ten minutes.

ORGANIST WANTED, for the British Episcopal Church at Oporto. Apply to the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. R. J. Flower, No. 479, Rua de Goudarem Foz, Oporto.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Stirling. Must be a churchman. Applications, accompanied by references and testimonials, to Mr. J. W. Campbell, Bank of Scotland, Stirling.

WANTED, for St. John the Baptist Church, San Remo, for six months from November 1, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Salary, £40. Apply to Chaplain, Fir Grove, Parkstone.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, A.R.C.O. (28), desires an APPOINTMENT. Six years' experience as Church Organist and Director of Music at a school. Good organ essential. Excellent testimonials. Communicant. Good recitalist. Apply, C. E. J., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

SMALL POST for ORGANIST (Lady) with stipend. In Town or Country. Apply, L. R., 10, South Cliff, Eastbourne.

ORGANIST'S DAUGHTER desires ENGAGEMENT at ORGAN, either permanently or as deputy, in North London district. M. G., 49, Bouverie Rd., Stoke Newington, N.

PIANIST (Lady) wishes to ACCOMPANY VIOLINIST or CELLOIST. E. D. S., 1, Dashwood Rd., Hornsey.

ACCOMPANIMENTS.—Professional Singer desires to recommend excellent Accompanist (Lady) for Practice and Concerts. Most reasonable terms. Dean, 134, Junction Rd., N.W.

BANDMASTER (Army retired) seeks ENGAGEMENT as CONDUCTOR (Volunteer or other Band). Highest testimonials. Apply, Rudall, Carte and Co., Berners Street, W.

INDIA.—TUNER and REPAIRER WANTED. Aged about 23. Apply, by letter, to S. Harraden & Co., 11, Rose Street, Newgate Street, London, E.C.

FIRST-CLASS REPAIRER WANTED, for high-class firm in Midlands. Must thoroughly understand all kinds of repairs to Pianos and Am. Organs. Permanency and good salary to a first-class man. Apply, G. W. & Co., Ltd., Messrs. Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, good TUNER, able to play Piano, and to act as ASSISTANT in Music Business. Permanency to suitable man. Music, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (out-door) desires RE-ENGAGEMENT in London. Aged 29. Good appearance. Composition, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER'S, or TUNER and SALESMAN'S BERTH REQUIRED. Advertiser has had four years' experience as manager, is a good tuner, and a successful salesman. Abstainer, married. Moderate salary. Apply, for references and photo, to E. W., 43, Chapel Ash, Wolverhampton.

WANTED, MANAGER-SALESMAN for a Piano and Music Warehouse in China. Must possess good musical tastes and abilities, with general business aptitude, and have first-class references. Salary on commission, with £20 a month guaranteed, and passage paid. Address, with full particulars, stating age, P. S. A., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

INDIA.—MUSIC SALESMAN WANTED. Aged about 23. Apply, by letter, to S. Harraden & Co., 11, Rose Street, Newgate Street, London, E.C.

WANTED, SITUATION, about Oct. 5.—Any capacity in Musical Instrument Warehouse. Good Salesman, Canvasser, Buyer, Book-keeper, Shorthand Writer. Useful knowledge of French and German. Can Repair Small Goods, and Teach Organ. Piano, Banjo, Guitar, and Mandoline. Used to Hire System. Age 47, Low wages. Address, T., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN for SALE (New). 2 manuals, 12 stops. Bourdons and Pedals. Organs tuned and repaired. R. Cope, Organ Builder, 74, Asylum Road, Peckham, S.E.

CHAMBER PIPE ORGAN. Two manuals and full-sized pedals (C.O.), 3 speaking stops on great, 2 on swell. Perfect practice organ. Very compact, good tone, and nice appearance. Price, complete, including Blennerhasset water-engine and all fittings, £80, or will sell without engine. Bargain. J. H. C. J., 14, Pavilion Buildings, Brighton.

MASON AND HAMLIN LISZT ORGAN. List, £120. 15 stops, octave coupler. Grand tone. Suit church. £35. 76, Bow Road, E.

ORGAN.—Fine-toned Modern TWO-MANUAL. Contains fourteen Stops and all the latest improvements. Handsome Oak case. Spotted metal pipes. Price £200. Warranted for ten years. Organist, 24, Endsleigh Gardens, Gordon Square, London, W.C.

ORGAN (Second-hand) WANTED. Suitable for Concert Hall. Price about £500. Address, with full particulars, Schubert, care of J. W. Vickers, 5, Nicholas Lane, E.C.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments, for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

ORGANS (Pipe), for SALE or HIRE. 2 manuals. Full compass of pedals. W. B., 9, Burdett Road. Also a Cottage Piano with pedals; full compass.

VARIOUS high-class ORGANS. Suit Church or Chapel. Two and three manuals. Constructed with all modern appliances. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester, and Preston.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE.—Three-manual (CC to G) and Pedals (CCC to F), 33 stops, £350; Two Manuals and Pedals, £175 and £145; One Manual and Pedal Bourdon (10 stops), £65; also Chamber Organs, 20 guineas and 15 guineas. Inspection invited. Specifications and estimates furnished on application. Eustace Ingram, Organ Builder, only address, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case: in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

FOR SALE.—Norman & Beard's TUBULAR PNEUMATIC PEDAL ATTACHMENT to Pianoforte. Best quality, in perfect condition, nearly new. Price 7 guineas. Apply to W. Gould, 31, Shadwell Road, Bishopston, Bristol.

FOR SALE.—ORGAN PEDALS to Piano, by Blumel. C.O. style, in perfect order. Cromford, Paxton Road, St. Albans.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

(Instituted 1872.)

MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.

President:
The Right Hon. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.

Director of Examinations:
JAMES HIGGS, Mus.D.

The HALF-TERM commences on Wednesday, November 6.
The tuition of the College will serve as a preparative for all Public Examinations in the Theory and Practice of Music, including the Examinations for University Degrees. Students can enter for a Course or for special subjects.

December 7 (Saturday) is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the next HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for the Licentiate and Associate Diplomas, and the Higher Certificates of the College in Practical and Theoretical Musical subjects, which commence on January 6, 1902.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS.

November 14 is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the next Musical Knowledge (Theoretical) Examination, which takes place on Saturday, December 14.

The forthcoming Local Examinations in Instrumental and Vocal Music take place from November, 1901, to July, 1902, at the various Centres throughout the United Kingdom, and include pianoforte, organ, and violin playing, and solo singing.

The new Preparatory Examination in pianoforte and violin playing will be included.

Classes Prospectus, and Examination Syllabuses, with List of Local Centres, on application.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

Score, 6s.; Parts, 12s. 6d.

ALEX. C. MACKENZIE

CORIOLANUS SUITE.

Written for the Coriolanus production at the Lyceum, and also performed with great success at the recent Verdi Memoriam Concert at the Queen's Hall. Performed on Sept. 2, at Harrogate, conducted by the Composer; also by Dr. F. H. Cowen's Orchestra; and at Boston, U.S.A., &c.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

OSCAR BERINGER

SCALE & ARPEGGIO MANUAL. 2s. net.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

A. J. RANDEGGER

WERTHER'S SHADOW.

Vocal Score, 5s. net.

Performed in Rome, Milan, Trieste. In Leipzig, first performance, Sept. 2, with good success. Composer called four times. Leipzig Signale says: "It is the work of a very talented young composer." Neueste Nachrichten says: "Possesses an elastic and productive invention, very often flowing with warm, full melodies, giving life and rhythm to the lyrics."

BOSWORTH EDITION.

SEVCIK VIOLIN METHOD.

KUBELIK. KOCIAN.

Another Sevcik pupil, Kocian, three years younger than Kubelik, has scored, if possible, an even greater success at his Examination Concert in Prag than Kubelik or any other pupil—Ondricek, de Sicard, Kubelik, Kocian. These continued successes speak sufficiently for this really great Method. Particulars from any Musicseller.

BOSWORTH AND CO., 5, PRINCES ST., OXFORD ST., W.
And at Leipzig, Paris, Vienna.

BROADWOODS' (Estd. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (Highest possible Award)
PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W.
Established 1865.
Principal: T. H. Yorke Trotter, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. Yorke Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

Just Published.

MINIATURE SCORES

OF

SYMPHONIES AND CHAMBER MUSIC

BY BRAHMS.

SYMPHONIES:

No. 1. SYMPHONY IN C MINOR, Op. 68.
No. 2. SYMPHONY IN D, Op. 73.
No. 3. SYMPHONY IN F, Op. 90.
No. 4. SYMPHONY IN E MINOR, Op. 98.
Price each net Five Shillings.

CHAMBER MUSIC:

		s.	d.
	String Sextets.
Op. 18.	First Sextet in B flat .. .. net	3	0
Op. 36.	Second Sextet in G .. .. net	3	0
	String Quintets.
Op. 88.	First Quintet in F .. .. net	3	0
Op. 111.	Second Quintet in G .. .. net	3	0
	String Quartets.
Op. 51.	No. 1. First Quartet in C minor .. .. .. net	2	6
"	No. 2. Second Quartet in A minor .. .. net	2	6
Op. 67.	Third Quartet in B flat .. .. net	2	6
	Piano Quartets.
Op. 25.	First Quartet in G minor .. .. net	3	0
Op. 26.	Second Quartet in A .. .. net	3	0
Op. 60.	Third Quartet in C minor .. .. net	3	0
	Piano Trios.
Op. 8.	First Trio in B .. .. net	2	6
Op. 40.	Second Trio in E flat (Horn) .. .. .. net	2	6
Op. 87.	Third Trio in C .. .. net	2	6
Op. 101.	Fourth Trio in C minor .. .. net	2	6
Op. 114.	Fifth Trio in A minor (Clarionet) .. .. .. net	2	6
Op. 115.	Clarionet Quintet in B minor .. .. .. net	3	0

London: Alfred Lengnick, 58, Berners Street, W.
Sold at published price net cash.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

OCTOBER 1, 1901.

ALFRED HOLLINS.

'It seems to me that you are a nation of split P's,' once remarked a Southerner in addressing an audience of Scots. This allusion to the sixteenth letter of the alphabet had reference to the various sections of Presbyterianism—the U. P.'s and the like—which have so largely characterised the religious life of Scotland in days that are past. It is beyond the scope of this article, and the neutrality of this journal in matters ecclesiastical, to touch upon these things; suffice it to say that one very remarkable outcome of the great religious upheaval in Scotland, known as the Disruption, in 1843, is the church now called United Free St. George's, Edinburgh. The edifice, with its uncanny campanile tower, is a striking feature among the many architectural attractions in the beautiful city of Auld Reekie. The church, which is seated for about 1,250 people, has a noble record of sound theology, good works and unstinted liberality. Last year, for instance, the total amount raised within its walls—and entirely on the voluntary principle, be it noted—was no less than £14,000, an exceptional amount, though the normal annual revenue is about £10,000. It is no wonder that United Free St. George's, Edinburgh, takes rank as one of the most prominent kirks north of the Tweed. For the first fifty-four years of its existence this church had no instrumental music in its services. It rejoiced in that time-honoured official in Scotland, the Precentor, the duties of which were ably discharged by the late Mr. Walter Strang and Mr. Walter Hately successively; the latter, who is a much-esteemed musician in Edinburgh, being still a worshipper in the congregation whose praises he led so well. The introduction of an organ—which the old Free-Kirkers looked upon as the devil in disguise—at United Free St. George's in the year 1897, necessitated the engagement of an organist. The choice, and that most happily, fell upon Mr. Alfred Hollins, a sightless musician, who forms the subject of this Biographical Sketch.

Yorkshire has produced distinguished organists not a few, Sir Walter Parratt and Dr. Peace to wit. The port of Hull was the birthplace of Alfred Hollins, where he drew his first breath—or, as he would say, filled his bellows—on September 11, 1865. He was practically born blind, but, as we shall see, this deprivation of the precious sense of sight has not clouded his sunny nature or darkened the earnest purpose of his life-work. His earliest musical recollection is standing at the pianoforte and picking out tunes with one finger. 'A dear aunt gave me my first lessons,' remarks Mr. Hollins. 'She taught me well, as far as she could, so I always feel that I owe her something.' At the age of six he went to live with his grandmother in York. If he left off practising to extemporise, his aged relative, although she encouraged him in his music, told him to 'stop that strumming.' A visit to Buxton, where Julian Adams conducted a small band, gave him his first taste of orchestral music. From his earliest years he had a wonderful power of naming any note or combination of notes that were sounded. He entered the Wilberforce Institution for the Blind at York in 1874 at the age of nine, and remained there for three years, his music master being Mr. William Barnby, eldest brother of the late Sir Joseph Barnby. He played at the school concerts on an old G organ with C pedals. Like most successful men he has been largely self-taught. He found out unaided the various qualities of the stops—that a dulciana on the great was softer than the oboe on the swell, with the result that the soloing of a melody became a possibility. His keenly observant nature was always on the alert in the service of self-help. How valuable it is, and happy is the man that seeketh after it unto wisdom!

THE NORWOOD PERIOD.

A great event in the boy's life came to pass in January, 1878, when, aged twelve, he entered the Royal Normal College for the Blind at Upper Norwood, of which Dr. F. J. Campbell is the Principal. The pianoforte was his principal study, under Fritz Hartvigson. 'He is a fine teacher,' says Mr. Hollins, 'and I learnt a lot from him. Very thorough in his methods, he was especially strong in the matter of touch. This he combated from the beginning, saying that a crisp touch could never be perfectly natural, it must be acquired.'

Young Hollins had only been at Norwood four months when Dr. Campbell said to him: 'I guess I'll take you up to the organ and see what Mr. Hopkins [professor of the organ at the College] can do for you.' This was a great surprise as well as delight to the boy, because, as a rule, no student went to 'E. J. H.' until he had been in the Institution some considerable time. 'You're a young shaver,' said the genial organist of the Temple Church to him; 'can you tell a pedal stop from a pump handle?' Those Hopkins organ lessons stand out as a bright period in our friend's studentship. 'Dr. Hopkins played a good deal to me,' he says. 'He used to bring down the full scores of overtures, &c., and point out the secrets of their orchestration, a course of study that proved to be of the greatest possible value to me in the matter of organ registration and giving colour to my playing.' His progress as an organist and pianist was very rapid. He played Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat under Mr. Manns at the Crystal Palace. The glass house at Sydenham was a second musical home to the clever boy. 'Mr. Manns was very good to me,' he recalls, 'and Mr. Eyre was equally kind in playing the organ while I sat and listened, and, in so listening, I was constantly picking-up.'

A CORDER METAMORPHOSIS.

An incident, not without its humorous side, of those Norwood days may find a place here, told in Mr. Hollins's own words:—

'My first teacher at Norwood was one of the senior lady pupils, a Miss Campbell, a truly delightful soul, a beautiful singer and an admirable musician. I suppose I must have been like many impetuous youths, I thought there was nothing like the extreme modern music. Miss Campbell was very anxious to bring me up in the true faith, and to instil into me a love for the old school of music. I used to come home from the Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts wild with delight whenever we had had anything ultra modern. At last I hit upon a novel plan for impressing the names of the new composers on my friend and teacher. I purchased two dozen small dolls, and tied round the neck of each the name, written in Braille characters, of one of the most modern musicians I could recall. These four and twenty puppets I sent to Miss Campbell, with a note, saying that these were 'the boys'! Amongst 'the boys' was Frederick Corder. Soon after, something of his was played at the Palace. After I got home and had sat down to tea I found on my plate a neat little parcel. Upon opening it I discovered a pill-box, which contained one of my poor little dolls cut up into tiny pieces, and with the dissected 'boy' the following lines:—

Behold him in his resting place!
No doubt you wish it broader,
Believe me, Sir, its good enough
For such a wretch as Corder!

'In reply to this, I got a jam tart into which I put the pieces of the luckless Corder and sent it to Miss Campbell. She at once discovered something hard in the pastry, and soon found out that the unpalatable portion was Corder. A few days later I received from her one of those penny ducks on a stand, one of the species which, when it is nipped, it squeaks. When I shook it I heard a rattling of the bird's internals which explained the accompanying lyric:—

The soul of F. Corder
Somewhat out of order,
First entered a tartlet, it did, on my word!
By jam aggravated,
It once more migrated,
And lodged in this ill-fated, innocent bird.

As I couldn't beat that, I never retaliated. To this day I treasure that innocent bird with the pieces of Corder inside him. I have since got to know Mr. Corder, and have learnt to appreciate him more than ever as my composition master and friend.'

In 1882, at the age of sixteen, Mr. Hollins had the honour of playing to Queen Victoria at Windsor Castle. He has also performed before the King and Queen of the Belgians at Brussels, and at Berlin he gave a recital before the late Empress Frederick, when he played three great pianoforte concertos by Beethoven, Schumann, and Liszt, 'a task,' recorded a Berlin newspaper, 'which we have heard in Germany only from our greatest pianists, and in which he achieved a most complete triumph.'

FIRST ORGAN APPOINTMENT.

The first organ appointment held by the subject of this sketch was that of St. John's Church, Redhill, from October, 1884 (aged nineteen), till February, 1888. His patience and industry were put to a very severe test when he had to learn the whole of the Psalms, and the pointing of the Cathedral Psalter which had been written out in the Braille system.

A PUPIL OF HANS VON BÜLOW.

In furtherance of his equipment as a pianist, Mr. Hollins studied for a time with Hans von Bülow in Berlin. He recalls Bülow's wonderful memory and caustic remarks. He was, however, exceedingly kind to Hollins, who became an immense favourite with him. The photograph which he gave his blind pupil is endorsed with these words: 'To Mr. Alfred Hollins, one of those rare true musicians among pianoforte virtuosi.' In addition to his valuable playing hints, the redoubtable Hans gave Hollins the benefit of his keen observation—e.g., a comparison of the passages in Beethoven's pianoforte sonata Op. 101 with those in the master's earlier production, Op. 2, No. 2. Such teaching, as stimulating an interest in music beyond its mere notational and technical requirements, is much to be commended and put into practice in these days of over examination and the tyranny of technique.

'ALFRED THE GREAT.'

The Inventions Exhibition (Kensington) of 1885—in which music played so important a part, especially in its delightful Loan Exhibition—brought Alfred Hollins prominently before the public as an organist of high attainment. Although he has played at several Exhibitions, he has never made an exhibition of himself, but has throughout maintained a very high standard of execution, and moreover, to his credit be it said, he has never undignified the organ by mere trickiness of effects. No better designation has been bestowed upon him than that spontaneously uttered by the late W. T. Best—one not in the habit of throwing compliments about—who, on introducing himself at the close of a recital given by Hollins at Liverpool, called him 'Alfred the Great.' In 1886, Dr. Campbell took a quartet of performers from the College to America. One of them was Alfred Hollins, whose masterly attainments made a deep impression in New York, Boston, and other cities in the States. And here it may be remarked that Dr. Campbell was very desirous that the gifted student in his college should become a pianoforte virtuoso, but although his pianistical powers are of a very high order, it is the organ which furnishes the best outlet for his genius.

IMPORTANT APPEARANCES.

A further period of study in Germany took him to Frankfort, in 1887, where he became a pupil at the Raff Conservatorium for further study under von Bülow; at the same time he had lessons from Max Schwarz. He paid £5 per month in fees, and the classes contained thirty or forty students. Two important appearances as a pianist must not be overlooked. On April 10, 1886, he played at a Popular Concert at St. James's Hall, on which occasion Madame Schumann interpreted her husband's 'Carnaval,' and on May 31, 1888, he played Beethoven's E flat pianoforte concerto at the Philharmonic Concert. The Musical Times, in recording this achievement, said:—

> We have further to note that Mr. Alfred Hollins, the blind pianist, gave a really remarkable performance of Beethoven's Fifth Concerto. Having regard to the physical disadvantage under which he labours, Mr. Hollins played with astonishing correctness and freedom. It was clear, moreover, that he is an artist having qualities higher than mechanical skill.

In the same year (1888) he paid a second visit to America and gave numerous organ recitals with gratifying success. For a period of nine years he was a professor of the pianoforte and organ at the Royal Normal College for the Blind.

A WORTHY TRIBUTE.

He became the first organist of the People's Palace (in October, 1888), and held the post for fourteen months. In the same year he accepted the organistship of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Upper Norwood. Here he spent nine very happy years. That no inconvenience resulted from the fact that the office of chief musician was held by one who was blind, is proved by the following testimony of the minister of that church, the Rev. J. G. Train, who wrote: 'Mr. Hollins's facility in acquiring new music is so remarkable that he could put to the blush many sighted players. Of the accuracy and taste of his playing, I need say nothing. He has never to my knowledge made any mistake with regard to the music; and as for following intelligently and with due expression the words of psalms and hymns, I never met with a sighted organist characterised by so much quickness and discernment. In fact, I have never once found any disadvantage from Mr. Hollins's want of sight.' The Session of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, upon his retirement from the organistship, thus recorded their appreciation of his services under the date of July 8, 1897:—

> The Session, in accepting the resignation of Mr. Hollins of the post of organist, desire to place on record their high regard for him as a Christian gentleman and their appreciation of his eminent abilities as an organist; and to testify to his unfailing courtesy and to the happy relationship which has been maintained with him throughout the whole period during which he has held that office.

NORTH OF THE TWEED.

As has been already stated the good people of Edinburgh prevailed upon Mr. Hollins to cross the Tweed in 1897. He has so far become a Scotsman as to eat porridge for breakfast, but he draws the line at the kilt. The dwellers in the land o' cakes have been exceedingly kind to this Yorkshire-born organist, not only because he loves the pipes, e'en though they be in the kist o' whustles, but for his personal worth. The organ in United Free St. George's Church, Edinburgh, is a two-manual instrument by Messrs. Lewis and Co., Ltd., of twenty-three sounding stops, hardly adequate for a church so capacious and influential. As shown in our illustration of the church (p. 653), the instrument, which occupies the side galleries, is divided, and the console is placed in front of the pulpit. One of its most interesting features is the combination system of 'key touches'—nine small keys placed between the sharps of each manual, and arranged so as to be easily manipulated by either hand. These 'key-touches' take the place of composition pedals and buttons between the key slips, and they have the advantage of furnishing an appropriate pedal bass to the manual combinations. It may not be without interest to give the programme of the inaugural recital, given by Mr. Hollins on October 11, 1897, with his admirable annotations to the various pieces:—

ALFRED HOLLINS. AGED 11.

1. Grand Fugue in G Minor .. .. .. Bach.

This, perhaps of all Bach's organ Fugues, is the greatest favourite with amateurs, which may be owing to the tunefulness of its subject, and the ease with which it can be traced through the course of the Fugue. It is often called the Hamburg Fugue, as it is believed Bach wrote it for his competition for the organist's appointment at a Church in that city.

2. Larghetto .. .. S. S. Wesley.

The Larghetto belongs to a set of three pieces, which Dr. Wesley wrote for a chamber organ, and dedicated to Lady Acland. The piece is divided into three sections: first, a plaintive melody in two parts, each of which is repeated; second, a variation on the first theme, which consists of a running figure in the right hand on the 8ft. flute, with chords on the swell for the left hand. Each part of the variation, like the theme, is repeated. The third section is really a lengthened coda, in which portions of the first theme appear, the whole ending pianissimo.

3. Prelude to Parsifal (by desire) .. Wagner.

Much has been written concerning Wagner's great sacred music-drama 'Parsifal.' It need only be said here that the Vorspiel includes the principal 'Motifs' which appear in the work, such as that used when the Grail is mentioned, and the 'Dresden Amen' which Mendelssohn employs so effectively in his Reformation Symphony.

4. (a) Communion .. .. Grison.
(b) Finale .. .. Lemmens.

(a) M. Grison, the talented organist of Rheims, has written several charming compositions for the organ, chiefly of a light character. The Communion (Op. 38) is in the style of Batiste's softer movements. It consists mainly of a melody for the voix celeste, accompanied by arpeggio passages for the flute.

(b) The Finale forms a fine and showy termination to Lemmen's 'Ecole D'Orgue.' It is in three parts, the first and third being similar in style, crisp and fiery, while the middle section (B flat) is entitled 'Hymne,' and is somewhat like a chorale, requiring the use of the softer stops.

5. Overture in C .. .. Hollins.

This is in strict overture form, having a slow movement, followed by an Allegro with the usual first and second subjects.

6. Improvisation.

7. (a) Allegretto, 'The Answer'} Wolstenholme.
(b) Minuet and Trio .. }

(a) 'The Answer' is companion to a piece entitled 'The Question.' It is a charming melody in B flat, with a trio, a little more agitated, in G minor. The whole ends quietly, suggesting perfect contentment and repose.

(b) This might be well styled Symphonic Minuet, for although it has the dignity of the Minuets of the old masters, it is much more extended, and resembles those of our modern Symphonies. The Trio is very quaint and pleasing, owing to its peculiar and original rhythm. It consists of two parts of sixteen bars each in length; but instead of the first part being grouped in sections of eight bars, it is divided into two phrases of five bars, one of four and one of two. The second part consists of a phrase of twelve bars, leading in a delightful way to the last four bars of the first part by way of close. A succession of short diatonic chords forms the coda, after the usual repetition of the Minuet.

8. Song without Words, No. 18 .. .. Mendelssohn.

This is perhaps the best known and the greatest favourite of Mendelssohn's beautiful Songs without Words. It is literally a duet between the tenor and soprano parts of the instrument. On the present occasion, the voice parts will be given respectively to the oboe and clarionet.

9. Triumphal March 'From Crag to Sea' .. Liszt.

A thoroughly good and stirring March, without any of the commonplace character which manifests itself in so many of our Marches of the present day. We cannot account for the name which Liszt has given to this March, there being nothing suggestive of the sea or rugged rock about it. The piece is simple in construction, in E flat, with a trio in B. The theme of the trio is used to form the coda of the piece, which is most effective.

A. H.

The Parsifal Prelude, and By Desire in a Scotch Kirk! Shades of John Knox and Dr. Begg!

A SERVICE AT UNITED FREE ST. GEORGE'S.

A Sunday morning in June. The place, Edinburgh. Many dwellers in Auld Reekie are making their way up the steps of United Free St. George's Church to the 'forenoon diet of worship.' A few minutes before the hour of eleven, Mr. Hollins begins to play on the organ the Adagio cantabile in D of his old master and friend, Dr. Hopkins. The choir—consisting of about thirty voices, of whom four are remunerated for their services—are taking their places on chairs arranged round the organ console, as shown in the photograph. By the time the minister, the Rev. Hugh Black (colleague of the Rev. Dr. Whyte), appears, the spacious sanctuary is filled with a congregation of which any minister and organist might be proud. Psalm 46—in the metrical version, so dear to the hearts of Scotch folk, although made by an Englishman!—is sung to the old tune 'Stroudwater,' and at a speed that may be described as 'measured beat and slow.' The effect of the congregational song is distinctly impressive in its solemnity and depth of feeling. The next 'exercise in praise' is a 'children's hymn'—a setting by Sir John Stainer of the words 'Whither, pilgrims, are you going?' in which the question is assigned to the tenors and basses (in unison) and the answer is sung by all the voices, even by the children of older growth. Some of the worshippers who have 'gone before' would have rubbed their eyes (or their ears) if they could have heard Smart's Te Deum in F sung in this church—a stronghold of psalm-singing; but the rendering of this fine canticle has no effect upon the foundations of the building, and probably not upon the fundamentals of the Westminster Confession! It is sung, let us add, at a dignified pace, with a decided gain to its devotional utterance. The remaining hymns are 'For all the saints, who from their labours rest' (to Barnby's tune) and 'Lead us, Heavenly Father, lead us' to the familiar and beautiful setting by Hopkins. While the first offertory (there are two collections!) is being 'taken up,' Mr. Hollins plays his own Intermezzo in D flat, and the concluding voluntary is Handel's 'Fix'd in His everlasting seat,' from 'Samson.' To criticise acts of divine worship is unseemly; but this may be said—in his organ accompaniments Mr. Hollins proves that he has discovered the secret springs of an artistic aid to devotion that is heartfelt and inspiring to those whose worship-song he so ably and sympathetically leads. Moreover, his training of the choir shows that he has high ideals in his church work.

COMPOSITIONS.

Before treating of the personality of Mr. Hollins, a list of his compositions—few, though good—may here find a place :—

Organ: Two Concert Overtures (in C major and C minor). Andante in D. Grand Chœur in G minor. Two Preludes. Twelve Voluntaries. Intermezzo in D flat. Nocturne in B flat. Introductory Voluntary in G, and one in A. Communion. Air with Variations and Final Fugue (MS.). Festal March (MS.).

Pianoforte: Rêverie d'amour. Minuet. Scherzo. Berceuse. (All the foregoing are in manuscript.) Set of Six Pieces, written in his juvenile days.

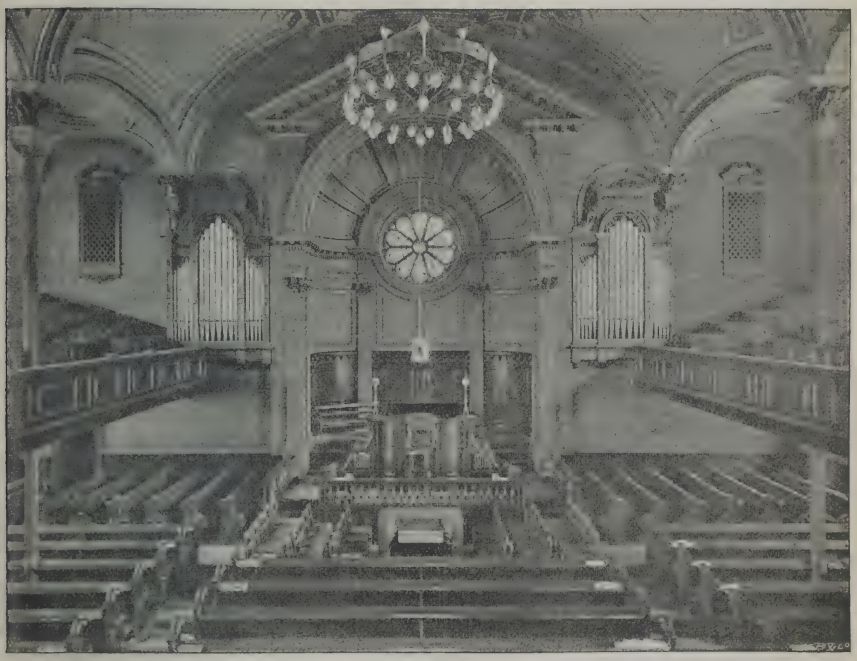
Romance for Violin and Pianoforte (MS.).

Vocal Music: Two anthems, some carols and hymn-tunes. A trio for female voices, 'Dartside' (Charles Kingsley's words). Songs: A life lesson, After Culloden, My Mary, The silver chord, and eight that are unpublished.

Mr. Hollins is now engaged upon a Christmas anthem—a setting of the words, 'Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous'—which he is composing specially for The Musical Times.

SELF-DEPENDENCE.

'A marvellous man' is the designation invariably, and at the same time very naturally, bestowed upon Alfred Hollins. In one's intercourse with him it is difficult to realise that he



UNITED FREE ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH, EDINBURGH.
(From a Photograph taken by the Church Officer, Mr. William B. Mitchell.)

is deprived of the sense of vision. Self-dependence is stamped upon every movement of his body and every utterance from his lips. He will take you along the narrow passage boards inside an organ, telling you 'to mind the step,' to 'be careful at that awkward corner,' and such like, as if you, and not he, were the sightless person. And then he will point out the arrangement and the excellencies of the pipes—'just look how well those mouths are cut up,' he will say, and so on. His facility in locating the position of the stops and mastering the mechanical accessories of a strange organ are no less wonderful and would put to the blush many a sighted organist. Seated two minutes at an unfamiliar organ and he is by no means 'ill at ease.' Moreover, his fingers have nothing of the 'idly' about them as they come in contact with the keys. For him to play a wrong note would seem to be an impossibility; however high he may lift his hands, he always comes down on the right keys and with the utmost confidence. His manipulation of the stops is just as extraordinary and as unfailing in certainty. One could understand that a sightless player might very well draw a mixture stop instead of a dulciana, but this would never be done by Alfred Hollins.

THE BRAILLE SYSTEM.

His memory is phenomenal. He has, of course, to memorise everything, words and music. An instance of this dual attainment is furnished in that he played the whole of Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, including the symphony, at a performance of the work given by the Musical Association of his church in Edinburgh. (It should be added that the Association annually performs a work under Mr. Hollins's direction.) How does he commit his music to memory? is a question that more than one reader of these lines may ask. He has two methods—(1) his wife reads the piece to him, note by note. He plays phrase by phrase at her dictation, and then repeats it, correcting any mistakes that have been made. This is his usual and most expeditious plan. The other (2) is the Braille system of raised type used by the blind. In employing this method he reads the notes with his finger tips from the raised type, of which he has a very large collection of compositions—e.g., Beethoven's pianoforte sonatas, &c. Mr. Hollins has very kindly supplied, expressly for this article, a specimen of the Braille type, which we give on the opposite page. It must, of course, be understood that the printed dots represent raised type. In sending the four bars of music—a Communion for the organ, which he has just composed—and its translation, he says: 'We dictate the Braille like this: 'M.D. (we always use the French words for right and left hand, as Braille type was invented by a Frenchman). 4th octave, F minim, G crotchet, in accord with, 4th octave D dotted minim tied, &c. In writing the key signature, we just put the number of sharps or flats, but not what they are, so I think we have the advantage in this over our sighted brethren, for we are bound to know what the sharps and flats are in a key, as the music, or rather the key signature, does not indicate them for us. If the parts move together, as in a hymn-tune, we do not use the 'in accord with' sign, but write the notes in intervals, like this: 'A with its third,' which means A in the treble with its third below; but in the bass we always write the intervals upwards. Expression marks are put next to the notes, as we cannot write anything above or below them (the notes). I do not like these complicated editions in Braille, because the expression marks so often interrupt the flow of the passage, and make the phrases so much harder to grasp.'

EXTEMPORIZATION.

Of his marvellous extemporization gifts it is rather difficult to speak without using expressions that might seem extravagant to those who have not heard him in this almost lost art. It is not wide of the truth to say that in this respect he is certainly facile princeps among English organists of the present day. An Alfred Hollins recital is always a pleasurable feast of music, and the extemporization number in his programme forms a veritable bonne bouche. Here is an organ recital incident which he relates in his modest way. 'A short time before we came to Edinburgh,' he says, 'I was waiting one night with a party of friends outside one of the theatres at —— until the doors were opened. A little way behind me in the crowd I overheard two men (Londoners, judging by their accent) conversing in something like the following words: 'Are you goin' to the 'all to-morrow?' 'Don't know, who's playin'.' So and so was mentioned. 'Well yer know, I like to 'ear that blind chap play. Halfred 'Ollins, 'e fair makes that orgin speak.' I am pretty certain the gentleman didn't know that I was near him, but I was not a little amused.'

PERSONALITY.

The possessor of a fine artistic temperament and a highly gifted musical organization, the personality of Alfred Hollins is rich in the sympathetic, the emotional, and the humorous elements. There are depths in his nature which spring up in his warmheartedness, his modesty, and his appreciation of the good and true in everything. One who knows him well writes:—'One characteristic of him is the keen and intelligent hearing which he gives to all the sermons in our church, and a very excellent "sermon taster" he is. But this is only one of many evidences of his reverent and saintly character.'

HUMOROUS GENIALITY.

And then he is so full of fun. There could not be a more genial companion. The brightness of his nature is chronic. To anyone who is the least bit down in the dumps it would act as a tonic. All sorts of jokes, stories, and such-like 'pills to purge melancholy' he unstintingly gives forth. His letters—all beautifully written and the envelopes addressed by himself with the aid of his Remington type-writer—reflect his sunny disposition. Here are one or two extracts:—

We were sorry we did not see you at the Glasgow Exhibition that Saturday. I would have liked to pause, and give your paws one more shake before you left the land o' cakes, but alas! it was not pawsible.

I'm brawly, and I'll thank ye for speeerin'. You will see by the above that I'm not Scotch enough yet to know the spelling thereof. . . . I'm glad to say that I'm not yet kilt with hard work, but I manage to get enough to do to pay the rent and buy oatmeal for porridge, though we don't always take 'them.'

I'm sending you a dart from my brain in the shape of a part-song for female voices called 'Dartside' (Kingsley's words). . . . Perhaps it will dart into the Musical Times, when I shall no doubt receive the fiery darts of the wicked critics. Yours to fifteenth, Alfred Hollins.

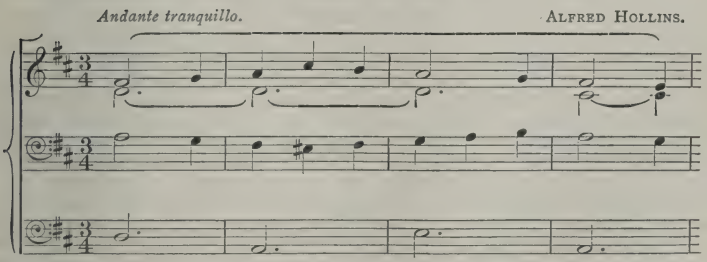
COMMUNION.

Andante tranquillo. Alfred Hollins.



TITLE AND FOUR BARS IN BRAILLE TYPE OF MR. HOLLINS'S LATEST ORGAN COMPOSITION.

No biographical sketch of Alfred Hollins would be complete without honourable mention of his invaluable and devoted helpmeet. Mrs. Hollins (formerly a 'reader' at the Royal Normal College at Norwood) may well form the coda to this article, and in no more fitting words than those of her gifted husband, who calls her his 'better nine-eighths'!

POSTSCRIPT.

The following tributary 'footnote' to the foregoing sketch has been kindly supplied by the Rev. Alexander Whyte, D.D., Senior Minister of United Free St. George's Church, Edinburgh, who writes:—

I have read the above excellent article in proof, and can subscribe to all it says so well about my friend. We had the best of Precentors in Mr. Strang, and then in Mr. Hately; but Mr. Hollins's unique genius, combined with his fine instrument, has made our public worship a new thing to us, and a continual delight. My colleague is from home, else he would more than subscribe to the above article, and to this footnote.—Alexander Whyte.

CHARLES DIBDIN ON TOUR.

'Five minutes before I sat down to this table where I am now writing, being at Beverly, in Yorkshire, I dispatched to the printer at Hull, a manuscript of the proposal for publishing my Musical Tour.' So wrote Charles Dibdin in an address to the public, dated October 24, 1787. The book was issued in 1788, at Sheffield, under the title: 'The Musical Tour of Mr. Dibdin, in which, previous to his Embarkation for India, he finished his Career as a public Character'; and it is dedicated to the Prince of Wales, in the adulatory manner of the day: 'This Work, with Pride of Heart, humble Deference and grateful Susceptibility, is inscribed to the Prince of Wales by his Royal Highness's most fervently devoted and obedient servant, Charles Dibdin.' The inscription is headed by an engraving of the Prince's crest and motto; the coronet and feathers being depicted as leaning to one side in a very tipsy manner. This was, no doubt, due to a defect of the engraver, but is curiously characteristic of the book which the plate adorns. To begin with, and pace the title page, Dibdin did not go to India, nor with the 'Tour' did he finish his public career. Moreover, the work itself is the most badly assorted jumble of miscellaneous contents that ever reader's eye looked upon. It meets half the conditions of chaos by being without form. On the other hand, it is by no means void, for one can see a great deal of the author in it, and obtain from its pages a clear notion as to the light in which provincial 'circles' regarded both the musician and his art. This makes the stately quarto worthy of notice. It is not a rare book, though, as regards the market, it may be termed scarce, and, perhaps, I may safely assume that few readers of the present day know anything at all about it. My own copy carries with it a measure of personal interest, because inscribed, in Dibdin's autograph: 'For the Rev. H. C. Brice after my Decease.' Mr. Brice, whose name figures in the 'Tour,' was a Bristolian. From his hands the volume passed into those of T. D. Brice, of Clifton Wood; and another Brice—William of that ilk—notes, inside the cover, that the edition is not mentioned by Lowndes. If any one asks why Dibdin kept the copy from Mr. Brice till after he himself had passed away, it may be suggested as a possible reason that the author had the grace to feel ashamed of what he had written about Bristol and Bristol men. The second Brice noted his words, and resented them by inscribing a triple 'Woe' on the margin of a passage in which it is said that the Bristolians rigidly observed Passion Week as a set-off against the excesses they intended to commit after Easter; putting also a black mark against an assertion that the constant maxim of a Bristol man is to take care that nobody should get anything by him.

Why did Dibdin speak so harshly of the Western city? The answer is that it was a way he had. A more quarrelsome, cross-grained man could hardly have been found in England. He made London impossible for him, and, when most of his friends gave him the cold shoulder, he determined upon putting himself under the suns of India; took ship accordingly; promptly quarrelled with the captain; disembarked in Torbay with his belongings, and returned to town. Extreme irascibility is a serious defect, especially in a public man, and of it, in Dibdin's case, the 'Tour' supplies abundant evidence. He enters upon his campaign at Bath, and gives his entertainment to an audience of thirty-eight! That sufficed for a shower of Dibdinian compliments. He said of his auditory, 'Heaven defend me from such a set of insipid, vague, unmeaning countenances!' At the second performance there were sixteen persons, and the performer wrote of Bath taste: 'It is a bad imitation of that in town—they contented themselves with bagpipes till the famous (Handel) commemoration, and then they must squeak, belch, and snort out oratorios.' He then sums up the city of Bladud: 'Bath is the fittest place in the world for art to banquet on credulity; for extravagance and folly to go unmasked at noonday; for reason and wisdom to shun, and, to speak in the language of the poet, for rakes and idiots 'to talk of beauty that they never saw, and fancy raptures that they never felt.''

Going on to Bristol, Dibdin found the citizens preoccupied about a visit from the Duke of Portland, with its attendant banquet and so on. Nothing could be done there, and Dibdin describes Bristol as 'buried in the muck and grossness of sensual enjoyments, till the wearied appetite is sunk in gorged satiety, without capacity to know distinction.' Gloucester was also 'drawn blank,' and, at Cheltenham, our wandering minstrel discovered Society to be just then represented 'only by a sick lord, an old maid, and a monkey.' At Worcester, Dibdin found the inhabitants 'very tardy,' some one having stated that he was not the real Simon Pure. But they eventually came up well, and were rewarded in the 'Tour' by hearing their city described as a 'pretty and very sprightly town.' Later on, Dibdin tried Worcester a second time, and was 'shabbily treated.' Birmingham disappointed our traveller. He played twice to the 'fuliginous sons of Vulcan,' but the races were on, and the people too much taken up with hobnails and horsemanship to notice a mere actor-singer.

Dibdin paid back the hardware people after his manner: 'The country houses of the Birminghamites are embellished to as little purpose as a chimney-sweep washes his face, and as awkwardly as a guinea-pig imitates a squirrel. As to their manners, I am sure they are not good ones. A tenacious man must infallibly, in Birmingham, be affronted ten times a day, for even if you go to buy anything, it is fifty to one if you receive a civil answer, and this rudeness extends to the most opulent among them. A man, who is said to possess £200,000, used me with a style of incivility that would have disgraced a porter in Thames Street.' In like manner does Dibdin hit out at a number of places which did not receive him to his satisfaction. Nottingham is one of them, our tourist declaring that the ancient name of the town was Snottingham, and intimating that he recognised in it a certain accord with the fitness of things. Enough now of examples under the head of temper.

With regard to the light thrown by the 'Tour' upon musical conditions in 1787, it clearly appears that Dibdin had to seek his opportunities, hat in hand, wherever he went, and not alone in the University towns. At Oxford, the Vice-Chancellor, though he refused to sanction the entertainment, was polite enough to give reasons, the force of which even the applicant admitted. But at Cambridge the grave and reverend wielder of power was downright insulting. The dialogue of Dibdin and Vice-Chancellor Ellison had better, perhaps, be put in dramatic form, to show its full force:—

D.—Sir, I have the honour to introduce myself to you. My name is Dibdin. I come to Cambridge with the view of offering the University a little musical entertainment which has given very great satisfaction, and in particular at Oxford, where, with the Vice-Chancellor's permission,* I had the honour of performing with much reputation.

E.—Ha! you had the Vice-Chancellor's permission there, had you? How do I know that?

D.—I assure you, Sir, upon my honour I had; however, as I am a perfect stranger, you are certainly not to oblige me upon my bare assertion, therefore (producing letters) please to look at these letters.

E.—Ah, well, this letter gives you leave, to be sure, but it does not say that your entertainment is such a one as ought to be delivered at a University.

D.—It is true, Sir, Dr. Chapman never saw the entertainment in question, but he was kind enough to suppose I would not commit such an outrage upon propriety, or so far offend against the etiquette of the University, of which he is such an ornament, as to offer them anything unworthy, and to convince me he was of this opinion, Mrs. Chapman, and several ladies with her, attended the performance; nay, Sir, to show you beyond contradiction that the amusement had the good opinion of the University in general, here is a paragraph in the Oxford paper (producing it) announcing that at the particular request of many members the Vice-Chancellor extended his permission, in consequence of the satisfaction I had given.

E.—Oh, the paragraph in the paper is nothing at all; a man put a paragraph in the Cambridge paper the other day against me, and it was all a lie.

D.—Sir, Mr. Jackson, who prints the Oxford paper, is a man of probity and fortune, and could not be induced, for any consideration, to use the Vice-Chancellor's name to grace a falsity.

E.—Upon my word you speak very well; one may easily see, by your conversation, you have merit.

D.—I am obliged to you for your good opinion, Sir.

E.—But, you see, the morals of the young men are all in my care, and, as Dr. Chapman never saw the entertainment, he may yet be imposed upon. I have seen your bill, and I own it seems to hold out something immoral. Besides, if you are a man of this reputation, what can induce you to come strolling about the country?

D.—Sir, I am going to India, and I wish, before my departure, to say 'good-bye' to a generous public, who have afforded me a long and liberal patronage.

E.—Do you know anybody at Cambridge?

D.—No, Sir.

E.—Then it is plain the people here do not make any part of that public to whom you are so much obliged; consequently, they have no right to be thanked. Thus, you see, as you are rich enough to come with no other motive than mere gratitude, why pay it where it is not due?

D. (warmly).—Good God, Sir, am I obliged to be personally acquainted with all those who wish me well as a public man?

E.—Well, Sir, I don't know what to say to it. It has always been my rule to give no person permission who is not recommended

* This refers to a second and successful attempt upon the senior University.

by somebody belonging to the University. You say you know nobody.

D.—I brought with me a letter for Dr. Randall, Sir.

E.—Oh! Dr. Randall won't do.

D.—What kind of a person must it be, Sir?

E.—Why, for instance, a fellow-commoner of one of the colleges.

D.—I have in my pocket a letter to a gentleman so described; it is unsealed, please to read it, Sir. He is, unfortunately, not at Cambridge, but you will readily believe that, on the strength of his friend's recommendation, he would otherwise have waited on you with pleasure.

E.—It does not signify, Sir; the gentleman is not here to speak for himself. I cannot credit mere appearances.

D.—Sir, had I known there would have been so many difficulties thrown in the way of a request which it would have done you no dishonour or discredit to grant, I would not have given myself a moment's trouble about it.

E.—Oh, Sir, if you begin to talk of difficulties, I have done.

D.—So would I, Sir, did I not feel myself a little hurt at being deprived, by your suspicions, of an opportunity of giving Cambridge an amusement that has been so followed at Oxford.

E.—My suspicions, Sir!

D.—Yes, Sir; for you must suppose me a most impudent imposter, after everything that has happened.

E.—Well, but surely—why, you are not the Mr. Dibdin who composed the 'Padlock' and such a number of musical works?

D.—I am, Sir, and I am sorry that you could not prevail on yourself to believe it sooner.

E.—Why, really, this alters the case.

D.—In short, Sir, as this conversation has gone so far, I am determined you shall be convinced. The Duke of Grafton, as I take it, is Chancellor of Cambridge, and you are only Vice-Chancellor, and I am sure I know a channel through which I can get you his Grace's recommendation of me.

E.—Why now, upon my word, this is a strange mistake. Pray sit down.

D.—I beg to be excused, Sir.

E.—I am sorry a constant rule which I prescribe myself in these cases should occasion such a misunderstanding. You may perform, Sir, on Monday.

D.—Good morning, Sir.

[D. moves towards the door, followed by E., with apologies. Exit D.

There is a great deal of human nature in the foregoing scene, which had a sequel. On reaching his hotel, Dibdin addressed a letter to Dr. Elliston, summing up his case, and concluding thus:—'Lest, however, you should think this letter, as well as the rest, an imposition, I hasten to the purpose for which it was written, and inform you that I take the liberty to decline the permission you have thought proper so very liberally to grant.' Dibdin thus fairly scored off the dignitary, and left Cambridge for Huntingdon with a cheerful mind.

At Nottingham, Dibdin was introduced to the Mayor in the shop of 'little Burbage,' his printer. On learning the entertainer's business, the worshipful gentleman exclaimed, 'Now, you actor man, what would you hay? I hope you don't coom with ony drooms and troompets?' On this Burbage broke out, 'What, Sir, drums and trumpets! Good God, Mr. Mayor! Sir! Why, Sir! drums and trumpets! Mr. Dibdin with drums and trumpets? Lord have mercy! Mr. Mayor! Well, well, well, well!' The Mayor again; 'I don't know about these things, but I don't want a hooboob in the town. Will you answer that it wawn't corrupt the morals of the 'prentices and work-folk?' Eventually his Worship consented, but not till he had received specific assurance as to the absence of 'drooms and troompets.'

It is unnecessary to multiply examples of the foregoing kind. Everywhere Dibdin had to present himself, hat in hand, to municipal, or magisterial, or social luminaries, begging for leave to carry on his work, or for support in doing it.

He was sometimes graciously received; more often treated with indifference, or snubbed. Anything was good enough for an 'actor-man.' At Bath, an Irish gentleman, boasting that he could swell the number of Dibdin's supporters, induced him to set music to certain words, walked off with the MS. and did nothing. In the same city, and with a like promise of support, two ladies, partisans of the opposition 'Rooms,' persuaded him to postpone his second performance until they had secured a good attendance. The audience on that occasion numbered sixteen, and the ladies were not among them.

At Ipswich, eight 'gentlemen,' on the occasion of a ball, sought to obtain gratis amusement out of the poor stroller, and invited him to sup with them at the hotel which was to be the scene of the dance. Dibdin was sharp enough to detect the move, and went to the feast in his boots, or, as we should now say, in morning dress, pleading that, as only men were to be present, fastidious attire was needless. Of course, he could not entertain the ball-room company in boots, and, after the meal, went chuckling home. It must be admitted that Dibdin generally gave as good as he was obliged to take, and the weapon of strong language never failed him; indeed a collection of the epithets he bestowed on unfavourable towns would be a vituperative curiosity. Through much of the 'Tour' he is berating somebody, or something. The Royal Society of Musicians; Handel; the composers of his own time; Garrick; Harris, the manager; and even Grimaldi, the clown, who, like Mr. Gilbert's spring flowers, had 'nothing to do with the case'—all these, and many more, are strenuously assailed. Yet this is the man to whom we owe our national conception of sturdy, honest, good-natured, and affectionate 'Jack,' over whose life—and no wonder!—a 'sweet little cherub' keeps watch. It is a pity, as one of Dibdin's biographers remarks, that he did not practise the virtues with which he clothed Tom Bowling. Joseph Bennett.

SCHUBERT AND BRITISH POETS.

The songs of Schubert are an almost inexhaustible theme and much has been written about them from their purely musical aspect. One corner of the field has not, however, received that attention, so far as we are aware, that it deserves—we refer to the great song-writer's use of British poets. It is in order to add a small contribution to the Schubert literature, and at the same time to endeavour to interest our readers, that the following chit-chat is written down.

Who has not when visiting Loch Katrine experienced some of the spell that fascinated the mind of Sir Walter Scott? How beautiful Ellen's Isle appeared the other day, in the shimmering light of a September morning!

> In all her length far winding lay;
> With promontory, creek, and bay,
> And islands that, empurpled bright,
> Floated amid the livelier light,
> And mountains, that like giants stand,
> To sentinel enchanted land.

Unlike Mendelssohn, Schubert never beheld the classic ground of the Lady of the Lake. But he has enriched the art of music with his seven songs from the immortal poem by the Great Wizard of the North.

Before proceeding to refer in detail to the various songs which cover the ground of this article, it may be well to give the names of those British poets who were laid under contribution by Schubert. The first place must be given to Scott by reason of the number of settings—ten in all, of which seven are from the Lady of the Lake. Next comes Shakespeare, with three settings, and then Pope, Colley Cibber and the Percy Reliques, each with a single lyric, making a total of sixteen songs, or part-songs. It is possible that there may be others, but this double octet will suffice for the present purpose.

All Schubert's settings of our national poets are of German translations. Those of the Lady of the Lake are from the version by Philip Adam Storck (Essen, 1819*), entitled 'Fräulein vom See.' These seven songs were composed by Schubert at the age of twenty-eight. In the spring and summer of 1825 he, with his friend Vogl, spent a very pleasant and long holiday in touring about Upper Austria, 'passing the time,' says Sir George Grove, 'in a delightful mixture of music, friends, fine scenery, lovely weather, and absolute ease and comfort; partly amongst the good friends who had welcomed him so warmly in 1819, partly among new friends and new enthusiasm. . . . The songs from the Lady of the Lake were either composed before starting or on the road. At any rate they formed the chief programme during the excursion. If the whole seven were sung or not is uncertain; but Schubert particularly mentions the Ave Maria, à propos to which he makes an interesting revelation. 'My new songs,' he says in a letter to his parents, 'from Walter Scott's Lady of the Lake, have been very successful. People were greatly astonished at the devotion which I have thrown into the Hymn to the Blessed Virgin, and it seems to have seized and impressed everybody. I think that the reason of this is that I never force myself into devotion, or compose hymns or prayers unless I am really overpowered by the feeling; that alone is real, true devotion.' At Salzburg too, it was the 'Ave Maria' that so riveted his hearers. 'We produced,' he says, 'our seven pieces before a select circle, and all were much impressed, especially by the Ave Maria, which I mentioned in my former letter. The way in which Vogl sings and I accompany, so that for the moment we seem to be one, is something quite new and unexpected to these good people.'

On his return to Vienna, Schubert doubtless found himself in the predicament of the gentleman who was ordered by his medical adviser to seek 'change and rest.' 'Did you get it?' asked a friend on his return. 'No, I did not,' was the reply. 'The waiters got all the change, and the hotel keepers got the rest.' At all events, the composer sold his seven songs to Artaria, the music publisher of Vienna, in the October of 1825, for the sum of £20! They were issued, as Op. 52, with the following title on April 5, 1826:—

> Sieben Gesänge aus Walter Scott's Fräulein vom See, in Musik gesetzt mit Begleitung des Pianoforte, und der Hochgebornen Frau Frau Sophie Gräfin v. Weissenwolf geborne Gräfin v. Breunner hochschtungsvoll gewidmet von Franz Schubert. Op. 52. Ites. Heft. Eigenthum des Verlegers. Wien, bey Math. Artaria.

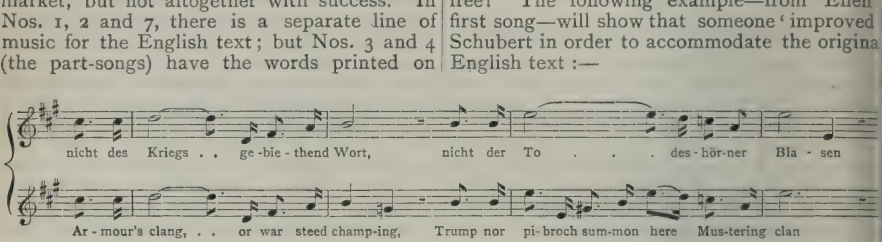
The septet of settings from the Lady of the Lake consists of the following:—

1. Ellen's first song—Soldier, rest!	Canto first.	Stanza	xxxi.
2. Ellen's second song—Huntsman, rest!..	,,	,,	xxxii.
3. Boat Song — Hail to the chief! (Male Voices. T.T.B.B.)	,,	second	xix.
4. Coronach—He is gone on the mountain (Female Voices. S.S.A.)	,,	third	xvi.
5. Norman's song—The heath this night must be my bed	,,	,,	xxiii.
6. Ellen's third song, Hymn to the Virgin—Ave Maria!	,,	,,	xxix.
7. Lay of the imprisoned huntsman—My hawk is tired of perch and hood ..	,,	sixth	xxiv.

Except Nos. 3 and 4, all the above are for a solo voice.

* The Poem first appeared, in Edinburgh, in 1810.

The question may be asked, 'Were the English words printed in the original German edition?' Yes, with one exception, they were, but after a fashion. On the authority of Dr. Mandyczewski, the publisher took great pains to make the edition practical for the English market, but not altogether with success. In Nos. 1, 2 and 7, there is a separate line of music for the English text; but Nos. 3 and 4 (the part-songs) have the words printed on a separate page without the music. No. has no English words at all. Storck, i his translation, has twelve or thirtee syllables in a line against Scott's eight, there fore Herr Artaria doubtless thought it woul be advisable to let the English version go Scot free! The following example—from Ellen' first song—will show that someone 'improved Schubert in order to accommodate the origina English text :—



nicht des Kriegs . . ge - bie - thend Wort, nicht der To . . . des - hör - ner Bla - sen
Ar - mour's clang, . . or war steed champ-ing, Trump nor pi - broch sum-mon here Mus-tering clan

The remaining three settings of Scott's poems need not detain us long. They consist of :—

1. The Song of Annot Lyle* The Legend of Montrose.
2. Norna's Song ... ...The Pirate.
3. The Crusader's Return ... ... Ivanhoe.

Nos. 1 and 2 were composed in the year before Schubert died and published as Op. 85, Nos. 1 and 2; No. 3, which is dated March, 1826, was issued in March, 1828, having been previously sung on February 2 by Ludwig Titze, at a concert given by Leopold Jansa, the violinist. Titze, or Tietze (1797-1850), deserves more than passing notice. An eminent tenor in Vienna, he frequently sang in public several of Schubert's songs, amongst them 'The Erl King,' in 1825; Norman's song ('The Lady of the Lake'), on March 8, 1827, when he was accompanied by Schubert; and 'The Blind Boy,' in 1829. Titze was one of the vocalists at the only concert given by Schubert, March 26, 1828, eight months before the great song composer, at the age of thirty-one, was called away.

We may now exchange the Land o' cakes for the banks of the Avon. The names—and what splendid names they are!—of Shakespeare and Schubert are united in two songs and one part-song. Here they are :—

1. Who is Sylvia? .. ..Two Gentlemen of Verona.
2. Hark! hark! the lark .. .. .. Cymbeline.
3. Drinking Song (Male Voices) Antony and Cleopatra.

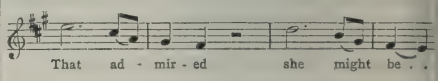
(German translations by Bauernfeld, A. W. Schlegel, and Ferd. Mayerhofer.)

The first of these, 'Who is Sylvia?' is perhaps he best known Schubertian song in England. And how beautiful it is! This charming melody was composed, as were the other two Shakespeare songs, in July, 1826, two years before the composer's death. It is interesting to know that the dainty little run of four semiquavers was an afterthought. Schubert originally wrote the phrase strictly in sequenc with that which precedes it, thus :—



The song was issued in 1828, as Op. 106 No. 4. The copies were lithographed, and nc publisher's or printer's name was given.

To the same period of 'Who is Sylvia?' (How often that question has been asked belongs another Schubertian gem—'Hark hark! the lark at heaven's gate sings.' Con cerning the composition of this familiar song a pretty story is told.

One day, Schubert was strolling through the Währing, near Vienna, when he came to a bee garden where he discovered a friend looking at a volume of Shakespeare's poems. Schubert took up the book, and, turning over the leaves suddenly stopped. Pointing to the words 'Horch, horch, die Lerch' im Aetherblau,' he exclaimed, 'Such a delicious melody has just come into my head; if I had but a sheet o music paper with me.' His friend Doppler a once drew a few music-lines on the back of a bill-of-fare; and in the midst of a great hubbub with fiddlers, skittle players, beer-drinking, and waiters rushing to and fro, Schubert wrote this lovely song, 'Hark! hark! the lark.'

The familiar 'Vital spark'—'Wital spark as old villagers, Wellerlike, were prone to cal it—of Alexander Pope attracted Schubert's fancy, through the German translation (entitled Verklärung) of Herder. It is a very early composition, in fact, the product of his boyhood bearing date May 4, 1813. At that time he was a pupil at the Imperial Convict—not, as the name might imply, a penitentiary institution but a school for educating the choristers for the Court-chapel—where, as Sir George Grove says, 'young growing lads were allowed to go without food for 8½ hours, between a poor dinner and a wretched supper.' It is almost a wonder that under those circumstances the poor boy retained the 'vital spark' of life. We learn that 'there was not even sufficient music paper provided for the scholars, and Schubert was dependent on the bounty of richer pupils.'

* Lied der Anne Lyle, in the original German edition.

'The Blind Boy' (Der blinde Knabe) is a translation by Craigher from the English of Colley Cibber (1671-1757). It belongs to the 'Lady of the Lake' year (1825), and made its earliest appearance in print as a supplement of the Wiener Zeitschrift für Kunst, Literatur und Mode, September 25, 1827. The first edition of 'The Blind Boy' merely stated that the words are 'from the English,' without giving Cibber's name as the original author of them; in fact, in Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians, Craigher's name is given as that of the author. During the visit of Hummel to Vienna in 1827, he extemporized on this song to the great delight of Schubert.

We finish as we began, North of the Tweed. The last song in our survey is a setting of the Old Scottish Ballad, beginning 'Edward Edward,' from the 'Percy Reliques,' which, like 'Vital Spark,' Schubert set from Herder's translation. The song was written at Gratz in 1827, during a visit of the composer to one Herr Pachler. His hostess, whom he esteemed very highly, was greatly pleased with the song, which is full of character and bears the genuine Schubertian stamp. Strangely enough it does not appear to have been published till twenty-eight years after its composition and twenty-seven after the composer's death. This may have been one of the songs for which the munificent sum of 10d. a piece was given!

In gathering together the foregoing information on Schubert's settings of British poets, no attempt has been made to exhaust the subject. If this should prove acceptable, other composers may be similarly treated as opportunity offers. Meanwhile, the above little talk will not have been placed on paper in vain if it should be the means of drawing fresh attention to that well-spring of the beautiful in music—Schubert's songs.

F. G. E.

FRIEDRICH CHRYSANDER.

With much regret we place on record the death—which took place on the 3rd ult., at Bergedorf, near Hamburg, where he had lived since 1866—of Friedrich Chrysander, Doctor of Philosophy, musician, musical historian, critic, and editor. The biographical information concerning this great Handelian scholar is so exceedingly meagre and in some respects inaccurate, that we are glad to furnish our readers with the subjoined authentic account of his life, kindly contributed by his son-in-law, Mr. Charles Volkert, whose account includes some autobiographical matter written by Dr. Chrysander and now published for the first time.

Karl Franz Friedrich Chrysander, the son of a miller, was born at Lübtheen, in Mecklenburg, on July 8, 1826. He adopted at first an educational career, holding posts of tutor in several gentlemen's families. He was also assistant master to his future father-in-law, the organist and schoolmaster Borgmann, of Vellahn, in Mecklenburg.

After attending lectures at Göttingen, Leipzig and Rostock, the last-named University bestowed upon him the degree of Doc. Phil., the independent work for his promotion being 'Ueber die Molltonart in den Volksgesängen' (On the minor mode in Folk-songs), Schwerin, 1853, which he soon followed up by another booklet 'Ueber das Oratorium' (On the Oratorio).

Subsequently Chrysander took to music as a profession. From the beginning he assumed the rôle of an historian in rigorously defending the right and claims of musical masterpieces of a distant past to a legitimate and faithful reproduction, i.e., without modernising, and without instrumental or vocal additions. This soon brought him into conflict with leading musicians, who considered his action too far-reaching and one-sided.

Friedrich Chrysander's work centred indeed in the oratorio, as his early pamphlets prove, though not by any means confined to it. While working at Wolfenbüttel, Brunswick, Weissenfels, Lauenburg, and other once famous German cities, he prepared for actual performance and published in 1856 (Wolfenbüttel) four volumes of Bach's Clavier compositions, an edition which has lost none of its value or importance; moreover, it has the merit of being the first critically revised classical edition on record. Even before this he had had the good fortune to discover Bach's long-lost autograph of the immortal B minor Mass; and it at once illustrates the ideal side of his character, that he handed over this priceless score, from which much of the Bach cult of recent years has arisen, to the Royal Library at Berlin for the same sum (either £40 or 40 thalers) that he gave for it. He had to put up with many personal attacks of partisans of the great Leipzig Cantor, but it has not been yet shown that anyone of them has done as much for Bach as the subject of this notice.

At that time Chrysander put into score several volumes of Heinrich Schütz's compositions, which years afterwards he handed over to his friend, the late Philipp Spitta, to see through the press. It bears testimony to the dead musician's character that his work for Schütz, as well as his editions of the Motets of Palestrina, the clavier music of Couperin, the violin works of Corelli, bore for thirty years the names of Bellermann, Brahms, and Joachim, respectively, but not his own. His object was solely to secure for these fine works the utmost interest and utility.

He found his real sphere of action, however, when he started in 1856, in conjunction with Gervinus, Dehn, Hauptmann, and others, the so-called German Handel Society for the publication of the great Anglo-Saxon's complete compositions. These works he prepared from sources almost exclusively preserved in England. He was fortunate in being able to embody in that edition innumerable second thoughts and improvements noted down in Handel's own hand, as indicated in the conducting scores which came to light about that time.

Chrysander received some blame on this side of the Channel for carrying off those valuable Handel documents, and it is as well that the facts should be recorded in this place. In the early fifties, Kerslake, a second-hand bookseller of Bristol, secured the library of Lord Rivers's family, and offered about 126 volumes of MSS.—reputedly copies of Handel's scores—in his catalogue for the sum of £38. The late Victor Schoelcher, himself an able and enthusiastic Handel lover, secured the lot—it narrowly escaped being caught up by the Sacred Harmonic Society—which proved to be in the handwriting of the two Smiths. Schoelcher immediately placed the volumes at Chrysander's disposal. Seeing at a glance their immense importance to the Handel Edition, he offered to buy the scores—which, by the way, also contained the autographs of Christopher Smith's own oratorios—and Schoelcher accepted £800 for them. Though Chrysander could not scrape together more than £100, and had to leave the volumes in Schoelcher's hands for some years, he (Schoelcher) stuck to the bargain, in spite of the increased offers he meanwhile had received. In return for this kindness, the Doctor declined more than one offer to translate his 'Life' of Handel, because Schoelcher had published one in the English language. Several Hamburg gentlemen subsequently subscribed the funds necessary to complete the purchase, and thus the Smith conducting scores found their permanent home in the Hamburg Library.

This brings us to the second most important work connected with Chrysander's name, his 'G. F. Händel,' of which two volumes and the first half of the third were published between the years 1858 and 1867, and which ranks with the best in this form of literature that has appeared in the German language, for sound, unbiassed and independent research, and the author's enthusiasm for his work and subject. True, the period (1740-1759) dealing with Handel's great oratorios, he was not able to see through the press. But he left most of the material for its completion in admirable order, and it is to be hoped that Dr. Max Seiffert, his valued friend and pupil, will not only soon issue the earlier volumes (long since out of print, though re-cast and partly re-written by Dr. Chrysander), but that he will complete the work according to the intentions of the author.

To revert to the Handel Edition. The struggles to carry on this vast work of editing and engraving between 16,000 and 17,000 plates of Handel's works alone, unaided by publisher's advice or finance, were indeed heavy, particularly seeing that from the outset his colleagues were not merely apathetic but in actual opposition to him, as a letter of Hauptmann to Hauser and various printed attacks sufficiently prove. These collaborators all fell off after 1860, except Professor Gervinus, whose still valuable German translations were given to the edition. He died in 1871. To produce the works at first cost, Chrysander set up an office in his own garden, where all the volumes since 1862 were engraved and printed under his personal and unremitting care, thus following the example set by the Bach family.

Chrysander was able to issue about ninety-seven volumes of Handel's works, and the outstanding two volumes were also lately completed by him, and engraved ready for publication. In the preface to the last volume, 'The Messiah,' he has acknowledged gratefully some of the factors that have rendered this edition possible, and, with his usual custom, he subordinates therein all personal questions and merit to the cause so dear to his heart.

No doubt his Handel studies might be considered sufficient for one man's life-work—one that places Chrysander in the front rank of musical scientists and editors; but he always wished to rank as, and was eminently a musician of broad culture and convictions; not a mere Handelian in the generally understood sense of the term, but a practical musician. To study Handel aright, he issued at his cost, under the heading of 'Sources to Handel's works,' some very important compositions, such as Urio's Te Deum, Clari's Duets, Erba's Magnificat, Stradella's Serenata, Muffat's Componimenti, R. Keiser's operas, which Handel absorbed in his great work. These borrowings have only recently been ably treated by Mr. J. S. Shedlock,* but the reasons for such conduct are still to be accounted for. Apart from the practice of the day, Handel transformed the ideas of others in a legitimate way, and Chrysander not only produced the means whereby to estimate the apparent theft, but collected evidence to explain Handel's action. Thus there is a copy of Handel's Clavier Suites annotated by Muffat, in which this sound musician censured, corrected, and cut up the greater master's work. Handel's revenge in borrowing from Muffat may have been taken to show how much could be done with his (Muffat's) own ideas. This sort of raillery has existed as long as there have been musicians, and so far the art has not been a loser by it. No one has effectually belittled Shakespeare for having picked up valuable material wherever he could, or Bach for interspersing his great works with themes and chorales that existed before him. It is curious that Handel alone was attacked after his death on that account more than were the other great men.

* The Musical Times for July, August, and September, 1901.

During the forty-five years which Chrysander mainly devoted to the cause of Handel, partly to support it and himself, he edited 'Jahrbücher für Musikalische Wissenschaft (1863 to 1867). They contain complete and important investigations on our 'God save the King,' the 'Lochheimer Liederbuch,' and many important subjects, as interesting now as then. Moreover, for thirteen years he was the indefatigable editor of the Leipziger Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung, and many are the signed and unsigned contributions that he sent forth week after week. Together with Spitta and Adler he edited the Vierteljahrsschrift für Musikwissenschaft, in which appeared his articles on music printing,* on Zacconi, the great Italian singing master, Friedrich Chrysander.

upon whom most of Handel's work for solo voices is based, and who practically taught us how such music should be sung. There is also an edition of all Carissimi's oratorios, some of which would not have come to light but for his tenacity of purpose. Dr. Max Seiffert will be able to tell us something of this great forerunner of Handel. Chrysander edited and published at his expense, Beethoven's symphonies in score quite forty years ago—an exceedingly careful and correct edition. Many are his concise and impartial biographies of musicians in Brockhaus' famous Lexicon, to which he contributed for several years. Vast as was his literary and musical work, he became in recent years best known by the masterly conducting versions which he prepared of twelve or fourteen of Handel's masterpieces. These are not only the outcome of the last seven or eight years, during which Germany has accorded his true place to the famous Saxon; Chrysander actually prepared much of the work as far back as forty years, when the late King of Hanover intended to place concert music on as solid a basis as is the opera in Germany, by the creation of a Cäcilien-Haus, as the King intended to name it. This noble monarch was unable to fulfil all he promised; and except for the thousand thalers granted to him for carrying on the edition, a grant which was continued by Prussia for each year's issue until the so-called 'Guelph Fund' was restored to the royal House of Hanover, it is more than probable that Chrysander's edition would have remained incomplete like more than one similar enterprise. Nor would the conducting scores, to which the prefaces of volumes prepared between 1860 and 1865 allude, have been completed and successfully performed in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. Successful they were, and of the utmost influence upon musical life itself, because they not only enter thoroughly into Handel's spirit and practice, but emanated from an eminently practical musician capable of transmuting them into German, and casting them in a way which Handel indicated, and which a present-day audience can enjoy. He was averse to publishing these conducting versions, though he had, again at his expense, engraved orchestral and chorus parts for several of the works since used by choral societies. The time may come to issue the result of all this independent labour; in fact, Chrysander had all but completed arrangements for this purpose when he broke down in health; but what he has done for Handel can never be lost.

* Reprinted, in an English translation by Mr. Russell Martineau, in The Musical Times during the year 1877.

He was one of the most simple and retiring of men. Kind to everyone with whom he came into contact, and, highly cultured, he was able to get on with the high and low; only those who did not know him, or had reasons not to know him, misjudged him, because he failed in the modern faculty for self-advertisement, cared little for what was written about him, and hardly ever worked for the sake of gain. He had frequent offers for positions under Government, of which the first was that of organist and choirmaster at the Cathedral of Schwerin. The King of Hanover entrusted him with the reconstruction of the Liturgy at his Court Chapels, and offered him the chief Musician's place in his dominion, but Chrysander declined all such appointments, even the Directorate of the Berlin Hochschule, feeling certain that it would mean to him the giving up of his life work and his freedom. This did not prevent him from accepting the King of Hanover's generous offer referred to above—on the contrary, he challenged it by requesting the King not to decorate him, but to help forward the Handel work. When, later on, Prince Bismarck invited him to Friedrichsruh, where he was an honoured guest for several years, and in due course offered to distinguish him, he begged the Prince not to do so by means of Orders, as he had declined similar honours from Hanover. The Prince found other means of showing his appreciation of the Handelian's worth, by proposing him for a pension from the Emperor William's privy purse, in commemoration of Handel's bi-centenary, in 1885. Prince Bismarck's letter on that occasion, and another when Chrysander lost his eldest son at the age of twenty-four, are treasured by the family, as are the kindly words which he (Bismarck) wrote to Princess Bismarck, on June 12th, 1886, and which were recently published by their son, Prince Herbert.

Friedrich Chrysander was married in 1856 to Elizabeth Borgmann, of Vellahn. They lost their first son in 1859, and afterwards moved to Lauenburg, in Holstein, when two more sons and a daughter were born to them. Their elder son, George, died in 1884, while in the army; the youngest, Rudolph, studied medicine, and became Prince Bismarck's trusted secretary and physician from the Prince's retirement to his death. He nursed and relieved his father during the weary months of feebleness and pain. Their daughter became, in 1886, the wife of Mr. Charles Volkert, the managing partner of the publishing firm of Schott & Co., London.

It may be interesting to add that, since 1856, Chrysander visited London annually, and through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Martineau, found under their hospitable roof a second home until his children claimed him during his sojourns in the Metropolis. He often used to say that his visits to England were his only holidays, and yet what a vast amount of work he got through while he was here!

Dr. Chrysander's private life was above reproach, and though he never quite recovered from the loss of his wife in 1887, he knew there was work for him to do, and he did it until called away. He was immensely fond of his gardens and hot-houses, and their produce found many admirers.

The funeral took place at the family vault in Vellahn, on the 6th ult., and was as peaceful as was his end.

"Süss ist der Schlaf des Arbeiters."

The performance of Sir Hubert Parry's fine oratorio of 'Job,' at the recent Gloucester Festival, reminds us that the wonderful story has already been treated by several composers, native and foreign (E. T. Chipp, William Russell, Bernhard Klein, F. Chiaromonte, and others), though by none, we venture to think, so worthily as Sir Hubert. The oldest work with which we are acquainted in connection with that subject is 'The Dialogue of Job,' by John Hilton. In the early days in which Hilton wrote, there was a plainness of speech both in sacred and secular matters. Hence it is not surprising to find the dramatis personæ marked as: God, Satan, Job, Job's wife, and the Messengers. The writing is exceedingly quaint, and the music, which reflects the spirit of the words, has dignity and dramatic power; there are even realistic touches which foreshadow the picturesqueness of Purcell. The dialogue ends with a brief chorus in four parts to the words, 'Meanwhile no waywardness in Job appear'd, nor Mutt'ring speech against his God was heard.'

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

Many happy returns of the day:—

Oct. 4.—Madame Lemmens Sherrington.
,, 4.—Jacques Blumenthal.
,, 8.—Emil Sauer.
,, 9.—Camille Saint-Saëns.
,, 11.—Theodore Thomas.
,, 15.—Joseph Hollman.
,, 16.—John Francis Barnett.
,, 21.—Wassily Sapellnikoff.
,, 26.—Haydn Keeton.
,, 31.—Mrs. Needham.

Blackwood's Magazine for September contains a very interesting and autobiographical article by the late Mr. Charles Salaman, entitled 'Pianists of the past.' Here are two Liszt extracts:—

It was at the rehearsal on May 25, 1827, already referred to as the occasion of my first seeing Clementi, and, I may add, hearing that grand singer of the great Italian school, Madame Pasta, that I saw and heard of Franz Liszt for the first time, although he had played in London three years previously. 'Young Liszt, from Vienna,' said Charles Neate to me, as the slim and rather tall boy ascended the steps leading to the platform. 'He is only fifteen—a great creature!' His playing of Hummel's concerto created a profound sensation, and my enthusiastic admiration made me eager to know the wonderful young pianist, my senior by a couple of years. Very shortly afterwards—just before Liszt's morning concert, for which my father had purchased tickets from his father—we became acquainted. I visited him and his father at their lodgings in Frith Street, Soho, and young Liszt came to early family dinner at my home. He was a very charmingly natural and unaffected boy, and I have never forgotten his joyful exclamation, 'Oh, gooseberry pie!' when his favourite dish was put upon the table. We had a good deal of music together on that memorable afternoon, reading several duets. Liszt played some of his recently published 'Etudes,' Op. 6, a copy of which he gave me, and in which he wrote specially for me an amended version of the sixth study, Molto agitato . . . .

I did not hear Liszt again until his visit to London in 1840, when he puzzled the musical public by announcing 'Pianoforte Recitals.' This now commonly accepted term had never previously been used, and people asked, 'What does he mean? How can anyone recite upon the pianoforte?' At these recitals, Liszt, after performing a piece set down in his programme, would leave the platform, and, descending into the body of the room, where the benches were so arranged to allow free locomotion, would move about among his auditors and converse with his friends, with the gracious condescension of a prince, until he felt disposed to return to the piano.

The memorial services held at Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, and elsewhere, on the 19th ult., the day of Mr. McKinley's funeral, are an indication of the deep sympathy felt by the entire English nation in the loss which our kith and kin in America have sustained in the cruel death of their distinguished President. The music at the services was deeply impressive, and the President's favourite hymn, 'Nearer, my God, to Thee' (to which we make special reference in our Church and Organ Music column, p. 672), has been very generally sung at these and recent Sunday services in all parts of this country. At the Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts, Sullivan's In Memoriam Overture was fittingly played as a mark of sympathetic respect to the late President and the people whom he so ably led.

The following advertisement appeared in a Gloucester newspaper during the Festival week:—

Young Lady wishes to Teach Music, 3d. half-hour, at own Residences. Address ——

The following are the introductory remarks to the 'Revised Instructions as to singing in Day Schools (England and Wales)' recently issued by the Board of Education:—

SINGING.

Instructions as to the Inspection of Singing in Day Schools.

Vocal Music—General Objects.

Some of the objects sought for in including vocal music in the school curriculum may be stated as follows:—

To provide a healthful and pleasant form of collective indoor occupation, and, through the words of the songs, a possible moral and educative force. Words, as a rule, are more permanently memorised through music than in any other way.

To develop musical faculties in order that children may in after life be able to appreciate the best music as listeners and performers.

To furnish knowledge of musical facts and notation that will enable children to read simple music at sight and generally to understand music intelligently.

To train and preserve the voices of children, not only with a view to the attainment of tasteful and agreeable execution during school life, but with a view to the potentialities of the children as adult singers.

To store children's memories with patriotic, national, and folk songs, the words of which are suitable for school use. Such an aim does not necessarily exclude or condemn the use of other music found useful and interesting for school entertainments and other purposes.

To cultivate the power to sing tunefully in parts, not only for present edification and culture, but to fit children to become in after life executants of the rich repertory of choral music which we have inherited in this country, and which is continually being added to by living composers.

The complete scheme appeared in the September issue of The School Music Review. We understand that these 'Revised Instructions' were prepared for the Board of Education by Dr. W. G. McNaught since the death of Sir John Stainer.

Mr. Arthur Somervell has been appointed Inspector of Music to the Board of Education and to the Scotch Education Department. Dr. W. G. McNaught, who for nineteen years has held the appointment of an Assistant Inspector of Music under the regime of the late Sir John Stainer, has resigned that office, because he felt that it would not be an advantage to anyone concerned that he should be subordinate to Mr. Somervell.

In regard to the appointment of the successor to Sir John Stainer, we join in the widely-spread feeling that the Duke of Devonshire, as Lord President of the Council, has been badly advised in overlooking the claims of the late Assistant Inspector, Dr. McNaught. Not only has Dr. McNaught loyally and unsparingly served the Board in a variety of ways during all these years, but he has practically discharged most of the duties of the chief Inspector during a considerable period; moreover, he has brought to the work ripe experience and a full knowledge of the subject that may be termed unique. Looking at the matter quite impartially, we cannot help feeling that a great mistake has been made. The injustice to the man who has given his life-work to the cause which he has so much at heart is not the most serious aspect of the question, there being a danger that the progress of music in Training Colleges and schools may be discouraged.

The prosperous progress of Mr. Robert Newman's Promenade Concerts suggests a peep into the past. As we stated in our last number (p. 614), the earliest Promenade Concerts in England date from sixty-three years ago. They were given at the Royal English Opera House, another name for the Lyceum Theatre, and started on December 12, 1838. The Lyceum playbills preserved in the British Museum, do not, unfortunately, include that of the opening night, but the bill of fare of the fifth and sixth performances is in the collection. Here is the document:—

THEATRE ROYAL LYCEUM

AND

ENGLISH OPERA HOUSE.

Monday & Tuesday, December 17 & 18, 1838,

will take place

PROMENADE CONCERTS,

à la Musard.

In accordance with the daily increasing taste for Music in this country, the Management have resolved on adopting the Plan pursued with such unexampled success in Paris, and will throw open the Theatre Every Evening to the Public, the Price of Admission to the Public Boxes (except the Balcony Circle), the Pit and Gallery, all of which communicate with each other, being

ONE SHILLING.

Places may be secured in the Balcony Circle, by application at the Box Office, on the payment of Two Shillings.

The Pit is boarded over, and Refreshments of every description may be had within the house.

PROGRAMME.

Part I.

Overture	Euryanthe	... Weber.
Quadrille	I Puritani	...Musard.
Overture ...	The Harmonious Blacksmith ...	... Handel.
Fantasia, on the Bassoon, by Mr. Baumann		... Berr.
Quadrille	Le Danois	...Musard.
Overture	Zampa	... Herold.
Waltz	Vienne	...Strauss.

Part II.

Overture	Guillaume Tell	... Rossini.
Quadrille	Rouen	...Musard.
Overture	Leonora	Beethoven.
Quadrille	Les Echos	...Musard.
Overture	Le Dieu et la Bayadère	... Auber.
Waltz	Hommage à la Reine d'Angleterre ...	...Strauss.

The programme of the performance will be varied every Second Night. For particulars, see the 'Concert Companion.'

The band consists of sixty instrumental performers, selected from Her Majesty's Theatre, the Philharmonic, the Royal Society of Musicians, &c.

Leader & Solo Violin, Mr. Willy. Conductor, Sig. Negri.

The third number on the programme is curious: it would be interesting to know who hammered it out into overture shape.

No copy of the 'Concert Companion,' referred to above, seems to be in the British Museum. Was it a periodical? A comparison of the above programme with those provided nightly by Mr. Henry J. Wood at Queen's Hall, cannot fail to be interesting, and at the same time highly instructive.

The Millenary—how perilously near millinery—of Alfred the Great recalls the fact that he was a musical monarch. His biographers tell us that not only was the King celebrated for his skill in music and his performance on the harp, but that he was very sedulous in his endeavours to promote the study of music in his Kingdom. Moreover, Solomon-like, he, excellent ruler, 'provided himself of musicians, not common, or such as knew the practice part; but men skilful in the art itself, whose skill and service yet further improved with his own instruction, and so ordered the manner of their service as best befitted the royalty of a King.' (Did the King receive any royalties on the sale of these uncommon gentlemen's compositions?) The story of his entering the Danish camp, disguised like a harper or minstrel, is thus related by Sir John Hawkins in his History of Music (vol. i., p. 152):—

The substance of which relation is, that being desirous to know the strength and circumstances of the Danish army, then in Somersetshire, he disguised himself like a minstrel, and taking with him a harp, and one only confidant, he went into the Danish camp, the privilege of his disguise intitling him to free admittance every where, even into the king's tent; and there, for many days, he so employed himself as that, while he entertained his enemies with his mirth and music, he obtained the fullest satisfaction touching their ability to resist the attack on them, which he had for some time been meditating.

As this event took place in the year 878, it possesses a rich flavour of doubly-distilled antiquarianism.

The following, from Le Petit Baigneur de Dieppe Gazette Bleue of August 28, will be read with interest by English musicians. We give the programme exactly as it appeared in print at the popular French watering-place:—

CASINO DE DIEPPE.

CONCERTS INTERNATIONAUX

Sous la direction de M. Ad. Bourdeau.

ŒUVRES ANGLAISES.

Première Partie.

1. Ouverture di Ballo ... ... Arthur Sillivan, 1842-1900.
2. Bénedictus, pr violon-solo ... A. C. Mackenzie, 1847 „
   M. P. Séchirai.
3. Three English Dances ... E. H. Cowen, 1852 „
   A. Strately Dance; B. Rustic Dance; C. Graceful Dance.
4. A. Sérénade Mauresque,
   B. Mazurka ... ... Edward Elgar, 1857 „
   Intervalle de 30 minutes.

Deuxième Partie.

1. A. Berceuse, B. Pastorale,
   C. Pavane ... ... Edward German, 1861 „
2. Three Dances From Henry VIII.
   A. Morris Dance; B. Shepherds' Dance; C. Torch Dance.
3. Three Characteristic Waltzes ... ... Coleridge-Taylor, 1872 „
   A. Allegro; B. Tempo di Valse; C. Andante con sentimento.
4. God save the King.

There are indications, even in unexpected quarters, that Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' is not dead yet. Last month we quoted some interesting Mozartiana from the Pall Mall Gazette, and now we venture to do likewise in regard to Mendelssohn's great oratorio, as it appealed to the musical critic of our contemporary at the recent Gloucester Musical Festival.

The orchestration, in parts (to make, if possible, an original remark on 'Elijah'), is really almost as good as (and in parts very like to) the orchestration of the lighter parts of 'Die Meistersinger.' (This is no fanciful analogy.) I believe that if Mendelssohn had only endured every misfortune save that of an early death he would have ranked far, far higher among the world's composers than now he ranks. Young Mendelssohn knelt before the score of young Mozart. Who knows what he might have been if he had lived to twice the age of Mozart? After all, you cannot compare 'Le Nozze' to 'Elijah,' nor 'Don Giovanni' to "St. Paul." If only he had lived! He came to his own so soon and so inadequately. Wagner knew, and he was right in all despite, that the young Jew prodigy is not of enduring stuff; but if this young Jew had lived, one cannot guess to what his eld would have given birth. I write not in disparagement. I love 'Elijah,' and Mendelssohn. I fancy that I feel very much as felt the men of Leipzig on the fatal morning when they gathered in little crowds to read from the posters that Mendelssohn was dead. I wanted him to do so much more!

The prospectus of the Royal Choral Society for the coming season's concerts has just been issued. In addition to the usual performances of the Messiah (twice) and Elijah, the scheme includes a Hiawatha night, presentations of two Festival novelties—Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's Blind Girl and Sir Frederick Bridge's Forging of the Anchor to wit, The Golden Legend, The Redemption, and the Walpurgis Night (the last-named by desire), and, for the first time by the Society, Dvorák's Spectre's Bride, and selections from Handel's L'Allegro, a welcome revival. The plan of campaign is one that should appeal to a large section of the music-loving public of the great metropolis and its countless visitors.

Dr. W. H. Cummings writes á propos of the 'Malibran and Mutlow' article in our last issue: 'Madame Viardot Garcia has given the autograph score of Mozart's Don Giovanni to the library of the Paris Conservatoire. I consulted it there three years ago.'

Mr. Edwin H. Lemare sailed from Liverpool in the Teutonic, on the 11th ult., for the United States, where he will give a second series of organ recitals in the land of the stars and stripes. May all success attend him!

President Roosevelt is said to possess a good baritone voice, and he has made numerous vocal appearances in public. Who knows but that some day he may be invited to take part in the concert of Europe?

The 'Life' of Sir George Grove, upon which Mr. C. L. Graves is engaged, will not, we understand, be ready for publication till the spring.

Mr. Henry J. Wood will form the subject of the Biographical Sketch in our November number.

LEEDS FESTIVAL NOVELTIES.

Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor remains faithful to the poet through whom he has won such success; we refer, of course, to Longfellow in 'Hiawatha.' This time he has selected 'The Blind Girl of Castél-Cuillé,' translated by Longfellow from the Gascon of Jasmin. His cantata is for soprano and baritone soli, chorus, and orchestra. The story of blind Margaret, whom Baptiste abandoned for Angela, and of merriment turned into mourning, when at the close the forsaken girl, heart-broken, falls dead at the feet of her former lover, offers to a composer opportunities for picturesque and emotional music, also for striking contrasts. There are the 'rosy village girls' singing their chant as 'They wind aslant Toward Saint Amant,' the 'cripple Jane,' who utters her note of warning, the sadness of Margaret when she learns that 'Angela, the bride, has passed,' the wedding procession, the ceremony in the church, and the bearing of the hearse of the dead blind girl, at eve, to the churchyard—in all these incidents there are lights and shades which secure that variety which is ever present in nature, and which, therefore, is a necessity in art.

Mr. Taylor's cantata is divided into three parts. In the first, the key-note of the tragedy is struck when Jane, the cripple, bids 'Thoughtless Angela beware.' The second concerns the sorrow of Margaret, accentuated by sounds of marriage bells and laughing wedding guests; while in the third, gloom of course prevails.

As in his 'Hiawatha' music, so here the composer produces his effects in a direct way, and of melody there is no stint. The choral writing, of homophonic character, is effectively laid out for the voices. There is moderate use made of representative themes. The lines—

> The roads should blossom, the roads should bloom,
> So fair a bride shall leave her home!
> Should blossom and bloom with garlands gay,
> So fair a bride shall pass to-day!

are used, as lovers of Longfellow know, as a kind of refrain, and they therefore give a feeling of unity to the work. They change colour at the close, however, when the mention is not of a bride but of a corpse which passes, and, accordingly, the setting differs. In the instrumental coda of the solemn final chorus, one phrase from the first music, now in mournful minor tones, is prominent.

The 'Memorial Cantata' (Op. 65) by Alexander Constantinovich Glazounow (Belaieff, Leipzig), is a work full of earnest thought and feeling. In this work the distinguished Russian composer commemorates the death of the famous Russian poet and painter, Alexander Sergyeevich Pushkin (1799-1837). The poem, written to celebrate the centenary of Pushkin, tells of one whose 'Glorious songs cannot die,' to quote from the English version of the able translator, Mr. Paul England.

The work is divided into four short sections. The first consists of a triumphant chorus in praise of the poet thus memorialised; the principal theme has diatonic strength and dignity. The second section, a mezzo-soprano solo bearing the superscription 'Cradle Song,' tells of a radiant angel which, while as yet the poet lay in the cradle, filled his soul 'with songs abiding.' The expressive vocal part has an appropriate 'rocking' accompaniment enhanced by skilful harmonic colouring. After a full-toned flowing chorus recording how the poet's words have sunk deep into the people's hearts, a new section opens with a brief tenor solo, followed by a broad choral passage leading to the hymn, 'Mighty Master, live for ever,' which brings the work to a worthy close.

'A Dirge for Two Veterans,' poem by Walt Whitman, set to music for bass solo, chorus and orchestra (Boosey and Co.), is Dr. Charles Wood's contribution to the festival programme. The poem, with its sad story of death and burial of 'Two veterans, son and father,' its solemn funeral procession, its sounds of 'full key'd bugles,' of whirring small, and pounding great drums, lends itself well to musical treatment. Dr. Wood has written music singularly clear in form and simple in character, and, with regard to realistic effects suggested by the poem, of marked restraint. There are a few lights amid the many shades—the silvery moon, the mother's face in heaven, the love inspired by noble death, and of these the composer has taken due advantage.

We are requested by Miss Constance Bache to state that the scores belonging to the 'Liszt Library' of the late Walter Bache, which have hitherto been available on application to her address, are now transferred to the care of Mr. Mapleson, 36, St. Martin's Lane, from whom they may continue to be hired. Many of the scores have valuable manuscript indications as to their renderings, inserted by Walter Bache on the direct authority of Liszt.

THE GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

Gloucester has claims for distinction in the Meeting of the Three Choirs—Worcester and Hereford completing the trio of cities. It was the first to perform Handel's 'Messiah' and Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' and 'Hymn of Praise' during the lifetime of their respective composers. And was not Gloucester the first (in 1892) to rely solely upon the three counties for the Festival chorus? Again, the Wesley associations (to which we refer in another column) are of special interest. At Gloucester the performers are not located at the west end of the beautiful sanctuary, but adjacent to the choir screen, an excellent position, whereby the cathedral organ can be used, thus obviating the necessity of erecting a temporary instrument as at Worcester and Hereford.

MR. A. HERBERT BREWER,
ORGANIST OF GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.
(From a Photograph by Mr. G. Coles, Gloucester.)

The Meeting held at Gloucester, on September 8, 10, and three following days, was the 178th of these Three-Choir Festivals. It opened with a full orchestral service on the afternoon of Sunday, the 8th ult., of which the chief musical features were Schubert's B minor (unfinished) symphony; an effective setting of the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis by Mr. Luard Selby, organist of Rochester Cathedral; a festival anthem, 'Lord, I have loved the habitation of Thy house,' composed by Mr. John E. West (both these works were specially written for the Festival and the latter conducted by the composer); and the 'Prelude' and 'Angel's Farewell' from Dr. Elgar's 'Dream of Gerontius,' conducted by the composer. Criticism of the manner in which this impressive service was rendered is uncalled for, but high commendation must be awarded to Mr. West for his scholarly and dignified anthem. In the selection of the text, the musicianly treatment of its various features—e.g., the recurrent Alleluias—and especially in the skilful orchestration, this anthem not only made its mark as one of the outstanding features of the Festival, but certainly added to the reputation of its composer.

Tuesday morning brought with it Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' which has been performed at every Gloucester Festival since 1847, and on this occasion was presented for the fifty-third time at these Meetings. The oratorio was preluded by Chopin's Funeral March (orchestrated by Herr G. Schmidt), played as a mark of respect to Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and the National Anthem, arranged by Professor Stanford. This 'Elijah' performance furnishes a convenient opportunity for referring to the Festival chorus, a body of 266 capable songsters and songstresses, constituted thus:—

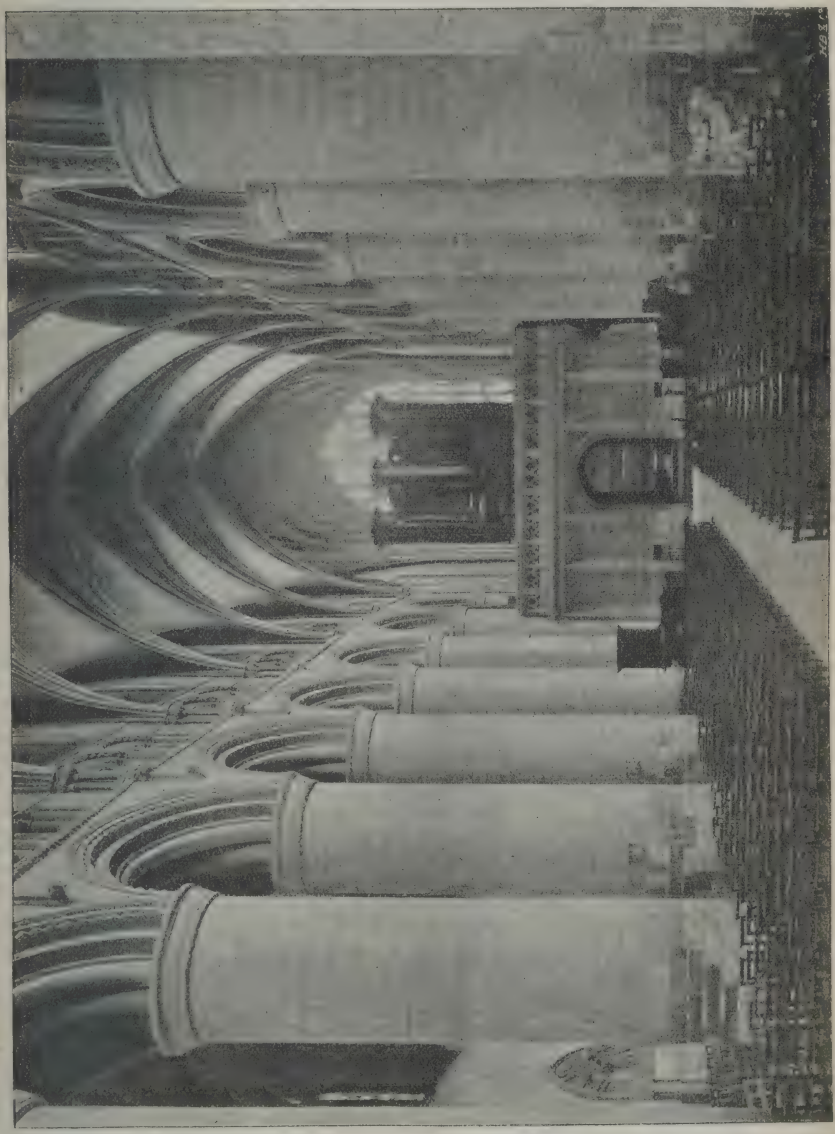
Sopranos (including 12 boys) ..	73
Altos (including 14 men)	64
Tenors	63
Basses	66
Total	266

The quality of tone was excellent (the sopranos were a little weak, perhaps) and the intonation good. Indications of intelligence and sympathy with the conductor were not wanting, but the singing needed just a touch of Sheffield. To say that the Gloucester chorus was above the average would not be doing them and their able conductor justice. The average of choral singing in this country is, however, below the high-water mark of interpretative excellence. Every chorus-singer needs to be inoculated with something that shall give no quarter even to one germ of stodginess. Thanks to the efforts of such capable men as Mr. Brewer, there are signs of an improved choral technique; but chorus-singers must individually be made to feel that he or she is essentially a vital element—that any flabbiness of attack, any colourless pronunciation of words are fatal to perfection, or the attainment thereunto. To interest, to magnetise, to poetise, to galvanise into life all the latent possibilities of his choir should be the unwearying duty of every chorus-master and choir trainer. The work will be found interesting, nay, even fascinating, and the workers will respond.

To return to the 'Elijah' performance, the soloists were Madame Albani, Madame Sobrino, Miss Ada Crossley and Miss Muriel Foster; Messrs. Ben Davies, William Green, Lane Wilson and Andrew Black. Master B. Hirst, a Gloucester chorister, sang the part of The Youth with intelligent expression.

Mozart's ever-fresh and refreshing 'Jupiter' Symphony (carefully played) opened the evening's music on Tuesday. To it succeeded the melodious and effective 'Harvest Song' cantata, by Mr. C. Lee Williams, a former organist of Gloucester Cathedral, who conducted an excellent performance. Spohr's 'Last Judgment' completed the scheme. The soloists of the evening were Madame Ella Russell, Miss Muriel Foster, Messrs. William Green and Lane Wilson. Grimly enough, the 'Last Judgment' was first performed here in 1832, the cholera year!

Brahms's First Symphony in C minor—admirably interpreted under Mr. Brewer's baton—opened the Wednesday performances. Cherubini's fine Mass in D minor—a work not frequently heard—followed. After the luncheon hour, Dr. Sinclair gave a spirited performance of Handel's Second Organ Concerto (in B flat), the well-written cadenza to which was furnished by Mr. Ivor Atkins, organist of Worcester



Gloucester Cathedral.

Cathedral — thus the trio of young Three-Choir organists had a share in the performance of the old Anglo-Saxon's genial music. Madame Albani, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. William Green and Mr. Andrew Black were the soloists in the Mass.

The capable vocal force of the Festival executants had their full opportunity in the motet 'The righteous live for evermore,' specially composed for the occasion by Dr. Charles H. Lloyd, now of Eton, but S. S. Wesley's immediate successor in the organistship of Gloucester Cathedral. The motet, in eight parts and written In piam Memoriam Victoriæ Reginæ, proved to be worthy of its theme. Dignity, chasteness, tenderness, and strength characterise Dr. Lloyd's music — in fact, the hearer felt that the noble beauty of our revered late Queen's life was faithfully reflected therein. The singing of the choir, à capella throughout, was most praiseworthy, and the alarming prophecy of a London critic that they would fall in pitch 'about a fifth' was not fulfilled. A new orchestral work entitled 'Idyll,' by Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor and conducted by him, followed the motet. If it is not up to the level of his best achievements, it is charged with refined feeling and artistic endeavour. A selection from Sir Alexander Mackenzie's 'The Rose of Sharon' concluded the performance. The excerpt consisted of The Procession of the Ark (scene 2, part 2), stately music and vocal withal that deserves more frequent hearing. Sir Alexander conducted his own stirring strains.

Five conductors and four novelties were included in the gargantuan feast set before the Festivalites at the Wednesday evening concert held in the Shire Hall. The programme may be given in full:—

Overture ... Les Noces de Figaro ... ... Mozart.
Dramatic Scene for Baritone Solo and Chorus { The forging of the Anchor } J. Frederick Bridge.
(First Performance.)
Soloist ... ... Mr. Plunket Greene.
Song ... ... Softly sighs (Der Freischütz) ... ... Weber.
Madame Ella Russell.
Symphonic Prelude...A Song in the Morning ... W. H. Bell.
(Composed for this Festival and conducted by the Composer.)
Song ... Onaway! awake, Beloved (Hiawatha), S. Coleridge-Taylor.
Mr. Ben Davies.
Overture ... Cockaigne (In London Town) Edward Elgar.
(Conducted by the Composer.)
Orchestral Poem, A Phantasy of Life and Love, Frederic H. Cowen.
(Composed for this Festival and conducted by the Composer.)
Orchestral Song ... The Soldier's Tent ...C. Hubert H. Parry.
(Conducted by the Composer.)
Mr. Plunket Greene.
Song ... ... Jewel Song (Faust) ... ...Gounod.
Madame Ella Russell.
Descriptive Ballad, The Gates of Night ... Arthur Hervey.
(First public performance.)
Mr. Andrew Black.
Choral Song ... ... The Last Post ... C. V. Stanford.
Meistersinger Overture ... ... Wagner.

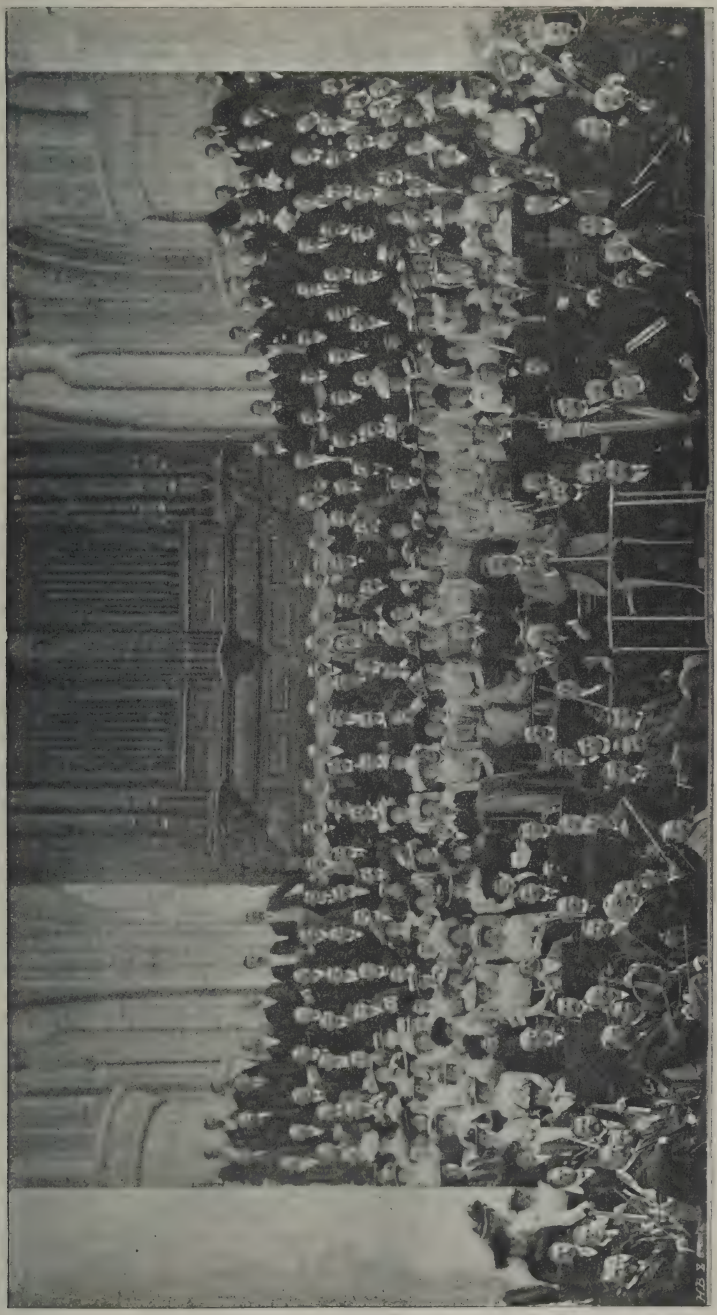
With the complete scheme before the reader it may serve if reference is confined to the new works. The first, by Sir Frederick Bridge, is a vigorous setting of Samuel Ferguson's poem 'The Forging of the Anchor,' a composition which, weighed in the balances of popular opinion, will doubtless not be found wanting. The absence of Sir Frederick in dropping his latest achievement into the sea of publicity was unfortunately due to indisposition, and not because he was hankering after salmon in Scotland.

Mr. W. H. Bell is a young musician who, speaking metaphorically, uses a large canvas and is unstinting in the use of his colours. He is a composer who has a great deal in him and from whom a great deal comes out. The outcome in the present instance is a powerful and original work, strenuous in its subject matter and clever in constructive ability and technical resource. All its possibilities were probably not revealed at this performance, and a further hearing of the work will doubtless make manifest things that are deeper down than on the surface. Dr. Cowen's contribution to the Festival, an orchestral poem, entitled 'A Phantasy of Life and Love,' shows that his hand has not lost its cunning. The lighter sections of the Phantasy were perhaps the most satisfactory, the themes and the orchestration thereof being unmistakably Cowenesque. Mr. Arthur Hervey's ballad 'The Gates of Night' (sung by Mr. Andrew Black) completed the novelty portion of a long programme. A daintily scored orchestral work—the Tempest Music of Sullivan, for instance—would have afforded welcome relief to the superabundance of brass, big and side drum, and clashing cymbals whereby the ears of the audience were assailed. Mr. Brewer conducted, except where otherwise stated.

The Eroica of Beethoven, the Job of Sir Hubert Parry, and the Requiem of Verdi, formed a triumvirate programme on Thursday morning in the Cathedral. The ever-welcome symphony went well under Mr. Brewer's guidance, and the oratorio—produced at Gloucester in 1892—again made a deep impression. It ranks among the best work that Sir Hubert has done. He conducted the performance with his characteristic energy, and Mr. Plunket Greene repeated his previous successes in singing The Lamentations of Job. Verdi's Requiem, which followed, does not call for more than a mere record. The soloists, in addition to Mr. Plunket Greene, were Madame Ella Russell, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. William Green, Mr. Lane Wilson, and Mr. Andrew Black.

An enormous congregation attended the evening performance, doubtless largely attracted to the Cathedral by the fact that a new work by the popular Gloucester organist and conductor of the Festival was to be presented for the first time, and that the Hymn of Praise was in the programme. In 'Emmaus,' Mr. Joseph Bennett has constructed a libretto on the beautiful gospel incident which Mr. Brewer has set to music in a manner calling for high praise. The strains are truly devotional, melodious, and simple. There is no straining after effect, no make-believe; it is heart music, true and sincere. Unless we misjudge this reflective little work, we feel sure it will find its way into the services of many churches, to the edification of those who listen and of those who take part in its interpretation. 'Emmaus' is dedicated 'to the memory of Marion Reynolds,' who, we understand, was an aunt of Mrs. Brewer's, and who, during her lifetime, took a warm interest in the composer and his work as organist at Gloucester, and especially in the progress of 'Emmaus.' Owing to the great pressure of Mr. Brewer's preparatory duties as conductor of the Festival, Dr. Elgar very kindly offered to score the work for his friend.

The church cantatas of John Sebastian Bach—of which there are no less than 190—always find a fitting place amid cathedral surroundings. So it was with 'Sleepers, wake!' performed on this occasion for the first time in the English language, and from the new edition prepared by Miss Troutbeck as translator, and Professor Prout as a safe editor of the music. The Bach-like character of the work—how well it harmonised with those magnificent Norman pillars—shows itself more especially in the choruses, which are constructed upon the theme of Philipp Nicolai's well-known chorale. The inclusion of the cantata in the Festival scheme was a decidedly happy thought upon which Mr. Brewer may be congratulated. The Hymn of Praise brought the day's music to a jubilant close. The solos of the evening were safe in the hands of Madame Albani and Madame Sobrino; Messrs. Ben Davies and Plunket Greene. The Hymn of Praise, we may add, was



A GLOUCESTER FESTIVAL REHEARSAL.

(From a Photograph by Mr. A. H. Pitcher, College Court, Gloucester.)

first performed in England in its revised and present form at the Gloucester Festival of 1841.

The Messiah on Friday morning brought this eventful Festival to a successful termination.

As on a former occasion, we give a list of the services and anthems sung by the three cathedral choirs at Evensong during the Festival:—

SERVICES (Evening).	ANTHEMS.
Smart in F.	Oh! clap your hands (Greene).
Walmisley in D minor.	O where shall wisdom be found? (Boyce).
Stainer in E flat.	Hosannah! (Gibbons).
Tallis in D minor.	The Wilderness (S. S. Wesley).

The attendance statistics we take from the columns of The Gloucester Journal:—

	1898.	1901.
TUESDAY—
Morning (Cathedral)	2,810	2,802
Evening (Cathedral)	1,794	1,418
WEDNESDAY—
Morning (Cathedral)	1,428	1,259
Evening (Shire Hall)	619	545
THURSDAY—
Morning (Cathedral)	1,364	1,741
Evening (Cathedral)	1,828	3,068
FRIDAY—
Morning (Cathedral)	3,117	3,306
	12,960	14,139

The numbers given above are those of tickets sold. The Stewards, and others, considerably swell the total in each case.

It is gratifying to learn that for the first time during about thirty years the Festival has paid its way. That finance and music should both be in such a healthy condition is a matter for congratulation and encouragement to the good people of Gloucester.

Finally, honourable mention must be accorded to Mr. A. Burnett, who ably led an excellent orchestra, and to Dr. G. R. Sinclair (of Hereford), and Mr. Ivor Atkins (Worcester), who presided with discretion and efficiency at the fine Willis organ in the Cathedral. The courtesy of the Stewards and that of Mr. P. Barrett Cooke, the amiable Secretary of the Festival, calls for full acknowledgment. Last, but not least, comes Mr. Herbert Brewer. What shall be the verdict upon him? One sentence: by his untiring energy, skilful engineering, alert musicianship, in the exacting office of conductor, he unmistakably earned full marks—and some over!

The photographs of the Cathedral and that of the Festival performers at a rehearsal are by Mr. A. H. Pitcher, College Court, Gloucester.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

'NEARER, MY GOD, TO THEE.'

The words of this widely-known hymn were amongst the last utterances of President McKinley, whose tragic death, in common with all English-speaking people, we greatly deplore. The hymn was written by Mrs. Sarah Adams (née Flower), born at Harlow, Essex, February 22, 1805, and died, London, August 14, 1848. She married, in 1834, Mr. William Bridges Adams, an eminent civil engineer. 'Nearer, my God, to Thee' made its first appearance sixty years ago in a collection entitled 'Hymns and Anthems' (1841), edited by the Rev. W. J. Fox, minister of the Unitarian Chapel in South Place, Finsbury, of which congregation Mrs. Adams was a member. The hymn has been translated into many European and other languages, and is often sung. Dr. Garnett says of it: 'which as a simple expression of devotional feeling at once pure and passionate, can hardly be surpassed.' The lyric has not, however, escaped being 'improved,' according to some lights. The late Bishop Walsham How re-wrote it 'as expressing more definitely Christian faith, and better adapted for congregational worship'! The Rev. Dr. Julian, editor of the 'Dictionary of Hymnology,' in commenting upon this version, says, with subtle irony: 'although in somewhat extensive use, it is the least musical of Bishop How's hymns.'

'Nearer, my God, to Thee,' which has found its way into many hymnals, is an instance of the catholicity of worship-song. Written by an Unitarian, it is sung by all sections of the Christian church, and has touched the hearts of millions of worshippers. An elder sister of Mrs. Adams—Miss Eliza Flower—is well-known as the composer of 'Now pray we for our country.'

The tune to which the words are invariably sung is that by the late Rev. J. B. Dykes, named 'Horbury.' It made its first appearance in 'Hymns Ancient and Modern' (1861), and has been reprinted in many collections. An extract from 'The Life and Letters of John Bacchus Dykes' (John Murray, 1897), throws an interesting light upon the composition of the tune and furnishes the origin of its name. His biographer, the Rev. J. T. Fowler, says:—

> On June 1st [1859] he visited the Rev. John Sharp, at Horbury, and preached there. The special object of this visit was to make his first confession. The hymn-tune which he named 'Horbury' was written at this time, to the words—> and it was, to him, a perpetual reminder of the peace and comfort he found there.
>
> "Nearer, my God, to Thee,"
>

Horbury is a manufacturing village, of some five or six thousand inhabitants, four miles south-west of Wakefield. Another well-known hymn-tune setting of Mrs. Adams's words is Sullivan's Proprior Deo, which he originally contributed to the 'Hymnary.'

The new organ, erected by Messrs. W. Hill and Sons, in St. Margaret's Church, Ilkley, was opened with a special service (at which the Bishop of Ripon preached) on the 4th ult., when an interesting recital was given by the organist of the church, Mr. Arthur T. Akeroyd. Subsequent recitals were given on the 11th and 17th ult., by Dr. H. Walford Davies, organist of the Temple Church, and Mr. C. W. Perkins, organist of the Birmingham Town Hall and Musical Festivals. It may not be without interest to give all three programmes, which were admirably annotated by their respective interpreters.

MR. ARTHUR T. AKEROYD.

Overture—'Occasional'	Handel.
Barcarolle	W. Sterndale Bennett.
Fugue in E major	W. T. Best.
Andante con moto in D	Frederic Archer.
First Sonata (Op. 42)	Guilmant.
Communion in F	Jules Grison.
Marche Triomphale	Lemmens.

DR. H. WALFORD DAVIES.

A Dedication Overture (MS.)	H. Walford Davies.
(a) Chorale—'O Mensch bewein' dein' Sünde gross' } (b) Fugue in E flat (St. Ann's)	Bach.
Sonata in E minor, No. 8	Rheinberger.
Voluntary in C	Stanley.
Two Sketches in C	Schumann.
Evening Song	Schubert.
Overture—'Otho'	Handel.

MR. C. W. PERKINS.

Grand Chorus in A flat	Salomé.
Toccata and Fugue in E	J. S. Bach.
(a) In Paradisum } (b) Fiat Lux	Dubois.
Good Friday Music (Parsifal)	Wagner.
Fantasia on the hymn-tune 'Jerusalem the Golden'	Anderton.
Canzonetta in G minor	Mendelssohn.
Meditation in A flat	Klein.
Minuet and Trio in D minor	A. T. Akeroyd.
Grand March in D	Raff.

Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise was announced to be sung by a choir of eighty voices on the 25th ult., with Miss Annie Docksey and Mr. Tom Child as principals, Mr. T. J. Hoggett at the organ, and Mr. A. T. Akeroyd at the conductor's desk, thus concluding a most successful organ inauguration.

A District Festival under the auspices of the Norwich Diocesan Church Choral Association, was held in St. Andrew's Church, Norwich, on the 17th ult., when about eighty voices, comprising the choirs of St. Andrew, St. Peter Mancroft, and St. Martin-at-Palace took part, being supported by a quartet of brass instruments. Dr. A. H. Mann presided at the organ, and Dr. Bates, honorary conductor of the Association, conducted. The service included Maunder's anthem 'Praise the Lord' and Dr. Bates's unaccompanied anthem 'I will lay me down in peace.'

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. Frank H. Mather, Church of the Advent, East Oakland, California (Sonata da Camera, A. L. Peace).—Mr. C. H. Kitson, Church of St. Alkelda, Middleham.—Mr. W. Deane, Cathedral Church of St. Michael and St. George, Grahamstown (Austrian National Hymn, Chipp).—Mr. George Rathbone, Cartmel Priory Church (Rondo and Intermezzo, Hollins).—Mr. W. Field Flowers, St. Paul, Covent Garden (Fantasia in E minor, Silas).—Mr. Harry H. Baker, St. John's, Devizes (Choral Song and Fugue, S. S. Wesley).—Mr. Edward G. Croager, Happisburgh Church, Norfolk (Canzona, Wolstenholme). — Mr. I. Foggitt, Primitive Methodist Church, Middlesbrough (Fantasia in C, Tours).—Mr. Roger Ascham, Port Elizabeth (Concert Overture, d'Evry). — Dr. Froggatt, St. Laurence, Thanet.—Mr. Henry M. Turton, St. Matthew's, Camp Road, Leeds (Musette by Jean François Dandrieu, 1684—1740, a Parisian Musician).

Mr. W. Deane gave a somewhat novel Bach recital in the Cathedral Church of St. Michael and St. George, Grahamstown (of which he is organist), on August 20. Four of the eleven numbers in the programme were organ pieces, and Mrs. W. Deane played a B minor Prelude, and the Prelude and Fugue in C sharp minor (from Book 2 of the '48'), on a pianoforte in the Cathedral! Mr. Deane thinks that this is the first Bach recital ever given in South Africa.

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. J. Alfred Bloor, St. Paul's Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Mr. R. Rayner Clark, St. Clement's Church, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Manchester.

Mr. Frederick Kitchener, Parish Church, Towcester.

Mr. P. Macdonald, St. Stephen's Church, Hounslow.

Mr. J. A. MacGregor (Choirmaster), Presbyterian Church, Lancaster.

Mr. F. Randall (organist) and Mr. Arthur Gosling (choirmaster), St Mark's Church, Marylebone Road.

Mr. Robert Treen, Erith Parish Church.

Mr. S. Wallbank, All Souls' (Hook Memorial) Church, Leeds.

Mr. W. H. Woodward, All Saints' English Church, Bordighera, Italy.

GLOUCESTER GLEANINGS,

OR ECHOES OF THE FESTIVAL.

(BY ONE WHO WAS THERE.)

Each English Cathedral has its own peculiar points of outstanding interest. At Gloucester, for instance, one is struck with the majesty of the Norman pillars in the Nave, the exquisite beauty of the Cloisters, the superb East window (the largest in the world), and that 'lovely sanctuary' the Lady Chapel. But there are nooks and corners that claim attention. Such an one, to musicians especially, is the South Chantry of the Lady Chapel, wherein is a window to the memory of Samuel Sebastian Wesley, organist of Gloucester Cathedral from 1865 to his death in 1876. Mr. Thomas W. G. Cooke, Subsacrist and Lay Clerk of the Cathedral—upon whose initiative, by the way, the window was placed therein—has kindly furnished the following description of this beautiful memorial, which will be read with interest in connection with our special photograph:—

The window, placed here in the year 1896, consists of three lights with perpendicular tracery above. In the first light (on the left) is St. Ambrose in full pontificals, holding in his right hand his pastoral staff, and in his left a scroll with music and words of the Ambrosian hymn, Te Deum Laudamus. At his feet is his proper attribute—The Bee Hive. In the second (middle) light is King David, crowned and richly robed, and playing upon his harp, which rests on a well-designed pedestal. The expression of the face is very fine. The third light contains St. Cecilia, who bears in her left hand an organ, upon the keys of which her right hand is resting.

Tracery (6 lights). In the two central lights are angels bearing a scroll, on which is written the words and music of 'And sorrow and sighing shall flee away,' being the last movement of Dr. Wesley's noble anthem 'The Wilderness.' In each of the four remaining lights is an angel playing upon an instrument.

The inscription at the bottom of the window reads:—

In Memory of Samuel S. Wesley, mus. doc., oxon., Organist of this Cathedral.
born, 1810. died, 1876.

In kindly sending the above description of the window, to the cost of which eighty persons contributed, Mr. Cooke truly says: 'The colouring is rich, yet subdued throughout, and its character is very spiritual.' It is a worthy memorial to one of the great masters of English Church Music.

Another Gloucester photograph (kindly lent by Mr. C. T. Johnson) is that of the organ keyboards in Wesley's day. The Great organ compass was to CCC, but the choir manual remained at GG. The organ, originally built by Harris in 1670, was re-built by Father Willis in 1847. 'It was my stepping-stone to fame,' remarked the veteran to the present writer. A further rebuilding and considerable enlargement (also by Willis) took place in 1889, when the keyboards were moved from the east to the south side of the instrument, but Harris's old case was left intact. The completion of the instrument—it is an exceedingly fine one with its four manuals—is due to Mr. Herbert Brewer, who personally collected £800 for that purpose. It may be added that Wesley died in the official residence of the organist, No. 7, Palace Yard. He drew his last breath in the drawing-room. 'He had a camp bedstead brought into this room,' Mr. Brewer tells us as we stand on the very spot, and his last words as he looked out of that window were, 'Let me see the sky.'

The Gloucester Journal was started in 1722 by Robert Raikes, a native of the city and the founder of Sunday schools. The paper has had only three proprietors during its long and useful existence of 179 years. Mr. H. Godwin Chance, M.A., part proprietor, and during the last ten years, editor and general manager of the paper, is an enthusiast in music. As an undergraduate, he sang in the choir of St. John's College, Cambridge, under the late Dr. Garrett, and was secretary of the St. John's Musical Society. He throws much energy into the secretaryship of the Gloucester Choral Society, and takes a warm interest in the musical doings of the county; he is joint-author with Mr. C. Lee Williams of the enlarged 'Annals of the Three Choirs' (1895).

Through his courtesy we were enabled to examine the file of The Gloucester Journal of 1802 (then spelt Glocester) for any incident at the Festival of one hundred years ago that might be of interest to-day. Here is the result :—

It is to be regretted, that Mr. Hyde was prevented by an accident from performing his admirable Trumpet Concerto. Being obliged to take an outside place on the Bath coach, by a sudden jolt he was thrown from his seat, but kept hold of the iron-stay with his hand, and was carried a considerable distance, hanging in that posture, till observed and relieved from so perilous a situation by the inside-passengers. By this misfortune, his side, particularly, was much hurt: he was able, however, to perform the solos in the Dettingen Te Deum, &c., in his usual superior style, altho' it was evident to those who stood near him that his exertions gave him much pain; but we hope he will be perfectly recovered by the Birmingham Meeting, where, we find, he is engaged.

THE MEMORIAL WINDOW TO DR. S. S. WESLEY IN GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.
(Photographed specially for The Musical Times by Mr. A. H. Pitcher, College Court, Gloucester.)

Some of the nobility attended the Festival of 1802, and the light-fingered gentry were not unrepresented.

We are sorry to add, that several depredations were committed in the avenue leading to the Concert-room. In particular, one gentleman lost his pocket-book containing notes to the amount of 60*l.*; and another had his pocket picked of a purse containing a small sum.—(Glocester Journal, Sept. 13, 1802.)

A behind-the-scenes side-light on the Festival of 1826 has been kindly placed at our disposal by Mr. Frederick Evans, of Gloucester, in the form of a letter written by William Mutlow, organist of the cathedral (of whom we gave a Malibran caricature portrait in our last number), to 'Mr. Hedgley, 20, Castle Street, Pimlico, London,' a well-known music copyist and librarian in his day. Here is the letter, which tells of the woes of a Festival conductor three-quarters of a century ago :—

Dear Sir,

Respecting Mr. Bond, I am sorry to say I cannot comply with his terms. I have Dragonetti, Philpots, and Chattaway. If Mr. Bond will come for Twelve Guineas,

I shall be glad to see him, if not I shall see for one on less terms. Harper is engaged. I have his answer saying he will come—25 guineas. I will thank you to see him. I cannot take three of the Lindleys and Marshall of Warwick. Respecting the London chorus singers, my terms are eight guineas each, and if either of the following should object to the terms, you must engage others in their room—Taylor*, Lewis, Tett, Hennies, Birt, Doane, Buggins, and Fisher. Say nothing to Doane on the subject.

Have you the vocal principals and chorus parts of the new words of the Creation? I want but 4 st, 4 2d, 3 [?] violas, 4 violoncs. Of anything you may send with the flutes, oboes, etc., will you send two cantos and two tenors of "He sent a thick darkness"?

THE KEYBOARDS OF THE GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL ORGAN, IN DR. WESLEY'S DAY.

(From a Photograph kindly lent by Mr. C. T. Johnson.)

I wish you would come and spend a week with me before the Meeting—you would relieve my mind very much. I am, yours truly, Gloucester, August 20, 1826. W. Mutlow.

* Doubtless Edward Taylor, afterwards Gresham Professor of Music.

Mr. Frederick Evans, to whom the above letter belongs, was the solo boy at Gloucester when Wesley became organist. He was the first to sing the solo in 'Blessed be the God and Father' under Wesley, and he well remembers the agony of that trying rehearsal—its length, the exacting composer, and the tears that were shed. But Wesley slipped a two-shilling piece into the boy's hand and kindly said, 'There, don't cry.' During his residence in London, Mr. Evans was a member of the Sacred Harmonic Society, but on his return to Gloucester (in 1876) he became a lay clerk of the Cathedral. He has had the distinction of singing the tenor part in a quartet with Madame Albani.

In lighter vein, are two choice specimens of provincial musical criticism:—

. . . . and the "Take all the prophets of Baal, bring all and slay them," by its determined energy, seemed to show that both choir and conductor had thoroughly grasped the Christian spirit of the words.

How Mendelssohn would have enjoyed that critic's Christianization of his Baal chorus! Again:—

There are composers and conductors who are eaten up with vanity, and who appear to believe that the universe was created for the sole purpose of producing them. Some of them will appear at Gloucester during the week.

As there were eight conductors of the Festival omnibus, this critical fare may be regarded as a passing jeer.

A well-patronised hostelry at Gloucester during the Festival week was the RAM—very homely sounding quarters for Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and any others reigning in or hailing from Tenterden Street.

DOTTED CROTCHET.

REVIEWS.

CHURCH MUSIC.

Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in B flat. By Edwin H. Lemare; Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in E Flat. By Boyton Smith.

I am not worthy. The Heavenly Word. Introits. By C. Lee Williams.

Kyrie Eleison in F. By B. Luard Selby.

(Novello's Parish Choir Book.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The first of the above evening services was written for the twenty-seventh annual festival of the London Church Choir Association, held in St. Paul's Cathedral, and as may be anticipated the work is of important design. Mr. Lemare's setting at once attracts attention by his having allied the first word to the first beat in the bar, accentuating these by the personal element in the text. The part writing will prove attractive to a well-trained choir. The Nunc Dimittis is opened impressively by the tenors and basses in unison, pianissimo. Mr. Boyton Smith's composition is opened by sopranos in unison, with a bright and melodious phrase. The verse beginning 'He remembering his mercy,' set for soprano solo, forms a good contrast to the dignified music of the Gloria. The Nunc Dimittis is allied to most impressive music of devotional character. The first of the Introits by Mr. Lee Williams opens with a soprano solo followed by a quartet. The music is eminently reverential. The second is an excerpt from the composer's cantata 'The Last Night at Bethany,' and consists of a quartet and chorus of fervent expression. Mr. Selby's Kyrie Eleison provides an alternative setting for his service in F, and will doubtless prove acceptable to many choirmasters. It consists of two principal strains, and the music is simple and flowing.

O God, Thou art my God. By Ferris Tozer.

Suffer not the little children. By Basil Harwood.

And God shall wipe away. By Frederick R. Greenish.

(Novello's Octavo Anthems.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Dr. Tozer's anthem, composed for this year's festival of the Exeter Diocesan Choral Association, is appropriately bright and confident in character. It contains a pleasing section for first and second sopranos, and concludes with an effectively developed fugue built upon a melodious subject. The anthem by Dr. Basil Harwood is intended for baptismal services, and to be sung unaccompanied. It will require a well-trained choir to do justice to the music, which, however, is not difficult to read, and moreover is interesting to sing. The third anthem on our list is the quartet from Dr. Greenish's cantata 'The Church Triumphant.' The music is melodious, and the part-writing is flowing and expressive. With smooth and careful singing, its impressiveness would be undoubted.

Communion Service in C. By H. M. Higgs.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Mr. Higgs is well-known as an earnest and accomplished musician, and his setting in C of the Communion Service reflects these estimable qualities very distinctly. Three alternative settings are provided for the responses to the Commandments, in addition to the final one, and their smooth and flowing character is indicative of the rest of the music. The composer has made his greatest effort in the Nicene Creed, which is set in a very scholarly manner. It contains a short tenor solo, and the part-writing demands a well-trained choir for its satisfactory delivery. The Benedictus and Agnus Dei, as well as an offertory sentence, the Sanctus and the Gloria in Excelsis are included, but although thus complete, the setting is by no means bordering on the land of prolixity, and this fact, combined with the reverential and devotional spirit of the music, will doubtless cause the composition to be widely accepted.

SONGS.

Shuttle and Loom. The Jacobite. Words and Music by William Wallace.

[G. Ricordi and Co.]

Both these compositions well merit the attention of vocalists. The former is a song of a mother to her 'bairnie,' whose 'laugh is as free as the wind in the wheat'; and music and words are instinct with poetry and healthy sentiment. The 'Jacobite' is a stirring ditty, breathing destruction and death to all, save those who 'stand on the heather, Where the clan fought together'—a song, in short, that, delivered with appropriate warlike spirit, would be sure to delight a peaceful and law-abiding audience.

Cradle Song. Calm at Sea. Huntsman's Song. By Alfred S. Henry. [Oppenheimer Bros.]

In this trio of songs the composer shows considerable versatility and originality. His harmonic schemes are bold, but they are manifestly dictated by desire to suggest the spirit of the text. The 'Cradle Song' is very pleasing, and a vocalist with dramatic perception could make 'Calm at Sea' impressive. The spirited and lively 'Huntsman's Song' may be said to express the spirit underlying the Nimrodic remark, 'It is a lovely day, let us go and kill something.' It should be added that the original German text of these songs—severally by Oscar Meyer, Goethe, and Ludwig Uhland—is given, and that the English versions are respectively by Miss Constance Bache, Mr. E. A. Bowring, and Mr. Frederick Corder.

Whimland. An Operetta for children. Words by R. G. Waddington. Music by S. P. Waddington.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

'Whimland' is one of the latest of the admirable series of Novello's School Music, and the whimsical title is justified by the character both of the libretto and music. The work consists of thirteen numbers, comprising three solos, two duets, seven choruses, and two dances. The story enforces a moral in a humorous fashion, and the music is bright and pleasing, and at the same time well designed for young folks' voices. It may be added that the characters consist of Fairy Patience, a wizard called Watto, and his attendant Thomo, and small parts for seven children. The dresses will be easy to provide, and the principal stage property is a tree, or, as it is modestly stated, 'the stump of one.' Thus it leaves very little to be desired, or provided.

Twelve Two-part Songs. For female voices. Words by Edward Oxenford. Music by Battison Haynes. [Novello and Company, Limited.]

One of the talents of the late Mr. Battison Haynes was aptitude for teaching, and he who teaches gains a lively knowledge of requirements in his art. While these Twelve Two-part Songs are eminently suited for school use—for which they were primarily composed—their melodious charm and musicianly qualities will make them equally acceptable in the home as well as to some children of older growth.

THE COMING SEASON.

The advanced guard of the autumn season—the Promenade Concerts—was this year so far in advance of the general army of concerts that their commencement has already been chronicled in our last issue. On account of its importance, and its regal title, the claims premier attention. As in preceding years, eight concerts are announced (commencing on November 7), seven of these being Subscription concerts, and one being the usual extra performance on Good Friday of 'The Messiah.' Some advance has been made in the introduction of fresh material by the announcement of Coleridge-Taylor's Leeds cantata 'The Blind Girl of Castél Cuillé,' and Handel's 'L'Allegro,' while the success of the two previous performances of the former composer's 'Hiawatha' induces a repetition of that beautiful trilogy. The prospectus also includes Dvorák's 'Spectre's Bride,' Mendelssohn's 'Walpurgis Night,' and Sir F. Bridge's Gloucester cantata 'The Forging of the Anchor.' 'The Messiah,' 'Elijah,' 'Redemption,' and 'Golden Legend,' complete an attractive programme.

Royal Choral Society

Queen's Hall.

Four Saturday Symphony Concerts will be given (the first on October 26) before Christmas, and four after, under Mr. Robert Newman's direction. The 'Golden Legend' will be performed on November 22, and 'Elijah' on December 12. Three recitals are to be given by Mr. Mark Hambourg; Messrs. Ysaye and Busoni will collaborate on November 7, and again on February 15, and these two artists will be joined by Herr Becker in three recitals, the first taking place on November 14, while later Signor Busoni will give two recitals alone, as also will Herr Becker on February 8. Mr. Edwin H. Lemare is announced to give five organ recitals, commencing November 13, while a novelty will be the inauguration of a series of Promenade Concerts on Boxing Night, extending to February 1. The London Ballad Concerts will be resumed on November 2. Under Mr. Vert's direction, Madame Clara Butt and Mr. Kennerley Rumford will give a concert at this Hall on the 12th inst., and Herr Kubelik a recital on November 19.

Foremost amongst the numerous performances at the Richter Concerts command notice. There will be three of them, the first taking place on the evening of the 26th inst. The Saturday Popular Concerts will be resumed on the same afternoon, and will be continued until December 14. The St. James's Hall Ballad Concerts will be re-commenced on November 6. The Soldat Ladies' Quartet announces three concerts.

St. James's Hall

Numerous pianoforte recitals are announced, prominent amongst the givers of these being Miss Fanny Davies (Three), Mr. Donald F. Tovey (Four), and Mr. Frederick Dawson, all under the direction of Mr. Vert, who is also responsible for three Kruse Quartet Concerts.

Vocal recitals will be given by Madame Marchesi, Herr Van Rooy, and Mr. Denis O'Sullivan. The Saturday Evening Orchestral Concerts under the direction of Mr. Edward O'Brien, will re-commence on the 5th inst.

Mdlle. Ilona Eibenschütz will give recitals at Bechstein Hall, and the Chaplin Trio will appear at Steinway Hall, in November.

At St. George's Hall, Mr. Charles Fry will this year increase his Shakespearian Costume Recitals to six, in which the music will as usual be an important feature. Mr. Arthur Fox has written some incidental music for the 'Winter's Tale,' and special interest to musicians will attach to the introduction of Dr. Boyce's Masque music to the 'Tempest.'

Suburban Societies.

The Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society announces eleven concerts, and these include Sullivan's 'Martyr of Antioch,' Stanford's 'Revenge' and 'Last Post.' The Finsbury Choral Association will give three concerts, and here indeed meritorious enterprise is shown in the choice of Elgar's 'King Olaf,' Stanford's 'Last Post,' Mackenzie's 'Dream of Jubal' and Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' (complete). Among the four concerts to be given by the People's Palace Choral Society, we find Parry's 'Judith.' These three Societies are now all under the experienced direction of Mr. Allen Gill.

The Highbury Philharmonic Society, now in its twenty-fourth season, announces but one actual novelty—a part-song, 'Firm in her native strength,' by A. C. Mackenzie, whose 'Britannia' overture will also be given. There will also be a concert recital of Sullivan's Opera 'Ivanhoe.'

The Bermondsey Settlement Choral Society will give among other works Beethoven's 'Mount of Olives,' and Schumann's 'Paradise and the Peri.'

The Streatham Choral Society will give three concerts, one of which will be the 'Hiawatha' Trilogy. Mr. Quance's Choral Society (Streatham) includes 'Hiawatha's Departure,' Bridge's 'Forging of the Anchor,' Gade's 'Crusaders,' and Mackenzie's 'Bride'; and the Clapham Choral Society includes Elgar's 'Dream of Gerontius' in the works named for practice.

For the six concerts announced by the South London Choral Association, the only quasi novelty named is 'Hiawatha's Departure.'

The West Norwood Choral and Orchestral Society proposes to include Bridge's 'Flag of England' and Mackenzie's 'Bride,' and the Beckenham Choral Society will give Parts 1 and 2 of 'Hiawatha.'

The Ealing Choral Society, with which is associated the Ealing Orchestral Society, announces the 'Hiawatha' Trilogy and Dvorák's 'Spectre's Bride.'

Concerning the movements of Provincial Societies,

information with regard to some of the earlier announcements will be found under the news supplied from various centres by our own correspondents.

Next month we shall hope to give a list of the doings of other Associations.

GADE'S 'ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER' DRAMATISED.

Those who attended the opening day of the Industrial Exhibition held in connection with the Westbourne Park Institute, on the 17th ult., had the novel experience of listening to and seeing a dramatised version of Gade's 'Erl King's Daughter.' The music was performed exactly as published, but Mr. Sam James, the conductor, had made the addition of very pretty costumes and scenery and dramatic action, with the result of a hearty acceptance by a considerable audience. Mr. T. Harry Bull sang and acted the part of Sir Oluff very creditably, his fine voice telling well; the parts of the Mother and the Erl-King's Daughter were undertaken by Miss Mabel Todd, who sang sweetly. The pianist, Mr. Frank M. Jephson, did his work well, and the 'appointments' were under the management of Mr. H. James. The choral singing was good.

QUEEN'S HALL PROMENADE CONCERTS.

It is not too much to say that Mr. Robert Newman's Promenade concerts at the Queen's Hall are yearly growing in artistic importance, and the present (seventh) series promises not only to be the most financially successful, but also the most distinguished from a musician's point of view. For the first fortnight no novelties were introduced, but it may be mentioned that in that period were played the Intermezzo 'Dorabella,' from Dr. Edward Elgar's variations on an original theme; Dr. Frederick Cowen's Overture 'The Butterfly's Ball' and the original version of the introduction to the third act of Wagner's 'Tannhäuser,' together with a large number of orchestral masterpieces.

TSCHAÏKOWSKY'S 'THE SWAN LAKE.'

On the 14th ult., the first performance in England was given of Tschaïkowsky's Suite 'The Swan Lake,' formed from the composer's first ballet of that name, and written in 1876 at the suggestion of Begichev, the stage manager of the Grand Theatre at Moscow. The suite comprises six movements, severally headed 'Scene,' 'Valse,' 'Dance of Swans,' 'Scene' (Andante), 'Hungarian Dance' (Czardás), and 'Scene' (Allegro Agitato). The most attractive of these are the 'Dance of Swans,' which is piquant and graceful, the second Andante which contains some brilliant passages for the harp and an expressive violin solo, and the final movement, which has a grandiose termination. The Czardás is commonplace and incongruous to the rest of the music, but it is only fair to the composer to add that it was inserted to meet the wishes of the ballet master. The suite is not a brilliant example of Tschaïkowsky's genius, but it is pleasing music and very picturesquely scored.

HUGO ALFVÉN'S SECOND SYMPHONY IN D.

A work of some importance was produced on the 17th ult. This was M. Hugo Alfvén's Second Symphony in D (Op. 11). The composer's music is little known in this country, but he is held in much esteem in Stockholm, where he was born in 1872, and where his First Symphony in F minor was produced, in 1897, by the Royal Court Orchestra, at the Opera House. The Symphony in D comprises the usual four movements, which follow classical lines. The opening number is written in a flowing style, is romantic in character, and at times becomes impassioned. The most effective portions of the slow movement are those dealing with tranquil sentiment. The scherzo is the most memorable portion of the work, being quaint and humorous in character, and it is scored after the manner of Grieg in his fantastic mood. The finale is preceded by a dignified prelude, which leads into some spirited fugal writing, effectively contrasted by a chorale.

The first performance of a pleasing Suite in F for a small orchestra, by Mr. F. Cunningham Woods, took place on the 19th ult. The work consists of five movements, respectively an Andante, Allemande, Slow Air, Minuet and Trio, and Scherzo and Trio. The most pleasing of these are the first two, which possess a certain picturesque daintiness and charm. The other numbers are less distinctive, but they are all written in a facile manner, and are notable for well balanced orchestration. It should be added that the orchestral playing, under Mr. Henry J. Wood, was of the first order, and that the performances have been marked by brilliancy, delicacy, and expressiveness.

M. SERGE MICHAELOVITCH LIAPOUNOFF.

The first performance in England of this Russian composer's Ouverture Solennelle was given on the 21st ult. As he is practically unknown in this country, it may be stated that he is sub-director of the Imperial Choir at St. Petersburg, and that he is forty-two years of age. In 1893 he was commissioned by the Government to collect the folk-songs in three of the Russian Provinces, and it is probable that the overture owes its inception to this commission, for it is stated on the title page that the music is based on Russian themes. Most effective use is made of these in the first section of the work, an adagio maestoso of impressive character. The allegro giocoso is of less interest, and towards the close it is marred by noisy scoring.

The first concert performance in London of an 'Elevation' in B flat, Sursum Corda (Op. 11), by Dr. Edward Elgar took place on the same evening. It is written for two trumpets, four horns, three trombones, tuba, drums, strings, and organ, and is a most impressive and noble piece. The principal subject is remarkable for breadth and dignity, and the development is most masterly.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Our musical interregnum this year was shorter than usual, the season beginning on the 9th ult. with a week's visit to the Theatre Royal of the Moody-Manners Opera Company. The works produced were 'Tannhäuser,' 'Lohengrin,' 'Faust,' 'Carmen,' and 'Siegfried,' the last-named for the first time in Birmingham. This drew a crowded house. A week later, at the Prince of Wales Theatre, the Carl Rosa Company repeated the first four operas, and produced for the first time here Gounod's 'Cinq-Mars.' This was on the 19th ult., and the opera, which was well performed, had a most enthusiastic reception. Of concerts there have as yet been few. The Midland Musical Society started the Saturday evening concerts on the 14th ult. with a very creditable performance of Handel's 'Samson.' Miss Aimée Wathen, Miss May Wayman, and Messrs. Clarence Savage, Walter Morgan, and Percy Taunton were the principals; Mr. J. Freeman played in able style the trumpet obbligato, Mr. C. W. Perkins was the organist, and Mr. H. M. Stevenson conducted.

The Halford Concerts Society is now the name of the undertaking for providing Birmingham with orchestral concerts of the first rank. Thus, this, the fifth season, will commence with the support of an influential body of guarantors. Mr. Halford, of course, retains his position as conductor.

A Convention of Choirmasters and Music Teachers was successfully held on the 19th, 20th, and 21st ult., under the presidency of Mr. J. Spencer Curwen, when papers were read by Mr. Thomas Facer (the local secretary of the Convention) on 'The Introduction of the Staff Notation to a class of children'; Mrs. Emil Behnke on 'Some causes of voice-failure in singers and speakers'; Mr. T. R. Croger on 'The organisation and conducting of amateur orchestras'; Mr. Henry Davey on 'Why musical history should be studied'; Mr. T. F. Harris on 'True intonation'; Mr. W. S. Desborough on 'The violin for elementary schools'; Mr. L. C. Venables, 'How does Tonic Sol-fa help choirmasters?'; Mr. W. Harding Bonner, 'Tonic Sol-fa plans applied to the staff notation'; Mr. Frank Sharp on 'Some points in class teaching'; Dr. W. J. Reynolds on 'The chorister'; Mr. J. Spencer Curwen on 'The training of the ear to recognise melodies and chords, as taught in the Tonic Sol-fa system'; and Mr. Filmer Rook on 'Voice-training in school classes.' The Lord Mayor of Birmingham (Alderman Samuel Edwards) presided at the opening function, Mr. C. W. Perkins (city organist) gave one of his acceptable organ recitals, Mr. Alfred Gaul presided at one of the meetings, and Mr. John Graham again proved himself to be an excellent general Secretary.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Choral and Orchestral Union have completed their arrangements for season 1901-2. Four choral and ten orchestral concerts will be given, and, of course, the usual 'popular' orchestral concerts on Saturday evenings. The choral works to be presented are Elgar's 'Caractacus,' Berlioz's 'Faust,' Parts 1 and 2 of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha,' and Cowen's 'Ode to the Passions.' The orchestral programmes will include Beethoven's 'Choral' Symphony. Dr. Cowen and Messrs. Sons and Bradley will conduct the performances.

The Paisley Choral Union will give three concerts, in two of which the Scottish Orchestra will take part. Clydebank Choral Union, under Mr. W. J. Clapperton, have

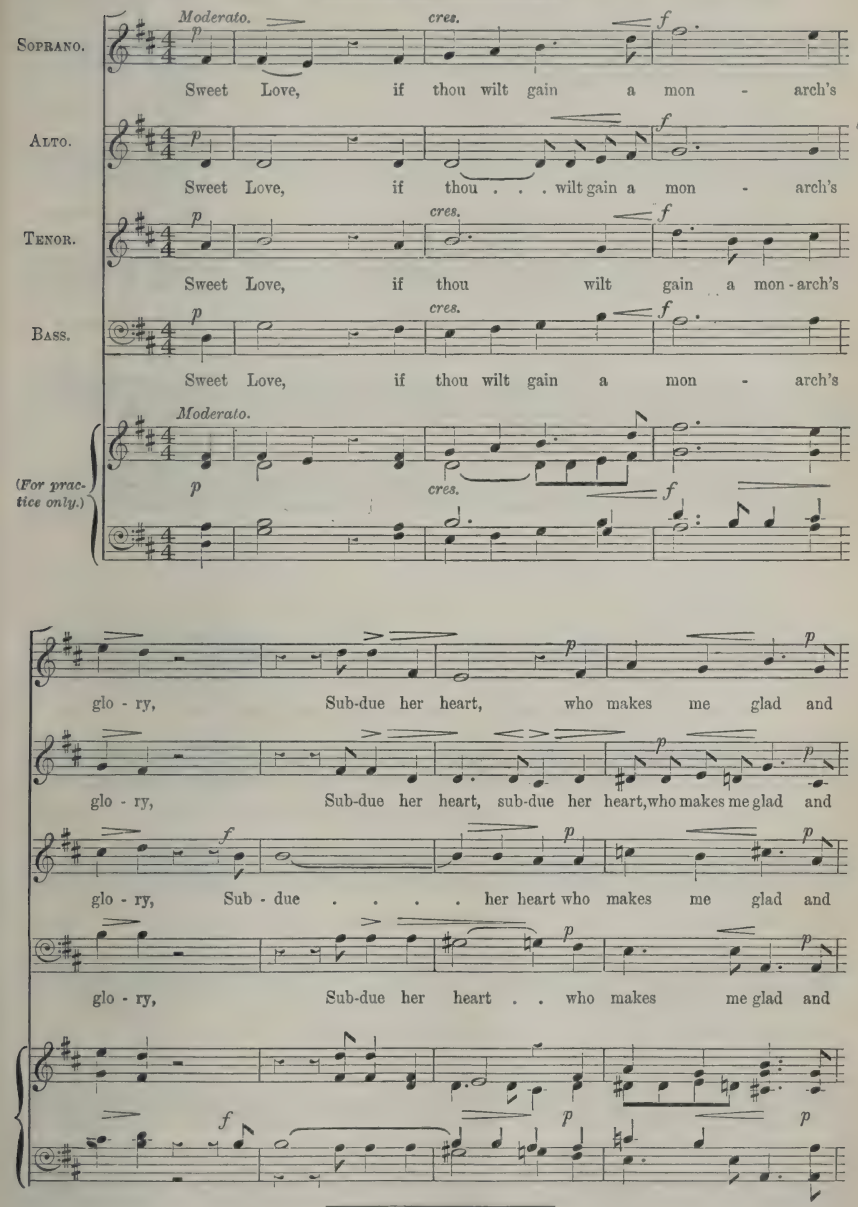
Continued on page 683.

Sweet Love, if thou wilt gain.

A FOUR-PART SONG.

Words Anonymous (Elizabethan). Composed by A. Redgrave Cripps, A.R.C.M.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; and NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., New York.



Moderato.
cres.
Soprano.
Sweet Love, if thou wilt gain a mon - arch's
Alto.
Sweet Love, if thou . . . wilt gain a mon - arch's
Tenor.
Sweet Love, if thou wilt gain a mon - arch's
Bass.
Sweet Love, if thou wilt gain a mon - arch's
(For practice only.)
glo - ry, Sub-due her heart, who makes me glad and glo - ry, Sub-due her heart, sub-due her heart, who makes me glad and glo - ry, Sub - due . . . . her heart who makes me glad and glo - ry, Sub-due her heart . . who makes me glad and

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

Poco più animato.
mf
cres.
sor - ry: Out.. of thy gold-en quiv - er Take then thy strong-est
sor - ry: Out.. of thy gold-en quiv - er Take then thy strong-est
sor - ry: Out.. of thy gold-en quiv - er Take then thy strong-est
sor - ry: Out.. of thy gold-en quiv - er Take then thy strong-est
Poco più animato.
mf
cres.
f
p ar - row That will through bone and mar - row, And ar - row That will through bone and mar - row, And ar - row That will through bone and mar - row, And ar - row That will through bone and mar - row, And
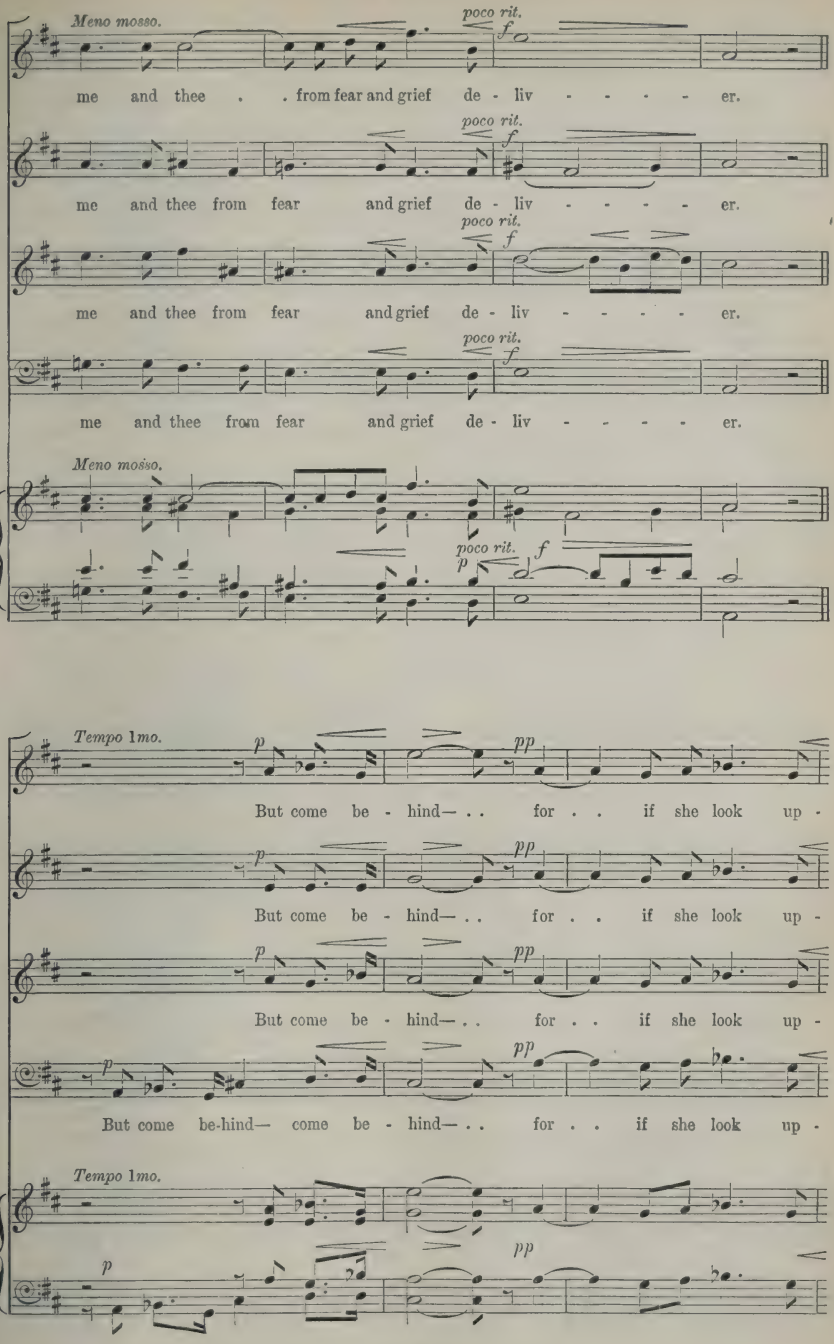
f
f
f
p



Meno mosso.
poco rit.
f
me and thee . . from fear and grief de - liv - - - - - er.
me and thee from fear and grief de - liv - - - - - er.
me and thee from fear and grief de - liv - - - - - er.
me and thee from fear and grief de - liv - - - - - er.
Meno mosso.
poco rit.
p
Tempo 1mo.
But come be - hind— . . for . . if she look up -
But come be - hind— . . for . . if she look up -
But come be - hind— . . for . . if she look up -
But come be-hind— come be - hind— . . for . . if she look up -
Tempo 1mo.
pp

p.
- on thee, A - las! poor Love! then
p.
- on thee, A - las! poor Love! then
p
- on thee, A - las! poor Love! then
p.
- on thee, A - las! poor Love! then
p
rall. e dim.
thou art woe - be - gone thee, woe - be - gone thee.
rall. e dim.
thou art woe - be - gone thee, woe - be - gone . . . thee.
rall. e dim.
thou art woe - be - gone thee, woe - be - gone . . . thee.
rall. e dim.
thou art woe - be - gone thee, woe - be - gone thee.
rall. e dim.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1229, price 1d.

GLASGOW—(Continued).

chosen Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' for their first concert. 'Elijah' will be given by Uddingston Choral Union (Mr. W. Padget Gale, conductor), Kirkintilloch Choral Union (Mr. A. Steven, conductor), and Pollokshields Philharmonic Society (Mr. John Cullen, conductor). For their first concert Cambuslang Choral Society (Mr. Herbert Walton, conductor) have chosen Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha.' The same work is being rehearsed by the choir of Woodlands Church under Mr. James Smith.

Handel again finds favour with the choral classes at the Young Men's Christian Association, 'Samson' being the work chosen by both the Central and the Southern sections, conducted respectively by Mr. R. L. Reid and Mr. J. Tannahill. The choir of the Sunday School Union (Mr. A. Steven, conductor) are preparing Handel's 'Messiah' for their annual concert. In the music classes of at least two continuation schools, Handel's 'Joshua' will be the subject of study.

The United Free Church Training College Musical Association (under Mr. James Gallie's conductorship) performed Elgar's 'The Banner of St. George' and miscellaneous pieces in the Grand Hall at the Exhibition on the 13th ult. This, we believe, is the first public performance of Elgar's stirring ballad in Glasgow and possibly in Scotland.

The organ in Cathcart United Free Church was opened on the 13th ult. by Mr. Walton. Mr. Carnegie's benefactions are not confined to the endowment of libraries. A considerable number of churches are availing themselves of his offer to defray half the cost of an organ, the only condition attached to the offer being that the congregation raise the other half. Organ-builders will view Mr. Carnegie's generosity with peculiar satisfaction.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. A. E. Rodewald continues to conduct admirably selected programmes each Sunday, at New Brighton Tower. On the 15th ult. he gave a special Wagner concert which drew an immense audience. The overtures to 'Die Meistersinger,' 'Tannhäuser,' and 'Faust,' and the Prelude and closing scene from 'Tristan and Isolde,' were rendered with much artistic finish. Mr. Fowler Burton sang 'O Star of Eve,' and 'Elizabeth's Prayer' ('Tannhäuser') was rendered carefully by Madame Laura Haworth.

The organ recital given by Mr. E. H. Lemare, on the 10th ult., at St. Saviour's Church, was one of the most largely attended affairs of the kind ever held in Liverpool. It may safely be said that nearly all the better known local organists were present, aud the gathering of the public spoke volumes for the close interest taken in musical affairs in this city. The new three-manual organ (by Messrs. Lewis and Co., Ltd.) proved to be both a sweet-toned and a powerful instrument, and the 'choir' portion of it has some specially good features.

Another new organ was opened on the 14th ult., to wit, that in the New Church, Bedford Street North. This also is a fine instrument, by Messrs. Norman and Beard, Ltd., Norwich. Mr. John Holgate (of Manchester) gave an interesting recital, well qualified to test the merits of the instrument.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Again, with the approach of winter, we are thinking over its delights, and counting our chances of pleasure and solace during the dull and cold season which will so soon be here. And on all sides provision seems to be making by those on whom we confidently rely, and upon whom we have so often depended. On the 17th the Hallé Concerts will be resumed, and Dr. Richter promises many enjoyments to be spread over the twenty Thursday evenings of the subscription season. The list of engagements is long and attractive; and among the works to be performed Bach's great B minor Mass, Gluck's 'Orpheus,' and the 'Faust' of Berlioz will show how zealously Mr. Wilson has drilled the choir; while Brahms's third Symphony, Dvorák's second, and the second, third and fifth of Beethoven will test the merits of the enlarged orchestra, which the conductor contemplates taking ere long to various continental capitals to show what excellence an English band may attain unto. We shall be glad to hear—none too soon—Mackenzie's 'Burns Rhapsody' properly rendered here, and to listen to the new works of Elgar, and other British composers. The Gentlemen's Concerts (eight in number) will again be given in the Town Hall, and will commence October 14th. Mr. Brodsky will increase the number of those charming chamber music recitals whereby he has enlarged and varied the scope of our enjoyments, and substantially aided the fund enabling the directors of our Royal College of Music to assist the most deserving pupils to prolong their studies in that Institution. Some of them are now worthily placed in the Hallé Orchestra, and several of the vocalists are most acceptably listened to at our highest class concerts, in association with metropolitan artists of rank.

Mr. G. W. Lane has issued a prospectus which should draw to the Free Trade Hall greater crowds than ever; although it is difficult to foresee how more of his patrons could be accommodated. For his performance of 'Elijah' he has secured Madame Marchesi; and his general list of soloists seems to include almost everybody of distinction.

Dr. Henry Watson will open the thirty-fifth session of his vocal society with Cowen's cantata, 'The Sleeping Beauty'; to be followed at the second meeting by his 'Psalm of Thanksgiving' specially written for a festival of Nonconformist choirs to be held here on the 19th inst., naturally following the competition recently held in the Botanical Gardens, when Drs. Watson and Keighley adjudicated.

Dr. Kendrick Pyne's Organ Recitals will again draw to the Town Hall the lovers of serious music; while, also on the Saturday evenings, Mr. Cross will at the Association Hall cater for the general public.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

In this district the prospects for the season, as represented by the respective programmes of the various Societies, are decidedly encouraging. The scheme of the Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society includes Elgar's 'King Olaf,' Handel's 'Israel in Egypt,' and Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' in addition to two orchestral concerts, all under the direction of Mr. Henry J. Wood. Gounod's 'Faust' and Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' are to be given by the West Bridgford Choral Society. The Riddings Choral Society has undertaken a performance of 'Judas Maccabæus.' At Stapleford, the Choral Society will devote its efforts to a 'Sullivan' concert, the items selected from the late composer's part-songs, choruses and anthems, while its two remaining concerts will comprise performances of the 'Messiah' and 'Judas Maccabæus. Mr. Robert Newman has invited the Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society to give a Festival performance of 'Elijah' at the Queen's Hall, on Thursday, December 12. Supported by the Queen's Hall Orchestra and first-rate principals, a very fine performance should result, as this Society is to be heard at its best in Mendelssohn's oratorio.

The Derby Choral Union announces performances of 'Maritana' and Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha,' and the Melbourne Glee and Madrigal Society is rehearsing Mendelssohn's '95th Psalm.'

At Leicester, the New Musical Society is putting into rehearsal 'Elijah,' 'St. Cecilia's Day' (Parry), and the 'Sleeping Beauty' (Cowen). The Leicester Philharmonic is reported to be working at Gounod's 'Romeo and Juliet' and Sullivan's 'Martyr of Antioch,' whilst the Orpheus Society will devote itself to glees and part-songs.

The Boston Choral Society intends to give a performance of 'Judas Maccabæus' at its first concert. In Nottingham, Miss Cantelo will continue her admirable series of chamber concerts, for which she has issued a most attractive programme.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The forthcoming musical season promises to be as busy as any of its predecessors. The Sheffield Amateur Musical Society announces the first performance in the city of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' (complete), under Mr. Schollhammer's direction.

The Sheffield Musical Union (Dr. Coward) maps out an ambitious scheme for the season, including in its list Sullivan's 'Golden Legend,' Stanford's 'Phaudrig Crohoore,' two 'Messiah' concerts, and a concert performance of Wagner's 'Flying Dutchman.'

The Rotherham Choral Society (Mr. T. Brameld) announces selections from Bach's B minor Mass, Mendelssohn's 'Walpurgis Night,' and 'The Messiah.'

The Doncaster Musical Society (Mr. T. Brameld) will perform Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' (complete) and 'The Messiah.'

At Barnsley the St. Cecilia Society (Dr. Coward) is preparing 'Elijah' and 'The Golden Legend.'

The Sheffield Male Glee and Madrigal Society (Mr. J. A. Rodgers) announces a lengthy list of pieces for the season, including works by Beale, R. L. de Pearsall, Distin, Hatton, Lee Williams, and others. At St. Mary's Church, Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' will be performed on an extensive scale, and 'The Creation' is announced at St. Peter's (Abbeydale) Church.

The Sheffield Orchestra will give four concerts during the season, under Dr. Coward. An interesting list of works includes symphonies by Beethoven, Dvorák, Tschaïkowsky, and Mozart, and a long array of overtures and suites, Wagner being well represented.

The Chapeltown and District Harmonic Society (Mr. Bool) announces Beethoven's 'Mount of Olives,' Rossini's 'Stabat Mater,' and Bach's 'Bide with us.'

The visit of the Moody-Manners Opera Company during the past month was made notable by the first performance in Sheffield of Wagner's 'Siegfried,' with Mr. Philip Brozel in the title part. The theatre was crowded, and a fine performance had an enthusiastic reception. Meyerbeer's 'L'Etoile du Nord' was also revived with success.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Bezieres.—The annual representations given at the Théâtre des Arènes, which took place last month, comprised the performances of the tragedie lyrique 'Promethée,' by Jean Lorrain and Ferdinand Hérold, the music by Gabriel Fauré, and of a new ballet 'Bacchus Mystifié,' for which M. Max Ollone has written the score. The festival, at which some fifteen thousand spectators assisted, was in every way successful.

Catania.—Great preparations are going forward to celebrate in a worthy manner the hundredth anniversary of the birthday of Bellini, next month.

Darmstadt.—The composer Arnold Mendelssohn is just now actively engaged upon the score of a new oratorio entitled 'Samson,' the book of which, constructed on scriptural texts, has been furnished him by Hermann Wette.

Dresden.—The conductorship of the Robert Schumann Singakademie has been placed into the hands of Herr Albert Fuchs, a well-known Dresden musician and a professor at the Conservatorium, the former conductor, Herr Baumfelder, having resigned the position.

Eisenach.—A Beethoven festival is to be held here, from the 5th to the 7th inst., by the Musik Verein, assisted by the excellent Meiningen orchestra and by a number of distinguished solo interpreters. Professor Carl Halir will play the violin concerto of the master and Mr. Frederick Lamond the pianoforte concerto in E flat major. Amongst the numbers included in the programme is the very rarely heard terzetto 'Tremate, empj, tremate' for soprano, tenor, and bass. The festival will conclude with the performance of the ninth symphony. General Musik Director Fritz Steinbach, of Meiningen, will be the conductor.

Hamburg.—Herr Theoder Gerlach, a composer of some importance, has written what he terms a 'spoken opera,' a novel species, of which he is the inventor, and which is to be shortly brought out at the Stadt Theater. The work is entitled 'Nordsee Bilder,' and deals with a tragic subject.

Laibach.—The Philharmonic Society opened its new concert season with the performance of Cherubini's 'Requiem,' in memory of its late president, Dr. F. Keesbacher. This society is one of the oldest in existence, having been founded, as 'Academia Philharmonicorum,' in January, 1702. It will therefore be able to celebrate its two-hundredth anniversary in January next, on which occasion a four days' musical festival is to be held.

Leipzig.—The new one-act opera, 'The Shade of Werther,' by Signor Alberto J. Randegger, was produced with success, on the 2nd ult., at the Stadt Theater. The work had already been previously performed, some few months since, in Italy.

Liegnitz.—Benjamin Bilse, the famous orchestral conductor and a great favourite with the late Emperor William, has just celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday. He is the doyen of those conductors of symphonic music who nowadays travel in company with their own orchestras. It was Bilse, too, who at the ball given at the Prussian embassy, during the Paris Exhibition of 1867, conducted the famous polka which the Crown Prince (afterwards the unfortunate Emperor Frederick) danced with the Empress Eugènie.

Marienbad (Bohemia).—A Warsaw sculptor has been commissioned by a number of Chopin admirers to execute a bust of the composer, which is to be placed, together with a commemorative tablet, at the house inhabited by Chopin during his visit in 1836.

Mayence.—The Liedertafel Choral Society, under the very able and active direction of Professor Fritz Volbach, who so successfully carried out this year's Beethoven Festival, is already preparing for a similar festival in honour of Berlioz, Liszt, and Wagner, to be held in April next, and extending over five days. The committee will have the co-operation of the Munich Kaim orchestra and that of Herr Weingartner as conductor. An interesting programme has just been published.

Munich.—A monument has been erected, at Tutzing cemetery, in memory of the great Wagner tenor, Heinrich Vogl. One of its special features is a cross, at the foot of which is placed the cup of the Holy Grail, while over it hovers a dove—an allusion to Lohengrin, of which character Vogl was one of the most admirable interpreters.

Paris.—M. Camille Saint-Saëns has completed his new opera 'Les Barbares,' the libretto of which has been furnished him by M. Sardou, and the work is now being actively mounted at the Grand Opéra. At the Opéra Comique, performances were resumed on the 14th ult. with 'Carmen.' The Grand Concerts Populaires, instituted by the late M. Pasdeloup, are to be resuscitated under the direction of M. Victor Charpentier, the brother of the well-known composer. Two performances of symphonic music are to be given during the present season, twice a week, with a first-rate orchestra engaged for the purpose. On the initiative of the Minister of Public Instruction, a complete and elaborate history is to be compiled, by competent authors, of the Conservatoire. The famous institution had its origin in the foundation, in 1784, of the 'Ecole royale de chant et de déclamation.'

Rome.—The new drama from the pen of Gabrielle d'Annunzio, 'Francesca da Rimini,' which is shortly to be produced here with Eleonora Duse and Gustavo Salvini in the principal parts, has been provided with important musical numbers by Antonio Scontrino of the Musical Institute, in Florence. These consist of an overture, four entr'actes, and several choral numbers.

Salzburg.—The financial result of the Mozart Festival held here recently has been so satisfactory that it has been decided to hold similar meetings periodically—i.e., every five years. A fund established for this purpose has already been liberally subscribed for, amongst others, by the Emperor of Austria.

Scheveningen.—At one of the recent orchestral concerts, given at the Kursaal, a new 'Rhapsodie hollandaise,' by a young Utrecht musician, M. van Anrooy, attracted considerable attention on account of its interesting polyphonous treatment of the popular air 'Piet Hein,' by the late Dr. Viotta. The work, which is one of great promise, met with a most enthusiastic reception. The young American violinist, Miss Maud Powell, has successfully appeared at these concerts.

Visby.—Within the picturesque ruins of the Church of St. Nicolas, in this ancient Hansa town, there was recently performed a mystery play, entitled, 'Sancta Maria,' by the Swedish dramatist, Topelius. The music, which forms an important part in the play, is from the pen of Andreas Hallén, a well-known Swedish composer, whose opera, 'Harald der Wiking,' has been succesfully produced both in Leipzig and Stockholm. All the performers in the play were amateurs, Herr Hamrin, an actor of the Stockholm theatre, being stage manager. The representation, which created much interest, is to be repeated next year.

OBITUARY.

We regret to record the death, at the age of seventy-three, of William Davies (Mynorydd), which took place at 41, Blenheim Crescent, Notting Hill, on the 22nd ult. Mr. Davies was well known and greatly esteemed in Welsh musical circles in London and throughout the Principality. He was the father of Mrs. Mary Davies.

On August 31, at 5, Colosseum Terrace, Regent's Park, in his 65th year, Percy Edgar Rivers, a teacher of singing who studied in Milan under Ronconi, Nava, and Lamperti.

Fritz Simrock, chief of the famous music publishing house in Berlin, died, on August 20, at Lausanne, at the age of sixty-five. The firm, originally established in Bonn in 1770, were the publishers of Beethoven and Mendelssohn, and the deceased was fortunate enough also to acquire the copyright of nearly all the works of Brahms. Herr Simrock's house in Berlin was famous for its splendid artistic entertainments.

Richard Kleinmichel, the well-known musical savant, and composer of the operas 'Schloss de Lorme' and 'Der Pfeifer von Dusenbach,' both first brought out at the Hamburg Stadt Theater, died recently at Berlin, at the age of fifty-five. He successfully edited a number of standard operatic works, ancient and modern, and for the last twelve months had been editor of the Leizig Signale.

As we go to press we regret to hear of the death, on the 22nd ult., of Mr. Kellow J. Pye, in his ninety-first year. We hope to give a biography of the veteran musician in our next issue.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE INSPECTOR OF MUSIC AND THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Dear Sir,—I was much surprised and indignant to find that the Board of Education has practically and most unjustly displaced Dr. W. G. McNaught from the position he has so long and so efficiently filled. It appears to me to be an act of insanity on the part of the Department, in having disregarded the claims of one so efficient, whose urbanity and musical skill has won for him hosts of friends and admirers throughout the country. They will, without doubt, be indignant and astonished by the unjust treatment that has been meted out to Dr. McNaught.

I am, dear Sir, yours truly,

4, Pryme Street, Hull. Thos. Hopkinson.

September 18, 1901.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Brixton Oratorio Choir, to whose excellent work we have previously referred, have issued a prospectus of oratorios and other sacred music to be performed in Brixton Church between October and May. This document expresses 'profound satisfaction that the formation and first season's work of the Choir were attended with a success that exceeded all expectation.' The conductor is Mr. Douglas Redman.

Mr. William Hutt, who has held the appointment of organist and choirmaster of Winchester College for thirty-six years, resigned that post at Midsummer last. He succeeded Dr. S. S. Wesley, who held the appointment concurrently with the organistship of Winchester Cathedral from 1849 to 1865.

The Mozart Society (founded and conducted by Herr J. H. Bonawitz) announces an interesting series of concerts to take place during the winter months. The programme of the tenth anniversary concert (Portman Rooms, the 26th inst.) is entirely Mozartian, and includes the lovely G minor quintet.

Mr. Seymour Dicker has been appointed Musical Director of the South-Western Polytechnic, Chelsea. Mr. Dicker was for many years organist of Brisbane Cathedral, and is now organist of Clerkenwell Parish Church.

Mr. Hulbert L. Fulkerson has been singing with much acceptance at Cleveland, U.S.A., where he formerly resided, and where he was prominent in musical circles.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Constant Subscriber. — (1) Baldassaro Donati (or Donato) was an Italian contrapuntist of the sixteenth century and held choirmasterships at St. Mark's, Venice, from about 1562 till his death in 1603. Donati was one of the most distinguished composers of madrigals and motets of his time. (2) Michael Este (Est, East, or Easte, as he variously spelled his name), supposed to be the son of Thomas Este, was born in the latter part of the sixteenth century. He took the degree of Mus. Bac. at Cambridge in 1606, was master of the choristers of Lichfield Cathedral, about 1618, and probably died about thirty years later. His publications (madrigals, anthems, etc.) appeared between 1604 and 1638. Hardly anything is known of his life.

Ambrose Gregory, Junr.—For a study of the Gregorian Tones consult Helmore's Plain-Song Primer; the article Modes, Ecclesiastical (by Rockstro), in Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians; Archbishop Walsh's A Grammar of Gregorian Music (M. H. Gill & Son, Dublin); Haberl's Majister Choralis, English edition published by Washburne, Paternoster Row; and a Primer of Plain Chant, by Charles Walker (Catholic Truth Society).

Dora.—You are quite right. Such an abbreviation, even in an annotated programme, as 'Sops' might literally be considered impolite to those lady members of the chorus who sing the upper part. There is an increasing need for an Anti-Abbreviation Society.

G. D.—Parts for clarinets in B flat should be written one tone higher than the normal key of the piece, i.e., if the piece is in C, the parts for the above-named instruments would be written in the key of D.

Albus.—For conditions, &c., concerning the Coronation March prize composition competition apply to the Clerk of the Musicians' Company, Mr. John T. Theobald, 35, Bedford Row, London.

Carlton (September issue).—A correspondent thinks he has caught the 'Owl' you are seeking, in that written by Mr. F. E. Weatherley, set to music by Stephen Adams, and published by Messrs. Boosey & Co.

Down South.—We have heard of the practice of putting honey into the bag of the bagpipes, but we are unable to say if the process makes the music sweeter.

A. W. H.—We cannot give an opinion upon the various 'Colleges' (so-called) and their examination exploits.

An Alto.—The three sacred alto songs by Molique (Op. 39) seem to be out of print.

Mona.—Thanks; but we have no Poet's Corner.

Several questions, which reached us late in the month, are held over.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

ADAMS, JOSEPH H.—"The Gentle Shepherd." Song. No. 3, in G. For Mezzo-Soprano. 2s.

BAIRSTOW, E. C.—"The dawn of song." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. (No. 868. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

BRAUN, CHARLES—"The country mouse and the town mouse; or, Better a crust in peace than a feast in fear." A short humorous Cantata. The words (after Æsop) written by Shapcott Wensley. Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined, 1s. Book of words, 25s. per 100.

BUTTON, H. ELLIOT—"O Mary dear." Four-part Song. (No. 871. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 2d.

COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S.—"The Blind Girl of Castél-Cuillé." Op. 43. Cantata. For Soprano and Baritone Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. The poem translated from the Gascon of Jasmin by H. W. Longfellow. 2s. 6d.

—— "Idyll," for Orchestra. Arrangement for Violin and Pianoforte by the Composer. 2s.

—— Ditto. 1st Violin, 6d.; 2nd Violin, 6d.; Viola, 6d.; Violoncello, 6d.; Basso, 3d.

CRIPPS, A. REDGRAVE—"Sweet love, if thou wilt gain." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. (No. 704. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

DAVIES, H. WALFORD—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. Op. 12, No. 2. 6d.

FANING, EATON—"Liberty." Dramatic Scene. The words written by Somerville Gibney. (No. 867, Novello's Part-song Book.) 6d.

FETHERSTON, Rev. Sir G. R.—"Holy Father, in Thy mercy." Hymn. 2d.

HURST, RICHARD—Four Hymn Tunes. 2d.

LEMARE, EDWIN H.—"Chant sans paroles." Arrangement for Violin and Pianoforte, by E. F. R. 2s.

—— (in G). Threefold Amen. On Card. (No. 574. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.

MACFARREN, G. A.—"I indeed baptize you with water." Song. For Baritone. From the Oratorio "St. John the Baptist." 1s. 6d.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"The Singers." Four-part Song. For S.A.T.B. (No. 870. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d.

MARCHES FOR THE ORGAN (Twenty-four Popular). In Two Volumes, 4s. 6d. each. For Contents, see page 696.

PRICE, E. A.—Coronation Hymn, "O King of Kings, Thy blessing shed." Staff notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined. 1d.

QUILLIAM, S. LINDSAY—"Come, ye thankful people, come." Hymn. 1d.

ROECKEL, J. L.—"Little Snow-White." An Operetta for Young People. Words by Shapcott Wensley. Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined. 2s.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 112. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Oh! happy the heart of a child." Two-part Chorus. By S. P. Waddington. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

		A.	B.
No. 542.	Hail! smiling morn. Glee. Arranged for S.A.B. .. .. .. R. Spofforth	—	1d.
„ 543.	O happy fair. Glee. For S.A.B. W. Shield	—	1d.
„ 544.	Ye spotted snakes. Glee. Arranged for S.A.B. .. .. .. R. J. S. Stevens	—	1d.
„ 545.	Blow, blow, thou winter wind. Glee. Arr. for S.A.B. .. .. R. J. S. Stevens	—	1d.
„ 546.	Here, in cool grot. Glee. Arranged for S.A.B. .. .. Earl of Mornington	—	1d.
„ 547.	From Oberon, in fairyland. Glee. Arranged for S.A.B. .. .. R. J. S. Stevens	—	1d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—

No. 1209.	Liberty	Eaton Faning	3d.
„ 1210.	Daybreak	„ „	3d.
„ 1211.	Tell me where is fancy bred ..	Richard Knight	1d.
„ 1213.	O Lord, correct me, but with judgment	J. Coward	1d.
„ 1227.	Come let us sing. Solo and Chorus	Mendelssohn	2d.

BOUNDY, KATE—"The rival flowers." An Operetta. For Schools and Classes. 6d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—

HAYNES, BATTISON—"The Sea-Fairies." Cantata. For Soprano Solo and Chorus of Female Voices. 6d.

WESLEY, S. S.—"O Lord, my God" ("O Arglwydd, fy Nuw"). (Rhif 11. Anthemau Novello.) 1c.

WEST, FLORENCE ETHEL—"A Midsummer's Day." An Operetta of Dance and Song. Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined, 1s. 6d. Book of words, 25s. per 100.

WESTOBY, CHARLES F.—(in A). Benedicite, omnia opera. A shortened form. 2d.

WILLIAMS, C. LEE—"Ye mariners of England." A Naval Ode. For S.A.T.B. (No. 869. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

WATSON, HENRY—"A Psalm of Thanksgiving." A Cantata. For Soprano Solo, Quartet, and Chorus, with Organ Accompaniment. 1s.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Alfred Hollins (with special Portrait and Illustrations)	649
Charles Dibdin on Tour	656
Schubert and British Poets	659
Friedrich Chrysander (with special Portrait)	661
Occasional Notes	665
Leeds Festival Novelties	667
Gloucester Musical Festival (Illustrated)	668
Church and Organ Music	672
Gloucester Gleanings (Illustrated)	673
Reviews	676
The Coming Season	677
Gade's 'Erl-King's Daughter' dramatised	677
Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts	678
Music in Birmingham	678
„ Glasgow	678
„ Liverpool and District	683
„ Manchester	683
„ Nottingham and District	683
„ Sheffield and District	684
Foreign Notes	684
Obituary	685
Correspondence	685
Miscellaneous	685
Answers to Correspondents	685
Music published during the last Month	686
Four-part Song, 'Sweet love, if thou wilt gain.' By A. Redgrave Cripps	679
Four-part Song, 'Since thou, O fondest.' By C. Hubert H. Parry.—(Extra Supplement.)

TWO Extra Supplements are given with this number: (1) A Portrait of Mr. Alfred Hollins, from a photograph taken by Mr. W. Crooke, of Edinburgh; (2) Four-part Song, 'Since thou, O fondest,' by C. Hubert H. Parry.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

GRESHAM COLLEGE MUSIC LECTURES

By SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE.

Tuesday, October 22 .. "The Vocal Music of John Jenkins."
Wednesday, " 23 and Thursday, " 24 } Orchestral Studies (The Trombone).
Friday, " 25 "Some little known Orchestral Music by Handel."

The first Lecture in Gresham College, the others in the City of London School, Thames Embankment, at 6 p.m. Admission free.

MR. FOLEY BANKS (Tenor)
(Soloist, St. Peter and St. Edward's, Westminster)
127, Upton Park Road, Forest Gate, E.

CHARLES ELLISON (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c. 42, Florence Rd., New Cross.

MR. FRED NORCUP (Tenor)
(Vicar-Choral of Westminster Abbey).
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts.
Address, 139, Cambridge Street, London, S.W.

MR. WILLIAM RILEY (Baritone)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Terms, &c., apply, Huddersfield.

MISS LOUISA RATCLIFF
(SOPRANO).
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.
Lingfield, Dulwich Rise, S.E.

MISS AMY MARTIN
(CONTRALTO), A.L.A.M.
Oratorios and Concerts.
Of the Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, and Promenade Concerts.
Address, Trentham, Forest Hill, London.

MISS K. KELYN WILLIAMS
(CONTRALTO)
(Late John Thomas Welsh Scholar).
Goldberg Prize, Silver Medalist, and Certificate, R.A.M.,
Medalist, Society of Arts. 15, South Grove, Peckham, S.E.

MR. BRIGHT JONES
(Late PRINCIPAL TENOR, Moody-Manners Opera Company).
Terms, apply, Glenhurst, Bath; or, C. W. Sinkins, 63, Berners St., W.

MR. ROLAND HOYLE
(BARITONE).
Terms, Press notices, &c. Dalby Street, Longsight, Manchester.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN
(BASS),
Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music, of the Gloucester and Cheltenham Festivals, &c.
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

MR. HENRY J. B. DART, Organist, Paddington Parish Church, PREPARES YOUTHS for the MUSICAL PROFESSION. The complete Course embraces Choir-training, Accompanying, Theory, and Playing. Terms moderate. 14, Kilburn Priory, N.W.

MR. HAROLD E. MACKINLAY, F.R.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c.; also Organ and Pianoforte. Preparation for Musical Examinations, personally or by post. Terms moderate. 53, Marquess Road, Canonbury, N.

VOICES TRAINED (Altos included) and Sight-Singing and the PIANOFORTE TAUGHT by Mr. W. A. FROST (Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral), at 16, Amwell Street, Myddelton Square, E.C. Many pupils of Mr. Frost have obtained Cathedral and other Choir Appointments in open competitions.

TENOR WANTED, for St. Saviour's Church, Brixton. Good reader. Two Services Sunday, Rehearsal Friday, usual Festivals. Solo and Chorus work, £10. Write J. H. Olding, 145, Barcombe Avenue, Streatham Hill.

TENOR WANTED, for St. Paul's, Kilburn. Good reader essential. Salary, £15 per annum. Write, stating experience, to Leonard Butler, 1, Brondesbury Road, N.W.

TENOR SOLOIST WANTED for St. Paul's, Camden Square. Good Reader. Choral services. Oratorio selections. Stipend, £20 per annum. Vicar, 37, Camden Square, N.W.

TENOR WANTED, for St. Michael's, Paddington. £15 to £20. Good reader. Apply, by letter only, to Edmund Rogers, 45, Alma Square, N.W.

TENOR, BASS, and ALTO REQUIRED, for West Suburban Church. State experience, and salary required, which must be moderate. Choir, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUNG ORGANIST desires ENGAGEMENT, Sydenham or district. Well recommended and experienced. Small Salary. Address, J. M., 24, Cranmer Road, Brixton, S.W.

ACCOMPANIST accepts ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts, At Homes, private practice of professionals, &c. Address, Accompanist, 347, King Street, Ravenscourt Park, W.

WANTED, smart Young Man as UNDER TUNER. Good opening for suitable man. Send references, photo, & full particulars, to A. Hanson & Co., Buxton Rd., Huddersfield.

FIRST-CLASS FINE TUNER desires SITUATION. Thorough knowledge of repairing Pianos, A. Organs, and Harmoniums. Tall, and of good address. A. B., care of Wallace, 63, Gladstone Road, Edge Hill, Liverpool.

WANTED, a YOUNG MAN who has been brought up in a Country Pianoforte Warehouse. He need not be a first-class TUNER, but must understand repairs of Pianos and American Organs, and be a fair Tuner and able to polish. Salary small, but to a young man of sober habits and nice address, and who would be willing to make himself generally useful, the situation would be comfortable and permanent. Apply, Apollo, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER REQUIRED at once, for BRANCH PIANOFORTE and MUSIC WAREHOUSE in the West Midlands. Must be thoroughly practical and of gentlemanly bearing. Apply, with testimonials and photo, to A. C. H., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, for West of England, experienced YOUNG LADY for Music Warehouse. Must play well at sight. Apply, H. H. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN for SALE. — Two manuals, great and swell, with 7 stops to each, besides swell to great coupler; full set of pedals, bourdon 16 ft., and great to pedals, two composition pedals. Can be seen on application to Mr. A. Leach, 33, Cedar Street, Armley, Leeds. At present in use at Providence Sunday School, (U. M. F. C.), Armley.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL AMERICAN ORGANS, at Bargain Prices for Cash. A 165-guinea "Bell," two manuals and pedals, for 75 guineas; a £350 three-manual and pedal "Mason and Hamlin," 31 stops, 21 sets; a £70 "Snell" Organ, with Patent Pedals, 25 guineas; a £95 two-manual "Mason and Hamlin," 35 guineas; a two-manual "Alexandre" Harmonium, 15 guineas. Also several large Organs and Harmoniums by Bell, Smith, Estey, Karn, Alexandre, &c., at one-third usual price. Every instrument guaranteed. Packing or carriage free. Inspection invited. Open till 8; Sats., 4. Stagg and Sons, 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

RELIABLE SECOND-HAND ORGANS for SALE. One, Two, and Three Manuals and Pedals. Prices from £45 to £500. Particulars on application. Gray and Davison, 6, Pratt Street, Camden Town, N.W. Organ Builders to Her late Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. Prince Consort. Established 1750.

FOR SALE, a nearly new THREE-MANUAL ORGAN and PEDALS. Mason and Hamlin style, 1202. In oak. Particulars, 24, Dingwall Road, Croydon.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE.—Three Manuals (CC to G) and Pedals (CCC to F). 33 Stops. £350. Two Manuals and Pedals. 15 stops. Each £180 and £150. Also special offer, Two Manuals and Pedals. Full compass, tubular pneumatic to pedals and "oF" notes. £90.
One Manual and Pedal Chamber Organ. £40.
Specifications and estimates furnished on application.
Eustace Ingram, Organ Builder,
Only address, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N. Inspection invited.

ALFRED MONK, Organ Builder.—ORGANS for SALE or HIRE, or payable in five years. Six new Organs ready for delivery for £150, £200, £240, £255, £265, £600; 3 Second-hand, £100, £165, £200. Price lists, with specifications to build from £100 to £2,000. Alterations, repairs, tunings. 556, Holloway Road, London.

VIRGIL CLAVIER for SALE.—£10. Full size, very little used. Apply, by letter, A. H. B., 18, Beaufort St., Chelsea.

WANTED, PAIR of DRUMS (Tympani), second-hand. Must be cheap and in good order. Reply to Geo. Wallace, 4, Brougham Street, Greenock, N.B.

PIANOFORTE, MUSIC, and SMALL GOODS BUSINESS for SALE. Good tuning connection. Main road, Brighton. A bargain; genuine. Music, 7, Kensington Gardens, Brighton.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES, &c. MUSIC (new copies) for SALE, cheap. Send for list to Secretary, Morecambe Musical Festival, Morecambe.

EBENEZER PROUT'S WORKS. Bound, each net, 5s.
HARMONY: Its Theory and Practice. Thirteenth Edition.
COUNTERPOINT: Strict and Free. Seventh Edition.
DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT and CANON. Third Edition.
FUGUE. Fourth Edition.
FUGAL ANALYSIS. Second Edition.
MUSICAL FORMS. Fourth Edition.
APPLIED FORMS. Third Edition.
THE ORCHESTRA. Vol. I.—"The Technique of the Instruments." Second Edition.
Ditto. Vol. II.—"Orchestral Combination." Second Edition.
Augener and Co., 199, Regent Street, and 22, Newgate Street.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

PUBLISHED ON THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH. Price 1½d. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW FOR OCTOBER

CONTAINS:—

NOTES.
TWO-PART MODULATOR POINTING (concluded).
THE HARMONIZATION OF MELODIES IN FOUR VOCAL PARTS.
THEORY QUESTIONS.
THE ASSOCIATED BOARD EXAMINATIONS.
A FRENCH HYMN. By BATTISON HAYNES.
SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING READER.—STAFF NOTATION.
TWO-PART STUDY.
A SELECTION FROM THE LIBRETTO OF "LITTLE SNOW-WHITE."
PRESIDENT MCKINLEY'S FAVOURITE HYMN.
CONVENTION OF MUSIC TEACHERS AT BIRMINGHAM.
CHILDREN'S CONCERT AT CAPE TOWN.
ANSWERS TO THEORY QUESTIONS.
INDEFINITE DEFINITIONS.
REVIEW.
MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

THE OCTOBER NUMBER CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC:—

"THE GUARDS OF ARCADEE." Solo and Two-part Chorus. By J. L. ROECKEL.
"RED LEAVES." Arranged for S.S.A. (Unaccompanied). By ELIZABETH STIRLING.
JUNIOR SCHOOL MUSIC COURSE.
Also, EXTRA SUPPLEMENT, containing "WYNKEN, BLYNKEN, AND NOD." Unison Song. By R. HOUSTON MACDONALD. (No. 402. Novello's School Songs. Price 1d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

THE COUNTRY MOUSE AND THE TOWN MOUSE;

OR,

BETTER A CRUST IN PEACE THAN A FEAST IN FEAR

ÆSOP, No. 3.

A SHORT CANTATA FOR JUNIORS

THE WORDS BY

SHAPCOTT WENSLEY

THE MUSIC BY

CHAS. BRAUN.

Vocal Score (Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined), price One Shilling.
Tonic Sol-fa, 6d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

AUGENER'S EDITION of CLASSICAL and MODERN MUSIC, in 4,000 Cheap Volumes, printed in England, and revised by good musicians. "Contains much that is best in art, old and new."—Daily Telegraph. Catalogues post-free. AUGENER AND CO., 199, Regent Street, and 6, New Burlington St., W.; also 22, Newgate Street, E.C.

SETTINGS OF THE VESPER HYMN.

"LORD, KEEP US SAFE THIS NIGHT."

ASHTON, A. T. LEE.—In B flat .. .. 1d.
BEETHOVEN.—Two Settings in G .. .. 1d.
STEANE, B.—In F .. ..(Sol-fa, 1½d.) 1d.
SULLIVAN, A.—In F (with Sevenfold Amen) .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.) 1d.
VINCOE, A. L.—In F .. .. 1d.

AMENS.

ELLIOTT, J. W.—Sevenfold Amen in D .. .. 1d.
GODFREY, A. E.—Sevenfold Amen in G .. .. 1d.
GOUNOD, C.—Two Concluding Amens. Threefold and fourfold, in E flat .. .. 1d.
LEMARE, E. H.—Threefold Amen in G .. .. 1d.
LEMARE, E. H.—Final Amen in G flat (A.T.T.B.B.) .. .. .. 1d.
SOMERVELL, A.—Fourfold Amen, in F .. .. 1d.
STAINER, J.—Sevenfold and Dresden Amen in A .. (Sol-fa, 1d.) 1d.
SULLIVAN, A.—Sevenfold Amen in F, with Vesper Hymn .. 1d.
(Sol-fa, 1d.)
WEST, J. E.—Threefold Amen in G .. .. 1d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SONGS

BY

FRANZ SCHUBERT.

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE

Selected, edited, and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
8vo, paper cover, 1s. 6d.

VOLUME II.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

CONTRALTO VOICE

Selected, edited, and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
8vo, paper cover, 1s. 6d.

VOLUME III.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR

SOPRANO OR TENOR

Selected, edited, and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
8vo, paper cover, 1s. 6d.

VOLUME IV.

SWAN SONGS

(SCHWANENGESANG)

FOURTEEN SONGS

The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK.
8vo, paper cover, 1s. 6d.

VOLUME V.

THE FAIR MAID OF THE MILL

(DIE SCHÖNE MÜLLERIN)

TWENTY SONGS

The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK.
8vo, paper cover, 1s. 6d.

VOLUME VI.

THE WINTER JOURNEY

(WINTERREISE)

(Op. 89.)

TWENTY-FOUR SONGS

The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK.
8vo, paper cover, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

JUST PUBLISHED.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

New Book for Students.

TWO THOUSAND QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

ON

MUSICAL HISTORY, BIOGRAPHY, FORM, INSTRUMENTATION, &c.

BY

WALTER H. PALMER,

Hon. Member and Licentiate of Trinity College, London, and Author of 600 Questions on Musical Theory.

WITH

INTRODUCTION BY PROF. E. H. TURPIN, MUS. DOC.

London: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL AND CO., Limited.
Bristol: W. CROFTON HEMMONS, Stephen Street.

No. 765. NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK. Price 2*d.*
(SECOND SERIES.)

SINCE THOU, O FONDEST

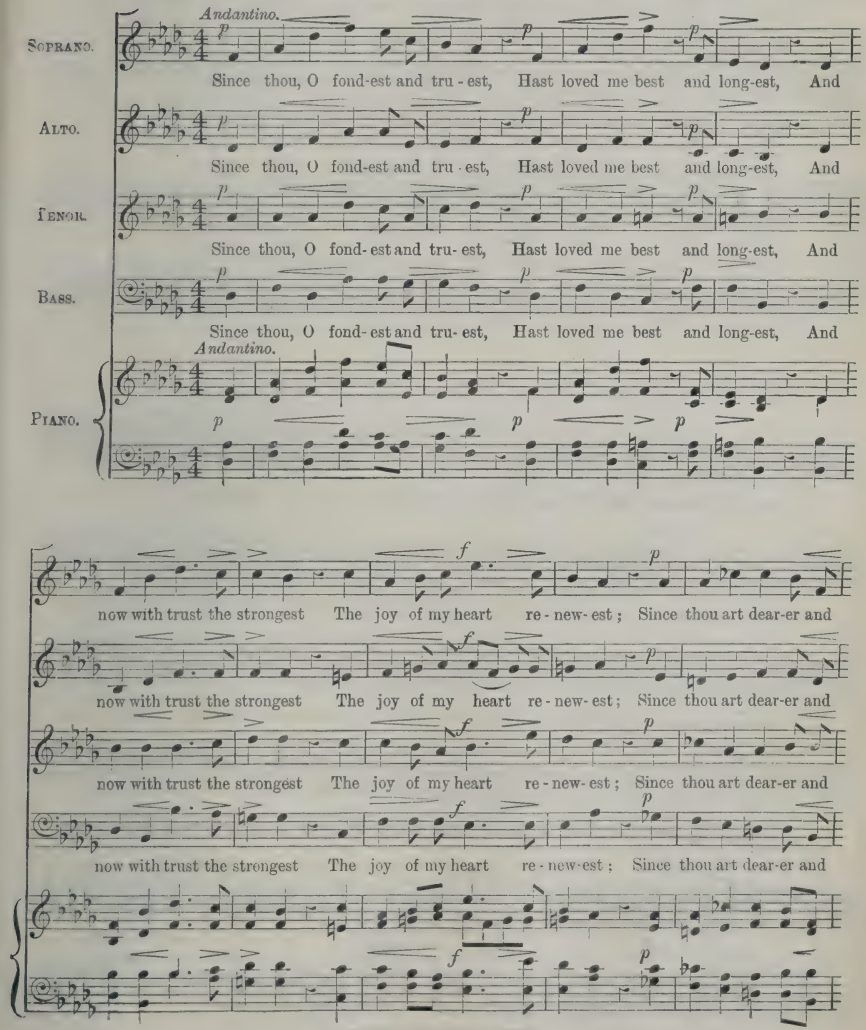
FOUR-PART SONG

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY ROBERT BRIDGES

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Andantino.
Soprano.
Since thou, O fond-est and tru-est, Hast loved me best and long-est, And Alto.
Since thou, O fond-est and tru-est, Hast loved me best and long-est, And
Tenor.
Since thou, O fond-est and tru-est, Hast loved me best and long-est, And Bass.
Since thou, O fond-est and tru-est, Hast loved me best and long-est, And Andantino.
Piano.
now with trust the strongest The joy of my heart re-new-est; Since thou art dear-er and now with trust the strongest The joy of my heart re-new-est; Since thou art dear-er and now with trust the strongest The joy of my heart re-new-est; Since thou art dear-er and now with trust the strongest The joy of my heart re-new-est; Since thou art dear-er and Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

p legatissimo. pp
- cord - ed, And all . . thy love re - ward- ed, and all . . thy love re - ward-ed, By
p legatissimo. pp
- cord - ed, And all . . thy love re - ward- ed, and all . . thy love re - ward-ed, By
p legatissimo. pp
- cord - ed, And all . . thy love re - ward- ed, and all . . thy love re - ward-ed, By
p legatissimo. pp
cord - ed, And all . . thy love re - ward- ed, and all . . thy love re - ward-ed, By Slower. mf f p pp
God, thy mas-ter that made thee, by God, thy mas-ter that made . . thee.
mf f p pp
God, thy mas - ter that made thee, by God, thy mas - ter that made . . . thee.
mf f p pp
God, thy mas - ter that made thee, by God, thy mas - ter that made . . . thee
mf f p pp
God, thy mas-ter that made thee, by God, thy mas - ter that made thee.
Slower. mf f p pp

(From an oil painting by John Zoffany, R.A., in the possession of Mr. Alfred H. Littleton.)

Tho.ˢ Aug.ˢᵗᵉ Arne

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 705.—Vol. 42. NOVEMBER 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

THURSDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 7, at 8.

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

Artists:

Miss ELLA RUSSELL.
Madame MARY BEARE.
Miss ADA CROSSLEY.
Miss EMILY FOXCROFT.
Mr. BEN DAVIES.
Mr. FRED. NORCUP.
Mr. ANDREW BLACK.
Mr. BERTRAM MILLS.

BAND AND CHORUS, ONE THOUSAND.

Organist: Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony, Reserved, 5s.; Unreserved, 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

Eight Concerts will be given during the Season, seven being Subscription. Prices for the Subscription Series of Seven Concerts: Stalls, £2 2s.; Arena, £1 15s.; Balcony (Reserved), £1 8s.

Subscribers' names can now be received, seats secured, and prospectuses obtained, at the Royal Albert Hall, and the usual Agents.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus.D., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

MICHAELMAS HALF-TERM begins Thursday, November 7; Entrance Examination therefor, Monday, November 4, at 2.

LECTURES by Walter Macfarren, Esq., Wednesdays, at 3.15; "Pianists, Ancient and Modern—Clementi to Brahms."

THALBERG SCHOLARSHIP for Female Pianists. Last day for entry, Tuesday, December 3.

FORTNIGHTLY CONCERTS, Saturdays, November 9, 23, and December 7, at 8.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Christmas F.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 6, 1902. The solo-playing tests are: Passacaglia in C minor, Bach (Vol. I., Peters' ed.; Book X., Novello & Co.: Vol. V., Augener & Co.). Sonata No. 2, in G minor, Op. 42, Merkel (Novello & Co., Augener & Co.). Concert Fantasia in D minor, R. P. Stewart (Novello & Co.).

The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 13.

The Book of Examination Papers may be obtained by Members, price 5s., postage 5d.

The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.

Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK.

SESSION 1901-02.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 16 to December 21), Winter Term (January 20 to April 5), Summer Term (April 7 to June 21). Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from

ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

MR. ROBERT

NEWMAN'S CONCERTS

1901-2.

1901.

Aug. 24 to Nov. 9. PROMENADE CONCERTS nightly, at 8.
Sept. 29 to Mar. 23. SUNDAY CONCERT SOCIETY'S CONCERTS, every Sunday Afternoon, at 3.30.
Dec. 21. Mr. MARK HAMBOURG'S RECITALS, at 3.
Oct. 21 to Feb. 8. CHEVALIER RECITALS daily, at 3; also Thursdays and Saturdays, at 8.30.
Nov. 9, 23 / Dec. 7 } SATURDAY SYMPHONY CONCERTS, at 3.
Nov. 7. YSAYE-BUSONI RECITAL, at 3.
Nov. 13, 20, 28 / Dec. 4, 11 } ORGAN RECITALS by Mr. E. H. LEMARE, at 3.30
Nov. 14, 21, 27. YSAYE-BECKER-BUSONI RECITALS, at 3.
Nov. 22. "GOLDEN LEGEND," at 8.
Nov. 29 and Dec. 10. SIGNOR BUSONI'S RECITALS, at 3.
Nov. 29. SCOTCH CONCERT, at 7.30.
Dec. 12. "ELIJAH," at 8.
Dec. 25. CHRISTMAS DAY CONCERT, at 3.30.
Dec. 26 to Feb. 1. CHRISTMAS PROMENADE CONCERTS nightly, at 8.

1902.

Jan. 1. NEW YEAR'S DAY CONCERT, at 3.
Jan. 18 / Feb. 1, 22 / Mar. 8 } SATURDAY SYMPHONY CONCERTS, at 3.
Feb. 12. ASH WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON CONCERT, at 3.
Feb. 15. YSAYE-BUSONI RECITAL, at 3.
Mar. 17. ST. PATRICK'S DAY CONCERT, at 7.30.
Mar. 28. GOOD FRIDAY CONCERTS, at 3 and 7.30.
Mar. 31 to June 28. CHEVALIER RECITALS daily, at 3; also Thursdays and Saturdays at 8.30.
Apr. 28 to May 3. LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

QUEEN'S HALL.

LESSEE AND MANAGER - - - Mr. ROBERT NEWMAN.

The Queen's Hall (Large and Small Halls) may be engaged for Concerts and Recitals; also for Public Meetings (non-political), Balls, Cinderellas, Banquets, Wedding Receptions, Bazaars, Conversaziones, Dinners, Suppers, Lectures, and Social Gatherings.

TERMS.

LARGE HALL.		SMALL HALL.
Afternoon Concerts	20 Guineas.	Afternoon Concerts	4 Guineas.
Evening ,,	25 ,,	Evening ,,	6 ,,
Cinderella Dances -	40 ,,	Cinderella Dances -	8 ,,
Balls - - -	45 ,,	Balls - - -	10 ,,
Banquets - - -	45 ,,	Banquets - - -	10 ,,
Bazaars, per day -	45 ,,	Bazaars, per day -	10 ,,
Including Use of Organ, Lighting, Warming, and Numbering of Seats Excluding Attendants and Piano.		Including Lighting, Warming, and Numbering of Seats. Excluding Attendants and Piano.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

METROPOLITAN EXAMINATION, September, 1901.

The following CANDIDATES have PASSED:—

In Singing: As Teachers—Sidney Robert Cole, Katherine Agnes Hawkins.

As Performers—Samuel F. Epstein, Lottie Louise Wakelin.

Examiners: Messrs. Francis Korbay, Alberto Randegger, and Fred. Walker.

In Pianoforte Playing: As Performers and Teachers—Madeline Paynter, Fanny Gertrude Peacock.

As Teachers—Mary Louisa Culy Allen, Lucy Isabel Baker, Margaret Olivia Barber, Bertha Campbell Beckett, Alfred Beer, Alice Emma Bell, Elizabeth Rose Beltzhoover, Mabel Boorman, Lizzie Brinkler, Edith Burfield, Beatrice May Clark, Bessie Margaret Clarke, Clara Louisa Croad, Grace Amy Green, Marian Ethel Greenwood, Alexander Hendry, Ethel Ruby Hilton, Kathleen Muriel Hitchin, Mary Hopley, Harry Horsfall, Maybell Hughes, Elizabeth Frances Hutchinson, Mary Large, Christoph Frederick Mangelsdorff, Eleanor Kate Marlow, Annie May, Anna Charlotte Philipp, Flora Praeger, Mabel Maud Pugh, Maud Rendell, Edith Alice Rhodes, Isabel Annie Shann, Jessie Mary Shone, Lavinia Skrimshire, Roger William Soresby, Constance Tierney, Gertrude May Venables, William Walker, William John Watkins, Emma Wheaton.

As Performers—Helen Beatrice Gray, Mary Edith Ramsden.

Examiners—Messrs. Carlo Albanesi, Oscar Beringer, Henry R. Eyers, Walter Macfarren, Tobias Matthay, and A. Schloesser.

In Organ Playing: Joseph Almond, Frank Radcliffe.

Examiners—Messrs. Wm. Stevenson Hoyte, Henry R. Rose, and Charles Steggall.

In Violin Playing: As Performers and Teachers—Grace Bradford, Evelyn Mary Jackson.

As Teachers—Frances Jude, Bertha Murray.

Examiners—Messrs. G. H. Betjemann, F. Corder, and Hans Wessely.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Managed by the Corporation of the City of London.

Principal: William H. Cummings, Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A., Hon. R.A.M.

Pupils can enter at any time.

Individual tuition by eminent teachers at moderate fees. Within three minutes of Ludgate Hill, Fleet Street, and Blackfriars Station (District Railway).

110 Prizes, Medals, and Scholarships,

Giving free and assisted tuition, competed for annually. Subjects taught: Piano, Singing, Organ, Harmony, all Orchestral and Solo Instruments, Stage Training in Elocution, Gesture, Fencing, and Opera. Lady superintendent has charge of all ladies attending the school. Prospectus and form of entry free on application to H. Saxe Wyndham, Secretary, Victoria Embankment, E.C.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.

For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.G., K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.

Provincial Examinations in all subjects, for Certificates and Diplomas, A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., October, November, and December. Metropolitan Examination, December 5. Local Theoretical Examination at all Centres in December.

Holder of the Victoria College Vocal Scholarship, 1901: Miss Lottie L. Wakelin.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC, Ltd.

Warden: Professor ALEXANDER PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.

Musical Examinations held in all towns, November and December. Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals, also Prizes, will be awarded.

Diplomas—Associate, Licentiate, and Fellow granted to Teachers, Organists, Bandmasters, Solo Performers, Conductors, &c.

Apply, Sec., 60, Berners St., London; or, 5, Hardman St., L'pool.

ST. ANNE'S, Soho.—BACH ORGAN RECITALS.—E. H. THORNE. Saturdays, November 2, 9, 16, 23, at 3.30.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD

OF THE

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC AND ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

Patron: His Majesty the King.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS, 1902,

Will be held in March and April next. For particulars see SYLLABUS A.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1902,

Will be held in three periods—viz., March-April, June-July, and October-November.

For particulars see SYLLABUS B.

Copies of Syllabus A and B will be sent Post-free on application to the Secretary.

Theory papers set in Local Centre and School Examinations in 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, and 1900 can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year, Post-free.

The Board gives annually Six Exhibitions tenable for two years.

JAMES MUIR, Secretary.

32, Maddox Street, London, W.
Telegraphic address: "Associa, London."

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.
President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in November and December, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.

Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.

The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.

Free register for Organists requiring appointments.

For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC, Ltd.

Patrons: The Duchess of Marlborough.
Madame Patti, Madame Melba, &c.
Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L.

Examinations (all towns), November and December. Local Examinations (four grades). Diplomas (A.N.C.M., L.N.C.M., F.N.C.M.) and Medals.

Members and Local Secretaries wanted; great advantages.
W. J. MOSS, Sec., 192, Sutherland Avenue, Maida Vale, W.

BRINSMEAD GALLERIES, Wigmore Street, W.—The ROBERT CARRODUS CHAMBER CONCERT TRIO beg to announce two CONCERTS at the above Galleries on Wednesdays, November 6 and 27, at 8 o'clock. Violin, Mr. Robert Carrodus; Violoncello, Mr. Alfred L. Carrodus; Pianoforte, Mr. Lyddon Harris.

The above artists accept engagements at Concerts, At Homes, &c.

For particulars, apply, Mr. Robert Carrodus, 35, Church Crescent, Muswell Hill, London, N.

MR. GUSTAVE GARCIA will give a VOCAL RECITAL, on Saturday Afternoon, November 16, 1901, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Wood, Miss Marie Garcia, Messrs. Albert Garcia, Percy Pitt, and W. H. Squire. Tickets may be obtained at the Hall, the usual Agents, and at Mr. Gustave Garcia's School, 23, Berners Street, W.

ST. ANNE'S, Soho.—BACH'S CHRISTMAS ORATORIO, with full Orchestra, on SEVEN CONSECUTIVE FRIDAYS, commencing December 6, at 8 p.m. Admission, body of church, ticket gratis. Send stamped envelope to Rector, 28, Soho Square. North and South galleries without ticket.

HOLY TRINITY CHURCH, Sloane Square.—Mr. WALTER ALCOCK will resume his ORGAN RECITALS on Saturday, November 23, at 4 o'clock.

Mr. Munro Davison's Male Voice Choir

(THE NORTH LONDON).

SEVENTH SEASON commences October 7.

Particulars of Membership from the Conductor, 142, Stroud Green Rd.

Mr. Munro Davison's Male Voice Choir

(THE NORTH LONDON).

President, Dr. W. H. Cummings.

7th SEASON.

Rehearsals at Finsbury Park, N.

All particulars of membership can be obtained from the Conductor, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

The Choir consists at present of 10 Altos, 10 1st Tenors, 10 2nd Tenors, 12 Basses.

WALTHAMSTOW PUBLIC BATHS.—LARGE HALL to LET, holding 1,600 persons, and licensed for music and dancing. Apply, for terms, Clerk of the Council, Town Hall, Walthamstow.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano Vocalist)
And Teacher of Singing.
444, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
"Messiah."—"Sang with exquisite taste."—Daily Telegraph.
"Creation."—"Charmed her vast audience."—Ulverston Press.
"Judas."—"Gave a magnificent interpretation."—Derry Standard.
Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MRS. S. FORD (Soprano)
For Oratorio or Miscellaneous Concerts.
For terms, address, Avondale, Park Road E., Wolverhampton.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano)
Address, Rawtenstall, near Manchester.

MISS EMILY VAUGHAN (Soprano)
Medalist, Society of Arts, will sing at At Homes. Expense fee.
Fernside, 44, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.

MISS KATE WELCH (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 4, Halliwell Street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MISS NELLIE WILLIS (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Bentley Road, Doncaster.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MADAME FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto)
MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor)
New Haslemere, Woodside Park Road, North Finchley, London, N.

MISS KATE GREGORY
(The new Yorkshire Contralto)
Professional Pupil of Albert Jowett, Esq., Yorkshire Training College of Music, Leeds).
Oratorios and Ballad Concerts.
Terms, apply, Doncaster.

MADAME ANNIE GREW (Contralto, Medalist)
Waverley Road, Bradford.

MISS GERTRUDE HEY (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Lawn Side, Clarendon Road, Whalley Range, Manchester.

MISS ANNIE McBRIDE (Contralto)
Oratorio, Concerts, &c.
Address, 5, Hartham Road, Camden Road, N.

MISS LOTTIE WAKELIN, L.R.A.M. (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
15, First Avenue, Manor Park, Essex.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.)
Address, 21, Mysore Road, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. J. G. BLANCHARD
(Principal Tenor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, 41, Savernake Road, N.W.

MR. CHARLES ELLISON (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c. 42, Florence Rd., New Cross.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. WILLIAM A. SHEEN
(Principal Tenor, The City Temple).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 116, High Street, Kingsland, N.E.

MR. BURFORD THORP (Tenor)
Of St. James's and Queen's Halls; Soloist of St. Alban's, Teddington.
Address, 13, Greville Road, Kilburn, N.W.

WILLIAM D. VINCENT (Tenor)
For Ballad Concerts, Sunday Recitals. Specialty, Irish Songs.
Address, 167, Tachbrook Street, Belgrave Road, S.W.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. ROLAND HOYLE (Baritone)
Terms, Press Notices, &c.
Dalby Street, Longsight, Manchester.

MR. SAMUEL JAQUES (Baritone)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.
Albert House, Nottingham Road, Somercotes, Derbyshire.

MR. GEORGE STUBBS (Baritone)
Oratorio, Concerts, &c.
5, Cardozo Road, Hillmarton Road, N.; or, St. Paul's Cathedral, E.C.

MR. HERBERT A. CHARMAN (Bass)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Beaufort Lodge, East Dulwich Grove, S.E.

MR. EATON COOTER (Basso-Cantante), A.R.C.M.
St. George's and H.M. Private Chapels, Windsor Castle.
Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. JOSEPH THOMAS (Bass)
For Dinners, Concerts, &c.
Terms, apply, c/o Mr. T. Gosling, 60, Clarence Rd., Canning Town, E.

MR. ARTHUR BASSON (Violinist)
For Concerts, &c., Solo or Orchestral; also Lessons.
Address, 35, Swaffield Road, Wandsworth, S.W.

MISS MARY OULD, L.R.A.M. (Solo Violinist)
For Concerts, At Homes, Lessons, &c.
Oakdene, Kilburn Priory, Maida Vale, W.

MR. JAMES RICHARDSON (Violoncellist)
Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Terms and Press notices, care of Forsyth Bros., Ltd., Manchester.

MR. R. A. ELLIS (Tympanist)
Brook Lynn, Chester.

MR. E. MISDALE (Accompanist)
For Concerts, Private Practice, Tours, &c.
Address, 41, Chepstow Place, Bayswater, W.

MR. VICTOR WHEELER (Accompanist)
Concerts, Dinners, At Homes, &c.
86, Mercers' Road, Tufnell Park, N.

SIGNOR NICOLA COVIELLO (Cornet Soloist)
Clubs, Dinners, Lessons, &c.
Write to Balham School of Music, S.W.

B. E. KENT (Lyric Authoress).
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MISS CHARLOTTE DICKENS (Soprano), R.A.M., Med. CHANGE OF ADDRESS: 10, Ashchurch Park Villas, Ravenscourt Park, W.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON and Mr. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE beg to announce that their Canadian tour being ended, they have now returned to town for the season. The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

MISS LUCIE JOHNSTONE has pleasure in intimating her NEW ADDRESS, Glenarum Lodge, Rosendale Road, West Dulwich, S.E.; also care of N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork St., W.

MR. ROBT. McCALLISTER ("Lancashire's Premier Tenor"), for Oratorios, Organ Recitals, and High-class Concerts. "In Rossini's 'Cujus Animam' Mr. McCallister sang the upper D flat in his natural voice. But it is the even, sympathetic and agreeable tunefulness of his entire range of two octaves that bespeak him success."—Blackburn Times, Oct. 5, 1901. Terms, 4, Wellington Street, Blackburn, Lancs.

MR. WHITNEY TEW, 43, Lancaster Road, N.W. (in America November and December), returns to England January 10, for extended Provincial Tour. Engaged to sing the "Messiah" by the Händel and Haydn Society of Boston, Dec. 22, and for the Brooklyn Oratorio Society, Dec. 19; besides many other Oratorio and Recital bookings. Address, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, Burlington Gardens, W.

ACCOMPANIST, for Entertainments, Dances, Practice. Sight-reader. Cert. R.A.M. Miss Ina Brooke, 130, Sinclair Road, Kensington, W.

ACCOMPANIST.—Officer's Daughter desires ENGAGEMENT, practising or otherwise, vocal and instrumental. Moderate terms. Address, M. M., 66, Castletown Rd., W. Kensington

MISS NORA PITCAIRN, R.A.M., 16, Gunterstone Road, West Kensington. Accompanist; Sight-reader; Vocal Coach. Highest references.

MADAME LOUISE BURNS
(SOPRANO).
Silver Medal, R.A.M.
Erin, Riffel Road, Willesden Green, N.W.

MISS HONEYBONE
(SOPRANO).
"Miss Honeybone is an artist who possesses a voice of exceptional range. Her rendering of song, 'O divine Redeemer' (Gounod), was a most artistic effort."
41, Hampden Street, Nottingham.

MISS MAGGIE JAQUES

(SOPRANO).

Dates booked: November 8, Sheffield, Ballads; 11, Earlstown, Ballads; 19, Horbury, Ballads; 20, Dudley, "Creaton"; 23, Manchester, Ballads; December 10, Peterborough, "Golden Legend"; 12, Bridgnorth, Ballads; 18, Hebden Bridge, "Messiah"; 19, Sheffield, Ballads; 21, Manchester, "Messiah"; 25, Hoyland Common, "Messiah"; 26, Rotherham, "Messiah"; January 18, 1902, Manchester, Ballads; February 1, Birmingham, Ballads; 17, Stourbridge, Dvorák's "Te Deum"; March 18, Hull, Verdi's "Requiem"; April 2, Darlington, "Acis and Galatea"; 9, Lancaster, Ballads; 23, Bishop Stortford, "Martyr of Antioch."

"ALEXANDER'S FEAST."—PETERBOROUGH CHORAL UNION.—"Miss Maggie Jaques, whose second visit it is to these concerts, won the hearts of all by her beautiful method, so utterly devoid of all artificial effort, her fresh and well-trained voice taking with the greatest ease the difficult work which fell to her lot. This lady's singing was one of the great features of the concert. All along throughout the evening she rose triumphantly to all difficulties, and earned well-merited approbation."—Peterborough Advertiser, March 16, 1901.

SCHUMANN'S "PARADISE AND PERI."—BIRMINGHAM FESTIVAL CHORAL SOCIETY.—"Miss Maggie Jaques rendered assistance that demands favourable notice. She took part in the concerted numbers, and sang the solo 'Poor Youth" and the Maiden's Song, 'Oh, let me only breathe the air, love,' and gave both very well indeed."—Birmingham Post, March 22, 1901.

"Miss Maggie Jaques increased her reputation and created a desire to hear her oftener and in more important works."—Birmingham Gazette, March 22, 1901.

"Miss Maggie Jaques sang admirably her couple of solos."—Birmingham Argus, March 22, 1901.

DVORÁK'S TE DEUM.—LEEDS CHORAL UNION.—"Miss Maggie Jaques sang the soprano solos with fitting purity of tone."—Leeds Mercury, February 14, 1901.

"Miss Maggie Jaques sang the soprano part with good effect."—Yorkshire Post, February 14, 1901.

"ST. PAUL."—ABERDEEN CHORAL UNION.—"Miss Maggie Jaques, who made her début here, was extremely successful, her readings of 'Jerusalem,' &c., being given with much freedom and resource of voice, &c."—Aberdeen Free Press, March 30, 1901.

"ST. PAUL."—LYTHAM CHORAL UNION.—"Miss Maggie Jaques has come on remarkably in recent years, and when one sees the care she takes with her work, the secret is out. Her opening recits. were full of promise; the voice clear as a bell, the interpretation soulful, and the phrasing perfect. The air 'Jerusalem' was exceedingly impressive, and we regretted that the work did not give her greater scope for the display of her beautiful voice."—Lytham Times, April 12, 1901.

"CREATION."—TYNEMOUTH VOCAL SOCIETY.—"Miss Maggie Jaques is a soprano of exceptional ability, and she sang last night with sweetness and expression. Her rendering of the more difficult and sublime passages in the work elicited the warmest appreciation."—Shields Daily Gazette, April 18, 1901.

"JUDAS."—DONCASTER MUSICAL SOCIETY.—"Miss Jaques was with us last year at the performance of 'Elijah,' and the committee were thoroughly justified in again engaging her. She sang splendidly throughout. 'From mighty kings' evoked tremendous applause, and Miss Jacques had twice to rise and bow her acknowledgments."—Doncaster Gazette, April 26, 1901.

DARLINGTON CHORAL SOCIETY.—"Miss Jaques scored an unequivocal success. Her voice, clear as a bell, with a considerable compass, was heard to advantage all over the hall. In the air 'From mighty kings' she was exceedingly fine," &c.—Northern Echo, Feb. 16, 1901.

"Miss Jaques speedily established herself a favourite. She is a rich and mellow soprano, of very fine compass, and acquitted herself admirably," &c.—North Star, Feb. 15, 1901.

"MESSIAH."—ARDROSSAN AND SALTCOATS CHORAL SOCIETY.—"The most commendable was Miss Maggie Jaques, the soprano soloist, whose pure tone and elasticity of voice received the modicum of praise they merited. Her rendering of the air 'Rejoice greatly' was unique. In it the compass of her voice was evidenced, swelling, as it did, from sweet puniness to amazing strength."—Ardrossan and Saltcoats Herald, April 5, 1901.

BRIGHOUSE CHORAL SOCIETY.—"The honours of the evening were undoubtedly carried away by Miss Jaques. The high anticipations aroused by reason of her singing last year were fully realised. Her voice is strong and yet pure and sweet, the tones she is able to reach are unusually high, and the flexibility of the voice is such that the singer was admirably suited to her part," &c.—Brighouse Echo, Nov. 30, 1900.

"GOLDEN LEGEND."—LUTON CHORAL SOCIETY.—"Miss Maggie Jaques delighted everyone with her rendering of the exacting soprano part, her voice being of sympathetic quality, with an upper register of great power and purity of tone. Her greatest success was perhaps in 'My Redeemer and my Lord,' which was magnificently sung."—Bedfordshire Advertiser, Nov. 23, 1900.

"ST. JOHN'S EVE."—BURTON-ON-TRENT MUSICAL SOCIETY.—"Miss Jaques is an old favourite, and fully maintained her reputation, and gave a finished and artistic rendering of the recit. and air 'O peaceful night.'"—Burton Gazette, Dec. 18, 1900.

BALLADS, EXETER.—"Miss Maggie Jaques possesses a soprano voice of remarkable purity, and her execution is the acme of fine finish, with utter absence of affectation or effort."—Exeter Post, March 19, 1901.

TERMS, &C., ADDRESS, 14, SPRING GARDENS, BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.

MISS EMILY DAVIES

(SOPRANO).

Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MISS AMY HARDING

(SOPRANO)

(Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, &c., Concerts).

For photo, testimonials, and critiques, 41, Palace Sq., Norwood, S.E.

MISS ESTELLA LINDEN

(SOPRANO)

Among future engagements are:

Creation.	Last Judgment ..		St. Saviour's Coll. Ch., Southwark.
Elijah ..	..	..	Stafford Choral Society.
Flying Dutchman	..	..	Sheffield Musical Union.
Acis & Galatea.	May Queen		Hull Vocal Union.
Daisy Chain	..	..	Pershore.
Hymn of Praise	..	..	Kettering Choral Society.
Daughter of Jairus	..	..	Brixton Oratorio Choral Society.
Judas Maccabæus	..	..	Dulwich Philharmonic, Crystal Palace.

Address, 35, Lancaster Road, South Hampstead, N.W.

MADAME ADA LOARING

(SOPRANO).

Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MISS KATHERINE NASH

(SOPRANO).

Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A.

Address, 10, Mount Pleasant Mansions, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MADAME

ANNIE NORLEDGE

(SOPRANO),
23, Millgate, Newark-on-Trent.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MISS

MARGARET ORMEROD

(Mrs. Lempriere Pringle) SOPRANO.
Opera, Oratorio, and Miscellaneous Concerts.
23, Telford Avenue, Streatham Hill, S.W.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MISS AMY SARGENT

A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
39, Blandford Square, N.W.

MISS BERYL CLIVE

(CONTRALTO)
14, Gladsmuir Road, Whitehall Park, N.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE

(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, Sheffield.
Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 13, Garway Road, Bayswater, W.

MISS AMY MARTIN

(CONTRALTO), A.L.A.M.
Oratorios and Concerts.
Of the Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, and Promenade Concerts.
Address, Trentham, Forest Hill, London.

MISS LOTTIE SWEENEY

(I.S.M., CONTRALTO).
For Oratorios, Ballad and Chamber Concerts.
Address, Miss Sweeney, Vocalist, Armley, Leeds.

MISS GERTRUDE WESLEY

(SOLO HARPIST AND CONTRALTO),
Doncaster.

MISS K. KELYN WILLIAMS

(CONTRALTO)
(Late John Thomas Welsh Scholar)
Goldberg Prize, Silver Medalist, and Certificate, R.A.M.,
Medalist, Society of Arts.
15, South Grove, Peckham, S.E.

MR. TREVOR EVANS

(TENOR. HIGHLY COMPLIMENTED BY MADAME PATTI).

"I am delighted with his voice, which I consider charming."—Adelina Patti.

Booking for all the Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, London, N.W.

MR. CHAS. M. CHILD

(PRINCIPAL TENOR, Ch. Ch. Coll., Oxford).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.

MR. JOHN COATES

LEEDS FESTIVAL:—

The Times, Oct. 12:—"The young tenor achieved a real triumph in the solo part of Brahms's 'Rinaldo.'"

The Times, Oct. 14:—"Mr. Coates's beautiful voice and finished style made a great impression in the tenor music" (Beethoven's Mass in D).

Standard, Oct. 12:—"Mr. John Coates sang the solo part excellently."

Globe, Oct. 12:—"A finer interpretation than that secured by Dr. Stanford could hardly be desired, Mr. Coates's singing of the solo part being a specially admirable achievement."

Star, Oct. 12:—"Mr. Coates's singing showed him to be a valuable addition to the ranks of our festival tenors."

Yorkshire Post, Oct. 12:—"The performance was well calculated to place the work in the most favourable light, more particularly as regards the soloist, Mr. Coates, who showed the most finished vocalisation, perfect phrasing, and exact perception of the character of the music; his musicianship and artistic feeling are very exceptional, and his singing in Brahms's work was a genuine and well-deserved success."

Leeds Mercury, Oct. 12:—"The performance was in every sense a success. Mr. Coates had here his great opportunity, and rose to it. His singing was characterised by warm, romantic feeling, as well as the utmost purity of intonation and beauty of phrasing. Not only did the young Yorkshire tenor prove thoroughly familiar with his part in the cantata, but showed an intelligence and dramatic grasp that was in every sense admirable."

Sheffield Independent, Oct. 7:—"After hearing Mr. John Coates, the rising tenor, I am of opinion that he is one of the leading men of the near future. His singing at Leeds was notable. He has in him all the material for that rare acquisition, an all-round tenor soloist."

Sheffield Independent, Oct. 12:—"Mr. John Coates was intensely dramatic, and made most telling use of his robust voice in the numerous exacting solos. His impassioned singing of the number 'To the turtle-dove's low calling' will not soon be forgotten. Mr. Coates was vociferously cheered by the tenors and other members of the chorus, and, of course, by the large attendance."

Birmingham Gazette, Oct. 9:—"Mr. John Coates is a remarkably fine tenor."

Birmingham Daily Post, Oct. 12:—"In the present dearth of tenors of the first rank he has a distinct opening, and should reach a good position. He did well this evening, and was most warmly applauded and recalled."

Sheffield Telegraph, Oct. 12:—"The success of the performance was won by Mr. John Coates, a new and brilliant recruit to the select few of festival tenors."

9, Hyde Park Mansions, N.W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS

(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR. BEN JOHNSON

(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 27, Warwick Road, Ealing, W.

MR. JAMES LEYLAND

(TENOR).
On tour October 14 to November 23 inclusive, and December 2 to the 9th inclusive. For vacant dates apply, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. FRED NORCUP

(TENOR, Vicar-Choral of Westminster Abbey).
At liberty for Oratorio and Ballad Concerts.
Address, 139, Cambridge Street, London, S.W.

MR. JOS. REED

(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. DAN BILLINGTON

THE CELEBRATED YORKSHIRE BARITONE (Vide Press)
(Soloist of the Leeds Festivals, Sir Chas. Hallé's and the Principal Provincial Concerts).
34, Hanover Square, Leeds.

MR. JOHN BROWNING

(BARITONE),
SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVALS,
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal, Leeds Parish Church, &c.
Engaged: England, Ireland, and Scotland.—November 3, 8, 10, 14, 19, 20, 23, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30: December 1, 4, 7, 8, 9, 11, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 30. Others January, February, and March, 1902. December 25 and 26 still at liberty.
Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL

(BARITONE).
Mr. Henry J. Wood (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.
"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.
"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.
"Henry J. Wood."

AND

MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD

(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO).
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N

MR. HENRY DOBSON

(BARITONE)
(Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts).
Birmingham.—"An artistic début was made by Mr. Henry Dobson, baritone, whose method is distinctly scholarly in every way."—Birmingham Daily Mail, October 7, 1901.
"... His voice is of a high timbre and well trained, his excellent phrasing being a feature of his singing."—Birmingham Daily Post, October 7, 1901.
"The vocal contributions were of a high standard of excellence, and Mr. Henry Dobson, baritone, is entitled to much distinction for his artistic efforts."—Birmingham Daily Gazette, October 7, 1901.
7, Station Terrace, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. W. J. INESON

(BARITONE)
The Cathedral, Hereford,
Is prepared to accept engagements for Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, or Banquets. For terms, address as above. Engaged: Birmingham Festival Choral Society (2), Hereford (3), Chepstow, Ilkley, Worcester (2), Llanelly, Bristol, Newport, &c.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES

(BARITONE)
Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, and Chester Festivals.
Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts.
Crystal Palace and principal Provincial Concerts.

Engagements include:—
Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts.
" " Sunday League Concerts.
" " Polytechnic Concerts.
Leeds Choral Union—Stanford's Te Deum, "Tannhäuser."
Leeds Philharmonic Society—"Faust."
Belfast Philharmonic Society—"St. Paul."
Edinburgh—"Messiah."
Lincoln Musical Society—"Ancient Mariner."
Newcastle Vocal Society—"St. Paul."
Dewsbury Choral Society—"Acis and Galatea" and "Crusaders."
Leicester—"Romeo and Juliet."
Dover Choral Union—"Elijah."
Stockport—"Elijah."
Wolverhampton Orchestral Society.
Brighton Sacred Harmonic—"Martyr of Antioch."
Castleford Choral Society—"Messiah."
South Shields Choral Society—"Stabat Mater."
Bishop Stortford—"Messiah."
Finsbury Choral Society—"Hiawatha."
Whitchurch, Wolverhampton, Kensington, Ashburton, Brecon, Westminster, Uckfield, Balham, Kentish Town, London, &c., &c.
For terms, &c., address—
24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

MR. EDGAR ARCHER

(PRINCIPAL BASS of the City Temple, of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, Langdale, Rutland Park, Willesden Green, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR BARLOW

(BASS).
Address, 6, Beech Mansions, West Hampstead, N.W.
Telegrams: "Arthanita, London."

MR. H. WHORLOW BULL

(BASS).
Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, Church Festivals, &c.
156, Brooke Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN

(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT

Begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to 105, Brondesbury Villas, London, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR SEDGLEY

(BASS).
For Oratorio, Opera, and Ballad Concerts.
For terms, &c., apply, 51, Worcester Street, Wolverhampton.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MR.

WILLIAM LLEWELLYN

(BASS).

Begs to announce his

RETURN TO LONDON

and that he is booking dates for the coming season for

ORATORIO, CLASSICAL AND BALLAD CONCERTS.

BIRMINGHAM FESTIVAL CHORAL SOCIETY.—VERDI'S "REQUIEM."—October 17, 1901.

The Society had prepared the work as nearly as possible on a festival scale, the vocal principals being Madame Albani, Signorina Giulia Ravogli, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. William Llewellyn. In some respects last night's rendering surpassed those of Gloucester and Leeds. The quartets were for the most part better given as regards vocal balance and beauty of tone. Mr. Llewellyn's fine voice was heard to advantage in the declamatory "Confutatis" and in the offertory, "Domine Jesu" and the "Lux æterna," the melodious phrases falling to him were given with good tone and expression.—Birmingham Daily Post, October 18, 1901.

The Festival Choral Society could not have paid greater homage to the memory of the illustrious maëstro than by a performance of his greatest work, and a memorable performance it was, one that will long be remembered, and which was a triumph for the magnificent principals. Mr. William Llewellyn, bass, also did excellently in the concerted numbers and in the solo "Confutatis Maledictis" his fine voice told well.—Birmingham Daily Mail, October 18, 1901.

The good points of the performance are quite too numerous to mention. Madame Albani was in wonderful voice, while Mr. Llewellyn's sonorous voice suited to a nicety the frankly monastic character of most of the numbers allotted to the bass.—Daily Argus, October 18, 1901.

The soloists were one and all superb. Of Madame Albani one only needs to record the simple fact that she sang as usual, a record which comprises every excellence. . . . Nor can a syllable less be said for Mr. William Llewellyn, a young basso, who has advanced considerably even upon the good quality of last year, and who, with ordinary good fortune, is sure to make his mark.—Birmingham Daily Gazette, October 18, 1901.

Address: Principal London Agents: or,

13, MARGARET STREET, CAVENDISH SQ., LONDON, W.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN

(BASS),

Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music, of the Gloucester and Cheltenham Festivals, &c.

For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

Please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)

(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).

Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.

27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

MR. HERBERT WALENN

(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).

Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MISS ELLEN CHILDS

(CHROMATIC HARPIST)

Having studied in Paris under the direction of the Inventor, Miss Childs is prepared to give LESSONS on the NEW CHROMATIC HARP (without pedals). For terms, apply, 170, Belsize Road, N.W.; or, care of Messrs. Pleyell Wolff, Lyon and Co., 79-80, Baker Street, Portman Square, W.

MR.

WILLIAM SILVERWOOD

Requests that all communications re CONCERTS or PIANOFORTE LESSONS be addressed to 13, MARGARET STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.

SOLO BOYS.

LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS, POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.

PRESIDENT, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.

Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.

A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Rd., New Cross, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.

For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

THE HERBERT SIMMONS' CONCERT PARTY.

For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.

MISS CLARIBEL HYDE (Soprano),
Royal Albert Hall and St. James's Hall Concerts.

MR. BERTRAM PEARCE (Tenor),
St. James's Hall Concerts, &c.

MISS HETTY KIMBELL (Contralto),
Late Soloist, American Church, Nice.

MR. HERBERT SIMMONS (Bass),
Queen's Hall, St. James's Hall, and Crystal Palace Concerts, &c.

Address, 38, Vanbrugh Park, Blackheath, S.E.

THE GEORGIAN SINGERS (Male Voice Quartet) of the Royal Albert Hall (Patti) Concerts, Harrison Provincial Tour, Imperial Institute, Princess Christian's Bazaar, and other leading Concerts, are open to engagement for high-class Concerts, Mechanics' Institutes, Society Functions, &c. For terms, vacant dates, &c., apply to Mr. Fred. Naylor, 15, Horseshoe Cloisters, Windsor Castle.

MR. STEDMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY

(Established 1877).

Artists for Opera, Theatre, Oratorio, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Choruses, Choir Boys and Girls.
Singing Lessons and Coaching.
58, Berners Street, W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.

SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. JAMES BATES, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities. Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DR. ARNOTT, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, Organist to The Honble. Society of Gray's Inn, PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Examinations, and receives Pupils for Pianoforte, Organ, Singing; also Harmony, Counterpoint, and Composition, personally or by correspondence. Scores revised and compositions scored. All letters to, The Common Room, Gray's Inn.

"FROM BRAIN TO KEYBOARD."

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM
OF TOUCH AND TECHNIQUE.

"The most striking discovery of the present generation for practical musicians."—Musical News.

"Wonderful work is being done by Mr. Macdonald Smith in the application of his new system. . . . He is giving hundreds of lessons by mail with the very best results."—Musical Courier (New York).

"It is clear that Mr. Macdonald Smith has studied the subject carefully, and acts upon well-ascertained scientific grounds."—The Daily Telegraph.

"The great, the supreme merit of Mr. Smith's system consists in the fact that it involves the total abolition and disestablishment of all that terrible scale-practising and five-finger exercising."—Westminster Gazette.

"May be distinctly regarded as a boon and a blessing to men."—The Referee.

"Mr. Macdonald Smith's system of training the fingers, hands, &c., for pianoforte playing is most excellent, and in every respect well worth the high fees charged for lessons."—Organist and Choirmaster.

"The excellence of his methods had been abundantly proved."—The Times.

Extracts from reports of Correspondence Pupils:—

"Difficulties which were once almost insurmountable now seem to fall to pieces as I play. The keyboard, which once seemed hard and unyielding, has now become like velvet to my fingers."—D. Parkes, Plymouth.

"Allow me to take this opportunity of thanking you for your attention, and once again to testify to the marvellous improvement I have made under your system. It is worth any money to a teacher, and I sincerely hope, for his own sake, every professor will avail himself of it."—Ralph Horner, Mus. Bac.

"I have found the system of the greatest possible use in teaching the piano, more particularly in the case of adult pupils, to many of whom music is now a delight instead of a toil as formerly. To teachers whose time is so fully occupied that they have no time for practice, Macdonald Smith's system is worth ten times the modest fee which he charges for lessons."—Chas. G. Bryan, Southport.

"I have tried all the technical methods in vogue for many years for the improvement of the technical difficulties in pianoforte playing, and I unhesitatingly affirm that the system employed by you for the speedy development of the muscles is the nearest approach to perfection I can find."—C. Davieson (Pupil of Liszt).

"I can play very much better; indeed, the change is just as some of your critics say, 'marvellous.' I always wondered how with careful practice and a fair knowledge of music I could not do better—the riddle is now solved. Every day I feel I have done something by adding a little to my proficiency. Let me say once more I am delighted with your system. I have derived benefit from your exercises and advice far, far beyond my expectations."—Mrs. H. W. (age 45), N.S. Wales.

"As far as your system is concerned, I can heartily say that it has helped me more than all the technical work I ever did."—F. J. F., Toledo, Ohio, U.S.A.

"Am hugely delighted with results . . . and consider you a public benefactor. The manuscript exercise I think perfectly splendid."—A. W. S., Windsor.

"I am finding it most useful in teaching, especially with examination pupils."—A. M. C., Edinburgh.

COMPLETE COURSE OF SIX LESSONS, BY CORRESPONDENCE, THREE GUINEAS.

"PIANOFORTE PLAYING" and other articles by Macdonald Smith, 32 pp., Post-free, 7d.

Experience with over twelve hundred pupils by correspondence. Full Prospectus Post-free.

MACDONALD SMITH, Steinway Hall, London, W.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, 289, High Road, Lee, S.E.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppel St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

A LATE PUPIL of Sir F. Bridge gives LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT, postal or personal. Terms on application to Miss Beatrice Earp, 307, Upland Road, Dulwich Park, S.E.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. ATHELSTAN G. IGGULDEN, Mus. Doc. (Dunelm), F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS and prepares for all MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. The Dingle, Reigate, Surrey.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc. Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1901, 1900, and all previous years; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1900 and 1901; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music, Composition, and Pianoforte Teaching); CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that TWENTY-ONE of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1901. Hazelwood, Dollis Rd., Finchley, N.

OLIVER IVE, Mus. Bac., Oxon.—LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., by correspondence or otherwise. Candidates prepared for University and other Exams., as well as for Preliminary Arts. Moderate terms. Address, 24, Carmalt Gardens, Putney, S.W.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1901, SEVENTY-SEVEN passes, L.R.A.M., 1897-1901, TWENTY-SEVEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

MR. HAROLD E. MACKINLAY, F.R.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c.; also Organ and Pianoforte. Preparation for Musical Examinations, personally or by post. Terms moderate. 53, Marquess Road, Canonbury, N.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c.—Mr. JOSEPH SPAWFORTH, A.R.A.M. (formerly pupil of Professor Ebenezer Prout, Mr. Frederick Corder, and Mr. Davenport, at the Royal Academy of Music), gives LESSONS, Privately or by Post. Pupils prepared for the theoretical portions of all examinations. Apply, by letter, for terms, &c., to 67, Parliament Hill, N.W.

MR. STRETTON SWANN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS or prepares for EXAMINATIONS Personally or by Post.
New Hydraulic Organ, seven minutes from London Bridge, 181, Longley Road, Tooting, S.W.

MR. H. TAYLOR, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by correspondence. For terms, &c., apply, 13, Reservoir Rd., Birmingham.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES for EXAMS. Lessons follow closely lines of latest Exam. papers. Terms strictly reasonable. Many years' experience. 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M. LESSONS at 60, Berners Street, W., in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. Letters, 87, Herbert Rd., Plumstead.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

(INSTITUTED 1872.)

MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.

President:
THE RIGHT HON. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, MUS.D.

Registrar:
J. GORDON SAUNDERS, MUS.D.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

THE LATEST TIME FOR ENTERING IS DECEMBER 7 for the FIFTY-SEVENTH HALF-YEARLY EXAMINATIONS as under, taking place at the College in Mandeville Place, from January 6 to 14. These Higher (Professional) Examinations are open to all Persons (whether students of the College or not).

DIPLOMA OF ASSOCIATE IN MUSIC (A.Mus.T.C.L.).

Candidates are required to pass the Matriculation Examination, or an equivalent, and to satisfy the Examiners in the following subjects: Harmony (up to four parts), Counterpoint (three parts), Musical History, and either Choir Training, or Vocal and Aural Physiology, or Elementary Acoustics.

DIPLOMA OF LICENTIATE IN MUSIC (L.Mus.T.C.L.).

Candidates, except in the case of a Graduate in Music of a British University, must previously have obtained the Diploma of Associate in Music. The Examination will include the following subjects: Harmony (five parts), Counterpoint (five parts), Double Counterpoint, Imitation, Canon and Fugue, Form and Instrumentation.

HIGHER CERTIFICATES, PRACTICAL DIVISION.

Candidates for the Higher Certificates (Practical or Theoretical) are not required to pass the Matriculation Examination. The subjects of Examination are:—

i. Pianoforte Playing, with the respective titles of Associate-Pianist (A.T.C.L. Pianist) and Certificated Pianist.
ii. Organ Playing, with the respective titles of Organ-Associate (A.T.C.L. Organist) and Certificated Organist.
iii. Solo-Singing, with the respective titles of Associate-Vocalist (A.T.C.L. Vocalist) and Certificated Vocalist.
iv. Orchestral Instruments, with the respective titles of Associate-Violinist (A.T.C.L. Violinist), &c., &c.

HIGHER CERTIFICATES, THEORETICAL DIVISION.

Subjects: Harmony, Counterpoint, Instrumentation, &c., &c.

PRACTICAL LICENTIATESHIP.

Candidates are required to pass (1) a Practical Examination of Associate Standard, and (2) Examinations in Harmony and Counterpoint, in not more than four parts.

CLERGY EXAMINATION.

An examination for testing the efficiency of Clergy desirous of undertaking "The Priest's Part" chorally.

Regulations and forms of entry may be had from the undersigned.
By order of the Board, SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

THE HALF-TERM begins on November 4.
The NEXT EXAMINATION for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will be held in April, 1902.
Syllabus and official Entry Forms, may be obtained at the College, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

Just Published.

No. 41A. Novello's Music Primers and Educational Series.)

EXAMPLES IN STRICT COUNTERPOINT (OLD AND NEW)
BY GORDON SAUNDERS.

PART 2.
Containing Examples in from 5 to 12 Parts.
Price 3s.; in Paper Boards, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

John Broadwood & Sons'

LIMITED,

NEW SHORT OVERSTRUNG GRAND

105 GUINEAS.

"MULTUM IN PARVO."

33, GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.
Established 1865.

Principal: T. H. YORKE TROTTER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. Yorke Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

OSCAR BERINGER

SCALE & ARPEGGIO MANUAL. 2s. net.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

ŠEVČÍK VIOLIN METHOD.
KUBELIK. KOCIÂN.

Another Sevcik pupil, Kocian, three years younger than Kubelik, has scored, if possible, an even greater success at his Examination Concert in Prag than Kubelik or any other pupil—Ondricek, de Sicard, Kubelik, Kocian. These continued successes speak sufficiently for this really great Method. Particulars from any Musicseller.

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 82.

PIANOFORTE PEDALS. 2s. NET.

GUIDE TO THE PROPER USE, WITH EXAMPLES FROM
THE HISTORICAL CONCERTS OF
ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

RUBINSTEIN SAID: "The more I play the more thoroughly I am convinced that the Pedal is the soul of the Piano. There are cases where the Pedal is everything."

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 238.

CARPÉ BOUND, 6s. NET.

GROUPING, ARTICULATING, AND PHRASING IN MUSICAL INTERPRETATION.

A Systematic Exposition for Players, Teachers, and advanced Students
The Musical Courier says: "It is bound to supplant any work written on the same subject. Mr. Carpé is a Pianist and a profound student of phrasing, and a specialist in his chosen field."

BOSWORTH AND CO., 5, PRINCES ST., OXFORD ST., W.
And at LEIPZIG, PARIS, VIENNA.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

NOVEMBER 1, 1901.

DR. ARNE.

(1710-1778.)

It rarely falls to the lot of a musician of any country to compose a national song that will endure for more than a century and-a-half, a song, moreover, that not only retains its hold upon the hearts of the people, but that has in it the elements of imperishableness. When to such an achievement can be added another of scarcely less renown—the distinction of having contributed more than one tuneful treasure to the rich store of his country's songs—it is no exaggeration to say that the man who has done these things is no ordinary mortal. Such an one is the English composer whose name appears above, and who fully deserves admittance into this series of Biographical Sketches.

Thomas Augustine Arne was born March 12, 1710, the same year in which Dr. Boyce first saw the light. He was baptised at the church of St. Paul's, Covent Garden, on May 28, 1710, when he received only the name of Thomas; his second name, Augustine, he probably assumed when he entered the Church of Rome. No previous biographer seems to have drawn attention to this fact.* His father, Thomas Arne, was an upholsterer who lived on the north side of King Street, Covent Garden, where No. 34, the premises of Messrs. Rivingtons, the publishers, now stand. There were no numbers to houses in those days, and Mr. Arne adopted the upholstery sign of the 'Two Crowns and Cushions.' He was at one time an overseer of the poor of the parish; and it may be inferred that he was a man in a large way of business, as the rental of his house was £75 per annum, a considerable sum to pay for rent two hundred years ago.

That Mr. Thomas Arne let lodgings is recorded by Addison in No. 50 of the Spectator (April 27, 1711), but the upholsterer's paying guests therein referred to were no less mighty personages than 'four Indian Kings,' really four North American Indian chiefs. This quartet of monarchs, who lodged in 'a handsome apartment,' were received by Queen Anne, and, like Americans of the present day, they had a 'real good time' in seeing the sights of London.

Mr. Arne sent his son Tom to Eton College to be educated. More than a hundred years later another boy entered that seat of learning (and athletics), Hubert Parry by name, who, like Arne, was destined to add lustre to English music. Master Arne does not seem to have had much inclination for classical scholarship. As his schooldays and young-manhood have been so well related by his pupil and friend, Dr. Burney, the worthy historian may be quoted in his own quaint language:—

'But I have been assured by several of his [Arne's] school-fellows, that his love for Music operated upon him too powerfully, even while he was at Eton, for his own peace or that of his companions; for with a miserable cracked common-flute, he used to torment them night and day, when not obliged to attend the school. And he told me himself, that when he left Eton, such was his passion for Music, that he used to avail himself of the privilege of a servant, by borrowing a livery and going into the upper gallery of the opera, which was then appropriated to domestics.

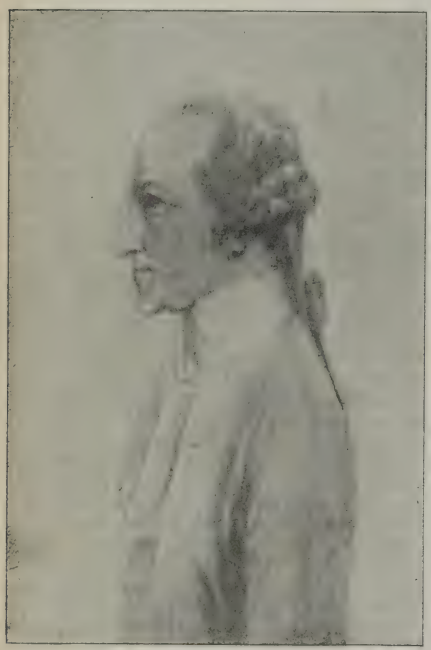
'At home he had continued to secrete a spinet in his room, upon which, after muffling the strings with a handkerchief, he used to practise in the night while the rest of the family were asleep; for had his father discovered how he spent his time, he would, probably, have thrown the instrument out of the window if not the player. This young votary of Apollo,' continues Burney, 'was at length obliged to serve a three years' clerkship to the law, without ever intending to make it his profession; but even during this servitude, he dedicated every moment he could obtain fairly, or otherwise, to the study of Music. Besides practising on the spinet and studying composition by himself, he continued during his clerkship to acquire some instructions on the violin, of Festing, upon which instrument he had made so considerable a progress, that soon after he had quitted his legal master, his father accidentally calling at a gentleman's house in the neighbourhood upon business, found him engaged with company; but sending in his name, he was invited up stairs, where there was a large company and a concert, in which, to his great astonishment, he caught his son in the very act of playing the first fiddle! Finding him more admired for his musical talents than knowledge of the law, he was soon prevailed upon to forgive his unruly passion, and to let him try to turn it to some account. No sooner was the young musician able to practise aloud in his father's house, than he bewitched the whole family.'

With the exception of the violin lessons he received from Festing, Master Arne appears to have been self-taught in music—certainly in regard to composition; moreover, he does not seem to have passed any examinations. If he had been asked to 'Represent the collective value of a double-dotted minim, three quavers, a double-dotted crotchet, and five semiquavers by one note,' he would doubtless have replied, in the language of his day, in terms more forcible than polite.†

* I am indebted for this information to the kindness of the Rev. E. H. Mosse, M.A., Rector of St. Paul's, Covent Garden.

† This identical 'question' is taken from an official schedule of present-day examinationiana. Could anything be more *un*musical, nay idiotic?

At a very early age, Arne distinguished himself as a teacher of singing. His first and most distinguished pupil was his sister, Susanna Maria, afterwards the celebrated Mrs. Cibber, of whom more anon. The young teacher probably knew very little, if anything, about the 'shock of the glottis,' and similar expressions, but he was a master in the art of obtaining a distinct and intelligible enunciation of the words, which is more than the scientific voice strainers of later times are able to accomplish. Miss Arne made her first public appearance as the heroine in Lampe's 'Amelia' in 1732; she was then eighteen, her brother twenty-two. So successful was this debut that her brother Tom was induced to re-set Addison's opera



DR. ARNE.

(From an original Drawing in the possession of Mr. Burnham W. Horner, and reproduced by his kind permission.)

'Rosamund,' which, with Miss Arne as the heroine and her younger brother as the page, was performed at Lincoln's Inn Fields Theatre, March 7, 1733, ten days before Handel produced his oratorio 'Deborah,' at the King's Theatre, Haymarket. The same year saw the production of Arne's 'The Opera of Operas; or, Tom Thumb the Great' (a setting of Fielding's words 'after the Italian manner'), and a masque, 'Dido and Æneas,' the latter performed, according to custom, with a harlequinade intermixed. Two years later he composed music for the tragedy of 'Zara,' in which his sister (Mrs. Cibber) made her first appearance as an actress, and with so much success that she was accepted as the first tragedian of her time, a position which she retained for thirty years.

It was not, however, till Arne had attained the age of twenty-eight that he made his mark as a composer. In that year (1738) he was engaged to compose music for Dr. Dalton's adaptation of Milton's 'Comus,' brought out at Drury Lane Theatre. In the meantime he had married Cecilia, the youngest daughter of Charles Young, organist of All Hallows', Barking. The young bride was a fine singer, with a compass that extended to E in alt. 'Comus' proved to be a great success; it contained some charming music, and its graceful and flowing melodies at once made a deep impression and fully established the reputation of the young musician. From this time forward, Arne was engaged as composer to Drury Lane Theatre, a position which he held for the greater part of his life.

The year 1740 was an eventful one in the life of Thomas Arne, as he immortalized his name by composing the stirring strains of 'Rule, Britannia.' The history of this noble national song has been so recently told in these columns (The Musical Times, April, 1900), that there is no need to recapitulate the details here. Suffice it to say that 'The celebrated Ode in Honour of Great Britain, call'd Rule, Britannia,' was first performed at Cliveden, near Maidenhead, on August 1, 1740. Another event of this year, the revival, after forty years' neglect, of Shakespeare's 'As you like it,' furnished Arne with the opportunity of enriching true English music with his settings of 'When daisies pied,' sung by Mrs. Clive, and 'Under the greenwood tree' and 'Blow, blow, thou winter wind,' sung by Thomas Lowe. The performance took place at Drury Lane Theatre, on December 20, 1740, since when, and no wonder, the music of those songs has become indissolubly associated with the words. One hears so much of 'Copyright' nowadays that it seems to have become a twentieth-century war-cry; but more than a century and-a-half ago—on January 29, 1740, to be exact—Arne was granted the royal privilege of preserving the copyright of his works for a period of fourteen years.

A recent biographer states that, 'towards the end of the year 1742,' Arne and his wife paid a professional visit to Dublin; but Arne was certainly there earlier in the year, as Faulkner's Journal of August 21-24, 1742, records:—

> Yesterday Messrs. Delane, Garrick, and Arne, and Mrs. Cibber embarked for England.

Another composer was in the Irish capital about that time, busily engaged in performing his oratorios, including the 'Messiah,' which was produced (in Dublin) April 13, 1742, the contralto solos being sung by Mrs. Cibber, for whom Handel wrote them.

Through the kindness of Mr. Leopold Dix, of Dublin, who has, for the purposes of this article, searched the files of Faulkner's Journal (Dublin), we are enabled to place before our readers some fresh Hibernian information concerning the doings of Arne and his wife. The works performed by them included 'Comus,' 'Rosamund,' 'Alfred' (in which occurs 'Rule, Britannia'), 'The Comedy of the Rehearsal' (libretto by the Duke of Buckingham), 'The Judgment of Paris,' 'Eliza,' &c.

The earliest record of Mrs. Arne's sojourn in Dublin is an advertisement of a performance for her benefit, which stated that, 'At the particular desire of several persons of Quality,' she would give (on July 21, 1742) 'a Grand Entertainment of Music.' On that occasion selections from Handel's oratorios and operas were sung by her and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Cibber. It may be assumed that 'the celebrated Mr. Handel' was pesent, if he did not actually take some part in this interesting music-making. Compositions by Arne, including an overture by him and one by Handel, were also performed. The advertisement of a proposed repetition of this feast of music concluded thus:—

Mrs. Arne being a stranger in this Kingdom humbly hopes the Nobility and Gentry will excuse her personal application; and to prevent their being detained at the Doors of the Hall while Tickets are delivered them, that they will send for their Tickets to Mrs. Cibber's House, in Aungier Street, where Places may be taken, To begin exactly at 7 o'clock. (Faulkner's Journal, July 24 to July 27, 1742.)

The earliest definite reference to Arne's musical doings in Dublin is in April, 1743, when he announced a Benefit. He lodged 'over against the Ram, in Aungier Street.' Hitchcock, in his 'Historical View of the Irish Stage' (Dublin, 1788, vol. i., p. 126), thus refers to the composer of 'Rule Britannia' in the Emerald Isle:—

The celebrated Dr. Arne, so eminent for his musical abilities . . . had under his direction a company of the best singers ever heard in Dublin. These the proprietors engaged, and in order to exhibit them to the highest advantage, revived the Masque of Comus [music by Arne], with every expence and attention necessary to render it worthy of public notice. Dr. Arne conducted the musical department, he new set the whole piece, divided the chorusses into parts, which till then had been sung in unison . . . a double orchestre was led by Dr. Arne.

The references to the harmonization of the choruses and the 'double orchestre'—whatever that may have been—are interesting. Arne gave subscription performances of opera, which, with the Viceroy at their head, were well patronised by the Quality of Dublin. In an advertisement of a performance of the 'Beggar's Opera' it is stated: 'The whole conducted by Mr. Arne, who accompanies the performance on the harpsichord.' He also gave a concert with Mr. Dubourg, the eminent violinist, as a colleague. The performance of Arne's oratorio 'The Death of Abel,' at that time, in Dublin, disposes of the statement of all the biographers that it was first performed at Covent Garden Theatre, on March 12, 1755.

The advertisement announcing this performance, with Arne's manifesto, is curious enough to be quoted in full:—

By SUBSCRIPTION

At the Theatre-royal in Smock Alley on Saturday next, being the 18th of this Inst., Feb., will be performed
A new Oratorio, called The Death of Abel.
Set to music by Mr. Arne.
The Principal Characters to be performed by Mr. Lowe, Mrs. Arne, and Mademoiselle Chateauneuf.

The stage will be disposed in the same manner as at Mr. Handel's Oratorios in London.

As but 12 more subscribers can be admitted, such gentlemen and ladies as intend to honour Mr. Arne by subscribing, are greatly desired immediately to send their names to his house in Aungier-street, where tickets are ready to deliver to the subscribers.

N.B.—Attendance will be given at the Theatre on each Day of Performance, when Subscribers, on sending their Subscription Tickets, will have three delivered on each of the four Nights of Performance.

Pit, Boxes, and Lattices, Half a Guinea. First Gallery, 2s. 8d. halfp. Upper Gallery, 2s. 2d.

MRS. CIBBER (NÉE ARNE),
WHO WAS THE FIRST TO SING 'HE WAS DESPISED.'

Ladies are requested to sit in the Pit, as well as Boxes, as is the Custom at the Operas and Oratorios in London, for which purpose the Pit Seats will be made thoroughly clean.

To begin exactly at half an Hour after Six.

The Printer made a mistake in the last bills; but the Subscribers may depend that (according to Mr. Arne's proposal) no Person (except Subscribers) will be admitted into Pit, Boxes, or Lattices under Half a Guinea.

Mr. Arne begs Leave to acquaint the Public, that he has been credibly inform'd by several worthy Families that the Gentlewomen who keep the Saturday Night's Assembly, or some one concern'd with, or commission'd by them, have made it their business to complain of his performing the Subscription Oratorios on that Night, alledging that it was done on purpose to prejudice them. Now, so far was that from being thought of, much less intended, that the Gentlemen Proprietors of the Theatre, as well as Mr. Arne, endeavoured their utmost to fix another Night, but could not, for the following Reasons: The Mondays and Thursdays are taken up with Benefits for six Weeks. On Tuesdays, are Vicars-street Consort, and the Bear on College green, which take up all the best Hands. On Wednesday are the Phil Harmonic Society, and Crow-street, where they are likewise engag'd. And on Friday is Fishamble-street Consort, where they are obliged to perform. (Faulkner's Journal, February 11 to to 14, 1743.)

As no advertisement makes mention of a performance of Arne's 'Thomas and Sally' during the composer's sojourn in Dublin, future biographers may be spared falling into the trap of error by copying previous writers. The last reference to our composer in Dublin is a curious one—his appearance as an actor! Here is the proof thereof in the form of an advertisement from Faulkner's Journal (Dublin), of January 17 to 21, 1744:—

For the benefit of Mrs. Arne, at the Theatre-royal in Aungier Street, on Saturday, the 28th of this Inst., will be performed, The second part of Henry IV. With the humours of Sir John Falstaff. The part of Henry, Prince of Wales, by Mr. Arne, being his first attempt of that kind.

This 'first attempt' seems to have been the last, and thenceforward Arne made no further experiments in histrionic achievements.

Upon his return to London, Arne, who was an excellent violinist, became leader of the band at Drury Lane, a post which corresponds to the conductor of our modern orchestras. Burney says that although his (Arne's) hand was enfeebled with rheumatism, his skill surpassed that of any performer on the violin who had preceded him. In 1745 he was engaged as composer at Vauxhall Gardens. Here, and at the similar resorts of Ranelagh and Marylebone, he for many years wrote shoals of songs, of which Mr. Burnham Horner possesses over three hundred specimens. Some of the titles of these ditties are curious: this, for instance:—

To a Lady, who being asked by her lover for a token of her constancy, gave him a Knife.

But the song associated with the name of Arne is 'Where the bee sucks.' It formed part of the music he composed for the revival of Shakespeare's 'Tempest' at Drury Lane Theatre, January 31, 1746. The General Advertiser of that day thus announced the performance:—

Drury Lane. Never Acted there before. By His Majesty's Company of Comedians. At the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, this Day will be presented a Play, call'd The Tempest, as written by Shakespeare . . . with the original Decorations, particularly the Grand Masque, new set to Musick by Mr. Arne. The Part of Ariel (with the proper Songs) by Mrs. Clive.

Enviable Kitty Clive, to have been the original singer of that delightful song—a song which is not only typically English in character, but which retains all the freshness and charm of perennial youth, although it is more than 150 years old. 'Where the bee sucks' is in itself sufficient to place its composer upon the roll of fame.

The following letter from Arne to Shenstone, the 'water-gruel bard,' as Horace Walpole dubbed him, furnishes evidence of the amount which Walsh, the great music publisher of the day, paid Arne for his songs:—

To William Shenstone, Esq., at the Leasowes, near Birmingham, Warwickshire.

Novr. ye 30, 1754.

Sr.

By the hands of Mr. Dodsley, I receiv'd your very obliging Letter, and wou'd, for my own Pleasure comply with your Request; but Mr. Dodsley's Interest in this Particular interferes with mine; for, if he prints my Music in his Publication, I shall lose the sale of it to Mr. Walsh (the King's Music-Printer) who gives me 20 guineas for every Collection I compose—consisting of eight or nine songs, and who whou'd not give a shilling for any Thing that another had first publish'd.

Of this I acquainted Mr. Dodsley, who did not seem inclin'd to make any Gratuity for the Loss.

Any Song, Cantata, or Dramatic Piece from so delicate a Pen, whereby I shou'd not considerably lose to promote another's Gain, wou'd be the most welcome present I cou'd receive, stamp an additional Reputation on my Music, and highly oblige

Sr, your most obedt. servt.

Thos. Augne. Arne.

Charles Street, Covent Garden.

Previous biographers of Dr. Arne do not seem to have mentioned his visit to Edinburgh. In the article on Tenducci, the celebrated sopranist singer, in Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians,' there is a passing reference to Arne and Tenducci being fellow travellers in Scotland and Ireland after 1758. But through the kindness of that diligent antiquary, Mr. Robert A. Marr, of Edinburgh, we are enabled to show that Arne visited Edinburgh, evidently without Tenducci, by the following advertisement from an Edinburgh journal:—

For the benefit of Mr. Arne. At the Assembly Hall on Monday, 27 May, A Concert of Vocal and Instrumental Musick. The Vocal part to be performed by Miss Rodburn, and the Instrumental by Mr. Pasquali, Mr. Arne and others. To begin Precisely at 6. Tickets 2/6. To be had at Mr. Arne's Lodgings, at Mr. Johnston's, Wigmaker, head of Chalmers Close, and at the Old and John's Coffee houses. (Caledonian Mercury, May 23, 1754.)

The music of Arne had previously been made known in Auld Reekie, if we may judge from the following advertisement:—

New Musick. Now in the press and will be ready by the beginning of April next and delivered to subscribers. All the songs, Duettos, and Trios in the Masque of Comus composed by Thomas Augustine Arne as adapted to the Harpsichord and voice and all the songs, Duettos, and Trios in the Burlesque Opera called the Dragon of Wantly composed by the great John Frederick Lampe likewise adapted to the Harpsichord and voice. The above words may occasionally be accompanied with Violin or German Flute and Violoncello. This manner of reducting them to avoid the Perplexity of the different parts in a score which confound young practitioners was finished by Mr. Lampe in his lifetime and the proofs of the Plates have been revised and corrected by Mr. Arne. (Caledonian Mercury, March 6, 1752.)

The term 'reducting,' as a means of grace to 'young practitioners,' is curious.

On July 6, 1759, the University of Oxford conferred upon Arne the degree of Doctor of Music. At Covent Garden Theatre he produced, on November 28, 1760, his once popular piece 'Thomas and Sally.' Most of the biographers assert that it was first performed at Dublin, during the sojourn of the composer there in 1742-44, but as we have already shown, there is no authority for that statement. The title of the work stands thus in the printed score:—

Thomas and Sally, | or | The Sailor's Return, | A dramatic pastoral | with the overture in score, songs, | dialogues duettos and dance- | -tunes, as perform'd at the Theatre | Royal in Covent Garden | by | Mr. Beard and Miss Brent, | Mr. Mattocks, Mrs. Vernon, | and chorus. | The music compos'd by | Doctr. Arne.

London | Printed for J. Walsh, in Catharine Street, in the Strand. | Enter'd at Stationers' Hall.

Two years later, Arne made the bold experiment of placing before an English audience an opera after the Italian manner, with recitatives instead of spoken dialogue. He translated the Abbate Metastasio's 'Artaserse,' and having set it to music, produced the opera with the title of 'Artaxerxes,' at Covent Garden, on February 2, 1762. Its success was phenomenal—so great indeed that it held possession of the stage for upwards of three quarters of-a-century. Arne received sixty guineas for the copyright. The music for the character of Mandane he wrote specially for his gifted pupil, Miss Brent. Unlike the simple strains of his former productions, many of the airs in 'Artaxerxes' contained difficult florid divisions, and the part of Mandane was long considered to be the high-water mark of a soprano singer's attainments.

The relations between Arne and David Garrick, the 'joint-patentee' of Drury Lane Theatre, were subsequently strained. The great actor was no musician, and the composer, like most of his craft, was of a sensitive nature. The following letters are selected from the correspondence—often very amusing—which passed between the musician and the actor:—

Arne to Garrick.

August 21, 1775.

Dr. Arne presents his best respects to Mr. Garrick . . . these unkind prejudices the Doctor can no otherwise account for, than as arising from an irresistible apathy, to which (though painfully) he submits; but will never (notwithstanding) deviate a tittle from that respect, with which he has ever been Mr. Garrick's most obedient servant.

Garrick to Arne.

Drury Lane Theatre,

Dear Sir, April 24, 1775.

. . . How can you imagine that I have an irresistible apathy to you? I suppose you mean antipathy, my dear Doctor, by the construction and general turn of your letter. Be assured, as my nature is very little inclined to apathy, so it is as far from conceiving an antipathy to you or any genius in this or any other country. . . .

I have not the least antipathy, I give you my honour I have not, to Doctor Arne; but, on the contrary, if I had a work of consequence, I should wish to employ him, notwithstanding that our theatrical connections have not yet been serviceable to either of us.

I am, dear Sir, your very sincere well-wisher and humble servant, David Garrick.

Endorsed: Dr. Arne's letter and my answer about apathy.

Arne to Garrick.

September 3, 1775.

Dear Sir,—I received the favour of your reply to my letter, which I could not doubt of, you never being deficient in politeness.

You are certainly in the right to suppose that (if I wrote the word apathy) I mean antipathy. Did I make the blunder, or is it a joke, like Mrs. Cibber's asking you how you could possibly spell King with a Q?

. . . Have I been studying the longitude? Perhaps so; but if I have tired you, it is more than you could by me, were you to fill a ream of paper.

Garrick to Arne (undated).

Dear Sir,

I read your play and rode your horse and do not approve of either. They both want that particular spirit which alone can give pleasure to the reader and the rider. When the one wants wit, and the other the spur, they jog on very heavily. I must keep the horse, but I have returned you the play. I pretend to some little knowledge of the last; but as I am no jockey, they cannot say that the knowing one is taken in.

I am, dear Sir, your most obedient servant,

D. G.

Endorsed: Designed for Dr. Arne, who sold me a horse, a very dull one, and sent me a comic opera, ditto.

The last-quoted letter, with its stinging endorsement, is a 'nasty one.'

Oratorio was not Arne's forte, but for the second time he tried his hand at that species of composition in his setting of 'Judith,' which obtained its first hearing at the chapel of the Lock Hospital, Grosvenor Place, Pimlico, on February 29, 1764, when it was given for the benefit of the charity. At a subsequent performance of the work—at Covent Garden Theatre, February 26, 1773—ladies, at Dr. Arne's instigation, sang in an oratorio chorus for the first time. The soprano part had always been sung by boys. It may be interesting to reprint the account of this (now) historical performance.

The Oratorio of Judith, composed by Dr. Arne, which was performed at the Theatre Royal in Covent Garden Yesterday Evening, was received with uncommon Applause. The principal Singers acquitted themselves to the utmost Satisfaction of the Audience. Mr. Bartholemon was greatly admired in his Solo on the Violin, and too much cannot be said in Praise of Signor Spandau's Concerto on the French Horn, as it surpassed any Performance on that Instrument hitherto heard in this Country. The striking Appearance of the Band and Chorus, which were much more numerous than they have usually been, received a most pleasing Addition from the Female Singers than [? then] first introduced. (The Public Advertiser, February 27, 1773.)

Ladies of the sopranos in chorus singing should hold the name of Dr. Arne in grateful remembrance.

It is interesting to find that the composer of 'Rule, Britannia' was a singer, even in his fifty-sixth year. The minute book of the Madrigal Society—kindly placed at our disposal by its courteous secretary, Mr. J. Edward Street—records, under date October 30, 1765,

> Mr. Mawhood proposed Dr. Arne as a performing member.

A little later we find the newly-admitted Doctor credited with the sum of 6s. 6d. under the dates December 18 and 25, which seems to infer that in those days the Society met on Christmas Day. Michael Arne, his son, was also elected a member in the same year, and among this part-singing fraternity at that time occurs the name of Luffman Atterbury, the composer of 'Come, let us all a-Maying go.'

This may be a convenient opportunity to refer to Arne as a composer of part-music. 'Of his thirty-three glees,' says Mr. David Baptie in his useful 'Sketches of Glee Composers,' 'he obtained prizes for three. . . . These, however, are by no means his best: infinitely superior are 'Come, shepherds, we'll follow the hearse' (upon the death of Shenstone, the poet), and 'Sweet Muse! inspire thy suppliant bard.' . . . His catch, 'Buz, quoth the blue fly,' is very effective.' He was also a member of the Catch Club and a prize winner. In this glee and catch connection we are enabled, by the kindness of Dr. W. H. Cummings, who possesses the original document, to give a letter (circa 1767-8) from Dr. Arne to a Mr. Smith, who is amusingly referred to by Arne as a blacksmith—vide the anvil reference.

> Dr. Arne's complim^ts to W. Smith
> Desiring him not to fail meeting the other gentlemen concern'd in the new Catches and Glees, at the Dr.'s house, on Thursday evening next, exactly at 7; having reason to hope for some continuance of them; if perform'd with a requisite spirit and humour; besides another material employment for him on the Anvil.
>
> Jan^y ye 2^d.
>
> West Street, near Litchfield Street, Soho.
> Pray don't forget to bring the part.

It is interesting to learn that at Ranelagh Gardens, May 12, 1767, 'Catches and Glees were rendered with instrumental parts by Dr. Arne, an addition considered necessary on account of the size of the Rotunda.' This is stated to have been the first public performance of the kind in England.

As evidence of the second performance of that nature, Dr. Cummings possesses a scarce book bearing the following title:—

> The Words of the favourite Catches and Glees, which, with the elegant and humorous music, composed by the most eminent masters of the last and present age, will be performed at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, on Tuesday, the twenty-first of this instant June, By a considerable number of the best Vocal and Instrumental performers. The choral and instrumental parts are added, to give the Catches, and glees their proper effect, being Composed, for that Purpose, by Dr. Arne.
>
> This performance (the second of the kind ever publicly exhibited in this or any Kingdom) is introduced at the Desire of many Persons of Quality, Lovers and Encouragers of good Harmony and inoffensive Humour.
>
> London: Printed in the year MDCCLXVIII.

This rare Arne book-of-words is a forerunner of the modern annotated programme. The following extracts are from 'A Short Preface for the information of those Persons who have not been acquainted with this kind of Music,' in Arne's own words:—

> These kinds of entertainment (in the time of Mr. Henry Purcell) were so much in fashion, that in most polite families, after dinner and supper, it was a custom to lay the choicest collections of Catches and Glees on the table, and thought a deficiency of education in those, who could not readily perform a part.
>
> If the poetry of one or two of the ancient Catches should not bear a critical examination, the reader is requested to consider that they were so written, with a more particular regard to the Music, which will probably make them ample amends.

The remaining incidents in Dr. Arne's life may soon be told. In 1765 he composed Metastasio's 'Olimpiade' as an opera in the Italian language, especially for the male soprano Manzuoli. Produced at the King's Theatre, and not at Covent Garden or Drury Lane, the opera was performed only twice; the petty jealousy against an Englishman composing for an Italian opera-house, undoubtedly damaged its success, whatever its merits may have been. For the Shakespeare celebration of 1769, held at Stratford-on-Avon, Arne composed an Ode, and his Oratorio 'Judith' was performed at the Parish Church, for what reason is not known. Who can tell but that it was selected out of compliment to one of the Sweet Swan of Avon's daughters, Miss Judith Shakespeare!

In 1770, Garrick produced at Drury Lane a tinkered version of Dryden's 'King Arthur.' The occasion furnished Arne with an opportunity for depreciating the music of his distinguished countryman, Henry Purcell. He addressed a long and self-opinionated letter to Garrick, in which, after setting forth the shortcomings, as they appeared to his judgment, of Purcell's music to 'King Arthur,' he says, in conclusion:—

> All the other Solo Songs of Purcell are infamously bad—so very bad, that they are privately the objects of sneer and ridicule to the Musicians, but I have not meddled with any, that are not to come from the mouths of your principal Performers.
>
> I wish you wou'd only give me leave to Doctor this performance—I wou'd certainly make it pleasing to the Public, which, otherwise, may prove an obstruction to the success of the Revival.
>
> It is not now my intention to new set many things, mention'd in our original plan; but to put it in the power of your principal performers to make a proper figure, by opening and adorning the most entertaining points of view, wherein they are to appear; consequently, the expence will be much short of the Sume propos'd; all self-interest subsiding to the earnest desire I shall ever entertain of proving my sincerity,—when I stile myself——Sr.,

Your devoted humble servt.,

Thos. Augne. Arne.*

The last dramatic work set to music by Dr. Arne was Mason's 'Caractacus,' produced at Covent Garden, December 6, 1776. As Mr. J. S. Shedlock contributed an article on this work to these columns in February, 1889, there is no need to dwell upon 'Caractacus' in detail. The performing directions which the composer gives in the preface to the score are in their nature quite Berliozic. We give two extracts. The first refers to time, concerning which Arne says:—

In a vocal performance of such length, in which the Time changes so often, it will be necessary to appoint somebody to keep it throughout; as well with respect to its Quickness and Slowness as to its general nature: with respect to the former, I have to add, that the quickest Time must be sufficiently slow for the singers to pronounce the words distinctly. If it should be found too difficult for them to get their respective musical parts accurately by heart, a Forte Piano must be placed somewhere near the Chorus to prompt them.

The composer's concluding directions, which are very sensible, speak for themselves:—

General Instructions for the Performance of the Instrumental Music.

The Band should be large.

There must be three Trombones for the Symphonies in the last Act.

In those Symphonies in which the upper part lies on, while the middle or lower part moves, care must be taken that such middle or lower part be distinctly heard.

The Shakes to be performed by one Instrument only; the others, when any, in Unison with it, to lie on.

'Yesterday died Dr. Arne at his house in Bow Street [Covent Garden], whose musical talents were an honour to himself and this country.' In these simple words did the Morning Chronicle of March 6, 1778, record the passing away of the composer of 'Rule, Britannia.' That gossiping oboeist, W. T. Parke, who knew Arne, thus describes the end. 'The manner of Dr. Arne's death was very singular,' he says. 'The day after his decease his intimate friend Vernon, the favourite singing actor of Drury Lane Theatre, came into the music room, and in my presence described it as follows: "I was talking on the subject of music with the Doctor, who suffered much from exhaustion, when, in attempting to illustrate what he had advanced, he in a very feeble and tremulous voice sang part of an air, during which he became progressively more faint, until he breathed his last!" making, as our immortal Shakespeare expresses it, a swan-like end, fading in music.' This swan-like end is stated by one of his biographers to have been an 'inconceivably harmonious Halleluja'! His remains are interred in the Church of St. Paul's, Covent Garden. The Burial Registers of that church—where, it will be remembered, Arne was also baptized—record his name as Thomas, without the 'Augustine,' and the entry is without the address or description of the deceased. Any monument that was raised to him was destroyed in the fire which almost totally razed the church in the year 1795, and there is nothing in this interesting sanctuary to perpetuate the memory of Dr. Arne. Among other celebrities that are interred in St. Paul's, or its churchyard, are John Weldon, the anthem composer, and Michael Kelly, musicians; the poets Samuel Butler and Peter Pindar; William Wycherley, the dramatist; Sir Peter Lely, the painter; and the great sculptor, Grinling Gibbons.

In estimating the achievements of Arne in the realm of music, the first thought that occurs is the thoroughly English character of its strains. That he was the most distinguished native composer of the eighteenth century goes without saying. But was he not something more than that? Judged from the point of view of the schools, defects may be discovered in his workmanship. He probably knew little of, and cared less for, counterpoint, but then he had that pearl of precious price—melody. In this connection, no less an authority than the late John Hullah may be quoted. 'Arne,' says Hullah, 'was the most thoroughly national of all our song-writers. His fulness of melody, purity of harmony were equalled only by his sustaining power. No composer is more tuneful, and at the same time more spontaneously continuous than Arne. He would seem never at a loss how to go on. Passage grows out of passage with him, as though, given the first one, those which follow could never have been other than they were. With all this somewhat dangerous facility, he is never tedious. He follows a musical thought to its, with him, inevitable consequences—and never beyond it.'

[F. G. E.]

(To be continued.)

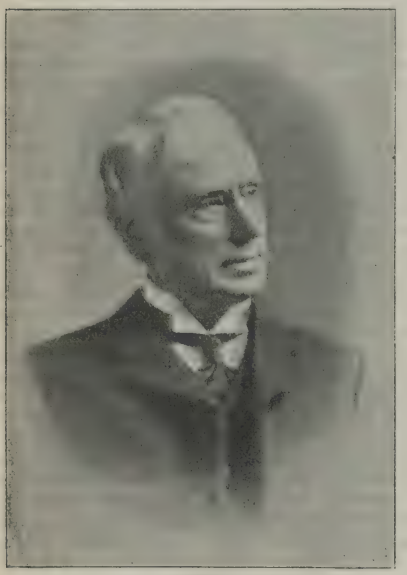
* The whole of this curious letter, reproduced in facsimile, formed the Special Supplement to The Musical Times of January, 1896. The original is in the possession of Dr. W. H. Cummings, who contributed an article entitled 'Purcell and Dr. Arne' to the same number.

A VISIT TO WINCHESTER.

No, gentle reader, it was not the King Alfred Millenary celebration that drew me to the ancient and 'royal' city of Winchester. This by no means implies a want of respect to the memory of that mighty monarch; but such places should be visited in their every-day, easy-going surroundings. It was rather in the spirit of a pilgrim to a spot closely associated with Samuel Sebastian Wesley, that I made my way Hampshirewards on a recent Saturday. The enjoyment of 'a look round' was greatly enhanced by the pleasant companionship and kind hospitality of the cathedral organist, Dr. G. B. Arnold, who temporarily forsook his dotted crotchets and devoted himself to one from London.

Winchester is steeped in antiquarianism. The doubly-dyed dryasdust would probably hark back to times anterior to King Alfred the Great, concerning whom so much of late has been said; but the old West Gate, abutting on the Roman road to Sarum, serves as a good starting-point for a stroll round the city. Close by this stately portal is the County Hall, which includes the remains of the ancient castle of William the Conqueror, and wherein is preserved King Arthur's Round Table of undoubted antiquity. By the banks of the swift-flowing Itchen the venerable walls of Wolvesley Castle appear particularly beautiful, robed in their rich autumnal tints, or, pace Sir George Grove, 'autimnal tunts.' The famous Winchester



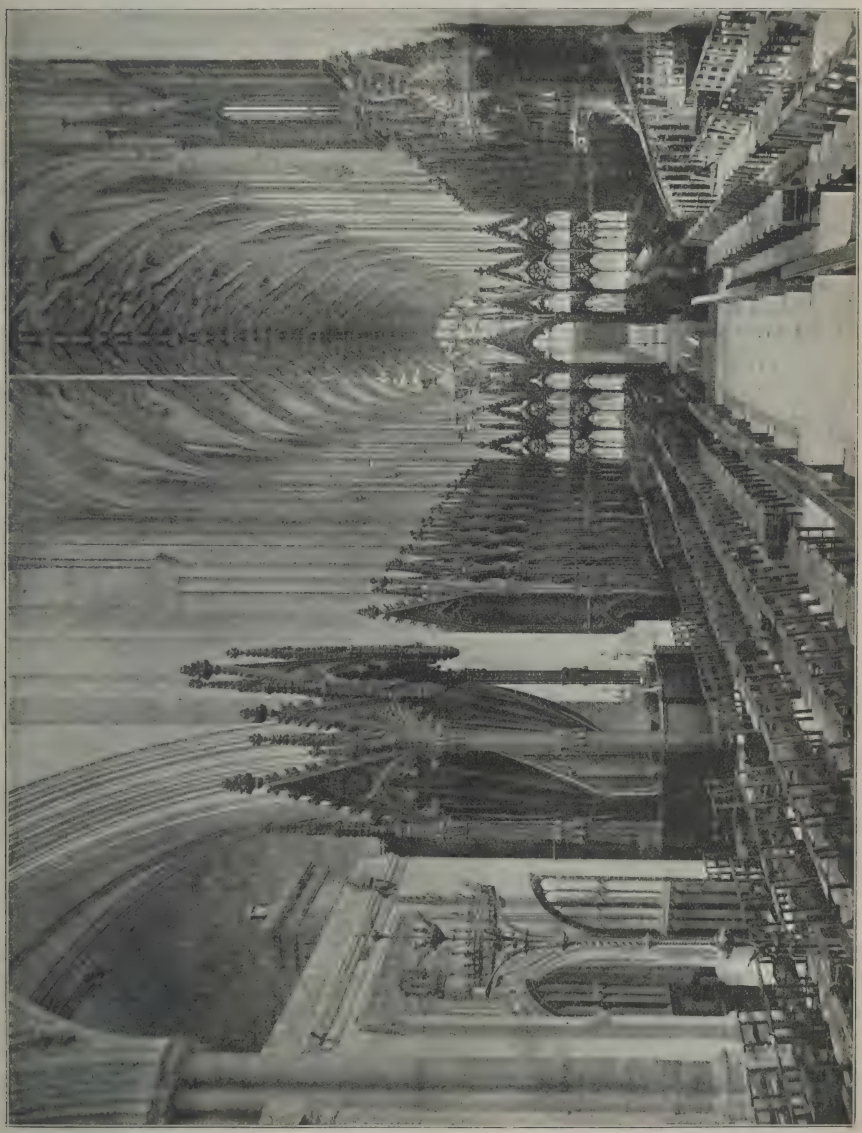
(From a Photograph by Messrs. Elliott and Fry.)

George-B. Arnold

College—'Sainte Marie College of Wynchestre,' according to Wykeham's charter of 1382—naturally awakens interest. Among the manuscripts preserved in the college archives is a pedigree of Henry VI., tracing his descent from Adam! The alumni of this ancient seat of learning include Sir Thomas Browne, good Bishop Ken, Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, and Sidney Smith. The city and its neighbourhood are also interesting from a literary point of view. Two lady novelists, Jane Austen and Florence Maryatt, are closely identified with Winchester, and Anthony Trollope was a Wykamist. Five miles away is Hursley, its rectory so long the home of John Keble, and has not the village given the name to the tune associated with 'Sun of my soul'? Eversley, for ever associated with the name of Charles Kingsley, is another place of pilgrimage.

The Close is a delightful old-world spot, and its charm exercises a strange fascination upon the wayfarer in the subdued sunlight of an autumn day. 'This road,' says Dr. Arnold, 'was about seventy or eighty years ago nicknamed Dumb Alley, because four canons of those days used to live here, and it was so called because not one of them could preach.' One of these pleasant habitations is the official residence of the cathedral organist. It is a quaint, roomy old house, and although its doorway is much out of the perpendicular, there is good proof that the builders of Charles the Second's time were not of the jerry order. The chief point of interest within its walls is the cosy little study, looking out upon the well-kept lawn of the high-walled garden with its pear trees planted by Wesley. Oak panelled from floor to ceiling, this curious-shaped room was the sanctum of Samuel Sebastian Wesley for sixteen years, from 1849 to 1865. Here he wrote his glorious anthem 'Ascribe unto the Lord,' and the well-known hymn-tune 'Aurelia.' Dr. Arnold, who was his pupil at Winchester for four years, has many stories to tell of Wesley. Here is one. He taught at a school in the neighbourhood, to which he used to drive and take Arnold with him to assist in the duties of tuition. Not infrequently when crossing the bridge leading to the place, Wesley would pull up his nag and, looking wistfully at the stream, say to his pupil: 'I think there will be some good fishing here to-day. You go on, and tell them that I am unavoidably prevented from coming!'

The glory of Winchester is its Cathedral. From the exterior point of view the sanctuary itself is disappointing, but within it presents a feast of vision. It is the longest cathedral in these Isles, and its famous chantries are unrivalled in their exquisite beauty. Among the distinguished prelates commemorated within its walls are St. Swithun, who reigned as first prior and bishop from 852 to 862; William of Waynfleete, who founded Magdalen College, Oxford; and the witty Samuel Wilberforce, a bishop who would never sit down to a dinner party of thirteen if he thought that there would be only food enough for twelve. The remains of Mr. Izaak Walton are buried in the cathedral. How often must Wesley have smiled a sweet benediction on that tomb! Some former organists gained distinction in the persons of Christopher Gibbons, John Reading, the composer of the famous Winchester school-song, 'Dulce Domum'; Daniel Rosingrave; Vaughan Richardson, author of the popular anthem 'O, how amiable'; James Kent, a native of Winchester and the 'serviceable man'; and Dr. S. S. Wesley, Dr. Arnold's predecessor.



Winchester Cathedral.

Of the many things of special interest, mention must be made of the Mortuary Chests; one can be seen in our photograph (taken by the Photochrom Company, Limited), just above the bishop's throne, which stands on the left of the picture. These painted chests contain the bones of saints and kings of the Saxon period. The tomb of William Rufus is located in the centre of the Choir. The walls of the Lady Chapel were adorned with some curious old mural paintings of miracles wrought by the Virgin. One of the subjects was entitled: 'Virgin assisting a painter to paint the devil as ugly as he knew him to be, in spite of all the devil could do to prevent him from completing it.'

The first organ in the Cathedral, a very remarkable instrument of 'tremendous size and power,' was erected in the tenth century. A monk named Wulstan, who died in 951, wrote a Latin poem describing the instrument. In this poem he says:—

> Twice six bellows above are ranged in a row, and fourteen lie below. These, by alternate blasts, supply an immense quantity of wind, and are worked by seventy strong men, labouring with their arms, covered with perspiration, each inciting his companions to drive the wind up with all his strength, that the full-bosomed box may speak with its four hundred pipes which the hand of the organist governs. Some when closed he opens, others when open he closes, as the individual nature of the varied sound requires. Two brethren (religious) of concordant spirit sit at the instrument, and each manages his own alphabet . . .
>
> To such an amount does it [the organ] reverberate, echoing in every direction, that every one stops with his hand his gaping ears, being in no wise able to draw near and bear the sound, which so many combinations produce. The music is heard throughout the town, and the flying fame thereof is gone out over the whole country.

The present organ, of four manuals, came from the Great Exhibition of 1851, where it attracted much attention. On the advice of Dr. Wesley (then organist of the Cathedral) the Dean and Chapter bought the instrument; it has since been considerably enlarged under Dr. Arnold's supervision, and it furnishes another tribute to the skilful handicraft of Father Willis. The service on the occasion of my visit was very devotionally rendered—the excellent singing of the boys being a marked feature of that quiet Evensong. At the conclusion, Dr. Arnold played an extemporaneous prelude and fugue, in which he gave every proof of that contrapuntal skill and resource which so distinctly characterise his creative powers.

It is now time to say something about Dr. Arnold, who, like his old master, was exceedingly fond of fishing. Born at Petworth, Sussex—a village even now suggestive of the Middle Ages—on December 22, 1832, George Benjamin Arnold as a child displayed considerable musical ability. He was articled to Dr. Chard, organist of Winchester Cathedral, but, owing to the death of that 'chief musician,' his indentures were soon transferred to Dr. Wesley on the latter's appointment as organist in 1849. At Winchester he was Wesley's right hand for four years, but in 1853, on the nomination of Professor Walmisley, he became organist of St. Columba's College, Rathfarnham, near Dublin. This post he exchanged in 1856 for the organistship of St. Mary's Church, Torquay. Thence (in 1860) he went to New College, Oxford. Five years later he succeeded his master (Wesley) as organist of Winchester Cathedral; thus he has been connected with its music for a period of forty years. He took the degree of Mus. Bac., Oxon., in 1853, and the Doctor's degree in 1860. He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists, and has acted as an examiner to that Institution. During his Oxford period his pianoforte playing was much appreciated at the various College concerts. At Winchester, in addition to the 'daily round' of his Cathedral duties, he has filled the office of honorary conductor to the Winchester Choral Union.

As a composer, Dr. Arnold has been most industrious. His oratorio 'Ahab' was brought out by the National Choral Society at Exeter Hall, in 1864, and a cantata, 'Sennacherib,' received its initial hearing at the Gloucester Musical Festival of 1883, the first Meeting conducted by his old pupil, Mr. C. Lee Williams. Eight years ago he composed, by request, a cantata entitled 'The Song of the Redeemed,' for St. James's Church, New York, concerning which the New York Times said: 'the production of this work must be regarded as a distinctly important event in Church music in this country. This is the first time America has been honoured by a piece expressly written for it by a foreign composer. The cantata is a work of strong and impressive merit.' Dr. Langhans, the distinguished critic of Berlin, in a notice of Dr. Arnold's compositions, said: 'I perceive that I have to do with the works of a first-rate composer.' In addition to the above-named works, Dr. Arnold has composed two motets with orchestral accompaniment, settings of Psalms 23 and 43, also a number of anthems, services, madrigals, part-songs, and songs. He has in manuscript an oratorio entitled 'The Second Coming of our Lord'; a cantata 'The Son of David'; a secular work 'Hereward,' and various organ compositions. For the recent Millenary celebrations of England's Great Monarch he composed an 'Orchestral Introduction and chorus in praise of King Alfred,' which was performed with all due effect at the recent inauguration of Mr. Hamo Thornycroft's fine monument of King Alfred. It should be added that this memorial to one of England's worthies is a great success, and adds another feature of striking interest to the good old city. But the time to say good-bye comes all too soon. Thanks, however, to the kindness of Dr. Arnold, the above-described visit to Winchester, though short, was an exceedingly pleasant one to Dotted Crotchet.

MUSIC IN SCOTLAND:

A BRIEF HISTORICAL SURVEY.

In no part of the British Isles has music made so much progress in recent years as in Scotland. The average Southerner is apt to sniff at music north of the Tweed, and to limit its possibilities to Auld Lang Syne, the Scotch Reel and the Bagpipes. Such an estimate is, however, in the nature of a libel and far removed from the truth, as the following remarks—penned, let it be added, by a Southerner—will endeavour to prove. At the outset of these remarks it must be clearly understood that in what follows no attempt will be made to write a history of the art in Scotland—such a task, for which there is ample material, is beyond the scope of an article; it is one that awaits the qualified man of leisure and enthusiasm to do adequate justice to so interesting a theme.

It may be convenient to set forth the matter under three heads—like the dearly beloved sermon in Scotland: (1) choral and instrumental music, (2) church music, and (3) elementary musical education.

THE SANG SCHOOLS.

The Sang Schools, which date from the thirteenth century, may serve as a starting point. This old institution existed in all the cathedral cities in Scotland, and in many smaller towns. The primary object of the schools was to teach 'musick, meaners, and vertu'; later, however, the three R's were added to the curriculum. Laymen, in addition to cathedral singers, were permitted to benefit by the course of instruction, in which the study of the Gregorian chant had an important place. In course of time the Sang Schools languished, with the result that the Scots Parliament passed a statute in 1579 'instructing the provost, baillies, and counsale, to sett up ane sang scuill, for instruction of the youth in the art of musick and singing, of whilk is almaist decayit and sall schortly decay without tymous remeid be providit.' Except in Aberdeen—whose Sang School existed as far back as the year 1370, and was maintained till 1758—the Act does not seem to have had a practical result. At Glasgow the Sang School collapsed in 1588—nine years after the passing of the measure—and the Minutes of the Town Council record that 'the scuile sumtyme callit the sang scuile' was sold to defray the expenses incidental to a heavy visitation of the plague! It appears that the teachers in some of the Sang Schools were remunerated in kind as well as in 'filthy lucre.' Here is an extract from the Air (Ayr) Records of the year 1627:—

> Item to the Mr of musick scule for teaching of the musick scule and tacking up the psalmes in the Kirk x bolls victuall and xiiij of silver.

EDINBURGH'S EARLY MUSIC-MAKINGS.

If the art was not entirely dead in the second half of the sixteenth century, its devotees were not always spoken of with respect. When the ill-fated Mary, Queen of Scots, arrived in Edinburgh from France in 1561, we learn that Her Majesty was serenaded by '500 rascals with vile fiddles and rebecks.' Twenty years later a number of people forming a procession in the Scottish capital sang the 124th Psalm so lustily that 'heaven and earth resounded.'

It is to Edinburgh that we must look for the chief development of music North of the Tweed—not to the Auld Reekie of to-day, but of the time when the site of the Princes Street Gardens was a loch and a natural defence of the city, and when the new town with its stately thoroughfares was unknown. The records, though not voluminous, are interesting. At Holyrood Palace, in 1631, was held a daily practice for organ, flutes, and viols. A great taste for music is said to have permeated the capital in the last decade of the seventeenth century. On St. Cecilia's Day, 1695, the Plan of a Grand Concert of Music—at which some of the works of the forgotten Italian composer, Giovanni Battista Bassani (1657-1716), said to be the master of Corelli, were presented—shows that 'of the orchestra of thirty performers, nineteen were gentlemen of the first rank and fashion, and eleven were professors of music.' In or about the year 1718 a number of ladies and gentlemen met at the Cross Keys Tavern, and, forming themselves into a sort of club, assembled week by week to hear their friends perform music—mostly Corelli and Handel—on flutes, oboes, violins, violoncellos, and the harpsichord.

Choral music is of much later growth. It was not until the fourth decade of the last century—seventy years ago—that amateur choral societies began to be formed. If we go back to the year 1720, when Handel produced his first English oratorio 'Esther,' we find no properly organised musical society in Scotland. The Edinburgh Musical Society, which grew out of the weekly club, was instituted in 1728 and existed for nearly three-quarters of a century. Although mainly an instrumental society it numbered among its members several vocalists who lent their aid in chorus singing, and it is exceedingly interesting to find that, according to Hugo Arnot (History of Edinburgh), Handel 'gave this Society the privilege of having full copies of all his manuscript oratorios.' Although the Society was exclusive, none but the nobility and gentry being admitted to its membership—it represents 'the first stage in the growth of the amateur chorister in Scotland.'

CURIOUS CUSTOMS AND TERMS.

Some curious customs and terms crop up in these early days of music in Scotland. We learn that Funeral Concerts were given on the death of any important officer of the various societies, at which the programmes were of an unvaryingly mournful character. 'Spiritual Concerts after the manner of Oratorios' were, in other words, choral-orchestral concerts; and the term 'Band' was always applied to the chorus, a custom which prevailed in Scotland till about 1850. The word 'Plan' signified 'programme,' and the Plan Book of the Edinburgh Musical Society of February 19, 1768, when Handel's 'Alexander's Feast' was given, furnishes the following information concerning the 'company in the room:—440 ladies; 80 members; 50 stranger gentlemen; 70 performers; in all, 640.' As the hall seated only 500 persons, it is no wonder that the newspaper advertisements of the day stated that the 'company is to be so numerous that the ladies will appear without hoops.' This pioneer Society—as a tribute to its memory be it said—did splendid work. Every Friday evening, from the middle of November till the middle of August, it gave a choral orchestral concert of which any society might feel proud. With all our boasted improvement in matters musical, we do not seem to have caught the spirit of enthusiasm which animated the true lovers of music—at Edinburgh and elsewhere—in the days of long ago.

Before dismissing this excellent Society, which practically ceased to exist at the beginning of the nineteenth century, mention must be made of a fund formed (in 1790) by its members 'for the benefit of decayed musicians and their families belonging to this Society.' One Giuseppe Puppo (1749-1827), a pupil of Tartini, who led the orchestra for a few years, was called 'Signor Puppy, first catgut scraper.'

GLASGOW AND ITS ANE MUSITIAN.

We may now turn to Glasgow, the second city in the Empire—not the Glasgow of to-day, with its 800,000 inhabitants, but the 'very neate burghe toun' of two hundred and fifty years ago, then, as now, noted for the 'mercantile genius of the people.' Commerce reigned supreme, far above art, in the city of St. Mungo in 1668, as it was without 'ane musitian for instructing.' In 1691 one Mr. Lewis de France 'very willingly condescended to teach for fourteen shillings per month (one shilling and twopence) for ane hour in the day.' Concerts were almost unknown, even in the fifth decade of the eighteenth century. The Rev. Dr. Alexander Carlyle, who resided there from 1743-45, records that there was no teacher of music in the city, and that 'there never was but one concert during the two winters I was in Glasgow, and that was given by Walter Scott, Esq., of Harden, who was himself an eminent performer on the violin, and his band of assistants consisted of two dancing-school fiddlers and the town waits.' Matters improved about 1788, when the music of Handel and Boyce was performed at various benefit concerts. The Sacred Music Institution, formed in 1796, 'in order to promote a taste for sacred music among the citizens,' gave six public performances during the season of music by Arne, Greene, Handel, and others, one such taking place in the Cathedral, on June 16, 1798, 'with an organ accompaniment,' probably the first time an organ had been used in a Presbyterian church in Scotland since 1638.

ABERDEEN AND DUNDEE.

So far we have limited the survey (up to 1800) to Edinburgh and Glasgow, but other cities merit a 'look in.' Aberdeen formed its first Musical Society as early as 1747. Its membership was drawn from the nobility and gentry of the district, and during its sixty years' existence it performed good music at its weekly concerts. Dundee also had its Musical Society about the middle of the eighteenth century, but little is known concerning its operations. Both these northern societies were instrumental, and it may be assumed that their membership was exclusive. The great popular love of music had not then begun to take root.

EDINBURGH AND ITS FIRST FESTIVAL.

To return to Edinburgh. The concerts given annually by Corri, from 1801, included a performance of the Messiah—in its entirety, the whole of the fifty-seven numbers—on February 1, 1803, but nothing is said as to the strength of the choir. Domenico Corri made, in 1807, a new departure, doubtless driven thereto by a shrinking subscription list, when he announced that, if the list is well subscribed for, he 'will open separate classes for ten boys, ten girls, and twenty young men, to be regularly and thoroughly taught gratis the singing of choruses, to enable him at all times to produce a complete choral concert from the works of Handel.' The choral numbers in the programme were miserably few, and when he announced that at his concert of February 26, 1808, 'the first time in this country will be performed the principal part of Haydn's Creation,' the only chorus out of fifteen numbers was 'The Heavens are telling'! One James Mather, in announcing oratorio concerts in 1812, stated that 'he is devoting much time, and will spare no pains, in training a band of chorus-singers in the above celebrated oratorios [Messiah, &c.].' These, however, were private ventures and had little influence on the musical progress of the city.

The first Edinburgh Musical Festival of 1815 gave a great impetus to music in the Scottish capital. Soloists, band and chorus were imported from across the border, and even the grand organ from Covent Garden Theatre was 'brought down by sea.' Graham records* 'For some time previous to the Festival the concourse of strangers towards Edinburgh was unexampled. From England and the remotest parts of Scotland individuals and whole families poured into the city.' There were no East Coast Expresses in those days, and we learn that 'for many miles around in all directions there was not a post-horse to be had on any of the roads.' Success crowned this initial Festival effort—9,011 tickets were sold for the seven performances; the receipts amounted to nearly £5,735, and the large surplus (£1,549) was distributed among the city charities.

* 'An account of the First Edinburgh Musical Festival, held between 30th October and 5th November, 1815.' By George Farquhar Graham. Edinburgh, 1816.

FESTIVALS AND THE UNCO GUID.

Following upon the Festival came the establishment of the Institution of Sacred Music, started (December 28, 1815) to instruct singers in church music and oratorios with a view of improving the musical service in the various churches of the city. The performances were given with orchestral accompaniment, and a critic of the time said: 'The improvement of the chorus-singers is remarkable. It is really astonishing to hear so many boys and young men, who, but a short time since, were ignorant of the very rudiments of music, singing with precision and effect the great choruses of Handel and Haydn.' No mention is made of any lady vocalists. The Musical Festival of 1815 was followed by one in 1819 and another in 1824—one of the patrons of the latter being Sir Walter Scott, Bart. Both these meetings were under the direction of Sir George Smart, 'the spirited conductor of the Oratorios at Drury Lane.' In November of 1824, the year of the third Festival, great fires broke out in Edinburgh, causing the destruction of much property. Some of the unco guid in Auld Reekie regarded these conflagrations as a judgment, because sacred music was performed at the Festival; moreover, sermons were preached in which the Festival was anathematised. One of these denouncing diatribes bore the title: 'The Importance of hearing the Voice of God; a Sermon preached on the Lord's Day after the late fire in the city of Edinburgh, with remarks on the alleged connection of this calamity with the Musical Festival.' Thus did an eminent divine throw cold water on the Festival through the medium of his sermonic hose.

A step in the right direction was the establishment, in 1819, of the Edinburgh Professional Society of Musicians 'for the purpose of improving the state of vocal and instrumental music in the city.' The accounts for 1824-5 include such entries as 'For teaching the chorus singers £11 18s.; expense for thirty meetings for vocal practice, at 3s.—£4 10s.,' and a goodly proportion of the 'Wax lights, £29 5s.,' may be debited to the chorister operations.

THE FIRST CHORAL SOCIETY.

Up to the fourth decade of the last century the amateur chorister had been nurtured within the orchestral societies, but the formation of the Edinburgh Choral Society marked the establishment of the first amateur choral association in Scotland. This organization and one similarly constituted, named the Edinburgh Harmonic Association, were for many years the leading choral societies in the city. Glasgow, too, was not weary in well doing. In 1833 the Glasgow Amateur Musical Society took part in the Creation. The same oratorio was performed a year later in the Episcopal Chapel by a body of seventy-eight executants, stated to be the largest Band ever collected together in Glasgow.' An oratorio, the subject taken from Milton's 'Paradise Lost,' was performed (in April, 1837) in St. Andrew's Catholic Chapel, Great Clyde Street, by eighty-six performers, of whom sixty were choralists. The announcement intimated that 'the chapel will be splendidly lighted with gas.'

ORIGIN OF THE ANALYTICAL PROGRAMME.

It must not be forgotten that, so far as these Isles are concerned, the analytical programme originated in Scotland. Its conception was due to John Thomson, afterwards the first Reid Professor of Music at the University of Edinburgh. This invaluable adjunct to concert performances was entitled 'Brief Notices of the Music to be performed by the Professional Society (Edinburgh) on ——' and took the form of a small 12mo leaflet of four pages. As the history of the Analytical Programme has been told by Mr. J. S. Shedlock in The Musical Times of September and November, 1897 (pp. 593 and 760), there is no need to recapitulate it in this article.

HALF-A-CENTURY'S PROGRESS.

The visits of Joseph Mainzer, the 'music for the million' man—concerning whom a French paper stated that he had a million pupils!—in 1842, and John Curwen, the apostle of Tonic Sol-fa, in 1855, gave a further stimulus to choral music in Scotland. In regard to orchestral music, mention must be made of the annual Reid Festival concerts, in which the orchestra of Charles Hallé took a prominent part; and the Edinburgh Philharmonic Society, conducted by John Hullah, with an orchestra of fifty-five, led first by Henry Blagrove, and afterwards by J. T. Carrodus, with Mr. (now Sir) A. C. Mackenzie at the head of the second fiddles. The work of the Scottish orchestra is too well known to need more than a passing reference to its influence on the musical life of Scotland.

The good seed sown during the first half of the last century in Edinburgh is bearing rich fruit in the various Societies so ably conducted by earnest-minded musicians. We give the leading Societies in the Scottish capital, with their conductors :—

Name of Society.	Conductor.
The Choral Union	Mr. T. H. Collinson.
University Musical Society ..	Mr. J. A. Moonie.
Amateur Orchestral Society ..	Mr. T. H. Collinson.
Mr. Kirkhope's Choir	Mr. John Kirkhope.
Mr. Moonie's Choir	Mr. J. A. Moonie.
Mr. Millar Craig's Choir	Mr. John Millar Craig.
St. George's United Free Church Musical Association	Mr. Alfred Hollins.

PIONEER DIFFICULTIES AND MISLEADINGS.

Some of the pioneer difficulties would nowadays cause a smile. The choristers as a rule had to sing from single part copies made by themselves—in fact the copying of his part frequently formed an essential in a chorister's education, but more frequently this tedious work was the midnight labour of the hard-worked conductor. Again, great difficulty was experienced in getting ladies to sing 'seconds'; they regarded the word in too literal a sense, and all the fair warblers set their affections upon the soprano part. As in England, the alto part was formerly sung by men—'bearded altos,' to use Mendelssohn's definition; in 1855, however, it was about equally divided between male and female singers, and in 1860 the ladies practically had the field all to themselves. The ladies of the chorus, even so late as 1850, seem to have had some diffidence in 'singing out.' At a performance of 'Samson' in Glasgow they found 'a leader bold and brave' in one Wilson, a lay clerk, who led the sopranos with a violin! Two years later, Seligmann, on his appointment to the conductorship of the Glasgow Musical Association, found that the sopranos were led by a William Locke, a tenor singer!

THE GLASGOW LARKS.

Music made good progress in Glasgow from 1800 onwards. The first orchestral society, known as the Gentlemen's Subscription Concerts, gave many successful concerts between 1799 and 1822. J. P. Salomon performed some of Haydn's MS. compositions in 1800, and Catalani appeared in 1812 when 'selections' from the Messiah were given, but no choruses! Many vocal clubs sprang into existence between 1800 and 1816; one of these was nicknamed 'The Glasgow Larks,' by reason of its meetings being held from 6 to 7 a.m. Who will question such enthusiasm? The Creation (Part I.) with band and chorus was given in the College Hall of the University, March 10, 1818, and on March 23, 1825, a concert-room version of Weber's 'Der Freischütz' was performed. In regard to the latter performance local talent was no longer to hide itself under a bushel. Here is the trumpet-toned preliminary notice :—

The choruses will be executed by a well-disciplined choir, supported by a most effective orchestra composed entirely of the resident talent of the city, as it is a principal object in bringing forward this concert to disprove, if possible, the prevalent opinion that Glasgow, from a want of encouragement, does not possess sufficient material for an undertaking of the kind.

THE GLASGOW CHORAL UNION.

This important and vigorous institution is now fifty-eight years old. It originated (in 1843) in the formation of the 'Society for performing the Messiah.' The work was performed—and be it noted from MS. parts and for the first time in Glasgow—in the City Hall, on April 2, 1844, by a band and chorus of 200 performers, but there was no organ in the building. The tenor solos were sung by Mr. J. S. Reeves, a young vocalist who was afterwards known to fame as Sims Reeves. The performance was greatly praised, as it deserved to be; but it received the condemnation of the clergy and others—bigots, who gave currency to absurd rumours regarding the worship of the Virgin Mary, and other features which they associated with the 'sin of performing oratorios.' 'An air from Elijah' was included in the programme of the Choral Union concert in 1849, but on November 10, 1852, they had the honour of giving the first complete performance of Mendelssohn's great oratorio in Scotland. The Choral Union gave a performance of the work in Edinburgh—January 18, 1854, concerning which the following amusing story is related by Mr. Robert H. Marr in his admirable book 'Music for the People' :—

The concert was late, and the choristers lost their train. There were no telegraphs, and J. Seligmann, the conductor, was puzzled what to do with his 150 bewildered choristers. At last a happy thought occurred: he requested the waiter at the hotel to procure some instrumentalists, and he improvised a ball for the night. Although provided with return tickets, the railway company refused to recognise them for the following day. A general subscription was made to carry the vocalists home, and they were received in tearful embrace by their assembled friends at the railway terminus.

We have spoken of the Glasgow Choral Union as having been formed in 1843. But to be historically correct, it did not receive that designation till the year 1855, and was an amalgamation of two Societies—the first concert under the new name being given in the City Hall, December 11, 1855, when the Messiah was performed. To make detailed reference to the splendid achievements of the Glasgow Choral Union during its long and important existence would be like gilding refined gold and painting the lily.

The remainder of our gossiping survey must be very rapid. The Glasgow Musical Festivals of 1860 (at which Charles Edward Horsley conducted his oratorio of Gideon) and 1873 (which resulted in the establishment of the choral and orchestral scheme of the Glasgow Choral and Madrigal Union, the Gentlemen's Glee Union), the formation of the Glasgow Glee Club, the Glasgow Amateur Orchestral Society (1870), and the Glasgow Select Choir (1872)

—all this and much more can be placed to the credit of the second city of the Empire in matters musical.

GLASGOW CHORAL MUSIC TO-DAY.

At present, Glasgow supports quite a number of choirs doing useful work. The Pollokshields Philharmonic Society (Mr. John Cullen, conductor) chiefly performs oratorios, the Kyrle Choir cultivates part-songs, as do St. Andrew's Musical Association (Mr. John Bell), St. Andrew's Choir (Mr. D. S. Allan), and Mr. Bogue's Choir. It is also right to mention the attractive concerts—male-voice, chamber, and orchestral—of the Palette Club, and the valuable services of the Glee and Catch Club in maintaining public interest in Glees and Madrigals for men's voices. One or two other societies in existence during the past twenty or twenty-five years have been replaced by the musical associations which have arisen so numerously in connection with churches. These frequently give performances of such works as The Messiah, Samson, Judas, Elijah, St. Paul, Athalie, The Song of Miriam, Gallia, &c.

In regard to the influence of the Glasgow Choral Union on the progress of music in Scotland, we cannot do better than quote the words of Mr. James Buchanan from the notes he has kindly supplied for the purposes of this article :—

The chief event in the development of Scottish musical life was the Glasgow Festival of 1873. Prior to that time accompaniments to choral works had been chiefly performed by a local scratch orchestra, but the success of this Festival was so great that the Choral Union succeeded in establishing its well-known Choral and Orchestral scheme in 1874—a scheme which still flourishes. It is almost needless to dwell upon the details of so recent an occurrence; but it may be recalled that for more than a quarter of a century Glasgow has enjoyed twice-a-week concerts for a period of from two to three months in each year. The masterpieces of music, choral and orchestral, have been rendered by the Union, under the best conductors, to audiences numbering sometimes nearly 3,000 people. Moreover, the orchestra and its conductors have been annually invited to Edinburgh and the leading Scottish cities and towns for one or more concerts in each season. Perth, Paisley, Greenock, Stirling, Hawick, Aberdeen, and elsewhere have come under the educational influence of this fine orchestra and its famous conductors. From 1874 to 1879 the baton was held by Lambeth, Sullivan, Bülow, and Tausch. Mr. Manns conducted from 1879 to 1894, and since that date Henschel, Kes, and Wilhelm Bruch have held office. At the present time Dr. F. H. Cowen and Mr. Joseph Bradley are joint-conductors. The imagination can readily grasp the effect of such an institution in active operation, year by year, for so long a period in Scotland. Its power in raising the general taste in music is almost incalculable, and nothing but good wishes can attend the managers and guarantors of such a scheme. In connection with the Glasgow Choral Union one name stands pre-eminent. Mr. August Manns for fifteen years directed the concerts with a skill, devotion, and unselfishness that will be long remembered, and to his personal influence is greatly due the present high appreciation of the art in Scotland.

ABERDEEN, PERTH, &c.

The musical achievements of Edinburgh and Glasgow must not be allowed to eclipse those of less prominent cities and towns. Aberdeen, the fertile ground of the Sang School, held musical festivals in 1828 and 1834. The Aberdeen Harmonic Choir, under the enthusiastic sway of the (now) veteran William Carnie, began operations in 1847, and five years later the Aberdeen Musical Association was formed. Leith, as early as 1831, had its Philharmonic Society for the study of vocal and instrumental music. Perth started its Choral Society in 1850, under the direction of the late David Kennedy, the celebrated Scottish vocalist, and a year later Kirkcaldy followed suit with its Philharmonic Society, the progenitor of the Kirkcaldy Musical Society. The Greenock Choral Union dates from 1857, eleven years before the birth of its distinguished townsman, Hamish MacCunn. The good work of the celebrated R. A. Smith at Paisley (in 1807 and onwards) must not be overlooked, nor must the festival of 1882 in that thread-manufacturing centre be forgotten. Many other Societies, which have done and are still doing excellent work, could be referred to if space permitted. Mention, however, must be made of the fact that at the great Musical Festival held at York in 1823 the orchestra included four players from Edinburgh, and at the Westminster Abbey Festival of 1834 two violinists from Edinburgh and one from Aberdeen fiddled in the band—and this was in the old coaching days.

The consideration of our second and third heads must be deferred till next month. In the meantime full acknowledgment is due to the kindness of Mr. James Buchanan (of Glasgow) and also Mr. Robert A. Marr (of Edinburgh), the author of 'Music for the People' (John Menzies and Co., Edinburgh and Glasgow, 1889), in furnishing valuable information for the preparation of this Brief Historical Survey.

(To be continued.)

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

Many happy returns of the day :—

November 1.—Madame Albani.
" 4.—Edward Dannreuther.
" 6.—Ignaz Jan Paderewski.
" 14.—Henry R. Bird.
" 17.—Willem Coenen.
" 18.—W. S. Gilbert.
" 24.—Bernhard Stavenhagen.
" 26.—Henry Coward.
" 29.—Joseph Bennett.
" 29.—Ivor A. Atkins.

Concurrently with the conversion of the celebrated firm of Messrs. John Broadwood and Sons into a private limited company, to which we refer on page 729, we have to announce the retirement of Mr. Algernon Black, after fifty-eight and-a-half years' service in the firm. Mr. Algernon Black was so well known in the musical world that a slight sketch of his career may be of interest to our readers. He was born in March, 1828, and finished his education at a large school in Belgium, where, at the annual examinations which took place four months after his entrance at the school, he carried off the first prize in mathematics, and was highly distinguished in French—a language which he spoke fluently and with an accuracy of accent and turn of expression unusual in an Englishman. On leaving school he entered the offices of Messrs. John Broadwood and Sons, through every department of which, as changes occurred, he rapidly passed, until he rose to the highest position of trust and responsibility. In his early days, and long after, he was a diligent student of the pianoforte, and was taught, among other professors, by Mühlenfeldt, a pianist of reputation and skill in his day. In 1859 he joined the new volunteer movement, and was an enthusiastic volunteer for a period of sixteen years. He was an excellent officer and a well-known and distinguished shot. He won many prizes at Wimbledon and elsewhere. Among his Wimbledon distinctions may be named the 'Peek' (now the Olympic) prize of fifty guineas, and that for the most central hit at the Carton targets in 1867. He shot twice in the final stage of the Queen's Prize, tying for the fifth place in one year, and coming in second the year after. In his spare moments, Mr. Black acquired a good knowledge of the German language, which he both wrote and spoke. In the business of the firm of Broadwood he was well known and respected. His uprightness, sincerity, tact, courtesy and sound judgment won the esteem of his colleagues and subordinates, and the respect and confidence of the best and most influential customers of the firm. For several years past he has been Chairman of the Musical Instrument Makers' Section of the London Chamber of Commerce, and in that capacity he was able to render valuable service to the important interests he represented. A good amateur performer on the violoncello—an instrument which he studied for several years under Mr. Edward Hambleton—he was an equally good quartet player, and played for several years at the Handel Festivals at the Crystal Palace. Executorships, trusteeships, and work on public local committees filled up the spare moments of a life of unceasing activity. But in every work he undertook he won the esteem and good opinion of all with whom he came in contact. The best wishes of his numerous friends accompany him in the retirement and repose he has so well earned.

(From a Photograph by Mr. K. Black.)

Algernon Black
1901

The Manchester Vocal Society has issued a Retrospect of its thirty-four years' work, together with a complete list of the choral and concerted vocal music performed by the members from October, 1867, to October, 1901. The Society was founded by the late Henry Wilson in 1866, when, in the words of the Retrospect:—

Two important features were adopted at the start, which have always been rigidly adhered to—viz., that the members by assiduous practice together, should sing the various Choral pieces unaccompanied, except in cases where a separate obbligato accompaniment was prescribed by the Composer, and secondly, that the concerted vocal music should be rendered without the aid of a 'Conductor,' during its performance in public. The acknowledged superiority of the Society's Choral singing shows the value of the methods adopted, and also gives some indication of the immense amount of practice that the members bestow on their work, which is purely a labour of love. Many of the selections—for instance, Bach's six great Motets, Spohr's Vocal Mass, Byrd's Mass in D minor, Tallis's Song in forty parts, and others—have been introduced by the Society, having never been previously sung in Manchester, and as a matter of fact, in some cases, not in England.

And then as showing how the choral element has predominated all these thirty-four years—

The Organ or Pianoforte are the only instruments that have ever been used at the Society's Concerts, and they are brought into requisition, not so much as a support for the voices as for separate and independent accompaniments, the introduction of which are necessary to carry out the Composer's ideas. . . . The Society has given 239 Concerts since its commencement, and the list of music shows that 1,519 different pieces have been sung, comprising 856 for the full choir, 50 trios, 74 vocal duets, and 539 songs.

At the inauguration of the Society Mr. (now Dr.) Henry Watson, then a young man of twenty-one, was appointed accompanist and assistant conductor, but he succeeded to the post of conductor on the death of Mr. Wilson in 1885. Dr. Watson has only been absent from five of the 239 concerts given by the Society during the past thirty-four years—surely a record attendance. Congratulations to him and to the excellent Society which he so ably directs.

The Bellini Festival, to be held at Catania, the birthplace of the composer, in commemoration of the centenary of his birth, commences to-day, November 1. At the Bellini Theatre are to be performed the following operas:—'Il Pirata' (1827), 'La Straniera' (1829), 'I Capuletti e Montecchi' (1830), 'Norma' (1831), 'Sonnambula' (1831), and 'I Puritani' (1835). It may be mentioned that Bellini's first opera, 'Adelson e Salvino,' produced at the Naples Conservatorio while the composer was still a student, has never been published. There exists, by the way, a manuscript copy of it in the British Museum. Bellini died at Puteaux, near Paris, on September 23, 1835, and Malibran, who had contributed so greatly to the success of some of the composer's operas,

VINCENZO BELLINI.
(1801—1835.)

wrote to their mutual friend Florimo the following:—'Questo fatalissimo giorno, 23 settembre, sará giorno funesto e di tristissima ricordanza negli annali del teatro italiano!' ('This most fatal September 23 will be an ominous day and one of saddest remembrance in the annals of the Italian stage.') One year later, on the very anniversary of Bellini's death, Malibran herself drew her last breath: the day is therefore doubly sad in stage annals.

The tender romance of Bellini and the beautiful Maddalena Fumaroli is little known. She was the daughter of a learned magistrate, Francesco Saverio Fumaroli by name, and was one year younger than Bellini. Handsome in person, good and gentle of heart, and intelligent was the fair Maddalena. Like another Juliet and Romeo, they saw each other and loved. But the course of their true love proved no exception to the general rule; it was, indeed, very rough. The parents were opposed to the marriage, and not all the tears and prayers of Maddalena could soften their minds. To sympathise with her lover she wrote some poems, among which is the romance 'Dolente immagine di Fille mia,' which Bellini set to music. The lovers parted never again to meet. Maddalena died on June 15, 1834, ten months and eight days before Bellini. In a letter to his 'Carissimo Florimo,' dated June 7, 1835, he tells how the news of her death (which, owing to his working at I Puritani, seems not to have been broken to him) brings up 'many remembrances! many promises! many hopes!' And he also, with prophetic instinct, says: 'It seems to me that I shall soon follow to the tomb the poor maiden who is no longer, and whom formerly I so loved.'

THE HOUSE (ON THE RIGHT OF THE PICTURE) AT CATANIA, IN WHICH BELLINI WAS BORN.

The ancient pianoforte manufacturing firm of Messrs. John Broadwood and Sons has recently been converted into a Limited Liability Company. The Broadwood business, founded so far back as 1732, has been carried on at the same premises for nearly 170 years. Its records are of much historic interest, and to mention the names of those who have crossed the portals of the house, or who have had business relations with the Firm, would be to give a list of the chief musicians of this and other countries for upwards of a century and-a-half. The circular announcing the changes at Great Pulteney Street contains the satisfactory information that 'Mr. A. J. Hipkins will remain at his post.'

Professor Niecks took the subject of 'A Music School for Scotland' for his introductory lecture delivered in the University of Edinburgh, on the 14th ult. After referring to the fact that the Choir of Music founded by General Reid is, paradoxically speaking, practically theoretical, he asks whether there is not a patriotic Scotchman—a Carnegie II. (Why not Carnegie I. ?)—who would provide the wherewithal for the formation of 'a school of music where all that the composer, performer, and teacher requires shall be taught, and taught methodically and thoroughly.' The fact that the Scotch Press has taken up the matter is a good sign that the Professor's proposal is not regarded as a castle in the air, and an indication that the subject is one worthy of public attention and practical effort.

In answer to the question 'What, then, is your idea of the constitution of a good music school?' Professor Niecks replies in these words:—

A carefully-devised comprehensive curriculum obligatory on all students, and the strict insistence on the latter's diligence in every branch—these are the two indispensable fundamental general conditions. Admission to some of the classes might nevertheless be granted to those who, in contradistinction to the regular students, may be called visiting students, but only within certain limits, and without claims to certificates. As to the nature of the curriculum, the ear has to be trained as well as the fingers and the throat. And not only the ear, and the fingers and throat, have to be trained, but also the intelligence. It is not enough for the pupil to imitate blindly the master's example, and to follow blindly the master's precepts; he must learn to see clearly and act resolutely for himself. He must learn to understand the texture and structure of music; in other words, he has to study harmony, counterpoint, form, and other things. And even this is not enough, for important as the material, the form, is, the spiritual, the meaning, is not less so. Lastly, the story of the development and vicissitudes of the art, and of the achievements of the great masters of composition and execution, ought not to remain unknown, both because it is interesting and inspiring, and instructive and practically useful. A point that should always be kept in sight is the stimulation of the self-activity and the encouragement of the independence of the pupil. For instance, he should not only be taught to recognise tones and rhythms, but also to reproduce them—the former with his voice, the latter with his fingers. He should be made to perform in concert as well as alone, before more numerous audiences as well as before his teacher, at sight as well as after preparation, from memory as well as from book, and at the more advanced stages from a figured bass and from a score as well as from a fully set-forth composition.

These words of wisdom have a far wider application than solely to the country North of the Tweed. They should be pondered by every individual teacher. The 'self-help' element is of the highest possible importance, and we are glad that Professor Niecks has made it a plank in his educational platform.

The brass band under proper guidance is a valuable educational force. An instance of what may be done in this direction is furnished by the city of Worcester, where for the past few years Mr. Frank Elgar, a brother of the composer, has trained a score of amateurs to 'play real good stuff and play it well,' in the words of one who is qualified to judge. The exceptional gifts of Mr. Frank Elgar as a conductor were referred to in our Biographical Sketch of Dr. Elgar (October, 1900), and it is quite remarkable with what skill he moulds his material. Moreover, the improvement in the taste of the people consequent upon good readings of really good music cannot be over-estimated. At a recent and largely attended concert given by the Worcester Civil-military Band, as it is called, in Worcester Public Hall, the selection of pieces included Schubert's 'Rosamunde' and Flotow's 'Stradella' overtures, Haydn's Austrian Hymn variations, a Tannhäuser fantasia, Dr. Elgar's 'Salut d'amour,' Mr. John E. West's 'Maypole Dance,' and Massenet's 'Scenes Pittoresque,' all of which were capitally played. As a local journal says: 'The band, filling a great gap in the musical life of a musical city, is one that the city should be proud of, and should support.'

À propos of the visit to Canada of the Westminster Abbey glee and concert party, to which we drew attention in our issue of August last (p. 530), Mr. Edward Branscombe, who organized and directed the party, writes as follows, under date of the 10th ult.:—

As you were good enough to show some interest in my recent Canadian tour, I thought you might like to see a copy of the enclosed programme, and to know that from first to last the undertaking was a remarkable success. Not the least gratifying feature of this success was the fact that the whole of the concerted music was very highly appreciated—rather an embarrassing appreciation in fact when it resulted, as was once the case, in ten encores in a programme of seventeen numbers.

In several cities I was persuaded to include some examples of English Cathedral music, and one was confronted with the curious spectacle of such anthems as 'Rejoice in the Lord' (Purcell), and 'Lord, for thy tender mercies' sake' being encored at a public concert. If the genuine glee and madrigal singing is all but a lost art so far as our own country is concerned, there is certainly much evidence to the contrary in regard to the British Colonies.

Owing to the shortness of the tour, only twenty-two concerts were possible: viz., twenty in Canada and two in the United States (at Buffalo); but, all being well, I hope to take another trip next year, when I shall visit a greater part of the United States, and arrange for a number of recitals of purely sacred music, selected from the Greene, Croft, and Boyce school.

English music had a good innings at the Queen's Hall Promenade Concert of the 22nd ult., when the bold experiment of Mr. Robert Newman scored a success. The half score of composers of orchestral works were (in the order of the programme): Cowen ('The Butterfly's Ball' Overture), Parry (Symphonic Variations in E minor), Stanford (Prelude to 'Œdipus Rex'), Elgar (Two Military Marches, 'Pomp and Circumstance'), Coleridge-Taylor (Orchestral Ballad in A minor), Percy Pitt (Cinderella Suite), Mackenzie (Benedictus), Cliffe (Ballade from his C minor Symphony), German (Henry VIII. Dances), and MacCunn ('The land of the mountain and the flood' Overture). The two new Marches by Dr. Elgar gave so much pleasure—and no wonder—to the audience that an encore was persistently demanded, with the result that Mr. Henry J. Wood, who had bestowed much painstaking care in the preparation of the music, was ultimately obliged to yield. Rhythmical and melodious music, although written on the heights of artistic purpose, is sure to make its way. Composers, verb. sap.

The first of a trio of Richter Concerts was held at St. James's Hall, on the 21st ult., when Dvorák's melodious symphony, entitled 'From the New World,' received, with other works, an interpretation characteristic of the high-water mark of excellence always associated with Dr. Richter. The great conductor was in fine form.——Mr. Frederick Dawson, at the same place, but on the 23rd ult., gave a pianoforte recital, when he played a well-varied programme with conscientious care and artistic intuitiveness. ——The morning concert given by Mr. Vert, on the 19th ult. (also at St. James's Hall), furnished fresh proof that the popular concert-giver knows the secret of providing a pleasant music-making on a high plane of interpretative excellence.

Special interest attended the production—at the Coronet Theatre, Notting Hill, on September 30—of a comic opera entitled 'Melnotte,' founded on Lytton's 'Lady of Lyons,' the music of which is by Mr. Frank Tours. One who is fully competent to express an opinion says of the work: 'The music is certainly tuneful and pleasing, and gives evidence of artistic earnestness of purpose. One of the most striking features is the song 'When I was a girl like you,' and the solo and chorus 'Tick, tock' takes the first place as a popular number. The composer, who was probably handicapped by the lyrics he had to set, will probably gain more individuality as his musical faculties develop.' The future career of Mr. Frank Tours, who is a son of the late and much esteemed Mr. Berthold Tours, will be watched with interest.

The Neale Pianotype is an electrical instrument for reproducing, on sheets of music paper, extemporizations or any piece of music played on the pianoforte. It was recently put to the test at Queen's Hall with most satisfactory results; but Mr. Neale, we understand, intends to still further perfect his invention. The Pianotype, which can register 2,000 notes per minute, should have a useful future.

Sir Walter Parratt, M.V.O., has been appointed Master of the Musick to His Majesty the King. Sir Walter held this court appointment during the last eight years of the reign of Queen Victoria.

Mr. Walter Macfarren is giving a course of six lectures (which commenced on the 23rd ult.) at the Royal Academy of Music on Wednesday afternoons, at 3.15 p.m. The subject of the discourses is 'Pianists ancient and modern: Clementi to Brahms.'

Much sympathy will be felt with Mr. Myles Birket Foster in the loss he has sustained by the death of his wife, which sad event, we regret to record, took place on the 6th ult., at 121, Sinclair Road, West Kensington.

Mr. Charles Macpherson, sub-organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, has been appointed a professor of harmony and composition, and Mr. Herbert Walenn a professor of the violoncello at the Royal Academy of Music.

A new lyrical drama, entitled 'Les Barbares,' libretto by MM. Victorien Sardou and Pierre Gheusi, the music by Dr. Saint-Saëns, was successfully produced at the Grand Opera, Paris, on the 23rd ult.

The tall-talk in the gushing price-list of an American mechanical instrument, called 'The New Creation,' contains the following information:—

> Handel wrote a new and brilliant page in music history when his genius penned 'The Creation.'

Really!

The 'Chess Notes,' even when 'specially contributed,' in provincial newspapers, occasionally furnish curious reading. Here is an extract having reference to 'those who excel in both chess and music.'

> I quite fail to see why the two accomplishments should run hand-in-hand, seeing how different is the nature of a chess player from that of the musician. A typical chess player is a deep thinker and the possessor of a steady, well-balanced mind, whilst the musician is a light-hearted, happy-go-lucky kind of individual.

The chess editor who writes the above signs himself 'Queen's Knight.' What will Sir Walter Parratt—a worthy Queen's Knight and an excellent chess player—say to it?

Song ... Death of Nelson ... Brahms.

So a recent Crystal Palace programme stated. We now await this announcement:—

The Song of Destiny (Schicksalslied) ... Braham.

This goes one better (or worse):—

Overture ... Benvenuto Cellini ... Berlioz.
(First time in London. Written for the Gloucester Festival.)

The above appears in the announcement portion of a recent programme at a certain Temple of Music in London, the Queen Saul of the conductor—of the omnibus.

The Biographical Sketch of Mr. Henry J. Wood is, we regret to say, unavoidably postponed till early in next year. It is hoped, however, that the article on the composer of 'Rule, Britannia' in the present issue will help to temper any disappointment which the above announcement may cause.

THE LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

Two fresh features characterised this, the eleventh Festival, held in the Town Hall, Leeds, on the 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th of last month. In the first place the scheme was planned to make the Festival, 'so far as practicable, a commemoration of nineteenth-century music. The fourteen German, five French, five Italian, three Slavonic, and twelve British composers of the nineteenth century, whose names appear in the programme, represent most phases of its music.' (By the way, five of these composers—including Haydn, who had practically finished his work before 1801—were anterior to the nineteenth century.) But, like many company-promoting circulars, the paper form of such a scheme and its practical outcome are two very different things. Secondly, Dr. C. Villiers Stanford, already locally well-known as the conductor of the Leeds Philharmonic Society, made his first appearance as chief musician at the Festival in succession to the late Sir Arthur Sullivan. Dr. Stanford's conducting achievements in London have become so familiar in connection with the Bach Choir Concerts and the students' performances at the Royal College of Music, that his success in so important an office as a Festival conductor was a foregone conclusion. The committee spared no expense in the matter of preparation, into which Dr. Stanford and Mr. Alfred Benton, the chorus-master (who is organist of Leeds Parish Church) heartily threw their best energies. As an instance of thoroughness, no less than fifty-two choral rehearsals were held.

The orchestra, of some 120 performers, was magnificent—a better body of players has probably never before added such lustre to a Festival. The chorus numbered 356 voices, distributed thus:—

Sopranos	101
Contraltos and Altos (8) ..	84
Tenors	82
Basses	89
Total	356

Following the custom of the last three Festivals, a section of the chorus, to the number of nearly 100 singers, was enlisted from Bradford, Dewsbury, Batley, Hipperholme, Wakefield, Heckmondwike and other places. In regard to intonation and brightness of tone, the choir proved to be absolutely fit for their work. The alto section, though of good quality, was too weak, but the sopranos shone forth as a glorious company. If, however, the technical attainment of the choir left little to be desired, there was an absence of that glamour in the singing which

THE TOWN HALL, LEEDS.
Opened by Queen Victoria, September 7, 1858.

thrilled one over and over again at Sheffield two years ago. Moreover, the enunciation was not above reproach; final consonants failed to reach the ear, and many passages, though correctly sung, were deficient in dramatic feeling. Much yet remains to be done in bringing choral technique up to the heights of intelligent interpretation.

The Festival opened on Wednesday morning, the 9th ult., with Dr. Stanford's arrangement of the National Anthem. To this succeeded Sullivan's In Memoriam overture, played—the audience meanwhile reverently standing—as a tribute of respect to the memory of one who, with marked success, conducted the Festivals from 1880 to 1898. Handel's Messiah—dearly beloved by Yorkshire choralists—followed. Some surprises were in store in regard to the rendering of the familiar work. No fault could be found for silencing trombonic blasts here and there, for giving 'Since by man' and 'For as in Adam' to the chorus, and for other minor purifyings; but why were such characteristic choruses as 'His yoke is easy' and 'And with His stripes' omitted? The air 'He shall feed His flock' was sung throughout by the soprano soloist, and the Dublin version of 'Why do the nations?' was used. The non-observance of the pause immediately before the Adagio phrase 'And the Lord hath laid on him,' and that of the natural breath-place five bars before the end of this chorus, were by no means improvements. The organ was somewhat curiously introduced in places, and, in regard to things left undone, why did not Dr. Stanford restore Handel's own violin part in 'How beautiful are the feet,' and send Mozart's fluty tootlings about their business? The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Ethel Wood (a promising young Yorkshire vocalist who sang 'He shall feed his flock'), Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Andrew Black. Of this quintet, Mr. Ben Davies specially distinguished himself by his devotional interpretation of the Passion Music.

Wednesday evening brought with it the chief novelty of the Festival, a setting by Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor of Longfellow's 'The Blind Girl of Castél-Cuillé.' The phenomenal success which has attended the composer's 'Hiawatha' music doubtless again attracted him to the American poet, but the result has by no means jeopardised the popularity of the earlier strains. In estimating this latest production of the gifted young composer, one fully realises the libretto difficulty which so constantly beset Mendelssohn. Why Mr. Taylor should have selected a poem so Adelphi-melodramatically tinctured as 'The Blind Girl,' we are at a loss to understand. The music of the new cantata, although strongly resembling 'Hiawatha,' cannot be said to equal the older work. There are some characteristic touches here and there, especially the pathetic solo of Margaret in Part II.; but Mr. Taylor must free himself from the snare of over-elaboration and ultra-coloration of orchestral effect, if he is to maintain his high position as one who has something spontaneous to say. As to the performance, the choir sang splendidly, and Madame Albani, as Margaret, and Mr. Andrew Black, as Paul, rendered the music assigned to them with true artistic feeling. At the conclusion

Mr. Coleridge-Taylor, who conducted his cantata, was heartily cheered by both chorus and audience.

In the second part of the concert Mr. Leonard Borwick interpreted the solo part of Brahms's Pianoforte Concerto in B flat with his usual ability; the orchestral accompaniments were most delicately played. Schubert's 'Rosamunde' Overture brought the evening's music to a cheerful close.

Thursday morning brought with it Verdi's Requiem, which received a very fine rendering on the part of the band and the chorus. To have heard two or three performances of the work under the personal direction of the composer in 1875, spoils one for an ensemble of soloists that is not quite perfect, but Madame Albani, Miss Marie Brema, Mr. Ben Davies and Mr. David Bispham individually put forth their best efforts. After the interval we had a Concerto for strings in G (No. 3 of the Brandenburg Concerti Grossi) by Bach. The old Cantor could scarcely have realised that his concerto would ever be played by eighty-two performers, but no one could question the superb, nay gorgeous, tone of those four score and two players on stringed instruments at Leeds. Dr. Stanford's 'Last Post' followed, causing a jump from the seventeenth to (practically) the twentieth century. The effectiveness of this work, with its characteristic bugle-call, was again demonstrated in no uncertain manner. We were then carried back to the sixteenth century! by the strains of Palestrina. The introduction of the motet 'Surge, illuminare,' was an undoubted mistake. The motets of the great Italian master of church music need a much smaller choir, and one traditionally equipped, to do justice to that old-world and spiritual music; moreover, a town hall in broad daylight, with lady singers in festival attire, is not the proper environment for such devotional strains. Tschaikowsky's orchestral fantasia 'Francesca da Rimini,' in its lurid gruesomeness, presented a contrast to the Palestrina that was positively repulsive.

The evening concert of Thursday opened with Beethoven's 'Leonora' Overture, No. 2, to which succeeded the scena for contralto, 'Marfa' (from Schiller's Demetrius), by Dr. Joachim, who conducted the performance of his music, into which Miss Marie Brema threw much dramatic feeling. In stepping on to the platform to conduct his Gloucester cantata (of 1898), 'A song of darkness and light,' Sir Hubert Parry was received with ringing cheers by the choir. It was evident that the singers were in complete touch with the genial composer, and they never sang better than in this impressive work. Hidden beauties were revealed by the really adequate interpretation those good Yorkshire choristers gave to the music—the rendering of the 'Tears' chorus being specially worthy of commendation. Miss Agnes Nicholls, an ex-student of the Royal Academy of Music, seemed rather overweighted in the soprano solos, but she sang with true artistic insight that calls for full acknowledgment. The second part of the programme was, to quote a distinguished critic, of the 'High-class Miscellaneous.' Its chief features were Mr. Edward German's dignified Romeo and Juliet Prelude, conducted by himself, and a 'Dirge for two veterans' by Dr. Charles Wood. The latter, the only novelty of the Festival besides Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's cantata, is a setting of Walt Whitman's poem—from 'Drum Taps,' in the famous 'Leaves of Grass'—for bass solo, chorus, and orchestra. Dr. Wood is one of those thoughtful musicians who do not rush into print unless they have something to say, and this specimen of 'a solemn musick' certainly adds to his reputation as a composer. The work, with Mr. Plunket Greene as soloist, was well rendered and made a good impression. The remainder of the programme may be speedily dismissed. The Finale of Act II. of 'William Tell'—a curiously-chosen specimen of Rossini's genius—with Messrs. Coates, Greene and Bispham as soloists; a song from Bizet's 'Carmen'—a very poor representation of a composer who wrote two very charming Suites—and Auber's sprightly overture 'Cheval de Bronze,' completed the scheme.

INTERIOR OF THE TOWN HALL, LEEDS.

Sterndale Bennett opened the Friday morning concert with his Parisina overture—not the most representative work of the conductor of the first Leeds Festival in 1858. The Paradise and the Peri, or The Naïads overture would have been more welcome. Mendelssohn, the friend of Bennett, was permitted to have a mere 'look in' at this Festival—his Ninety-eighth Psalm (for eight-part chorus and orchestra) being considered sufficient, while the three B's of a certain collegiate circle—Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms—were each represented by two compositions. The too strenuous performance of Schumann's D minor Symphony contrasted somewhat unfavourably with the renderings that Mr. Manns—the earliest apostle of Schumann in this country—used to set before us at Sydenham. Spohr's Concertante in B minor, for two violins, came almost as a novelty. The work was first played in England by Sivori and Sainton at the Philharmonic concert of July 5, 1845, by Sainton and Henry Blagrove at the concert of March 20, 1854, and again (also at the Philharmonic) so recently as March 20, 1872, when it was performed by Herr Bargheer and Herr Joachim. On the present occasion Herr Joachim took the first violin, while his gifted pupil, Señor Arbos, proved to be a first-rate second, and the orchestral accompaniments were faultlessly played. The Finale to Act I. of Parsifal, which, like the Palestrina, should not be sung in concert-hall fashion, concluded the programme. The soloists were Messrs. John Coates, David Bispham, and Plunket Greene.

The outstanding feature of the Friday evening's music—indeed, one of the greatest successes of the Festival—was Dr. Elgar's 'Variations on an original theme.' Every fresh hearing confirms one's impression of the poetic beauty of this artistic creation. Charmingly played by the orchestra under the composer's baton, it was received with genuine enthusiasm. A quasi novelty—i.e., a first performance in England—was furnished in a Memorial Cantata by Glazounow, composed in the year 1899 to celebrate the centenary of the great Russian poet, Pushkin. The work is therefore more or less in the nature of a pièce d'occasion, and moreover, it scarcely represents the true self of the distinguished Slavonic composer. In the words of the well-informed annotator of the programme, the music, in its diatonic style, seeks to reflect in some measure the purity and transparent simplicity of Pushkin's character. The following music completed the programme: Brahms's seldom heard 'Rinaldo' cantata, for tenor solo (Mr. John Coates) and male voice chorus; the 'Africa' caprice, for pianoforte and orchestra, of Saint-Saëns, the solo portion brilliantly played by Mr. Leonard Borwick; the duet from Gounod's 'Romeo and Juliet' (Miss Agnes Nicholls and Mr. John Coates) and the overtures 'Les deux Journées' (Cherubini) and 'Benvenuto Cellini' (Berlioz). The soloists in the Glazounow cantata were Miss Ada Crossley and Mr. John Coates.

The last morning of the Festival (Saturday) opened with Bach's noble cantata 'Sleepers, wake' (Wachet auf), which was included in the scheme of the recent Gloucester Festival. As at the performance in the Western city, the canto fermo of Otto Nicolai's fine tune in the opening chorus was hardly prominent enough against the other parts; a contingent of boys' voices would have produced the proper balance. The chorus did their work splendidly; the last verse of the old tune, in simple four-part harmony, came out with thrilling effect. The duets—one especially—afforded painful studies in out-of-tuneness. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls and Mr. John Coates, and Dr. Joachim played the violin obbligato in the first duet.

Beethoven's stupendous and unfathomable Mass in D set its seal on the Festival. If the performance did not reach the spring-tide high-water mark of excellence, there was much to admire. All praise is the rightful due of the chorus for the heroic manner in which they tackled the difficulties of Beethoven's exacting production. The soloists were Madame Albani, Miss Marie Brema, Mr. John Coates, and Mr. Plunket Greene, and the delicious violin obbligato to the 'Benedictus' was interpreted with true artistic devotion by Dr. Joachim.

In regard to the final concert (on Saturday evening), it may suffice to give the programme, and to add that Mr. Alfred Benton, the indefatigable chorus-master, who conducted Pearsall's Choral Ballad, was very warmly received by the members of the choir and the audience.

PART I.

Prelude .. .. .. Colomba .. .. .. Mackenzie.
Scena .. .. .. Endymion .. .. .. Cowen.
Mr. Ben Davies.
The Banquet of the Phæacians, Odysseus (Op. 41) .. Max Bruch.
Principals:
Miss Ethel Wood. Mr. Andrew Black.
Miss Ada Crossley. Mr. Plunket Greene.
Air .. .. .. From La Vestale .. .. Spontini.
Madame Albani.
Concerto for Violin in A (Köchel, No. 219) .. .. Mozart.
Dr. Joachim.

PART II.

Overture .. .. Der Freischütz .. .. Weber.
Air .. .. With Verdure Clad (Creation) .. Haydn.
Madame Albani.
Motet.. .. .. Insanæ et Vanæ Curæ .. .. Haydn.
Duet .. .. .. Amours Villageoises .. Goring Thomas.
Miss Nicholls and Mr. Black.
Choral Ballad (ten parts), Sir Patrick Spens .. .. Pearsall.
Overture .. .. .. Carneval .. .. Dvorák.
The National Anthem.

It only remains to be recorded that Dr. Stanford led his forces with his characteristic resourcefulness and skilled musicianship, and that Mr. A. H. Fricker, the Corporation organist, presided at the organ in a highly efficient and unobtrusive manner. A special word of commendation must be said in praise of Mr. Herbert Thompson for his excellent programme annotations, in which his literary gifts and musical insight were happily blended with subtle touches of humour. In the discharge of their arduous duties the Stewards could not have shown greater courtesy, and Mr. Fred. R. Spark, the veteran and genial Honorary Secretary, answered the beck and call of everybody without a murmur.

But in conclusion, the Leeds Festival of 1901 will go down to posterity as one of snippets and one in which the chorus—the proud boast of Yorkshire music—was unduly neglected. The experiment of the hyper-variegated programme is not likely to be repeated, and the singers may take heart in that their opportunity will come again three years hence. It should be remembered that these Festivals exist for the public and not as the close preserve of a cult. To satisfy their constituents and at the same time to maintain a high artistic standard, is the duty of those who organise these meetings. That both conditions were fulfilled on this occasion is more than doubtful. The lesson that has been learnt will not be without its bearing on the scheme of the next Festival.

The photographs of the Town Hall are inserted by kind permission of Messrs. Spark and Son, Leeds.

The house in the Michaelis Strasse, Hamburg, where Felix Mendelssohn was born (on February 3, 1809), is shortly to come under the hammer of the auctioneer, and there is every probability of its being demolished, in order to make room for a modern building. Perhaps it is not too much to hope that the surviving members of the Mendelssohn family, or others interested, will combine to prevent so regrettable an occurrence before it is too late.

LEEDS GLEANINGS,

OR ECHOES OF THE FESTIVAL.

(BY ONE WHO WAS THERE.)

So much depends upon the engineering of a festival that no apology is needed for the honourable mention of Mr. Fred. R. Spark, J.P., in connection with the recent Leeds music-making. He it is who, as honorary secretary, has kindled the flame of success which has attended this Yorkshire feast of music. Born at Exeter, February 26, 1831, Frederick Robert Spark is a son of the late William Spark, who was a lay vicar of Exeter Cathedral for fifty years, another son being the late Dr. William Spark, for many years organist of Leeds Town Hall. Master Fred. Spark became a chorister of Exeter Cathedral just before Dr. S. S. Wesley left the city. He was articled to his brother, at Tiverton, and for a time acted as organist there. He did not, however, follow music as a profession, but, at his father's wish, he was apprenticed to the proprietor of the Western Times at Exeter. In 1852 he came to London, and became a compositor in the printing office of Mr. Mallett, in Wardour Street, Soho. Four years later he went to Leeds and joined the reporting staff of the Leeds Mercury, then (1855) a tri-weekly newspaper. In 1858 he was appointed editor and manager of the Leeds Express, a weekly journal. Early in 1867, after the proprietorship of the paper had passed into the hands of Mr. Spark, the Leeds Express was issued as a halfpenny daily paper, the first of its kind in England, though this distinction has often been claimed for the Echo. In 1884 he was President of the Press Association, London, and in 1886 he held a similar office in the Provincial Newspaper Society. It is by no means surprising that Mr. Spark knows something of the ins-and-outs of journalism, and that he is not unfamiliar with the ways and opinions of musical critics, concerning whom, especially those from London, he holds certain views.

Public affairs in his adopted town soon claimed Mr. Spark's earnest attention. He became a Town Councillor in 1873, and held the office of Alderman from 1889 to 1895; in the latter year he left the Council. Other organizations, philanthropic and political, in Leeds, have derived the benefit of his energies and astuteness as honorary secretary and chairman. He is a Justice of the Peace for the City of Leeds.

But the outstanding feature of Mr. Fred. R. Spark's public life is his long connection with the Leeds Musical Festivals. He was the secretary of the tentative meeting of 1858, which began on the day following the opening of the Town Hall by Queen Victoria. Since 1877 he has held with distinction the onerous post of Honorary Secretary to the Festival Committee, and so admirably has he discharged these duties that the Leeds Festival and Mr. Spark are synonymous terms. No one knows better than he the art of greasing the Festival wheels, to use his own words, and causing the huge enterprise to run smoothly. Anyone who can read between the lines will find much to endorse this opinion, and at the same time to amuse him, in the perusal of the History of the Leeds Musical Festival, a very readable volume, which, in collaboration with Mr. Joseph Bennett, he compiled in 1892.

In 1861 Mr. Spark married a daughter of Mr. Henry Sanderson, a Leeds solicitor; the younger daughter of this union is now the wife of Mr. Herbert Thompson, the distinguished musical critic of the Yorkshire Post. Mr. Spark gives little indication of his seventy years. Ever alert, vigorous, and exceedingly courteous to all with whom he comes into contact, the secret of his life has been unwearied energy and a patient continuance in well doing. No man in Leeds can with greater truth say Labor ipse voluptas.

Beethoven's Mass in D—which formed the bonne bouche on the fourth morning of the recent Festival—obtained its first public hearing in England in the year 1839, not in 1845 by the Philharmonic Society, as is sometimes stated. We have before us the programme of this interesting event. The performance was given by a society styling itself the Choral Harmonists, a somewhat exclusive body of amateurs who practised music for the pure love of the art. It took place at the London Tavern, Aldersgate Street, on April 1, 1839, under the direction of the late Charles Lucas, with the Misses Birch and Dolby, and the Messrs. Bennett and J. A. Novello as soloists. While the choral portions of the Mass seem to have been more or less adequately rendered, the instrumental achievements were by no means above reproach. We learn (from the Musical World) that the 'wind instruments played timidly, like persons fully aware that they were on dangerous ground. Many points were wanting in the horns and the second trumpet. The absence of this latter instrument in the important symphony for trumpets and drums that introduces the recitative Agnus Dei gave a sort of mock-heroic effect to the first trumpet solo.' We are in the habit of protesting, and justly so, against long programmes, but these good people in 1839 furnished a gargantuan feast of music. The Mass in D was followed by Mozart's motet, 'Laudate Dominum,' Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm; old John Benet's madrigal, 'Sing loud, ye nymphs,' Weber's 'Ruler of the spirits,' overture; and lastly, Handel's 'L'Allegro'! A footnote on the programme states: 'J. A. Novello's Collection of words of classical sacred music may be had of the waiters, price one shilling.' At the end of Part I. of the programme came the following refreshing information: 'It is expected that after Tea, Ladies and Gentlemen will resume the places they occupied during the first part of the performance.' Beethoven in D and tea!

(From a Photograph by Mr. A. C. Hoskins, Park Lane, Leeds.)

The gentleman who 'writes descriptive' for a leading Leeds paper was in fine Festival fettle during the week. A few specimens of his graphic grasp of the subject may not be unacceptable.

Back to the front came Mr. Coleridge-Taylor, and hand-in-hand with him both Madame Albani and Mr. Andrew Black. With a triple bow they made their acknowledgments, and so we passed to the short interval.

Locks and keys, and a distinguished pianist were sportively treated in the following paragraph:—

Mr. Leonard Borwick, as the central figure in the episode, dropped in for close observation. It was noticed that when he finished some particularly brilliant passage, he would throw himself back and give an upward glance of confidence at the orchestra, who continued the story. And the orchestra never failed him. Once or twice he had a quarrel with his prominent front locks, at which he tugged as though to relieve his fingers from the strain of touching so many keys all at once. But he always took to the instrument again with a readiness that was refreshing.

The garb of both the lady and gentlemen soloists and the pulmonary troubles of the audience were described in these terms:—

Yet there was Madame Albani, clad in the palest of silky green accordion-pleated fabric with white ruffle, gold and diamond ornaments, and a toque crowned with violet plumes; there, too, was Miss Marie Brema, looking like a Greek goddess in her graceful, loose-fitting, filmy white muslin-like robe and no headgear; and to one side or the other Mr. Ben Davies in conventional black with light tie, and Mr. Bispham sporting a summer vest.

. . . . . The music went on and the soloists took their special part, and now and again the audience sat back as though spell-bound. Alas! it was but now and again. Even the dread sound of the trumpets in the realistic Sequence did not suffice to reduce everyone to perfect stillness. Rustle, rustle, rustle went the leaves of the copies of music with which the majority seemed to be provided, and cough, cough, cough gave first one and then another, on whom possibly the morning air had breathed prejudicially.

Leeds is on the Aire, which may account for these airy remarks of the scribe at Festival times.

At the hospitable and merry breakfast-table of a genial musical critic attached to a Yorkshire journal, one of the lady guests remarked 'We have given Elizabeth's St. Liszt'!

Humour, a saving grace under most circumstances, now and then peeped out at the Festival, even in unexpected quarters. For instance, a chorus-singer translated the words 'Wachet auf!' as 'Wash it off.'

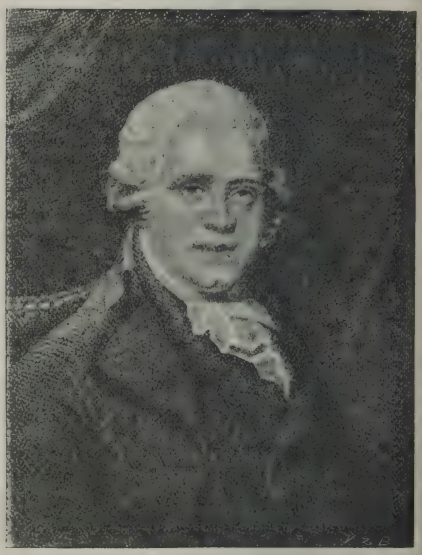
Critic No. 1.—'How did you like the Parisina?' Critic No. 2.—'I did not know that Parry had written a scena.'

Spohr's Concertante for two violins (interpreted by Dr. Joachim and Señor Arbos) was stated to have been performed by the Boss and the Arbos.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

THE TUNE ROCKINGHAM.

'Rockingham,' that fine and expressive old Psalm tune, has rightly found its way into every hymnal. Could any collection be complete without it? Named



DR. EDWARD MILLER,

THE COMPOSER OF THE TUNE 'ROCKINGHAM.'

(From an Engraving in the possession of Mr. John S. Bumpus.)

after the Marquis of Rockingham, the tune made its first appearance in a book of psalmody bearing the following title:—

The Psalms of David for the use of Parish Churches. The words selected from the version of Tate and Brady by the Rev. George Hay Drummond. The music selected adapted and composed by Edward Miller, Mus. Doc.

London: Printed for the author and sold by Broderip and Wilkinson, Haymarket, &c. Price 12s. 6d.

This collection, in which the Psalms were arranged for every Sunday throughout the year, met with unusual encouragement, as nearly 5,000 copies were subscribed for before its publication. 'Rockingham' appears eight times in the book and once in the appendix—nine times altogether: in the key of E flat

(Continued on page 745.)

Come and worship the Lord.

ANTHEM FOR CHRISTMASTIDE.

WORDS FROM THE ENGLISH GRADUAL

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

THOMAS ADAMS.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Andante grazioso. ♩ = 120.
Solo 8 ft. & 4 ft. Flutes.
p Sw. 8 ft.
Reed.
Soprano Solo.
mf
Come, ye Gentiles, and wor - - ship, come, and wor-ship the Lord, . . .
Soprano.
p
Come, . . and wor - - ship, wor - - ship the Lord, . . .
Alto.
p
Come, . . and wor - ship, wor - - ship the Lord, . . .
Tenor.
p
Come, . . and wor - - ship, wor - - ship the Lord, . . .
Bass.
p
Come, . . and wor - - ship, wor - - ship the Lord, . . .
8 ft. only.
p

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

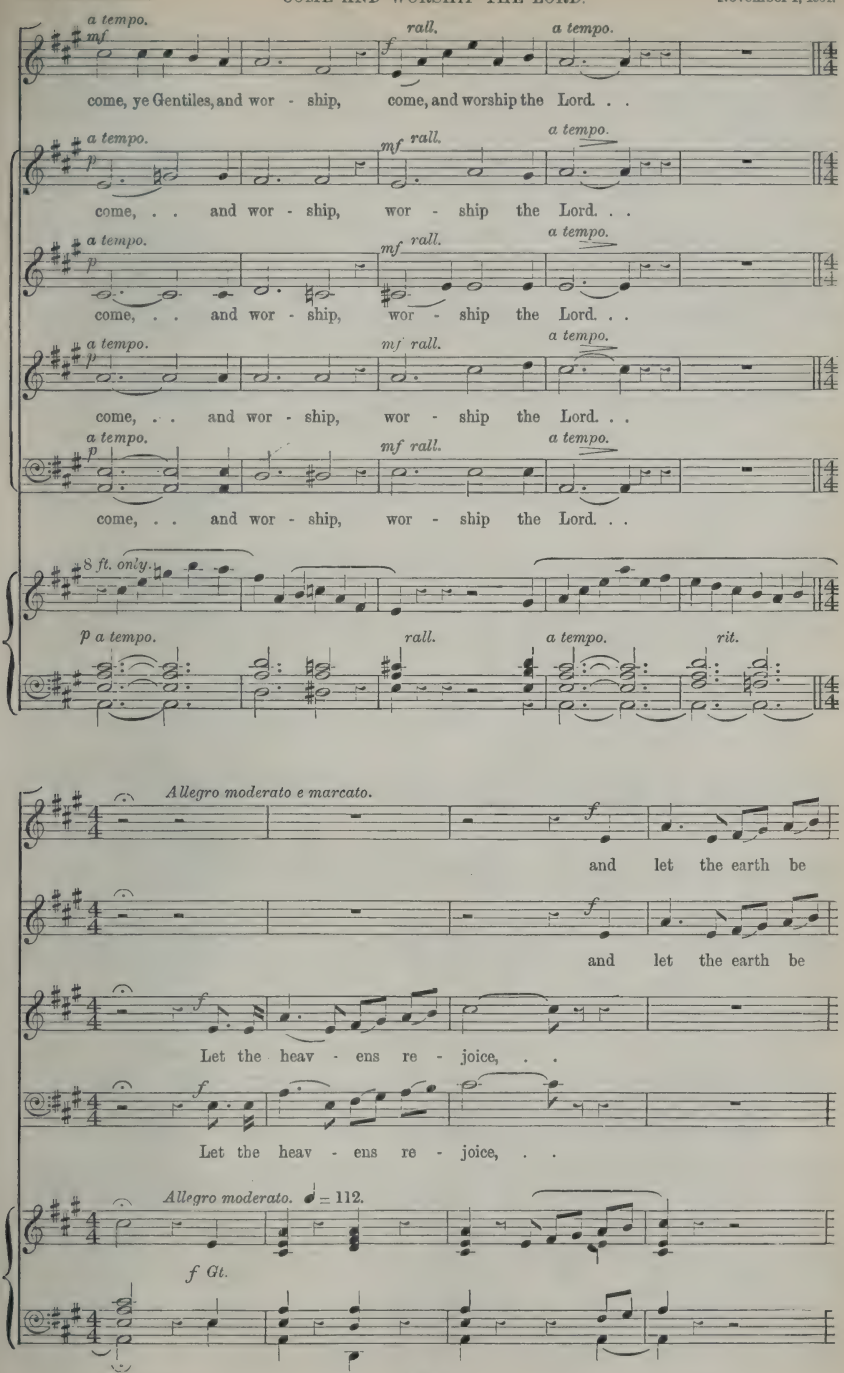
come, ye Gen-tiles, and wor - ship, come, and wor-ship the Lord, . .
come, . . and wor - ship, wor - ship the Lord, . .
come, . . and wor - ship, wor - ship the Lord, . .
come, . . and wor - ship, wor - ship the Lord, . .
come, . . and wor - ship, wor - ship the Lord, . .
cres.
poco rit.
come, ye Gen-tiles, and wor - ship, wor - ship the Lord, . .
mf
poco rit.
come, . . and wor - ship, come, and wor-ship the Lord, . .
mf
poco rit.
come, . . and wor - ship, wor - ship the Lord, . .
mf
poco rit.
come, . . and wor - ship, come, and wor-ship the Lord, . .
mf
poco rit.
come, . . and wor - ship, wor - ship the Lord, . .
add 4 ft.
poco rit.
dim.



a tempo.
mf
rall.
f
a tempo.
come, ye Gentiles, and wor - ship, come, and worship the Lord. . .
a tempo.
p mf rall.
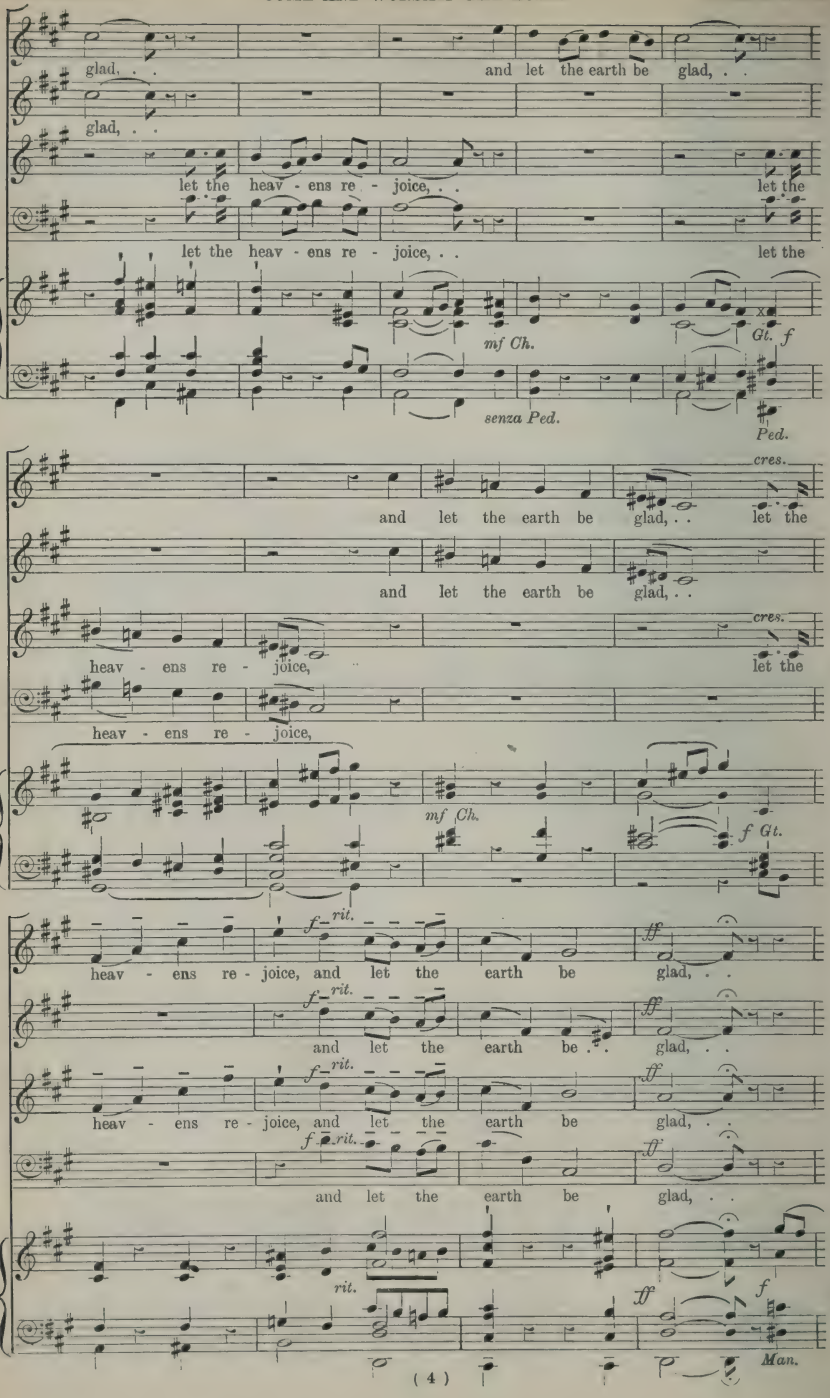
a tempo.
come, . . and wor - ship, wor - ship the Lord. . .
8 ft. only.
p a tempo.
rall.
a tempo.
rit.
Allegro moderato e marcato.
and let the earth be
Let the heav - ens re - joice, . .
Allegro moderato. ♩ = 112.
f Gt.



glad, . . and let the earth be glad, . .
glad, . .
let the heav - ens re - joice, . . let the let the heav - ens re - joice, . . let the mf Ch.
Gt. f
senza Ped.
Ped.
cres.
and let the earth be glad, . . let the and let the earth be glad, . .
cres.
heav - ens re - joice, let the heav - ens re - joice,
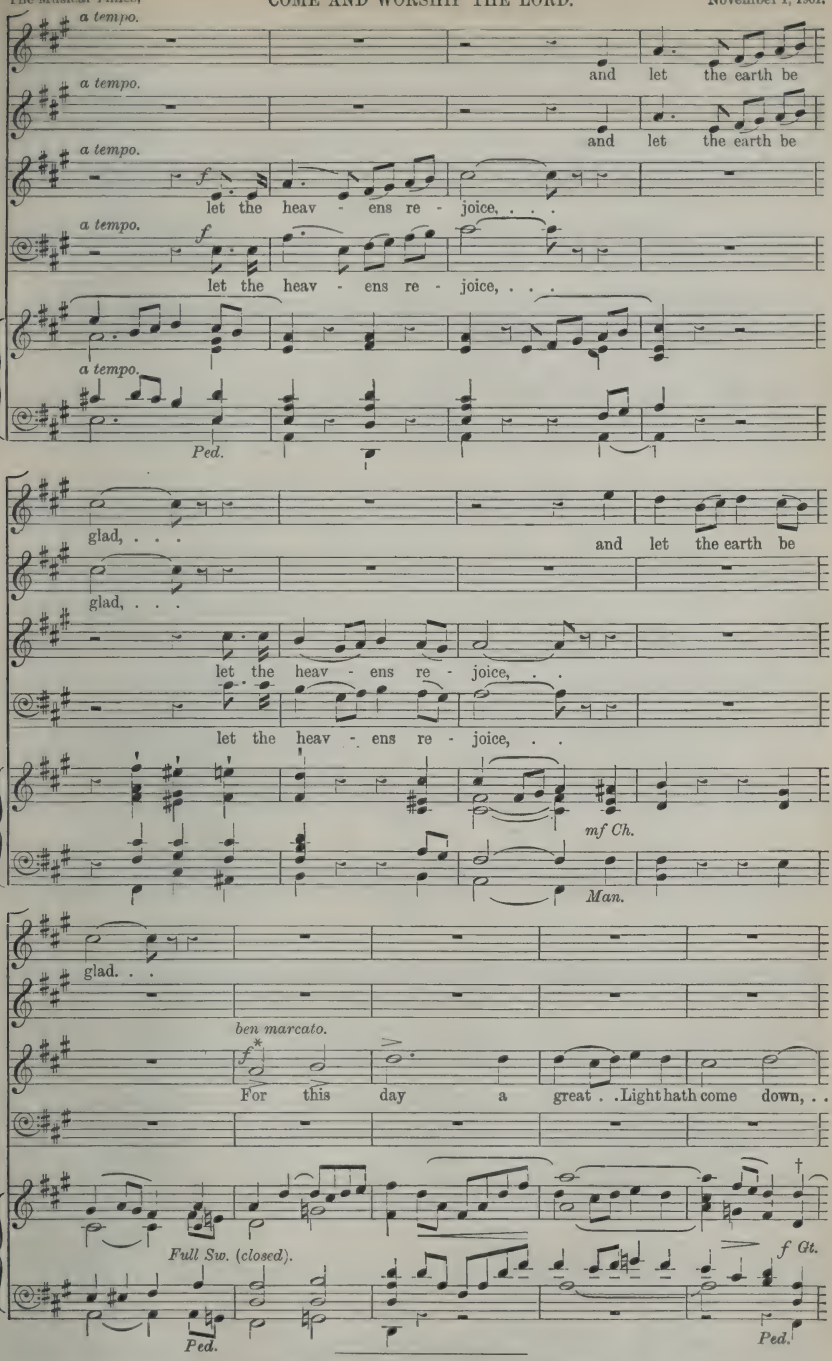
mf Ch.
f Gt.
f rit.
ff
heav - ens re - joice, and let the earth be glad, . .
and let the earth be . . glad, . .
heav - ens re - joice, and let the earth be glad, . .
and let the earth be glad, . .
rit.
ff
f
Man.



a tempo.
and let the earth be let the heav - ens re - joice, . . .
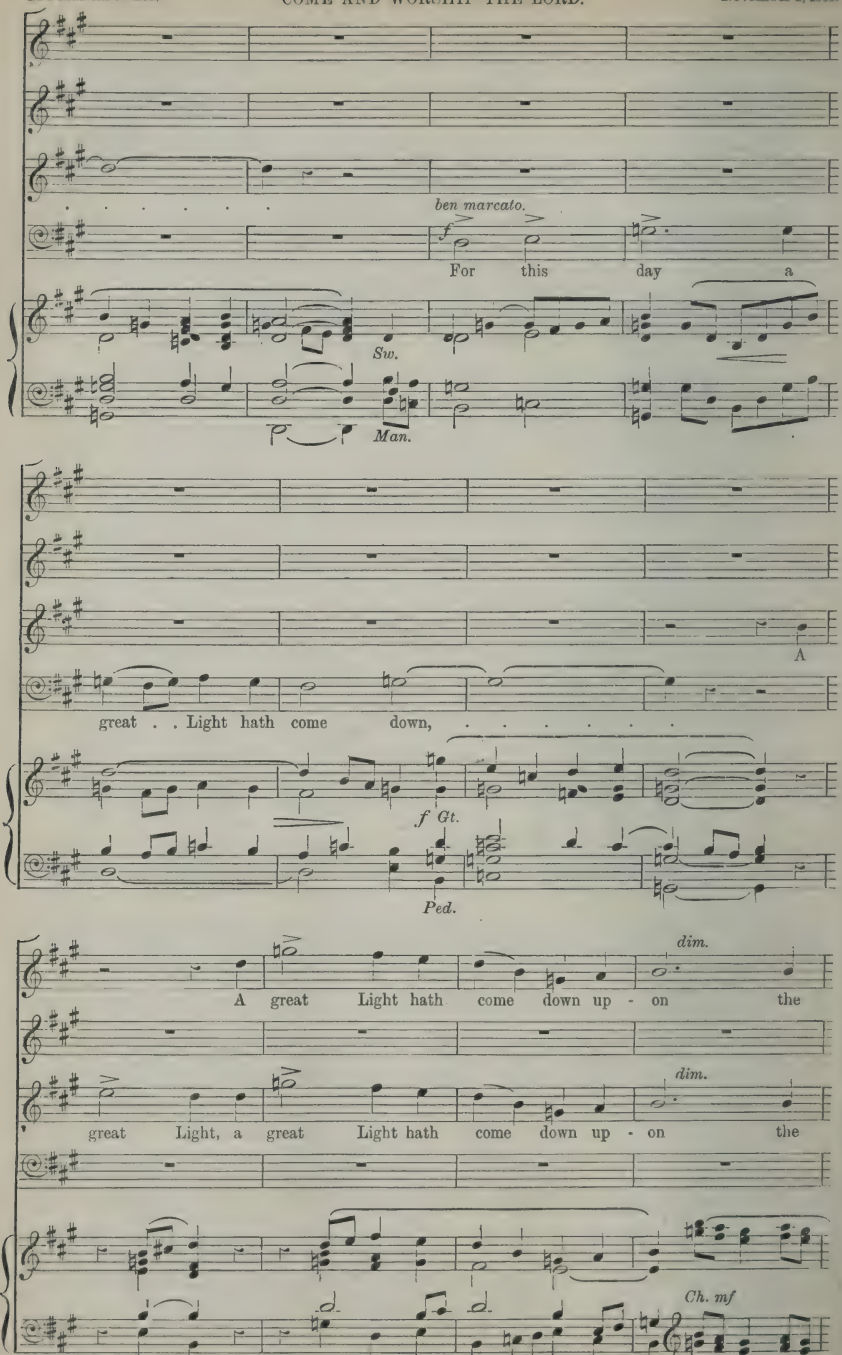
Ped.
glad, . . .
mf Ch.
Man.
ben marcato.
For this day a great . . Light hath come down, . .
Full Sw. (closed).
f Gt.

* Rouen Melody, 1st Section. † 2nd Section.



ben marcato.
f
For this day a
Sw.
Man.
A great . . Light hath come down, ...
f Gt.
Ped.
dim.
A great Light hath come down up - on the
dim.
great Light, a great Light hath come down up - on the Ch. mf

poco rit.
a tempo.
earth. . .
earth. . .
mf
poco rit.
a tempo.
up - on the earth. . .
Sw. 8 ft. Reed.
poco rit.
mf Gt.
a tempo.
Ped.
Let the heav - ens re -
Let the heav - ens re -
cres.
f
and let the earth be glad, . .
and let the earth be glad, . .
- joice, . .
let the heav ens re - joice, . .
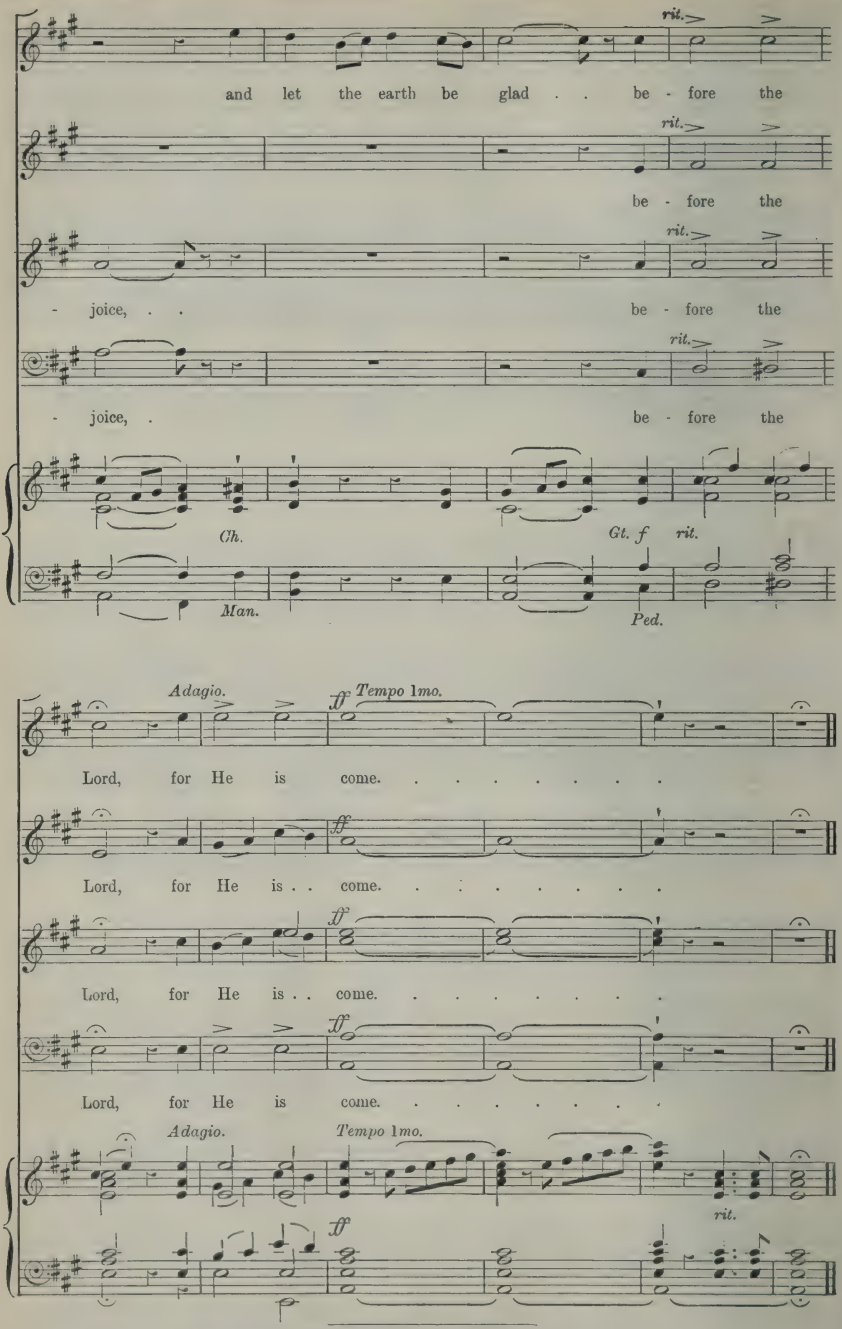
let the heav - ens re -



Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1228, price 1½*d.*

REJOICE IN THE LORD

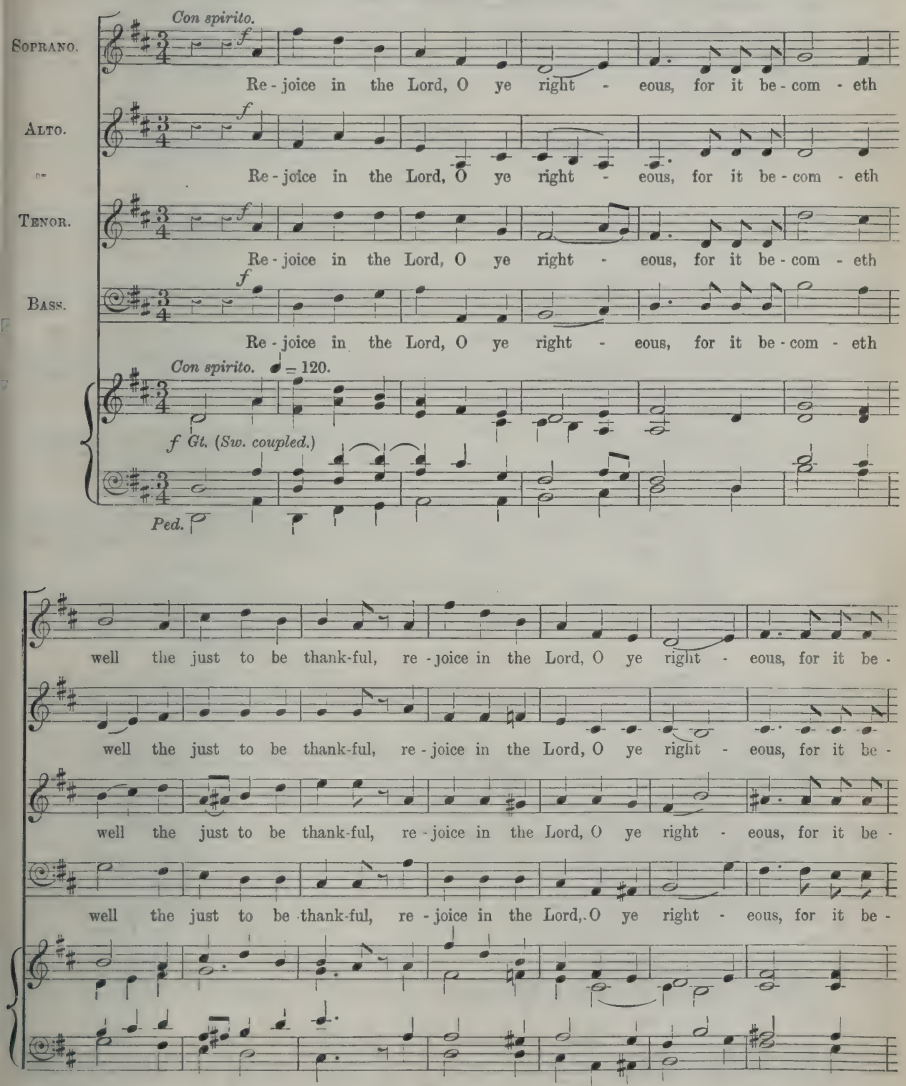
ANTHEM FOR CHRISTMAS

COMPOSED BY

ALFRED HOLLINS.

Psalm xxxiii. 1, 2; Isaiah xxv. 9
St. John iii. 16.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Con spirito.
SOPRANO.
ALTO.
TENOR.
BASS.
Re - joice in the Lord, O ye right - eous, for it be - com - eth
Con spirito. ♩ = 120.
f Gt. (Sw. coupled.)
Ped.
well the just to be thank-ful, re - joice in the Lord, O ye right - eous, for it be -

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

mf
com - eth well the just to be thankful. Praise the Lord with harp, . . .
com - eth well the just to be thankful. Praise the Lord with harp, . . .
com - eth well the just to be thankful. Praise the Lord with harp, . . .
com - eth well the just to be thankful. Praise the Lord with harp, . . .
Gt. Flutes 8 & 4 ft.
mf Sw. 8 ft. with Reeds.
Gt. to Ped. in.
f
. . praise the Lord with harp, . . . sing prais - es un - to Him with the
. . praise the Lord with harp, . . . sing prais - es un - to Him with the
. . praise the Lord with harp, . . . sing prais - es un - to Him with the
. . praise the Lord with harp, . . . sing prais - es un - to Him with the
f Gt. (Sw. coupled.)
Gt. to Ped.
lute, and in - stru - ment of ten strings. Re - joice in the Lord, O ye lute, . . and in - stru - ment of ten strings. Re - joice in the Lord, O ye lute, . . and in - strument of . . ten strings. Re - joice in the Lord, O ye lute, and in - strument of ten strings. Re - joice in the Lord, O ye cres.
f marcato.

right - eous, for it be - com - eth well the just to be thankful. For lo, lo, right - eous, for it be - com - eth well the just to be thankful. For lo, lo, right - eous, for it be - com - eth well the just to be thankful. For lo, lo, right - eous, for it be - com - eth well the just to be thankful. For lo, lo,
cres.
this is our God, lo, lo, this is our God; we have wait-ed for Him, have this is our God, lo, lo, this is our God; we have wait-ed for Him, have this is our God, lo, lo, this is our God; we have wait-ed for Him, have this is our God, lo, lo, this is our God; we have wait-ed for Him, have cres.
ff dim.
wait-ed for Him, and He, and He will save us.
ff dim. mf
wait-ed for Him, and He, and He will save . . us. Re - joice in the Lord, ye ff dim.
wait-ed for Him, and He, and He will save us. Re - joice in the Re -
ff dim.
wait-ed for Him, and He, and He will save us. Re - ff dim. mf

cres.
f
rit.
Re - joice, re - joice in the Lord, O ye right - eous.
right - eous, re - joice in the Lord, ye right - eous.
Lord, . . . re - joice in the Lord, ye right - eous.
joice, . . .
- joice in the Lord, re - joice in the Lord, ye right - eous.
Sw. p
senza Ped.
Verse. Andante con espress.
p
God so loved the
Andante con espress. ♩ = 92.
dim.
poco rit.
Sw. p con Ped. soft 16 & 8 ft.
world, . . God so loved the world, . . that He gave, . . He gave . . His on - ly be-got-ten Verse or Semi-Chorus.

cres.
dim.
p
Son, . . God so loved the world, God so loved the world, that He gave . . His Verse or Semi-Chorus.
cres.
dim.
p
God so loved the world, God so loved the world, that He gave . . His Verse or Semi-Chorus.
cres.
dim.
p
God so loved the world, God so loved the world, that He gave His Verse or Semi-Chorus.
cres.
dim.
p God so loved the world, God so loved the world, that He gave . . His senza Ped.
Ped.
mf cres.
on - ly be - got - ten Son, that who - so - ev - er be - liev - eth in Him, that on - ly be - got - ten Son,
on - ly be - got - ten Son,
on - ly be - got - ten Son,
mf
f
who - so - ev - er be - liev - eth in Him should not per - ish, should not per - ish, but
f have ev - er- last - ing life, God so loved the world, . . God so loved the God so loved the world, God so loved the God so loved the world, . . the God so loved the cres. f p

world, that He gave . . His on - ly be - got - ten Son, God . .
world, that He gave His on - ly be - got - ten Son, God so loved the world, that He gave His on - ly be - got - ten Son, God so loved the world, that He gave His on - ly be - got - ten Son, God . . so loved the Gt. Flute 8 ft. only.
Sw.
Sw. p dim. rit. pp
Tempo 1mo.
Full. f
cres.
. . so loved the world, . . the world. . . Glo - ry, glo - ry, world, . . God so loved the world. . . Glo - ry, glo - ry, world, . . God so loved the world. . . Glo - ry, glo - ry, world, . . loved the world. Glo - ry, glo - ry,
Gt. (Sw. coupled.)
Gt. to Ped.

cres. ff Maestoso. f

glo - ry to God in the high - est. Hark! the her - ald - an - gels sing glo - ry to God in the high - est. Hark! the her - ald - an - gels sing

glo - ry to God in the high - est. Hark! the her - ald - an - gels sing glo - ry to God in the high - est. Hark! the her - ald - an - gels sing

Maestoso. ♩ = 96.

cres. ff f

Gt. Diaps. 16 & 8 ft.
Sw. 8 ft. with Reeds coupled.

cres.

Glo - ry to the new-born King, Peace on earth, and mer - cy mild, God and sin - ners

Glo - ry to the new-born King, Peace on earth, and mer - cy mild, God and sin - ners

Glo - ry to the new-born King, Peace on earth, and mer - cy mild, God and sin - ners

Glo - ry to the new-born King, Peace on earth, and mer - cy mild, God and sin - ners

cres.

f re - con-ciled. Joy - ful, all ye na - tions, rise, Join the tri-umph of the skies;

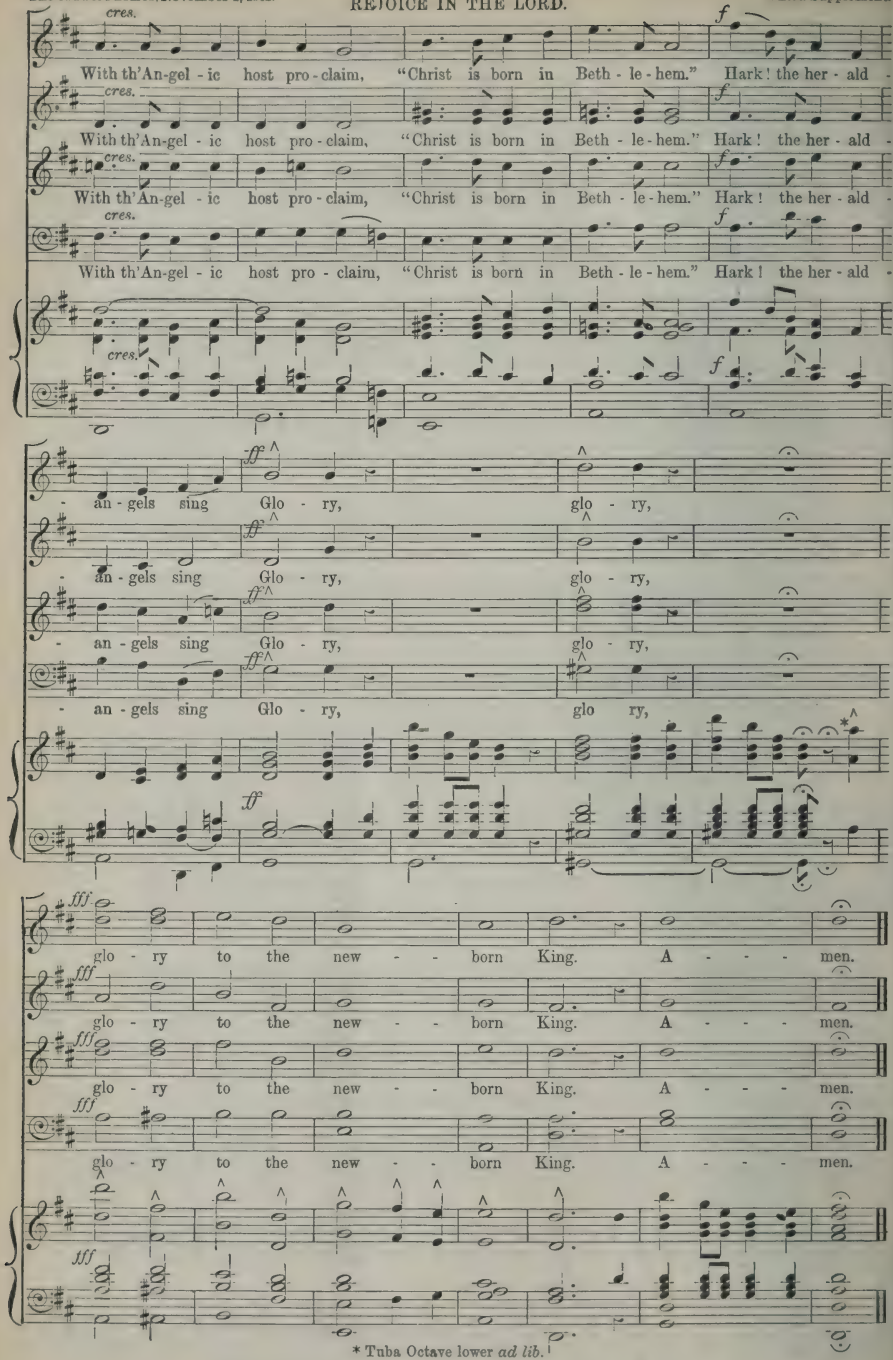
re - con-ciled. Joy - ful, all ye na - tions, rise, Join the tri-umph of the skies;

re - con-ciled. Joy - ful, all ye na - tions, rise, Join the tri-umph of the skies;

re - con-ciled. Joy - ful, all ye na - tions, rise, Join the tri-umph of the skies;

f Gt. to Principal, Full Sw.

REJOICE IN THE LORD.



cres.
f
With th'An-gel - ic host pro - claim, "Christ is born in Beth - le - hem." Hark! the her - ald -
ff
- an - gels sing Glo - ry, glo - ry,
fff
glo - ry to the new - - born King. A - - - men.
* Tuba Octave lower ad lib.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1235, price 1½d.

(THE TUNE 'ROCKINGHAM'—continued.)

three times, in E four times, in F twice, one of the last-named settings being a three-part arrangement. These pitch variants are just such as every experienced organist will make use of in accompanying the great congregation under various conditions, chiefly atmospheric—for example, Wesley's 'Aurelia' is best sung in E on a bright warm day, but in E flat on a raw, wind-in-the-east morning.

As probably few of our readers are familiar with the tune in its original form, we gladly take this opportunity of reprinting it.

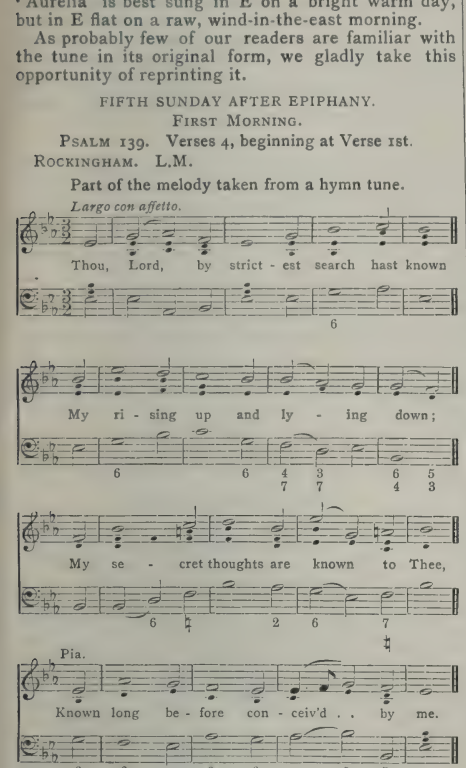
FIFTH SUNDAY AFTER EPIPHANY.

First Morning.

Psalm 139. Verses 4, beginning at Verse 1st.

Rockingham. L.M.

Part of the melody taken from a hymn tune.



Largo con affetto.
Thou, Lord, by strict - est search hast known
My ri - sing up and ly - ing down;
My se - cret thoughts are known to Thee,
Pia.
Known long be - fore con - ceiv'd . . by me.

The name of Dr. Edward Miller is always given as the composer of 'Rockingham,' but it will be observed that he, as the Editor of the book, modestly states, 'Part of the melody taken from a hymn tune.' 'From what tune?' is a very natural question, to which there cannot be a satisfactory answer. One investigator suggests that its prototype is a tune named 'Great Shelford,' in Seeley's 'Devotional Harmony,' but as this book did not appear till 1806, the boot would seem to be on the other leg, to use a Wellerism.

A few biographical facts concerning the reputed composer of the devotional tune 'Rockingham,' may not be unacceptable. A native of Norwich, where he first saw the light in 1735, Edward Miller was in due time apprenticed to a paviour. He evidently left no stone unturned to pursue the study of music, even by running away from Norwich to King's Lynn, where he became a pupil of the celebrated Dr. Burney. On the recommendation of Dr. Nares, Miller was appointed organist of Doncaster Parish Church, July 24, 1756; this post he held for fifty-one years. He graduated Doctor of Music at Cambridge, 1786, and died at Doncaster, September 12, 1807, aged seventy-two years. Dr. Miller was also a poet. He wrote some verses, entitled 'The Tears of Yorkshire, on the death of the most noble the Marquis of Rockingham.' No less than 600 copies of the poem were sold in the course of a few hours on the day of that nobleman's interment in York Minster. Could there be a better tribute to his sterling worth than the following words, written after his death? 'A warm-hearted, simple-hearted, right-hearted man, an enthusiast in his profession, yet not undervaluing, much less despising, other pursuits.'

BACH AT ST. ANNE'S, SOHO.

This historic church maintains its Bach traditions, fostered by Mr. E. H. Thorne's art-loving devotion. At half-past-three on Saturday afternoons during the month (except the last Saturday) Mr. Thorne will give a Bach organ recital, at which he will play the lesser-known works of the great Cantor—the sonatas and choral preludes, in addition to some of the more familiar preludes and fugues. These recitals are of great educational value to young students, as the organist of St. Anne's is a sound interpreter of these imperishable works. Then on seven Friday evenings, beginning December 6, Bach's Christmas oratorio will be sung—the three Christmas sections before and at Christmastide, and the three Circumcision and Epiphany sections after the joyous Festival. At the request of the Rector of St. Anne's, Mr. Thorne has written a short history of this much-neglected work. It appears in the readable little 'monthly paper' of the parish—a periodical which has running through its pages a series of brightly-written papers on 'Men and Women of Soho: Famous and Infamous'! We must find space to add that at the recent harvest festival (on the 10th ult.) the anthem was Dr. Croft's 'Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous,' sung with its original accompaniments—organ, oboe and strings, 'and the writing for these,' says Mr. Thorne, is 'surprisingly free and vigorous.' 'Its author,' he continues, 'was organist of St. Anne's from 1700 till 1711, and no orchestral work of Dr. Croft has been heard within living memory.' Such solid and unobtrusive work as is being done at St. Anne's deserves high commendation. There is a fine field for the introduction of the orchestral anthem.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE, TENBURY.

The forty-fifth Dedication Festival of St. Michael's College, Tenbury, was held on September 29, October 3 and 6, with its customary solemnity and enthusiasm. Services by Boyce in C and A, Prendergast in C, Smart in F and B flat, and anthems by Ouseley, Garrett, Stainer, and Elvey, were sung with that fervour which is so characteristic of Tenbury and which has earned for it a high reputation. One of the sermons was preached by the Rev. F. Wayland Joyce, vicar of Harrow-on-the-Hill, and an organ recital was given by Dr. G. R. Sinclair, organist of Hereford Cathedral, both of them 'old boys.' And here it may be mentioned that the College of St. Michael's was founded by the late Rev. Sir Frederick A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., in order to provide 'a high-class education for the sons of clergy and gentlemen of moderate means, together with the maintenance of a daily choral service of the highest devotional type.' The Warden (the Rev. John Hampton), Ouseley's attached friend, valued colleague, and genial successor in the oversight of the College, is to be heartily congratulated on the present state of the institution and his unwearied continuance in well doing.

LINCOLN CATHEDRAL ORGAN.

The organ in Lincoln Minster has been recently completed by the addition of a 32-ft. pedal reed stop, the gift of Mr. Alfred Shuttleworth and Mr. Sharpley Bainbridge. To welcome, as it were, this '32,' two recitals were given by the Cathedral organist, Dr. G. J. Bennett, on the 1st and 7th ult., when his programmes included Mr. Hollins's Concert Overture in C minor, the Storm Fantasia of Lemmens, Bach's St. Anne's Fugue, the Toccata in G by Dubois, and a Scherzo (for the use of the soft stops) by Hoyte.

PLAIN-SONG MUTILATIONS.

The following letter, from a musician of wide experience, speaks for itself:—

Sir,—On Michaelmas Day I attended an ordination service in a large Parish Church, at which the choral rendering of the Litany and Holy Communion was, both musically and devotionally, deserving of high praise. As much cannot unfortunately be said of the central point of the service, the hymn, 'Veni, Creator Spiritus,' which was performed, chiefly in a loud voice, in quick, jerky time, by men and boys in alternate verses (not lines as ordered), as nearly as possible thus—and so on to the end.

From the very first appearance of the plain-song tunes in Hymns Ancient and Modern, I welcomed them heartily; and, smoothly performed, in accordance with the direction that 'minims shown by slur to belong to the same syllable are not quicker than single notes,' I have enjoyed the old melodies on innumerable occasions for nearly half-a-century. But if this fad of clipping, and snapping, and hurrying is to be generally adopted as a newly-discovered (or newly-invented?) 'traditional method,' I sincerely hope I may never hear them again as long as I live. But perhaps I am only an Old-Fashioned Musician.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. A. Herbert Brewer, St. Andrew's, Bath (Fantasia in F, John E. West, and his own Melody in A and Minuet and Trio in D).—Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, Crystal Palace (New Suite by Félix Borowski and Concert Overture in F, Faulkes).—Mr. E. H. Thorne, Christ Church, Newgate Street (Concerto in B flat, Crotch, and Overture in F, Thorne).—Mr. Roger Ascham, Feather Market Hall, Port Elizabeth.—Mr. William W. Starmer, St. John's Free Church, Tunbridge Wells (opening of new organ built by Messrs. F. H. Browne and Sons, Ltd., Deal).—Mr. James Bevan, Parish Church, Bishopwearmouth (with the assistance of a string quartet—Messrs. A. Bevan, F. Pearson, F. Dickinson, and G. I. Simey).—Dr. J. C. Bradshaw, All Saints', Scarborough.—Mr. R. J. Pitcher, Holy Trinity, Scarborough.—Mr. Sydney Crookes, Parish Church, Cupar (Concert Overture, E. D'Evry).—Mr. E. Claude Townley, St. Stephen's, Cheltenham (Marche Solennelle, Mailly).—Mr. W. A. Roberts, St. Saviour's, Liverpool (Symphonic Overture 'Saul,' Granville Bantock).—Mr. James A. Crapper, Scoonie Parish Church, Leven (Overture for the Organ, A. H. Brown).—Mr. F. G. Mitford Ogbourne, Trinity College, London (Intermezzo, Chipp).—Mr. J. W. Cheadle, St. Michael's Parish Church, Dumfries (Sonata in D minor, Merkel).—Mr. J. H. M. Ledger, Thornton Wesleyan Church (opening of new organ built by Messrs. Laycock and Bannister, Keighley; Variations on a Ground Bass, Stainer).—Dr. T. Keighley, P. S. A. Room, Ashton-under-Lyne (Impromptu, No. 8, Hiles and Meyerbeer's Coronation March).—Mr. Ernest Jones, St. John's, Rhyl (Minuet and Trio from G minor Symphony, Sterndale Bennett).—Mr. H. J. Harding, Percy Congregational Church, Bath (Sonata in D minor, John E. West).—Mr. Charles W. Bridson, St. Saviour's, Liverpool (March for a Church Festival, W. T. Best).—Mr. J. Gray, Kirkcaldy Parish Church (Sonata in the style of Handel, Wolstenholme).—Mr. W. Louch, St. John's, Longsight.—Mr. W. Wolstenholme, Lytham Parish Church.—Dr. Froggatt, St. Lawrence, Thanet (On a bass, Stainer).—Mr. W. W. Starmer, St. Mary's, East Grinstead (who played his own pastorale 'L'Angelus' and Fantasia in D minor).—Mr. T. W. Lardner, Parish Church, Marlow (March in E flat, Hoyte).

ORGANIST, CHOIRMASTER, AND CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. George F. Austen, Christ Church, Ware.
Mr. W. C. Carter, St. Michael's Church, Harlesden.
Mr. Louis J. Garrett, Christ Church (Holy Trinity), Cork.
Mr. Louis F. Goodwin, Wesleyan Church, Mildmay Park.
Mr. F. Harden, St. Andrew's Church, Norwich.
Mr. W. G. Ross, Christ Church, Marylebone.
Mr. Louis Search, Parish Church, Wye, Kent.
Mr. E. Ellis Vinnicombe, St. Peter's Church, Sudbury, Suffolk.
Mr. Harry S. Vose, St. Barnabas' Church, Holloway.
Mr. H. Whorlow Bull (Bass), All Saints', Margaret Street, W.

REVIEWS.

MUSICAL LITERATURE, &c.

L'Arte del Clavicembalo. Del Luigi Alberto Villanis. [Turin: Fratelli Bocca.]

Signor Villanis has written an interesting book. The scheme is good, though it is not carried out altogether above reproach. We believe we are correct in saying that it is the first book of the kind, and, with one exception, we feel disposed to receive thankfully what the author gives us rather than to pick little holes here and there, i.e., to point out any imperfections which we may have noticed. Space, indeed, will not allow us to describe, even in the briefest manner, the contents of the volume. We shall therefore merely trace the lines followed, and then concentrate our attention on the English section.

The writer of these lines remembers in his young days to have seen a performance at a Paris circus in which the clown repeatedly brought down the house by shouting out, with imitated British accent, 'L'Angleterre est la première nation du monde.' But just as the earliest converts to the new faith accepted the term 'Christian' given to them in derision, so may we accept the clown's cry, at any rate as regards clavier music. Signor Villanis follows the history of it in England, Italy, France, Germany, and in a short appendix, in The Netherlands. England he puts first, because he says it was she who 'founded the school of clavicembalists.' The author finds that in each of the first four countries named there was one man who represented the art of which he writes at its highest point; Purcell, Domenico Scarlatti, Couperin, and J. S. Bach, respectively, but he not only discusses these sommités, but examines the art-work not only of men who paved the way but of those who followed, and who not only amplified forms established by them, but gradually moulded them to new ideals.

We turn then to the English section, and any criticism on our part must be received in the spirit in which it is offered. With a little more research and a little more care the author might have avoided many errors; those we point out and others can, however, be rectified in a future edition, whereby the book already valuable will become still more so. In dealing with the precursors of Purcell, mention is naturally made of 'Parthenia,' the 'first music that ever was printed for the Virginalls' (the old spelling would have looked quainter), but two dates of publication are given, neither of which is correct. Then, in connection with the Fitzwilliam Virginal Book, he mentions Mr. Fuller-Maitland as having shown that the old title given to it was erroneous; but long before the publication of that Book, the late William Chappell, and afterwards, and more fully, by Mr. Barclay Squire had given the true story. The paragraph on 'God save the King,' said to be among the hundred and twenty works of Bull collected by Pepusch, might be sent to Dr. Cummings for revision! Blow is named as one of the important predecessors of Purcell, but he was also a successor, and it was as such that he published his 'Lessons.' The issue of Purcell's works is erroneously stated to have been commenced by Breitkopf and Härtel in 1879; but there is not a word about the Purcell Society which—started in London, in 1876, on the initiative of Dr. W. H. Cummings—is still continuing its noble undertaking. The old wrong date, 1676, at which Purcell became organist of Westminster Abbey is given. He is also said to have written ten sonatas for the harpsichord. But let these instances suffice; the whole section needs revision, and so do the English and other names and titles in the bibliography at the end, and also in the body of the work.

Mendelssohn. By Stephen S. Stratton. 'The Master Musicians' Series.

[J. M. Dent and Co.]

In his preface to this, the latest monograph on Mendelssohn, Mr. Stratton states that he has made an attempt to exhibit the whole of the Mendelssohn biographical literature in a concise form, 'with a close adherence to facts, rather than the portrayal of an ideal.' In this we think he has succeeded; his pages certainly bear testimony to his industry and painstaking zeal. If there is nothing actually new in the matter presented to 'the man who knows,' our author has furnished the general reader with a chatty and, with a few trifling exceptions, an accurate 'Life' of the composer of 'Elijah.' The five appendices are especially useful—one of them is the text of 'Elijah' in its original form—and much reference information is crowded into these seventy-two pages at the end of the book. Mr. Stratton gives No. 103, Great Portland Street as the location of Mendelssohn's lodgings during his earlier visits to London; but the number of the house, which, we may add, has not been rebuilt since Mendelssohn stayed there, is now 79 in that thoroughfare. Two statements will need correction in a future edition: (1) Beethoven's E flat Pianoforte Concerto was not played for the first time in this country by Mendelssohn on June 24, 1829 (p. 57), but by Charles Neate, at the Philharmonic Concert of May 8, 1820; (2) Bach's vocal music was not first heard in England at the lectures given by Dr. Gauntlett at the London Institution, in March, 1837 (p. 106, note), but, as we were the first to point out (The Musical Times, October, 1896, p. 654), by Samuel Wesley in 1809, twenty-eight years earlier. The illustrations in the book are not above reproach.

Studies in Music. By Various Authors. Reprinted from 'The Musician' and edited by Robin Grey.

[Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent, and Co., Ltd.]

Journalistic writers on music pay the penalty of their calling in that so much—the greater part, in fact—of their work is of an ephemeral nature. The busier a man is the less likely he is to write a book. And does he not often feel that some of his best work is read over the tea cups and forgotten? The contributors to the short-lived periodical 'The Musician' may therefore be congratulated on the resurrection, so to speak, of their articles in book form, gathered together between two covers, and edited by Mr. Robin Grey, in the attractive volume before us. The twenty-one 'studies' in this book not only extend over a wide range of interesting musical subjects, but they are of permanent value. Among the writers thereof are Phillipp Spitta (who contributes an appreciation on Brahms), C. M. Widor (a Bach study), J. S. Shedlock (three articles), J. A. Fuller-Maitland, Ernest Newman, and W. Barclay Squire. Such good names need no bush, and the book is sure to have many readers. A beautiful portrait of Brahms forms the appropriate frontispiece.

NEW CHRISTMAS ANTHEMS.

Calm on the list'ning ear of night. Words by E. H. Sears. Music by Horatio W. Parker.

Hark the glad sound. Words by Philip Doddridge. Music by Myles B. Foster.

The angel said unto them. By Arthur Henry Brown.

There shall come a star. By Cuthbert Harris.

Crown Him the Virgin's Son. By Bertram Luard Selby.

(Novello's Octavo Anthems.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Professor Horatio Parker's church music is distinguished by a solidity of harmonic design and earnestness of expression, which engenders a sensation of satisfaction in the cultured listener. The words of 'Calm on the list'ning ear of night' were written in the first half of the last century, and possess a picturesqueness which is happily reflected in the music. The tranquillity suggested by the first line is emphasised by the opening bars of the initial chorus, which is most effectively laid out for the voices. To this succeeds a short solo for soprano or tenor voice, followed by the entrance of the choir pianissimo with the words 'Glory to God,' repeated with increasing force until a fortissimo chord is reached. Subsequently the soloist again enters, this time supported by the chorus. The Finale is short but spirited, and the concluding cadence possesses freshness.

The music to 'Hark the glad sound' appropriately starts Allegro con gioja, this chorus being effectively contrasted by a section in slower tempo for tenors and basses in unison. A short soprano solo follows, which is echoed by the choir, and a bright and spirited anthem concludes with a reference to its opening strains. Mr. Arthur H. Brown's composition may be recommended to choirs of limited means. It is written in two parts, for soprano and bass, and the music is simple in design and character. The anthem, however, possesses musical interest owing to the melodious flow of the voice parts, no less than in the treatment of the organ. The setting of 'There shall come a star out of Jacob,' by Dr. Cuthbert Harris, starts with a bass solo of diatonic character. An effective chorus, having a well worked-up climax, concludes the first section. The rhythm then changes to triple time, and, after a short organ interlude, the choir again enters with a spirited melody solidly harmonised. The final bars consist of a contrapuntal seven-fold Amen. Mr. Luard Selby's contribution is described as a 'Pastoral Anthem,' and the adjective happily indicates the character of the music, which is bright and flowing in style. The anthem is short and in four vocal parts throughout.

ORGAN MUSIC.

The Village Organist. Books 25-30. Edited by J. Stainer and F. Cunningham Woods.

Twenty-four Marches for the Organ. In Two volumes.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

This large instalment (six books) of the familiar series is very much on the same lines as those which have gone before and which, we may add, have met with so much acceptance. Original pieces by Dr. Bunnett, Mr. Alfred Hollins, Mr. Myles Foster, Mr. John E. West, and others, with a good sprinkling of arrangements—e.g., 'O gladsome Light,' from Sullivan's 'Golden Legend'—all go to furnish good working voluntary material for the organist in town (which is a village of larger growth) or country church. Book 30 comes under the head of 'special,' in that it consists of '30 Interludes,' concerning which we cannot do better than quote the preface: 'Occasions upon which a few bars of music are needed, frequently present themselves during divine service. These Interludes, original and arranged, have been collected to supply, as far as possible, the means of meeting the necessity upon such occasions. It will be observed that most of the numbers may be repeated as often as the player desires; and further, that the arrangements are often of such a nature that the pedal part can be taken by the left hand.

Every number may be played upon a one-manual organ. In some cases the marks of expression may be supplied by the player at his discretion.'

The two volumes of Marches—twenty-four in all—cover a wide range of this favourite form of organ voluntary. With the exception of Gounod and Molique, each represented by a single specimen, all the marches are by British composers. Such occasions as Wedding, Harvest, and Church Festival are well provided for, and marches Festal, Jubilant, Solemn, and Imperial find a place. The advantage of having the music of a number of marches bound together in one volume, instead of being scattered here and there in loose sheets, is obvious.

Praeludien u. Fugen (Op. 33, Heft 2); Symphonische Praeludien u. Fugen (Op. 25, Heft 3); Symphonische Sonate in A moll (Op. 42). Für die Orgel. Von H. W. Nicholl.

Zwolf Stücke für die Orgel (Op. 59, Hefte 1 and 2). Von Max Reger.

[Leipzig: C. F. Peters.]

In some instances there is an outward connection between Bach's preludes and fugues; for the most part, the relation of the one to the other is felt rather than seen. Mr. Nicholl boldly bases both movements on the same theme, and to this we can see no objection. The composer's contrapuntal skill is great, and so too is his mastery over fugue form. There are certainly moments in which much learning makes him somewhat dry, but even then the cleverness of the writing becomes in itself an attraction. The Sonata is interesting, and here unity is promoted by the theme of the introductory Larghetto forming the principal subject of the finale, a double fugue in counterpoint at the twelfth. The middle movements consist of an expressive Elegie, and of a chorale, 'Tibi omnes Angeli: tibi coeli, et universae potestates,' with massive and imposing harmonies.

Herr Max Reger, in his twelve pieces, has made a deep study of harmony and counterpoint, and his music shows manifold traces of it. He is so bent on avoiding the commonplace that there are rhythms and harmonies of somewhat far-fetched character. Herr Reger, however, is still comparatively young, and in time will doubtless learn how to use his skill in less demonstrative fashion: ars est celare artem is a motto which he might hang on the wall of his study. His compositions are in many ways interesting, and, as he is really talented, frank criticism is not likely either to discourage him or to rouse his anger.

PIANOFORTE AND VIOLIN MUSIC.

Zweite Sonate für Clavier und Violine (Op. 36A). Von Ferruccio Busoni.

Scherzo (Op. 45) und Drei Mythologische Scenen. Arion, An den Ufern des Lethe, und Ixion. Neun Klavier-Gedichte, in Etudenform (Op. 35), und Chromatische Etüden (Op. 24). Für Klavier. Von E. R. Kroeger.

[Breitkopf und Härtel.]

The Sonata, for pianoforte and violin, by Signor Busoni, is a difficult work to judge from paper. There is thought and poetical feeling in the music, but it seems often rhapsodical, and at times mannered, while in the writing for the pianoforte virtuosity is very prominent. It is of course natural for a great pianist to display his technical powers, but, from a practical point of view, it is well to consider what would suit average performers. We have no doubt that the music, if well played, would sound striking, but the subject matter does not appear sufficiently strong to induce players to conquer the difficulties. The last section of the work—according to modern practice there is no break in the music—consists of variations on a noble melody by Bach, the simple grandeur of which contrasts strangely with the elaborate style of the variations; the final one, polyphonic in character, is very clever, and on a high level.

The Kroeger pieces are skilful, showy, and difficult, and thoroughly modern in style. Mr. Graham Moore's Pianoforte Poems are also showy and difficult. There is a certain formality about the music, but it is attractive and admirable from a technical point of view, and very effective. The same may be said of the Chromatic Studies.

THE MUNICH PRINZREGENTEN-THEATER.

It is interesting to note how often in the history of musical art Munich has identified herself with that which has proved to possess the highest, the most definite, the most conquering, and the most enduring qualities. Mozart lived there for a time and wrote there, and from his time a succession of artists have, for a time at least, put their work forth to the world from its ancient fastness, down to Wagner, who, of course, until the circumstances of his life (altogether hidden in mystery) made his dwelling there impossible, abode there during a long period of his career. If it had not been for intrigues the cause of which nobody will ever rightly unravel, there had been no Bayreuth—the ideal theatre would, in Wagner's day, have risen on the banks of the Isar. That was not to be; but the judiciously artistic band of those who, in Munich, knew what the loss of Wagner to their town implied, never ceased to grieve. The idea was never permitted to flicker out of finally building a Wagner theatre which might fulfil all the best Wagnerian traditions, and which might at the same time embody those traditions within a structure of suitable magnificence, of fitting size, and of engrossing grandeur. In the Hof-Theater it was of course possible to give of Wagner's music-dramas performances which, in some respects, were of the highest merit; and that possibility was exploited to the utmost. That is, however, another story; and it only concerns me here, inasmuch as it demonstrates the artistic and industrious spirit which left no effort untried to keep at a really superlative level of excellence the musical ideal. It may casually be mentioned that the result has been that, through an enormous quantity of quiet work never advertised save by entirely independent admirers, the Munich Hof-Theater has become a veritable nursing-mother of artists whose reputation has now become European.

To a very large extent this result was brought about by that extraordinary man, both as a business director, as an artistic spirit, and as an accomplished manager, Herr von Possart. He, however, had no intention to let things remain in this happy-go-lucky condition of things in which Munich might play the part of a most efficient handmaiden to the influences of Bayreuth. It was determined to fulfil Wagner's own ideal as originally conceived—to build a theatre, on the Bayreuth model indeed, but upon a princelier, a lordlier style, to give it the immediate patronage of all that was highest in the social scale in Bavaria, to isolate it indeed to some extent from the town, and yet to make it, as it were, the commandant in artistic dictates (so far as music was concerned) of the capital, and finally to carry out with the utmost scrupulousness every iota of Wagnerian tradition—even it may be to freshen that tradition, possibly to wash it anew, and to place it upon a foundation where no mere family interest, no individual ambition, could distort it or set it awry. The result was the building of the magnificent Prinzregenten-Theater, the opening of which took place with great pomp, ceremony, and circumstance on August 20, a function which none of us who were present at it is ever likely to forget.

Though set, as I have said, away from the town, a flight of electric tramways brings you to its actual doors in something less than half-an-hour from the central station of Munich. It stands, imposing and symmetrical, rising as it were in tier upon tier to a final and completing crown. Over its doors is proudly inscribed 'Der Deutschen Kunst,' and you enter by a fine flight of marble steps that stretch from left to right on each side of its main entrance. It would be altogether otiose to describe detail by detail the points of its construction. The interior is fashioned, as near as may be, on the Bayreuth model. Stalls are the only seats, save for the circle of boxes which complete the topmost row. Six iron doors on either side form the very sufficient exits—I believe that in a trial rehearsal, in which the theatre was filled for the occasion with private soldiers, it was found possible to empty the house within two minutes—and above the doors in a massive gallery, each in separate niches, is the statue of some famous musician, gods in a vastly different sense from that with which we apply the name to those who occupy the same places at Covent Garden. But the stage is the thing. The space which encloses it is literally as large as the whole of the front of the house, while in its upper regions are prepared, set out, and laid down, no less than eighty odd 'pieces' used for the scenery in the various operas which have so far been prepared for the theatre. Nor is the under-part, the stage-well (to give it a name), built on any less amazing a scale. I believe that I have been among a mere handful of visitors who have explored these lower parts where all the machinery, reared up and spread in perfect order, lies for the express purpose of lighting the theatre and the stage. Some idea of the size of this convenience may be guessed from the fact that into this space could easily be set, in every dimension, one of the smaller London theatres. It is from these depths that some of the most magnificent mechanical effects of lighting that surely have ever been seen on any stage take their rise. With this let me come to some account of the performances which I witnessed there this year: 'Die Meistersinger,' 'Tristan und Isolde,' 'Tannhäuser,' and 'Lohengrin,' mounted in every respect surely beyond even Wagner's own gorgeous dreams!

It is to be remembered of course, and one's enthusiasm for sheer spectacular beauty is at times inclined to run away with the remembrance, that the performance itself of even a Wagner drama, where the surroundings and the mounting are of infinite importance, can only be compared to the definition of charity which makes up so fine a passage among the Pauline writings: 'If I have faith that can remove mountains and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or as a tinkling cymbal.' I quote not from an authorised version. So with any interpretation. You must have great singers as well as great scenic effects. Von Possart and his willing workers will provide, if you please, the last, the ultimate things in spectacular loveliness, but unless their interpreters prove worthy of the works in hand, the experiment will not have the highest meed of success in art which the great preliminaries undoubtedly foreshadowed. Time enough there is of course to bring musical Munich, which now possesses probably by far and away the finest opera-house in Europe, to a fused excellence of building and interpretation which will place it without any immediate rival anywhere in the world.

All this, as may have been guessed, is by way of preliminary to the definite, the sadly definite statement, that though in some respects this year's performances could not have been bettered, in others they fell a good deal below expectation. Let me take the first point at once. Never have I seen or heard so splendid a chorus as that of 'Die Meistersinger,' where so much depends upon the work of the choir, particularly at the end of the second act. Here they were beyond all praise. In quick, intelligent, apparently individual, but magnificently organised action, they were life itself, life in one organic, complete whole subscribed to by a thousand separate functional parts. In the final scene, too, this chorus was splendidly active and separately intelligent. In 'Lohengrin,' although the acting was equally good, the singing was at times quite appalling in its estrayings from the pitch; one felt here that Covent Garden might hail the Prinzregenten-Theater as brother, without rebuke or reproach. Need I say more than that? In 'Tristan' of course the chorus is of the most minor value; what had to be done was done well, the same word being equally applicable to 'Tannhäuser,' the opportunities of the second act being altogether taken at the flood. And so to the principals. Of them I shall speak as briefly as may be. There was not, I think, throughout the whole series, as I saw it, more than one really important first-class performance—I mean one which was truly memorable, unforgettable. Writing immediately after one or another performance, I may have praised this or that singer with freedom and liberality; but the standard I took on the spot was naturally one which compared to the general Munich average, and the only course was to state whether a singer rose above it or fell below it. But looking at the matter now dispassionately, and even, it may be, correcting an opinion too hastily given, I will say that the players were not by any means of the best, the finest kidney. To run through a list, Walter's Lohengrin was sound, good work; Frau Fleischer-Edel's Elsa was violently theatrical; Gerhäuser's Tristan was capitally sung, the death-scene being especially good; but he was quite unheroic; Senger-Bettaque's Isolde was a medley of the very best and assured commonplace; Feinhals' Hans Sachs was impressive, but he was not the colossal poet-artificer of the work; Knote's Walter was powerful, but painfully Teutonic; Fräulein Tordek's Eva was young and charming, but by no means full enough; Knote's Tannhäuser was too squat, if such a word may be used. Fräulein Ternina's Elizabeth alone—and this is the exception I have above made—was superlatively fine. No; the fact is that Munich wants singers, and Von Possart should look to it that Munich gets them. . . . So I conclude the briefest account of the launching forth of an enterprise as splendid in its promise as (so far as all mechanical matters go) it is brilliant in its achievement. It has, I most seriously think and have stated, one grand necessity, the need of good singers, and no effort should be spared to abolish that need at every cost, at every pains, at every reasonable sacrifice.

Vernon Blackburn.

NOVELTIES AT THE PROMENADE CONCERTS.

The artistic interest of Mr. Robert Newman's promenade concerts at the Queen's Hall has been greatly increased of late by the liberal introduction of novelties. One of the most important of these was Herr Weingartner's Second Symphony in E flat (Op. 29), which was performed for the first time in England on September 24. The Symphony is thoroughly orthodox in form, and the treatment of the themes is on familiar lines. Its most memorable portions are the Scherzo, in which the composer particularly shows his command of orchestration, and the opening of the slow movement.

The 'Macbeth' Overture composed by Mr. Clarence Lucas, heard in England for the first time on September 28, is his third effort to illustrate the Bard of Avon, and it is decidedly his most successful achievement. In its entirety the work is open to a charge of patchiness, but the themes are melodious and the scoring is picturesque.

The name of Signor Celega seems to have been practically unknown in England until the 1st ult., when his symphonic poem 'The Heart of Fingal' was brought forward by Mr. Henry J. Wood, for, although the composer of some 300 compositions, he is not mentioned in standard musical biographies. 'The Heart of Fingal' gained the prize offered by the Milan Orchestral Society.

The March from the unperformed opera, 'The Last of the Incas,' by Mr. Ames, had not been played in public until Mr. Wood introduced it on the 5th ult. The composition is laid out to large scale. The themes are not so broad and dignified as their treatment, the latter being elaborate and grandiose in character, this effect resulting in great measure from the liberal use of the organ.

Good light music is always welcome, and Herr Floersheim's little suite entitled 'Liebesnovelle,' played on the 8th ult., proved a pleasing example of musical expression of surface sentiment. The six movements are severally headed: 'Serenade,' 'Idyll,' 'At the Ball,' 'Avowal,' 'Happiness,' 'Bridal Procession,' and the music happily illustrates a course of true love that did run smooth.

The Suite Poétique of M. Josef Block is another example of light music of pleasing character. It consists of four numbers, severally entitled Souvenir, Gavotte, Berceuse, and March. The young Hungarian composer is greatly esteemed as a violinist, and is a professor of that instrument at the Conservatoire, Buda-Pesth.

On the 12th ult. the first performance was given in England of Herr Fritz Volbach's symphonic poem 'Es waren zwei Königskinder.' The composer is held in high esteem as conductor in Mayence, and his work proves him to be an imaginative and accomplished musician. The poetic basis may be described as a German version of the story of 'Hero and Leander,' and it is musically illustrated in a clear and expressive manner.

The Wagner concert on the 14th ult. was distinguished by the introduction of four tubas as designed by Wagner for 'The Ring,' and the selection included excerpts in which these instruments are most effectively employed. It may be added that they were constructed for Mr. Henry J. Wood by Messrs. Mahillon.

On the 17th ult., M. Glazounoff's ballet, 'The Seasons,' produced last winter at the St. Petersburg Opera House, was introduced to England, with the exception of the fourth tableau, which was given on the 19th ult. The music lacks individuality, but it is very pleasing, and is scored in a most masterly manner. On the same evening the first concert performance was given of Mr. Raymond Roze's orchestral suite formed from his incidental music to 'Sweet Nell of Old Drury, originally produced at the Haymarket Theatre.

The concert of English music on the 22nd ult. is referred to on page 730.

BRASS BANDS AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

'Oh, listen to the band.' Yes, we did listen to the band, 750 strong, at the Sydenham glass house on September 28. The occasion was the 'Grand brass band contest and festival,' organised by Mr. J. Henry Iles. The proceedings of the day commenced with a competition for the 'National challenge trophy of the value of one thousand guineas.' For this much-coveted honour and nine other prizes, no less than twenty-seven bands competed. Here is the list of those who entered for the fray :—

Arael Griffin.	Lee Mount, Halifax.
Batley Old.	Lindley.
Besses o' th' Barn.	Linthwaite.
Crooke.	Luton Red Cross Silver Prize.
Dannemora Steel Works.	Nantile Vale Silver.
Denton Original.	Northfield.
Ferndale Prize.	Pendleton Old.
Hartlepool Old Operatic.	Rochdale Public.
Hucknall Temperance.	Rotherham Borough.
Irwell Bank.	Rushden Temperance.
Irwell Springs.	Tillery Collieries.
Kettering Rifles.	Wingates Temperance.
Kettering Town Silver Prize.	Wyke.
Kingston Mills.

Of these twenty-seven harmonic combinations ten were conducted by one gentleman (Mr. A. Owen), four by another (Mr. W. Rimmer), and two other gentlemen each conducted two bands. The three adjudicators, whose duties must have been of a very arduous nature, were Mr. Carl Kiefert, Mr. J. Mackenzie Rogan, and Dr. E. H. Turpin. The test piece bore the title 'Gems from Sullivan's Operas, No. 3.' The following are the prize-winners, in the order of merit :—

1. Lee Mount.	6. Lindley.
2. Irwell Bank.	7. Rochdale Public.
3. Denton Original.	8. Kingston Mills.
4. Kettering Rifles.	9. Luton Red Cross.
5. Kettering Town	10. Wingates Temperance.

It may not be without interest to give the constitution of the first prize band (twenty-nine performers), which hailed from Halifax, and was conducted by Mr. William Swingler, of that town :—

2 Sopranos.	2 Euphoniums.
8 Cornets.	3 Trombones.
2 Flügel-Horns.	1 Bass Trombone.
4 Tenor Horns.	4 E flat Basses.
2 Baritones.	1 BB flat Bass.

Other competitions for solo players (cornet, trombone, and euphonium) were also held.

In the evening a concert of the massed bands was held on the Handel orchestra, at which Miss Alice Gomez, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. Andrew Black rendered acceptable aid. The most striking feature of this concert was the performance by the massed bands of Mr. Edward German's Coronation March from Henry VIII., which, arranged by Mr. A. Owen, was played in this form for the first time. The music admirably suited the strident instruments, and the rich, though never obtrusive, tone of the 750 players on wind instruments was in the highest degree satisfactory. Favourable mention must be made of the Denton Original Band (the winners of the trophy last year) who gave a very good rendering of Mr. German's Richard III. overture, also arranged by Mr. A. Owen. It is not every composition, however, that will bear transcribing for brass bands. The Pilgrims' March from Tannhäuser, performed at the concert, is a case in point. To listen to Wagner's torrents of fiddle passages played on cornets—blasting operations with a vengeance—was nothing short of terrible. The Festival was attended by an immense audience, a circumstance full of encouragement to the brass band players—most of whom came from the North—in their enthusiastic and music-loving endeavours.

MARK HAMBOURG.

Pianists come and go, and many of them succeed, but often interest in them soon subsides or entirely ceases. In the matter of technique most are well equipped; digital displays which years ago would have created considerable astonishment are now taken as a matter of course. A pianist to create lasting impression must be a great interpreter of the great masters. Mr. Hambourg, who appeared here first as a boy, then in his teens, and who has now come to us in the first flush of manhood has, besides brilliant technique, temperament and intelligence. He interprets Beethoven and Schumann as if he felt the music; but as yet, and quite naturally, his period of storm and stress is not over, and virtuosity still holds dangerous sway. In time he ought to become a well-balanced artist as well as what he now is—a great pianist. Mr. Hambourg's two recitals took place at Queen's Hall on the 5th and 19th ult.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

New York, October 10, 1901.

Though there is always a lull after the festival at Worcester, Mass., so far as the activities in the chief cities of America are concerned, that occurrence marks, in a manner, the annual opening of our musical season. At the Worcester festival there is always the first gathering of the Eastern forces, singers, instrumentalists, conductors, and critics, and though the affair seldom deserves all the attention which it receives, it is yet interesting and significant. This year's meeting, which took place in the week of September 22 to 28, was the forty-fourth held under the auspices of the Worcester County Musical Association. Its chief features were the production of a new work entitled 'Judith,' composed by Mr. George W. Chadwick, who is the musical director of the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston and the conductor of the festival, and a repetition of César Franck's 'Beatitudes,' which had been performed at the festival of 1900. The only other large choral work presented was Verdi's 'Manzoni Requiem.' Instrumental numbers worthy of mention in the record were Brahms's Third and Beethoven's Second symphonies, and Schumann's Overture, Scherzo, and Finale. Mr. Chadwick also produced a British novelty in the shape of Mackenzie's 'Coriolanus' suite.

Mr. Richard Burmeister, the only solo instrumentalist who had a part in the festival scheme, brought forward an arrangement by himself of Liszt's Concerto Pathétique, which seems destined to keep up its career of metamorphosis for ever. Liszt composed the work as an unaccompanied solo in 1850, and dedicated it to Henselt. Fifteen years later he re-wrote it for two pianofortes and gave it the name by which it is now known. In 1877 Hans von Bülow revised and augmented this arrangement with the approval of Liszt, who played it publicly with Ingeborg von Bronsart. Later, Reuss transcribed the second pianoforte part for orchestra, and in this form Mr. Joseffy played it here in 1886. Mr. Burmeister took it up three years ago and made his arrangement in which the text is considerably curtailed and the orchestra employed. Tant de bruit pour une omelette—the game is not worth the candle, though Mr. Burmeister's devotion to the memory of his master is so great that he seems to have made the habilitation of this piece in our concert-rooms the chief purpose of his life.

The festival chorus, more listless and uncertain in attack than last year, when Franck's oratorio was learned and Brahms's German Requiem also, numbered about 400 voices. Mr. Chadwick was principal conductor, and Mr. Franz Kneisel associate. J. Wallace Goodrich was at the organ, except on the first evening, when illness compelled the substitution of Mr. H. M. Dunham, of Boston. The band, sixty-five men strong, was composed of members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra—indubitably the finest organisation of its kind in the United States and the peer of its European fellows. The solo singers were Suzanne Adams (at the last concert only), Mrs. Shannah Cumming, Estelle Liebling, Gertrude May Stein, Clara Poole King, Adelaide J. Griggs, Evan Williams, E. C. Towne, Ellison van Hoose, David Bispham, Carl E. Dufft, and Stephen Townsend—a capable but by no means brilliant array of singers.

So much for the record. A new 'Judith,' I fancy, ought to have something more than a place in a mere chronicle of events, but mayhap it will fall under the notice of the reviewer for The Musical Times, who may give it more attention than I can within the restrictions of this letter. Mr. Chadwick, who counts among his other good works the instruction for a space of his friend Horatio W. Parker, Professor of Music at Yale University, and perhaps the best known of American musicians in England, had William Chauncey Langdon, a teacher of English literature, as his collaborator in the work. The authors call it a lyric drama, and had a stage representation in view while writing. There is an approach to the operatic manner in the second part, or act, of the piece, which deals with the scene of the seduction and decapitation of Holofernes, but the beginning and end, in which the chorus asserts itself, belong to the department of oratorio. They are the most satisfactory and ear-filling portions on the whole, though less marked by originality than the dramatic portion. Mr. Chadwick's style is decidedly eclectic, disclosing a little of everything from the cynicism of the sentimental ballad to the dramatic symbolism of Wagner, but he has knit the elements of his work together in a splendid manner, and infused his orchestral score with a deal of colour. There is too little of action in the work to fit it for the theatre, however, although some of the music would benefit from scenic accompaniment.

In numbers, as well as character, the audience that listened to 'Judith' was a fine tribute to Mr. Chadwick. The work was sung at the third evening concert, and for the first time the hall was filled. There were many musicians among the listeners who had come to Worcester especially to hear it, chief of them Professor Parker, who is spending his Sabbatical year in Europe, but has come back to conduct the musical exercises at the bicentennial celebration of Yale University, for which he has set a Greek ode. Mr. Arthur Whiting, H. K. Hadley, and Thomas W. Surette were in the New York contingent.

The provinces have been receiving the attention of Mr. Grau and his operatic song-birds since Monday the 7th inst. The season at the Metropolitan Opera House in this city will not begin until December 23. Meanwhile the company has taken to the road, and will journey no less than 8,000 miles, and sing in twenty or more cities before its return. The special promises held out for the metropolitan season are performances of M. Paderewski's opera 'Manru' (for which the Polish tenor Bandrowski has been engaged) in February, a memorial series of Verdi's operas beginning with 'Ernani,' and de Lara's 'Messaline.' Madame Sembrich has undertaken the part of the heroine in 'Manru,' at the urgent solicitation of her friend and compatriot, the composer, and M. Paderewski himself has cancelled his proposed concert-tour in Spain and Italy, and will come to prepare the opera for performance and give a series of American recitals. The production of 'Manru' has been set down for February 12, and the cast will embrace Mesdames Sembrich, Schumann-Heink, and Fritzi Scheff, and Messrs. Bandrowski, Bispham, and Blass.

The leading concert organizations of the country have not yet published their plans for the season, but it may be told that Mr. Theodore Thomas has planned a series of historical concerts with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and that the New York Philharmonic Society will pay more than customary attention to novelties. Among them will be Siegmund von Hausegger's 'Barbarossa' Symphony, which thus far has been heard only in Leipsic, I believe, Napravnik's Symphony 'The Demon,' Joseph Suk's suite 'Raduz and Mahalona,' and Max von Schillings's 'Œdipus.' The Oratorio Society of New York will this year stick to old works—'Elijah,' 'The Messiah,' and 'Paradise and the Peri.'

Mr. Edwin H. Lemare, organist of St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, is engaged in a short tour of recital-giving here and in other States, which is attracting wide attention and the deepest interest. His present series of recitals is an outcome of the great impression made upon American organists by a hearing he was induced to give in S. Bartholomew's Church, New York, last winter, and, it is hoped, is a precursor of a yet wider tour in the coming spring. On the occasion of a dinner tendered to him at the Hotel Lorraine, by the American Guild of Organists, on September 30, Mr. Lemare was prevailed upon to speak at some length and to give his impressions respecting the present status of organ-building in this country.

H. E. Krehbiel.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The 28th season of the Philharmonic Society was opened by a miscellaneous concert in the Ulster Hall on the 18th ult. The artists engaged were Madame Melba, Miss Regina Nagel, Mr. Joseph O'Mara, Miss Ernestine MacCormac (violinist), Mr. Fredk. Griffith (flautist), and Miss Llewella Davies (accompanist). The selection of music was an admirable one, and a crowded assembly gave the great prima donna and her associates an enthusiastic reception.

The Philharmonic Society is in a flourishing state, and looks forward to a busy season under the baton of Dr. Francis Koeller. Our readers may remember that there was an imminent risk of the Ulster Hall being sold for business purposes, but at the last moment the City Council were persuaded to intervene, and to the great delight of the musical public they have become the purchasers subject to the approval of Parliament, which it is very unlikely will be withheld. In a few months, therefore, this capacious hall will no doubt be public property. The fine organ will be rescued from destruction, and receive the renovation of which it stands in great need.

Dr. Lawrence Walker's first chamber concert took place on the 10th ult., with Mr. Montagu Nathan (violin), Herr Bast (violoncello), and Dr. Walker (pianoforte). An excellent programme included Tschaïkowsky's Trio in A minor (Op. 50), and other works.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The concert season is now in active operation. The musical matinées in connection with the Birmingham Royal Society of Artists were resumed on the 5th ult., under the direction of Mr. Oscar Pollack. On Monday, the 7th ult., the Town Hall was packed to its utmost on the occasion of the first of the Harrison concerts. Madame Patti, Miss Edna Thornton, Mr. William Lavin, and Mr. Santley, were the vocalists; Miss Pauline St. Angelo (pianist) and Miss Elsa Ruegger (violoncellist) also contributed to a good miscellaneous programme.

The Festival Choral Society had a magnificent send-off on the 17th ult. Verdi's 'Manzoni Requiem' and Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' were the works performed. The vocal principals were Madame Albani, Miss Giulia Ravogli, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. William Llewellyn. These all did well, and the chorus sang with a precision and vocal splendour that it would be difficult to surpass. Dr. Sinclair conducted, and the Town Hall was crowded. The City Choral Society commenced its third season on the 24th ult. with Saint-Saëns' 'Samson and Delilah,' particulars of which must be reserved till next month. Concerts have been given in the Masonic Hall, on the 16th ult., by Miss Louie Scott and Miss Alice Davies; on the 21st ult., by the Misses Mary and Beatrice Round (a musical and dramatic recital); on the 22nd ult., by Miss Albertini, the child pianist; and on the 23rd ult., by Miss Violet Myers.

At the Prince of Wales' Theatre, on Monday the 14th ult., Mr. Greet's Savoy Company commenced a week's visit, giving for the first time here 'The Emerald Isle.' The skill with which Mr. Edward German incorporated his work with that of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan was greatly admired. The opera was splendidly staged, well performed, and warmly received by crowded houses.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The societies have re-commenced their practices and a busy musical season is anticipated.

The Choral Society, Mr. George Riseley, conductor, will give Sullivan's 'Golden Legend,' Beethoven's 'Mount of Olives,' Dvorák's 'Stabat Mater,' some Wagner selections, and the 'Messiah.'

Clifton Choral Society, Mr. F. W. Rootham, conductor, has taken in hand Handel's 'Acis and Galatea' and Mendelssohn's music to 'A Midsummer Night's Dream.'

Bristol and Clifton Philharmonic Society, Messrs. Edward Pavey and Edward Cook, conductors, has commenced its season with rehearsals of 'Elijah'; and the same work is being taken in hand by the Clevedon Philharmonic Society, and the Weston-super-Mare Philharmonic Society, both of which are conducted by Mr. E. Cook.

The St. John's Choral Society, conductor, Mr. A. E. Hill, is practising Rossini's 'Stabat Mater,' Brahms's 'Song of Destiny,' and Birch's operetta 'The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest.'

The Oriana Society, conductor, Mr. Ulrich W. Jüst, will present six choral works that have not been given publicly in Bristol, viz., 'Odin's Ride over the Sea,' by F. Gernsheim; G. Grunewald's 'Harald,' a dramatic ballad for male chorus; E. Fromm's 'Henry the Fowler,' for male chorus and solo quartet; 'Oybin,' ballad for alto solo and male chorus, by E. Stehle; H. Zöllner's 'Smith's Song'; and 'The River,' for tenor solo and male chorus, by Mr. G. F. Blanchard, of Weston-super-Mare.

The Hanham and District Choral Society, conductor, Mr. F. A. Wilshire, has selected 'Elijah,' and will follow it with 'The Hymn of Praise,' Rossini's 'Stabat Mater,' and Stainer's 'Crucifixion.'

A Choral Society has been started in connection with the Young Men's Christian Association, and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer' and Gade's 'Erl King's Daughter' are being practised. Mr. W. A. Barter is the conductor.

The St. Bartholomew's Choral Society has commenced its sixth season under a new conductor, Mr. Wallace J. H. Greenham, organist of the church. The work selected for practice is Dr. C. H. Lloyd's 'Hero and Leander.'

The Portishead Choral Society is rehearsing Mendelssohn's 'Athalie.'

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The prospects of the musical season are unusually bright. After being dormant for two seasons, the Dublin Musical Society, with Dr. Joseph Smith again as conductor, has started into renewed life, and a programme of seven subscription concerts, at which Sullivan's 'Golden Legend,' 'The Messiah,' and Verdi's Manzoni Requiem Mass are announced for performance.

The Dublin Orchestral Society, after making a successful appeal to the public, will give a series of six orchestral concerts during the winter, with Signor Esposito as conductor. No details are yet announced, but the first concert will take place during the present month.

The committee of the Feis Ceoil have issued a very encouraging report. The balance sheet shows a profit of £140 on the last festival. During the summer months an energetic sub-committee has been engaged in organising choral societies in the various business houses in Dublin, with the result that a very large number of such societies, for mixed, male, and female voices, has been formed. To meet this demand the Feis has organised two entirely new divisions of more or less elementary choral competitions, the first for choirs (mixed, male, and female voices) which have not won a prize at any previous festival, and the second for commercial choirs (also for mixed, male, and female voices) the members of which consist entirely of employés of business firms. Dr. Stanford has been engaged to adjudicate upon the composers' competitions, the entries for which close on December 1.

The Chamber Music Union has issued its prospectus for ten concerts, including two pianoforte recitals by Signor Esposito. The other artists engaged include M. Schilsky (first violin), Mr. Delany (second violin), Mr. Griffith (viola), and Herr Bast (violoncello). The first concert will take place on the afternoon of the 14th inst., when Beethoven's B flat trio and Schumann's A minor quartet will be performed.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The winter series of Corporation Saturday evening organ recitals in St. Andrew's Hall, Norwich, was inaugurated, on the 12th ult., in the presence of the Mayor and Corporation. The occasion was marked by the production of a new Overture for Organ in D minor and major, from the pen of Dr. Bunnett, the City organist. Miss E. Tatham was the vocalist, and Miss Mary Noverre contributed several violin solos with much refinement.

At the Lecture Hall, Ipswich, on the 4th ult., the first of a new series of chamber concerts took place, under the direction of Mr. A. H. Earnshaw, principal of the Ipswich Conservatoire of Music. The vocalists were Miss Marion Cassinet and Mr. John Probert, while Mr. A. H. Earnshaw (violoncello) and Mr. Frank Mummery (pianoforte), contributed solos, as well as joining in two duets.

Music is again taking a prominent place in the district, and most of our local Musical Societies have commenced practising for the coming season, the selections, so far as settled at present, are as follows:—

The next concert to be given by the Norwich Festival Committee will consist of Handel's 'Israel in Egypt,' at which the Norwich Philharmonic Society will mainly furnish the orchestra.

The Norwich Choral Society, which has recently been formed to take the place of the defunct Gate House Choir, with Dr. Bates as conductor, and the Norwich Orchestral Union have put in rehearsal Reitz's Oboe Concerto, Weber's 'Preciosa' music, and one of the lesser-known Symphonies of Mozart.

The Great Yarmouth Musical Society have selected Sullivan's 'Martyr of Antioch' for their first concert, and Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' for the second, while the Orchestral Society will probably include Beethoven's Eighth Symphony at their concert early in the new year.

The Ipswich Choral Society will perform Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' and Mendelssohn's 'Elijah.' The last-named work will also figure in the programme of the North Walsham Musical Society, of which Mr. A. S. Wilde has been requested to take up the permanent conductorship.

The King's Lynn Society (conductor, Mr. A. H. Cross) will present 'The Messiah' at their first concert, and later on probably 'The Golden Legend.' At Diss, 'Judas Maccabæus' is in rehearsal, and Mendelssohn's 'Lauda Sion,' at Loddon. The Beccles Musical Society are practising Bennett's 'May Queen,' while Handel's 'Samson' will be given at Mildenhall; and the plucky little Society at Sprowston, a suburb of Norwich, have chosen Romberg's 'Lay of the Bell.'

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

After a period of profound repose, Edinburgh shows signs of again awakening into musical activity. Choral and other musical associations are making announcement of the resumption of their labours, and of the works to the study of which they intend devoting themselves in the coming season. To touch on these matters in more detail, the University Musical Society announces Hofmann's 'Melusina' and Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm; the Choral Union will perform 'Elijah,' and, later on, 'The Messiah.' Mr. Moonie's Choir has a number of works in study—namely, 'Hiawatha's Departure,' 'The Sun-Worshippers,' 'Lord Ullin's Daughter,' and a new work by the conductor, entitled 'Killiecrankie.' There is also a possibility of this Society taking up Verdi's 'Requiem' later. Mr. Kirkhope's Choir is working at Brahms's 'Requiem' (a work with which its name is honourably associated); it may also perform a work by Sir Hubert Parry, to be conducted by the composer. Among smaller organisations, Mr. Pettie's North Leith Singing Class (a flourishing institution) will produce McCunn's 'Bonny Kilmeny.'

Messrs. Paterson announce their series of concerts by the Scottish Orchestra, and if the band Dr. F. H. Cowen brings this season equal that he conducted last, we may anticipate from their performances a high degree of pleasure and artistic satisfaction.

The many Church Choral Societies—too numerous for individual mention—and the various Orchestral bodies, headed by the Edinburgh Amateur Orchestra, are now busily at work for art's sake. Much good is done by these, and all thoughtful music-lovers will wish them success.

The outstanding feature of the Moody-Manners' recent visit to us was the production, for the first time in this city, of Wagner's 'Siegfried.' A performance adequate in every way was given of this great work, and, indeed, of all their répertoire. Madame Ella Russell was the bright particular star of the company, and acquitted herself excellently in all her rôles.

Professor Niecks's vigorous address at the opening of the music course at the University is referred to in another column. His scheme is practically that which in 1890 was so earnestly, but vainly, pressed upon the Universities' Commission by the leading musicians of this city. It is much to be hoped that the present appeal will meet with greater success.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The monthly concerts of the Palette Club were resumed on the 2nd ult., when the band of the club, under Dr. Hardy, gave an excellent performance of Mendelssohn's Scotch Symphony, the Overture to 'Der Freischütz,' and the March from 'Tannhäuser.' Messrs. Gibson, Dallas, and Whittet contributed vocal solos.

The Glasgow Amateur Orchestral Society, conducted by Mr. W. T. Hoeck, has resumed its rehearsals, the chief works under study being the Prelude to Dr. Elgar's 'Dream of Gerontius,' Beethoven's C minor Symphony, and the same composer's Violin Concerto.

Since the early summer, lovers of music have been amply catered for at the International Exhibition, which, by the way, closes its doors on the 9th inst. Bands, military and string, of many nationalities have performed daily. Choral performances have taken place almost every week. Organ recitals have been given daily, and sometimes oftener, among the 'visiting' organists being Messrs. E. H. Lemare, Alfred Hollins, E. H. Thorne, and Dr. A. L. Peace. Among the solo instrumentalists who have performed have been Miss Fanny Davies, and Messrs. Ysaye, Hambourg, Kosman, and Halstead; while of vocalists we have had Mesdames Melba, Brema, and Macintyre, and Messrs. Andrew Black and Ben Davies. But perhaps the most unique feature of the Exhibition music has been the engagement for four weeks of the Scottish Orchestra, under Dr. F. H. Cowen. This, we believe, is the first instance in this country of high-class orchestral performances being given at an Exhibition beyond London. Dr. Cowen's programmes have been selected with great care and discrimination, the 'popular' and the 'classical' being equally represented.

The Corporation of Glasgow have acquired the grand organ in the concert hall of the Exhibition at a cost of £2,000. The instrument, built by Messrs. Lewis and Co., Limited, will have a permanent home in the new Art Galleries.

The Moody-Manners Opera Company paid a week's visit to the city, giving Wagner's 'Siegfried' for the first time here. Madame Patti and Mr. Santley appeared on the 17th ult., under Messrs. Harrison's auspices.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The prospects of a more than usually full musical season in Liverpool are many. The premier organisation, namely the Philharmonic Society, gave its opening concert of the sixty-third season on the 8th ult., and Dr. F. H. Cowen was once again in his place as director. A scholarly reading of Beethoven's 'Eroica' Symphony was obtained, and the overture to 'La Princesse Jaune' (Saint-Saëns) also had place in the programme. Lady Hallé, than whom there is no artist more popular in Liverpool, played Beethoven's Romance in G and Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, being specially successful in the latter work. Miss Macintyre sang songs by Mozart and Chaminade. The chorus rendered with power and characteristically good attack Handel's 'Zadok the Priest' and Macfarren's 'Orpheus with his lute.'

The first Richter concert (of which this season there are to be only three) occurred on the 15th ult., and the substitution of evening instead of afternoon concerts was apparently responsible for the much increased attendance. It need scarcely be said that the concert was on that plane of excellence to which Dr. Richter alone has introduced Liverpool music lovers. The programme was constituted entirely of the works of Wagner, and was of a particularly comprehensive character.

Herr Frolich gave with much exactness 'Blick'ich umher,' Wolfram's song from 'Tannhäuser'; Wotan's 'Abschied und Feuer Zauber,' from 'Die Walküre,' and Hans Sachs' Monologue 'Wahn! Wahn!' from 'Die Meistersinger.' Dr. Richter was welcomed enthusiastically.

The splendid series of Sunday concerts at New Brighton Tower came to a conclusion on September 28, when a most interesting programme was put forward. It included Dr. Cowen's 'Butterfly's Ball' Overture and Glazounow's Fifth Symphony. The last-named work proved to be of no ordinary interest with its colourful themes and its well varied tone pictures. This, in many ways remarkable, work was played with distinction by the fine orchestra, under the enthusiastically intelligent and honorary conductorship of Mr. A. E. Rodewald. Dr. Elgar's 'Cockaigne' Overture was played for the second time during the season, and the vocalists were Miss Lillie Wormald, who prettily rendered David's 'Couplets de Mysoli', and Mr. Harold E. Wild, who effectively gave Lohengrin's 'Farewell.'

The Moody-Manners Opera Company quite succeeded in reviving pleasant memories of the best days of the Carl Rosa régime, during the early days of last month, when Mr. Charles Manners, Madame Fanny Moody, Madame Ella Russell, and their colleagues, supported by a finely intelligent and enthusiastic chorus, gave worthy representations of Meyerbeer's 'Star of the North,' Gounod's 'Faust,' Wagner's 'Siegfried' and 'Tannhäuser,' and Bizet's 'Carmen.'

At Aintree, a well-known suburb, steps have been successfully taken towards the formation of a choral society. About 100 members have been enrolled, and an energetic committee formed. It is hoped that instrumentalists will also join the society, which is to be known as the Aintree Musical Society. 'Elijah' has been already put into rehearsal.

Mr. Walter Hague, who has under his control an excellent combination (thirty in number) has included in his programmes during the past few weeks a Suite by Lardelli, the 'Casse-Noisette' Suite of Tschaïkowsky, Moszkowski's 'Spanish Dances,' a selection from Wagner's 'Rienzi,' some of Edward German's 'Nell Gwyn' and 'Emerald Isle' music.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Our musical season opened on the 14th ult., when Dr. Richter directed a programme arranged entirely in accordance with the time-honoured plans of the Gentlemen's Concerts Association, including the 'Surprise' Symphony of Haydn, and Mozart's 'Figaro' Overture, diversified by the refined singing and exquisitely pure voice of Mr. Ben Davies. Two evenings later, Dr. Watson initiated the 35th season of his Vocal Society with an admirable rendering of Cowen's 'Sleeping Beauty,' a melodious cantata, which, in former years, more than once charmed us in the acoustically-perfect Athenæum Hall. The choir of the Society may be congratulated upon its continued discipline, well-blended tone, and the advance shown by its soloists. In the trying air 'Whither away, my heart?'

Miss Teggin's clear voice greatly delighted the large audience.

On the 17th ult., the Hallé subscription season was inaugurated by a varied selection of orchestral works, including Nicodé's Variations (Op. 27)—whereby the interest at first excited was scarcely maintained to the close—the concert arrangement of Wagner's Vorspiel and Liebestod from 'Tristan,' Dvorák's second Slavonic Rhapsody, and the immortal C minor Symphony of Beethoven. In the so oft selected Prelude to the season's delights—Weber's 'Oberon' Overture—the ethereal tones of the horn of Herr Paersch, and the extreme polish of the whole performance proved that, during the long vacation, Dr. Richter's force has in no way deteriorated. Of the second meeting (Oct. 24) notice must be deferred: but Lady Hallé will always be greeted here with the utmost enthusiasm and affection.

The importance of the recently organised Association of the Nonconformist Choirs of this district could scarcely be overrated. The second meeting, at the Free Trade Hall on the 19th ult., was extremely successful. Mr. Granville Humphreys had command of some 700 thoroughly enthusiastic, and apparently experienced singers, the parts being well balanced, and the sopranos decidedly brilliant and fresh voiced. Dr. Henry Watson's 'Psalm of Thanksgiving' (written for the occasion) was rendered with animation and adequate expression; even in Sullivan's trying part-song 'Say, Watchman' the pitch was only very slightly deflected, and several other concerted pieces were capitally given. Hopes were excited that in Lancashire the excellence of the Nonconformist choirs of the Potteries may soon be rivalled; and the announced preparation of 'The Messiah' for December 14 was gladly welcomed. The programme also proved the usefulness of our College of Music, the resources of which were extensively drawn upon. Miss Ethel Wood, Mr. Fowler Burton, and Miss Edith Webster were all formerly students of the College, and proved the efficiency of their early training.

Mr. Plunket Greene and Mr. Leonard Borwick gave one of their admirable song and pianoforte recitals in the Free Trade Hall on the 21st ult.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The various musical societies of this district are already showing signs of activity, and their arrangements are pretty well advanced. The Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union will give, on the 27th inst., a performance of Liszt's 'Legend of St. Elizabeth,' with the Hallé orchestra, and under the baton of Dr. Richter. The first concert of the Newcastle Chamber Music Society will take the form of a Violin and Pianoforte Recital by M. Ysaye and Signor Busoni. The Sunderland Philharmonic Society announces for December 3 Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's Leeds cantata, 'The Blind Girl of Castél-Cuillé,' under the direction of Mr. N. Kilburn. On the 11th December, the South Shields Choral Society, conducted by Mr. M. Fairs, will give a concert recital of Gounod's 'Faust,' and for the following evening the Gateshead Vocal Society promise Mendelssohn's 'Elijah.' The same composer's 'St. Paul' has been chosen for performance on the 12th prox. by the Newcastle Amateur Vocal Society, directed by Mr. J. E. Jefferies. The Tynemouth Vocal Society, of which Mr. M. Fairs is now conductor, will give Elgar's 'The Banner of St. George,' and Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm in December, and on the 4th of that month Sir Frederick Bridge's 'Callirhoë' will be sung by the National Telephone Vocal Society, Newcastle, of which Mr. George Dodds is conductor. Barnby's 'Rebekah' is in rehearsal by the Newcastle Postal Telegraph Vocal Society.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The regular season in Nottingham was initiated by Miss Cantelo's series of Chamber Concerts, on the 17th ult., when she was supported by the Kruse Quartet. The programme included Brahms's horn trio and Schumann's Quartet in A. Miss Cantelo, as solo pianist, gave a beautiful rendering of Beethoven's Sonata Pathétique.

The flying visit of Madame Blanche Marchesi, on the 16th ult., was noticeable for the fact that the party included Miss Hilda Gee, violinist, a native of whom Nottingham is proud, and to whom a warm welcome and hearty appreciation of her efforts were extended.

After a quarter of-a-century of steady work as organist at St. Martin's, Leicester, and a similar period of activity as conductor of the Choral Society, Mr. Charles Hancock has received, at the hands of the Mayor, a cheque for £255 and an album containing the names of over 300 subscribers thereto, as a practical token of the esteem in which he is held in that town.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul,' performed as the eleventh of a series of oratorio services at St. Mary's Church, Sheffield, attracted an immense congregation on the 14th ult. There was a vigorous and well-disciplined chorus of 120 voices, and the singing in that department was particularly good. The soloists were Master E. Muscroft, Mr. J. E. Varley, Mr. T. W. Green, and Mr. J. Lycett, and their efforts were entirely successful. The performance was directed by Mr. J. A. Rodgers, the organist and choirmaster of the church.

The Baslow Choral Society (Mr. J. W. Froggatt) have placed in rehearsal Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' and Mendelssohn's 'Christus'; and the Walkley Musical Society has in rehearsal 'The Messiah' and 'The Creation.' Mr. Henry Brown is the conductor.

The Burngreave Choral Society (Mr. H. C. Jackson) announces a performance of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul,' and the Norton Lees Choral Society (Mr. H. Reynolds) has 'The Messiah' in preparation.

Mr. Henry Dean has been appointed conductor of the Sheffield Amateur Instrumental Society in succession to Dr. Coward, who has resigned that office.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

HUDDERSFIELD.

So far as the quantity of music is concerned, Huddersfield is undoubtedly entitled to pride of place this month. For more than such a material consideration, however, does the concert of the Huddersfield Choral Society, on the 18th ult., deserve especial consideration, since it may be taken to mark the beginning of a new era in the Society's history. The conductorship of this famous chorus, which for weight and sonority has no rival, even in the West Riding, has been given to Dr. Henry Coward, whose prowess as a choir-trainer has been demonstrated at the Sheffield Festivals. Another 'departure' is suggested by the choice for the opening concert of Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' trilogy, for hitherto the Society's policy has been of so conservative a nature as to practically ignore all that is best in contemporary music. A better choice could hardly have been made, and the success of 'Hiawatha,' as conducted by the composer, should encourage the committee to bear in mind the claims of modernity, while not forgetting the master works of the past. The chorus-singing was quite in 'Ercles' vein,' being characterised by tremendous force, but there were occasions when the choir showed their ability to 'roar you an't were any nightingale,' with an effect very grateful after the stentorian outbursts that were the rule. By comparison with the chorus the orchestra suffered, and formed indeed the weak point in the performance. If the Society is to make occasional ventures into the regions of modernity, some considerable improvement will have to be made in its orchestra, which lacks tone and finish. The soloists were Miss Helen Jaxon, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Andrew Black.

The Subscription Concerts began on September 24, and the three that have been given have more than maintained the miscellaneous nature of these popular entertainments. At the first the Meister Glee Singers formed the chief attraction; at the second, on the 8th ult., Mr. Grossmith appeared; and at the third, on the 22nd ult., Madame Clara Butt provoked the usual enthusiasm. A curious incident of this concert was that, as a result of the drought from which this district has suffered, the intended appearance of the organist, Mr. Wiegand, had to be postponed, the supply of water being insufficient for blowing purposes. Two more concerts of local societies remain to be chronicled. On the 15th ult., the Glee and Madrigal Society, under Mr. Ibeson, gave a programme of music that did not err on the side of severity, and on the 19th ult. the Philharmonic Society, which is also conducted by Mr. Ibeson, gave a successful concert, at which Mr. Kaye, a local violinist, played Max Bruch's G minor Concerto.

OTHER YORKSHIRE TOWNS.

The record of other Yorkshire centres is a very scanty one. Leeds not unnaturally requires some breathing time after the spasmodic effort implied by the Festival, and a passing visit, on the 1st ult., by Mr. de Pachmann, who was, by-the-way, in excellent form, and played Mozart and Chopin most charmingly, is all that is at present to be chronicled. Both here and at Bradford it is not until November that we look for a return to full activity in musical matters. At the latter town the excellent Permanent Orchestra, strengthened by a large guarantee fund, resumed operations on the 4th ult., when Beethoven's Second Symphony and Wagner's 'Huldigungsmarsch' were played under Dr. Cowen's direction, and Madame Ella Russell was the vocalist.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Brussels.—Among the works announced for performance at the Ysaye concerts are the Orchestral Variations on an Original Theme, by Dr. Elgar.——The Grand Prix de Rome of the Conservatoire has been awarded to a young Belgian composer, M. Biaran, for a cantata, 'Œdipe à Colone,' for soli, chorus, and orchestra.

Copenhagen.—Under the auspices of the Society for the Cultivation of Danish Music, a composition, by Niels W. Gade, entitled 'Baldur's Dream,' for solo voices, chorus, and orchestra, has just been published for the first time. The work, a melodious one, was written about the year 1857, and, notwithstanding its tardy publication, a just tribute has been rendered to a composer who has deserved well of his country and art.

Darmstadt.—The Schmitt'sche Academy of Music celebrated, on September 21, the fiftieth anniversary of its foundation, with a festival concert. The veteran founder of this excellent institution, Herr Philipp Schmitt, still continues to take an active part in the management.

Dresden.—A new choral society has been formed here for the performance of oratorios and other important choral works, both old and modern. The already numerous choir, consisting of musically cultured amateurs, is under the direction of Herr Waldemar von Baussnern. A new opera by the latter is to be brought out, ere long, at the Royal Theatre. Its description as 'a humorous heroic opera,' would seem to point to some unconventional treatment of the libretto, which is from the pen of Eberhard König.

Eisenach.—The Beethoven festival, held from the 5th to the 7th ult., under the direction of Capellmeister Steinbach, with the Meiningen orchestra and the choir of the Musik-Verein, was exceedingly well attended, and there is but one voice as to the general excellence of the performances. Professor Halir, of Berlin, who played the Violin Concerto, and Mr. Frederick Lamond as the soloist in the E flat Concerto, were received with marked applause. Capellmeister Steinbach conducted.

Frankfort-on-Main.—An excellent and highly appreciated performance took place on the 6th ult., at the Stadt Theater, of Weber's comic opera, 'Die drei Pintos' as completed, with great ability and taste (from the existing sketches and other compositions of that master) by Herr Gustav Mahler, and with the revised libretto from the pen of the composer's grandson, Carl von Weber. Capellmeister Pittrich conducted.

Freiburg (Switzerland).—Professor Wagner, a well-known authority on liturgic music in connection with the Catholic ritual, has just opened an Academy in this city, where the Gregorian Plain Chant is to be taught and specially cultivated. Instruction is to be given gratuitously.

Leipzig.—A concert, which attracted the notice of critics and amateurs in this city in no small degree, was that given, on the 8th ult., by Herr Hugo Kaun, a German musician, residing at Milwaukee (U.S.A.), and to some of whose more important compositions the programme was devoted. In a String Quartet (Op. 41), opening with a vigorous and finely worked out fugue, and a Pianoforte Quintet (Op. 39), full of animation and spontaneous melodic charm, the composer proved himself not only a contrapuntist of a very high order, possessing a complete mastery of all the means of instrumental expression, but one gifted, moreover, with originality of invention, and a true tone-poet. The reception accorded to these pieces, as well as to a number of characteristic songs from the same pen, testified to the warm appreciation of the audience.

Madrid.—A very successful performance took place last month, at the Buen Retiro Theatre of the new three-act opera, 'Marcia,' by Cleto Zavalá, which had obtained the first prize in a competition opened some time ago amongst native composers. The libretto, by Señor Gonzalo Canto, deals in a dramatically effective manner with an episode in the Roman conquest of the peninsula, and its musical setting, in which the national element is not wanting, has given great satisfaction to the more serious-minded amongst Spanish musical amateurs.——Under the auspices of the Philharmonic Society, the seventeen string quartets of Beethoven will be performed during the present month, for the first time in Spain.

Milan.—The new sacred choral work, 'Moses,' by Lorenzo Perosi, which is to be shortly produced here, has been designated by its composer 'a vocal symphonic poem,' and is divided into three parts, with a prologue. It is said to be the most important and most loftily conceived work as yet produced by the young maëstro. Don Perosi, however, apparently has an unlimited number of artistic messages to convey, and is already busily engaged upon a new sacred work, entitled 'The Apocalypse.'

Prague.—Richard Strauss's music-drama, 'Guntram,' was produced on the 9th ult., for the first time, at the German Theatre, with considerable success. This remarkable work, with its masterly polyphonic treatment of the orchestra, had been well put on the stage, and the composer, who conducted, was heartily applauded after every act.

Reichenberg (Bohemia).—There was recently produced at the Synagogue, and probably for the first time in public, Schubert's setting of the 92nd Psalm for mixed choir (here sung by a male quartet) and baritone solo, with the original Hebrew words. The work was written during the last year of the composer's life, and was published without his name, after his death, in Sulzer's 'Schir Zion,' a collection of compositions adapted for the Hebrew liturgy.

Scheveningen.—At one of the concluding concerts of the season, the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra produced, for the first time, a new orchestral suite, entitled 'King Christian,' by the Finnish composer Jean Sibelius, which on account of the originality of its themes and their masterly polyphonous treatment, was accorded a most enthusiastic reception.

Strassburg.—In connection with the recent annual meeting of German Philologians in this city, an excellent performance was given of the 'Orestiad' of Æschylus, with the incidental music by Max Schillings. The characteristic melodramatic numbers of the latter and the stately final chorus, produced a very marked impression upon the select audience.

Valence.—A monument was unveiled on September 29, erected to the memory of Louis Gallet, the distinguished librettist and co-operator, as such, with Gounod, Massenet, Saint-Saëns, and other well-known French composers. Gallet was born at Valence in 1835. The ceremony concluded with a grand concert, given by the Philharmonic Society and Choral Union.

Venice.—Antonio Smareglia has just completed the score of a new opera, entitled 'Océana,' which is to be brought out both at Vienna and at Carlsruhe. The maestro has also written an orchestral suite upon themes from the new work, which, it is said, Dr. Richter will introduce to English audiences during the coming winter.

Verona.—A biblical opera, 'The daughter of Jephtha,' by G. Righetti, has been brought out at the Municipal Theatre recently with great success.

Wiesbaden.—A noteworthy feature in one of the recent concerts of the Kur Orchestra was the first performance of an orchestral transcription of the 150th Psalm (originally written for four-part choir) by J. Heymann, which competent critics declared to be a masterpiece of contrapuntal writing, and of high musical value generally. The composer occupies the post of principal Cantor at Amsterdam, and has already contributed several valuable works to the modern repertory of the Protestant Church in the Netherlands.

OBITUARY.

THE FIRST STUDENT OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On the 22nd of September last there passed away, at Exmouth, in his ninetieth year, Kellow John Pye, whose death has broken another link in the chain of association between our times and those of Mendelssohn, Sterndale Bennett, and other great musicians of the first half of last century. A man of wide sympathies, with the power of attracting and retaining the friendship of a large circle of gifted and kindred spirits, his influence was an undoubted force in the musical world, while his reverential attitude towards the art, and the high ideal he had of its mission, could not but impress all who knew him. He was born at Exeter, on February 9, 1812, and at the early age of eleven received from Cipriani Potter the first lesson ever given at the Royal Academy of Music. His connection with that institution, to which he was elected a Director and Member of the Committee of Management, on May 20, 1864, was a very close one, and was characterised by his never-failing sympathetic interest in the education of students in music, a cause he had very much at heart.

In 1829 began his acquaintance with Sterndale Bennett, an acquaintance destined to ripen into a warm friendship; and shortly afterwards, in 1830, he settled in Exeter as a professor of music, whence, in 1832, he sent up an anthem, 'Turn Thee again, O Lord,' for the Gresham prize medal, which was awarded to him on January 12, 1833. He became a member of the Philharmonic Society in 1846, and in 1853 gave up his professional work in Exeter and went into business in London, devoting, however, all his leisure to what was always his chief interest in life. For the next thirty years Mr. Kellow Pye was actively connected with many musical institutions in London; prominent amongst these was the Madrigal Society, of which he became Hon. Treasurer in November, 1856, and afterwards, on the occasion of the Society's 150th Anniversary in 1891, Vice-President. He it was who induced Lord Beauchamp—their President—to have the old full scores overhauled by W. S. Rockstro and new and correct ones made. His own madrigals, 'Hark, the Lark' and 'Oh fair, sweet face,' gained the Society's prizes in 1888 and 1891. Mr. Kellow Pye joined the Committee of the Bach Choir on its establishment in 1876, and he was a member of the Council of the Royal College of Music from the date of its foundation in 1883. His name found a place on the Committee of the Mendelssohn Scholarships Foundation, and in the formal deed of Trust, dated 1st August, 1871, for the regulation of its proceedings.

Throughout his last years, music was still one of his greatest resources. When over eighty he used to collect in his drawing-room a few men of the working class for the practice of madrigals and glees. Of his compositions, besides those already mentioned, the greater number were anthems and other music for the Church; but he also wrote part-songs, songs, pianoforte duets, and solos, all of which show the wide grasp he had of his subject and bear the stamp of the true artist.

On the 7th ult. at her residence, 67, Adelaide Road, N.W., Ann, widow of the late Henry Charles Lunn, in her 78th year.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE ANTI-ABBREVIATION SOCIETY.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—If your Anti-Abbreviation Society be formed, I will join it. 'Sops.' for 'Sopranos' is bad enough; but I knew a good man, an Assistant Curate, who always described himself in official documents as Ass. Cur.

Yours truly,

October, 1901. Rector.

HANDEL'S BORROWINGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—The chorus 'Egypt was glad when they departed,' which is practically identical with a canzona published as Kerl's in Hawkins's 'History of Music,' has been regarded as among the most objectionable of Handel's 'borrowings.' But what authority had Hawkins for ascribing the piece to Kerl? Recently I was looking through a publication of Walsh's, where I found the canzona, and it has no composer's name. The publication is entitled:—

'A second collection of Toccates, Volentarys, and Fugues . . . by Pasquini, Polietti, and others, the most Eminent Foreign Authors.'

There are four 'canzone,' but only the second is ascribed to Kerl, the others being anonymous. It is the fourth, on p. 17, which Hawkins printed as Kerl's, not observing that the piece is practically identical with Handel's chorus. Hawkins was often inaccurate in such matters; and the question is worth further investigation, with a lingering hope that after all the piece may turn out to be one of Handel's own. The collection is not in the British Museum; I saw it in the Fétis Library at Brussels. I have not been able to find original editions of Kerl's works.

82, Grand Parade, Brighton. H. Davey.

October 10.

[The canzona printed (and with several mistakes) in Hawkins's 'History of Music' was published at Vienna in 1686, at which time Handel was one year old. In the opening bars can be seen how Handel weakened the Kerl theme to fit his words. Handel, by the way, added a short coda of three bars.—J. S. Shedlock.]

UNIVERSITY INTELLIGENCE.

At the examinations for degrees in music held in Durham in September, the following candidates passed:—

Mus. Doc.

Arnott, Archibald Davidson. | Iggulden, Athelstan Glover.

Final Mus. Bac.

Batten, John Henry.	Stewart, George.
Crawford, Thos. James.	Stratton, John Henry.
Sadler, Sydney Thos.	Waterhouse, Florence Eliot.
Southworth, William.	Young, George Coleman.

First Mus. Bac.

Allwood, Thos. Hy.	Holden, T. W.
Bamford, T.	Jones, G. E.
Brinkler, A.	Knowles, F. W.
Bulmer, A. W.	Lymn, Hy.
Burleigh, Cecilia Anne.	Melling, E. H.
Butcher, F. C.	Mould, J. H.
Crawford, William.	Thompson, Hy.
Govier, W. N.	Thompson, W. Hill.
Hawkins, Rev. H. A. K.	Turner, E.

The examiners were Professor Armes, Sir J. Frederick Bridge, and Dr. F. E. Gladstone.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The first of the Ada Lewis Scholarships have been awarded to the following competitors:—Singing: Soprano, to Ethel Mary Lister (of Birmingham); Tenor, to Lindsey Yorke Squire (of Liverpool). Pianoforte, to Julia Harper Higgins (of London). Violoncello, to Bertram Walton O'Donnell (of Madras, India) and Leonard Wilfrid Peppercorn (of West Horsley, Surrey). An Extra Scholarship for violoncello playing (presented by the Committee of Management) has been awarded to William Stanley Greening (of London). The Erard Centenary Scholarship for (pianoforte playing) has been awarded to Hubert C. V. Gascoigne, of Leyton, Essex. The Thalberg Scholarship, which was founded by subscription by Lady Jenkinson, will be competed for in December. This Scholarship is open to female pianists (who must be British-born subjects, between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one years) and is tenable for two years. The income, which amounts to about £20 a year, is appropriated towards the scholar's fees at the Academy. Full particulars may be obtained from the Secretary, Royal Academy of Music, Tenderden Street, London, W.

A successful performance of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' (Part I.) was given in the Gordon Mission Hall, Globe Road, Bethnal Green, on the 16th ult., by the choir and orchestra of the Popular Oratorio Concerts, under the direction of Mr. G. Day-Winter. The solo vocalists were Miss Edith Bristowe, Miss Helen De Vere Kerwin, Mr. Horace Hacker, and Mr. W. Royston Rose. The singing of the choir was specially good, and the orchestra on the whole very efficient.

Gounod's 'Redemption' was performed at a special musical service, held in Westminster Chapel, on the 16th inst., when the band and chorus, numbering 180 executants, were ably conducted by Mrs. Mary Layton, and the rendering of the work gave great satisfaction to a large congregation.

The Misses Anna and Louie Löwe have recently appeared with success at the Tivoli Classical Concerts, Copenhagen. Miss Anna Löwe played Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto with orchestra, and Miss Louie Löwe sang arias by Handel, Meyerbeer, and Gluck.

On the 3rd ult., at the Crystal Palace, a successful concert was given by the three Misses Eyre (daughters of Mr. A. J. Eyre), in which they played respectively the pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, and also sang a Trio.

Mr. Harold Hewitt has been appointed conductor of the Catford Choral Society, in succession to Mr. Alfred Furse, who has done excellent work for the Society in past years.

Erratum.—The statement made in our last issue (p. 670), that the first performance of Bach's cantata 'Wachet auf' to English words took place at the recent Gloucester Festival, would appear to be incorrect. Messrs. Boosey and Co. write that their 'English edition, with Mr. Paul England's words, was performed by the Leeds Philharmonic Society in November, 1898.'

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Brighton.—The Patronal and Dedication Festival at St. Michael's Church, was held on September 29 and the 6th ult. Beethoven's Mass in C and Goss's anthem 'O praise the Lord of Heaven,' were impressively rendered, under the direction of Mr. Edwin Stephenson, the organist and choirmaster. A feature of the services at this church is the singing of the choral eucharist from the high gallery at the west end, where the fine organ, recently built by Messrs. Norman and Beard, is placed.

Chesterfield.—At Holy Trinity Church, Gaul's 'Ruth was given, on September 23, with full band and chorus. The soloists were Mrs. Dewe, Mrs. T. Wardle, Miss Sykes, and Mr. Diggins. The leader of the orchestra was Mr. W. Wrigley. Mr. Walter Coupe ably presided at the organ. The whole performance, conducted by Mr. Sadler, was most successful.

Colwyn Bay.—The first musical festival here was held in the Victoria Pavilion, on September 30 and the 1st ult., when the orchestra and chorus comprised 150 performers, conducted by Mr. H. Verbrugghen. The programme on September 30 included: Prelude in C sharp minor, Rachmaninoff, Tschaïkowsky's Pathetic Symphony, the overtures 'Die Meistersinger,' and 'Tannhäuser,' and the 'Ride of the Valkyries.' On the 1st ult. Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' and selections from Gounod's 'Faust' were given. Miss L. Wormald and Mr. Henry Beaumont were the vocalists, and Mr. D. Lalande played a solo on the cor Anglais. The audiences were unfortunately not as numerous as might have been expected with such excellent programmes.

Exeter.—On the 7th ult., two subscription concerts were given by Mr. S. J. Bishop, the artists engaged being Madame Siviter, Miss Florence Power, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Watkin Mills (vocalists), Mr. Montague Pollack (a young and clever violoncellist), Miss 'Usie Chard (pianist), and Mr. Halliley (accompanist).

Grahamstown.—A lecture on Chopin was given on September 5, by Mr. W. Deane, the cathedral organist, with illustrations by Miss Grace Batchelder (Mrs. W. Deane), pianoforte, and Miss Josephine Scruby, vocalist. The programme included: Waltz in A flat (Op. 34); Mazurkas in E and B flat (Op. 6 and 7); Three Etudes (Op. 25); Scherzo in B flat minor (Op. 31); Songs, 'Remembrance,' 'The Maiden's Wish,' and 'Poland's Dirge'; Five Preludes (Op. 28); Sonata in B flat minor (Op. 35) first and second movements; Nocturne in D flat (Op. 27); and Polonaise in A flat (Op. 53).——A most successful musical evening was held, under the auspices of the Grahamstown Athenæum, at Messrs. Jackson Brothers' Music Saloon, on September 18, when Mr. Theophil Wendt gave a lecture on Scandinavian Music, in which he indicated his thorough knowledge of the subject. One of the features of the evening was the well-known Sonata for Violoncello by Grieg, which Mr. P. Jackson and Mr. Wendt interpreted in a most artistic manner. The programme included Grieg's Variations on a Norwegian Romance and Sinding's Variations for two pianofortes, played by Miss M. Watson and Mr. Wendt. The lecturer was also assisted by Mr. E. A. Abbott, who gave a violin solo, and Miss Scruby, who sang several Norwegian songs in a very pleasing manner.

Kimberley.—The second concert of the Musical Association was held in the Town Hall, on September 3, when the programme included Mendelssohn's 13th Psalm, 'Lord, how long wilt Thou forget me?' Mackenzie's cantata, 'The Bride,' the part-songs, 'Lullaby of life' (Leslie), 'Softly fall the shades of evening' (Hatton), and 'You stole my love' (W. Macfarren). Madame Morton Neville sang the solos in Mendelssohn's Psalm, and Miss Dallas and Mr. W. Burnford were the soloists in Mackenzie's cantata. Mr. Frank Proudman conducted.

Perth (Western Australia).—The Musical Association of Western Australia gave a concert at the Mechanics' Institute, on September 7, when the programme included: Sonata in C major (Op. 3, No. 2), Beethoven (Miss Stafford); Mozart's Trio for Strings, in B flat (Mr. F. L. Parsons, Miss Parsons, and Miss W. E. Parsons); and Prelude in C sharp minor, Rachmaninoff (Mr. R. d'Arcy-Irvine). Mr. W. G. Ackray was the vocalist. A musical evening was also given, on September 9, at the Mechanics' Institute, by Miss Stafford's pupils.

Shrewsbury.—The recent Festival Services at Holy Trinity Church were marked by the performance of a very good selection of music. The anthems included Goss's 'O taste and see' and 'The Glory of the Lord'; Lloyd's 'O sing unto the Lord'; and a new setting of 'Great is the Lord,' by Marchant, which were performed with much taste and showed careful preparation. The voluntaries included an 'Offertoire' and 'March in D,' the compositions of the organist and choirmaster of the church, Mr. Frank E. Brant.

A statue to Sir Arthur Sullivan is, we understand, to be placed in one of the aisles of St. Paul's Cathedral. This is a much more fitting position than the crypt, where the Goss memorial is practically hidden from public view.

The Russian Government has sanctioned the erection of a monument at Warsaw to Chopin. The initiators of the projected monument intend inviting designs for the work from British and foreign sculptors.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Dot.—(1) 'Timbre' is a French word. If it is uttered with a pronunciation after the best Paris models, no offence against good taste will be committed. (2) It would not be an act of impropriety to take one's own accompanist when singing at At homes,' as the home-made accompanist is not always at home in accompanying. (3) A knowledge of harmony is undoubtedly of use to singers, as it adds to the completeness of their artistic equipment. (4) Yes, it is 'better to count time in singing than to watch the accompanist when there are bars for the accompanying instrument alone.' A still better and probably safer method would be for the singer to follow the interludes, &c., played by the accompanist than, like a detective, to watch him. (5) It is almost impossible to determine 'what is the proper time for a teacher of singing to introduce the study of the trill when teaching females.' It would all depend upon the state of the progress of the ladies (if we may use that definition) who are under instruction.

E. F. D.—(1) Schumann's Papillons (Op. 2) have no titles. You are thinking of the Carnival (Op. 9). These are given at the head of each piece in the several editions of this familiar work. It is quite certain, however, that Schumann had some poetic basis in his mind when composing the Papillons. In a letter to Henriette Voight he asks her to read the last chapter of Jean Paul's 'Flegeljahre,' in which he says, 'all is to be found in black and white,' the reference being to these typical Schumanesque pieces. (2) Play the melody note with the first small note in the left hand. (3) Thanks for your suggestion, which we are very glad to receive.

Orchestra.—We do not know of 'a book or books of scales and exercises (third and fourth finger) suitable for small orchestra (consisting of strings, cornet, clarinet, flute, and euphonium).' Such technical equipment is generally acquired by the players individually and not in combination; but whether there is any need for the euphoniumist, for instance, to specially cultivate the suppleness of his third and fourth fingers, unless he be a pianist, is doubtful.

Minor.—Your idea of how Tonic Sol-faists distinguish the major and minor 6ths of the minor key seems rather confused. The minor 6th is called fah and the major 6th is called ba. These names respectively stand for A flat and A natural in the key of C minor. The two notations show exactly the same thing. See Graduated Exercises in Book 91 of Novello's School Songs.

S. M.—(1) There are no turns 'to be found' in Handel's Prelude in F minor (8th Suite); you probably mean trills. For a proper interpretation of all such signs you cannot do better than consult Mr. Dannreuther's 'Musical Ornamentation' Primer. (2) We cannot give the names of teachers.

B. G. P.—The accentuation of the final 'ed' in chanting the Psalms does not come within the rigidity of a rule. There are instances where it sounds pedantic, and, on the other hand, effective. We do not consider the pointing you mention to be at all satisfactory.

Dead March.—There is no 'beautiful trill' in Handel's Dead March in Saul. Perhaps no composition suffers from such vulgarity of treatment and perversion of its majestic simplicity than does this noble composition at the hands of organists.

W. M. P.—Schumann's Opus 87 is a setting, for one voice with pianoforte accompaniment, of Schiller's ballad Der Handschuh (the Glove).

H. B.—A setting for male voices (in harmony and without an alto part) of the Communion Service, by Mr. Hugh Blair, is published by Messrs. Novello.

Labore.—For Exercises in Sight-Singing from the Staff Notation, see Novello's School Songs, Book 91.

Violin.—Harpists are the only ladies who are professionally engaged in London orchestras.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

ADAMS, THOMAS—"Come and worship the Lord." Anthem for Christmastide. (No. 705. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

BARNETT, JOHN FRANCIS—"She wept—the air grew pure." Unaccompanied Quartet or Part-Song, from the Cantata "Paradise and the Peri." 6d.

BELL, W. H.—"A Song in the Morning." For Full Orchestra. 1st Violin, 1s. 6d.; 2nd Violin, 1s. 6d.; Viola, 1s. 6d.; Violoncello, 1s. 6d.; Basso, 1s.

BENNETT, G. J.—"Dresden Amen." Arranged from Wagner's "Parsifal." (No. 577. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) On Card. 1d.

BREWER, A. H.—"Emmaus." A Biblical Scene. 1st Violin, 1s. 6d.; 2nd Violin, 1s. 6d.; Viola, 1s. 6d.; Violoncello, 1s. 6d.; Basso, 1s.

COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S.—"Hiawatha's Vision." Baritone Solo, from "Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha." Full Score, 4s.

—— "Spring had come." Soprano Solo, from "Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha." Full Score, 3s. 6d.

DAVENPORT, NATALIE—"Evening Hymn." Two-part Song. (No. 118. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs for Female Voices.) 2d.

—— "Sister, awake." Two-part Song. (No. 119. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs for Female Voices.) 2d.

DAVIES, FRANCES E.—"Now the day is over." Hymn. 1d.

DEWEY, W. H.—"Unto you is born this day." Full Anthem. For Christmas. 3d.

ELGAR, EDWARD—"Der Traum des Gerontius." The German translation by Julius Buths. Vocal Parts, 2 marks each.

FOSTER, MYLES BIRKET—"Anthems and Anthem Composers." An Essay upon the Development of the Anthem from the time of the Reformation to the end of the Nineteenth Century. With a complete list of Anthems (in Alphabetical order) belonging to each of the four centuries, a Frontispiece, and several rare Portraits, &c. Cloth, 7s. 6d.; half-bound, 12s.

HANDEL, G. F.—"The Messiah." Cornetti (transposed from Trumpet Part). 2s.

HARWOOD, BASIL—"Sing and rejoice." Anthem. For Christmas. (No. 716. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

HOLLINS, ALFRED—"Rejoice in the Lord." Anthem. For Christmas. (No. 721. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

JORDAN, WARWICK—(in C). Communion Service (complete, with Benedictus and Agnus Dei). For Treble Voices, in Two Parts. Arranged from the Four-part Edition. 6d.

KYRIE ELEISON.—Four Settings. By E. J. HOPKINS, C. V. STANFORD, J. STAINER, and E. H. THORNE.—(No. 575. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

LLOYD, C. H.—"Three men of Gotham." Four-part Song. For A.T.B.B. (No. 349. The Orpheus.) 3d.

MACPHERSON, CHARLES.—"In the beginning." Full Anthem for Christmas. (No. 720. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

MOZART.—Mass, No. 1. Viola, 1s. 6d.

NICHOLSON, SYDNEY H.—(in A flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 6d.

PEACE, A. L.—Programme Notes. Consisting of 470 brief Annotations on pieces performed at the Organ Recitals in St. George's Hall, Liverpool. Cloth, 5s.

PITT, PERCY.—"O Nightingale." Five-part Song for S.A.T.B.B. (No. 872. Novello's Part-Song Book). 3d.

RÉNÉ, CHARLES—"O stay with me." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

ROECKEL, J. L.—"Little Snow-White." An Operetta for Young People. Book of Words, 25s. per 100.

ROGERS, HENRY—"Homeward." Breaking-up Song. For Girls. (No. 121. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs.) 3d.

ROGERS, ROLAND—"Art thou weary?" Hymn. 2d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

SAUNDERS, GORDON — Examples in Strict Counterpoint (Old and New). In Two Parts. Part 2: Containing Examples in from 5 to 12 parts. (No. 41A. Novello's Music Primers and Educational Series.) 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 113. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "The Guards of Arcadee." Dwarf Soldiers' March, Solo, and Two-part Chorus, from "Little Snow-White," an Operetta for Young People, by J. L. ROECKEL. "Red Leaves." Arranged for S.S.A. (unaccompanied). Composed by ELIZABETH STIRLING. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol fa Notation.

		A.	B.
No. 456.	Christmas Holiday Song THOMAS FACER	3d.	—
„ 463.	Glory and love to the men of old. Soldiers' Chorus, from "Faust." (Arranged for Unison Singing, or S.S.A.) CHARLES GOUNOD	1½d.	1d.
„ 571.	A Shepherd Lullaby. For S.S.A. (accompaniment ad lib.) .. T. D. EDWARDS	1½d.	1d.
„ 664.	The coming of May. Two-part Song ETHEL M. BOYCE	1½d.	—

SIDEBOTHAM, W. A.—"Let the rafters ring." Breaking-up Song. For Girls. (No. 120. Novello's Octavo Edition of Two-part Songs.) 3d.

SMITH, REV. FRANK—Two Hymn Tunes. 2d.

STAINER, J.—Offertory Hymn ("Blessed and Holy Three"). Words by the Rev. S. CHILDS CLARKE. (No. 569. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d. Words, 2s. 6d. per 100.

SURETTE, THOMAS WHITNEY—"Arietta," from "The Eve of St. Agnes." Arranged for Violin and Pianoforte by the Composer. 2s.

SWEETING, E. T.—"Christ is born: O greet Him." (No. 295. Novello's Christmas Carols.) 1d.

—— "Christian children, hear me." (No. 296. Novello's Christmas Carols.) 1d.

THORNE, R. GOULD—Litany for Children, and Litany of the Church. In Metrical Form. 1d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT:—

No. 1212.	Blessed be Thou, Lord God .. JAMES KENT	1½d.
„ 1214.	Open to me the gates.. .. FRANK ADLAM	1½d.
„ 1215.	The Sacrifice of God .. HERBERT W. WAREING	1d.
„ 1216.	By the waters of Babylon S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR	1½d.
„ 1217.	Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God J. STAINER	1½d.
„ 1218.	Deliver me, O Lord .. .. .. „	1d.
„ 1219.	O Lord, my trust is in Thy mercy .. KING HALL	1d.
„ 1220.	Blessed are the poor in spirit HENRY HILES	1d.
„ 1221.	The Lord is nigh unto them W. H. CUMMINGS	1d.
„ 1222.	When God of old came down from Heaven E. V. HALL	1½d.
„ 1223.	Through the day Thy love has spared us CHARLES L. NAYLOR	1d.
„ 1224.	Bow down Thine ear .. THOMAS ATTWOOD	1d.
„ 1225.	Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace (S.A.T.B.) J. BAPTISTE CALKIN	1d.
„ 1226.	This is the day which the Lord hath made E. V. HALL	1½d.
„ 1228.	Come and Worship the Lord THOMAS ADAMS	1½d.
„ 1229.	Sweet love, if thou wilt gain A. REDGRAVE CRIPPS	1d.
„ 1231.	Te Deum laudamus in E flat H. H. WOODWARD	1½d.
„ 1232.	In the beginning. Christmas Anthem CHARLES MACPHERSON	1½d.
„ 1233.	Sing and rejoice. Christmas Anthem BASIL HARWOOD	1½d.

BOYCE, ETHEL—"The sands of Corriemie." Cantata. For Female Voices. 6d.

BRAUN, CHARLES—"The Country Mouse and the Town Mouse." A short Humorous Cantata. 4d.

ROECKEL, J. L.—"Little Snow-White." An Operetta for Young People. 9d.

WADDINGTON, S. P.—"Whimland." An Operetta for Children. 8d.

VILLAGE ORGANIST. A Series of Pieces for Church and General Use. Edited by J. STAINER and F. CUNNINGHAM WOODS. Books 25-30, 1s. each. For Contents, see page 3 of Cover.

—— Volume 5 (containing Books 25-30). Cloth, 6s.

WARD, JOHN "Hope of my heart." Madrigal. For Five Voices. (No. 874. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

WEST, JOHN E.—"Lord, I have loved the habitation of Thy house." Festival Anthem. 1st Violin, 1s.; 2nd Violin, 1s.; Viola. 1s.; Violoncello, 1s.; Basso, 6d.

WILLIAMS, C. LEE—"Come, Holy Ghost." Introit. Suitable for Coronation, Ordination, and General Use. (No. 717. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 2d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

WILM, NICOLAI VON—"To Harmony" ("An die Harmonie"). Trio. For S.S.A. English and German words. (No. 328. Novello's Octavo Edition of Trios, Quartets, &c.) 3d.

—— "The water-lily" ("Die Wasserrose"). Trio. For S.S.A. English and German words. (No. 329. Novello's Octavo Edition of Trios, Quartets, &c.) 3d.

—— "The bells are ringing" ("Die Glocken läuten"). Trio. For S.S.A. English and German words. (No. 330. Novello's Octavo Edition of Trios, Quartets, &c.) 3d.

WOOD, CHARLES—"I mayn't, or I may." Irish Folk Tune. The words written by ALFRED PERCEVAL GRAVES. For Mezzo-Soprano. 2s.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Dr. Arne (with special Portraits)	713
A Visit to Winchester (Illustrated)	719
Music in Scotland	723
Occasional Notes (Illustrated)	727
The Leeds Festival (Illustrated)	731
Leeds Gleanings (with Portrait of Mr. F. R. Spark, J.P.)	735
Church and Organ Music (with Portrait of Dr. Miller)	736
Reviews	746
The Munich Prinzregenten-Theater	748
Novelties at the Promenade Concerts	749
Brass Bands at the Crystal Palace	750
Mark Hambourg	750
Music in America	750
„ Belfast	751
„ Birmingham	751
„ Bristol	752
„ Dublin	752
„ East Anglia	752
„ Edinburgh	752
„ Glasgow	753
„ Liverpool and District	753
„ Manchester	753
„ Northumberland and Durham	754
„ Nottingham and District	754
„ Sheffield and District	754
„ Yorkshire	754
Foreign Notes	755
Obituary	756
Correspondence	756
University Intelligence	756
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	757
Answers to Correspondents	758
Music published during the last Month	758
Anthem for Christmas, 'Come and worship the Lord.' By Thomas Adams	737
Anthem for Christmas, 'Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous.' By Alfred Hollins.—(Extra Supplement.)

TWO Extra Supplements are given with this number: (1) A Portrait of Dr. Arne, by Zoffany, in the possession of Mr. Alfred H. Littleton; (2) A Christmas Anthem, 'Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous,' by Alfred Hollins.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

Published on the 1st of every Month. Price 1½d. Annual Subscription, including Postage, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW for NOVEMBER contains:—

General Notes.
Dates of Choral Competitions in 1902.
Personal.
The Harmonization of Melodies in Four Vocal Parts—(continued).
Intervals again.
Leicester School Teachers' Meeting.
The New Revised Instructions as to Music.
Theory Questions.
Music at the Highland Mòd in Glasgow.
School Sight-Singing Reader.—Staff Notation.
Is Choral Singing Progressing?
Practical School Music Lecture at Burnley.
School Music in North Central England.
The Bristol School Board and Pupil Teachers.
Truth and Music in Board Schools.
Village School Music Teaching.
Choral Music chosen for next year's Competitions.
Miscellaneous Items.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

The NOVEMBER number contains the following music:—

"Dickery Dock." Song and Three-part Chorus. By Alfred R. Gaul.
"Home, sweet Home." Song, with ad lib. Chorus. S.S.A. By Sir Henry Rowley Bishop.
Junior School Music Course.
Also, Extra Supplement, containing "Good Night." Two-part Canon. By Carl Reinecke. (No. 40. of Novello's School Songs. Price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

MISS AGNES WALKER (Soprano)
(Medalist, Diplomas, Exhibitioner).
147, Brockley Road, Brockley, S.E.

MR. TOM CHILD
(THE YORKSHIRE TENOR).
Over one hundred engagements booked this season.
Permanent address: The Poplars, Calverley, Leeds.

DR. THEO. LIERHAMMER (of Vienna), returned from the Continent—open for Engagements—receives a few SPECIAL PUPILS (Voice Production, Style). Address, 5, Jermyn Street, S.W.; or, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, A.R.C.O. (28), desires an APPOINTMENT. Six years' experience as Church Organist and Director of Music at a school. Good organ essential. Excellent testimonials. Communicant. Good recitalist. Apply, C. E. J., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST (Young) desires APPOINTMENT. Good references. Moderate salary. Address, J. S. Corin, 125, Elms Road, Clapham, S.W.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS REQUIRING PERFECT PRACTICE.—The only perfect practising Reed Organ, having two manuals and pedals (concave) to the specifications of the College of Organists, 16 stops (running through and fixed obliquely at sides); composition pedals; manual, pedal, and octave couplers; hand and foot blowers, with organ bench—by the Pioneer Organ Company. Photo sent. Price £50 net. Carriage paid. J. Bentley, 42, High Street, Crewe.

TUNER WANTED, for the Midlands. One who has just completed his apprenticeship, or a good Improver, and who would be willing to canvass. Age not under 21. Apply, stating salary required, with all other particulars, to N. C., 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, at once, a good TUNER and REPAIRER. One who can play Piano and assist in Music Business. Permanency to suitable man. Action, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ASSISTANT (First-Class). Must have thorough knowledge of Trade, Pianos, and Sheet. Good sight reader. Apply, by letter, stating salary required and experience had. Alfred Phillips, Ltd., 70, High Road, Kilburn, N.W.

YOUNG LADY seeks EMPLOYMENT in Music Trade. Would give short time. Good knowledge of music theoretically. Address, C., Elmdon, near Birmingham.

A NEW BEAUTIFUL SONG

ABIDE WITH ME

Words by Henry Francis Lyte
COMPOSED BY JENNINGS BURNETT
Highly appreciated by Their Majesties King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, Madame Patti, and Madame Albani.

Vide Press: "For many decades the eloquent prayer 'Abide with me' has been sung to various settings, but never to any more commensurate with the spirit of the appeal than that which Mr. Burnett's talent has produced. . . .
. . . A singularly splendid effort, containing a noble pathos, well sustained throughout, the bold enharmonic change, to, 'I fear no foe,' also final development to, 'Heaven's morning breaks,' are scholarly written and well worthy of note."—Daily Times.

Price Two Shillings net.

London: Weekes and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street.
Chicago, U.S.A.: Clayton F. Summy Co., 220, Wabash Avenue.

Just Published.

LITTLE SNOW-WHITE

AN OPERETTA FOR YOUNG PEOPLE
WORDS BY
SHAPCOTT WENSLEY
MUSIC BY
J. L. ROECKEL.

Vocal Score (Staff and Tonic Sol-fa combined), price Two Shillings.
Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Book of Words, 25s. per 100.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Just Published.

WHIMLAND

AN OPERETTA FOR CHILDREN
THE WORDS WRITTEN BY
R. G. WADDINGTON
THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
S. P. WADDINGTON.

Vocal Score (Staff and Tonic Sol-fa combined) Price Two Shillings.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price 8d.
Book of Words, price 25s per 100.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

A SERIES OF ORGAN PIECES

BY
JOHN E. CAMPBELL, A.R.C.O.

Price 4s. net, complete.

Unusual rhythms and strikingly fresh progressions are met with in abundance in these seven characteristic pieces. The pieces are: Prelude, "A Little Fancy," Interlude, Finale, Fantasia, Berceuse, and Impromptu.

London: C. Vincent, 9, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE.—PIPE ORGAN, by Cramer. Two manuals, 1½ octave pedals, 5 speaking stops, 2 couplers. In good condition. Price £70, or reasonable offer. M., 503, Fulham Road, S.W.

TWO-MANUAL PIPE ORGAN. 10 ft. high, 18 stops. Really good instrument; splendid tone. Manuals, CC to A; pedals, CCC to F. To effect an early sale, 150 guineas would be accepted. Payment arranged if desired. Exceptional value. W. Stoneham, 52, Hazlewood Crescent, Westbourne Park Station, London. Appointments please; evenings preferred.

ALFRED MONK, Organ Builder.—ORGANS for SALE or HIRE, or payable in five years. Six new Organs ready for delivery for £150, £200, £240, £255, £265, £600; 3 Second-hand, £100, £165, £200. Price lists, with specifications to build from £100 to £2,000. Alterations, repairs, tunings. 556, Holloway Road, London.

PIANOFORTE, MUSIC and SMALL GOODS BUSINESS for SALE, in good market town. Extensive tuning and teaching connection. Low rent. Good going concern. Capital required about £500, which can be made less. Brantom, 24, High Street, Witney, Oxon.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 706.—Vol. 42. DECEMBER 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, ½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,
ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

THURSDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 5, AT 8.

COLERIDGE-TAYLOR'S

"HIAWATHA"

Artists:
MISS ELLA RUSSELL.
MR. WILLIAM GREEN.
MR. ANDREW BLACK.

BAND AND CHORUS, ONE THOUSAND.

Organist: MR. H. L. BALFOUR.

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH"

(With Handel's Original Accompaniments)
ON WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 1, 1902, AT 8.

Artists:
MADAME ALBANI.
MISS MARIE BREMA.
MR. CHARLES SAUNDERS.
MR. WATKIN MILLS.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony, Reserved, 5s. Unreserved, 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,
TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus.D., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

LENT TERM begins Thursday, January 9. Entrance Examination therefor, Monday, January 6, at 10.
THALBERG SCHOLARSHIP for Female Pianists. Last day for entry, Tuesday, December 3.
FORTNIGHTLY CONCERT, Saturday, December 7, at 8.
Matinee performance by members of the Dramatic Class, at Wyndham's Theatre, on Wednesday, December 11, by kind permission of C. Wyndham, Esq.
Orchestral Concert at Queen's Hall, Thursday, December 12, at 3.
Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Christmas F.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 6, 1902. The solo-playing tests are: Passacaglia in C minor, Bach (Vol. I., Peters' ed.; Book X., Novello & Co.: Vol. V., Augener & Co.). Sonata No. 2, in G minor, Op. 42, Merkel (Novello & Co., Augener & Co.). Concert Fantasia in D minor, R. P. Stewart (Novello & Co.).
The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 13.
All Candidates, including those claiming exemption from fee, must send in their names for FELLOWSHIP by Dec. 20, 1901, for ASSOCIATESHIP by Dec. 27. In the case of New Members, pro- forms, if y filled up, must be sent in before Dec. 14. No names after the above dates.
The Book of Examination Papers may be obtained by Members, post-free 5d.
The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.
Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.
The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hanover Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

MR. ROBERT
NEWMAN'S CONCERTS
AT QUEEN'S HALL
ROYAL ALBERT HALL
AND
CRYSTAL PALACE.

DECEMBER, 1901.

QUEEN'S HALL.

Dec. 4 & 11.—ORGAN RECITALS by Mr. E. H. LEMARE, at 3.30.
" 7.—SYMPHONY CONCERT (Conductor: Mr. Henry J. Wood) at 3. Vocalist: Madame Kirkby Lunn. Solo Pianoforte: Signor Busoni.
" 10.—SIGNOR BUSONI'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL, at 3.
" 12.—"ELIJAH" (Conductor: Mr. Henry J. Wood) at 8. Madame Lillian Blauvelt, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, Mr. Ffrangçon-Davies. The Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society.
" 21.—Mr. MARK HAMBOURG'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL, at 3.
" 25.—CHRISTMAS DAY CONCERT, at 3.30. Newman's Queen's Hall Orchestra. Conductor: Mr. Henry J. Wood.
" 26 to Feb. 1.—PROMENADE CONCERTS, nightly, at 8. Newman's Queen's Hall Orchestra. Conductor: Mr. Henry J. Wood.
Every Sunday Afternoon at 3.30, throughout the Season.—SUNDAY CONCERT SOCIETY'S CONCERTS. Newman's Queen's Hall Orchestra. Conductor: Mr. Henry J. Wood.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Dec. 7.—NEWMAN'S POPULAR CONCERT, at 3.
" 14.—SYMPHONY CONCERT by Newman's Festival Orchestra of 200. Conductor: Mr. Henry J. Wood. Vocalists: Madame Kirkby Lunn and Mr. Ffrangçon-Davies.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

Dec. 7 & 14.—CONCERTS, at 3.30.

QUEEN'S (SMALL) HALL.

Daily at 3, also every Thursday and Saturday at 8.30.—Mr. ALBERT CHEVALIER'S RECITALS. Miss Marie Leyton (Serpentine Dances). Mr. Alfred H. West (Solo Pianoforte). Animated Pictures (from the Polytechnic).

PARTICULARS OF THE ABOVE CONCERTS MAY BE OBTAINED AT
MR. ROBERT
NEWMAN'S BOX OFFICE,
QUEEN'S HALL, LANGHAM PLACE, W.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March (testamur only) and September.

For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Managed by the Corporation of the City of London.

Principal: William H. Cummings, Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A., Hon. R.A.M.

Pupils can enter at any time.

Individual tuition by eminent teachers at moderate fees. Within three minutes of Ludgate Hill, Fleet Street, and Blackfriars Station (District Railway).

110 Prizes, Medals, and Scholarships,

Giving free and assisted tuition, competed for annually. Subjects taught: Piano, Singing, Organ, Harmony, all Orchestral and Solo Instruments, Stage Training in Elocution, Gesture, Fencing, and Opera. Lady superintendent has charge of all ladies attending the school. Prospectus and form of entry free on application to H. Saxe Wyndham, Secretary, Victoria Embankment, E.C.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. Granville Bantock.

SESSION 1901-02.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 16 to December 21), Winter Term (January 20 to April 5), Summer Term (April 7 to June 21). Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from

ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.

President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in April and July, 1902, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.

Annual Banquet and Conference, January 27, 1902.

Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d., Life, £5 5s.

The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.

Free register for Organists requiring appointments.

For further particulars, apply to

Dr. LEWIS, 42, Berners Street, London, W.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.G., K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.

Provincial Examinations in all subjects, for Certificates and Diplomas, A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., throughout the year.

Metropolitan Examination in April, 1902.

Local Theoretical Examinations at all Centres in April and July, 1902.

Holder of the Victoria College Vocal Scholarship, 1901: Miss Lottie L. Wakelin, L.R.A.M.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC, Ltd.

Patrons: The Duchess of Marlborough, Madame Patti, &c.

Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L.

Exams., January. Local (four grades). Diplomas (A.N.C.M., L.N.C.M., F.N.C.M.) and Medals.

Music published practically free through exchanges.

Members wanted; great advantages.

W. J. MOSS, Sec., 192, Sutherland Avenue, Maida Vale, W.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC, Ltd.

Warden: Professor ALEXANDER PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.

Musical Examinations held in all towns, November and December.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals, also Prizes, will be awarded.

Diplomas—Associate, Licentiate, and Fellow granted to Teachers, Organists, Bandmasters, Solo Performers, Conductors, &c.

Apply, Sec., 60, Berners St., London; or, 5, Hardman St., L'pool.

THE BACH CHOIR.

Patron:
His Majesty the King.

Musical Director:
Prof. C. Villiers Stanford, M.A., Mus.D., D.C.L.

SEASON 1901-2.

The enlargement of this Society is being continued, and there are VACANCIES in the Choir for 100 capable SINGERS, especially Tenors and Basses.

Rehearsals are held on Tuesday evenings at 8.30 p.m., in the Lecture Theatre, Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington, S.W.

An unaccompanied Concert will be given in St. James's Hall, on Wednesday, March 12, 1902. Ladies and gentlemen wishing to join are requested to communicate with the Secretary, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

ST. ANNE'S, Soho.—BACH'S CHRISTMAS ORATORIO, Fridays, Dec. 6, 13, 20, 27, and Jan. 3, 10, 17, at 8 p.m. Full Orchestra and Organ. Tickets required for Body of Church and W. Gallery, can be obtained, gratis, by sending stamped and addressed envelope to Rector, 28, Soho Square. N. and S. Galleries, without ticket, at 7.30.

WALTHAMSTOW PUBLIC BATHS.—Large HALL to LET, holding 1,600 persons, and licensed for Music and Dancing. Apply for terms, Clerk of the Council, Town Hall, Walthamstow.

REVISED EDITION

INCLUDING THE NEW TITLE OF THE

PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES

AND CONTAINING

THE NEW FORMS OF AN ACCESSION SERVICE FOR JANUARY 22ND.

THE CATHEDRAL PRAYER BOOK

BEING THE

BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER

WITH THE MUSIC NECESSARY FOR THE USE OF CHOIRS

TOGETHER WITH THE

CANTICLES AND PSALTER

POINTED FOR CHANTING

EDITED BY

SIR JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.,

AND

WILLIAM RUSSELL, M.A., Mus. Bac., Oxon.

EDITIONS.	s.	d.
No. 1. Demy 8vo, 620 pp. large type. With Canticles and Psalter pointed for chanting. Cloth bevelled, red edges	6	0
Red basil, red edges	8	0
Rutland Morocco. India Paper	11	0
Turkey Morocco. „ „	15	0
Russia Leather. „ „	16	6
No. 2. Demy 8vo, 592 pp., large type. With Canticles and Psalter pointed, set to appropriate Chants (Cathedral Psalter Chants). Cloth bevelled, red edges	6	0
Red basil, red edges	8	0
Rutland Morocco. India Paper	11	0
Turkey Morocco. „ „	15	0
Russia Leather. „ „	16	6
No. 3. Imperial 32mo, 692 pp., Pocket Edition. With Canticles and Psalter pointed for chanting. Cloth bevelled, red edges	3	6
Red basil, red edges	5	0
Rutland Morocco. India Paper	7	0
Turkey Morocco. „ „	9	0
Russia Leather. „ „	10	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than if ordered at one time, at a discount of 20 per cent.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
Begs to announce her CHANGE OF ADDRESS to 20, Priory Court Mansions, West Hampstead, N.W.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano Vocalist)
And Teacher of Singing.
444, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS ANNIE DAYMOND, A.R.A.M. (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Peverey, New Clive Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MRS. S. FORD (Soprano)
For Oratorio or Miscellaneous Concerts.
For terms, address, Avondale, Park Road E., Wolverhampton.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.
Address, Rawtenstall, near Manchester.

MADAME HURLE-HOBBS (Mezzo-Soprano)
Oratorios and Ballad Concerts.
37, Briar Walk, Upper Edmonton, London, N.

MASTER ARTHUR SMITH
(Prize-Boy Soprano Vocalist)
Winner of Royal National Eisteddfod, 1900, & numerous other Prizes.

MR. J. H. WILLIAMS
The popular Prize-Tenor of the North of England and Scottish Concerts. Terms, &c., 38, St. Domingo Grove, Liverpool.

MISS ETTIE SPICE (Soprano)
MISS EMILY TANNER (Contralto)
Will sing at Concerts, At Homes, &c., for expense fees. Duets a specialty. 19, Tay Bridge Road, Clapham Common, S.W.

MISS AGNES WALKER (Soprano)
(Medalist, Diploma, and Exhibitioner).
147, Brockley Road, Brockley, S.E.

MISS CONSTANCE YORKE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Ballads, At Homes, &c.
For terms, apply, Sunnyside, Sycamore Rd., Smethwick, Birmingham.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MADAME FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto)
MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor)
New Haslemere, Woodside Park Road, North Finchley, London, N.

MISS KATE GREGORY
(The new Yorkshire Contralto)
Professional Pupil of Albert Jowett, Esq., Yorkshire Training College of Music, Leeds.
Oratorios and Ballad Concerts.
Terms, apply, Doncaster.

MADAME ANNIE GREW (Contralto, Medalist)
Waverley Road, Bradford.

MISS GERTRUDE HEY (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Lawn Side, Clarendon Road, Whalley Range, Manchester.

MISS MILLIE OLIVER (Contralto)
Concerts, Oratorios, At Homes, &c.
A few vacant dates for expenses.
Address, 8, Hanover Street, West Hartlepool.

MISS LOTTIE WAKELIN, L.R.A.M. (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
15, First Avenue, Manor Park, Essex.

MISS ALICE WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto)
Address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MR. FOLEY BANKS, A.L.A.M. (Tenor)
(Gold Medalist, L.A.M.)
Concerts, &c. 127, Upton Park Road, Forest Gate, E.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.)
Address, 21, Mysore Road, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. J. G. BLANCHARD
(Principal Tenor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, 41, Savernake Road, N.W.

MR. GEO. H. PERRINS (Tenor)
The Cathedral, Hereford.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address as above.

MR. HENRY PLEVY (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 30, Hamilton Gardens, N.W.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. WILLIAM A. SHEEN
(Principal Tenor, The City Temple).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 116, High Street, Kingsland, N.E.

MR. BURFORD THORP (Tenor)
Of St. James's and Queen's Halls; Soloist of St. Alban's, Teddington.
Address, 13, Greville Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MR. WILLIAM D. VINCENT (Tenor)
Late of Farm Street Choir. Ballads, Sunday Concerts.
Address, 167, Tachbrook Street, Belgrave Road, S.W.

MR. CHARLES ACKERMAN (Baritone)
H.M. Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace,
Having severed his connection with the Westminster Singers, is able to accept engagements for Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., after December 10. Concert or Glee Party provided.
Address, 139, Cambridge Street, London, S.W.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. SAMUEL JACQUES (Baritone).
"Sings in an excellent manner."—Derby Mercury.
Albert House, Nottingham Road, Somercotes, Derbyshire.

MR. and MRS. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Baritone, Soprano, and Elocutionists).
Concerts, Lyrical Recitals. Pupils (Resident, &c.). Sharon, Acton, W.

MR. EATON COOTER (Basso-Cantante), A.R.C.M.
St. George's and H.M. Private Chapels, Windsor Castle.
Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. HARRY BERREY (Oratorio and Opera)
"Splendid receptions in all parts of country." St. Helens, nr. L'pool.

MR. ARTHUR BASSON (Violinist)
For Concerts, &c., Solo or Orchestral; also Lessons.
Address, 35, Swaffield Road, Wandsworth, S.W.

MISS MARY OULD, L.R.A.M. (Solo Violinist)
For Concerts, At Homes, Lessons, &c.
Oakdene, Kilburn Priory, Maida Vale, W.

MR. JAMES RICHARDSON (Violoncellist)
Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Terms and Press notices, care of Forsyth Bros., Ltd., Manchester.

MR. VICTOR WHEELER (Accompanist)
Concerts, Dinners, At Homes, &c.
86, Mercers' Road, Tufnell Park, N.

MR. R. A. ELLIS (Tympanist)
Brook Lynn, Chester.

B. E. KENT (Lyric Authoress).
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MISS CHARLOTTE DICKENS (Soprano), (R.A.M., Med., &c.). Concerts, At Homes, Oratorio, Opera, Lessons. 10, Ashchurch Park Villas, Ravenscourt Park, W.
"Interpreted the music with skill and confidence."—Daily Telegraph.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON and Mr. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE beg to announce that their Canadian tour being ended, they have now returned to town for the season. The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

MISS LUCIE JOHNSTONE has pleasure in intimating her NEW ADDRESS, Glenarum Lodge, Rosendale Road, West Dulwich, S.E.; also care of N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork St., W. Telegrams: "Doxologies, London."

MR. WHITNEY TEW, 43, Lancaster Road, N.W. (in America November and December), returns to England January 10, for extended Provincial Tour. Engaged to sing the "Messiah" by the Händel and Haydn Society of Boston, Dec. 22, and for the Brooklyn Oratorio Society, Dec. 19; besides many other Oratorio and Recital bookings. Address, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, Burlington Gardens, W.

MISS NORA PITCAIRN, R.A.M., 16, Gunterstone Road, West Kensington. Accompanist; Sight-reader; Vocal Coach. Highest references.

MR. RICHARD ECKHOLD (Late Conductor Royal Carl Rosa Opera Co.), is now open for ENGAGEMENTS. Also Lessons on Pianoforte or Violin. Highest references. Address, 69, Elgin Avenue, Maida Vale, N.W.

MADAME MARY BEARE
(SOPRANO)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 41, Mitcham Lane, Streatham, S.W.

MADAME LOUISE BURNS
(SOPRANO).
Silver Medal, R.A.M.
Erin, Riffel Road, Willesden Green, N.W.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MISS AMY HARDING
(SOPRANO)
(Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, &c., Concerts).
For photo, testimonials, and critiques, 41, Palace Sq., Norwood, S.E.

MISS HONEYBONE
(SOPRANO).
"Miss Honeybone is an artist who possesses a voice of exceptional range. Her rendering of song, 'O divine Redeemer' (Gounod), was a most artistic effort."
41, Hampden Street, Nottingham.

MISS ESTELLA LINDEN
(YORKSHIRE SOPRANO)
This Season's engagements include:

Flying Dutchman	Sheffield Musical Union.
Judas Maccabæus	Crystal Palace.
Elijah	Stafford Choral Society.
God, Thou art great	Brixton Oratorio Society.
Daisy Chain	Pershore.
Creation. Last Judgment ..	St. Saviour's Cathedral, Southwark.
Hear my Prayer	Beckenham.
Acis & Galatea. May Queen	Hull Vocal Union.
Hymn of Praise	Beckenham, Kettering Choral Society.

Address, 35, Lancaster Road, South Hampstead, N.W.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO),
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MISS KATHERINE NASH
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A.
Address, 10, Mount Pleasant Mansions, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MISS BEATRICE PALLISTER
(SOPRANO)
(Pupil of Henry Blower, Esq.)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts.

"Creation," Albert Hall.—"Considerable interest was centred on the appearance of Miss Pallister, a Doncaster vocalist of rising fame. Her voice is a bright, full soprano of extensive compass, and in the upper register, of sweet and almost exceptional quality."—Sheffield Daily Telegraph.

"Ancient Mariner" and "Lobgesang."—"Miss Pallister made a decidedly favourable impression. She has a voice of considerable power and rare purity of tone, while her notes in the higher register are remarkably clear and taken with wonderful ease. Added to this, also, is a refreshingly distinct articulation, which enables the audience to follow her clearly."—West Yorkshire Pioneer.

"Messiah."—"Miss B. Pallister, a promising and cultivated vocalist, received an ovation for her fine rendering of "Rejoice greatly."—Yorkshire Post.

Address: Broxholme Lane, Doncaster.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
39, Blandford Square, N.W.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE
(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, Sheffield.
Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 13, Garway Road, Bayswater, W.

MISS BERYL CLIVE
(CONTRALTO)
14, Gladsmuir Road, Whitehall Park, N.

MISS KATHERINE HAWKINS
(CONTRALTO), L.R.A.M.
For Oratorios, Ballad and Chamber Concerts.
Bryn-tirion, Sutton Court Road, Sutton, Surrey.

MISS LOTTIE SWEENEY
(I.S.M., CONTRALTO).
For Oratorios, Ballad and Chamber Concerts.
Address, Miss Sweeney, Vocalist, Armley, Leeds.

MR. CHAS. M. CHILD
(PRINCIPAL TENOR, Ch. Ch. Cath., Oxford).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.

MR. TOM CHILD
(THE YORKSHIRE TENOR).
Winner of the 100 Guineas Prize, London.
Permanent address: The Poplars, Calverley, Leeds.

MR. JOHN COATES
(THE NEW TENOR).

"Samson and Delilah."—"The interpretation of the part was entrusted to Mr. John Coates, whom we had occasion more than once to praise in our notice of the Leeds Festival. Last night, Mr. Coates surpassed anything he did at Leeds, and may be said to have made his mark in Birmingham—a real, robust tenor, . . . Mr. Coates was absolutely great."—Birmingham Daily Post, Oct. 25.

"Mr. John Coates, who has rapidly come to the front as a dramatic tenor, and who, at the recent Leeds Festival, added to his previous distinction, was again in splendid form."—Birmingham Gazette, Oct. 25.

"Mr. John Coates achieved a triumph. His singing was most artistic and cultured, nor did he spare his voice, which in timbre is sweet and melodious."—Birmingham Mail, Oct. 25.

Richter Concert.—"The vocalist of the evening was Mr. John Coates, who more than confirmed the high expectations formed of him. He has a tenor voice of exceptional power and quality, and those who heard him last night will not be surprised to hear that he is filling, in a large measure, the sphere so honourably occupied for many years by Mr. Edward Lloyd. He sang 'Lohengrin's Narration' with rare dramatic power and finish, but he was even more enjoyed in Gounod's beautiful recit. and air, 'Lend me your aid.' It was at once a powerful, finished, and artistic rendering, and Mr. Coates thoroughly deserved the repeated calls he received. It is to be hoped we shall soon have the pleasure of hearing him again."—Burnley Gazette, Oct 30.

"Mr. John Coates, the vocalist, was the chief singer at the Leeds Festival a fortnight ago, and earned a reputation which made us expect a good deal last evening. He has a good presence and a strong voice—he is about the most powerful tenor we have heard; yet the voice is rich and well modulated, and the heartiness of his reception testified to the fact that he had at once gained friends in the audience. He had repeatedly to acknowledge the plaudits after his splendid rendering of 'Lohengrin's Narration' and 'Lend me your aid.' A most successful and elevating concert—the evening will remain long in the memory of those who were privileged to hear both orchestra and vocalist."—Burnley Express, Oct. 30.

9, Hyde Park Mansions, N.W.

MR. ALBERT DERRICK
(TENOR)
(Pupil of Mr. Albert Visetti, Royal College of Music).
For Oratorio, Concerts, &c.
Address, 448, Harrow Road, W.

MR. TREVOR EVANS
(TENOR. HIGHLY COMPLIMENTED BY MADAME PATTI).
"I am delighted with his voice, which I consider charming."—Adelina Patti.
Booking for all the Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, London, N.W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 27, Warwick Road, Ealing, W.

MR. JAMES LEYLAND
(TENOR).
On tour October 14 to November 23 inclusive, and December 2 to the 9th inclusive. For vacant dates apply, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. FRED NORCUP
(TENOR, Vicar-Choral of Westminster Abbey).
At liberty for Oratorio and Ballad Concerts.
Address, 139, Cambridge Street, London, S.W.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. DAN BILLINGTON
THE CELEBRATED YORKSHIRE BARITONE (Vide Press)
(Soloist of the Leeds Festivals, Sir Chas. Hallé's and the Principal Provincial Concerts).
34, Hanover Square, Leeds.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE).
Mr. Henry J. Wood (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.
"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.
"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.
"Henry J. Wood."
AND
MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO).
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. JOHN BROWNING
(BARITONE),
SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVALS, 1898 and 1901.
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal, Leeds Parish Church, &c.
"Elijah."—"The most prominently artistic feature of the performance was the singing of the words and music of the Prophet by Mr. John Browning. Gifted with a magnificent voice of musical sturdiness, cultivated to the highest degree of flexible adaptability . . . he invested the part with a lofty dignity, a dramatic depth and vividness, and a genuine pathos which brought Elijah before the mind's eye with ideal prominence in all his grand impressiveness and power. . . . Mr. Browning's singing of the words and music—each of which had equal attention—was a great triumph of musical and dramatic art."—Huddersfield Examiner, October 29, 1901.
Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(BARITONE)
(Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts).
Birmingham.—"An artistic début was made by Mr. Henry Dobson, baritone, whose method is distinctly scholarly in every way."—Birmingham Daily Mail, October 7, 1901.
". . . His voice is of a high timbre and well trained, his excellent phrasing being a feature of his singing."—Birmingham Daily Post, October 7, 1901.
"The vocal contributions were of a high standard of excellence, and Mr. Henry Dobson, baritone, is entitled to much distinction for his artistic efforts."—Birmingham Daily Gazette, October 7, 1901.
7, Station Terrace, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR.
RANDALL HARGREAVES
36, Trebovir Road, Earl's Court, S.W.
"A voice of considerable beauty."—Times.
"A fine baritone voice."—Standard.

MR. CHARLES TREE.
Among this season's Engagements are—
"Elijah"—London (twice).
"Elijah"—Liverpool and Birmingham Choral Societies.
"Elijah"—Stafford, Bath, Peterhead, &c.
"Golden Legend"—Sheffield, Accrington, Dunfermline, &c.
"Hiawatha"—Glasgow, Halifax, Cowes, &c.
"Messiah"—London, Manchester, Kilmarnock, &c.
"Samson and Delilah"—Leeds Choral. "St. Paul"—Hartlepool.
"Israel in Egypt"—Manchester. "Ancient Mariner"—Warrington.
"Golden Legend," Sheffield Musical Union, Nov. 19, 1901.—"Mr. Tree rose fully to all the possibilities of his part. It was intensely dramatic, but did not overrun the limit which art prescribes. The scenes with Prince Henry, and at Salerno were finely sustained, and the climax highly wrought.—Independent.
Other works, &c., at Edinburgh, Middlesbrough, Carlisle, Neath, Southsea, Finsbury, Colne, &c.
Address, 23, Clifton Road, Maida Vale, London, W.

MR. ARTHUR WALENN
(BARITONE)
Of the Albert Hall, Queen's Hall, St. James's Hall Popular Concerts, Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts, Walenn Chamber Concerts, &c.
20, Ashworth Mansions, Elgin Avenue, London, W.

MR. EDWARD ILES
(BARITONE).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Song Recitals, &c.

THE TIMES.

The first of two vocal recitals was given in Steinway Hall on Thursday night by Mr. Edward Iles, who has lately made great progress in his art. The voice, a sympathetic baritone of considerable power, has gained many of the qualities which make for effect; and as the singer is a finished musician, his performance of songs of different styles is always pleasant to listen to. Beethoven's "Kuss," Schumann's "Geständniss," Schubert's beautiful "Nacht und Träume," and "Der Einsame" are instances of Mr. Iles's wide knowledge of the classics, and his inclusion of songs by Max Bruch, Eugen d'Albert, Richard Strauss, and Widor, proves him an artist of broad sympathies. He was at his best in Parry's splendidly vigorous Anacreontic "Fill me, boy, as deep a draught" and Stanford's arrangement of "Eva Toole"; and three musicianly songs of his own composition were also given with much success. The first is a charmingly simple and melodious ballad, "As I walked forth," and in the third, "Little soul of disdain," any intelligent singer can hardly fail to make an effect. Miss White's "Montrose's Love Song" ended the recital, and was well sung, although rather faster than usual.

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

A vocal recital was given at St. James's Hall yesterday afternoon by Mr. Edward Iles, a cultivated artist, who, electing to entertain his audience single-handed, succeeded in winning their good opinion and applause. . . . Mr. Iles was entitled to compliment upon his selection of songs and the unfailing earnestness and good taste that characterised his rendering of the various pieces.

STANDARD.

A very interesting and instructive programme was presented by Mr. Edward Iles at his recital in St. James's Hall yesterday afternoon, and it was carried out in a thoroughly artistic manner. Mr. Iles's voice is a baritone, perfectly pure in quality, and entirely under control.

GLOBE.

He sings with great taste and good expression, and is evidently a thorough artist.

DAILY EXPRESS.

The result of his culture and earnestness is very pleasing, and at his recital, yesterday afternoon, at St. James's Hall, he presented a varied and interesting programme that cannot fail to enhance his reputation.

DAILY GRAPHIC.

The song recitals given by Mr. Edward Iles are always interesting, and that which took place at St. James's Hall yesterday afternoon proved no exception to the rule. Mr. Iles is a thoroughly sound musician, and his singing is exceedingly cultivated and refined.

THE STAGE.

In intention and earnestness, Mr. Edward Iles, whose song recital on Friday last must be reckoned among the pleasant musical events, is a great artist.

MUSICAL NEWS.

A vocalist who has not taken long to achieve for himself a high reputation as a singer of taste and culture.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

Mr. Iles has a voice of sympathetic quality, and he sings with artistic taste and feeling. The programme opened with a group of songs from which we would single out Scarlatti's "La Violette," fresh and graceful as the flower which forms the subject of the poem, and Salvator Rosa's well-known "Star Vicino," both daintily rendered.

LONDON MUSICAL COURIER.

Mr. Edward Iles, in an admirably arranged programme, displayed qualities of voice and style that entitle him to serious consideration.

COURT CIRCULAR.

It is some time since so altogether a pleasing singer as Mr. Edward Iles has made his appearance on the concert platform. His style is eminently good, and his voice beautiful.

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN.

The singer exhibited a fine baritone voice, musical intelligence, and lyrical fervour.

BIRMINGHAM POST.

Mr. Iles has a most sympathetic baritone voice, and sings charmingly.

CAMBRIDGE TIMES.

Mr. Iles has a fine baritone voice; its compass, and his control of it, being little short of marvellous.

Address, 137, King Henry's Road, N.W.

MR. J. CAMPBELL McINNES
(BARITONE).
Westmoreland Musical Festival, 1901.
"Mr. J. Campbell McInnes, who gave a singularly poetical and beautiful interpretation of the music assigned to Hiawatha."—The Times.
"Nothing was better in this evening's performance than the dirge-like section, 'Wahonomin, would that I had perished for you,' set for baritone soloist and accompanying chorus. The baritone soloist was Mr. J. Campbell McInnes, who was in excellent voice."—Manchester Guardian.
"The best of the solos was 'Hiawatha's Vision,' sung with great expression and power by Mr. McInnes."—Manchester Guardian.
"Mr. J. Campbell McInnes is the best baritone we have heard this season. We were deeply impressed by the masterly way and dramatic expression with which he sang two of Brahms's best compositions."—Manchester Evening News.
Blackpool Choral Society.
"Samson."—"Mr. J. Campbell McInnes, the baritone, carried off premier honours. He it was who first quickened the pulse of the performance by his impassioned delivery of the altercation with Samson, which reached a sublime climax in 'Honour and Arms.' At a later stage, his conception of the part of Manoah was a triumph, and we never before heard so much pathos put into a male voice."—Blackpool Times.
For terms and vacant dates.
Address, 190c, New King's Road, London, S.W.

MR. EDGAR ARCHER
(PRINCIPAL BASS of the City Temple, of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, Langdale, Rutland Park, Willesden Green, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR BARLOW
(BASS).
Address, 6, Beech Mansions, West Hampstead, N.W.
Telegrams: "Arthanita, London."

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT
Begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to 105, Brondesbury Villas, London, N.W.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN
(BASS),
Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music, of the Gloucester and Cheltenham Festivals, &c.
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)
(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

MR. HERBERT WALENN
(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MISS ELLEN CHILDS
(CHROMATIC HARPIST)
Having studied in Paris under the direction of the Inventor, Miss Childs is prepared to give LESSONS on the NEW CHROMATIC HARP (without pedals). For terms, apply, 170, Belsize Road, N.W.; or, care of Messrs. Pleyell Wolff, Lyon and Co., 79-80, Baker Street, Portman Square, W.

MISS GERTRUDE WESLEY
(SOLO HARPIST AND CONTRALTO),
Doncaster.

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.
MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Rd., New Cross, S.E.

THE HERBERT SIMMONS CONCERT PARTY.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.
MISS CLARIBEL HYDE (Soprano),
Royal Albert Hall and St. James's Hall Concerts.
MR. BERTRAM PEARCE (Tenor),
St. James's Hall Concerts, &c.
MISS HETTY KIMBELL (Contralto),
Late Soloist, American Church, Nice.
MR. HERBERT SIMMONS (Bass),
Queen's Hall, St. James's Hall, and Crystal Palace Concerts, &c.
Address, 38, Vanbrugh Park, Blackheath, S.E.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.
SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. James Bates, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.
President, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
Principal, MR. JAMES BATES.
Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.
Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.
A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.
MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities. Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, 289, High Road, Lee, S.E.

MR. A. CHATFIELD, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS personally or by post. Schools attended. Engagements accepted for Organ Recitals and Accompanist. Address, 4, Granville Road, North Finchley, N., and at 33, Rathbone Place, W.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppel St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

A LATE PUPIL of Sir F. Bridge gives LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT, postal or personal. Terms on application to Miss Beatrice Earp, 307, Upland Road, Dulwich Park, S.E.

HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT.—LESSONS by CORRESPONDENCE, by an Associate of Music, Trinity College, London. Terms: Twelve Lessons for 10s.; or, 1s. per Lesson. Address, F. A., care of Davies and Co., Advertising Agents, 23, Finch Lane, Cornhill, E.C.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus.Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. ATHELSTAN G. IGGULDEN, Mus. Doc. (Dunelm). F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS and prepares for all MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. The Dingle, Reigate, Surrey.

OLIVER IVE, Mus. Bac., Oxon.—LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., by correspondence or otherwise. Candidates prepared for University and other Exams., as well as for Preliminary Arts. Moderate terms. Address, 24, Carmalt Gardens, Putney, S.W.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

FLETCHER MUSIC METHOD.

SIMPLEX AND KINDERGARTEN.

A SYSTEM giving a FUNDAMENTAL, SYSTEMATIC, and LOGICAL MUSICAL EDUCATION to CHILDREN which, by the use of tangible materials, does away with the drudgery usually connected with the study of Music. Endorsed by the leading Musicians of England, such as Dr. Wm. Cummings, Mr. Franklin Taylor, Signor Garcia, Mr. Macdonald Smith, and others.

Over 300 Teachers have studied this method within the past three years in America, and it has been introduced into twenty-six of the leading American Conservatoires. The demand for Teachers is steadily increasing, and has been such in England as to necessitate the originator's visit to London for a Normal Class. This Class will open directly after Christmas.

FOR FURTHER PARTICULARS, APPLY TO

EVELYN A. FLETCHER-COPP,

Care of Messrs. John Broadwood and Sons, Ltd., 33, Great Pulteney Street, London.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1901, 1900, and all previous years; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1900 and 1901; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music, Composition, and Pianoforte Teaching); CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that TWENTY-ONE of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1901. Hazelwood, Dollis Rd., Finchley, N.

MR. C. G. OSBORNE, L.R.A.M., coaches CANDIDATES for L.R.A.M. (Pianoforte), Associated Board, and other exams. Teaching rooms in Regent Street. Moderate terms. Address letters, 53, Aberdeen Road, Highbury Park, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1901, SEVENTY-SEVEN passes, L.R.A.M., 1897-1901, TWENTY-SEVEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

MR. HAROLD E. MACKINLAY, F.R.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c.; also Organ and Pianoforte. Preparation for Musical Examinations, personally or by post. Terms moderate. 53, Marquess Road, Canonbury, N.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c.—Mr. JOSEPH SPAWFORTH, A.R.A.M. (formerly pupil of Professor Ebenezer Prout, Mr. Frederick Corder, and Mr. Davenport, at the Royal Academy of Music), gives LESSONS, Privately or by Post. Pupils prepared for the theoretical portions of all examinations. Apply, by letter, for terms, &c., to 67, Parliament Hill, N.W.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES for EXAMS. Lessons follow closely lines of latest Exam. papers. Terms strictly reasonable. Many years' experience. 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. STRETTON SWANN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS or prepares for EXAMINATIONS Personally or by Post.
New Hydraulic Organ, seven minutes from London Bridge.
181, Longley Road, Tooting, S.W.

MR. H. TAYLOR, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by correspondence. For terms, &c., apply, 13, Reservoir Rd., Birmingham.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for REPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Catheart Hill, N.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

MR. HERBERT C. MORRIS, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Organist of St. David's Cathedral), has a VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL. Recent Successes: 1899, A.R.C.O. (2), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., and Organ Scholarship R.C.M.; 1900, A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O.; 1901, A.R.C.O. (3), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. Address, The Cathedral, St. David's, Pembrokeshire.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

TRAINING of TENORS.—Mr. E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N. The principles on which Mr. Davidson Palmer's Method is based are fully explained in his new pamphlet, "THE TENOR VOICE AND ITS TRAINING," which contains information of the utmost importance to tenors. Price 1s., post-free, from the Author.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M. LESSONS at 60, Berners Street, W., in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. Letters, 87, Herbert Rd., Plumstead.

Trinity College London (INST. 1872).

President:
THE RIGHT HON. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.
Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, MUS.D.
Director of Examinations:
JAMES HIGGS, MUS.D.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

DECEMBER 7 IS THE LATEST TIME FOR ENTERING for the next HIGHER EXAMINATIONS as under, taking place from January 6.

These Higher (Professional) Examinations are open to all Persons (whether students of the College or not).

DIPLOMA OF ASSOCIATE IN MUSIC (A.Mus.T.C.L.).

Candidates are required to pass the Matriculation Examination, or an equivalent, and in the following subjects: Harmony (up to four parts), Counterpoint (three parts), Musical History, and either Choir Training, or Vocal and Aural Physiology, or Elementary Acoustics.

DIPLOMA OF LICENTIATE IN MUSIC (L.Mus.T.C.L.).

Candidates, except in the case of a Graduate in Music of a British University, must previously have obtained the Diploma of Associate in Music. Examination subjects: Harmony (five parts), Counterpoint (five parts), Double Counterpoint, Imitation, Canon and Fugue, Form and Instrumentation.

HIGHER CERTIFICATES IN PRACTICAL AND THEORETICAL MUSICAL SUBJECTS.

LENT TERM BEGINS JANUARY 16.

The following are the subjects included in the curriculum of the Day and Evening Classes:—Organ, Pianoforte, Solo Singing and Voice Production, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Harp, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet, Trombone, Timpani, Side-Drum, &c.; Harmony, Counterpoint, Canon, Fugue, Composition, Form, Orchestration, Musical History, Transposition, Sight Reading, Elocution, French, German, and Italian.

The College Orchestra and Choir and the various Ensemble Classes for students and non-students.

FEES.

Per Term for the Course, Five and Six Guineas; from Two Guineas for single Instrument or Vocal Studies; One Guinea for the Theoretical Class Subjects.

Open Scholarships and Exhibitions for both sexes are awarded annually.

Syllabus and Prospectus on application.
By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.
Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

THE NEXT TERM begins on January 6, 1902.
ELEVEN FREE OPEN SCHOLARSHIPS will be competed for in January next. Last day for entering, December 30.
The EXAMINATION for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will be held in April, 1902.
Syllabus and official Entry Forms, may be obtained at the College, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

JUST PUBLISHED.

LEAD, KINDLY LIGHT

WORDS BY CARDINAL NEWMAN
SET TO MUSIC FOR
SOPRANO SOLO AND CHORUS OR QUINTET FOR SOLO VOICES
BY LIZA LEHMANN.

Price Two Shillings net.
Vocal Parts, One Shilling the set.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

John Broadwood & Sons'

LIMITED,
NEW SHORT OVERSTRUNG GRAND
105 GUINEAS.

"MULTUM IN PARVO."

33, GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.
Established 1865.
Principal: T. H. YORKE TROTTER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. Yorke Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

OSCAR BERINGER

SCALE & ARPEGGIO MANUAL. 2s. net.
With new and important Introductory Notes and additional Scales.

ŠEVČÍK VIOLIN METHOD.
KOCIÂN CONCERT.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, DECEMBER 9, AT 3 O'CLOCK.

Critics of recent Concert in Vienna unanimous that in Kociân we have a new Violin Star of extraordinary talents.

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 82.

PIANOFORTE PEDALS. 2s. NET.

GUIDE TO THE PROPER USE, WITH EXAMPLES FROM
THE HISTORICAL CONCERTS OF
ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

We recommend to earnest and progressive Piano Students a new work called "Guide to the correct use of the Pianoforte Pedal." It is one of the most interesting and useful volumes in the whole range of musical literature, and will undoubtedly take rank as the Standard work on Pedalling.—Vide German Times.

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 238.

CARPÉ BOUND, 6s. NET.

GROUPING, ARTICULATING, AND PHRASING IN MUSICAL INTERPRETATION.

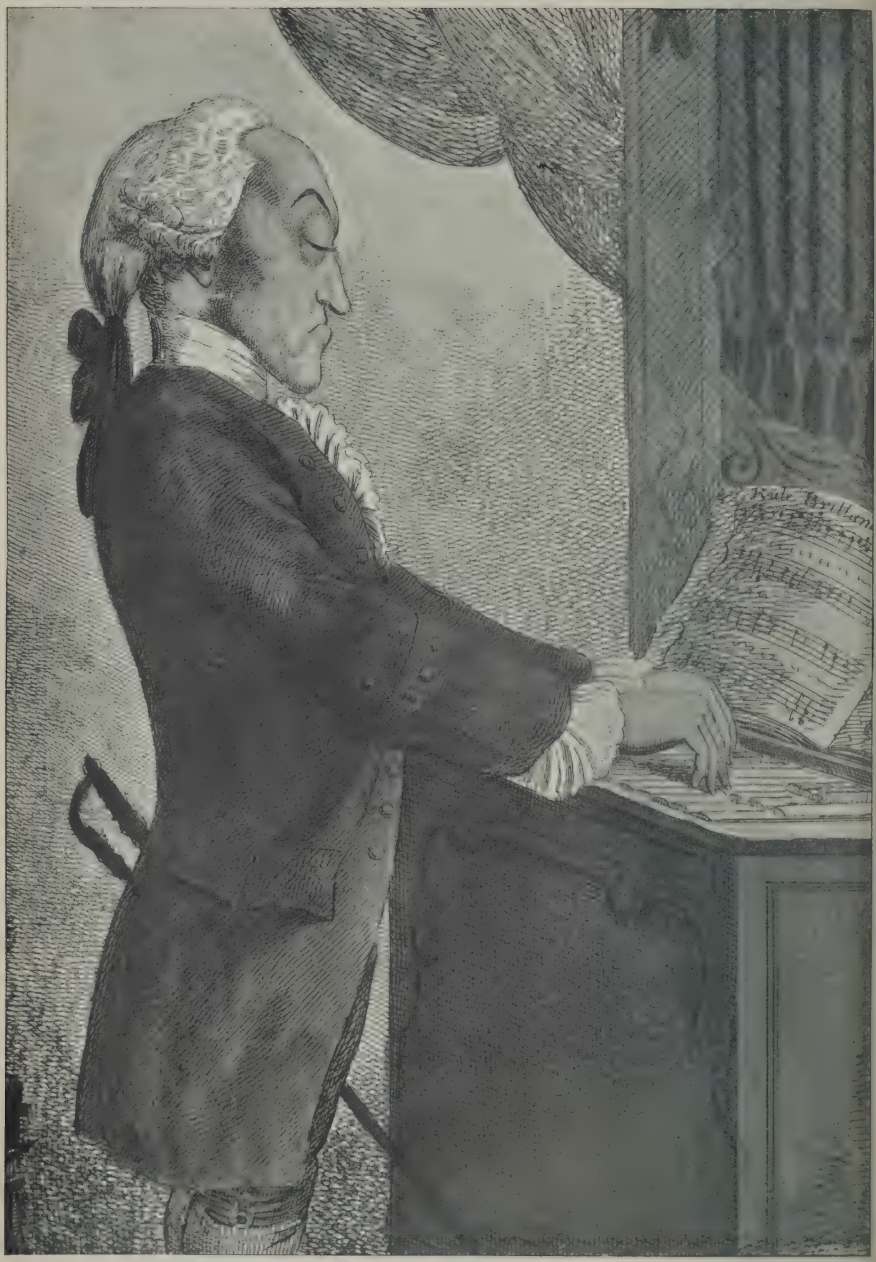
A Systematic Exposition for Players, Teachers, and advanced Students The Musical Courier says: "It is bound to supplant any work written on the same subject. Mr. Carpé is a Pianist and a profound student of phrasing, and a specialist in his chosen field."

BOSWORTH AND CO., 5, PRINCES ST., OXFORD ST., W.
And at LEIPZIG, PARIS, VIENNA.



DR. ARNE. BY BARTOLOZZI.

HENRY LESLIE'S PART-SONGS.

Messrs. NOVELLO and CO. have the honour to announce that they have recently concluded arrangements with the representatives of the late Henry Leslie, which will enable them to publish at an early date the Part-Songs of that well-known composer which have hitherto been issued by Messrs. J. B. Cramer & Co., Messrs. Stanley Lucas & Co., and Mr. E. Hatzfeld. These include such favourites as :—

The Lullaby of Life,
Rose of the Garden,
Song of the Flax-spinner,
Bridal Song,
Resurgam,
We roam and rule the sea,
Song of the Minnesingers, and many others, forming, with those already published by Messrs. Novello & Co., a practically complete collection of Henry Leslie's Part-Songs.

A Complete List with prices will shortly be announced in The Musical Times.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

DECEMBER 1, 1901.

CAROLS, ENGLISH AND FOREIGN.

BY THE LATE SIR JOHN STAINER.*

It is not my intention to enter to any extent into the history of Carols: on this subject much interesting information can be obtained from Sandy's 'Christmastide,' Husk's 'Songs of the Nativity,' Bramley's learned Preface to the Library edition of 'Carols New and Old,' Bullen's Preface to his 'Christmas Garland,' and many other well-known and standard works. It ought, however, to be mentioned that the derivation of the word Carol has, after much dispute, been definitely settled: it is one of the many words sprung from the prolific root 'Chor,' which is, as is well-known, always associated with Song or Dance, or both. The present form of the word Carol appears to have reached us through the mediæval form, Coraula.

The German word for a carol, 'Weihnachtlied,' speaks for itself. But the French name Noël has only lately been properly explained. For a long time it was thought to be connected with Nouvelles, and so, to mean News, good news, but this has been set aside. It clearly is a softened form of Natalis, birthday. Sancta Natalia is mentioned by Brachet as having become St. Noële. Moreover, we have the link between Noël and Natal in the provincial French form Nadal, used in Bas-Quercy and elsewhere. But the number of different forms in which this word appears is very remarkable; here are a few :—

Nouël, Nadal (Bas-Quercy);
Nouë (Besançon);
Noa, Noua (Patois d'Ille-et-Vilaine);
Nau, Nadau, Nadalet (Gascoigne);
Nedelek, Nouël (Chansons des Bretons);
Noei (Burgundy);
Nolet.

There can be no doubt whatever that the singing of carols grew out of the mediæval mysteries, and the habit of the priests of placing a crib containing either a living baby or a bambino in the chancels of churches, and in other ways trying to teach rustics by means of pictorial representations. Everyone is probably familiar with the beautiful carol in the Coventry Mysteries, published in the Bramley Collection, and, as regards the realistic functions inside churches, there is an interesting reprint of an account of one in Coussemaker. In this, there is actually a Rubric directing that, at a certain point in the service, a procession of men dressed as shepherds shall enter the church and approach the artificial manger; the priests then address them: Quem quaeritis in praesepio? They answer: Salvatorem Dominum Christum; then women dressed as midwives draw aside curtains and shew the shepherds the babe. At such services as these, hymns of a popular kind were sung to well-known tunes which, when dissociated from the church and carried into the home, formed the basis of the extensive carol literature to be found in Germany, France, and England. There is a large number of Spanish carols in popular use, but inquiry in Spain failed to trace any printed collection of them; they are, it would seem, handed on by oral tradition. Christmas (Noche buena) is kept with great solemnity in the churches, and in many districts a special service is held called 'La Misa del gallo,' the Midnight Mass, or, Mass of the Cock. On this subject a book by M. Achille Fouquier, 'Chants Populaires Espagnols,' should be read.

The transfer of Christmas hymns and songs from the Church to the home would naturally lead to a collateral growth of carols containing allusions to the home-festivity of the season, especially to the abundance of food and drink which hospitality provided. This is exactly what we find. Secular carols grew up, chiefly concerned with eating and drinking. Many of these, however, have a strange, and, to our ears, repulsive mixture of conviviality and theology. This is particularly noticeable in our old English carols, of which the following is a specimen :—

* A lecture delivered at Oxford, November 19, 1890, by the late Professor of Music. Twelve Old Carols, which he adapted and arranged (and had printed by Messrs. Novello and Co. for the purpose), were sung as illustrations of the various types of carols described.

Now that the time has come wherein
Our Saviour Christ was born,
The larders full of beef and pork,
The garners filled with corn, etc.*

In these next lines theology and conviviality appear together, but in a different order :—

And we do hope before we part
To taste some of your beer.
Your beer, your beer, your Christmas beer,
That seems to be so strong ;
And we do wish that Christmas-tide
Was twenty times so long,
Then sing with voices cheerfully,
For Christ this time was born,
Who did from death deliver us,
When we were left forlorn.†

This curious blending of religion and revelry is, of course, also partly due to the fact that the time of the year which the Church eventually selected for the commemoration of the Nativity, happened to coincide with a heathen feast of great antiquity, handed down from time immemorial through the Druids' Winter Feast, the Roman Saturnalia, and the Scandinavian Feast of the Yule. This word 'Yule' gave some trouble to philologists, but it is now accepted as being derived from a root signifying 'to shout aloud,' possibly 'to howl.'

After our Reformation, the Puritans, as may be supposed, did not encourage the vanity and frivolity which they thought accompanied the feast of Christmas; in fact, they tried hard to stamp out both the sacred and secular observances of the season. In 1644, because Christmas Day fell on their fast-day, the last Wednesday in the month, people were ordered to keep it as a Fast ! and in 1652 Parliament directed that 'no observation shall be had of the 25th day of December, commonly called Christmas Day.' No services were allowed in the churches on that day, and Evelyn and others were actually arrested for committing a breach of the ordinance of Parliament by receiving the Holy Communion on Christmas morning.

This reactionary tension could not however last long, and we soon find the people clamouring for and obtaining a restoration of their ancient winter feast. That they had felt the loss of the food and drink more than that of their church services, seems to be shown by this portion of a carol written about that time in honour of the revival of Christmas :—

The butler and baker, they now may be glad,
The times they are mended, though they have been bad;
The brewer, he likewise may be of good cheer,
He shall have good trading for ale and strong beer,
All trades shall be jolly, and have for relief,
Plum pudding, goose, capon, minced pies,
and roast beef.‡

There are fifteen stanzas of this worldly-minded carol, which is, with much appropriateness, ordered to be sung to an old tune called 'The Delights of the Bottle.'

* Bullen. A Christmas Garland. 1885. p. xxi.
† Ibid. p. 65.
‡ Ibid. p. 163. Sandys, Christmas Carols, p. 54.

The suspension of Christmas observances brought about one result to be deplored, the loss of some of the ancient tunes to which carols had formerly been sung; they had hitherto been carefully handed down by tradition, but were now forgotten and, so far as we are concerned, lost beyond recovery. But, on the other hand, one good result followed the suspension of carol-singing, namely, the disuse of the silly secular carol. In fact we may say that, in our own times, the 'plum-pudding' and 'mince-pie' carol has practically ceased to exist. A few survive, as, for example, the celebrated Yorkshire 'Wassail' song, of which both words and music are most interesting. It ought, perhaps, to be mentioned that 'Wassail' is really a Saxon expression: 'Wes hál,' 'Be thou hale—or hearty'; it is practically equal to: 'Your good health.' Afterwards, the vessel in which was put the wine for drinking the toast was called a 'wassail bowl,' or 'wassail cup,' then the wine itself was called a 'wassail'; lastly a verb was formed, 'to wassail,' or 'go a wassailing,' signifying simply 'to drink.'

To the realistic tendencies of the mediæval Mystery Play must be ascribed the rapid growth of curious stories, hardly worthy of the name of legends, which abound in the literature of carols. The not yet forgotten Apocryphal Gospels may have supplied the basis of some of them. Take, for instance, the conversations between Joseph and Mary prior to the birth of our Lord. On these is built the Cherry-tree Carol. This describes how Mary, while passing near a cherry-tree, asked Joseph to gather some cherries for her. He gave an unkind refusal, whereupon the branches miraculously stooped down so that she could reach the cherries and gather them for herself. Now, in the Department of France, d'Ille-et-Vilaine, a similar story is told of an apple-tree. Mary said, 'I long to taste this fruit.' Joseph refused to gather the apples for Mary. 'It is a shame,' he said, 'to touch this apple-tree at Noël.' The branches bend down, and Mary plucks the fruit. But here follows an interesting addition : Joseph then tries to gather some apples for himself, but the branches suddenly return on high. Joseph falls on his knees and asks Mary's pardon, which she grants.

Then again we find a whole group of stories relating what sort of offerings the shepherds brought to the Infant Saviour. In the 'York Mysteries' * one shepherd offers a brooch with a little tin bell attached; another, two cobnuts on a riband; a third, a horn spoon big enough to hold forty peas. This play dates back to 1350. Then again, in the 'Coventry Mysteries,' which are probably of the same early date, the first shepherd apologises that he can only offer his oaten-pipe, 'wherein moche pleysure I haue fond'; the second presents his hat, saying, 'For weddur thow hast noo no nede to complain; For wind, ne sun, hayle, snoo, and rayne'; the third shepherd gives his 'myttens' to keep the Child's hands warm.

* York Mystery Plays. Lucy Toulmin Smith. 1885. p. 121.

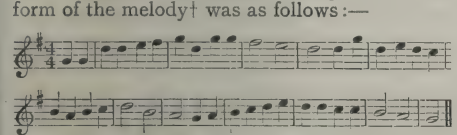
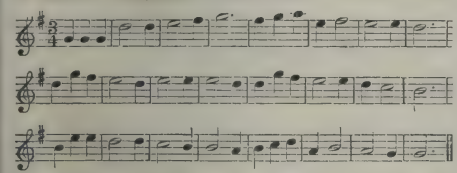
In M. Soleville's valuable collection of the 'Chants populaires du Bas-Quercy,' there is a carol in which the shepherds propose to go into the mountains and catch a bird to take to the Child to amuse him; so shepherd Barthélemy takes a thrush in the folds of his mantle; Michel takes a goldfinch's nest which he carries in the bottom of his hat; François brings a cake; Guillaume a nightingale; Janot, some chestnuts; and Bernard a butterfly. In another carol the shepherds have heard that the Child likes grapes, so one of them presents a hundred bunches of muscats.

It would be easy to fill a volume with these and other most curious stories of various kinds which the simple child-like imagination of rustics has brought into existence.

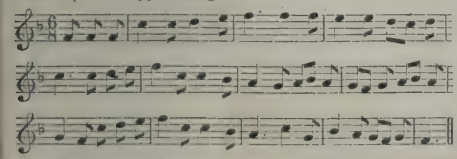
As regards the tunes to which such carols are set, in England they were sung generally to a special tune, sometimes to a well-known secular melody; in France, nearly always to tunes taken from the songs or choruses of comic operas, or to dance tunes; in Germany, chiefly to Volkslieder-tunes. The French tunes are often delightfully bright and rhythmical; a good specimen is that of the Besançon Noël, 'Chantans! Bargies, Noué, Noué,'* one of the large class of appeals to shepherds to leave their flocks and seek the manger. It illustrates the changes which tunes undergo. An old form of the melody† was as follows:—



a variant was‡:—



the final development, as given in the celebrated collection 'La Clé du Caveau,' 1816, to the words 'Voilà ce que c'est que d'aller au bois' (No. 627), being:—



The appeals to shepherds to wake and bestir themselves often take the form of a dialogue between angels and shepherds, or between shepherds themselves. When the dialogue is between angels and shepherds, the shepherds always speak their own particular patois, but the angels always answer them in the best Parisian French!

Another dialogue carol* 'Chantons, je vous en prie,' in which Mary is made to answer a long string of questions relating to the Nativity, commences with a short prologue, followed by the questions and answers and closing with a simple and beautiful prayer. It consists of as many as twenty stanzas of eight lines each, and was written by Lucas Le Moigne in 1520. The tune, which is exceedingly graceful, is to be found in the music of the celebrated Saboly collection, No. 49. The music of this collection of carols in the Provençal dialect was not collected till 1856, although the words were published as early as 1668. The title of the tune, according to M. Seguin, the editor of the music, is 'Amants, quittez vos chaînes,' but in other collections it appears as 'Hélas! je l'ai perdue, celle que j'aimais tant.'

The next branch of carol literature to be noticed is that in which the story of the Nativity is related as if it had taken place in some familiar locality close to the narrator. In our English carols I know of no example of this, but I am told by Mr. Bramley that in the Towneley Mysteries the Nativity is made to take place on a well-known Common near Wakefield. The most celebrated French carol of this description is one known as 'Les Bourgeois de Chastres,'† written in the 16th century, in the Department d'Ille-et-Vilaine, by a priest of the name of Crestot. It is also called the 'Arpajon' Noël because this particular town of Chastres was re-named 'Arpajon' in 1720. All the places mentioned will be found in the neighbourhood, in the valley of the Orge: St. Germains, St. Clement, St. Yon, Bretigny, Boissy, and others. The words consist of fourteen stanzas of eight lines, and the Noël became so popular in France that other towns tried to steal it by merely altering the names of all the places mentioned.‡ A version of the tune in common time is to be found in the Clé du Caveau—but it is not nearly so bright and spirited as the one in six-eight time—

Before leaving this branch, attention should be drawn to a class of carols which we must,

* Twelve Old Carols. Novello & Co. No. 1.
† Noei tò nôvea. (1717.) p. 110. Noei Borguignon. 1736. p. 83. Sur l'air: Il étoit une Brunette, qui tant belle étoit.
‡ Ibid. p. 16. Ibid. p. 10. Sur l'air: Votre jeu fait ici grand bruit.

* Vieux Noëls. Nantes. 1876, p. 7. Twelve Old Carols. No. 3.
† La Grande Bible de Noëls. Tours. p. 35. Sur l'air: Nous nous mismes à jouer. Twelve Old Carols. No. 4.
‡ Vieux Noëls. Nantes. 1876. Les Bourgeois de Nantes.

I suppose, call 'burlesque.' It is impossible to ignore them if we make the Noël an object of serious study. The words are often absolute rubbish; here is a specimen* :—

A la venue de Noël
Treize chapons dans la marmite,
Si le potage n'est pas bon,
Nous y mettrons un petit chou.

A la venue de Noël
Tripes de porc sur le gril:
Une bouteille de vin blanc
Pour faire chanter le moine blanc.

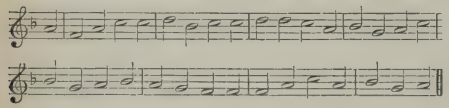
(ENGLISH VERSION.)

Now has come our feast Noël,
Thirteen capons boiling hot,
If the soup doesn't turn out well,
Throw a cabbage in the pot.

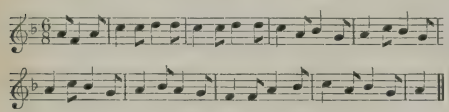
Now is come our Noël-tide,
To the grill your pork-tripe bring,
If the monk with wine is plied,
Better will he chant and sing.

This was sung to the ancient church tune 'Jesu! Redemptor omnium.'

Ancient church melodies were sometimes put through a curious process of transformation in order to make them suitable, or perhaps I ought to say lively enough for carols. Everyone knows the fine old church melody 'Creator alme siderum' :—

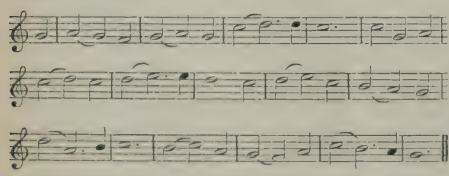


Here is a popular version of this tune as sung to a Noël,† in France and in Flanders too :—



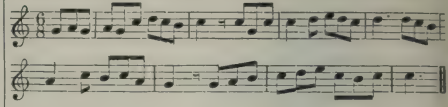
Here is another version from Bas-Quercy‡ still more transformed :—

One more example, the ancient 'Veni Creator,' is known to all :—



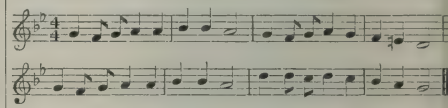
* Bladé. Poésies populaires de la Gascoigne, 1881. I., p. 161.
† Vieux Noëls. Nantes. 1876. p. 1. Coussemaker, Chants populaires des Flamands. p. 139.
‡ Soleville's Chants populaires du Bas-Quercy. 1889. No. 47.

The same tune as sung in Flanders, and taken down in writing by Coussemaker* :—

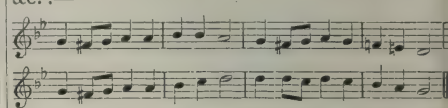


If a Church melody were found to be sufficiently lively without any change, it was taken into use as it stood. For example, the fine old melody 'O Filii et filiæ'† is used in some parts of France as a Noël :—

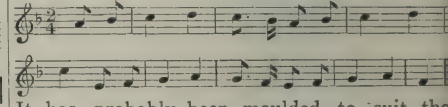
Both the words and music of two very remarkable Noëls of Bas-Quercy‡ call for notice. They are an appeal, first to the birds and next to flowers, to come and worship the Infant Christ. The words in the original patois are not of any literary merit; but there is something very poetical and touching in thus identifying the things of nature with man himself as debtors to God for the gift of the Incarnation. The tune of the Bird-Carol (known as the old church melody, 'Jesu! Redemptor omnium') is ancient and beautiful :—



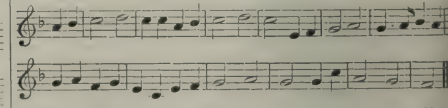
A modernised version given in the Nantes collection§ spoils it by introducing semitones, &c. :—



The tune of the Flower-Carol sounds rather modern, but it is not so :—



It has probably been moulded to suit the metre of the words, and so simplified, out of this old tune (which was old in 1702) :—



We come now to the Lullabies or Cradle-Songs which have sprung up and cluster round

* Coussemaker's Chants populaires des Flamands de France. 1856. p. 32.
† Vieux Noëls. iii., p. 1.
‡ Chants populaires du Bas-Quercy. Nos. 34 and 43.
§ Vieux Noëls. No. 2 of the Airs Notés. Twelve Old Carols. Nos. 5 and 6.

the story of the Nativity. The Latin poetry of the Middle Ages gives us some beautiful specimens of these. Everyone knows the hymn beginning :—

Dormi fili, dormi! mater
Cantat unigenito;
Dormi puer, dormi! pater
Nato clamat parvulo.
Millies Tibi laudes canimus
Mille Mille Millies.

and so it sweetly runs on through eight more stanzas.

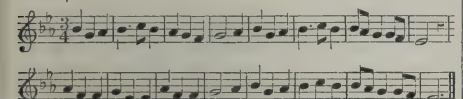
There is a beautiful old English example of a carol of this type in Bramley's Collection. It begins :—

On yesternight I saw a sight,
A star as bright as day,
And all along, I heard a song
Lullay by by lullay.

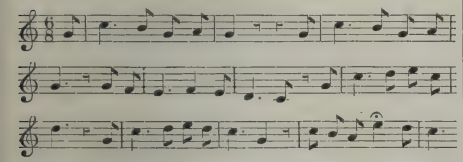
The proper tune to this has been lost, but Dr. Steggall has caught its true spirit and set it to charming music. There is another beautiful old English Lullaby printed by Husk and also by Sandys, which has lost its original tune. It commences* :—

Lulla, la lulla, lulla lullaby,
My sweet little babe, what meanest thou to cry?

Many charming examples are to be found in the French Collections, such as the Gascon carol 'Qu'il est aimable,' to the following tune† :—



This melody, when sung quickly, is adapted to words of a totally different character. The tune 'Scots wha' hae' has also this double function. Another example of a Cradle-Song‡ 'O bienheureuse nuit' has a charming melody —the progressions smooth and very graceful.



[After alluding to the irrepressible love of ridicule which even led to burlesque carols of this type, the Professor gave a short sketch of 'Meditations on the Nativity,' as illustrated by the Flemish carol 'De dryvoudige Geboorte'§ —the threefold Birth—the title referring to the birth of the Son in all eternity; the second birth in this world, as a babe; the third birth in the hearts of all faithful people. This idea is beautifully expressed in the Latin hymn of Prudentius, 'Corde natus ex parentis ante mundi exordium.' Finding that the well-known English translation of this hymn, 'Of the Father's love begotten,' was of the same metre as the Flemish carol, the Professor used it for the Flemish tune,* which is of great breadth and grandeur.]

The next division of our subject is that of Epiphany Carols, of which a large number exist. In a Besançon Noël, the shepherds at the manger are frightened because they hear beating of drums to announce the approach of the Three Kings; then a long dialogue takes place between the shepherds, the kings, Dame Mary, and Sir Joseph. It should be said that in English Carols the Holy Mother is generally called Lady Mary, and her husband Sir Joseph. In one old English carol she is called 'Lady Saint Mary,' which sounds odd!

In another Besançon Noël the shepherds try to stop the entrance of one of the kings because he is black; the others explain that he is an Ethiopian, and therefore it cannot be helped; he is then admitted.

[An old English Epiphany Carol, 'The Golden Carol of Melchior, Balthazar, and Gaspar,'† was then sung to a very beautiful old French tune of the same metre, and the Professor concluded with a few remarks on Carols bidding good-bye to Christmas; two most interesting ones were reprinted by Mr. A. H. Bullen from a book of 'New Christmas Carols' published in 1661. One was sung to 'Well-a-day,'‡ a tune much used at that period for melancholy ditties or 'laments.' Another melody considered suitable for this purpose was 'Bonny sweet Robin,'§ one of the most beautiful, in the Professor's opinion, which it is the good fortune of our nation, or any other, to possess.]

* Sylvester. A Garland of Christmas Carols. 1861. p. 84.
† Delaborde. Essai sur la musique. 1780. Saboly. No. 11. Vieux Noëls. No. 66. Twelve Old Carols. No. 7.
‡ Fleury. Littérature orale de la Basse-Normandie. 1883. p. 216. Twelve Old Carols. No. 8.
§ Coussemaker. Chants populaires des Flamands. p. 45.

* Twelve Old Carols. No. 9.
† Ibid. No. 10.
‡ Ibid. No. 11.
§ Ibid. No. 12.

MUSIC IN SCOTLAND:

A BRIEF HISTORICAL SURVEY.

(Concluded from page 727.)

DUNDEE—AN OMISSION REPAIRED.

The epitomising of history is attended with considerable risk, especially when the survey covers so widespread an area as the land o' cakes. The results of the boiling down process are likely to cause someone to boil over with indignation at an assumed intentional neglect of his particular corner of the field. Not so-minded, however, is the editor of that excellent century-old journal, The Dundee Advertiser. He kindly calls our attention to the musical history of the flourishing city on the banks of the Tay in these words :—

In the late Alex. Maxwell's two volumes on 'Old Dundee,' and in A. C. Lamb's 'Dundee: its Quaint and Historic Buildings,' there is much information regarding the Sang Schule before and after the Reformation. The Choristers' House, which was given by David Scrymgeour of Fardill in 1523 as a dwelling for the choir-boys of St. Mary's Church, still stands in the Overgait; and after the Reformation the Town Council had to support 'The Maister of the Sang Schule,' as is shown by numerous entries in the Council Minutes. A building set apart as the Sang Schule was in existence at the time of the Siege of Dundee, in 1651. The famous Dr. Heighington (see the Dictionary of National Biography), who was organist at Dundee in 1757, founded the Dundee Musical Society in that year, and some of the music books used by the performers are still extant. A Choral Society was formed in 1813, and the first Philharmonic Society was founded in 1836, and was succeeded by a similar Society which began in 1850, and expired in 1892.

The Dundee Amateur Choral Union well deserves honourable mention. Founded, January 28, 1858, a century after Dr. Heighington's Society had expired, the Choral Union shows a record of forty-two years' good service in the cause of music. The complete history of the Society may be found in 'The Dundee Year-Book for 1899,' a volume of interesting reprints from The Dundee Advertiser. Here it must suffice to say that the Choral Union, under the able conductorship of Mr. David Stephen, worthily maintains the best traditions of choral music in Scotland. The list of works that have been performed would do credit to any musical organization. Long may it flourish!

But to resume this 'Brief Historical Survey' with a few remarks on the subject of Church Music in Scotland.

AN ORGAN TAX.

The Reformation may serve as a starting point. But as in the first instalment of this article reference was made to the Sang Schools of Aberdeen, one or two quotations from an interesting book on that subject may find a place.*

In 1256, there were four singing boys at St. Nicholas Church, Aberdeen, and in 1437 an organ. 'New organs' were erected in 1485, 'for defraying the expenses of which a special tax was imposed on all sheep and swine brought into the town.' The office of 'leader of the church music and organist' was evidently in the nature of a freehold, as that official was to receive '24 markis, for all the dayes of his lyfe—viz., 18 markis from the rent of the overmill, 4 markis from the lands of Bogferlow, and 2 markis from our Kirk bred.' He was, however, much too canny to be 'quite pleased' with such security as the 'Kirk bred' afforded; so he asked for some other 'strenzeabill place, but fraud or gil,' from to draw the 'two markis for all the dayes of his lyfe.'

EARLY PSALMODY.

The music of the Reformed Church of Scotland, however, resolved itself for upwards of three centuries into unaccompanied Psalm-singing. In, or about, the year 1540 there dwelt in the town of Dundee a trio of brothers Wedderburn, of whom John 'translated manie of Luther's dytements into Scottish meeter, and the Psalmes of David.' Full of enthusiasm for the service of praise, as would become disciples of Martin Luther, they may be said to have founded metrical church song in Scotland. The volume issued by them, generally known as the 'Gude and Godlie Ballatis,' contained no music, and their versifications were sung to German tunes. But, 'strictly speaking, 1556 forms the starting point in the history of Scottish Psalmody, considered as a matter of Ecclesiastical Order.'*

The subject soon attracted the attention of the ecclesiastical authorities. Calderwood, the historian, records that—

> In the General Assembly conveened at Edinburgh in December 1562, for printing of the Psalmes, the Kirk lent Robert Likprivick twa hundredth punds [Scottish money] to help buy irons, ink and paper, and to fie craftsmen for printing.

Previous to this, however, the First Book of Discipline (1560) contained the following Exhortation:—

> Moreover, men, women, and children wald be exhorted to exercise thame selvis in the Psalmes, that when the Churche convenith, and dois sing, thai may be the more abill together with commoun heart and voice to prayse God.

Evidence that part-singing was practised as early as 1574 is furnished by the following extract from the diary of James Melville, in which the word 'treables' refers to one of the harmonic parts:—

> Mairower, in these yeirs I learned my music, wherein I tuk graitter delyt, of an Alexander Smithe, servant to the Primarius of our Collage, wha had been treaned upe amangis the Mounks in the Abbay. I learned of him the gam, plean-song, and monie of the treables of the Psalmes, whereof sum I could weill sing in the Kirk.

THE PRECENTOR.

The Precentor soon appears on the scene. He is at first referred to as the 'Takar vp of the Psalmes,' or 'Uptaker of the Psalme.' Many stories are current concerning this important and indispensable official, who has entered so largely into the ecclesiastical and national life of Scotland. In the old days, and especially in country places, his 'principal qualification was poverty, and a loud voice for reading the line, it being a matter of no consequence whether he knew a note of the music or not.' He was frequently noted for his interpolated graces in 'giving out the tune.' As Precentor he occupied a box immediately below the minister, a position favourable to such admonition as that given by an old divine, who, leaning over the pulpit, brought down the psalm-book on the head of the Precentor with

* 'Extracts from the Commonplace Book of Andrew Melville, Doctor and Master of the Song School of Aberdeen, 1621-1640. Edited by W. Walker. Aberdeen, 1899.

* 'The Scottish Metrical Psalter of A.D. 1635. Edited by the Rev. Neil Livingston. Glasgow, 1864.' A most valuable reprint, containing prefaces of great historical interest to all students of this subject of Scottish Psalmody.

the injunction: 'Now come, gie us nane o' your lilts.' Long ago, in Edinburgh, one of these lilting leaders of praise showed an abnormal fondness for the national beverage. The Kirk officials of this 'fashionable congregation' kept a suit of clothes in the Session (not Sessions) House for that chief musician, in order that he might put on the garments of praise and not be clad in the threadbare habiliments of inebriation.

LINING OUT.

Two old Psalmodic customs have now disappeared—a sitting posture while singing, and 'lining out.' At the time of, and subsequent to, the Reformation, churches were not furnished with pews, and worshippers brought their own stools or chairs. 'Lining-out,' and the slow speed at which the Psalms were sung (or drawled), may have conduced to the adoption of the sitting posture as a physical necessity. The 'lining-out'—i.e., the reading of each line of the Psalm before it was sung—came from England, as Scotsmen, with pardonable pride at their superior educational advantages, stoutly maintain. So deep-rooted, however, did 'lining-out' become, that it passed into the region of tradition; and, strange to say, its *dis*use was looked upon as an 'innovation.' One old woman quoted the words 'line upon line' as the scriptural authority for the retention of the custom. The late David Kennedy recalls the psalmodic experiences of his boyhood (1840) in these words:—

Everybody sang in the kirk in those days, and, with characteristic Scottish conscientiousness, the auld folk thought themselves in duty bound to sing every word of the Psalms, whether they could keep pace with the precentor or not. One well-known old character, an inveterate snuffer—our grandfather used to tell us—habitually left off in the middle of a verse, deliberately blew his nose with his red pocket 'neepkin,' and, having carefully marked his place, would recommence where he had left off, oblivious of the fact that the precentor and the rest of the congregation were two lines in advance of him!

MR. LEWIS DE FRANCE.

Reference was made on p. 724 to a Mr. Lewis de France, who kindly 'condescended to teach' music in Glasgow in the year 1691. This gentleman has been traced by Mr. Robert A. Marr as having been in Edinburgh seven years earlier. The following application furnishes proof:—

Application by Lewis de France to the Magistrates of Edinburgh as Governors of Heriot's Hospital to be allowed to teach the boys there Church Music, 8th September, 1684.

That your honours were . . . [pleased to appoint] the suplicant to professe and teach musick within the good toune of Edinburgh, and hes farder manifested your honour and respect to that pleasant and alluring art, by the true excercise of which, God himselfe is worshiped and praised, and mens hearts, amidest the cares and toylls of the world, are elevated and cherished, which is the excercise of his never ending praises in heaven; in order to which your honours was so graciouslie liberall to bestow a yearlie salary on the suplicant, who desyres not to be idle nor wanting in his duties, whereby he can be servicable to your honours and the good toune, and therefore seeing theer are a great number of boys in Heriot's Hospitall under your honours patronage, manie whereof may have a good dispositione for musick, the Petitioner is readie and willing to attend them at the school upon such days and hours of the week as your honours shall please to appoint, and there to teach and instruct the schollars in the grounds of musick, and the four parts of the psalms, at least a competent number that may be fitt and able to attend the severall precentors in the Churches of Edinburgh, to assist and bear up the true melodie in the four parts of the Psalmes to the praise of God, as your honours shall judge convenient.

May it therefore please your honours to appoint and allow such of the said boyes as have ane dispositione for the said art, to come to the petitioner's school, that he may instruct them in the grounds of musick and four parts of the Psalmes, to the effect foresaid, and that at such dayes and hours of the week as your honours shall appoint by act of counsell and your honour's answer.

Your honours
most humble and most obedient servent,
Lewis de France.

THE ART OF PITCHING.

At the beginning of the second half of the eighteenth century, psalmody in Scotland had become so bad that a Reformation of church music became a burning question. The propaganda was set out under the heads of (1) 'the proper teaching of melody, or the music of single parts; and (2) the introduction of harmony, or the united music of several parts.' The movement seems to have originated at Aberdeen, where 'sol-faing was introduced with good results.' An instructive and somewhat amusing article in the Scots Magazine of April, 1755, furnishes some curious information concerning the achievements of those old Aberdonians. It is also valuable as throwing light on the introduction of the pitch-pipe and its use—the art of pitching. Here are two extracts:—

As the tune must begin on a pitch neither too high for the tenor and other upper parts ascending to the highest notes the tune requires, nor too low for the bass, the leader must begin with striking such a sound as will answer this end. With this all the performers join in unison; and then the several parts ascend or descend to the notes upon which the respective parts of the tune begin, and after a little pause proceed to the tunes. This is called pitching.

As it requires great practice and skill, all at once, and without premeditation, to strike a sound precisely proper for the pitch, and in order to ascertain this in the beginning, and before such expert performers can be had in a parish as are capable of doing it, an instrument is used commonly called a pitch-pipe, which, by moving a slider properly divided, gives all the notes, with their subdivisions, which are proper for the tenor-part. Upon this the leader gives one sound, acute or grave as the tune requires; with which all the performers immediately strike in; and the instrument is laid aside. Those who are offended at this (as a gentleman observed upon hearing the objection), might as well be offended at a person's hemming to clear his throat before he begin, which is often done by some precentors with many affected airs.

THE PITCH PIPE—ANATHEMA!

The operation of pitching was regarded by some good people as in the nature of the overthrow of a 'principle.' A certain anti-innovator of Aberdeen said:—

There is a new-fashioned profanation of the Sabbath introduced, by singing the psalms at church with a herd-boy's instrument of music, which gives offence to many serious Christians; and that instead of the proper duties of meditation and prayer, the young people meet to whistle and fife, both before and after sermon, to improve themselves in this exercise.

The Kirk Session by no means approved of this 'herd-boy's instrument of music.' They cast (or pitched) it out as an indecent and disorderly thing, judging from their application to it of the Pauline exhortation: 'Let all things be done decently and in order.'

PSALMODIC REFORM.

Nevertheless the necessity for reform travelled southwards to Edinburgh. In November, 1755, the Town Council of the capital resolved that:

Owing to the very indecent and offensive way in which church music was performed, a master, well skilled both in the theory and practice of church music, should be immediately employed to teach in the city: and for defraying the expense of a music master, printing a book of tunes, and to encourage the teaching of it gratis, a sum not exceeding £25 should be granted by the city.

The opprobrium 'very indecent and offensive way' was none too strong. The result of this 'Act' of the Town Council was the appointment of one Cornforth Gilson, a former chorister of Durham Cathedral, to teach psalmody at 'a fee of 20*d.* per month,' with gratis instruction to the poor. The precentors of the city were ordered to attend Mr. Gilson's classes, 'so as they may learn the art of singing and precenting.' He was re-engaged a second year at a salary of £12 . 10 . 0 sterling; and in 1759 the City Treasurer was authorized to purchase sixteen copies of Gilson's 'Lessons on the practice of singing' (issued in 1759), 'for the use of the boys who sing bass [!] in the New Church.' Eight years later, one 'Thomas Franks, from England' was 'appointed to the office of Arch-Precentor of this city (Edinburgh)' to teach 'the bass singers, and such other of the inhabitants, church music gratis.'

ADVICE TO PRECENTORS.

Mr. Robert Bremner (1720?-1789), a music publisher of Edinburgh, afterwards of London, furnishes some interesting side-lights on the old Scottish Psalmody in his book entitled:—

The | Rudiments | of | Music: | or, | A short and easy | treatise on that subject. | To which is annexed, | A collection of the best Church-tunes, | Canons, and Anthems. | The second edition. | With considerable Additions; particularly, Instructions for song; and, A Plan for teaching a Croud.

By Robert Bremner.

Edinburgh: | Printed for the Author, | and sold at his Music-shop at the Harp and Hautboy. MDCCLXII.

Bremner's 'A Plan for Teaching a Croud,' has the following curious title:—

A Plan for Teaching the Four Parts to any Number a House will conveniently hold, with as little Trouble, and as soon as to four People.

In his 'few hints for the better conducting this high Act of Devotion,—i.e., the service of praise—he addresses the chief musicians of the kirks in these terms:—

TO THE CHURCH-CLERKS OR PRECENTORS IN GENERAL.

First, Let it be your particular Care, in giving out the Psalm-tune, to begin the Note as soft as possible, and increase the Sound as you go on, or, in other Words, to swell the Note; and this do at least at the Beginning of every Line; the Consequence of which will be, that the whole Congregation will endeavour to imitate you; and when they can do it, what a striking Effect must a swell of probably a thousand Voices have? On the contrary, if you begin in a bawling Manner, how shocking must the Bawl of such a Multitude be?

The next Thing recommended is, that you introduce no Graces, even where they would be agreeable, otherwise they will in like manner copy your Example, and probably go much farther. If the Fancy is once set to work, it is uncertain where it will end.

In regard to what he calls 'these nonsensical graces,' Bremner says:—

Every Congregation, nay, every Individual, had different Graces to the same Note, which were dragged by many to such an immoderate Length, that one Corner of the Church, or the People in one Seat, had sung out the Line before another had half done; and from the whole there arose such a Mass of Confusion and Discord as quite debased this the noblest Part of divine Worship. This they called the old Way of singing, for which there were many Advocates, though in fact it was the new, or rather no Way at all.

PSALMS AND HYMNS.

Our available space is being rapidly filled, and therefore only the barest mention of one or two phases of church music in Scotland can be made. The Scottish Metrical Psalter of 1635—one of the latest editions, and, musically the most complete, of the Reformation Psalm Book first issued in 1564—is a landmark in the history of psalmody North of the Tweed. For more than a hundred years after the present version came into use (in 1650), nothing but metrical psalms were sung in the churches. The General Assembly discussed the subject of Paraphrases for forty years (1741-81) before coming to a decision on that point, and then only an interim permission was given (1781) for their use in the worship of the Sanctuary; this 'interim permission,' by the way, has never been made absolute, even to this day! The use of hymns—'human hymns'—did not become general until after the year 1852 in the United Presbyterian Church; after 1870 in the Established Church; and after 1873 in the Free Church of Scotland.*

The strong conservatism of the Scotch people in matters ecclesiastical has been amusingly portrayed by the gossiping 'A.K.H.B.' in an article on 'The new hymnology of the Scottish Kirk' (Blackwood's Magazine, May, 1889). In regard to the prejudices against the use of the word Hymnal, one minister held it to be a Puseyite definition; another that it meant Hymn-all, to wit, 'a collection of all hymns!' Again: an amiable country parson said that 'he would as soon insert a hymn by the devil, as one by Cardinal Newman.' The Committee on the preparation of the Hymnal had a difficulty in finding a suitable superimposed text for Norman Macleod's robust hymn, 'Courage, brother, do not stumble,' when a grave voice said: 'Don't you see,

* In 1900 the United Presbyterian and Free Churches joined their forces and became the United Free Church of Scotland.

Perish, policy, and cunning,
Perish all that fears the light!

of course the text must be "Ye are come to the General Assembly."'

THE ORGAN QUESTION.

'In regard to organs, in this country, at least, the practice can never become universal,' and 'even if authorised he doubts whether there are sixty parishes in Scotland that could afford the expense of an organ and an organist.' Thus prophesied a certain Dr. James Beattie, an Aberdeen Professor, in a trenchant communication addressed in 1778 to the Rev. Hugh Blair, of Edinburgh, entitled 'A letter on the improvement of Psalmody in Scotland.' But there was no organically-minded and millions-possessed Mr. Carnegie forthcoming at that time!

Again, an eminent divine of Edinburgh, in in 1858, expressed the alarm he felt at certain recent movements on behalf of instrumental music in Presbyterian worship, and his dread of the agitation of the question in Presbyterian Churches. He affirmed it to be a question which touched some of the highest and deepest points of Christian theology, and stated it to be his firm persuasion that if the organ were admitted, there would be no barrier, in principle, against the sacerdotal system in all its fulness—against the substitution again, in our religion and our ritual, of the formal for the spiritual, the symbolical for the real. This anti-organ divine was no less a personage than the ruling spirit of the Free Church at that time—the Rev. Dr. Candlish, minister of Free St. George's Church, Edinburgh, from 1833 to 1873—the identical sanctuary which now contains the organ over which Mr. Alfred Hollins so ably presides. Tempora mutantur, nos et mutamur in illis!

An attempt was made by the Rev. Dr. Ritchie, a Presbyterian minister, to introduce an organ into his church — St. Andrew's, Glasgow—in 1807, but he was soon sat upon in these words:—

That the Presbytery of Glasgow are of opinion that the use of the organ in the public worship of God is contrary to the law of the land, and to the law and constitution of our Established Church, and therefore prohibit it in all the Churches and Chapels within their bounds.

The only church organ in Glasgow for many years was that in St. Andrew's Episcopal Chapel, which thereby became known to successive generations as the 'Whistlin' Kirk.' In 1863 the Rev. Dr. Robert Lee introduced instrumental music, in the form of a harmonium, into Old Greyfriars (Presbyterian) Church, Edinburgh; an organ followed in 1865. In the following year (1866) the 'Kist o' whistles' was authorized by the Church of Scotland; in 1872, by the United Presbyterian Church; and in 1883, by the Free Church of Scotland.

THE CHURCH HYMNARY AND CHANTING.

The change that has come over Church music in Scotland, largely due to the introduction of organs, is a very remarkable sign of the times. The old Precentor, with his airs and graces, not to mention his ignorance, has given place to the organ and trained choir. In the recently-issued 'Church Hymnary,' edited by the late Sir John Stainer, the two sections of the Presbyterian Church in Scotland have an excellent manual of praise.

As church music in Scotland is likely to remain for the most part congregational in its utterance, there should be full scope for the general use of the chanted (prose) Psalm. To its adequate attainment a well-pointed psalter (Bible version), with singable chants, is, however, a sine quâ non. As an example of how not to do it, a specimen from one of the authorised pointed Psalters in Scotland may be given:—

Psalm 1. v. 1.

No objection could be taken to this pointing as a benediction upon one who has unfortunately been deprived of the use of his legs, but it is a caricature of the initial verse of the Book of Psalms.

The foregoing remarks must by no means be regarded as exhaustive on a subject that has yet to be adequately treated by the historian, rather should they be read as a few side-lights on Scottish psalmody.

To the previously-mentioned names of those who have kindly helped in the preparation of this chit-chat, there must be added that of Mr. William Cowan, of Edinburgh, who had so much to do with the preparation and successful launching of 'The Church Hymnary.'

The consideration of music in Schools and Training Colleges is too important a subject to be briefly treated. It is one eminently suited to the columns of The School Music Review; and in the issue of that journal for December, we refer our readers to an article on this educational subject by so competent an expert as Mr. James Gallie, of Glasgow.

MENDELSSOHN'S ORGAN SONATAS.

BY F. G. EDWARDS.*

I venture to think that no apology is needed for bringing before you the subject of Mendelssohn's Organ Sonatas, nor for offering a few remarks on those works which have long been accepted as 'classics' of the instrument. It is not my intention to enter upon any æsthetic description or technical analysis of these familiar compositions; but to refer (1) to the history of their inception and publication, and (2) to point out some of the differences between the composer's autograph manuscript and the published version. In this way some side-lights will be thrown on these masterpieces of organ music which I trust will prove interesting.

In the year 1844, Mendelssohn paid his eighth visit to England. He conducted five concerts given by the Philharmonic Society and entered con amore into the doings of that brilliant musical season during his two months' stay in London. Immediately after his engagements in the Metropolis had been fulfilled, he rejoined his wife and family at Soden, near Frankfort-on-the-Main. Here is a picture of his home-life at that time—described in his own words:—

Soden, near Frankfort a/M.,
July 22, 1844.

'After my mad, most mad, life in England—for never before was anything like this season—we never went to bed before half-past one, every hour of every day was filled with engagements three weeks beforehand, and I got through more music in two months than in all the rest of the year—this life at Soden, with its eating and sleeping, without dress-coat, without piano, without visiting-cards, without carriage and horses; but with donkeys, with wild flowers, with music-paper and sketch-book, with Cécile and the children, is doubly refreshing.'

It was at Soden and Frankfort, amid most congenial holiday surroundings, that Mendelssohn wrote his Organ Sonatas during the years 1844 and 1845. But why did he choose this particular period for their composition? The answer to this question is not without interest to English musicians.

Mendelssohn's organ playing—of Bach and his own wonderful extemporisations—had been a remarkable feature of his several visits to England. Some of our leading organists who were fortunate enough to have heard him, wished that he would write some pieces in various styles for their instrument. Mr. Coventry, of the firm of Messrs. Coventry and Hollier, music publishers, 71, Dean Street, Soho, communicated this desire to Mendelssohn during his visit to England in 1844—in fact, Mr. Coventry really commissioned him to write these Organ Sonatas. It is, therefore, of peculiar interest to know that the world is indebted to an English music publisher, acting upon the initiative of some English organists, for this important contribution to the literature of the organ.

I have been allowed to see the letters which passed between Mendelssohn and Mr. Coventry upon the subject of the publication in England of the Sonatas. The correspondence, which is entirely in English, also contains some interesting letters relating to the English publication of Bach's Organ Chorales and Preludes, which Mendelssohn edited for Coventry and Hollier, and which were issued by that firm in the year 1845.*

The following extracts from the Mendelssohn-Coventry correspondence relate to the publication of the Organ Sonatas:—

(Mendelssohn to Coventry.)
Frankfort, August 29, 1844.

'I have also been very busy about the organ-pieces which you wanted me to write for you, and they are nearly finished. I should like to call them "3 Sonatas for the Organ," instead of Voluntaries. Tell me if you like this title as well; if not, I think the name of Voluntaries will suit the pieces also, the more so as I do not know what it means precisely.'

The original scheme, either Coventry's or Mendelssohn's, seems to have been only three sonatas. The term 'Voluntary' was doubtless suggested by Coventry, who subsequently wrote to the composer on November 19, 1844: 'I like the term Sonata just as well as Voluntary.'

Mendelssohn, who had promised to send the Sonatas, if possible, before the year was out, wrote to Coventry as follows:—

Frankfort, Dec. 17, 1844.

'I hope to send you soon the promised organ-pieces. 9 are ready, but I want to have 12 before I make a parcel of them.'

May 1, 1845.

'I beg you will let me know whether a letter, which I wrote to you some weeks since, has reached you or not. It contained the communication that I had written a kind of Organ-school in Six Sonatas for that instrument, and the question whether you would like to have the whole work or only one half of it.'

May 26, 1845.

'I duly received your favour of the 29th April, and, as I have no objection to your dividing my Sonatas into two books, I was very glad to see that they are to appear altogether at your house. I even think it would be well to sell each Sonata separately,

* The substance of a Paper read before the Musical Association on November 13, 1894, the President, the late Sir John Stainer, in the chair.

* See The Musical Times, December, 1896, p. 797.

if somebody wants to have them so; but it must always be with the title of "Six Sonatas, &c.; Nos. 1, 2, &c." Pray, if you place it into the engraver's hands, let him be most careful, in order to get a correct edition. I attach much importance to these Sonatas (if I may say so of any work of mine), and accordingly wish them to be brought out as correctly as possible. Perhaps some one of my English friends and brother-organ-players would look them over for me, besides the usual corrections of the proofs. Perhaps Mr. Gauntlett would do it?'

The original proof copy, now in the possession of Mr. Julian Marshall and which he has very kindly allowed me to examine, shows that Vincent Novello, and not Dr. Gauntlett, looked over the proofs.

The following is an exact copy of the original advertisement announcing the publication of the Sonatas; it is from the Musical World of July 24, 1845:—

MENDELSSOHN'S

SCHOOL OF ORGAN-PLAYING.

MESSRS. COVENTRY AND HOLLIER have the pleasure of announcing that they are about to publish, by subscription,

SIX GRAND SONATAS FOR THE ORGAN;

COMPOSED BY

FELIX MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY,

Price £1. 1*s.* 0*d. to Subscribers,—and* £1. 11*s.* 6*d. to non-Subscribers.*

The masterly performances of the above highly-gifted Musical Genius, on the noble Organ in the Town-Hall at Birmingham, as well as other large Organs in the Metropolis, were such as to excite the admiration and delight of all the competent judges who were so fortunate as to hear him; and to induce a wish, on the part of the Musical Public in general, and of English Organists in particular, that he would publish some of his own Compositions for that "King of Instruments," in order that they might enjoy the advantage of possessing such excellent models for their study and practice, and thus have an opportunity of availing themselves of such valuable assistants towards the acquisition of the knowledge and emulative cultivation on their part, of so sterling and refined a school of Organ-playing.

With a special view, therefore, to the gratification of the numerous admirers of Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy, Messrs. Coventry and Hollier have prevailed upon him to write the "Six Grand Sonatas" expressly for publication in England at their Establishment, and which they intend to bring forward immediately, as specimens of what the Composer himself considers his own peculiar style of performance on the Organ.

As the Proprietors of the Copyright of this work are quite aware that any eulogium would be quite superfluous relative to a Composer so universally esteemed as Mendelssohn, they purposely abstain from any attempt of the kind, in reference to his other musical productions; and they wish merely to state, with respect to the particular work which they here announce, that all the English Organists, and other Musical professors who have been indulged with the sight of the M. S. S. have expressed their admiration of these Compositions for the Organ in terms of unqualified approbation.

July, 1845.

London, 71, Dean Street, Soho Square, where a List of the Subscribers to, and supporters of, the work may be seen; and where the names of additional subscribers are received.

The title 'Mendelssohn's School of Organ-playing,' suggested by the composer in his letter to Mr. Coventry of May 1, 1845, was subsequently withdrawn at his (Mendelssohn's) request, and the work was issued in its present familiar form—'Six Sonatas for the Organ.'

The Sonatas were published, as Op. 65, in October, 1845. The work was issued by subscription at one guinea per copy, and 190 copies were subscribed for, one of the subscribers being Miss Elizabeth Mounsey, who, at an interval of over sixty years, retains the pleasantest recollections of Mendelssohn's masterly organ playing at St. Peter's, Cornhill, during her organistship of that old city church. Mendelssohn received the sum of £60 for the English copyright. The metronome indications were added by the composer at the special request of the late Dr. Edward J. Hopkins; Mendelssohn pencilled them into the proof copy. The work was dedicated to Dr. F. Schlemmer, a lawyer, of Frankfort. He was an intimate friend of Mendelssohn's, and subsequently became a relative by marriage.

A long review of the work appeared in the Morning Chronicle of March 12, 1846—one of the leading London newspapers of the time—from the pen of Dr. Gauntlett. Here is a specimen of that redoubtable writer's style:—

The fourth sonata will be the favourite in England, and if not the most sublime or the most passionate, is yet the most beautiful of all the six. The first movement is a hymn of praise. It is a Bach prelude, and yet not Bach. Mendelssohn treats him as Melville treats the great Non-conformists and their Cerberus-headed orations. The epoch for expansion and extended analysis has passed away; the novelties of knotty points and subtle analogies are undesired; we want strong emotion, but it must be concentrated—it must strike sudden as the electric fluid—it must draw blood. And this is Mendelssohn. And this is the prelude to the fourth sonata. Turn to the last page (page 47). Look at that second bar with its seventh on the F pedal; dwell on the heart-quivering march up the pedal from the lower E flat to the F on the second and third staves, and then 'give thanks,' and those 'for ever.'

An early copy of the German edition of the work must have fallen into the hands of Robert Schumann, for he, in a charming and poetic letter to Mendelssohn (dated 'Dresden, October 22, 1845'), refers to them in these words:—

'Only the other day we became quite absorbed in your Organ Sonatas, unfortunately only at the piano, but even without the title-page we should have found out that they were by you. And yet you are always striving to advance still more, and for this reason you will ever be an example to me. These intensely poetical new ideas—what a perfect picture they form in every sonata! In Bach's music I always imagine him sitting at the organ, but in yours I rather think of a St. Cecilia touching the keys; and how delightful that that should be your wife's name! Above all, Nos. 5 and 6 seem to me splendid. It is really a fact, dear Mendelssohn, no one else writes such fine harmonies; and they keep on getting purer and more inspired.'

I cannot find any record of Mendelssohn's ever having played his Organ Sonatas in public. He was evidently asked to do so at the Birmingham Festival of 1846, when his 'Elijah' was produced; but (in a letter to Moscheles, conductor of the Festival) he declined the request in these terms:—

'The last time I passed through Birmingham the touch of the organ appeared to me so heavy that I could not venture to perform upon it in public. If, however, it is materially improved, I shall be happy to play one of my sonatas; but I should not wish this to be announced before I had tried the organ myself.'

A private performance of them by Mendelssohn is thus recorded by the late Mr. W. S. Rockstro, who visited the composer at Frankfort in the spring of 1845. Mendelssohn proposed to his English friend that they should go to an 'open-air concert.' Suiting the action to the word, he led the way to a lonely corner of the public gardens, where a nightingale was singing with all its might. 'He sings here every evening,' said Mendelssohn, 'and I often come to hear him. I sit here sometimes when I want to compose. . . . I have just finished some Sonatas for the organ, and if you will meet me at the Catherinen Kirche, at 10 o'clock to-morrow, I will play them to you.' On that occasion he played the whole six Sonatas straight through from the neatly written manuscript. 'I remember,' says Mr. Rockstro, 'the wonderfully delicate staccato of the pedal quavers in the second movement of the fifth Sonata, which he played upon a single 8-foot stop, with all the crispness of Dragonetti's most highly finished pizzicato.' In a letter to his sister, Fanny Hensel, Mendelssohn refers to this, or a similar achievement:—

Frankfort, April 20, 1845.

'I will play them [the Organ Sonatas] to you at Ober-Liederbach, that is to say, by three at a time, for all six are too fatiguing, as I found the other day when trying them.'

The late Dr. Chipp, of Ely, an enthusiastic admirer of Mendelssohn, was one of the first—probably the first—English organist to play the Sonatas in public, and it was at an Organ Recital he gave at Messrs. Walker's organ factory in April, 1846. On one occasion Dr. Chipp, like Mendelssohn, played the whole six in succession, but entirely from memory! He also had the honour of playing the third sonata to Mendelssohn on the organ in the Hanover Square Rooms, and the performance evoked from the composer the following testimonial:—

'I have heard Mr. Edmund Chipp perform on the organ, and the manner in which he played one of the most difficult of my Organ Sonatas has given me a very high opinion of his talents and his skill as a musician and as a performer.

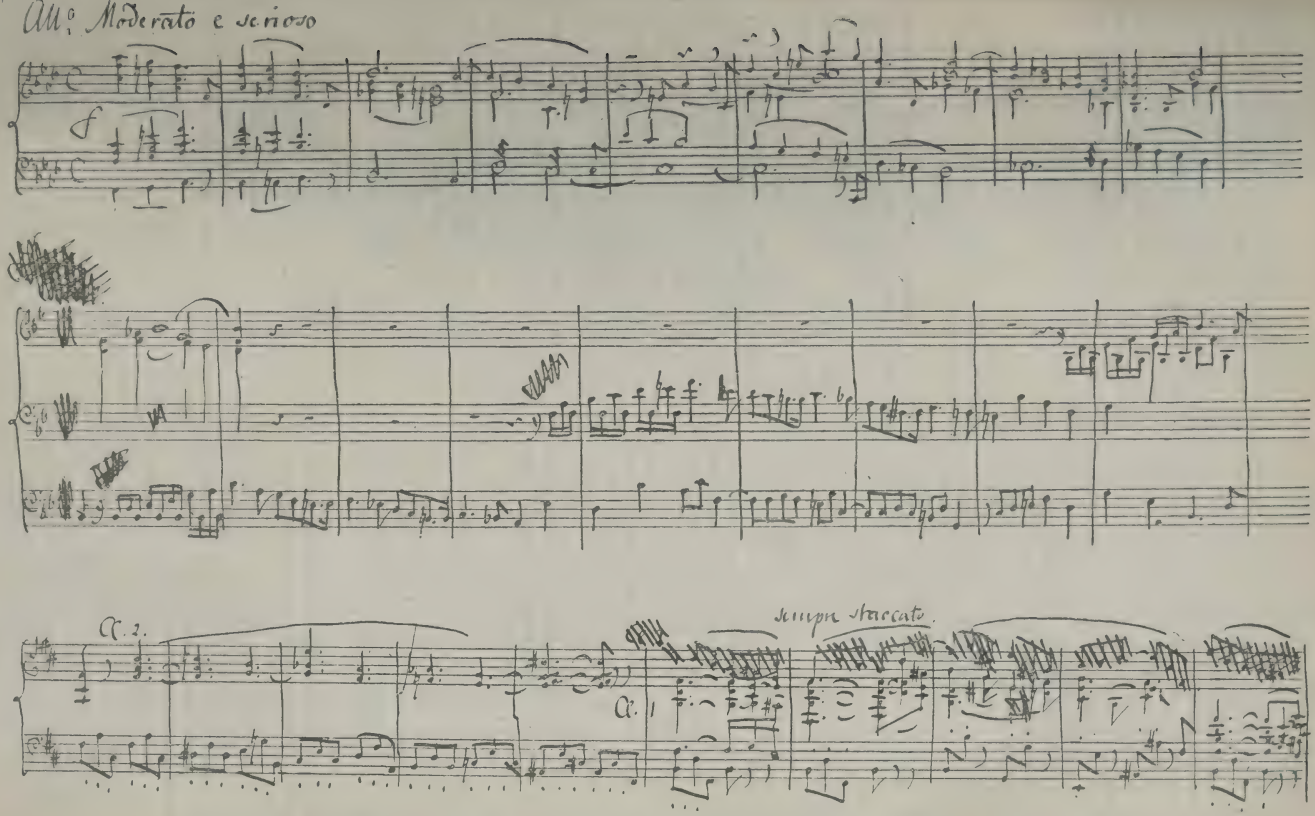
Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy.
London, 7th Mai, 1847.'

The Sonatas seem to have been very slow in becoming known in England. Chorley, the distinguished musical critic of the Athenæum, in recording a performance of No. 1 by the late W. T. Best, on Father Willis's organ in the Great Exhibition of 1851, said: 'The noble organ sonata was new to us.' This was written nearly six years after the date of publication.

[The second portion of this Paper—treating of the differences between Mendelssohn's original autograph and the published version of the Sonatas—may be held over to some future occasion.]

Sir John Stainer, the President, in opening the discussion, said: 'I am sure we are very grateful for this admirable and interesting paper. We shall all, in future, listen to these Organ Sonatas with great interest. I think it was most fortunate that Mendelssohn was asked to write for the organ. I do not know whether many of you have had the same opportunities as I have had of noticing the wonderful organ parts in his oratorios. In England, I am sorry to say, for many years the organ, in the oratorio, was generally looked upon as a great bore, many people thinking that it was only useful to keep the voices in tune, to help them out of a difficulty, or to assist them when they were uncertain. I always played Mendelssohn's organ parts from the full scores, and I found them quite a study as works of art. He never puts a mark, order, or direction which is not of enormous advantage to the general effect. Let me advise young organists therefore to do exactly what he tells them. He was indeed a master of the instrument, and it must be a pleasure for us to know that English people encouraged him to write these Sonatas. . . .

'The speed at which the Finale of the First Sonata is taken must depend a great deal upon the size of the building, although Mendelssohn indicated that it was to go as fast as possible.



FACSIMILES OF EXTRACTS FROM THE AUTOGRAPH OF MENDELSSOHN'S ORGAN SONATAS, NOS. 1, 4, AND 5.

Reproduced (full size) from the original manuscripts in the possession of Mr. Arthur O'Leary, and by his kind permission.

In St. Paul's Cathedral I found it necessary to play it slowly. It would be interesting to trace the origin of the Chorales which Mendelssohn introduced into these Organ Sonatas. Several are well known; but I have never been able to trace that used in the opening of Sonata 5. I, however, see someone in the room (Mr. Otto Goldschmidt) whose intimate acquaintance with the literature of German Chorales would enable him to give us valuable information on the subject.'

Mr. Otto Goldschmidt, at a subsequent meeting of the Musical Association (February 12, 1895), said: 'In the First Sonata, Mendelssohn has given in his autograph the name of the Chorale (which for some reason the publisher has omitted) as "Was mein Gott will" ("What God ordains"). I find that it dates from the sixteenth century. Originally a French song, it was annexed by the German Church. It is an eight-lined tune, and as such has been used in its entirety by Sebastian Bach seven times—viz., in six cantatas and once in the "St. Matthew Passion." Mendelssohn, however, has here utilised the first four lines only. The Third Sonata contains the pathetic "Aus tiefer Noth," and is used by Mendelssohn in its original form. It was published in the first hymn-book of the Reformation, in Luther's time (1524). The Fifth Sonata contains a tune on which, regarding its origin, Sir John Stainer laid particular stress and which so far, I have in vain tried to trace. It is five-lined, a metre not often met with in German Hymnody, and my impression is that it is Mendelssohn's own composition. In the Sixth Sonata, Mendelssohn has used the famous six-lined Chorale, "Vater unser im Himmelreich" ("Our Father, which art in Heaven"), which was first published in 1540, and is, I think, justly ascribed to Luther.'

The facsimile specimens of Mendelssohn's autograph manuscript of the Organ Sonatas are reproduced (full size) by the kind and special permission of Mr. Arthur O'Leary, the fortunate possessor of the originals. He sends us the following interesting note on their history:—

In connection with these MSS. it may be interesting to mention the circumstances under which they found their home in England.

Mendelssohn, and his beautiful wife, Cecilia, were on terms of the most intimate friendship with the Preussers, one of the most influential families in Leipzig. A daughter of the house, Miss Annette Preusser, was an excellent musician, and Mendelssohn took great interest in her studies, sending her contrapuntal exercises to work, and other such attentions. On the occasion of this young lady's nineteenth birthday (1846) a party was given in honour of the event, and Mendelssohn and his wife, in common with other notabilities, were among the guests. Upon learning that it was the young lady's birthday party, Mendelssohn expressed his regret to Miss Annette at not knowing of the event before, adding: 'I shall bring something for your acceptance in a day or two.' Accordingly he called a few days later, bringing with him the Sonatas, on which he wrote an appropriate inscription.

Miss Preusser came to England in 1860, and built herself a charming house at Windermere, where she died in 1889. She devoted herself to philanthropic work of all kinds, the chief one being the placing of London Workhouse waifs as foster children amongst the small farmers in the lovely Lake District where she resided. Moreover, she left a large portion of her fortune to aid in the continuation of that excellent work. She always kept these Sonatas and other precious MSS. under lock and key, and rarely allowed them to be seen. At her death she bequeathed them to me.—Arthur O'Leary.

DR. ARNE.

(1710—1778.)

(Concluded from page 719.)

The following additional and interesting information concerning the sojourn of Dr. and Mrs. Arne in Dublin during the years 1742-1744 has been kindly furnished by Mr. W. H. Grattan Flood, organist of the Cathedral, Enniscorthy, extracted from his forthcoming book, 'The History of Music in Ireland':—

A reference to the Dublin newspapers of the years 1742 to 1744 will at once settle the oft-disputed dates regarding the musical doings of Dr. and Mrs. Arne in the Irish metropolis. Faulkner's Dublin Journal says: 'Last Wednesday (June 30, 1742), the ingenious Mr. Arne, brother to Mrs. Cibber, and composer of the musick of Comus, together with his wife (the celebrated singer), arrived here from London.' Garrick's 'entertainment' was at Smock Alley Theatre on July 19, and, two days later, Mrs. Arne's 'grand entertainment' came off, when Handel, Dubourg, Kane O'Hara, and others were present. On August 14-16 we read that 'last week Lady King, widow of the Rt. Hon. Sir Harry King, and the celebrated Mr. Handel, so famous for his excellent Compositions and fine Performances with which he entertained this town in the most agreeable manner, embarked for England'; and, on August 24, it is announced that Messrs. Delane, Garrick, and Arne sailed for England.' On December 17, 1742, Mrs. Arne sang for the Dublin Charitable Musical Society in 'Acis and Galatea,' accompanied on the violin by Mr. Arne, 'who will introduce comic interludes, amongst which will be selections from "Tom Thumb," "The Dragon of Wantley," "Miss Lucy in Town," &c., intended to give relief to that grave attention necessary to be kept up in serious performances.'

An advertisement in Faulkner's Journal, November 27-30, 1742, reads thus:—'This is to give notice to the Members of the Charitable Musical Society in Crow Street [this is the Society at which Mrs. Arne sang] who have not already subscribed for tickets, are desired to send their names to Mr. Wm. Mainwaring, at his Musick-shop on College Green, and to inform him whether they will have Silver or Bath-metal, that they may be ready against next Wednesday, as no Ladies are to be admitted for the future without tickets.'

On January 10, 1742-3, Arne's 'Comus' was produced at the Aungier Street Theatre, conducted by Mr. Arne, 'who accompanies on the harpsichord.' It is added that 'an extraordinary band of music will perform'; and Mr. John Neale, 'hautboy from London,' accompanied 'Sweet Echo.' On February 10, Mrs. Arne was given a benefit at Aungier Street Theatre, when were produced a grand serenata, 'Love and Glory'—composed by Mr. Arne in honour of the Nuptials of His Royal Highness Frederick, Prince of Wales with the Princess Augusta—and 'Lucy in Town.' Sheridan had a benefit on February 21, at Smock Alley, when he appeared in 'Richard III.'

At the last concert of the season, at Fishamble Street Music Hall, on May 20, 1743, Mr. Arne performed a solo of his own composition. 'Rosamond' was announced to be performed at the Theatre Royal, Aungier Street, on May 27, but it had to be postponed owing to the illness of Mrs. Arne. However, it was performed on June 11, 'with much applause.'

For the opening of the season 1743-4, Mr. Dubourg and Mr. Arne announced that they would perform 'six oratorios of Mr. Handel's'; and both collaborated in the Birth-Day Ode of His Majesty, words by Rev. Lewis Burroughs, D.D., given on November 20.

In December, 1743, Mr. Arne published his scheme for four performances of 'King Alfred' and 'Abel,'—namely, two of each, 'both composed by Mr. Arne'; and he adds: 'Mr. Arne has for sale the vocal score of "Comus," price 7 shillings. He will also sell very reasonable [sic] a curious harpsichord from London, made by Kirchmann, Tabel's foreman.'

By command of the Viceroy and his lady, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, Arne conducted the 'Beggars' Opera,' at the Theatre Royal, Aungier Street, on December 8; and on December 21, he and Mrs. Arne assisted at a benefit for Signor Barbatielli.

On January 9, 1743-4, Mrs. Arne performed a comic part for the first time in the 'Dragon of Wantley'; and she had a benefit on January 28, when Mr. Arne appeared for the first time as an actor, taking the part of Henry, Prince of Wales, with dancing between the acts by M. Dumont and Madame Chateauneuf. Mrs. Arne appeared as Margery, at the benefit given to Mr. Sparks, on Thursday, February 9.

Mr. Arne produced the comedy of the 'Rehearsal' on March 1 (1743-4), at Aungier Street Theatre; and on March 15 he conducted the 'Beggars' Opera.' The Serenata of 'Alfred' was given by Arne on March 10, concluding with 'a favourable Ode in honour of Great Britain, beginning "When Britain first at heaven's Command."'

The biographer is beset with snares on every hand. In the first instalment of this sketch the misinformation of all previous writers on Arne was repeated—that concerning the first performance of his oratorio 'Judith' (p. 717). Since then we have discovered that 'Judith' obtained its first hearing three years earlier, in 1761, not 1764. Here is the information, derived from the advertisement columns of The Public Advertiser of February 27, 1761:—

At the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane,
This Day, will be performed a new sacred Oratorio call'd
JUDITH.
The Music composed by Dr. Arne, with a Concerto on the Organ.
Pit and Boxes will be laid together at Half a Guinea.
First Gallery 5s. Upper Gallery 3s. 6d.
Tickets for the Pit and Boxes may be had of Mr. Varney, at the State-Door of the Theatre.
To begin at half an hour after Six o'clock.

The same journal of the following day recorded the performance in these terms:—

Last Night the new sacred Oratorio call'd Judith, was performed at the Theatre Royal in Drury-lane, to a most polite Audience, who gave it the greatest Approbation and Applause ever known on the Occasion. (The Public Advertiser, February 28, 1761.)

The work, as one of the Lenten Oratorio performances at Drury Lane Theatre, was repeated on March 4 and 6, and again during Lent, in 1762.

The autograph score of Judith—'formerly the property of Mr. Bartleman, of Berners Street'—is now in the British Museum Library (Add. MSS., 11515-17), in three volumes, which have not wholly escaped the ravages of the binder. Some of the composer's directions are curious: 'No chords' occurs at certain places in the figured bass part, as indicating that the organist is to play only the bass notes; again, 'Bassoons in semibriefs'; and 'Take care of the Instrumental parts where I have mistaken the lines.' The terms (in the chorus) 'contra altos' and 'contra tenors,' against the present-day alto parts, seem to be somewhat loosely employed; but this is a doubtful point. At the end of the score, Arne has written the words, Laus Deo.

Among the solo singers who took part in the first performance was the celebrated Mrs. Theresa Cornelys, subsequently of Soho Square, whose name is Italianized in the original word-book as 'Mrs. Corneli'!

Mr. Frank Kidson, of Leeds, has kindly furnished the following information in regard to Arne's places of habitation in London.

Arne had certainly no dread of 'removals.' In January, 1740, he was at 17, Craven's Buildings, near Drury Lane. From there he issued his first work, 'The Musick in the Masque of Comus,' which was engraved for him by William Smith, a noted music engraver in Holborn, who worked for authors rather than publishers. Festing, Arne's master, had much of his work engraved by Smith. It is very probable that he was the Mr. Smith to whom Dr. Arne addressed the note you have quoted on p. 718, and who was a fellow glee-singer of Arne's. It is certain that the engraver was interested in Catches and Glees, for he was a subscriber (for 2 copies) in 1763 to Hall's 'Social Harmony.' As Mr. Smith was a worker in metal, Dr. Arne's anvil allusion is explained!

Unless I am mistaken, Arne resided in Golden Square. Mrs. Cibber was here in 1746 'in the centre house.' Before Arne had published his Opera quarta (Book I. of Lyric Harmony') he had gone to reside at Great Queen, Street, near Lincoln's Inn Fields, conveniently near to Drury Lane Theatre. In 1754 he was in Charles Street, Covent Garden, and in 1761 he lived in a house 'in the Piazza, next the Church, Covent Garden,' from whence he published his 'Thomas and Sally,' issuing the work in folio at his own expense, John Walsh, the celebrated music publisher, afterwards buying the plates and copyright. About 1767-8, as we see by Dr. Cummings's letter (p. 718), he was in West Street, Soho, and he died in Bow Street, Covent Garden.

It would be interesting to know in what way Dr. Arne seems to have offended pompous Sir John Hawkins, who in the whole of his five large volumes comprising his History of Music, has not a single reference to the composer of 'Rule, Britannia' or his music.

The early years of Arne's life were not unlike those of his famous contemporary, Handel. There is no doubt that during his professional career the English composer was overshadowed by the great German master. Considering that for forty years they pursued contemporaneously in London the more or less uneven tenor of their ways, it seems strange that Handel's biographers scarcely mention the name of Arne. That he (Arne) had no great affection for his German rival, before whose serious works his own sank into insignificance, is proved by the elaborate parody so ably described by Mr. Julian Marshall in Concordia of January 22, 1876. The title of this work, issued seventeen years after Handel's death, and of which the libretto is in all probability by Arne, is as follows:—

Whittington's Feast; | A New Parody on | Alexander's Feast. | Written by a College Wag. | The overture, songs, &c., with all the grand | choruses, new composed | by Thomas Augustine Arne | Doctor of Music.

It would be interesting to know if Arne met little Wolfgang Mozart during the visit of the latter to London in 1764-5. Otto Jahn is silent on this point.

Parke describes Arne as 'rather an eccentric man.' There is no doubt that he was not appreciated in his day, being looked upon as a musical hack who wrote for the theatres. He himself speaks of a composer as 'a poor devil of a crotchet-monger.' Dibdin records that he had 'a cheerful and even temper which enabled him to endure a precarious pittance.' In the later years of his life he wrote his own librettos, e.g., Artaxerxes, The Guardian Outwitted, The Rose, &c., and in so doing furnished proof that his literary attainments were far inferior to his genius as a composer, notwithstanding his own assertion that he was a better poet than musician! To the 'appreciation' of him as a musician by the late John Hullah may be added these words by Sir Hubert Parry: 'Arne left a permanent mark upon the nation by his admirable tunes, such as "Rule, Britannia," and "Where the bee sucks."' Ouseley referred to him as 'the first Englishman who can fairly be called an original composer of dramatic music in the eighteenth century'; and Mr. J. S. Shedlock, in his admirable treatise 'The Pianoforte Sonata,' gives Dr. Arne as the first English composer to write a sonata for the harpsichord alone, and says 'Arne's sonatas, if not great, contain some neat, melodious writing.'

An amusing Arne anecdote is related by Dr. Busby (Concert room and Orchestra Anecdotes of Music and Musicians, vol. iii., p. 136), of which it may be said se non è vero, è ben trovato. Here it is:—

The Doctor [Arne] went to Cannons, the seat of the late Duke of Chandos, to assist at the performance of an oratorio [doubtless by Handel] in the Chapel of Whitchurch; but such was the throng of company, that no provisions were to be procured at the Duke's house. On going to the Chandos Arms, in the town of Edgeware, he made his way into the kitchen, where he found only a leg of mutton on the spit. This, the waiter informed him, was bespoken by a party of gentlemen. The Doctor (rubbing his elbow—his usual habit) exclaimed, 'I'll have that mutton—give me a fiddle-string.' He took the fiddle-string, cut it in pieces, and privately sprinkling it over the mutton, walked out of the kitchen. Then waiting very patiently till the waiter had served it up, he heard one of the gentlemen exclaim 'Waiter! this meat is full of maggots, take it away.' This was what the Doctor expected. 'Here, give it me.' 'O, sir,' says the waiter, 'you can't eat it, 'tis full of maggots.' 'O, never mind, cries the Doctor, 'fiddlers have strong stomachs.' So bearing it away, and scraping off the cat-gut, he got a hearty dinner.

The following is a catalogue of the various compositions by Dr. Arne, though it is to be feared that the list is not so complete as one could wish. It is very difficult to gather together all the titles—for instance, it was only the other day that, in turning over the leaves of the General Advertiser of 1750, we came across an advertisement of a concert to be given (on April 3, 1750), by Master Jonathan Snow, a youth nine years of age, doubtless a son of Handel's trumpeter. This juvenile music-making was announced 'to conclude with A Grand piece of Musick call'd An Ode to Chearfulness, composed by Mr. Arne.' No mention of this Snowdonian music is made by Dr. Arne's biographers, nor of a 'New serenata of one act call'd Beauty and Virtue, written on the late Royal nuptials.'* This work was announced to be performed at Drury Lane in 1762, when Arne directed the Lenten oratorios at that theatre.

COMPOSITIONS.

Operas, Cantatas, and other Dramatic Pieces.

Rosamond	1733	Love in a village (chiefly compiled)	1762
Tom Thumb the Great ('Set to music after the Italian Manner')	1733	The Birth of Hercules (not acted)	1763
Dido and Æneas ..	1733	The Guardian Outwitted. Words also by Arne	1764
The Fall of Phaeton ..	1736	Olimpiade (Italian opera)	1765
Music in Zara.. ..	1736	The Ladies' Frolick (Comic opera, partly composed by a Mr. Bates)	1770
Comus (Masque) ..	1738	Additions to Purcell's King Arthur ..	1770
An hospital for fools, a dramatic fable ..	1739	The Fairy Prince (Masque) ..	1771 (or 3)
The Judgment of Paris	1740	The Cooper (comic opera). Words also by Arne	1772
Alfred (which contains 'Rule, Britannia')..	1740	Elfrida, Music in Mason's Tragedy of	1772
Songs in As you like it	1740	Reffley Spring† ..	1772
Songs in Twelfth Night	1741	The Trip to Portsmouth (Overture and dances) ..	1772 (?)
The Blind Beggar of Bethnal Green ..	1741	The Rose	1773
Songs in The Merchant of Venice.. ..	1742	The Contest of Beauty and Virtue	1773
Britannia (Masque) ..	1743	Achilles in Petticoats	1773
Eliza (English opera)	1743	May Day, or the little Gypsy (Opera) ..	1775
The Temple of Dulness	1745	Phœbe in Court ..	1776
King Pepin's Campaign	1745	Caractacus, Music in Mason's	1776
Music in the Tempest	1746
Neptune and Amphitrite	1746
Don Saverio	1749
The solemn Dirge in Romeo and Juliet ..	1750
Cymon and Iphigenia (a cantata) ..	1750 (?)
The Prophetess ..	1759
The Sultan	1759
Thomas and Sally	1760 (?)
Artaxerxes (opera) ..	1762

* Doubtless the marriage of George III. to the Princess Charlotte, on September 8, 1761.

† According to the title-page, Reffley Spring rises in a little wood about two miles from King's Lynn, in Norfolk.

In addition to the above, he composed many incidental songs, &c., for other plays—e.g., The Tender Husband, The Rehearsal, The Rival Queens, or the Death of Alexander the Great, Almena, &c.

Oratorios—The Death of Abel, 174-? and Judith, words by J. Bickerstaff, 1761. The autograph manuscript of the latter oratorio (to which refer on p. 799) is in the library of the British Museum. Add. MSS., 11515-17.

An Ode upon dedicating a building to Shakespeare, which was erected by the subscription of the Noblemen and Gentlemen in the neighbourhood of Stratford-upon-Avon, 1769.

Love and glory, a grand Serenata in honour of the marriage of Frederick, Prince of Wales, with the Princess Augusta.

Six cantatas for a voice and instruments (1756).

—

Eight overtures, in eight parts, four for violins, hoboys or German flutes, and four for violins, French horns, &c.

Six medley or comic overtures, in seven parts, for violins and hoboys, with a bass for the harpsichord and violoncello, compos'd by Dr. Arne, Lampe, Clarke, &c. (No. 1, in G, by Arne).

Seven sonatas for two violins, with a thorough bass for the harpsichord or violoncello. Opera terza.

Eight sonatas, or lessons for the harpsichord.*

Six favourite concertos for the organ, harpsichord, or pianoforte, with instrumental parts for Public and Private concerts.

—

Collections of his songs appeared under the following titles:—

Lyric Harmony (with 'Colin and Phœbe,' in score). Two vols. (Book 1 is opera quarta.)

The Agreeable Musical Choice.

Summer Amusement. (Printed for the Author and sold at Pearce's China Shop in the Piazza, next King Street, Covent Garden.)

The Winter's Amusement.

The Syren.

Vocal Melody.

The Vocal Grove, 1774.

There are nearly twenty books of songs sung at Vauxhall, Ranelagh and Marylebone Gardens.

Thirteen glees, ten catches, and six canons are printed in Warren's and other Collections.

The Shakespeare Ode in the above catalogue contains a semi-chorus which has 'a strict fuge for 4 voices' in 'Chapel time.' The 'Six Favourite Concertos' was a posthumous publication. From the publishers' (Harrison and Co.) 'advertisement' thereto, it appears that they purchased of Michael Arne (the composer's son) the copyright of all his father's unpublished works. Dr. Arne wished to issue these particular concertos during his lifetime by subscription, for which he had prepared the following observations by way of dedication, preface, or advertisement:—

To all Ladies and Gentlemen, performers on the Organ, Harpsichord, or Piano e Forte—and every skilful Professor, who liberally wishes to promote a work, which has been executed with the utmost attention, and is offered as an humble contribution towards their general endeavours to cultivate among their pupils an elegant and masterly stile of performance, which they can never possibly attain, by employing their own and master's time merely on puerile productions.

* A Minuet with variations, and Allegro, by Dr. Arne, edited by the late Frederick Westlake (No. 7 of Lyra Studentium), is published by Edwin Ashdown, Ltd.

As an example of Arne's dramatic intuitiveness, his directions prefixed to the music of the Solemn Dirge in 'Romeo and Juliet,' may also be quoted:—

At the beginning of the procession the Trumpets advance with the Kettle Drums and sound the following Solemn notes between which the Bell tolls, till they are off the stage. [The second trumpet and kettle drums are directed to be 'muffled.']

No account of Dr. Arne would be complete without further mention of his gifted sister, Susannah Maria Arne, four years his junior, and his earliest pupil. When only twenty years of age she married that 'ugly ruffian' Theophilus Cibber, son of Colley of that ilk, and she achieved great fame, if she did not enjoy conjugal happiness, as Mrs. Cibber. A curious instance of her brother's devotion came out in a trial—Theophilus Cibber, Gent., Plaintiff, v. William Sloper, Esq., Defendant—heard in the Court of King's Bench, December 5, 1738. From the evidence of one Stint—'a candle-snuffer at the play-house'—it appears that Arne headed a mob of over a hundred strong and broke into Mr. Stint's house in order to release his (Arne's) sister, who was detained in the candle-snuffer's habitation!

Mrs. Cibber's voice 'was indescribably plaintive, and her powers of expression enabled her to impress most forcibly upon the mind of the hearer the meaning of the language to which she gave utterance.' How much there is in this important qualification! Burney says: 'She captivated every ear by the sweetness and expression of her voice in singing.' Moreover, her remarkable histrionic gifts amounted to genius. 'Her rich plaintive voice, her sensibility, and power of identifying herself with the characters she had to portray,' combined to make her the greatest tragic actress of her day. One of her most recent biographers (Sir Theodore Martin, in the 'Dictionary of National Biography') says: 'Her studies as an actress had no doubt given to her singing the quality of strong emotional expression, based upon that thorough understanding of the author's purpose, which gives to acting, as it does to singing, its principal charm.'

The fact that Handel wrote his contralto solos in the Messiah and the part of Micah in Samson expressly for Mrs. Cibber, is an indication of the esteem in which he held her wonderful powers of vocal expression. At the first performance of the Messiah—Dublin, April 13, 1742—after Mrs. Cibber had sung 'He was despised,' Dr. Delany, the friend and companion of Swift, got up, and in moving tones said aloud—'Woman, for this be all thy sins forgiven thee!' It may not be without interest to give a contemporary account of the first performance of Handel's great oratorio as recorded in the leading Dublin newspaper of the day:—

On Tuesday last Mr. Handel's Sacred Grand Oratorio, the Messiah, was performed in the New Musick-Hall in Fishamble-street; the best Judges allowed it to be the most finished piece of Musick. Words are wanting to express the exquisite Delight it afforded to the admiring crouded Audience. The Sublime, the Grand, and the Tender, adapted to the moſt elevated, majeſtick and moving Words, conſpired to tranſport and charm the raviſhed Heart & Ear. It is but Juſtice to Mr. Handel, that the World ſhould know, he generouſly gave the Money ariſing from this Grand Performance, to be equally ſhared by the Society for relieving Priſoners, the Charitable Infirmary, and Mercer's Hoſpital, for which they will for ever gratefully remember his Name; & that the Gentlemen of the two Choirs, Mr. Dubourg, Mrs. Avolio, and Mrs. Cibber, who all performed their Parts to Admiration, acted alſo on the same diſinterested Principle, ſatiſfied with the deſerved Applauſe of the Publick, & the conſcious Pleaſure of promoting ſuch uſeful & extenſive Charity. There were above 700 People in the Room, and the Sum collected for that Noble & Pious Charity amounted to about 400*l*, out of which 127*l* goes to each of the three great & pious Charities. (Faulkner's Journal, April 13 17, 1742.)

Mrs. Cibber predeceased her brother. She died at her house in Scotland Yard, January 30, 1766, and is buried in the North cloister of Westminster Abbey.

The caricature by Rowlandson, which we reproduce above, has been kindly lent by Sir Frederick Bridge. The 'Musical Doctor' has always been regarded as Dr. Arne. But as the Doctor died in 1778, and Rowlandson did not begin his caricaturing career till 1781, there is just a doubt as to whether the central figure in the proof is the composer of 'Rule, Britannia.' This scepticism, however, does not detract from the comicality of the drawing, especially the unprofessional and domestic nature of the lower part of the picture.

For kind help in the preparation of this article grateful acknowledgment is made to Dr. W. H. Cummings; Mr. Leopold Dix, of Dublin; Mr. William H. Grattan Flood, of Enniscorthy; Mr. Burnham W. Horner, the author of an interesting little monograph on Arne, read before the Sette of Odd Volumes; Mr. C. T. Johnson, for the loan of his copy of the Bartolozzi caricature; Mr. Frank Kidson, of Leeds; Mr. Robert A. Marr, of Edinburgh; and the Rev. E. H. Mosse, M.A., Rector of St. Paul's, Covent Garden.

F. G. E.

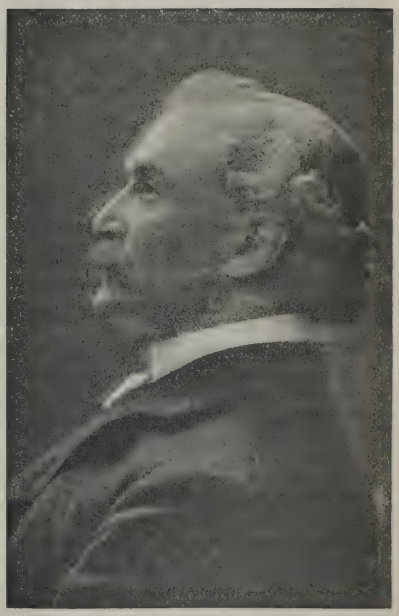
OCCASIONAL NOTES.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS OF THE DAY:—

Sir Frederick Bridge	December 5.
Charles W. Pearce	,, 5.
John E. West	,, 7.
Pietro Mascagni	,, 7.
Algernon Ashton	,, 9.
Wilhelm Kuhe	,, 10.
Henry Gadsby	,, 15.
Charles L. Graves	,, 15.
Moritz Rosenthal	,, 18.
Stephen S. Stratton	,, 19.
Ernst Pauer	,, 21.
George B. Arnold	,, 22.
Edouard de Reszke	,, 22.
Alan Gray	,, 23.
Enrique Fernandez Arbos	,, 25.
William Henry Hadow	,, 27.
Henry Hiles	,, 31.

The recent Sammelbände der Internationalen Musikgesellschaft (October-December, 1901), contains an interesting article by Mr. N. Kilburn, of Bishop Auckland, on the subject of 'Additional accompaniments to Handel's Acis.' Mr. Kilburn's paper resolves itself into a careful and complete comparison between the original Handel and the Mozart and the Mendelssohn versions of the orchestral score, a profitable study, in fact, on the instrumentation methods of the three composers. But in justice to Mendelssohn, his re-scoring of the work—a task of the year 1828, as Mr. Kilburn says—should be leniently judged as being, more or less, in the light of a youthful indiscretion. His letters to Devrient, in 1833, furnish abundant proof of this. He says: 'I consider that this matter of re-instrumenting requires the utmost conscientiousness.' He was very anxious to regain possession of the parts he had prepared (at the age of 19) for the Berlin Singakademie performance, but apparently without result; therefore, with this knowledge, it is a pity the additions were ever published. The above-mentioned masters are not the only musicians that have supplied additional accompaniments to 'Acis and Galatea'; Cipriani Potter, in 1831; Tom Cooke, in 1842; and Costa in 1858; thus there are five at least who have tried their hands at the business. The stage representations in England of Handel's tuneful serenata may furnish a subject for consideration on some future occasion.

Mr. Hermann Klein, the well-known teacher of singing on the method of his distinguished master, the veteran Manuel Garcia, is, we regret to learn, about to leave London and settle in New York. He was born at Norwich, July 23, 1856, and owes not a little to the benefit he derived, during a residence of two years in Liverpool, from listening to the weekly organ recitals given by the late W. T. Best. He made the acquaintance of Mr. Garcia in a curious way. For ten years—about 1872 to 1882—the great teacher occupied two rooms on the ground floor of the house in Bentinck Street (London) where Hermann Klein and his parents resided. He overheard numberless lessons that Garcia gave to his many distinguished pupils, and, in the overhearing, picked up much practical knowledge at an impressionable period of his life. He himself studied under Mr. Garcia



MR. HERMANN KLEIN.
(From a Photograph by Mr. H. S. Mendelssohn, Pembridge Crescent.)

for four years—1874 to 1878. But he did not at once, on the termination of his pupilage, start in practice as a teacher of singing. He went through a self-imposed apprenticeship, so to speak, in the study of a voice, its upbuilding, its capabilities, and so on, all the while observing, comparing, and equipping himself by practical experiments. At the actual commencement of his tuition period he came to the conclusion that most European languages interfered with the production of tone as based on the Italian vowels. From 1881 to 1886 he steadily worked out the ideas he had formed on this subject, and, as he maintains, with successful results.

As a professor of singing at the Guildhall School of Music for fourteen years, and director of the operatic class during 1891, in addition to private pupils, Mr. Klein has had abundant experience in the subject which he proposes to teach in America. For thirty years he has made operatic vocalization a special study. He visited Paris, Brussels, Madrid, and Seville in company with the late Sir Augustus Harris on operatic business. The debut (in 1887), as a tenor, of Jean de Reszke in Italian Opera in London, furnished developments of the utmost importance, without which modern operatic art would be incomplete—i.e., the perfect blending of the declamatory and the cantabile in vocalization. It was at Mr. Klein's urgent request that Jean de Reszke sang the operas of Wagner in the German language, and he holds that this great singer is a model of an artist—one who is equally perfect in Wagnerian interpretations as in the lightest of operas. It is in the acquirement of this 'dual art,' as Mr. Klein designates it, that he proposes to instruct American singers in their own language. A letter of recommendation which he has received from Manuel Garcia—now in his ninety-seventh year—may be given :—

Mon Abri, Cricklewood,
London.

My Dear Mr. Klein,

I hear you are going to live in America, and to establish yourself there as a teacher of singing.

At a moment when the art of singing is in a condition of decadence, I am glad to be able to express my confidence in your ability to carry on those traditions which I imparted to you during a period of four years.

It is gratifying to me to know that the great American people appreciate the sound theories of the old school, and they will assuredly find in you one among its few capable exponents.

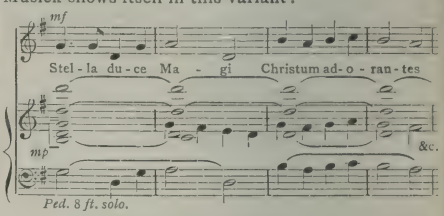
Wishing you every success,
Believe me,
Yours very sincerely,
M. Garcia.

With such testimony to his qualifications, the success of Mr. Klein in America may be assured.

Mr. Klein has been a member of the London press for upwards of twenty-five years—first as musical critic of the now defunct Examiner, and since 1881 of the Sunday Times. For several years past he has been the London correspondent on musical matters for the Scotsman and Manchester Guardian, in which dual capacity he has had to telegraph nightly notices of operatic performances and important concerts during the London musical season. He was also on the staff of the Musical Times for a considerable period, and his annual volumes of 'Musical Notes,' issued from 1886 to 1889, are useful books of reference. He lectured, in 1897, on 'The progress of Opera during the Queen's reign.'

Herr Nicholas Manskopf proposes to organise a special British Exhibition in connection with the English section of his Musical Museum at Frankfort-on-the-Main during the approaching year of the Coronation. Herr Manskopf, who is a frequent visitor to our shores, and who takes much interest in English music, anticipates the kind co-operation of composers, performers, and others interested in the art in aiding him to make his Exhibition as comprehensive as possible. In this respect we may bespeak for him a cordial response to any application he may make for a signed photograph, a few bars of music, or any other personal memento of our music-makers and music-makings.

The 'Adeste Fideles' is an evergreen theme at Christmastide. The fine old tune, however, comes before us in a new and interesting form—the complete Latin text of eight verses with varied accompaniments by the same number of composers—in Messrs. Novello's Cantiones Sacræ series. Among the octet of musicians who contribute to this novel presentation of the familiar Christmas melody are Sir Walter Parratt and Sir Hubert H. Parry. We cannot refrain from giving a four-bar specimen from the version of each of these worthy knights. The reflective temperament of the Master of the King's Musick shows itself in this variant :—



The contrapuntal resource and the characteristic vivacity of the Director of the Royal College of Music are no less exemplified in this highly ingenious example :—

The remaining contributors are Mr. H. B. Collins, the Rev. S. Ould (Editor of the Cantiones Sacræ), Dr. C. W. Pearce, Mr. W. Sewell, Dr. A. E. Tozer, and Mr. S. P. Waddington, while Dr. F. E. Gladstone is responsible for an introduction. As these variations are equally suited to the English text of the hymn, the usefulness of the publication at the approaching Nativity season is of such a nature as to appeal to organists and choirmasters of churches generally.

The centenary of the birth of Albert Lortzing, the composer of 'Czar und Zimmermann,' which occurred on October 23, was celebrated all over Germany and in Austria by special performances of one or more of his ever-popular operas. It is a curious fact, by the way, that, until recent times, Lortzing's birth has, upon the strength of the composer's own explicit statement, been stated by all his biographers as having occurred in the year 1803. The genial master, always more or less preoccupied with the problem of how to exist with his wife and family upon a totally inadequate income, was apt to become oblivious in regard to mere biographical trifles concerning himself. It occurred, however, to his son, Hans Lortzing, to verify the date, when, on looking through the baptismal register of the church of St. Peter, Berlin, he discovered the true date to be the 23rd of October, 1801. Thus the son may be said to have been the means of adding two years 'posthumously' to the life of his distinguished father—at all events so far as the musical dictionaries are concerned!

Dr. Edward Elgar's Orchestral Variations were recently produced in Berlin by the Royal Orchestra, under Herr Weingartner. Dr. Otto Lessmann, the foremost of German musical critics, greets the splendid work with a genuine trumpet-blast of enthusiastic appreciation, which will, we hope, be heard throughout musical circles of the Fatherland, and find an echo amongst those musicians and music lovers who can and wish to appreciate the great and beautiful in art whatever its country of origin, and however strange-sounding and unknown the composer's name. After referring to Dr. Elgar's 'Dream of Gerontius,' which Dr. Lessmann heard in Birmingham last year, he writes as follows in the Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung of the 15th ult.:—

'In Elgar, an English artist has arisen who has the courage to be himself,—one whose horizon is wider than that of his composing compatriots, and who above all strives not to imitate, but to draw upon his own imagination only, and to find his own particular tone-language for what he has to express. These Variations, and an overture 'Cockaigne,' which I have had the pleasure of reading in Score, have confirmed me in my opinion that England may put her hope for the progress of her musical art in the creative work of Edward Elgar; moreover, these works should convince, if not the public, at any rate cultured and unprejudiced musicians, of Elgar's exceptional talent, of his high aim and extraordinary technical equipment. . . . What the work reveals in respect of inventive power, brilliant (geistvoll) workmanship, and sovereign command of the means of expression, equals the best which has been produced anywhere—in the way of orchestral variations—since Beethoven. I do not hesitate, taking them as a whole, to place them on a level with Brahms's famous Haydn-Variations, and even above them as regards the exploitation and handling of the orchestra. . . . An indescribably brilliant performance proved that Herr Weingartner and his orchestra had studied the work with love and enthusiasm. As we have in this case really to do with a great talent, and a work of importance, it would be well if Herr Weingartner repeated the Variations at one of the next concerts. I feel convinced that he would thereby render a service to many serious music lovers amongst his audience, and also to the work itself!

These Elgar 'Variations,' by the way, bid fair to make the round of continental cities. To Professor Julius Buths, of Düsseldorf, belongs the honour of introducing them to a German audience. Since then they have been heard at Mayence (under Professor Fritz Volbach), Wiesbaden (under Professor Franz Mannstaedt), and Berlin (under Herr Weingartner). Early in December they are to be produced at Brussels, under M. Ysaye, while Herr Weingartner has announced them also for Munich. Perhaps the United States, which, in matters musical, always take their cue from Germany, may now be expected to follow suit. The first performance abroad of Dr. Elgar's 'Dream of Gerontius' will take place at Düsseldorf, on the 19th inst., under the direction of Professor Buths. That enthusiastic conductor has provided a really poetical and singable translation of the poem: a very difficult task very ably accomplished. Of this auspicious event, to take place on the 19th inst., more anon.

The Madrigal Society inaugurated the 162nd season on the 21st ult., at the Holborn Restaurant, with one of their pleasant evenings of unaccompanied vocal music. The President, The Lord Chief Justice (Lord Alverstone), occupied the chair and sang his part with all the enthusiasm of the youngest member present. As the opening evening happened to fall upon the anniversary of Purcell's death, 'In these delightful pleasant groves,' was sung, under the genial direction of Sir Frederick Bridge.

A Biographical Sketch of Dr. Boyce appeared in our issue of July. As tending towards a complete compilation of that composer's works, the following manuscript music by him—autograph and copies—in the library of the Royal College of Music, may be added to that already given:—

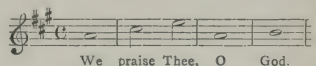
Ode to Charity. For the Leicester Infirmary, 1771. The words by Joseph Cradock, Esq., who gave Dr. Boyce 100 guineas for composing the music.

David's Lamentation over Saul. An oratorio by John Lockman. Full score. Partly autograph.

'Thou soft invader' (duet) and 'Proclaim it through all the east' (chorus), for the Serenata 'Solomon,' differing from those contained in the printed score of the work. In full score.

The Secular Masque, written in the year 1700 by John Dryden. Full score. Autograph.

Te Deum and Jubilate. Verse service in A♯—3d. Vocal score. Autograph. Also thirteen separate voice parts and an organ part. The Te Deum, published with the twelve anthems issued by Boyce's widow in 1790, begins:—



'Blessed is He that considereth the sick and needy.' Anthem. Full score. (Cf. British Museum list, p. 446.)

'Blessed is the man that feareth the Lord.' Anthem. Autograph. Score.

The music in John Home's tragedy of 'Agis.' Full score. Autograph.

Concerto in D minor, for Hautboys and Strings.

The Masque in Shakespeare's play of 'The Tempest.' Full score (Copy).

[This music, consisting of a song, two duets, and two recitatives for the characters of Ceres and Hymen, was written for one of the altered versions of the play. Cf. Bodleian list, p. 444.]

Twelve Sonatas for two violins and bass. In score. [Printed in separate parts.]

Anthems: 'Give the King Thy judgments' and 'Sing praises unto the Lord' (copies in the handwriting of Dr. Benjamin Cooke); 'The Lord is my light,' 'Blessed is he' (two voices), and 'Blessed is the man.' (Copies in the handwriting of James Marquet, Lay Vicar of Westminster Abbey.)

'Shall the Son of Saturn' (Recit.) and 'The fatal blessing I resign' (air), from the Masque of 'Pleus and Thetis.' Copied from the autograph score in the Bodleian Library by Edward Taylor, Gresham Professor of Music, from 1837 to 1863.

Birthday Ode. 1758. Copy. Original autograph in the Bodleian Library.

Dr. W. H. Cummings reports the following Boyce manuscripts as among the treasures in his valuable library:—

'The souls of the righteous are in the hands of God.' Funeral Anthem for King George II., 1760. Orchestral full score. [Another copy in the Bodleian Library. See The Musical Times, July, 1901, p. 445.]

Solomon. A Serenata. Orchestral full score. [Cf. list of compositions in the Royal College of Music library given above, and British Museum list, p. 446.]

Ode. Hercules, thou son of Jove.

Ode. Lo, on the thorny bed.

Recit. and air. Parent of blooming flowers.

Mr. Robert Newman favours us with a long list of orchestral works performed for the first time in London at Queen's Hall between September 14 and November 2 of the present year. Of the thirty-one Metropolitan first-timers in this catalogue, twelve are by British composers. Good!

The Proceedings of the Musical Association, recording the operations of the twenty-seventh season —1900-1901—include the following papers :—

On the Musical Introductions found in certain Metrical Psalters. By Sir John Stainer.
The Teachings of Harmony as a basis of Ear Training. By Frank J. Sawyer.
The Balalaïka. By Algernon S. Rose.
Music and Musicians of the Walloon Provinces of Belgium. By W. W. Cobbett.
The Chester Recorders. By Joseph C. Bridge.
A 17th Century View of Musical Education. By Sir Frederick Bridge.
The Æsthetic Treatment of Bach's Organ Music. By H. Heathcote Statham.
Musicians' Ears. By Miss Miriam A. Ellis.
Chromaticism in Harmony. By Herbert Westerby.

At the annual dinner, held at the Holborn Restaurant, on the 12th ult., Sir Frederick Bridge, in one of his happiest after-dinner speeches, assumed the rôle of a recruiting sergeant for the Musical Association, and his remarks not only enlisted the attention of his fellow diners but enlisted some new members. Mr. Walter Macfarren, in felicitously proposing the health of the chairman, Sir Hubert Parry, said that, half-a-century ago, 'when Sir Hubert was a baby, he (Mr. Macfarren) gave some pianoforte lessons to the chairman's father, the late Mr. Gambier Parry,' of whom Mr. Macfarren spoke in appreciative terms. 'My brother, Sir George Macfarren,' continued the speaker, 'gave Sir Hubert some lessons in harmony and counterpoint, and I remember his telling me what a bright youth Hubert Parry was, and how promising he considered him to be.' These autobiographic touches in Mr. Macfarren's happily expressed remarks were much appreciated by the large company, who listened with interest and pleasure to the first movement of a melodious Trio (in B flat), by Dr. C. Harford Lloyd, for the unusual combination of pianoforte, clarinet, and bassoon, ably performed by the composer, Mr. G. A. Clinton, and Mr. E. F. James. Sir Hubert Parry has been elected President of the Association, in succession to the late Sir John Stainer. The right man in the right place.

'Orchestral and Choral Balance' formed the subject of an interesting paper, read by Mr. John E. Borland before the Musical Association on the 12th ult., Dr. W. H. Cummings in the chair. After treating the matter from an historical point of view, the lecturer deduced the following practical points :—

Figures are useless when comparing old bands with the modern full orchestra, because the latter acquires, in eight or ten brass instruments, greater power than is possessed by four times that number of the strings and wood-wind of the old bands.

Acoustics of buildings must be taken into account. No two buildings are quite alike, and neither architects nor acousticians have yet formulated any reliable rules for our guidance. Satisfactory balance must be discovered in each case by experiment.

The position of individual players and listeners makes considerable difference in the effect of orchestras and choirs with regard to balance. But this is unavoidable; and after all, balance and blend are not everything in music. Antiphonal, conversational, and contrasted effects are equally important.

Lastly, the main responsibility for securing a practically satisfactory balance rests on the conductor. He, unfortunately, rarely hears his own band and choir properly, owing to his proximity to them, but much can be done by adequate sectional rehearsals, and by long experience of the same concert-room. Figures are worthless by themselves as authorities for regulating the proportions of bands and choirs, and can be ignored entirely in practice.

'Mr. Manns: an appreciation,' formed the title of an article, written above the well-known initials 'C. L. G.', in the Spectator of the 16th ult. The concluding words fitly sum up the subject of the article :—

Among our veterans there is no more picturesque or intrepid a personality than that of Mr. August Manns, and to the old Sydenham habitués the thought of a Saturday Concert without the familiar presence of that alert, soldierly figure, with its snowy hair and impatient boyish gesture, is indeed a case of Hamlet minus the Royal Dane.

Those who, like the present writer, have pleasant recollections of bygone Saturday afternoons at the Crystal Palace, with their delightful memories of the genial 'G' (the late Sir George Grove), will be prepared to endorse every word that 'C. L. G.' has written in his excellent 'appreciation' of the veteran and greatly esteemed August Manns.

Mr. W. H. Bell, the young composer of 'A Song in the morning,' produced at this year's Gloucester Musical Festival, has been asked by the Directors of the London Philharmonic Society to submit a new work for production during their forthcoming season. Mr. Bell will probably have no difficulty in complying with the request of the Directors. Those who heard his 'A Song in the morning' at the Promenade Concerts, performed under Mr. Wood's baton, will have come away with a much higher opinion of Mr. Bell's gifts than the Gloucester performance, under the composer himself, could possibly have given them.

The Globe records the following incident :—

A case of assault was brought against the landlord of a provincial public-house by four itinerant musicians. They had, it seems, just entered the bar and struck up the opening notes of 'Home, sweet home,' when the landlord appeared on the scene and ejected them with quite unnecessary violence. The landlord pleaded that he was merely returning their attentions. He was, he said, beating four in a bar.

But did the policeman on the beat arrive in time, with his baton, to conduct the landlord from his home, sweet home to between other bars? In the vernacular of Mark Twain, the guardian of the law probably played his part in that vile inn soon arter.

'An hour with Henry Lawes' was the subject of an interesting paper read before the Incorporated Society of Musicians (London Section) on the 9th ult. In the course of his—may we say?—legal researches, has Sir Frederick discovered the source of the well-known double chant in C, by Lawes?

The Liverpool Post reports the receipt of the following amusing note from 'an old friend' :—

The other day I went to the choral service at the Cathedral Church at 5 p.m. Looking to see what the anthem was to be, on the list which is hung up in the porch, I was amused to find it put down as follows :—

'It is a good thing.—Bridge.'

So you see the game has episcopal commendation.

Moral: It is not always a good thing to abridge.

He. What English composer is like a reply?
She. Arne, sir!

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

HISTORICAL NOTES ON MENDELSSOHN'S OPUS 72.*

These six little pieces for the pianoforte were composed by Mendelssohn in England. In the summer of 1842 he paid his seventh visit to London, on which occasion he was accompanied by his young wife, this being her first and only acquaintance with the 'smoky nest,' to use Mendelssohn's definition of the Metropolis. They stayed for six weeks with some relatives of Frau Mendelssohn—the Benecke family, who resided on Denmark Hill, in the South of London. The home and pleasant garden of the Beneckes' had a strong attraction for the composer. An abortive search for lodgings in town resulted in the remark he addressed to his hostess: 'Those rooms in London are so stuffy after this pleasant house; may we stay here all the time?' A cordial 'yea' to this request gave equal pleasure to host, hostess and guests. It was here, and during this visit, that Mendelssohn wrote his well-known Song without Words in A (No. 30). Moreover, a son of the house afterwards married Mendelssohn's elder daughter, Marie.

Always fond of children, Mendelssohn became on the most friendly terms with the juveniles of 'Benecke Castle,' as he was pleased to call the Denmark Hill house. Nothing gave him greater pleasure than to enter into the enjoyment of their pranks and pleasures. As 'Peter Meffert'—his self-assumed nick-name—he composed for them a highly comical Bear's Dance for the pianoforte which has the following amusing title in his own English:—

> The real, genuine, warranted Bärentanz, as performed with unbounded applause at the Denmark Hill Chamber Concerts, composed and dedicated (by permission) to the Gooseberry-eaters at Benecke Castle, by their humble colleague and servant, Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy, usually called Peter Meffert.

But this was not the only Mendelssohn composition that those merry little folks called into existence. In two sixpenny manuscript music-books he wrote eight little pieces for the pianoforte, of which six only were subsequently published. The autograph manuscripts are model specimens of Mendelssohn's calligraphy in music, even to the corrections. No. 1 (of those published) is thus inscribed:—

> An Lilli Benecke zur freundlichen Erinnerung an Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy (eigentlich Peter Meffert). London, 24. Juni 1842.

No. 3 of the set, composed three days earlier than that on Midsummer-day (No. 1), is similarly dedicated to Edward Benecke.

There was no thought at that time of this octet of pieces being published. But that Mendelssohn regarded them as something more than jeux d'esprit is evident, in that they—or rather six of them—were among the last of his compositions that he revised for the press. The original English edition appeared late in the year 1847, shortly after the composer's death, as Op. 72, with the following title:—

> Six pieces for the Pianoforte, composed as a Christmas present for his young friends, by Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy.

It may be of interest to add that, in Mendelssohn's autograph, No. 5 is differently barred throughout: the piece begins at the first beat of the bar, not at the third beat, as in the printed version.

* These Notes form the preface to a new edition of Mendelssohn's 'Christmas Pieces' (so called), carefully phrased and fingered by Mr. A. Rosenkranz, and just issued by Messrs. Novello.

RUSSIAN AND ENGLISH MUSIC AND MUSICAL CRITICS.

Two important articles on music in the Reviews call for special mention. The first, in the Edinburgh Review for October, has for its theme the up-to-date subject of 'Recent Russian Music in England.' The writer—it is an open secret that it is Mr. C. A. Barry—gives a very lucid and interesting, yet comprehensive survey of Russian music and composers; moreover, these twenty-six pages, with a copious supply of dates, furnish a most useful résumé of the subject that is invaluable to writers on music. The author gives the year 1857 as the first appearance of a Russian composer in England—viz., Anton Rubinstein at the Philharmonic; Glinka, in his overture 'Life for the Czar,' he traces to the Crystal Palace in 1860. Is this the earliest date in this country for the latter composer? It would not be safe to say for certain when the subject of Russian music was brought before English musicians, but we may point to a series of four articles which appeared in the Musical World, July to August, 1840, entitled 'On the present state of music in Russia'; these articles were translations of a series of letters written to La France Musicale by Adolphe Adam, relating his experiences of a journey to the land of the Czar. It is certainly easier to read about Russian composers than to talk about them, especially when they possess such a patronymic as Stcherbatcheff!

The other contribution is from the thoughtful pen of Mr. Ernest Newman, in the columns of the Contemporary Review for last month. The writer discusses, under three heads, 'English music and musical criticism.' He finds it 'necessary to point out how unduly dependent we still are upon the foreigner for our music and our musicians,' and goes on to say that the native musician 'has peculiar and very serious obstacles in his path.' To remove these hindrances Mr. Newman

> Would suggest three courses, each of which would do something to make the bed of the English musician easier to him, would increase the output of music worth hearing, and would give our budding Wagners and Tschaïkowskys a chance of survival, or—which is still more important—would make it possible for them to live, like any other artists, by the sale of their art.

Here, then, are his 'three plain, simple, and practical proposals for raising English music':—

> We want publishers to believe, and to act on the belief, that there is money to be made by issuing good as well as bad songs and marches and waltzes. We want orchestras all over the country, so that a composer will be able to send his score for perusal to twenty conductors, as an author can send his manuscript round to twenty publishers, or a painter can send his picture to twenty exhibitions. Finally, we want the wealthy amateur to select a musician or two, help him to study the best music, help him to publish his work, at a price that will not kill off the demand for it at the commencement, and help him to have his work produced somewhere or other. These proposals, I venture to repeat, are all plain, simple, and practical.

But however 'plain, simple, and practical' these proposals may be—more or less—they are by no means new.

Mr. Ernest Newman is very outspoken on the subject of musical critics and musical criticism in this country, and what he says is, we fear, not without a modicum of truth. Here is his indictment:—

At present, with one or two exceptions, the musical writers produce nothing that can be read with even languid interest by any man who is accustomed to good critical literature.

One of the causes of this dearth of decent musical literature is the fact that most of the professional critics are tied to mere concert-reporting. There are signs that the public is becoming rather tired of the daily or weekly column that tells it, for the thousandth time, that Paderewski played or Albani sang at this, that, or the other concert in London.

Again—and no less within the region of the naked truth:—

The journalists fall into the error of supposing that the slating or praising of mere performers is the be-all and end-all of musical criticism, that they themselves are such models of constancy and equilibration that their verdicts upon performers and performances amount to very much, and that the really musical public cares two straws about the matter.

As specimen 'models of that constancy and equilibration' which Mr. Newman asserts our critics think they possess, he gives in a foot-note the following, apropos of a recent pianoforte recital given by Mr. Harold Bauer:—

Critic No. 1.	Critic No. 2.
Mr. Bauer was known to London as an immature young pianist of promise. He is now a finished artist, and possesses a beautiful touch, an unerring rhythmical instinct, and a peculiar force which should place him amongst the great pianists.	The performance gave, on the whole, a good impression of the young pianist's technical power. He is still, however, a long way from artistic maturity.

Our last quotation is in the nature of a startling charge against the critics—one that seems as if Mr. Newman would like to make a clean sweep of the whole tribe of these scribes. Here are his words:—

The second and third-rate men never say anything worth printing, and the first-rate men are content with that dubious sense of superiority felt by the one-eyed man in the kingdom of the blind.

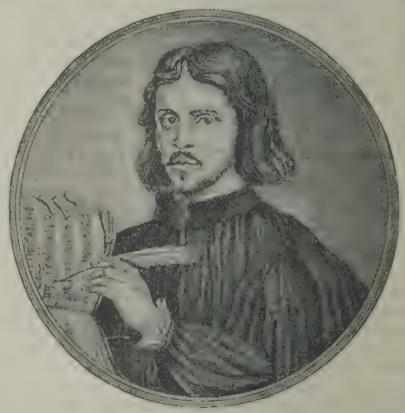
The 'dubious sense of superiority.' To whom does this most particularly apply?

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

ANTHEMS AND ANTHEM COMPOSERS.

Mr. Myles Birket Foster has shown wonderful industry in the compilation of his book bearing the above title. The volume treats the subject under two aspects, and is, in the words of the sub-title, (1) 'An essay upon the development of the anthem from the Reformation to the end of the nineteenth century'; and (2) 'A complete list of anthems (in alphabetical order) belonging to each of the four centuries.' There is always a difficulty attending the centurywise division, as followed by our author, by reason of the overlapping. For instance, Mr. Foster gives the list of anthems by Thomas Attwood in his eighteenth century section, but the biography of that composer appears among the nineteenth century men. This separation is doubtless an accident, as, although Attwood was born in 1765, he practically belongs to the nineteenth century; true, he was appointed to St. Paul's Cathedral in 1796, but he did not fully enter upon his church-composer career until the year 1801 had passed.

The chief value of the book lies in the exhaustive lists of anthems—the products of composers ranging from 'Archbishops, Princes, and Earls to the most humble of the Monarch's subjects.' Much information in regard to the special circumstances which called forth this or that anthem is herein given which, per se, makes the volume exceedingly useful as a book of reference. Moreover, these lists furnish proof of the vastness of anthem literature. The opportunities for studying in detail the biographical portion of the subject are so numerous that this feature of the book need not be regarded as of so much importance; but Mr. Foster's genial style makes the reading of these pages a pleasure. Humour, too, peeps out now and again as, for example, when he refers to the frequent resignations of Dr. Blow—'He seems to have been what one might call a thoroughly retiring man!' Mention might have been made that Dr. Ben Rogers was organist of Magdalen College, Oxford; and by way of correction, Dr. E. J. Hopkins was the writer of the article on



THOMAS TALLIS.

(From Mr. Myles B. Foster's 'Anthems and Anthem Composers,' and by his kind permission.)

'Accompaniment' in Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians,' not Mr. Hipkins (p. 55); that the manual compass of Father Smith's old organ in St. Paul's was to CCC, not to CC (p. 96); and that John Hullah was Inspector of Music in Training Colleges, not Training Schools (p. 178). The portraits of seventeen representative anthem-composers are scattered throughout the pages—the first being a beautiful reproduction of Clostermann's fine painting of Purcell, the last a photograph of the late Sir John Stainer, to whom the book is appropriately dedicated. 'Anthems and Anthem Composers' should be in the library of all those who are interested in the subject of English Church music.

A memorial to the late Mr. John Hopkins has been erected in Rochester Cathedral, of which sanctuary he was organist for forty-four years. The inscription reads:—

John Hopkins,
Organist of this Cathedral and Master of the Choristers, 1856-1900.
Born 30th April, 1822, died 27th Aug., 1900.

The memorial is near to those of the late Joseph Maas and Charles Dickens.

(Continued on page 816.)

The King of Love my Shepherd is.

ANTHEM FOR BASS SOLO AND CHORUS.

Words by Sir Henry W. Baker.
From Hymns A. & M., by permission.

Composed by A. Davidson Arnott.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; and NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., New York.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

King of love my Shepherd is, Whose good - ness fail - eth nev - er; . .
King of love my Shepherd is, Whose good - ness fail - eth nev - er; . .
King of love my Shepherd is, Whose good - ness fail - eth nev - er; . . I noth-ing
King of love my Shepherd is, Whose good - ness fail - eth nev - er; . .
I noth - ing lack if I am His And He is mine for
I noth - ing lack if I am His And He is mine for lack . . . if I am His And He is mine for
I noth - ing lack if I am His And He is mine for ev - er. . . Where streams of liv - ing wa - ter flow . . . My ev - er. . . Where streams of liv - ing wa - ter ev - er. . . And,
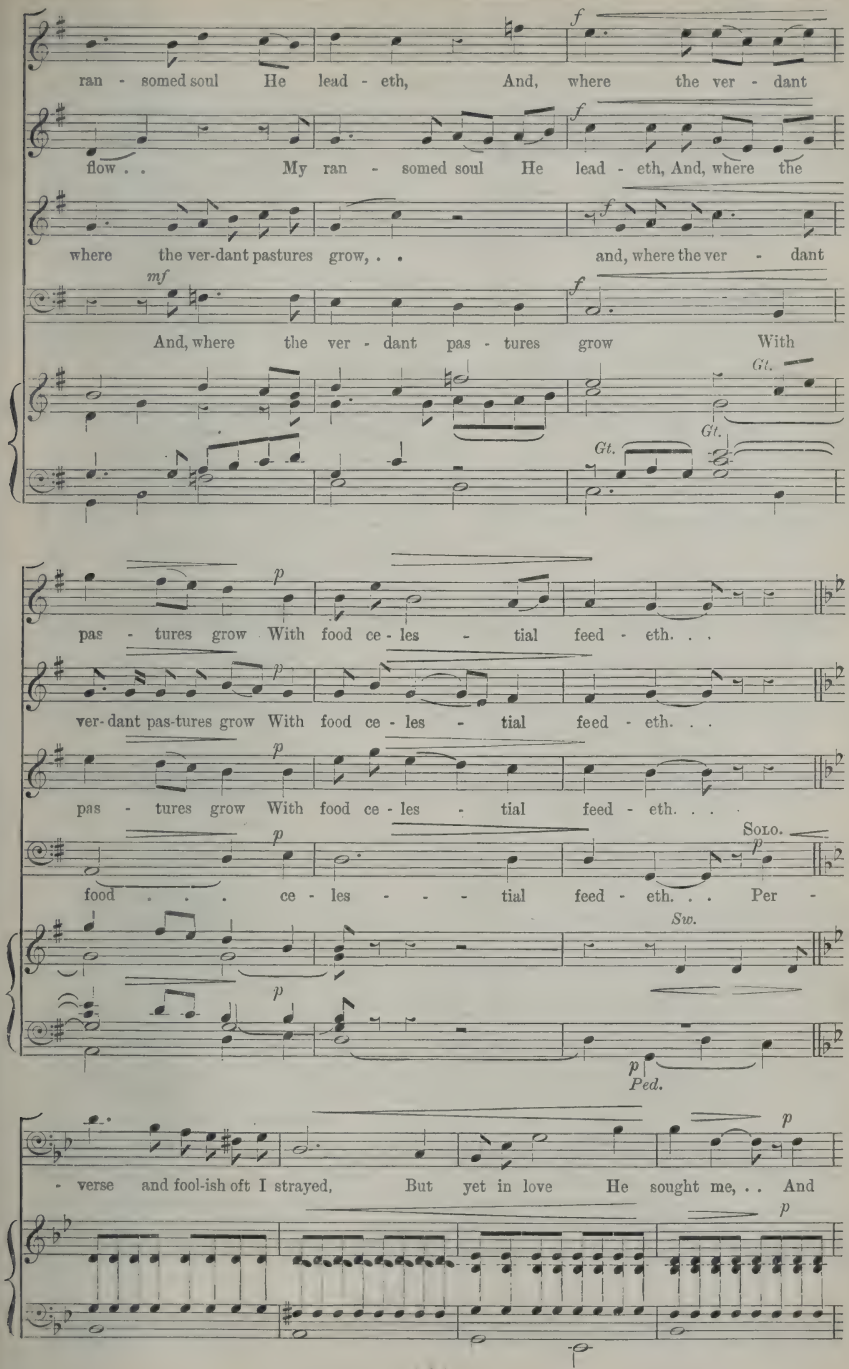
ev - er. . .
soft Ped.



ran - somed soul He lead - eth, And, where the ver - dant flow . . My ran - somed soul He lead - eth, And, where the where the ver-dant pastures grow, . . and, where the ver - dant
And, where the ver - dant pas - tures grow With Gt.
Gt.
Gt.
pas - tures grow With food ce - les - tial feed - eth. . .
ver-dant pas-tures grow With food ce - les - tial feed - eth. . .
pas - tures grow With food ce - les - tial feed - eth. . .
food . . . ce - les - - - tial feed - eth. . . Per - Solo.
Sw.
Ped.
- verse and fool-ish oft I strayed, But yet in love He sought me, . . And rit.

p mf
f on His Shoul - der gen-tly laid, And home,re - joic - - ing, brought me. In rit.
meno mosso.
f death's dark vale I fear no ill With Thee, dear Lord, be - side me; Thy rod and staff my
meno mosso.
Gt. f mf Full Sw.
mp
p
com - fort still, Thy Cross be-fore . . to guide me, In death's dark vale I fear no mp
pp
Verse or Full.
più animato.
cres.
Thou spread'st a Ta - ble in my sight; Thy Unc-tion grace be - stow-eth; And
più animato.
cres.
Thou spread'st a Ta - ble in my sight; Thy Unc-tion grace be - stow-eth; And
più animato.
cres.
Thou spread'st a Ta - ble in my sight; Thy Unc-tion grace be - stow-eth; And
più animato.
cres.
ill.
Thou spread'st a Ta - ble in my sight; Thy Unc-tion grace be - stow-eth; And oh, what transport of de - light From Thy . . pure Chal - ice, from oh, what transport of de - light From Thy pure Chal - ice, from oh, what transport of de - light From Thy pure Chal - - - - - - ice, from oh, what transport of de - light From Thy pure Chal - ice, from Thy pure Full.

Thy pure Chal - ice flow - - eth! And
Full.
Thy pure Chal - ice flow - - eth! And
Full.
Thy pure Chal - ice flow - - eth! And
cres.
dim.
Full. ff
Chal - - ice flow - - eth! And ff
Gt. f
Tempo 1mo.
mp
so thro' all the length of days Thy good - ness fail - eth nev - er: Good Shepherd,
so thro' all the length of days Thy good - ness fail - eth nev - er: Good Shepherd,
so thro' all the length of days Thy good - ness fail - eth nev - er: Good Shepherd,
so thro' all the length of days Thy good - ness fail - eth nev - er: Good Shepherd, Tempo 1mo.
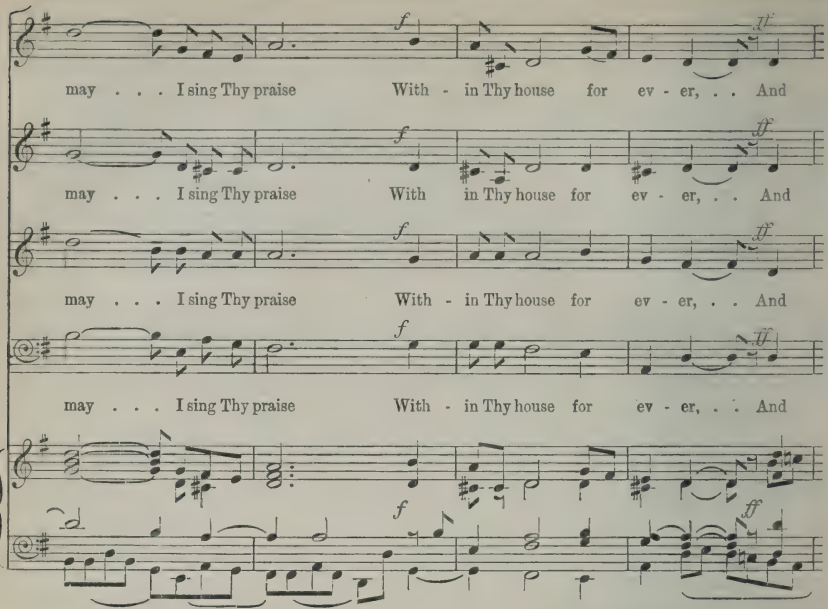
mp



may . . . I sing Thy praise With - in Thy house for ev - er, . . And may . . . I sing Thy praise With in Thy house for ev - er, . . And may . . . I sing Thy praise With - in Thy house for ev - er, . . And may . . . I sing Thy praise With - in Thy house for ev - er, . . And so thro' all the length of days Thy good - ness fail - eth nev - er, Good Shepherd,

so thro' all the length of days Thy good - ness fail - eth nev - er, Good Shepherd,
so thro' all the length of days Thy good - ness fail - eth nev - er, Good Shepherd,
so thro' all the length of days Thy good - ness fail - eth nev - er, Good Shepherd, poco rall. al fine.

ff
fff may . . I sing Thy praise . . With - in Thy house for ev - - er. The may . . I sing Thy praise With - in Thy house for ev - - er. The may . . I sing Thy praise . . With - in Thy house for ev - - er. The may . . I sing Thy praise With - in Thy house for ev - - er. The King . . of love my Shep - herd is.
King . . of love my Shep - herd is.
King . . of love my Shep - herd is.
King . of love my Shep - herd is.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1194, price 1½*d*.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC—Continued.

ORGAN ANNOTATIONS BY DR. PEACE.

Dr. A. L. Peace, the worthy successor of the late Mr. W. T. Best in the organistship of St. George's Hall, Liverpool, has recently issued a handy little volume entitled 'Programme Notes' (Novello). Its pages consist of nearly five hundred brief annotations of pieces performed at the organ recitals which the author has given in St. George's Hall. The following may serve as specimens of Dr. Peace's 'Programme Notes':—

PRELUDES AND FUGUES FOR THE ORGAN. J. S. Bach.

The Preludes and Fugues by Johann Sebastian Bach are always heard to the best advantage when played upon a grand organ in a large building. These conditions are, however, seldom to be met with. On the other hand, it is only by frequent opportunities of hearing these fine works that they can be adequately appreciated. The popularity of Bach's Organ Fugues has been much retarded by the manner in which they have generally been performed. The writer well remembers the period when the usual method was to play these compositions on the full organ throughout, without any relief or contrast in the tone. At the present day, however, this grinding process has happily given place to a more intelligent and varied reading of these noble works; and a Fugue by Bach, instead of something to be resisted, is now generally and justly regarded as the pièce de résistance on the programme.

(1) ANDANTE CANTABILE
(2) SCHERZO .. .. C. M. Widor.
(3) FINALE .. ..

From the Organ Symphony, No. 4.

Among the most important publications of organ music in recent years are the Eight Organ Symphonies by Charles Marie Widor, the distinguished organist at the Church of St. Sulpice, Paris. These symphonies (which are on a very extended scale) appear to be the outcome of the great improvements effected in organ construction by the late eminent French builder, M. Cavaillé Coll, who has vastly extended the resources of the instrument by his many ingenious mechanical contrivances—not to speak of his inventions in the department of tone. In the above items the first consists of a beautiful and song-like theme presented in three stanzas, the second and third of which are enhanced by a varied accompaniment for the left hand. The next is a form of movement of unusual application to the organ—namely, a Scherzo, the light and playful character of which receives due expression in the employment of the softer combinations of tone. The bold theme with which the Finale opens forms the principal subject-matter of this movement, and imparts an effective conclusion to a work abounding in much evidence of this composer's highly original and versatile style.

The book contains an illustration of the fine Willis organ in St. George's Hall, Liverpool, and a description of that noble instrument. Dr. Peace, in the preface to his 470 annotations, gives organists free permission to reprint in their own recital programmes any of the notes in the volume, provided an acknowledgment is made of the source whence they are taken. This is very right and proper, and doubtless not a few players on the king of instruments will be glad to avail themselves of the privilege.

The Rev. L. J. T. Darwall writes concerning Dr. Miller (see p. 736 of our last issue):—

The collection in which 'Rockingham' first appeared is interesting for two other reasons. (1) It is the first book in which, since Playford, special tunes are fitted to special words. (2) It introduces occasional rests into the tunes in order to teach singers to mind their stops—a lesson much needed in most of the hymn-singing of the present day. Besides 'Rockingham,' Dr. Miller composed another fine tune for this book, called 'Doncaster.' He set it to the words 'Lift up your heads, eternal gates.' I do not know whether it is ever sung in Winchester Cathedral now; but Dr. Arnold used always to give it us on the Sunday after Ascension Day.

LONDON CHURCH CHOIR ASSOCIATION.

In connection with the retirement of Sir George Martin from the conductorship of this excellent organization, a number of gentlemen connected therewith met, on the 5th ult., in the Trophy Room, high up in the north-west belfry tower of St. Paul's Cathedral, to present him with a token of their appreciation of his invaluable conducting services during the past fourteen years. The Chairman of the meeting (the Rev. E. Collett, M.A.) referred to the early days of the Association, when its respected founder and first conductor (Mr. J. R. Murray) was with them. At his death, Sir John Stainer, notwithstanding his onerous duties and multifarious engagements, took up the work for one year, and conducted the Annual Festival of 1886. Afterwards, Sir George (then Dr.) Martin kindly undertook the conductorship, and worked hard for the Association. Mr. Collett, in the name of the subscribers, then handed to Sir George a handsome silver-gilt loving cup, standing on an ebony pedestal, bearing the following inscription:—

Presented to SIR GEORGE C. MARTIN, Mus. Doc., by the members of the London Church Choir Association, in grateful recognition of his Services as
Hon. Conductor, 1887-1900.

Sir George Martin, in reply, said that the duties of his office had always been a delight to him. He thanked them all cordially for the magnificent gift, which would remind him of the many pleasant hours they had spent together. His place, he added, had been filled by an accomplished musician, and a man of high instincts; and he hoped that Dr. Walford Davies would receive the hearty support of all, in the work he had undertaken to do.

The annual festival of the Association was held in St. Paul's Cathedral on the 21st ult., at which the chief feature was the new and effective setting of the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G composed for the occasion by the new conductor, Dr. Walford Davies, who skilfully controlled an impressive and successful service.

QUEEN'S HALL ORGAN RECITALS.

A series of Wednesday afternoon organ recitals at the Queen's Hall was inaugurated on the 13th ult., by Mr. Henry J. Wood, whose programme included Berthold Tours's fantasia in C, and Bach's fugue in D. Mr. Wood's playing was chiefly characterised by poetic refinement and keen perception of tone colour. Mrs. Henry J. Wood contributed some vocal solos. At the second recital, Mr. Edwin H. Lemare gave masterly renderings of the concert overture in C by Mr. Alfred Hollins, Bach's Toccata in F, and a brilliant Etude Symphonique by Signor M. E. Bossi. Mention is due of a new and most impressive song, entitled 'A Ballad of Trees and the Master," by Mr. G. W. Chadwick, which was finely sung by Mr. Ffrangçon-Davies.

The monthly oratorio services given in Brixton Church on Sunday afternoons, under the direction of the organist, Mr. Douglas Redman, continue their successful course. The choir, which now numbers 115 voices, did full justice to Spohr's 'God, Thou art great' and Stainer's 'Daughter of Jairus,' on the 17th ult., assisted by a full professional band, led by Mr. R. Gray, with Mr. Welton Hickin at the organ. These excellent services, which are attended by large congregations, merit every encouragement.

At the Patronal Festival of All Saints' Church, Putney, on October 31, Mr. John E. West's 'Festival Anthem' (produced at the recent Gloucester Festival), was sung under the direction of Mr. Harry Dancey.

The German Requiem of Brahms will supersede Spohr's 'Last Judgment' at the usual Advent performance in St. Paul's Cathedral, on the 3rd inst., at 7 p.m. There will be a full orchestra, and no tickets of admission are required

n the beginning

COMPOSED BY

C. MACPHERSON.

SIXTEEN VOLUMES NOW READY, BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE 7s. EACH.

424. Abide with me ... R. Dunstan 3d.
478. A few more years shall roll H. Blair 3d.
592. Alleluia! now is Christ risen T. Adams 3d.
247. All nations whom B. Luard Selby 4d.
113. All they that trust ... Dr. Hiller 8d.
30. All Thy works ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
475. All Thy works ... J. Barnby 4d.
503. All Thy works ... G. H. Ely 4d.
9. All ye who weep ... ... Gounod 3d.
261. And all the people saw J. Stainer 6d.
229. And it was the third hour Elvey 4d.
485. And Jacob was left alone J. Stainer 6d.
658. And Jesus entered into the Temple H. W. Davies 4d.
675. And the Lord said T. W. Stephenson 3d.
357. And the wall of the city Oliver King 3d.
402. And when the day C. W. Smith 3d.
611. Angels from the realms Cowen 3d.
642. Angel voices, ever singing E. V. Hall 3d.
597. A prayer for peace ... Crotch 3d.
228. Art thou weary ... C. H. Lloyd 6d.
311. As I live, saith the Lord E. T. Chipp 3d.
333. As it began to dawn Ch. Vincent 3d.
498. As Moses lifted up F. Gostelow 3d.
643. As the earth bringeth A. H. Brewer 4d.
24. As the hart pants (S.S.T.B.) Gounod 3d.
24.* Ditto (T.T.B.B.) Gounod 3d.
147. Ascribe unto the Lord Traver 6d.
109. Ascribe unto the Lord S. S. Wesley 8d.
399. At the Lamb's High Feast we sing E. V. Hall 3d.
456. At the Sepulchre H. W. Wareing 4d.
700. Awake, awake, put on F. R. Greenish 4d.
56. Awake, awake, put on J. Stainer 6d.
149. Awake, awake, put on M. Wise 4d.
660. Awake, awake ... J. E. West 3d.
199. Awake, thou that sleepest Stainer 6d.
150. Awake up, my glory M. Wise 3d.
578. Be glad and rejoice ... B. Steane 3d.
212. Be glad, O ye righteous H. Smart 4d.
567. Be Thou exalted ... C. Bayley 3d.
440. Before the heavens H. W. Parker 3d.
651. Behold, all the earth G. F. Huntley 4d.
598. Behold, God is great E. W. Naylor 4d.
636. Behold, God is my salvation F. C. Woods 4d.
349. Behold, how good (A.T.T.B.) A. J. Caldicott 3d.
349.* Ditto (S.A.T.B.) A. J. Caldicott 3d.
419. Ditto Hamilton Clarke 4d.
89. Behold, I bring you J. Barnby 3d.
296. Ditto E. V. Hall 3d.
348. Ditto J. Maude Crament 4d.
723. Behold, I have given you C. Harris 3d.
554. Behold, I send ... J. V. Roberts 4d.
387. Behold My servant J. F. Bridge 3d.
65. Behold now, praise J. B. Calkin 3d.
631. Behold now, praise F. Iliffe 4d.
315. Behold, O God ... F. W. Hird 4d.
524. Behold, the days come Woodward 4d.
652. Behold the Name ... Percy Pitt 4d.
501. Behold, two blind men J. Stainer 3d.
143. Be merciful ... ... H. Purcell 6d.
257. Be merciful E. A. Sydenham 3d.
597. Be peace on earth ... Crotch 3d.
583. Be ye all of one mind A. E. Godfrey 3d.
471. Be ye therefore followers of God A. S. Baker 3d.
693. Blessed are the dead B. L. Selby 2d.
667. Blessed are the pure A. D. Arnott 3d.
77. Blessed are they ... W. H. Monk 3d.
616. Blessed are they ... H. Blair 3d.
182. Blessed are they ... Arthur Page 3d.
390. Blessed are they A. W. Batson 3d.
15. Blessed be the God S. S. Wesley 4d.
183. Blessed be the Lord Dr. Heap 6d.
331. Blessed be the Lord C. L. Williams 4d.
400. Blessed City ... A. C. Fisher 4d.
262. Blessed is He ... C. H. Lloyd 6d.
84. Blessed is He F. E. Gladstone 2d.
292. Blessed is He A. C. Mackenzie 4d.
64. Blessed is the man ...Sir John Goss 4d.
206. Blessed is the man Clarke-Whitfeld 3d.
286. Blessed Jesu (Stabat Mater) Dvorák 6d.
5. Blessing, glory, wisdom B. Tours 4d.
378. Bless the Lord ... M. Kingston 4d.
374. Bless thou the Lord Oliver King 3d.
450. Bless thou the Lord C. Bayley 4d.
632. Blow up the trumpet F. Iliffe 3d.
97. Blow ye the trumpet Henry Leslie 3d.
118. Bow Thine ear ... W. Bird 3d.
92. Break forth into joy R. Prentice 6d.
415. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
491. Ditto B. Steane 3d.
323. Brightest and best ... E. V. Hall 4d.
340. Bring unto the Lord F. E. Gladstone 3d.
98. Brother, thou art gone Sir J. Goss 4d.
279. By Babylon's wave Gounod 6d.
197. By the rivers of Babylon L. Samson 4d.
121. By the waters of Babylon Boyce 4d.
511. Ditto ... H. Clarke 4d.
644. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
116. Call to remembrance J. Battishill 6d.
680. Calm on the list'ning ear of night H. W. Parker 3d.
497. Christ both died E. W. Naylor 3d.
454. Christ is risen G. B. J. Aitken 3d.
368. Christ is risen ...J. M. Crament 3d.
666. Christ is risen ... C. W. Jordan 4d.
533. Christ is risen ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
307. Christ our Passover E. V. Hall 3d.
370. Christ the Lord ... E. V. Hall 3d.
488. Christians, awake ... J. Barnby 3d.
648. Christians, awake ... H. M. Higgs 4d.
445. Cleanse me, Lord G. F. Wrigley 3d.
52. Come, and let us return Sir Goss 3d.
95. Come, and let us return W. Jackson 3d.
201. Come, Holy Ghost ... J. L. Hatton 4d.
283. Come, Holy Ghost Sir G. Elvey 4d.
293. Come, my soul ... G. C. Martin 4d.
314. Come now, and let us H. W. Wareing 4d.
1. Come unto Him ... Gounod 2d.
635. Come unto Me ... G. J. Elvey 3d.
103. Come unto Me (Bach) J. Stainer 3d.
256. Come unto Me H. R. Couldrey 3d.
334. Come, ye faithful ... E. V. Hall 3d.
622. Create in me a clean heart P. J. Fry 3d.
688. Crown Him the Virgin's Son B. L. Selby 2d.
356. Daughters of Jerusalem H. J. King 3d.
449. Dawns the day ... R. H. Legge 3d.
213. Day of anger (Requiem) ... Mozart 6d.
682. Day of wrath ... J. Stainer 2d.
252. Death and life Walter Parratt 3d.
90. Distracted with care ... Haydn 4d.
703. Drop down, ye heavens Stainer 4d.
277. Enter not into Judgment Dr. Clarke 2d.
362. Eternal source ... F. Brandeis 2d.
628. Except the Lord build H. Gadsby 4d.
470. Eye hath not seen (two-part) Foster 3d.
584. Ditto (S.A.T.B.) M. B. Foster 3d.
625. Far be sorrow ... E. V. Hall 3d.
329. Far from their home Woodward 3d.
672. Far from the world H. W. Parker 4d.
364. Father, hear the prayer F. Brandeis 2d.
46. Father of Heaven Dr. Walmisley 3d.
384. Father of Life ... S. J. Gilbert 3d.
671. Father of mercies ... J. E. West 3d.
28. Fear not, O land ...Sir John Goss 6d
446. Flee from evil Rev. W. J. Clarke 3d.
553. For a small moment ... J. Stainer 2d.
254. For ever blessed ... Mendelssohn 3d.
108. For the mountains... L. Samson 3d.
273. From the deep I called Spohr 6d.
227. Give ear, O Lord T. M. Pattison 2d.
433. Give ear, O Shepherd A. Whiting 3d.
88. Give ear, O ye heavens Dr. Armes 3d.
604. Give thanks, O Israel Ouseley 4d.
309. Give the Lord ... C. H. Lloyd 8d.
383. Give unto the Lord H. W. Parker 4d.
2. Glory be to God ... S. S. Wesley 2d.
341. God be merciful ... A. H. Mann 4d.
49. God be merciful ... S. S. Wesley 3d.
236. God be merciful unto us C. F. Lloyd 6d.
105. God came from Teman Dr. Steggall 4d.
128. God is gone up ... Dr. Croft 4d.
605. God is my salvation C. F. Bowes 3d.
131. God is our hope ... Dr. Greene 6d.
101. God is our refuge ... Dr. H. Hiles 6d.
332. God is our refuge ... A. Foote 4d.
75. God said, Behold Sir G. Macfarren 4d.
473. God so loved the world J. V. Roberts 3d.
342. God, that madest earth A. C. Fisher 2d.
344. God, who at sundry times J. H. Mee 4d.
388. Grant, we beseech Thee J. V. Roberts 3d.
550. Grant, we beseech Thee M. Elvey 2d.
708. Great is the Lord A. W. Marchant 3d.
187. Great and marvellous Dr. Monk 3d.
517. Ditto ... J. F. Bridge 4d.
223. Great is Jehovah ... Schubert 4d.
602. Great is our Lord M. B. Foster 4d.
136. Great is the Lord ... Dr. Hayes 4d.
237. Great is the Lord Sir F. Ouseley 6d.
481. Great is the Lord ... B. Steane 3d.
220. Grieve not the Holy Spirit Stainer 3d.
609. Guide me, O Thou Great Redeemer ... H. Blair 3d.
427. Hail! gladdening Light J. T. Field 2d.
545. Hail! gladdening Light Martin 4d.
326. Hail, thou that art ... A. Carnall 4d.
560. Hail to the Christ ... J. Barnby 3d.
499. Hallelujah, Christ is risen Steane 3d.
382. Hallelujah! the Light O. King 3d.
173. Happy is the man ... E. Prout 8d.
681. Hark the glad sound M. B. Foster 3d.
287. Hark the glad sound E. V. Hall 3d.
345. Hark, the herald angels E. V. Hall 3d.
444. Hark! what news... ... O. King 3d.
404. Harvest Hymn ... F. Tozer 2d.
377. Have mercy upon me, Kellow J. Pye 3d.
401. Have mercy upon me J. Shaw 3d.
535. Have mercy upon me J. Goss 4d.
389. Hear me when I call T. Distin 2d.
146. Hear my prayer ... C. Stroud 4d.
339. Hear my prayer Mendelssohn 4d.
442. Hear my words C. H. H. Parry 8d.
310. Hear, O God ... A. Friedländer 6d.
138. Hear, O heavens P. Humphreys 3d.
94. Hear, O Lord Sir John Goss 2d.
139. Hear, O Lord ... C. King 2d.
162. Hear, O Lord Sir F. Ouseley 4d.
203. Hear, O Thou Shepherd Dr. Clarke 4d.
522. Ditto T. A. Walmisley 4d.
707. He that dwelleth ... J. Booth 4d.
701. He will swallow up death F. R. Greenish 3d.
376. Hide not Thy face Kellow J. Pye 2d.
330. Holy Ghost, to earth descending (Ludmila) ... ... Dvorák 4d.
111. Holy, holy, holy ... Dr. Crotch 3d.
246. Ho! every one ... G. C. Martin 4d.
366. Ho! every one J. M. Crament 4d.
412. Honour the Lord ... J. Stainer 4d.
129. Hosanna ... ... O. Gibbons 3d.
43. Hosanna ... Sir G. A. Macfarren 3d.
646. Hosanna to the living Lord B. L. Selby 3d.
657. Ditto C. W. Jordan 4d.
260. How beautiful are the feet Handel 3d.
691. How blest are they Tschaïkowsky 4d.
321. How excellent is Thy ... Cowen 6d.
615. How great is the loving-kindness J. E. West 3d.
373. How long wilt Thou Oliver King 2d

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

IN THE BEGINNING

FULL ANTHEM FOR CHRISTMAS

COMPOSED BY

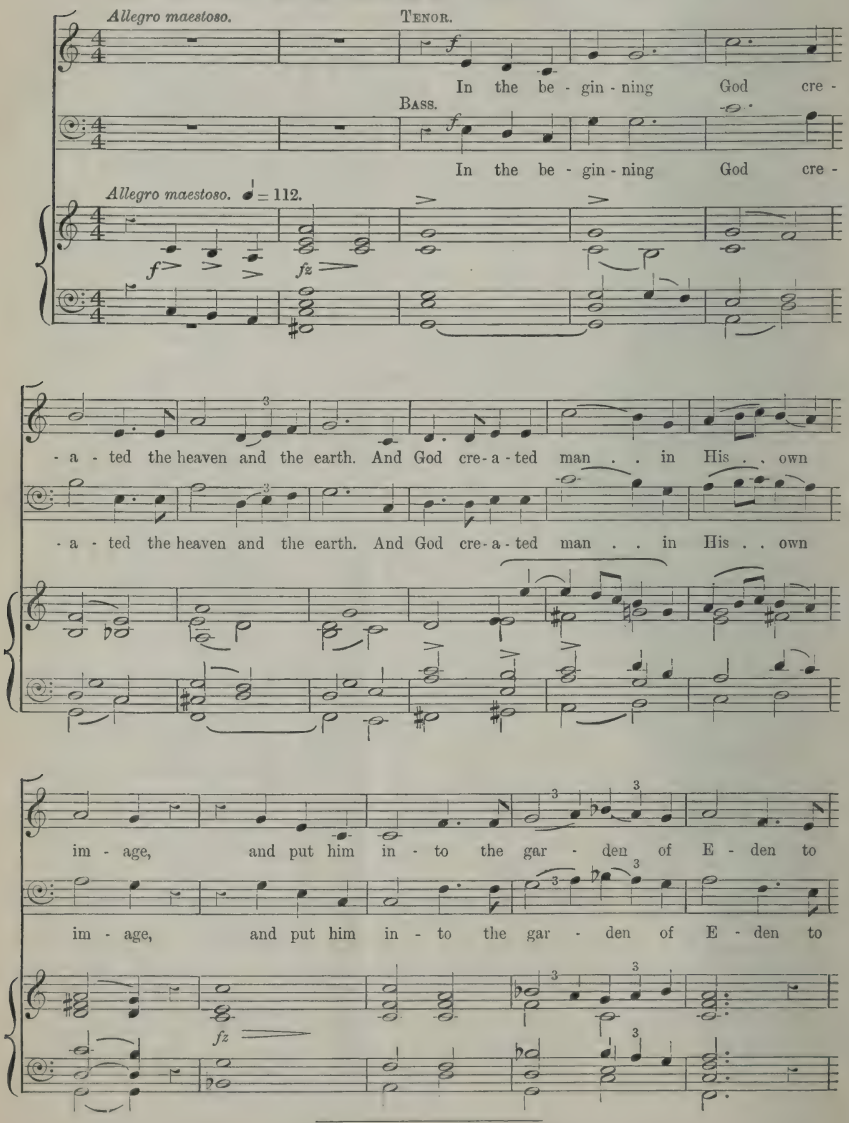
CHARLES MACPHERSON

SUB-ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

Gen. i. 1, 27; ii. 15; Rom. v. 12; St. John iii. 16; and some Verses by the Rev. BERNARD REYNOLDS, M.A., Prebendary of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Price Fourpence.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Allegro maestoso.
TENOR.
In the be - gin - ning God cre -
BASS.
In the be - gin - ning God cre -
Allegro maestoso. ♩ = 112.
- a - ted the heaven and the earth. And God cre - a - ted man . . in His . . own
- a - ted the heaven and the earth. And God cre - a - ted man . . in His . . own im - age, and put him in - to the gar - den of E - den to im - age, and put him in - to the gar - den of E - den to

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

fz
dress it and to keep . . it. . . .
fz
dress it and to keep . . it. . . .
fz
Sw.
fz
Gt. to Ped off.
no Ped.
Basses only.
p
fz
By man sin . . en-tered in- to the world, and death by fz
fz
fz
p fz
fz
fz
Ped.
sin. . . .
Andante.
Soprano.
p
God so loved the . . world, . . .
Alto.
p
God . . so . . loved the world, . . .
Tenor.
p
God so loved the . . world, . . .
Bass.
p
God . . so . . loved the world, . . .
Andante. ♩ = 52.
Solo.
p ad lib.
no Ped.
Ped.

fz
that He gave His . . on - ly be - got - - ten that He gave His . . on - ly be - got - ten that He gave His on - ly be - got - ten that . . He . . gave . . His . . on - ly be - got - - ten ad lib.
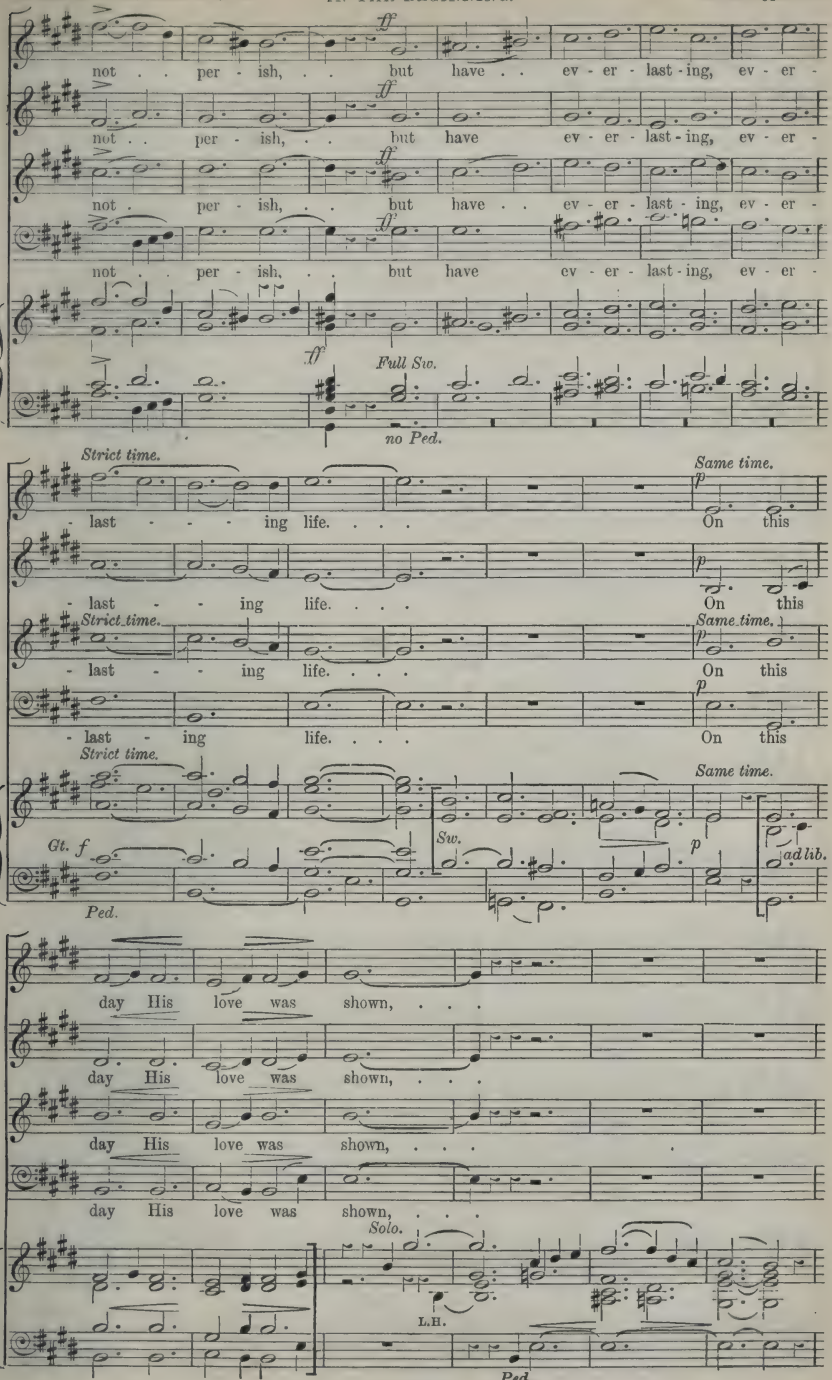
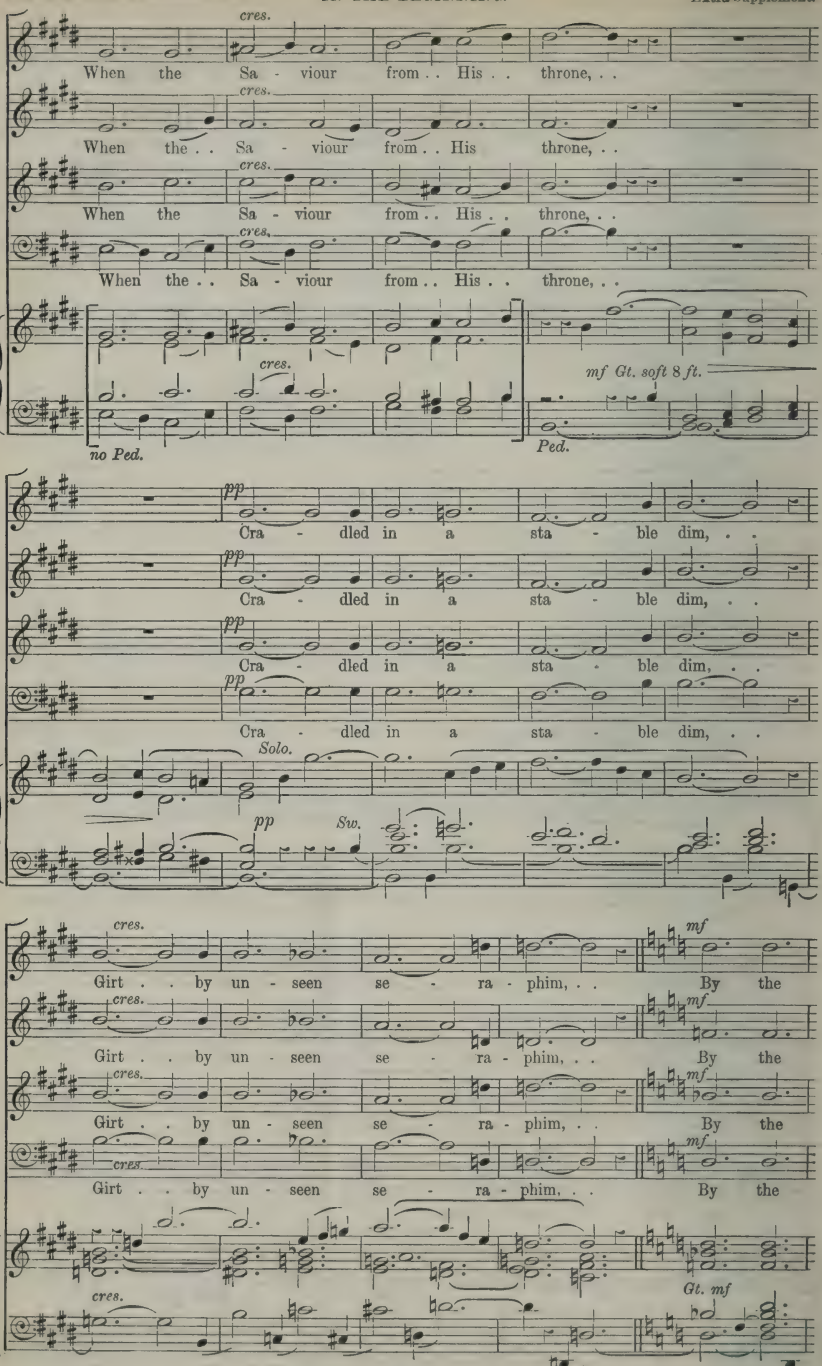
no Ped.
Son, . . that who - so - -
Solo.
Ped.
ad lib.
no Ped.
cres.
Poco animato.
- ev - er be - liev - eth in Him should not . . . per - ish, should
- ev - er be - liev - eth in . . Him should not . . per - ish, should
- ev - er be - liev - eth in Him should not . . per - ish, should
- ev - er be - liev - eth in Him should not . . . per - ish, should
Ped.



not . . per - ish, . . but have . . ev - er - last - ing, ev - er -
ff
Full Sw.
no Ped.
Strict time.
Same time.
- last - - - ing life. . . .
On this
Gt. f
Sw.
Ped.
day His love was shown, . . .
Solo.
L.H.



cres.
When the Sa - viour from . . His . . throne, . .
When the . . Sa - viour from . . His throne, . .
When the Sa - viour from . . His . . throne, . .
When the . . Sa - viour from . . His . . throne, . .
no Ped.
mf Gt. soft 8 ft.
Ped.
pp
Cra - dled in a sta - ble dim, . .
Solo.
Sw.
Girt . . by un - seen se - ra - phim, . . By the mf
Gt. mf

cres.
shep - herds was . . a - dored, . . Joy - ful thus to
f
poco rit,
greet their Lord, . . Joy - ful thus to greet . . their Sw.
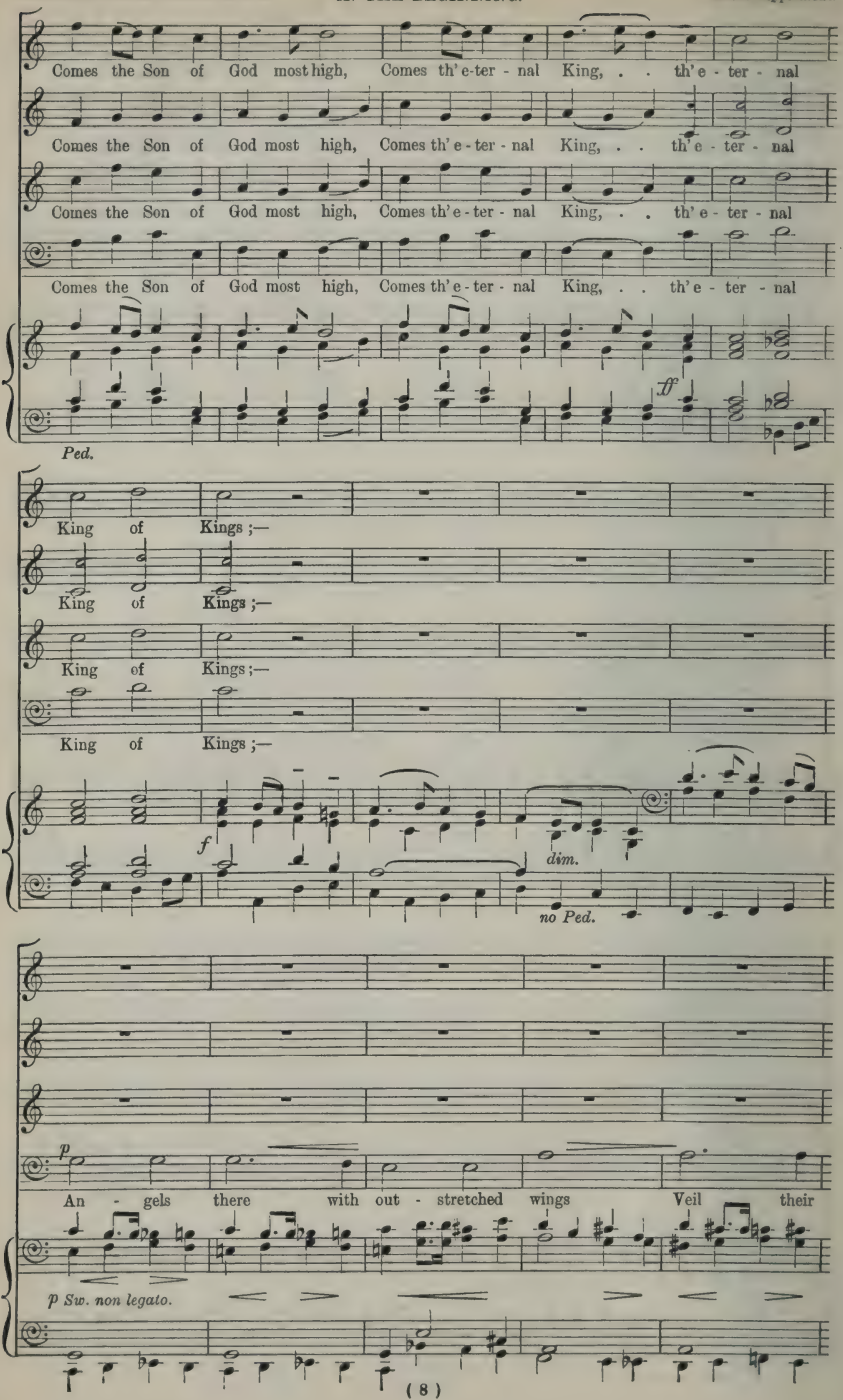
Allegro.
Lord. From a-bove the ut-most sky,
Allegro. ♩ = 120.
Gt.
f
no Ped.



Comes the Son of God most high, Comes th' e-ter - nal King, . . th' e - ter - nal
Comes the Son of God most high, Comes th' e-ter - nal King, . . th' e - ter - nal
Comes the Son of God most high, Comes th' e-ter - nal King, . . th' e - ter - nal
Comes the Son of God most high, Comes th' e-ter - nal King, . . th' e - ter - nal
ff
Ped.
King of Kings ;—
King of Kings ;—
King of Kings ;—
King of Kings ;—
f
dim.
no Ped.
p
An - gels there with out - stretched wings Veil their p Sw. non legato.

f
Whilst His age - less . .
cres.
fa - - ces round His throne,
cres.
f
rit.
f
ff a tempo.
Now, now to earth the song they bring,
rit.
f
ff a tempo.
Now, now to earth the song they bring,
might they own.
rit.
f
ff a tempo.
Now, now to earth the song they bring,
rit.
f
ff a tempo.
Now, now to earth the song they bring,
Gt.
rit.
Gt.
ff a tempo.
Which in heaven they learned . . to sing, in heaven they learned to
Which in heaven they learned to sing, in . . heaven they learned to Which in heaven they learned to sing, the song in heaven they learned to Which in heaven they learned, they learned . . . . to

mf
sing; . . And to hum - ble. shep - herd men sing; . .
sing; . .
sing; . .
mf
no Ped.
f
Sing they that same song . . a - gain— . . Song that pp
Song that Song that Song that
Sw.
f
pp Gt. soft 8 ft.
Ped. to Sw.
poco accel.
f breathes of end - less peace, And of glo - ry . . ne'er . . to breathes of end - less peace, And of glo - ry . . ne'er to breathes of end - less peace, And of glo - ry ne'er to breathes of end - less peace, And of glo - ry ne'er to Sw.
f
no Ped.

Animato.
ff
rit.
cease. Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - cease. Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - cease. Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - cease. Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - Animato. ♩ = 84.
ff Gt.
rit.
- lu - ia, Al-le - lu-ia, Al-le - lu - ia! A - men. . .
- lu - ia, Al-le - lu-ia, Al-le - lu - ia! A - men. . .
- lu - ia, Al-le - lu-ia, Al-le - lu - ia! A - men. . .
- lu - ia, Al-le - lu-ia, Al-le - lu - ia! A - men. . .

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1232, price 1½*d.*

647. How lovely are ... C. Salaman 3d.
104. How lovely are ... ... Spohr 8d.
539. I am Alpha ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
623. I am He that liveth T. Adams 4d.
664. I am the Resurrection ... Croft 3d.
662. I am the Resurrection R. Rogers 4d.
268. I am well pleased J. Rheinberger 3d.
120. I beheld, and lo ... Dr. Blow 6d.
280. I beheld, and lo ... ... Elvey 6d.
496. I came not to call C. Vincent 3d.
207. I cried unto the Lord Dr. Heap 4d.
537. I declare to you ... Cruickshank 4d.
168. I desired wisdom ... J. Stainer 6d.
230. I did call upon the Lord Pattison 4d.
117. I have set God ... Dr. Blake 6d.
130. I have set God ... J. Goldwin 3d.
420. I have set God Hamilton Clarke 4d.
122. I have surely built ... Dr. Boyce 4d.
219. I have surely built T. T. Trimnell 4d.
590. I heard a great voice G. F. Cobb 3d.
396. I heard a voice Sir John Goss 2d.
171. I saw the Lord ... J. Stainer 6d.
114. I was glad ... ... T. Attwood 4d.
32. I was glad ... ... Sir G. Elvey 3d.
79. I was glad ... ...C. E. Horsley 6d.
379. I was glad ... T. T. Trimnell 4d.
119. I was in the spirit ... Dr. Blow 6d.
205. I will alway give thanks Dr. Clarke 3d.
73. I will cry unto God Dr. Steggall 3d.
502. I will extol Thee C. M. Hudson 4d.
29. I will give thanks ... J. Barnby 4d.
156. I will give thanks ...E. J. Hopkins 6d.
568. I will give thanks ... Mozart 2d.
674. I will give you rain H.W. Wareing 4d.
225. I will go unto ...Dr. Gauntlett 2d.
591. I will go unto the altar C. Harris 3d.
437. I will greatly rejoice Cruickshank 4d.
195. I will lay me down ... H. Gadsby 2d.
209. I will lay me down ... Dr. H. Hiles 3d.
195. I will lay me down A. C. Edwards 3d.
126. I will love Thee, O Lord J. Clark 4d.
194. I will love Thee, O Lord my strength ... Matthew Kingston 4d.
78. I will magnify Thee J. B. Calkin 4d.
27. I will magnify Thee Sir John Goss 3d.
153. I will magnify Thee ... J. Shaw 3d.
405. I will magnify Thee ... O. King 4d.
633. I will magnify Thee ... F. Iliffe 4d.
154. I will mention ... Sir A. Sullivan 6d.
575. I will not leave you ... B. Steane 2d.
519. I will open rivers E. Pettman 3d.
371. I will set His dominion H.W. Parker 4d.
100. I will sing a new song Dr. Armes 8d.
608. I wil sing of the mercies J. Booth 3d.
134. I will sing of Thy power Greene 4d.
192. I will sing unto the Lord Wareing 3d.
6. I will wash my hands E. J. Hopkins 3d.
710. If any man hath not H. W. Davies 4d.
53. If we believe that Jesus died Goss 3d.
453. If ye love Me H. W. Wareing 3d.
544. If ye love Me ... ... B. Steane 2d.
469. If ye then be risen M. B. Foster 3d.
58. If ye then be risen ... Dr. Naylor 3d.
61. In Christ dwelleth Sir John Goss 3d.
619. In every place incense J. E. West 3d.
655. In heavenly love ... H. Parker 3d.
403. In my Father's house Crament 3d.
102. In sweet consent ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
278. In that day ... ... Sir G. Elvey 8d.
582. In the beginning ... F. Tozer 4d.
33. In Thee, O Lord ... B. Tours 3d.
148. In Thee, O Lord ... J. Weldon 3d.
385. In Thee, O Lord S. C. Taylor 3d.
338. In the fear of the Lord J. V. Roberts 3d.
282. In the Lord ... Sir R. Stewart 6d.
659. In the Lord put I my trust C. Macpherson 4d.
467. Is it nothing (2-pt.) M. B. Foster 3d.
571. Ditto (4 voices) M. B. Foster 3d.
91. It came even to pass Ouseley 4d.
180. It is a good thing ... J. Barnby 6d.
231. It is a good thing T. M. Pattison 4d.
215. It shall come to pass Dr. Garrett 6d.
397. Jesu, lover of my soul ...F. Iliffe 1d.
455. Jesus Christ is risen Oliver King 4d.

654. Jesu, Thou joy ... E. H. Davies 3d.
548. Joy in harvest ... ... B. Steane 3d.
7. Judge me, O God ... Mendelssohn 4d.
677. Just Judge of Heaven ... Garrett 6d.
614. Justorum animæ ... ... Byrd 3d.
179. King all glorious ... J. Barnby 6d.
581. Kings shall be thy nursing fathers G. C. Martin 3d.
37. Lead, kindly Light... J. Stainer 4d.
425. Lead, kindly Light... R. Dunstan 3d.
528. Lead, kindly Light C. L. Naylor 4d.
589. Lead, kindly Light D. Pughe-Evans 3d.
706. Let all the world C. W. Jordan 4d.
132. Let God arise ... Dr. Greene 6d.
375. Let God arise T. T. Trimnell 4d.
346. Let my complaint ...E. H. Thorne 3d.
509. Let not thine hand... J. Stainer 3d.
438. Let not your heart ... M. B. Foster 3d.
438.* Let not your heart M. B. Foster 3d.
226. Let the peace of God J. Stainer 4d.
565. Let the righteous ... R. F. Lloyd 3d.
328. Let the words of my A. D. Culley 3d.
494. Let Thy merciful ears W. B. Bell 2d.
308. Let us now praise ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
96. Lift up thine eyes ...Sir John Goss 6d.
18. Lift up your heads ... J. L. Hopkins 1½d.
409. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
343. Lift up your hearts ... J. Barnby 4d.
408. Lighten our darkness G. R. Vicars 2d.
595. Light of the world ... E. Elgar 3d.
393. Like as the hart Thomas Adams 3d.
530. Lo, God, our God ... B. Haynes 3d.
711. Look on the fields C. Macpherson 3d.
639. Look upon the rainbow T. Adams 3d.
165. Lord, how are they... H. Clarke 6d.
391. Lord, I have loved... ...F. Iliffe 3d.
54. Lord, let me know mine end Goss 3d.
351. Lord of all power ... J. Barnby 2d.
459. Lord of our life ... J. T. Field 3d.
566. Lord of life ... A. C. Mackenzie 3d.
404. Lord of the rich and golden F. Tozer 2d.
411. Lord of the Harvest J. Barnby 4d.
318. Lord, Thou art God... J. Stainer 8d.
434. Lord, Thou hast ... A. Whiting 3d.
274. Lord, what love have I Dr. Steggall 6d.
267. Lord, who shall dwell Dr. Roberts 4d.
335. Lo, summer comes again J. Stainer 6d.
504. Lo! the winter B. Farebrother 3d.
350. Magnify His Name... G. C. Martin 4d.
290. Make a joyful noise A.C. Mackenzie 6d.
108. Make me a clean heart J. Barnby 3d.
431. Ditto A. W. Batson 3d.
436. Man goeth forth ... A. Carnall 3d.
694. Man that is born S. S. Wesley 2d.
222. Me ye have bereaved C. Morales 3d.
527. Mercy and truth are met J. Stainer 3d.
211. Mine eyes look unto Thee H. Baker 3d.
500. Miserere mei, Deus J. Barnby 3d.
665. Ditto ... Novello 2d.
464. Ditto J. Stainer 3d.
518. Ditto E. Pettman 1½d.
512. My beloved spake ... H. Purcell 6d.
428. My God, I love Thee G. J. Bennett 3d.
617. My God, I thank Thee E.H. Lemare 3d.
10. My God, my God ... Mendelssohn 6d.
288. My God, look upon... J. L. Hopkins 3d.
353. My heart is fixed W. Cruickshank 4d.
460. My heart was glad ... A. Carnall 4d.
564. My heart is inditing M. B. Foster 4d.
199. My hope is in the Everlasting ... J. Stainer 6d.
406. My mouth shall speak J. E. West 4d.
190. My soul is weary ... Dr. Beckwith 4d.
586. My soul truly waiteth B. Steane 2d.
295. My soul, wait thou still F. J. Read 4d.
629. Nearer, my God, to Thee T. Adams 3d.
210. Not unto us, O Lord H. Gadsby 6d.
558. Not unto us ... J. E. West 4d.
592. Now is Christ risen T. Adams 3d.
612. Now is come salvation C. Harris 3d.
695. Now late on the Sabbath S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
673. Now sinks the sun H. W. Parker 4d.

505. O all ye people ... ...
506. O be joyful in the Lord ...
217. O clap your hands ... T. T.
133. O clap your hands ... D.
82. O clap your hands ... ...
80. O clap your hands ... E. F.
686. O clap your hands J. L.
656. O come and behold W. H. I.
202. O come before ... G. ...
241. O come hither ... W.
569. O come, let us sing M. ...
12. O come near to the Cross ...
11. O day of penitence ...
16. O give thanks ... Sir ...
144. O give thanks ... F.
17. O give thanks ... Wil...
66. O give thanks ... S. S...
42. O give thanks ... Sir J...
520. O give thanks ... ...
599. O give thanks ... E.
596. O give thanks ... H.
35. O God, have mercy... J. ...
698. O God, my soul ... F. R.
106. O God, the King of Glory ...
141. O God, Thou art my God ...
585. Ditto B.
679. O God, Thou art my God ...
34. O God, Thou art worthy A.
188. O God, Who hast ... ...
418. O God, Who hast ... A.
430. Ditto A. W.
507. Ditto J. V.
47. O how amiable ... J.
233. O how amiable T. M.
347. O how amiable ... Oliv...
48. O how plentiful T. M.
490. O Jerusalem, look about E.
301. O Jesu! Victim Rev. J. B.
536. O joyful Light ... ...
543. O Lamb of God ... J.
251. O Lord God ... Ern...
204. O Lord God ... ... D.
184. O Lord, look down ... J. F.
702. O Lord, my God ... ...
306. O Lord of hosts ... Kate...
25. O Lord, our Governor H.
395. O Lord, Thou art ... Ch. ...
690. O Lord, Thy Word J. F.
588. O lovely peace ... ...
3. O love the Lord Sir A.
460. O my heart was glad A.
556. Open to me the gates ... F.
380. O perfect love ... J.
124. O praise God ... D.
40. O praise God T. T.
429. O praise God ... G. C.
355. O praise God Theodor...
479. O praise our God, ye people ...
14. O praise the Lord ... J.
683. O praise the Lord ... ...
232. O praise the Lord T. M.
178. O praise the Lord ... Sir J...
71. O praise the Lord ... ...
266. O praise the Lord ... Zi...
358. O praise the Lord W. G.
166. O pray for the peace E. H.
51. O Saving Victim (No. 2) ...
486. Ditto ...
492. Ditto W. A. C. Cruic...
508. O Saviour of the world (A.T. J. V.
142. O sing unto the Lord H.
551. O sing unto the Lord Cruic...
8. O taste and see ... Sir Jo...
8*. Ditto (Welsh Words) ...
263. O taste and see ... A. H.
87. O that I knew where I might find him ... Sir W. S. ...
663. O Voice of the Beloved H. ...
123. O where shall wisdom Dr. ...
435. O worship the King... E. ...
135. O worship the Lord ... Dr. ...
158. O ye that love the Lord Sir G. ...
196. Ditto H. W. W.

The Musical Times. EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. December 1, 1901.

No. 287. NOVELLO'S CHRISTMAS CAROLS. Price 1*d.*

THE PRINCE OF PEACE

Composed by A. HERBERT BREWER.

mley, Rev. H. R. } CHRISTMAS CAROLS, ner, John. } NEW AND OLD.

FIRST SERIES. One Penny each.
Tonic Sol-fa (complete), 1s.

God rest you merry, gentlemen .. Traditional
The Manger Throne .. .. .. C. Steggall
A Virgin unspotted .. .. .. Traditional
Come, ye lofty .. .. Ouseley
Come, tune your hearts .. .. .. Ouseley
The First Nowell .. .. .. Traditional
Jesu, hail .. .. J. Stainer
Good Christian men .. .. .. Old German
Sleep, holy Babe .. .. Dykes
Good King Wenceslas .. .. Traditional
When I view the Mother .. .. J. Barnby
The seven joys of Mary .. .. Traditional
On the Birthday of the Lord .. Dykes
What Child is this? .. .. .. Old English
Glorious, beauteous .. .. Maria Tiddeman
Waken! Christian Children } 1d. S.C. Hammerton
A Child this day is born } .. Traditional
Carol for Christmas Eve .. .. Ouseley
When Christ was born .. .. A. H. Brown
Christmas Morning Hymn .. .. J. Barnby

SECOND SERIES. One Penny each.

Carol for Christmas Eve .. .. Traditional
Jesus in the Manger .. .. .. H. Smart
The Holly and the Ivy } 2d. Old French
The Moon shines bright } .. Traditional
The Virgin and Child .. .. C. Steggall
The Incarnation .. .. .. Traditional
Christmas Day.. .. .. .. J. Stainer
The Cherry-Tree Carol .. .. Traditional
God's dear Son.. .. .. .. Traditional
See amid the Winter's snow .. .. Goss
The Babe of Bethlehem .. .. Traditional
In Bethlehem, that noble place .. Ouseley
A Cradle Song of the Blessed Virgin J. Barnby
Christmas Song .. .. Dykes
Jacob's Ladder .. .. Traditional
The Story of the Shepherd .. .. J. Barnby
The Wassail Song .. .. .. Traditional
In terrâ pax .. .. Dykes
Dives and Lazarus .. .. .. Traditional
From far away .. .. Dykes
Carol for Christmas Day .. .. A. Sullivan
The Child Jesus in the Garden .. J. Stainer

THIRD SERIES. One Penny each.

What soul-inspiring music .. .. Har. by J. S.
In the country nigh to Bethlehem.. G. Hine
We three Kings of Orient are .. Har. by J. S.
Emmanuel, God with us .. .. H. Gadsby
New Prince new pomp } 1d. .. C. Steggall.
A Babe is born .. Har. by J. S.
Come let us all sweet Carols sing F. Champneys
Let music break on this blest morn J. B. Calkin
Carol for New Year's Day .. A. H. Brown
The Angel Gabriel .. .. .. Har. by J. S.
The Shepherds amazed .. .. A. H. Brown
Noël! Noël! .. .. Har. by J. S.
All sing the birth .. .. .. G. C. Martin
Christmas Night .. .. .. A. H. Brown
The Christmas Celebration .. .. E. Prout
Arise and hail the Sacred Day A. H. Brown
The Holy Well .. .. .. Har. by J. S.
The Angel and the Shepherds E. H. Thorne
The Coventry Carol .. .. .. Har. by J. S.
The Morning Star .. .. .. J. F. Bridge
The Shepherds went .. .. .. J. F. Barnett
I saw three ships .. .. .. Har. by J. S.

65. Mountains, bow your heads W. H. Cummings
66. Luther's Carol .. .. .. J. Higgs
67. The Boy's Dream .. .. W. H. Monk
68. Legends of the Infancy .. .. J. F. Bridge
69. Let Christians all } 1d. .. .. Traditional
70. Immortal Babe }

	s.	d.
The above 70 Carols, complete, cloth, gilt	4	0
Library Edition, with Historical Preface, Roxburgh binding	7	6
Illustrated Edition, 1st and 2nd Series ..	7	6
Three Series (cloth, gilt, 2s. each).. each	1	0
Words only, complete (cloth, 6d.)	0	4
Words, each Series	0	1½

Helmore, Rev. T. } CAROLS FOR CHRIST-
Neale, Rev. J. M. } MASTIDE. Set to Ancient Melodies.

71. Here is joy for every age.
72. Earthly friends will change.
73. Gabriel's message.
74. Christ was born on Christmas Day.
75. Earth to-day rejoices.
76. Good Christian men, rejoice.
77. From church to church.
78. In the ending of the year.
79. Royal day that chasest gloom.
80. O'er the hill and o'er the vale.
81. Good King Wenceslas.
82. Toll! toll! because there ends. } 1d. each.

	s.	d.
The above 12 Carols, complete	1	0
Folio, with pianoforte accompaniment ..	4	6
Treble part	0	6
Words only	0	1½

Wensley, Shapcott.—TWELVE NEW CAROLS FOR CHRISTMAS. Three-halfpence each.

83. O holy star .. .. J. Stainer
84. The shepherds .. .. Eaton Faning
85. Hymn of the angels.. .. G. M. Garrett
*86. The anthem of peace .. .. J. Barnby
87. The desert .. .. .. Emma Mundella
88. Bethlehem .. .. .. Myles B. Foster
89. Daybreak .. .. .. Berthold Tours
90. In the manger .. .. .. J. Barnby
91. The mother and child .. Myles B. Foster
92. Christ is born.. .. .. .. J. F. Bridge
93. Christmas Day .. .. Battison Haynes
*94. Sweet Christmas Bells .. .. J. Stainer

Complete, 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 8d. Words only, 2d.

Ten Christmas Carols. Three-halfpence each.

95. Now join we all with holy mirth .. J. Stainer
96. Softly the night .. .. .. J. M. Crament
97. Sleep, Holy Babe .. .. .. J. T. Field
98. Now dies in David's City .. .. J. Swire
99. There dwelt in Old Judea .. .. R. Jackson
100. Good people, give ear .. .. J. Swire
101. Carol for Christmas Day .. .. J. T. Field
102. Ye stars of night .. .. .. J. Swire
103. Ring out, ye bells .. .. .. J. H. Wallis
104. Two thousand troubled years J. F. Bridge

Complete, 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 8d. Words only, 2d.

Stainer, John (Adapted and arranged by).
TWELVE OLD CAROLS. One Penny each.

*105. Shepherds! shake off your drowsy sleep.
106. Come, shepherds, come! shake off your sleep.
107. Now sing we all full sweetly.
108. The good men all of Chastree.
109. Whence comes this rush of wings afar?
110. { Come with us, sweet flowers, and worship. } 1d
{ Infant so gentle, so pure, and so sweet! }

* All Carols marked with an asterisk are also published separately in Tonic Sol-fa.

Copyright, 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

TO SIR WALTER PARRATT.

The Prince of Peace.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL.

W. H. DRAPER. A. HERBERT BREWER.

Allegretto.
mf
Hush, all ye sounds of war, Ye na - tions all be still, A
cres.
voice of heaven - ly joy Steals o - ver vale and hill, . . O
f hear the an - gels sing The cap - tive world's re - lease, . . This dim.
pp
day is born in Beth-le-hem The Prince of Peace.

Copyright, 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

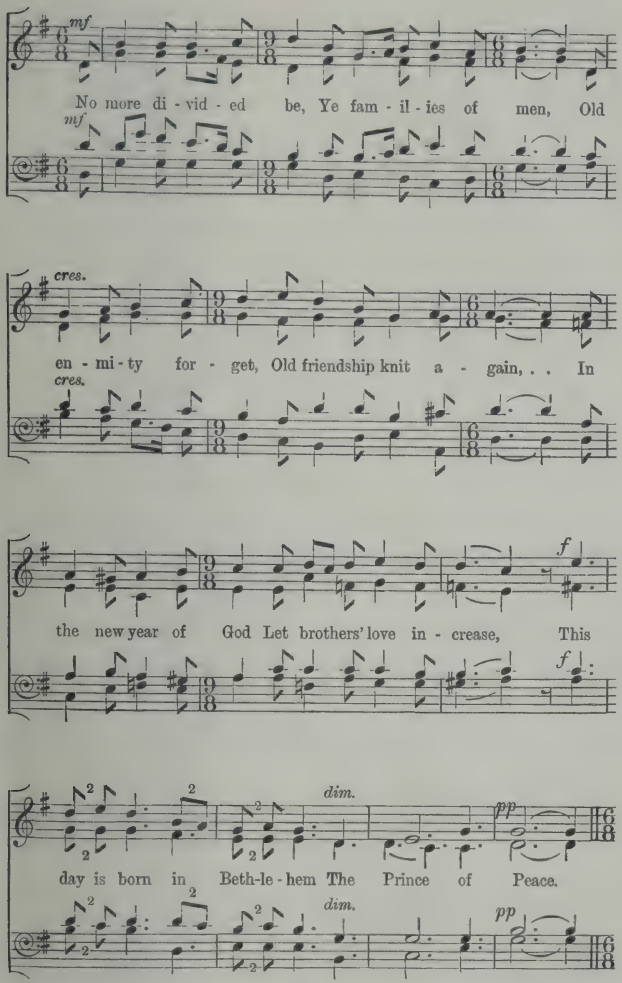
THE PRINCE OF PEACE.



mf
No more di - vid - ed be, Ye fam - il - ies of men, Old
mf
cres.
en - mi - ty for - get, Old friendship knit a - gain, . . In cres.
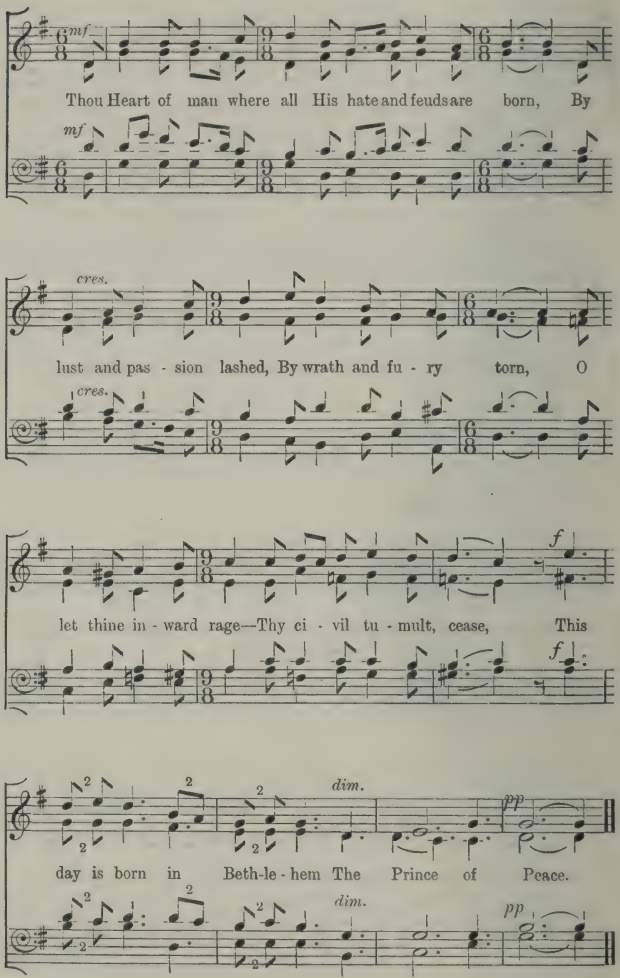
f
the new year of God Let brothers' love in - crease, This
f
dim.
pp
day is born in Beth-le - hem The Prince of Peace.
dim.
pp

THE PRINCE OF PEACE.



mf
Thou Heart of man where all His hate and feuds are born, By mf
cres.
lust and pas - sion lashed, By wrath and fu - ry torn, O
cres.
f let thine in - ward rage—Thy ci - vil tu - mult, cease, This
f
dim.
pp
day is born in Beth-le - hem The Prince of Peace.
dim.
pp

ORGAN RECITALS.

Dr. M. J. Monk, Truro Cathedral (entirely from the works of the late Sir John Stainer).—Dr. G. J. Bennett, Lincoln Minster (Organ Sonata in D minor, No. 1, Guilmant).—Mr. Charles Stott, All Saints', Bradford.—Mr. Henry W. Weston, St. Augustine's, Grove Park, Lee (Concert Fantasia on an air by Rode, W. T. Best).—Mr. J. A. Gaccon, St. Woolos, Newport, Mon.—Mr. Maughan Barnett, St. John's, Wellington, New Zealand (Overture Xerxes, Handel).—Mr. Sydney Crookes, Parish Church, Cupar (First Sonata, J. S. Bach).—Mr. Arthur S. James, St. Peter's, Rickmansworth ('Cuckoo and Nightingale' Concerto, Handel).—Mr. S. Philip Thornley, United Free Church, Callander (Barcarolle in F, Sterndale Bennett).—Mr. J. C. B. Tirbutt, St. Mary's, Reading (March for a Church Festival, Best).—Mr. R. E. Parker, Parish Church, Wilmslow (Pastorale, Kullak).—Mr. Wm. Rigby, New Road Congregational Church, Bury (Scherzo, Horatio W. Parker).—Mr. Francis Burgess, St. Mary's, Primrose Hill, N.W.—Mr. Henry Riding, St. Peter-upon-Cornhill (Fantasia, F. E. Gladstone, and Imperial March, Elgar).—Dr. E. C. Bairstow and Mr. C. H. Moody, Holy Trinity, Coventry (Pièce Heroïque, César Franck, played by Dr. Bairstow, and an 'En forme d'ouverture,' Smart, played by Mr. Moody, organist of the church).—Mr. W. Louch, St. John's, Longsight (Andante in A, Smart).—Mr. J. W. Cheadle, St. Michael's, Dumfries. — Mr. Leonard Ellis, St. Mark's, Southampton (Concert Fantasia, Stewart).—Mr. Sidney A. Mosdell, SS. Peter and Paul, Tring (Fantasie Overture, Garrett).—Mr. W. W. Starmer, St. Michael and All Angels, Withyham (Fantasia in C minor, Berens).—Mr. A. H. Allen, SS. Philip and James, Oxford (Fantasia in E flat, Brosig).—Mr. A. Herbert Brewer, Victoria Rooms, Clifton (Dithyramb, Basil Harwood). Mr. Edwin H. Lemare, St. Margaret's, Westminster, who played his own Symphony in G minor.

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER, AND CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. W. E. Belcher, St. Asaph Cathedral.
Mr. C. H. Cooper, Soho Hill Congregational Chapel, Birmingham.
Mr. Claude Fowles, Parish Church of St. Mary, Torquay.
Mr. G. D. Gardner, Holy Trinity Church, Paddington.
Mr. William Hutt, Twickenham Parish Church.
Mr. T. E. Murray (organist), Highbury Presbyterian Church.
Mr. F. Isherwood-Plummer, Hawkshead Street Congregational Church, Southport.
Mr. Harold Vincent Read, Hyde Church, Winchester, and assistant music-master at Winchester College.
Mr. Alex. J. Rouse, Highbury Quadrant Church.
Mr. Herbert H. de Witt (Bass), St. Mary the Virgin, Aldermanbury.

REVIEWS.

MUSICAL LITERATURE.

The Opera—Past and Present. An historical sketch. By William Foster Apthorp.
Choirs and Choral Music. By Arthur Mees.
[John Murray.]

These two books are interesting additions to 'Mr. Murray's Musical Series,' contributed by American writers. Mr. Apthorp states that the main object of his historical sketch is: 'To show how a general desire for some such form of dramatico-lyric art as the Opera was manifested in France and Italy considerably before any possibility existed of its coming into actual being; how this possibility was at last realized by the devising of a style of artistic monodic composition by the Florentine Music Reform, and how the Opera itself was among the first practical results of that Reform.' To what extent the author succeeds in his self-imposed task, the reader may be referred to the book itself, in which he will find much to interest him. Mr. Apthorp's contention that Francesco Provenzale, and not Scarlatti, was the 'Founder of the Neapolitan School' is one that is likely to be challenged. By the way, the name of Provenzale, whom the author considers to be one of the greatest and most forgotten geniuses in the history of the opera — is not to be found in any English biographical dictionary of musicians. No one will, however, dispute the assertion—stated under the heading 'The Art of the opera singer'—that 'the singer of to-day must be a musician, or he has a sorry chance of doing great work; but he must also, and even primarily, be a singer—which last too many are prone to forget.' True, the possession of brains is not necessarily a voice asset.

The English reader of Mr. Mees's 'Choirs and Choral Music' will almost naturally turn to the pages which treat of 'Amateur Choral Culture in America.' Some interesting particulars are given of William Billings (1746—1800), the first American composer, and a tanner by trade. Of the forty-eight members of his 'Sacred Singing School,'—established at Stoughton, Mass., in 1774—twenty were tenors, of whom thirteen were women! From the small beginnings of Mr. Billings to the great Festivals conducted by Dr. Leopold Damrosch and Mr. Theodore Thomas, Mr. Mees succinctly traces the development of choral music in the United States. The ten pages devoted to 'Amateur Choral Culture in England' are inadequate from the historian's point of view. The reference (on p. 178) to the 'celebrated chorus singers from Lancashire and the North of England led by Miss Radcliffe,' who sang at the Gloucester Musical Festival of 1772, is another reminder that the subject of choral singing in Lancashire and Yorkshire is one that wants looking into and historically treating. The statement that the Handel Festivals at the Crystal Palace began in 1862 (p. 137) needs correction; the first triennial meeting took place in 1859, preceded by a preliminary gathering in 1857. There are many points in these readable pages to which we should like to refer if space permitted, as we think, with the author, that it is the first book of its kind on this interesting subject. Both volumes are illustrated with portraits.

Examples in Strict Counterpoint (Old and New). Part II. By Gordon Saunders. No. 41A of Novello's Primer and Educational Series. Edited by Sir John Stainer and Sir C. Hubert H. Parry.
[Novello and Company, Limited.]

'In this Primer the chief aim has been to meet the requirements of those candidates who are preparing for the Mus.B., Mus.D., and Diploma examinations. This will explain the preponderance of Five-part and Eight-part specimens.' So runs the opening paragraph of the preface to this book, which consists of specimens of 'how to contrapuntally do it' in five, six, seven, eight, ten, and twelve parts. The majority of the examples have been contributed by English graduates—including Professor Armes, of the University of Durham, Dr. G. J. Bennett, Dr. F. R. Greenish, Dr. Harding, Dr. G. F. Huntley, Dr. Iliffe, Dr. Keeton, Dr. C. W. Pearce, Dr. Varley Roberts, and Dr. F. J. Sawyer—musicians who have taken their degrees at various Universities, and who therefore set before students in a practical way what may be required of examinees for degrees. The old contrapuntal hands are not, however, passed over. We have specimens from Eccard (1553), Lotti, Fétis, and the indispensable Cherubini. The result is a blend of the ancient and modern. As an aid to students, this Primer will be found an invaluable complement to Part I. (examples in four parts), which, we understand, has been revised and somewhat modified.

CHURCH MUSIC FOR MEN'S VOICES.

'Sing we merrily unto God.' By F. J. Read.
'O tarry thou the Lord's leisure.' By John E. West.
[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Dr. Read's Anthem will delight the hearts of singers who enjoy taking part in well designed contrapuntal music. It is an admirable example of effectiveness and truth of expression obtained by scholastic means. The setting, it should be added, is in three vocal parts, respectively for tenor, alto, and bass. The 'comfortableness' of the words which Mr. West has set to music, and their exhortation to faith, are impressed by the dignified character of the music, and the pianissimo ending which dies away into silence finely suggests 'The Peace which passeth understanding.'

Communion Service. For Men's Voices. By John Stainer. [Novello and Company, Limited.]

This Communion Service was one of Sir John Stainer's latest compositions, and it forms a worthy continuation of the Morning and Evening Services (for men's voices) that emanated from his pen. Although the name of the composer is sufficient indication of the importance and value of the music, a description of its design may be useful. Its most distinctive portion is the setting of the Nicene Creed, which is a fine example of its composer's genius and thorough comprehension of the spirit of English Church music. The passage beginning 'And was Incarnate' is written for tenor solo, the interest of which is much increased by the originality of the organ accompaniment. The fugal writing at the close is extremely clever, and, be it added, effective. This portion makes somewhat exacting demands on the singers, but this has been realised by the composer, who has provided an alternative ending. The Offertory Sentences that have been set are 'Lay not up for yourselves,' 'Godliness is great riches,' 'Give alms of thy goods,' and 'Be merciful after thy power,' the music to each admirably reflecting the spirit of the words. The Sanctus is simple but peculiarly impressive; the Gloria starts with a fine, bold phrase alla cappella, and includes tenor solos. A threefold Amen furnishes an effective conclusion.

NEW SETTINGS OF THE BENEDICITE.

Benedicite, omnia Opera, No. 2 in G, by Arthur E. Godfrey. In G, by R. Bernard Elliott. In C, by C. Hylton Stewart. In E flat, by Edward C. Bairstow.
(Novello's Parish Choir Book.)
[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Mr. Godfrey's setting of the 'Song of the Three Children' is somewhat novel in character, and the canticle is treated in such an ingenious manner that much of its monotony is avoided. It should be added that the unison voice parts are richly harmonised in the organ accompaniment. The music by Mr. Elliott is of the simplest character, three double chants are provided for as many sections of the canticle, with a fourth chant for the Gloria. The settings by the Rev. Hylton Stewart and Dr. Edward Bairstow are arranged according to the plan of the Paragraph Psalter, which divides the Benedicite into sections, each of which is differently treated in double chant form. Dr. Bairstow's setting is perhaps the more effective of the two, owing to the organ part being more fully treated, but both arrangements merit the attention of organists and choirmasters.

NEW SONGS.

Fünf Lieder (Op. 18), Fünf Lieder (Op. 19), Wo kann mein trauter Ritter sein? (Op. 33), Elfenliebe (Op. 35), Rhapsodie (Op. 37), Persisches Lied (Op. 38). Fitnes Gesang. Ein Cyklus von sieben Gesängen (Op. 40). Von Bertram Shapleigh. [Breitkopf und Härtel.]

New songs are heavily handicapped, for they are at once mentally compared with the rich heritage of the past. Then again, new songs are at a disadvantage just because they are new; only time can show whether any apparent merit is lasting, or whether any latent beauty will reveal itself. The songs of Mr. Bertram Shapleigh are undoubtedly interesting, and yet we often feel that they are made, and well-made, rather than inspired. Sometimes they run on familiar lines, and it is only by certain quaint and at times forced harmonies that the ordinary character of the music is disguised. In other songs, however, there is individuality and charm. Among the most successful we reckon 'Was I but dreaming' (Op. 18, No. 4), 'Song of a Bird in the Oasis' (Op. 19, No. 2), which has a fresh melody and dainty accompaniment, the Rhapsodie (Op. 37), and especially the 'Fitne' cycle (Op. 40). The excellent English versions of the German poems are by Mrs. Shapleigh.

An Even-Song. Words by Celia Thaxter. Music by Horatio W. Parker.
Songs of the Seasons. Words by J. M. Hadow. Music by H. A. J. Campbell.
[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The words of Professor Parker's 'An Even-Song' are somewhat enigmatical, but the music is graceful, and expressive of the sentiment which is attributed by poets to two people in a boat in the moonlight. The little poems by Mr. Hadow, and set to music by Mr. H. A. J. Campbell, form a song cycle commencing with a swain in a hopeless frame of mind, who in the winter sees 'answering love in his sweetheart's eyes'; in the spring receives prophecies of hope with the return of the swallows, and in the summer finds consummation of his aspiration. Mr. Campbell's music faithfully follows the sentiments of the gentleman and accentuates the spirit of the lines. The addition of parts for first and second violins to the pianoforte accompaniment will doubtless add to the acceptableness of these pleasing compositions.

PART-SONGS.

Close to my Heart. Words by L. Lowndes. Music by William Davies.
The Fisher Boy. Words by Eliza Cook. Music by John E. West.
The Chase. Words by Edward Oxenford. Music by Edward German.
Faithless Nelly Gray. Words by Tom Hood. Music by C. Lee Williams.
The Highland Laddie. Words by Robert Burns. Music by H. Elliot Button.
To a Red Rose. By Hamilton Clarke.
(Novello's Part-Song Book).
[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The composition of Mr. William Davies is an admirable example of solidly harmonised melody. Happy use is made of harmonic transition at the words, 'Oh, cruel Time,' and the return to the key of the piece is effectively managed. Mr. West has allied Eliza Cook's lines to music possessing a lilt that accentuates the poet's opinion that the 'Fisher boy jolly lives.' The part-writing is cleverly designed, and the several voices possess independence which will interest well-trained singers. Hunting songs are not perhaps now so popular as once they were, but 'The Chase' would certainly secure the favour of any audience, for Mr. German's music goes with a swing and dash that stir the pulse. 'Faithless Nelly Gray' has been most cleverly set by Mr. Lee Williams, whose music reflects the wit of Tom Hood's 'pathetic ballad.' The composition requires crisp singing, but it will fully repay any extra trouble bestowed on its rehearsal. Mr. Elliot Button has happily caught the spirit of Burns's lines, and the music has sufficient Scotch character to suggest the nationality of the poet. Grace and daintiness are the distinguishing features of Mr. Hamilton Clarke's part-song, which is eminently suitable to well-trained small choirs.

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

Happy New Year! A choice collection of pianoforte compositions of medium ability by modern composers.
[Breitkopf and Härtel.]

In this attractive album, twenty-five compositions have been contributed by twenty-two different composers, of whom five are Englishmen. The names of Hermann, Goetz, Raff, the Scharwenkas, John Francis Barnett, Hans Sitt, Graham P. Moore, and others, are a sufficient guarantee of excellence. While the pieces are of the lighter order, they have not the slightest taint of triviality, and we can heartily commend this attractive volume as an appropriate gift book at this present-giving season of the year.

MUSIC FOR FEMALE VOICES.

The Sea Fairies. Cantata for Soprano Solo and Chorus of Female Voices. Poem, by Lord Tennyson. Composed by Battison Haynes.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The talent and musicianship of the late Mr. Battison Haynes are very prominent in his setting of Tennyson's 'The Sea Fairies.' The music is simple, but the eerie spirit of the words has been happily caught. The soprano soloist has an important part in the cantata; it is not only interesting, but grateful to sing. The effectiveness of the choruses, written in four-part harmony, is much enhanced by the independence of the pianoforte accompaniment, which also is cleverly designed to support the voices in passages where difficulty might be experienced by some choirs in maintaining the pitch.

LONDON CONCERTS.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

The thirty-first season opened at the Albert Hall on the 7th ult., with a remarkably fine performance of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' under the direction of Sir Frederick Bridge. The principal soloists were Madame Ella Russell, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Andrew Black. The choir, tenors especially, were in fine form, and they evidently enjoyed their congenial task.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

Mr. Robert Newman's notably successful series of Promenade Concerts at the Queen's Hall terminated on the 9th ult. To the list of novelties mentioned in our last issue must be added the performance, on October 22, of Dr. Edward Elgar's two Military Marches, Pomp and Circumstance, which were received with the greatest enthusiasm (special reference to these fine numbers is made by our Liverpool correspondent); Mr. MacDowell's second 'Indian Suite' (Op. 48)—a picturesque work—on October 23; a dramatic prelude, 'Oreithyia,' of romantic character, by Mr. Reginald Steggall, October 24; a poetically conceived Overture, 'In Autumn,' by Mr. Norman O'Neill; a Suite for Orchestra, 'King Christian II.,'' by J. Siebelius, both on October 26; an Overture 'Solennelle,' in B minor (Op. 73), by M. Glazounoff, October 29; the same night the first performance in London of Mr. W. H. Bell's Symphonic Prelude, 'A Song in the Morning'; a Romance for Orchestra, by Mr. Gerard Cobb, October 31; a Symphonic Poem for Orchestra and Organ, 'Ostern,' by Herr Fritz Volbach, on the 2nd ult.; some interesting excerpts from Tschaïkowsky's Opera, 'La dame de Pique,' and the first performance in London of Mr. Arthur Hervey's descriptive ballad, 'The Gates of Night,' on the 6th ult.; and on the following night, the production of a vivacious and clever Suite de Ballet, entitled, 'Danse Rhythms,' by Mr. Percy Pitt.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The most commendable novelties produced at the concert given by the students of the Royal Academy of Music on the 15th ult., at St. James's Hall, were a 'Romance' and 'Caprice' for violin and pianoforte, by Miss F. Margaret Bennett, by whom and Miss Marjorie Hayward they were admirably played. Mention is also due of a Nocturne in D and a Polonaise in F sharp for pianoforte solo, by Mr. Felix G. Swinstead, who was the executant, and a song entitled 'A Lullaby,' by Mr. Yorke Bowen, sung by Miss Winifred O'Connor. A very young pianist, Miss Irene Scharrer, showed remarkable executive facility and sense of climax in Chopin's Rondo in E flat, and other instrumentalists and singers of promise were Miss Margaret Sutton, Miss Katie Moss, Miss Ethel Pettit, Miss Elaine Cliffe, Mr. Alexander Webster, and Mr. Armon Jones.

MR. ROBERT NEWMAN'S SYMPHONY AND ALBERT HALL CONCERTS.

The first performance of a new work entitled 'Toussaint L'Ouverture,' by Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor, was given at Queen's Hall on October 26. The music is designed to illustrate the character of the remarkable Negro patriot whose name furnishes the title of the composition. In its entirety the overture shows advance on Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's previous writings for orchestra. At the second concert, on the 9th ult., Brahms's Fourth Symphony in E minor furnished the principal feature, and the soloist was M. Ysaye.

An orchestral concert of exceptional importance, the first of a series, was given on the 16th ult., with Mr. Henry J. Wood conducting. The orchestra consisted of 200 executants, and comprised 130 string players, 31 wood-wind, the remainder being players on brass and percussion instruments and harpists. The finest effects were secured in excerpts from Wagner's operas, as the echoes of the building interfered with the interpretative clearness of Beethoven's seventh Symphony. The solo vocalists were Mrs. Henry J. Wood and Mr. Philip Brozel.

POPULAR CONCERTS.

The new series (Saturdays only), at the old locale, St. James's Hall, but with Mr. W. Saunders as director, was inaugurated on October 26, the quartet parts being led by Fraulein Wietrowetz, with M. Pachmann as solo pianist. Neither this nor the subsequent performances call for comment, but the appearances of M. Saint-Saëns at the concerts, on the 9th and 16th ult., merit special mention. On both occasions the programmes were largely devoted to the works of the distinguished French composer.

QUARTET AND CHAMBER CONCERTS.

The Kruse Quartet commenced a series of three Chamber Concerts, at St. James's Hall, on October 30.——Some excellent quartet playing was heard at the Bechstein Hall, on October 30, by the Hans Wessely party.——The Wietrowetz Quartet Party gave a commendable concert on the 4th ult., and Fräulein Wietrowetz a violin recital on the 7th ult., at the Bechstein Hall.——The Chaplin Trio were heard to advantage at a concert given by the party on the 5th ult., at the Steinway Hall.——Two remarkably fine Chamber Concerts were given on the 14th and 21st ult., by M. Ysaye, Herr Becker, and Signor Busoni, a rare combination of talent.——M. Ysaye and Signor Busoni, on the 7th ult., gave a recital at the Queen's Hall of Beethoven's Sonatas in G (Op. 96), in C minor (Op. 30, No. 2), and the Kreutzer, the interpretation of each being of the highest artistic interest.——Mr. Tovey gave Chamber Concerts on the 7th, 14th, and 21st ult., at St. James's Hall, his pianoforte solos including Bach's Goldberg variations.——Mr. Charles Phillips and Miss Ethel Barns began a fresh series of Concerts on the 14th ult., at the Bechstein Hall, when the first performance in London was given of Christian Sinding's Sonata in C for violin and pianoforte, which proved a melodious and pleasing work, and there was produced a new Song Cycle by Mr. William Wallace, entitled 'Lords of the Sea.'

VARIOUS.

The autumn season of Richter concerts was concluded at St. James's Hall on the 4th ult. At the preceding performance, on October 28, the feature of the evening was a fine rendering of Dr. Edward Elgar's 'Cockaigne' Overture.

The pupils of Miss Agnes Larkcom gave an excellent concert-performance of Humperdinck's 'Hänsel und Gretel,' at Bechstein Hall, on the 11th ult., at which the singing of Miss Eleanor Coward and Miss Lilian Kent, as the representatives of the two children, calls for special commendation.

In Memoriam the death of Sir Arthur Sullivan, a performance of the 'Golden Legend' was given, on the 22nd ult., under the direction of Mr. Henry J. Wood, at the Queen's Hall. The chorus, furnished by the Wolverhampton Choral Society, sang excellently.

At Mr. Charles Fry's excellent performance of 'The Tempest' (St. George's Hall, the 9th ult.), the revival of Dr. Boyce's music to the masque in Shakespeare's play was an interesting feature of a very enjoyable representation.

Mr. Edward Iles gave an interesting Song Recital at the Steinway Hall, on the 14th ult., and is much to be commended for including in his programme songs by Sir Hubert H. Parry, Dr. Charles Wood, and Mr. Lane Wilson. Mr. Iles was assisted by Miss Marian Jay (violinist) and Dr. Ernest Walker, who accompanied.

Miss Amy Castles, a very promising young Australian soprano, made her first appearance in England at St. James's Hall, on the 19th ult. It is interesting to find that Greater Britain, as in the case of Miss Ada Crossley, is furnishing us with solo vocalists.

The Royal Artillery Band (under the skilful conductorship of Cavaliere L. Zaverthal) gave one of their enjoyable concerts at Queen's Hall on the 22nd ult. The chief features of the programme were the seldom-heard Reformation Symphony of Mendelssohn, and Sir Alexander Mackenzie's Rhapsodie Ecossaise.

A deluge of concerts, recitals, &c., has visited London during the past month—on one day there were no less than seven of these events, for which we were favoured with tickets! The following, however, in addition to the foregoing, are worthy of mention :—

ST. JAMES'S HALL.

Miss Fanny Davies; two excellent pianoforte recitals on October 25 and the 5th ult.

M. Kálman Rónay, a violin recital on the 6th ult.

Miss Ada Crossley, an interesting concert on the 12th ult.

Mr. H. Bramsen's violoncello recital, 18th ult.

BECHSTEIN HALL.

Messrs. Kelly, Cole, and Baxter's vocal recital, 12th ult.

Miss Aline May's recital, 5th ult.

Herr Flesch, violin recital, 11th ult.

Miss Clara Blumenthal and Miss Lilian Foulis' pianoforte and violin recital, 19th ult.

Miss Perry's pianoforte recital, 21st ult.

Madame Steinhauer and Mr. Mallinson's recital, 22nd ult.

STEINWAY HALL.

Mr. Hirwen Jones's concert, 8th ult.

Miss B. Spencer's vocal recital, 13th ult.

Mr. H. W. Charles's pianoforte recital, 14th ult.

QUEEN'S (SMALL) HALL.

Miss Ingleton's pianoforte recital, 20th ult.

The letter from Our Special Correspondent in America will be found on p. 828.

MUSIC IN VIENNA.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Vienna, November, 15.

The honour of inaugurating the new season has fallen this year to the Concertverein, the youngest of our musical institutions, which, though only two years old, has already exercised a most beneficial influence upon the musical life of the city. Under the direction of Ferdinand Loewe, this society is giving two series of grand symphonic concerts, and, in addition, every Sunday and Thursday, 'popular concerts,' where good music, both classical and modern, may be enjoyed at a price within reach of even the most slender purse. Excellent interpretations were given by the orchestra of Schumann's C major Symphony and of that in C minor by Brahms. As seems to be the case with nearly all the more notable conductors of the day, Herr Loewe shows himself more en rapport with the works of the romantic and most modern composers, than with those of the classical school. Thus his readings of symphonies by Haydn and Mozart were scarcely as satisfactory as those already instanced; on the other hand, his interpretations of the 'Benvenuto Cellini' overture, by Berlioz, and of 'The Ruler of Spirits,' by Weber, may be characterised as brilliant achievements. The 'popular concerts' are being conducted this season by Herren Müller and Bartlmé, both very capable musicians.

Various and meritorious as is the activity of the Concertverein, its orchestral forces cannot, as yet, be compared for efficiency and brilliancy with the superb orchestra of the Opera, known in the concert-room as the Philharmonic Orchestra. For many years, under the direction of Dr. Hans Richter, this institution could not fail to be raised, by the powerful artistic personality of this incomparable artist, to a very high standard of excellence. Indeed, the performances under his direction will linger permanently in the memory of all whose good fortune it has been to listen to them. His immediate successor, Herr Mahler, the present director of our Opera, succeeded admirably in upholding the high reputation thus acquired by these concerts, albeit, as is inevitable in the case of all strongly pronounced individualities, not without changing to a great extent their artistic physiognomy. In lieu of performances whose most attractive and completely satisfying feature was the approximate realisation of the ideally beautiful, he gave us something so distinctly personal, so peculiarly interesting withal, as to be alternately fascinating and repellent, according to the predisposition of the listener. Hence his interpretations have elicited much praise, and also much censure. The present conductor, Joseph Helmesberger, has introduced himself most favourably in the few performances which have so far taken place, and quite a number of interesting new works are promised during the season. One of these, 'The Golden Spinning Wheel,' by Dvorák, a symphonic poem inspired by a Slavonic legend, was included in the opening concert.

The great choral performances of the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde, likewise conducted by Herr Loewe, devoted their opening concert to Handel's oratorio 'Saul.' Here, as in so many other compositions of that master, the profound critical insight and eminently practical grasp of detail brought to bear by Chrysander, whose version was used on this occasion, stood the work in excellent stead. The solo parts were admirably sung by Fräulein Kury, Fräulein Walker, and Herren Naval and Frauscher, all of them, with the exception of the first-named, members of the Imperial Opera. Fräulein Walker, who interpreted the magnificent part of David, is an American lady, and for many years past has been justly esteemed one of our most gifted dramatic vocalists. She is not only a great singer, but a truly great artist.

Much interest was created by the concert given in Vienna by M. Edouard Colonne, with his Paris orchestra. The famous conductor gave us the great 'Leonora' overture of Beethoven; a symphony in A minor, by Saint-Saëns—new to us; a fantasia, 'Impressions d'Italie,' by Charpentier; a suite, by Lalo; as well as the 'Venusberg' scene from Wagner's 'Tannhäuser,' and several excerpts from 'La Damnation de Faust,' by Berlioz.

MANDYCZEWSKI.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Philharmonic Society, at the second concert of their season, on the 15th ult., gave a successful performance of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul.' The soloists were Miss Janet Garnett, Miss Muriel Foster, Mr. William Maxwell, and Mr. Charles Knowles. Dr. F. Koeller conducted. The work of the chorus was excellent, and the orchestra gave a very creditable account of themselves. It is gratifying to have to record that, of the total strength of the orchestra—65—only 8 were 'imported' for the occasion from Manchester and Dublin, while all the remaining performers were professional or amateur players living in Belfast. The Society's Conductor, Dr. Koeller, has, to a large extent, brought about this happy change by his skilful, untiring, and, above all, patient handling of his material—in many instances very raw at first.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The great feature of the performance of 'Samson and Delilah,' already mentioned in these columns, was the admirable work of the principals, Madame Kirkby Lunn (Delilah), Mr. John Coates (Samson), and Mr. Dan Price (Priest of Dagon). The chorus was much too heavy for the work generally, but the singing was excellent, and the band was fairly efficient. Subordinate solo parts were well sustained by Messrs. J. A. Cohen, J. Chambers, W. Evans, and W. Bennett. Mr. F. W. Beard conducted with ability and care.

The Halford Concerts Society commenced their season on October 29, with a good programme :—Gluck's overture 'Iphigenia in Aulis,' with the Wagner reading as well as ending, Tschaïkowsky's fine Symphony in E minor (No. 5), and Liszt's Hungarian Storm March. Mdlle. Wietrowetz was the soloist in Max Bruch's third violin Concerto (Op. 58), of which a grand performance was given. ——The second concert took place on the 12th ult., when the Town Hall was very well filled. One attraction was the visit of M. Busoni, who gave a poetic reading of Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat, and played in brilliant style pieces by Chopin and Liszt. The orchestral works were: Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, beautifully played; Volbach's symphonic poem, 'Es waren zwei Königskinder,' new here, well given and cordially received; and Wagner's 'Huldigungsmarsch.' Mr. Halford conducted with his customary judgment and skill.

The drawing-room concerts held in the Grosvenor Rooms of the Grand Hotel, under the direction of Mr. Max Mossel, were resumed on October 31. The first function was a vocal and pianoforte recital by Miss Marie Brema and Professor Carl Friedberg. The lady introduced some sacred songs of the 14th century, interesting, but scarcely in harmony with the surroundings. On the 5th ult., Mr. Howard Hadley gave an excellent and much appreciated pianoforte recital in the Masonic Hall. His programme was in the main well chosen, and unhackneyed, and included Chopin's Sonata in B minor (Op. 58), and an Étude by the young Englishman, Clement Harris, who died fighting in the cause of the Greeks, in 1897. Madame Kirkby Lunn was the vocalist.——On the13th ult., Madame Albani and her party gave a concert in the Town Hall, at which the most interesting item was Mozart's aria 'Non temer,' with violin obbligato, the performers being the gifted vocalist and Lady Hallé.——Messrs. W. H. Priestley and Sons gave an invitation concert on the 19th ult., in the New Temperance Hall, with Miss Fanny Davies, Miss Alice Davies, and Miss Edith Robinson as performers. The new hall is a great acquisition, and will soon be in request by concert givers.

The Saturday evening concerts have been of more than usual interest. On October 26, the Amateur Orchestral Society, under Mr. Halford, gave an excellent selection, but the audience was small. At the next, on the 2nd ult., the Town Hall was crowded, when Haydn's 'Creation' was given in its entirety by the Choral and Orchestral Association, conducted by Mr. Joseph H. Adams. On the 9th ult. the Choral Union gave a Sullivan concert, the programme including the cantata 'Kenilworth.' Mr. Thomas Facer conducted. The Midland Musical Society, conductor Mr. H. M. Stevenson, performed Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' on the 16th ult. Choral works attract the largest audiences at these cheap concerts. On Sunday, October 27 (Hospital Sunday), Gounod's 'St. Cecilia' Mass was performed at St. Catherine's (R.C.) Church, with full chorus and orchestra, Mr. Halford conducting.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The concert which Miss Amy Riseley (niece of the well-known conductor) gave, on the 1st ult., at Redland Park Hall, was largely attended. Miss Riseley's pianoforte playing afforded much gratification, her pieces being Chopin's Nocturne in C minor, Deuxième Scherzo in B flat minor, Liszt's 'Consolation' (No. 6), and Grieg's 'Oisillon' (Op. 43, No. 4). She was assisted by Miss Mabel Bigg, a capable local violinist, and Miss Winifred Bigg (violoncello). Miss Janet Garnett and Mr. Arnold Fraser were the vocalists.

Miss Mary Lock commenced her chamber concerts for the season, on the 4th ult., at the Victoria Rooms. Mr. J. W. Duys was again first violin, Mr. Hubert Hunt (organist of Bristol Cathedral) took the place of Mr. Schöttler as second violin, Mr. Ernest Lane that of Mr. Wetten as viola, and Mr. Percy Lewis again played the violoncello, with Miss Lock at the pianoforte. The well interpreted programme included Sir Alexander Mackenzie's Quartet for pianoforte and strings. Madame Margaret Milward sang songs by Carl Bohm and Orlando Morgan.

There was a crowded attendance at Colston Hall, on the 15th ult., when in addition to songs by Madame Albani and Mr. Santley, Mr. George Riseley's Male Voice Choir gave, with considerable effect, the 'Bacchus' chorus out of Mendelssohn's 'Antigone,' and Grieg's 'Landerkennung,' Mr. Santley taking the solo in the latter. There was an efficient orchestra, and Mr. Riseley directed the performance.

During the residence of Dr. Percy Buck in Bristol, he started some organ recitals at the Victoria Rooms. These have been continued under the management of Mr. W. E. Fowler, of All Saints' Church. There have been large audiences, and the executants, in addition to Mr. Fowler, have been Mr. Hubert Hunt (the Cathedral), Mr. C. W. Stear (Church of the Holy Nativity), and Mr. A. Herbert Brewer (Gloucester Cathedral). At his recital on the 16th ult., Mr. Brewer introduced a Grand Chœur in E flat, his own composition. This was the first public performance, and its spirited and jubilant character so delighted the hearers, that Mr. Brewer, in response to the persistent applause, repeated it.

On the 21st ult. a meeting, convened by the Lord Mayor, was held at the Guildhall, in order to consider a proposition for holding a musical festival in the city next autumn. A committee was appointed to make arrangements, provided that by Christmas the sum of £4,000 was guaranteed.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Dublin Musical Society opened its season with two miscellaneous concerts, at which Madame Albani, Mr. Santley, Miss Muriel Foster, and Mr. Melfort D'Alton sang, Lady Hallé played, and the Society's Choir sang some part-songs. The Dublin Chamber Music Union gave its first concert, on the 14th ult., when Mr. Charles Schilsky made his first appearance as first violin in place of Mr. Wilhelmj. The programme included Schumann's A minor String Quartet, Beethoven's Trio in B flat, and Fauré's violin and pianoforte Sonata in A. In all three works, Mr. Schilsky showed himself to be an artist of very great merit, and with the excellent performances of our old friends, Signor Esposito, Herr Bast, Mr. Grisard, and Mr. Delany, the concert was distinctly one of the best we have heard in Dublin for some years.

It is a pleasure to be able to say what an admirable programme was given by Mrs. Coslett-Heller at her first song recital. The lady possesses a well cultivated mezzo-soprano voice of considerable power and sweetness, which she uses with expression and taste. Madame Fromm played Beethoven's seldom heard Sonata Op. 7, and some lighter pieces with considerable technical ability and taste.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Under the auspices of the Ipswich Sunday School Union, a series of musical competitions, in which scholars and teachers of the affiliated schools took part, was held in the Public Hall of that town on the 5th and 6th ult. The scheme included pianoforte, violin, and vocal solos, vocal duets, and part-songs. Mr. E. Minshall, who acted as judge, spoke in high terms of praise of the efforts of the various competitors, and expressed his pleasure at the distinct improvement shown by each class since his previous visit. The function closed with a concert conducted by Mr. J. Hayward, in which several of the prize winners co-operated.

The Burnham Market Choral Association gave a most successful concert on October 23, when several part-songs and madrigals were given in a style which showed careful training of the choir by Mr. Beaver, who conducted.

We regret that, by an unfortunate error in our last issue, we associated the Norwich Choral Society with the Norwich Orchestral Union. The two Societies are distinct, and it is the latter Society which is preparing Weber's 'Preciosa' and other works for their Concert which is to take place on January 23.

Two unfortunate and regrettable slips of the pen were the cause of two mis-statements in the notice of the Leeds Musical Festival in our last issue. The omitted chorus in Part I. of the 'Messiah' (p. 732) was 'And He shall purify,' not 'His yoke is easy'; and (p. 733) Miss Agnes Nicholls, who appeared at four of the eight concerts, is an ex-student of the Royal College of Music.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The most important musical item of the month of November was the recital of our talented townsman, Mr. Paul Della Torre. In Mr. Della Torre we possess a pianist of the first force, and a sound, and highly cultured musician. In conjunction with his pupil, Miss Muriel Kerr Brown—a pianist of remarkable attainments—he placed before an enthusiastic audience a representative programme of pianoforte music, classical and virtuoso, all of which gave pleasure, and some of which quite took the listeners by storm. Special features of the recital were the excellent performances, on a Pleyel Double Grand Pianoforte, of Chopin's Rondo for two pianofortes (Op. 73), and Liszt's Fantaisie Hongroise, arranged by Bülow.

A most interesting song recital was given, on the 4th ult., by a young Edinburgh singer, Miss Olive Milne Rae. She rendered songs in English, French, German, and Italian, with great vocal culture and charming daintiness of style. Miss Rae was assisted by Mr. Sidney Poyser, and Mr. J. A. Moonie was accompanist. Another young local singer, Miss Maie Thom, gave her recital later in the month, and in a well-chosen programme showed herself to be an artist of much promise. Among other earnest artists who have appeared before their friends and the public are Miss Edith Walton and Miss May Elliot. Each gave a pianoforte recital of high-class music, and each achieved distinction. At the first concert of the People's Entertainment Society, on the 16th ult., the Music Hall was crowded. Mr. Maurice Sons delighted with his admirable violin playing, and of the remaining artists, Mr. Atherton Smith was the most successful.

Mr. Alfred Hollins has been very active during the last month. Mr. Carnegie's generosity to the churches of his native country — to quite a number of which he has presented organs — promises this excellent artist much occupation. Besides his organ recitals in his own church —United Free St. George's—Mr. Hollins has given recitals at the opening of several new organs, and, it is perhaps needless to say, always to the satisfaction and delight of his listeners.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

On the 8th ult., Messrs. Leonard Borwick and Plunket Greene gave one of their delightful pianoforte and vocal recitals.——During the last weeks of the International Exhibition, the solo organists were Messrs. Auguste Wiegand and C. W. Perkins.

The City Hall Saturday evening concerts (ballad) continue to run their prosperous course. At the concert on the 9th ult., the song cycle, 'The daisy chain,' was performed, the vocalists being Mesdames Alice Esty and Marian Mackenzie, and Messrs. J. Leyland and Watkin Mills. On the 13th ult., Mr. H. Dickinson gave a recital on the recently erected Walcher organ in Victoria United Free Church. Mr. J. W. Sharpe was vocalist.

Mr. D. B. Johnstone, who for more than twenty years has held the post of professor of music at the Church of Scotland Training College, has, on account of ill-health, resigned. The vacancy thus caused has been filled by the appointment of Dr. D. F. Wilson.

On the 18th ult., Dr. A. L. Peace inaugurated a series of organ recitals in Wellpark United Free Church, with much success.

The Glasgow Amateur Orchestral Society presented a somewhat ambitious programme at its first concert for the season, on the 21st ult. It included Beethoven's Violin Concerto, Bizet's dramatic overture 'Patrie,' and Dr. Elgar's prelude to 'The Dream of Gerontius,' the last-named being performed for the first time in Glasgow. Mr. Louis Pecskai played the solo part in the Concerto, and contributed some solos; Miss Vida Giolli was vocalist, and Mr. W. T. Hoeck conducted.

MUSIC IN GLOUCESTER AND DISTRICT.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It is quite a mistake to suppose that musical enthusiasm in Gloucester is exhausted by the Festival which is held every three years in the Cathedral. Before the echoes of the Three Choirs meeting had died away, preparations were going forward for the present season, which promises to be one of unusual interest and activity.

Taking the Gloucester Choral Society first as being the oldest institution of the kind in the city, the arrangements for the season are practically completed. Amongst the choral works decided upon are Elgar's 'Black Knight,' Stanford's 'Revenge,' 'The Hymn of Praise,' and 'Emmaus,' the work by the conductor (Mr. A. Herbert Brewer) produced at the Gloucester Festival. At the first concert in December it is also intended to give Elgar's two marches, 'Pomp' and 'Circumstance.'

The Gloucester Orpheus Society (which is also conducted by Mr. A. Herbert Brewer) is busy preparing for its concert to be given on New Year's Day. Dr. C. Harford Lloyd has written a part-song for the occasion, entitled, 'Three Men of Gotham,' which has been dedicated to the Society. Amongst other items to be performed are three of Schumann's hunting songs, with horns obbligati.

The first of a series of Chamber Concerts for Gloucester and Cheltenham, arranged by Miss Ellicott and Miss Hirschfeld, was successfully given at the Guildhall, Gloucester, on October 24. The instrumental works were the Trio in D minor (Mendelssohn), and the Trio in B flat (Beethoven), the artists being Herr Wessely (violin), Mr. J. E. R. Teague (violoncello), Miss Hirschfeld (piano). Herr Wessely and this lady also played the Kreutzer Sonata. The second concert took place at the Rotunda, Cheltenham, on the 20th ult., the instrumentalists being Miss Ethel Barns (violin), Herr Paul Ludwig (violoncello), and Miss Isabel Hirschfeld (pianoforte). Mr. Charles Phillips contributed a number of songs, which were ably accompanied by Miss Ellicott.

The Cheltenham Philharmonic Society, under the direction of Mr. C. J. Phillips, had a great success at their first concert, on October 23. The chief works given were Mendelssohn's 'Walpurgis Night,' Beethoven's C minor Symphony, and the same composer's 'Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage.'

The Cheltenham Musical Festival Society (Mr. J. A. Matthews, conductor) announce that in the course of the season they will produce a new work by Dr. Iliffe, entitled, 'The Power of Song.'

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Concerts of the Philharmonic Society occurred on October 22, on the 5th ult., and on the 19th ult. At the first, Madame Melba was the vocalist, and the orchestra, under Dr. Cowen, relied on Tschaïkowsky's Suite No. 2, Smetana's 'Vysehrad' symphonic poem, Beethoven's 'Congratulation' minuet, and Elgar's 'Imperial' march. At the second concert, Gluck's 'Orpheus' was performed, the vocalists being Miss Helen Jaxon, Miss Teresa Blamy, and Miss Marie Brema, and the orchestra played Dr. Cowen's 'Butterfly's Ball' overture and Glazounow's 'Scène de Ballet.' The chief interest of the concert on the 19th ult. was centred in M. Ysäye's performance of Beethoven's Concerto in D. Sullivan's overture to 'Macbeth,' and Haydn's 'Surprise' symphony, were the chief orchestral items.

The initial concert of the Orchestral Society's Season occurred on the 19th October, in the Philharmonic Hall, under the able directorship of Mr. A. E. Rodewald. Special interest was centred in the performance of Dr. Elgar's two new Military Marches, 'Pomp' and 'Circumstance,' then played for the first time. Both are fully charged with vivid life, robust colouring, individuality, and a particular brightness of orchestration. Herr Frölich was the vocalist, and Mr. Leonard Borwick played Beethoven's C minor Pianoforte Concerto with point and distinction.

The same Society's second concert—namely, the first 'gentlemen's concert' of the season—took place on the 2nd ult. in the huge gymnasium, Myrtle Street. The overture to 'Tannhäuser,' Weber's Concertstuck in F for pianoforte and orchestra (the solo part excellently played by M. Louis Edger), were performed, and Dr. Elgar's marches, 'Pomp' and 'Circumstance,' were repeated. The March in A minor is dedicated to Granville Bantock, the principal of the new Birmingham College of Music, and that in D to the members of the Liverpool Orchestral Society. Mr. Francis Braun made an impression at this concert by his artistic vocal method. The programme concluded with Svendsen's Symphony in B flat (Op. 15). The indefatigable Mr. Rodewald also directed an orchestra (seventy in number) in St. George's Hall, on October 20, when the programme was composed of the overtures to 'Die Meistersinger' and 'Tannhäuser,' 'The Butterfly's Ball' Overture (Cowen), Dr. Elgar's Variations, and Borodin's orchestral sketch, 'The Steppes of Asia.' Mr. Alfred Ross, a young violinist whose ability grows more apparent at each hearing, contributed the Finale of Saint-Saëns's Concerto with facility of execution and charm of expression.

The first of Mr. Theodore Lawson's subscription concerts occurred on the 11th ult. in the Philharmonic Hall. The string quartet was composed of Mr. Lawson, Mr. Haydn Inwards, Mr. Emil Krauz, and Mr. Jacques Renard. Mozart's string quartet in F, and Schumann's pianoforte quartet (with Miss Fanny Davies at the keyboard) were offered, and received with appreciation. With Miss Davies, Mr. Lawson played Brahms's Sonata for violin and pianoforte. The pianist also rendered Saint-Saëns's 'Caprice' on Gluck's ballet-music ('Alceste.') The vocalist, Mdlle. Jeanne Douste, displayed a good vocal method applied to a resonant voice. One of the finest ballad concerts given in Liverpool for years was the first concert of the new—to this city—organization, the Orpheus Concert Union, at which Lady Hallé appeared, as well as the Royal Windsor Glee Singers. The 124th concert of Societa Armonica took place, on the 12th ult., in the Small Concert Room, St. George's Hall. Mr. V. V. Akeroyd conducted the orchestra, and in the scheme were the overture to 'Der Freischütz,' the larghetto from a Serenade for strings, by Elgar, and a Symphony—that in B flat—by William Berger, for the first time here. A very meritorious interpretation of this attractive work was secured. Mr. Alfred Ross played the violin concerto in D of Joachim. Miss Harriet Bolton was the vocalist.

Mr. Plunket Greene and Mr. Leonard Borwick appeared at the Philharmonic Hall on October 23, to fulfil one of their usual joint programmes. Miss Mary Hillhouse (vocalist) gave a really admirable concert at the Small Concert Room, St. George's Hall, on October 31, assisted by Miss Florence Nightingale (piano) and Miss Eveline Barry (violoncello). This concert attracted and deserved the large measure of public and critical attention it received.

It has come to my knowledge that an effort is on foot to bring into being in this city 'a choral union' on a very large scale. One of its chief objects will be to introduce into this country works as yet unknown, and to encourage native talent.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The rendering of 'The Symphonie Fantastique,' of Berlioz, at the Third Hallé Concert, on October 31, was a great triumph for the orchestra, also for its conductor, who evidently had taken especial care to secure some of the effects designed by the talented but eccentric composer.

Following the performance of our very old friend, Haydn's 'Creation,'—with Miss Jaxon, Messrs. William Green, and Arthur Barlow, and with the choruses admirably sung by Mr. Wilson's choir—the programme of the Fifth Concert (November 14), afforded a strong contrast. M. Paderewski's pupil—Mr. Harold Bauer—played Brahms's first concerto capitally, and in the 'Air de Ballet' of Saint-Saëns, displayed an exquisitely pearly touch and delicacy of style. Naturally, Beethoven's Second Symphony presented to the band no difficulty whatever. On the 21st ult., Tschaïkowsky's Symphony Pathétique and a Wagner selection were performed.

Mr. Lane was bold to undertake Handel's 'Israel' with a force of about 600 performers; but the result quite justified his courage. Indeed, so long is it since the great oratorio had been attempted here, that a far worse recital of it would have been thankfully accepted. It was, however, a mistake to break the chain of massive choruses by songs selected from other works of the same author, however individually good such interpolated items might be.

We are indebted to Mr. Carl Fuchs for bringing here the Dolmetsch family. The Schiller Hall is a very suitable room for enjoyment of so charming a selection of old works played, as they should be, on the old instruments. Mrs. Dolmetsch added several sixteenth century ditties with great discretion and refinement.

Mr. Brodsky's chamber concerts also were resumed on the 13th ult., with a delightful interpretation of Beethoven's String Quartet (Op. 127), and it is pleasant to be able to record that the connection of our Royal College of Music with the Owens College has been strengthened by the appointment of three of its staff—Mr. Brodsky, Dr. Watson, and Dr. Pyne—as occasional lecturers in the University upon musical subjects. Dr. Hiles has further schemes in view for the fuller recognition of music as an educational force of equal value with classics and literary subjects generally.

Dr. Pyne re-commenced his organ recitals on the 16th ult., and the Town Hall was filled by an enthusiastic audience.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The first concert of the season given by the Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union, in the Town Hall, Newcastle, on October 25th, was a great success. The programme consisted entirely of orchestral works played by the Hallé Orchestra, under the conductorship of Dr. Richter, Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, and Dr. Edward Elgar's new Overture 'Cockaigne,' occupying the most prominent positions. Two movements from Berlioz's 'Romeo and Juliet' Symphony were singled out by the audience for special marks of approval.

Chamber Music Concerts appear to be gaining in popularity in Newcastle. On the 2nd ult., Messrs. Alfred and Sigmund Oppenheim, in conjunction with Miss Effie Smith, Mr. Robert Smith, and Miss Gertrude Smith, performed Dvorák's Dramatic Quintet in A, with other works, in the Assembly Rooms; and on the 4th ult., in the same place, the Newcastle Musical Society gave its seventh concert of Chamber Music, at which Beethoven's Quartet in B flat (Op. 18), and Mendelssohn's C minor trio, were played by Mr. Alfred Wall, Miss E. Thew, Mr. Perry, Miss Helen North and Mr. Oscar Cohen.

For the first concert of its twenty-second season, in the Assembly Rooms, Newcastle, on the 18th ult., the Newcastle Chamber Music Society afforded its patrons a treat which was quite unique. The programme consisted chiefly of sonatas for piano and violin by Beethoven, two of which—the C minor (Op. 30, No. 2), and the Kreutzer—were played by Mons. Ysaye and Signor Busoni.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Sacred Harmonic Society performed Elgar's 'King Olaf,' under the direction of Mr. Henry J. Wood, on the 22nd ult. The chorus did its work well, and the solos were safe in the hands of Madame Blauvelt, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Andrew Black. In the second part of the programme the orchestra gave effective performances of Weber's overture 'Oberon,' Brahms's Academical Festival overture, and Saint-Saëns's Symphonic Poem 'Le Rouet d'Omphale,' and Madame Blauvelt gave a splendid interpretation of the Mad Scene from Ambroise Thomas's 'Hamlet.'

Mr. Ellenberger (violin), assisted by Miss Ellenberger (pianoforte), and Madame Mathesius (vocalist), gave a very enjoyable concert on the 14th ult., the chief interest of which, apart from a choice vocal selection, lay in the Brahms Sonata in A for pianoforte and violin.

The Derby Choral Union made a new departure on the 5th ult., when they gave a performance of 'Maritana.' The vocalists were Miss Lizzie Burgess, Miss Fanny Emerson, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. T. H. Wood. Mr. Charles Hancock conducted.

At Leicester, the New Musical Society gave their first concert of the season on the 18th ult. The work selected was Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' and the vocalists were Madame Kate Cove, Miss Lucie Johnstone, Mr. Henry Brearley, and Mr. Dan Price. A large audience attended to hear the oratorio, which was conducted by Mr. Hancock.

The Stapleford Choral Society held their first concert on the 19th ult., when the music was selected solely from the works of Sir Arthur Sullivan. The vocalists were Madame Lizzie Storer, Miss Nellie Oldham and Mr. W. Downing.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The programme of the Sheffield Musical Festival, to be held on October 1, 2, and 3, 1902, has been issued. Choral works predominate, the chorus being given nearly fifty per cent. more work to do than at the last festival. New works by Mr. Coleridge-Taylor and Dr. Coward, entitled respectively 'Meg Blane' and 'Gareth,' are announced, and 'Wandrer's Sturm Lied' (for six-part chorus and orchestra), by Richard Strauss, for the first time in England, will also be in the nature of a novelty. The remaining works will be 'Elijah,' 'The Hymn of Praise,' a half-programme selection from 'Israel in Egypt,' Dvorák's 'Stabat Mater,' Mozart's Requiem, Bach's motet, 'Jesu, Priceless Treasure,' Brahms's 'Triumphlied' (for baritone solo, eight-part chorus and orchestra), Goldmark's sacred opera, 'The Queen of Sheba,' Cowen's 'Ode to the Passions,' Max Bruch's 'Frithjof,' and Parry's 'Blest Pair of Sirens.' The orchestral items will be Dr. Elgar's Variations, Tschaikowsky's Symphonie Pathétique, a Symphonic Poem for orchestra and organ by Fritz Volbach, and Beethoven's overture, 'Leonora,' No. 3. Wagner is represented by the Spinning Chorus from 'The Flying Dutchman.' Mr. Henry J. Wood will conduct the Festival, the chorus-master being Dr. Coward and the organist Mr. J. W. Phillips.

The Sheffield Children's Musical Festival took place in the Albert Hall, on the 7th, 8th, and 9th ult. The musical results of this well-organised affair are far-reaching, and cannot fail to favourably affect the future musical life of the city. Three large choirs of children, with a strong contingent of men's voices, sung well-selected programmes of good-class music, under the direction of Mr. T. Miles Morgan. Mr. T. Westlake Morgan was organist. The Hall was crowded on each occasion.

The Burngreave Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul,' on the 14th ult., under the direction of Mr. H. C. Jackson. The choruses were excellently sung, and the principals were Miss E. Lucas, Miss E. Peacock, Mr. P. Watson, and Mr. R. Charlesworth. Mr. G. F. Cawthorne was organist.

The Sheffield Orchestra gave a concert in the Albert Hall, Sheffield, on the afternoon of the 14th ult. Directed by Dr. Coward, the members gave a well-studied and intelligent performance of Tschaikowsky's 'Symphonie Pathétique.' Wagner's 'Rienzi' and Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' overtures were also included in the programme, which terminated with Delibes's 'Air Slave' and Grieg's 'Peer Gynt' suite. Mr. Bantock Pierpoint was the vocalist, Mr. H. Dean led the band, and Mr. Peasegood was the accompanist.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LEEDS.

During the past month there has been a sufficient amount of good music at Leeds to warrant the supposition that the town is making some recovery from the torpor succeeding a festival. There has been one choral concert, one of chamber music, and one of orchestral, while the annual visit of the Carl Rosa Company, which began on the 18th ult., supplied the town with its yearly allowance of opera, and the Sousa band afforded, on the 8th ult., an entertainment which proved within the comprehension of a large section of the population, who apparently found nothing incongruous in the juxtaposition of a Parsifal selection and 'The Washington Post'!

The most important of these concerts was a highly interesting performance of 'Elijah,' by the Leeds Philharmonic Society, on the 6th ult. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Muriel Foster, Mr. William Green, and Mr. Plunket Greene, the last of whom sang the part of Elijah for the first time in this country. Though even at the low pitch which now happily prevails the music was in some places beyond the effective parts of the voice—and indeed a transposition had to be effected of 'Is not His word'—his dramatic instinct made the reading a highly interesting one, and his power of pathetic expression was strikingly manifested in 'It is enough.' Dr. Stanford, who conducted, had the boldness to observe the indications of tempi in the score much more closely than is customary, and the effect went far to prove that Mendelssohn's own interpretation of his music was not an unreasonable one. The chorus, trained by Mr. Fricker, sung with excellent spirit, brightness, and intelligence, and fully maintained the improvement they have shown of late years. On the preceding evening Mr. Edgar Haddock's orchestra formed the chief feature of a concert given for charitable purposes. The material of the band leaves much room for improvement, but Mr. Haddock must be allowed to have made the most of it, and he managed to procure a spirited performance of the Meistersinger overture. Mr. Georg Jacobi conducted some of his bright and rhythmical music, including a suite of pieces from his ballet, 'La Tzigane,' and Mr. Tivadar Nachez was the soloist in Max Bruch's G minor Violin Concerto.

A most enjoyable chamber concert was given on October 30 by the 'Bohemian' Society, an able quartet of local artists, Messrs. Elliott, Wright, Haigh, and Giessing, playing quartets by Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven very sympathetically. These modest concerts, to which smoking forms an accompaniment—happily ad libitum and not obbligato—seem to be growing in public esteem, as they well deserve. Finally, one of the Leeds Musical Evenings, on October 29, when Madame Clara Butt appeared, and another on the 19th ult., have to be briefly chronicled.

BRADFORD.

On the 1st ult. the first of the subscription concerts took place, the Hallé orchestra, under Dr. Richter, giving a capital programme, including a fine performance of Brahms's Third Symphony. Dr. Elgar's 'Cockaigne' Overture made its first appearance in the West Riding (it was played for the first time in Yorkshire, also under Dr. Richter, at a Middlesbrough concert on October 16), and Madame Brema sang Joachim's fine 'Marfa' scena—an echo of the Leeds Festival—with good effect. On October 25, the Festival Choral Society, under Dr. Cowen, opened their season—always a busy one—with Berlioz's 'Faust,' Miss Helen Jaxon, Mr. Thomas Thomas, and Mr. Dan Price being the principals. The rival body, the 'Old' Choral Society, followed suit, on the 12th ult., with a miscellaneous concert, conducted by Mr. Hartwell Robertshaw, at which Madame Marie Brema appeared.

OTHER YORKSHIRE TOWNS.

Halifax has crowded all its serious music for the month into two successive evenings. On November 14, the Halifax Orchestral Society showed, under its new conductor, Mr. H. van Dyk, a distinct improvement, playing Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony, the great Entr'acte in

B minor from Schubert's 'Rosamunde,' and the accompaniment to a violoncello concerto by Goltermann (in which Mr. G. Schott was the soloist) in highly creditable fashion, and with a spirit and verve beyond their previous efforts. On the following day the Choral Society, which has also acquired a new conductor in Mr. F. de G. English, the organist of the Parish Church, began its season by playing a safe card in Berlioz's 'Faust.' On this occasion, Dr. Richter conducted, and the highly finished orchestral playing formed a very striking feature of the performance, but the pleasant vocal style and ready intelligence of the chorus was also notable, and a share of the credit for its achievement belongs to Mr. English. The principals, Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. W. Green, Mr. Watkin Mills, and Mr. Shepley, were all excellent, and the performance must be reckoned a brilliant one.

The Keighley Musical Union returned to Professor Prout's 'Hereward' for the opening concert on the 12th ult. Under Mr. Summerscales the chorus sang with spirit, but the orchestra was hardly equal to its task. The principal parts were taken by Madame Sobrino, Madame Robertshaw, Mr. C. Saunders, and Mr. Herbert Brown, the last-named a young local singer of much promise.——Under Mr. C. L. Naylor's direction, the Harrogate Choral Society has been doing some excellent work, and it was unfortunate that Madame Brema's absence through indisposition severely handicapped the performance of Saint-Saëns's 'Samson and Delilah,' given on the 15th ult. At a moment's notice a local soprano, Miss Ada Beecroft, very pluckily undertook the part of Delilah, while Mr. C. Saunders and Mr. Thornton were the other principals.——At Scarborough the chamber concerts were resumed on October 28, when Dvorák's Pianoforte Quintet and Bach's Concerto in C minor for two pianofortes and strings were included in an interesting programme.

Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' trilogy made so good an impression when introduced to Hull last season that the Hull Harmonic Society thought well to repeat it on the 15th ult. Mr. Walter Porter conducted a good all-round performance, Miss Ethel Wood, Mr. H. Brearley, and Mr. Ivor Foster being the principals.

CHORAL AND ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.

The Finsbury Park Choral Association gave, on the 21st ult., at the Northern Polytechnic Institute, those two deservedly popular works, Elgar's 'King Olaf' and Villiers Stanford's 'Last Post,' in such a manner as to rivet the attention of a numerous audience. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. Reginald Brophy, and Mr. Ivor Foster, and it is quite sufficient to say that Mr. Allen Gill conducted.

The Dulwich Philharmonic Society gave their first concert of the season at the Crystal Palace on the 2nd ult., when an abridged version of Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus' was performed. The conductor, Mr. Arthur Fagge, must be congratulated upon the singing of the choir, which was particularly good, and the orchestra played the accompaniments in a satisfactory manner. The soloists were Miss Estella Linden, Miss Adelaide Lambe, Mr. Herbert Grover, and Mr. Frederick Ranalow.

The Oxford House Musical and Dramatic Association opened their fourth season at the Excelsior Hall, Bethnal Green, on the 9th ult., when Gounod's 'Faust' was performed in concert form. A marked and gratifying feature of the evening's music was the excellent singing of the 'Oxford House Choral Society,' a choir recruited almost entirely from the neighbourhood, and which is becoming a very efficient body of singers.

The Bach Choir propose to rehearse, among other works, J. S. Bach's eight-part motet 'Singet dem Herrn,' Mendelssohn's 'Walpurgis Night,' Palestrina's mass 'O Admirabile Commercium,' and Part 3 of Schumann's 'Faust.'

The orchestral rehearsals of the Nonconformist Choir Union (Mr. T. R. Croger, conductor), have been resumed on Saturday afternoons at three o'clock, at Essex Hall, Essex Street, Strand.

The prospectus of the seventh series of the Winter Symphony Concerts, Bournemouth, is of the same enterprising and gratifying nature as in former years. Mr. Dan Godfrey, Junr., the zealous conductor of the concerts, may well point with pardonable pride to the fact that fifty works by British composers are included in the list of novelties to be produced at the sixty concerts comprised in the scheme. The usual success is sure to attend his efforts.

The Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave performances of (1) the 'Creation,' in Christ Church, Endell Street, on October 23—soloists: The Hon. Margaret Henniker, Mr. Henry Holyoake, and Mr. Robert Grein, with Mr. Edward Croager at the organ; (2) on October 30, the 'Messiah,' at Mansford Street Church, Bethnal Green—soloists: Miss Emmie Tatham, Miss Grace Day-Winter, Mr. Henry Holyoake, and Mr. Arthur Walenn; and (3) on the 13th ult., the 'Stabat Mater' and 'Last Judgment,' at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street—soloists: Madame Edwards, Miss Kitty Longland, Mr. Francis Baker, and Mr. George Uttley, with Dr. Turpin at the organ.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The annual meeting of the Music Trades Section of the London Chamber of Commerce was held on October 31, at 10, Eastcheap, under the presidency of Mr. H. R. Clayton (Novello and Co., Limited), chairman of the Section. The members present were Messrs. C. Pavone (C. Ricordi and Co.), Algernon S. Rose (John Broadwood and Sons, Limited), Augener and Co., E. Ascherberg, David G. Day, A. Boosey, and William Boosey (Chappell and Co., Limited). The chairman reported that, since the last annual meeting, eighteen meetings of the Sub-section had been held, besides work in connection with attendances by himself and others at the meetings of the Copyright Committee at the House of Lords on subjects of interest to the music trade then before the Committee. A petition had been presented to Lord Monkswell on the question of the infringement of copyright by musical instruments such as the Æolian, and a similar document had been placed before the Board of Trade on the question of hawking of copyright works on the street at about a penny a copy, the only remedy against such piracies being at present the civil one provided by the Act of 1842. The assistant secretary read a detailed report respecting the Musical Instrument Manufacturers' Sub-section, which was duly adopted on the motion of Mr. Arthur Boosey. In connection with the resignation of the deputy chairman (Mr. Algernon Black), the chairman drew attention to the important services Mr. Black had rendered. In taking leave of him, on his retirement from business, he (the chairman) gave a sketch of Mr. Black's career, in the course of which he mentioned his long service in the great house of Broadwoods'—in which he had been preceded by his father and grandfather—his great linguistic capacity and his ability, diligence and zeal in everything he undertook. He is widely respected by the musical profession, and altogether his career has been a remarkable one. The best wishes of his numerous friends accompanied him in his retirement, and they all cherished his memory as an active member of the music trade. It was unanimously agreed, on the motion of Mr. Ascherberg, seconded by Mr. A. Boosey, 'That Mr. H. R. Clayton be re-elected chairman of the Section.' Mr. George Rose (of Broadwoods') was elected to the office of deputy chairman.

Royal Academy of Music.—The competition for the 'Ross Scholarship' (for Vocalists) took place on October 31, and was awarded to George Henry Gardner, a native of New Barnet.

Miss Constance Bache has re-delivered, with much acceptance, her three lectures on Russian Music during the past month at 20, Stratford Place. Miss Gleeson-White furnished the vocal illustrations.

The students of Trinity College (London) received their prizes and certificates at the hands of Mr. Randegger at the Holborn Town Hall, on October 30, in the presence of a large and deeply interested audience.

The Lady Mayoress (Miss Green) presented the annual prizes to the students of the Guildhall School of Music on October 26 at the Guildhall. Dr. Cummings, the Principal, made a statement, in which he referred to the flourishing state of the school over which he so ably presides, and to the efforts of the 143 professors in promoting and popularizing the art of music.

Mr. Stephen Richardson, Organist of Perth Cathedral, has been appointed Conductor of the St. Andrew's Choral Society, in succession to Dr. Allum.

Mr. Philippe Paque has been appointed serjeant-trumpeter to His Majesty the King. Mr. Paque held a similar appointment during the last four years of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Agram.—There should be some inherent vitality in an operatic work presented to an audience, for the first time, some seventy-five years after its original performance. The case in point is that of Weber's 'Oberon,' a thoroughly adequate and highly-appreciated first performance of which took place at the Landes-Theater on October 15.

Brussels.—The new season of the Ysaye Orchestral Concerts was inaugurated on the 3rd ult., when a successful first hearing was given of a new symphonic work by the highly promising young Belgian composer, François Rasse. The work, which is entitled, 'Symphonie-Poëme,' purports to illustrate in its three movements the emotional contents of an imaginary lyrical drama.

Christiania.—An interesting concert, devoted to works by the talented Norwegian composer, Gerhard Schjelderup, was given on October 30 at the new National Theatre, which was crowded in every part. The compositions included a 'Christmas Suite,' the prelude to the opera, 'A Norwegian Wedding,' 'Summernight on the Fjord,' and other instrumental pieces, while Madame Schjelderup contributed a number of her husband's characteristic songs. The composer, who ordinarily resides at Dresden, was present to receive the plaudits of his countrymen.

Cologne.—The opening concert of the season at the Gürzenich Hall was rendered specially interesting by the first performance in Cologne of Handel's oratorio, 'Hercules,' in the Chrysander version, as well as of an unpublished Symphony in F minor, written by Haydn in 1773. The performance, which had attracted a numerous and highly appreciative audience, was conducted, with his usual zeal and artistic insight, by the veteran Dr. Wüllner. A melodious and well-written cantata for soli, chorus, orchestra, harp, and organ, by August Wolff, was received with great favour on its first performance recently by the newly-formed choir, under the composer's direction.

Copenhagen.—A new opera, 'Shepherdess and Chimney Sweep,' by August Enna, the libretto founded upon Hans Andersen's well-known story, was brought out recently with great success at the Royal Theatre.

Crefeld.—An excellent first performance was given, at the opening concert this season of the Conzert Gesellschaft, of the important new choral cantata 'Frühlingsfeier,' for tenor solo, chorus and orchestra, by Anton Urspruch. Herr Müller-Reuter conducted the highly characteristic but difficult work (to which one of Klopstock's Odes has furnished the words), and its reception was a most favourable one. The programme also included the symphonic prologue to 'Œdipus,' and the symphonic poem 'Don Juan,' by Richard Strauss.

Dessau.—August Klughardt's new oratorio 'Judith' was produced for the first time, on October 20, by the united choirs of Dessau, Köthen, Zerbst, and Magdeburg, and with the co-operation of the excellent Ducal Court orchestra, under the composer's direction. The new work, which is distinguished by characteristic invention, brilliant instrumentation, and truly vocal and effective choral writing, was received with acclamation by a numerous audience.

Dresden.—At one of the recent subscription concerts of the Court Orchestra, under Herr Schuch's direction, a highly successful first performance took place of Fritz Volbach's new symphonic poem, 'Three King's children.' At the symphony concert of the Gewerbehaus, conducted by Musik-director Trenkler, two interesting novelties were introduced with much success, viz., a Violoncello Concerto by August Klughardt (interpreted by Herr Schlegel), and a Rhapsody on Suabian folk-songs, by M. Kaempfert.

Frankfort-on-Main.—The first of the season's performances of the excellent Rühl'sche Gesang Verein, under the direction of Professor Bernhard Scholz, consisted in the music to Gluck's 'Orpheus' preceded by Brahms's 'Schicksalslied.' Amongst the solo vocalists was Miss Muriel Foster, whose interpretation of the part of Orpheus met with the most enthusiastic approbation on the part of a numerous and critical audience.

Hamburg.—Eugene d'Albert's one-act opera, 'Cain,' was produced at the Stadt-Theater, for the first time, last month, with considerable success.

Königsberg.—The choruses introduced (in imitation of the Greek drama) in Schiller's 'Die Braut von Messina' have been set to music by music-director Berneker, organist and professor at the Conservatorium in this city, and were produced for the first time last month, under the composer's direction, with great success.

Leipzig.—The first performance took place at the third Gewandhaus Concert of the season, under Herr Nikisch's direction, of Siegmund von Hausegger's symphonic poem 'Barbarossa,' a remarkably clever work of the advanced school, which was received with unqualified approval. Hans Koessler's Symphonic Variations, for full orchestra, dedicated to the memory of Brahms, which obtained a first hearing in the preceding concert, were likewise received with much favour.

Mayence.—In memory of the late Empress Frederick, the patroness of the two great Handel festivals which have taken place here in recent years, an excellent and highly impressive performance was given, on the 1st ult., by the Liedertafel, under Professor Volbach's direction, of 'The Messiah.' The performance was repeated on the 3rd and 4th ult., under the auspices of the People's Concert Society, before crowded audiences.

Milan.—Lorenzo Perosi's new oratorio, 'Moses,' was performed for the first time on the 16th ult., in the old church of Santa Maria Della Pace, which has been transformed into a fine concert hall. The numerous audience enthusiastically applauded the prelude, the shepherds' songs, and the intermezzo.

Munich.—At the Chamber Music Society's Concert a new divertissement for wind instruments (Op. 36), by Emil Bernard, admirably interpreted, scored a complete success.

Prague.—In connection with the series of performances in honour of Anton Dvorák recently organised at the National Theatre, a scenic representation was given, on October 30, of the oratorio 'St. Ludmilla.' The work had been well put on the stage, and although somewhat deficient in dramatic action, the manifold beauties of the score helped to sustain the interest of the audience, who enthusiastically greeted the composer at its conclusion. The performance, under the direction of capellmeister Kovarovie, and entered into with much spirit by all concerned, was a very satisfactory one. A musical festival, held from the 6th to the 11th ult., in which the members of the National Theatre, the Philharmonic Society, the Bohemian String Quartet and the Choral Society ('Hlahol') took part, concluded the festivities in honour of Dvorák's sixtieth birthday.——The newly-formed Czechish Philharmonic Society gave its first concert last month, under the direction of M. Celansky, with an interesting programme, including the E flat major Symphony by the gifted, prematurely deceased composer, Zdenko Fibich, as well as the characteristic overture to the opera 'Libussa,' by Smetana, Weingartner's symphonic poem 'King Lear,' and Berlioz's 'Corsair' overture.

Reichenberg.—A new choral work, 'The Palms,' for soprano solo, chorus, and orchestra, by the well-known composer, Rudolph von Prochazka, proved a very effective composition on its recent first performance by the Musik-Verein.

St. Petersburg.—The 150th birthday of the national composer, Dimitri Bortujanski, was celebrated last month by a series of concert performances. He was a protégé of the Empress Elizabeth, and conductor of the Imperial Chapel, and his compositions are still being performed by Church choirs throughout Russia. —— The house at Wychwatinski, in which Anton Rubinstein was born, has been purchased by means of a fund collected for the purpose, and is to be converted into a Rubinstein Museum. ——'Cartouche,' an early opera by Heinrich Hofmann, has been successfully brought out at the Théâtre Marie.

Stockholm.—Wagner's 'Das Rheingold' was produced, for the first time in one of the Scandinavian countries, at the Royal Theatre, last month. King Oscar, who had taken much interest in the rehearsals, was present at the very successful performance.

OBITUARY.

MRS. HENSCHEL.

Much sympathy has gone out to Mr. Henschel during the last few weeks, in the loss he, with the art of music, has sustained in the death of his gifted wife. This, we much regret to record, took place at 45, Bedford Gardens, Kensington, on the 4th ult., the anniversary of Mendelssohn's death. Lilian June Bailey, who was born in the State of Ohio, U.S.A., January 17, 1860, studied singing first under her uncle, C. Hayden, and subsequently under Madame Viardot Garcia, in Paris. She made her first appearance in England at the Philharmonic Concert of April 30, 1879, when, in the second part, she sang with Mr. Henschel the duo 'Caro! Bella,' from Handel's 'Giulio Cesare.' She became a pupil of her partner in the duet, and two years later, at her home in Boston (U.S.A.), they were married, on March 9, 1881. Since 1884, Mr. and Mrs. Henschel have made England their permanent place of abode, and for twenty years past they have given those delightful song recitals of which they were the pioneers. There was a homely naturalness in these music-makings which invested them with a peculiar charm all too rare in public performances, and Mrs. Henschel, with her sweet sympathetic voice, never for one moment indulged in those exaggerations that are among the besetting sins of some vocalists. The admirable blending of the voices of the earnest-minded duettists was a marked and commendable feature of their vocal ensemble. Only a few days before Mrs. Henschel's lamented death, her only daughter made her debut as a vocalist, and with much success, in London. It is to be hoped that, after a natural period of retirement, Miss Henschel will take her mother's place at her father's side on the concert platform, and in so doing maintain a continuity of those art-joys in the realm of song.

MR. FREDERICK ARCHER.

Frederick Archer, once a prominent organist in this country, died at his residence, 5525, Ellsworth Avenue, Pittsburg, U.S.A., on October 22, aged sixty-three. Born at Oxford, June 16, 1838, he became at the age of nine a chorister of All Saints' Church, Margaret Street, then Margaret Street Chapel (London). On his return to Oxford, he held the first of those numerous church organ appointments of which probably he himself could not have furnished a complete list. Here is an attempt:—St. Clement's Church and Merton College, Oxford; Banbury Parish Church; St. Mary's, Spring Grove, Middlesex; St. Mark's, Surbiton; St. Peter's, Belsize Park, Hampstead (the first organist of that church); St. Peter's, Notting Hill; Christ Church, Kensington Park; Christ Church, Hampstead; Christ Church, Lancaster Gate; Westminster Chapel (Nonconformist); Farm Street Roman Catholic Church; Holy Trinity, Lee; and St. Joseph's Retreat (Roman Catholic), Highgate. In these various chief-musicianships, he showed quite a Vicar of Bray catholicity.

On this side of the Atlantic, Archer is best remembered by his organistship of the Alexandra Palace, which he held from 1873 to 1880, except during the period of rebuilding after the fire in 1873, at which he lost all his music, printed and manuscript. He had previously made a reputation as a concert-organist at the Panopticon, Leicester Square, in succession to the late Dr. E. T. Chipp, and at the recitals he gave during the International Exhibition of 1862. He succeeded the late Henry Weist Hill as conductor of the Alexandra Palace orchestra (1877-80), and he held a similar post in connection with the Glasgow Select Choir (1878-80), and the provincial tours of the Blanche Cole Opera Company. Twenty years ago, Mr. Archer settled in America. He became organist of Henry Ward Beecher's church at Brooklyn, and afterwards of the Church of the Incarnation, New York, and he probably held other church appointments on the other side, though perhaps not quite so many as in England. He tried his hand at journalism when he founded (in 1885) and edited The Keynote, a musical paper. He conducted the Boston Oratorio Society in 1887. In November, 1895, he was appointed musical director of the Pittsburg Carnegie Institute, where he conducted the orchestra, gave many interesting free organ recitals, and lectured with much acceptance. His published compositions for the organ are not so well known as they deserve to be. He has left his mark on the literature of the instrument on which he was so skilful a performer, in his Theoretical and Practical Treatise.

COLONEL MAPLESON.

The death, on the 14th ult., of James Henry Mapleson, at the age of seventy-three, removes one of a race of opera managers who had a remarkable experience of the exciting feuds, rivalries, and the ups-and-downs—more downs than ups—of that walk in life. From Mr. Burnham Horner's letter, which appears in another column (p. 828), it seems that Colonel Mapleson made his first appearance on the stage as a baby in long clothes! The infant lived to play many parts: a student of the violin at the Royal Academy of Music; a fiddler in the opera orchestra during the Jenny Lind fever of 1848; a vocalist; proprietor of a musical agency; colonel of volunteers; author; and opera impresario! During his long managerial career, dating from 1862, he introduced to English audiences many distinguished singers, and the popularity of Gounod's 'Faust' and Bizet's 'Carmen' is largely due to his influence and enterprise. The Colonel's operatic operations in the United States were on a large scale, and the doughty manager achieved great popularity among our kinsmen across the water. His scheme for the erection of an Opera House on the Thames Embankment proved to be abortive, although the foundation stone was laid with all due pomp and ceremony. The building, when completed, became the headquarters of the Metropolitan Police,—the Scotland Yard of to-day. Sic transit gloria opera!

MR. JOHN MACFARREN.

A link with the past is broken by the demise, on the 15th ult., in his eighty-fourth year, of John Macfarren, the husband of a once well-known pianist; the intimate of Sterndale Bennett and the musical critic, J. W. Davison; the brother of Walter and of the late Sir G. A. Macfarren, and himself formerly a scenic artist and water-colour painter of good repute.

Doyle.—On the 12th ult., at his residence, 9, Essex Villas, Argyll Road, Kensington, Charles Wesley Doyle, Professor Guildhall School of Music and member of her late Majesty's private band, in his eightieth year. Mr. Doyle, who achieved distinction as a performer on the viola, was a former student of the Royal Academy of Music and a Fellow of that old musical Institution.

We regret to record the death; at the early age of forty-eight, of Mr. Frank H. Simms, which took place at New Orleans, U.S.A., on the 6th ult. A native of Stourbridge, Mr. Simms was a member of a family of musicians well-known in the Midlands. He was educated at Winchester, and obtained the appointment of organist at the Parish Church, Ryde, Isle of Wight. From thence he went to St. Paul's Church, New Orleans, and made a name for himself in the United States by his organ recitals in various places, including the recent Exhibition at Buffalo, and in Canada.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

New York, November 13.

The metropolitan musical season opened only a week ago, but we are already in the thick of it. Orchestras are firing with their heavy guns in New York, Boston, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and elsewhere. String quartets are discharing their harmonious volleys to right and to left of us. Choral societies are massing for charges of vast puissance, and the operatic hordes, having devastated the south and southwest, have this week entered upon a long siege of San Francisco. From now till next May there will be no rest for the chronicler of musical events. As I have reported the principal promises, I can devote myself henceforth to accomplishments. Some of the most beautiful of them followed hard upon the heels of the Worcester Festival, and were connected with the celebration of the two-hundredth anniversary of its foundation by Yale University. For this festivity a dignified scheme had been arranged which looked, amongst other things, to a proper representation of the musical department, which acquired artistic significance only with the advent in the faculty of Professors Horatio W. Parker and Samuel S. Sanford. Professor Parker was enjoying his first Sabbatical year in Germany, but was recalled to direct the musical features of the affair. These consisted chiefly in the performance of his 'Hora Novissima,' by the Gounod Society of New-Haven, and the production of a Greek hymn for baritone and tenor solos, chorus of men's voices and orchestra. There was also an organ concert on the evening of the first day, and, through the fine generosity of Mr. Henry L. Higginson, its founder and maintainer, a concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Higginson is a Boston banker, and a graduate of Harvard University. Yale made him an LL.D. at the recent bi-centennial exercises. That the streets of the University town were kept vocal with students' songs throughout the week may easily be imagined, but on one evening, devoted to the dramatic representation of scenes from the history of the University, even the singing of college songs was dignified by having the joyful thousands led by a band and a trained chorus under the direction of Professor Sanford.

The new hymn was sung at the commemorative exercises, when the delegates from European Universities, as well as a number of distinguished Americans, were honoured with degrees. Associated with Professor Parker in its composition was Mr. Thomas Dwight Goodell, one of the Professors of Greek language and literature at Yale. The two men attempted an interesting experiment and succeeded in it admirably. The poet sought to express ideas appropriate to the occasion in the most suitable words of the great age of Greek poetry; the musician sought to illustrate the poet's metric plan, as an ancient poet-composer would have done under like circumstances, by following the rhythm of the lines as closely as possible; but he also used the puissant modern agencies, harmony and the orchestra, to vitalize the melody and to colour it. Poet and musician caught and embodied the antique spirit admirably, and the hymn made a profound impression.

The day Professor Parker sailed for Europe, to enjoy the remainder of his year of rest, announcement was made of the result of the competition for the three prizes of $500 each, founded by Mr. Paderewski. He carried off the choral prize with a work entitled 'A Star Song.' The orchestral prize went to Mr. Henry K. Hadley, and the prize for a piece of chamber music to Mr. Arthur Bird. The latter has long been a resident of Berlin, but he was qualified to compete by reason of his American birth. There were no less than sixty-eight scores sent in to the judges, who were Messrs. Wilhelm Gericke, B. J. Lang, W. F. Apthorp, W. J. Henderson, and H. E. Krehbiel. The judges in a competition of the New-England Conservatory of Music, in Boston, made their report almost at the same time, and gave a prize of $400 to a symphony entitled 'The Four Seasons.' Curiously enough it turned out to be the same work of Mr. Hadley's that had received the Paderewski prize!

H. E. Krehbiel.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE LATE COLONEL MAPLESON.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—It may not be known to your readers, or indeed to anyone else, that the late Colonel Mapleson made his first appearance at Drury Lane Theatre, on May 31, 1830. I have a number of playbills, formerly in the possession of Mr. Nelson Lee, and on that bearing the above date there is a note in his writing to the following effect: 'Mrs. Mapleson's infant was carried on for the christening scene.' The play was Henry VIII.

Yours truly,

Burnham Horner.

CHARLES DIBDIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Mr. Joseph Bennett's entertaining article, 'Charles Dibdin on Tour,' in your October issue, has interested me very much; and, if I venture to dissent from one or two of his criticisms, I do so in no carping spirit. For a number of years I have been collecting and examining materials bearing on the life of Charles Dibdin, and I am therefore concerned to challenge an estimate of his character which does not correspond to that which I have formed. I think the available evidence does not justify the assertion that 'a more quarrelsome, cross-grained man (than Dibdin) could hardly have been found in England.' It is not, I think, supported by the contents of the 'Musical Tour' which is the subject of Mr. Bennett's article. That book makes many sarcastic comments upon men and places; but they have always seemed to me to be no more than the utterances of a somewhat heavy-handed humorist, intent, as an honest literary workman should be, on giving his subscribers the best possible value for their money. These sallies are often amusing, and they certainly make the book much more entertaining than it would have been otherwise; if at times they are rather acid, I think they are no more so than would be justifiable in a man of average good-nature who had experienced one-half the discomforts, insults, and disappointments that fell to Dibdin's lot during his tour. Mr. Bennett gives a few examples, and in every case Dibdin came out of an unpleasant experience without loss of dignity or more loss of temper than would have been pardonable in a normal human being.

Even if the 'Musical Tour' gave the impression (which I think it does not give) that Dibdin was peculiarly quarrelsome and cross-grained, it might not be altogether fair to conclude that its author exhibited those characteristics throughout his life. He was, at the time, endeavouring valiantly, after a long period of baffled effort, to raise funds to carry him to India. He was in the peculiar position (scarcely conceivable at the present day) of being a very popular composer, whose songs were on every harpsichord in the country, whose stage pieces were continually played, yet they yielded him little or nothing—not even opportunities of having new works produced.

Dibdin's portraits do not favour the theory that he was cantankerous and unamiable, his writings, taken as a whole, certainly do not do so, and I have not found it so asserted by any biographer. He seems to me to have been a man of sturdy character, capable rather of geniality than the reverse, peculiarly unfortunate in having elected to serve the theatre at a time when such service was difficult for a person with manly instincts, and unprofitable to all but a few successful managers and players. Dibdin's occasional touches of spleen are less to his discredit than to that of the legislative injustice which denied to the author any security for the rewards due to his labours, by forbidding free-trade in threatrical entertainments, and (while creating managerial monopoly) affording the author no adequate legal protection of his rights.

I am, &c.,

'Morningside,' E. Rimbault Dibdin.

Sudworth Road, New Brighton, Cheshire.

October 29, 1901.

P.S.—If your good-nature permits, I should like to add a supplication to musical antiquaries to let me know of any letters or other documents bearing on the life of Charles Dibdin. You recently did me a service by drawing attention to a Bibliography of my great-grandfather's works which I am publishing in Notes and Queries, and possessors of books and other publications by or relating to him will do me a kindness by comparing them with the particulars I give in the Bibliography, and by letting me hear of any differences. E. R. D.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Adelaide.—The third concert of Chamber music was given at the Elder Conservatorium, University of Adelaide, on September 30, when the programme included Sonata in F major (Op. 6) for pianoforte and violoncello, by Richard Strauss; Sonata in E minor for pianoforte and violin, Enrico Bossi; and Brahms's Trio in C minor (Op. 101). The performers were Mr. Bryceson Treharne (pianoforte), Herr Heinicke (violin), and Herr Kugelberg (violoncello). Miss Guli Hack sang a scena, 'Long after,' by Marshall-Hall, and three songs (Op. 58) by Edward MacDowell.

Bishop's-Stortford.—At the Musical Union Concert of October 23, Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding Feast' and Brahms's 'Song of Destiny' were performed with much success. The choir was of good quality, and Mr. H. Beaumont sang the tenor solo in Mr. Taylor's popular cantata. Miss Elsie Horne gave an excellent performance of Mendelssohn's Pianoforte Concerto in G minor, and other artists who contributed to the miscellaneous part of the concert were Miss Winifred Wynne (vocalist), Madame Florence Lane (harpist), and Mr. Arthur Strong (violoncellist). Mr. A. Eaglefield Hull conducted with much care and skill.

Bootle.—The first subscription concert this season took place at the Town Hall, on the 12th ult., when the programme comprised the overtures 'Euryanthe,' and 'Maritana'; Minuet for strings, Boccherini; Ballet music 'Masaniello,' Auber; three Hungarian Dances, Brahms, and the march and chorus 'Tannhäuser.' The solo vocalists were Miss Agnes Nicholls and Mr. Fowler Burton. Mr. A. E. Workman conducted.——At Emmanuel Church, on the 7th ult., a concert of sacred music was given in aid of the Organ Fund, the chief feature being Barnby's 'Rebekah.' Mr. A. E. Workman conducted, and also played some organ solos. The solo vocalists in the cantata were Miss M. Wild, Mr. T. Morgan, and Mr. R. Wynne Jones.

Brighton.—The Sacred Harmonic Society gave a performance of Sullivan's 'Martyr of Antioch,' on the 5th ult. The choir sang with much power and refinement, and were particularly successful in the chorus 'Brother, thou art gone before us,' which was sung with devotional expression. The orchestra also deserves a special word of praise for the delicacy of their accompaniments. The solo parts were ably undertaken by Miss Winifred Wynne, Miss Marie Hooton, Mr. Edward Branscombe, and Mr. Charles Knowles. The programme also included a praiseworthy rendering of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast.' Mr. Robert Taylor conducted with care and skill.

Coventry.—The one hundred and eighty-fifth annual festival in connection with the Girls' Blue Coat School took place in Holy Trinity Church, on October 27, when the Mayor and Corporation attended in state. The morning service was sung to Noble in B minor, the anthem being Wesley's 'Let us now praise famous men'; in the evening, Varley Roberts in E furnished the setting to the canticles, and the anthem, in which the boys sang with great distinction, was Handel's 'Let the bright Seraphim,' followed by, 'Let their celestial concerts.' At the conclusion of the evening service, Mr. C. H. Moody, Organist and Choirmaster, played Mozart's Clock Fantasia in F minor, and Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D (Doric).

Dover.—Mr. Wilfred Barclay gave his first orchestral concert this season at the Town Hall, on the 6th ult. The orchestra was composed of the Dover Amateur Orchestral Society and the leading amateurs of the district, also a large contingent of the Band of the Royal Engineers. The programme consisted of Mozart's 'Jupiter' Symphony, Mendelssohn's overtures 'Ruy Blas' and the 'Hebrides,' the 'Notturno' from the 'Midsummer Night's Dream' music, and Edward German's 'Gipsy Suite.' Mr. Cecil Gann, of Canterbury, the leader of the band, played Beethoven's Romance in G for violin and orchestra. Madame Zippora Monteith and Mr. Wilfred Barclay were the vocalists, and the latter also conducted. Mr. H. J. Taylor was the accompanist.

Durban (S. Africa).—The Durban Orchestral Society gave their fourth Concert this season in the Town Hall, on October 5, when the programme included four movements from Tschaïkowsky's 'Casse Noisette' suite, Grieg's 'Peer Gynt' suite, the 'Spinning Chorus' from the Flying Dutchman, 'Yellow Jasmine' from Cowen's suite The Language of Flowers, and the Overture 'Masaniello.' The vocalists were Miss Mary Neithardt, Mr. E. Phillips, Mr. J. Fellows, and the Berea Glee Union. Mr. Charles Hoby was the conductor.

Hanley.—The second Meakin Concert was given in the Victoria Hall, Hanley, on the 4th ult., by the band of His Majesty's Coldstream Guards, conductor, Mr. J. Mackenzie Rogan, and the following vocalists, Miss Florence Shee, Miss Clara Gregory; with Mr. W. Sherratt (pianoforte and organ). The programme included the overtures 'In Memoriam' (Sullivan) and '1812' (Tschaïkowsky), Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 2 (Liszt), and Ballet music, 'Sylvia' (Delibes). The hall was crowded with an enthusiastic audience. The Hanley Choral Union gave their first miscellaneous concert in the Victoria Hall on the 16th ult. The Union consists of forty voices, selected from the principal choirs in the Potteries District. They were assisted on this occasion by Miss Annie Shirley (soprano), Mr. Edward Mills (solo saxophone), and Mr. W. T. Bonner (solo pianoforte). Mr. James Garner conducted.

Leamington.—Mr. Frederick Fellowes gave his annual Chamber Concert on the 6th ult. Haydn's String Quartet in G (Op. 54, No. 1), and Mendelssohn's in E flat (Op. 12) were the chief features of the programme. The performers were Herr Sück, Messrs. Goddard, Reggel, and Fellowes, the first and last named also contributing solos for violin and violoncello respectively. Miss Gwendda Thompson was the vocalist. As this is the only opportunity afforded to Leamington of hearing string quartets, it is satisfactory to learn that Mr. Fellowes's efforts are sufficiently appreciated to encourage him to continue these concerts.

Middlesbrough. — The thirteenth annual choral festival in connection with the Darlington and Stockton-on-Tees Psalmody Association took place on October 30. The principals were Miss Hedley, Miss Watson, Mr. Fred Fallas, and Mr. Charles Tree. Mr. Felix Corbett, the borough organist, acted as accompanist, and also contributed two organ solos. Mr. William Heslop, of Darlington, the founder of the Association, again conducted the large choir of about a thousand voices.

Plymouth.—Dr. Samuel Weekes's Oratorio 'Nehemiah,' was performed in the Guildhall, on October 30, by the combined choral and orchestral societies, which are conducted in this locality by the composer. The work was given for the first time, about two and a-half years ago, under similar conditions, and the experience of the previous performance contributed to a highly successful rendering of the work on this occasion. The choir sang throughout with much power and expression, and the orchestra responded loyally to the composer's beat. The solo parts were undertaken with much ability by Miss Helen Jaxon, Miss Lucie Johnstone, Mr. Joseph Reed, Mr. W. Thomas, and Mr. Andrew Black; the last-named artist especially giving a highly dramatic rendering of the title part. In the interval between the two parts of the oratorio, Mr. Pardew, who has been the leader of the Orchestral Society for many years, was presented by Dr. Weekes with a handsome silver service on behalf of the members of the Society.

Wellington, N.Z.—On September 30, at St. Paul's Pro Cathedral, Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer' and the 42nd Psalm were sung. The solos in both works were taken by Madame Evelyn Carlton, and the choruses by the Church choir, augmented for the occasion by the Glee and Madrigal Society, supported by a small but efficient orchestra as well as the fine organ. In addition to these two works, Mackenzie's Benedictus for strings and organ was tastefully played. Mr. Robert Parker presided at the organ, and Dr. W. Kington Fyffe, organist of St. Peter's Church, conducted.

Woodhouse Eaves.—Two interesting performances took place on October 31, under the direction of Mr. F. Storer. In the afternoon the programme, given in the Parish Rooms, comprised Beethoven's Overture 'Prometheus,' Elgar's 'Chanson de Matin' and 'Chanson de Nuit,' Mozart's Symphony in G minor, and Schubert's 'Rosamunde' Overture; and Beethoven's Romance in G, for violin, Herr Kienle. In the evening a special service was held in the church, when Mr. Herbert Brewer's Gloucester cantata, 'Emmaus,' and Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' were performed. The Choir, mainly from Leicester, sang with much efficiency, and the orchestra was also heard to excellent effect. The solo vocalists were Miss E. Locke, Miss D. Pollock and Mr. Harry Stubbs. Mr. F. Storer conducted with ability.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A. E. P.—You must first of all point out to your obstreperous choirman that he must keep to the pointing. If every member of the choir were allowed to exercise their fads in the direction you indicate, the chanting of the Psalms would become disappointing. Your point is this: that the word 'favourable' (Psalm lxxviii., v. 7, Bible version) must be sung to notes within two bar lines, according to the pointing of the Psalter you use. There can be no two opinions about that, and the pointing of the rhythmical part of this verse is good. We do not think, however, that you should insist upon the four-syllable word 'favourable' being sung to four crotchets, as it would be unnatural so to do. It is an awkward example; but if you sing the first three syllables to a triplet and the last to a minim (approximately speaking) there should be no difficulty; to carry the last two syllables over into the next bar is distinctly wrong. By all means persist in your determination 'to have it sung right'—crank, or no crank in the choir.

Tenor.—The following songs for a tenor voice are 'good in merit and class':—Onaway, awake, beloved, and Sweet evenings come and go (Coleridge-Taylor); I'll sing thee songs of Araby (F. Clay); Serenade (Schubert); Where'er you walk (Handel); The Garland (Mendelssohn); The dream of Endymion (F. H. Cowen); Lovely Spring, and Come unto me (Coenen); Stars of the Summer night (B. Tours); My Queen, and Across the far blue hills, Marie (Blumenthal); Ah! Moon of my delight, from 'In a Persian Garden' (Liza Lehmann); Walther's Preislied (Wagner); Lend me your aid (Gounod).

Duets for Soprano and Tenor:—The Rainbow (Spohr); Bygone days (Pinsuti); Ah, well I call to mind, from 'Colomba' (Mackenzie).

Fugue.—It is not the mere 'going through' a book that will ensure success at an examination, but the assimilation of the knowledge contained therein. The 'Rudiments of Music' Primer by Dr. Cummings is an excellent little manual; but you will do well to obtain one of the specimen papers that are set for the particular examination you desire to pass, in order to become familiar with the run of the questions.

R. H. T.—Strictly speaking it is an infringement to print in programmes the words of part-songs that are copyright; but publishers are disposed to look at such things with a blind eye; and even in the case of a cantata, or work of similar dimensions, permission, when previously applied for, is often freely given.

P. P.—We are sorry for your sake not to have made the acquaintance of the parodic version of 'Castles in the air' you send us. The poetry is not above reproach and evidently ends in smoke; the tune, did we only know it, might be suggestive of 'Fortresses in the melody.'

Illi Onno.—You had better obtain the advice of some competent teacher in your city, who, for a small fee, would hear you sing and tell you whether you ought to resume vocal practice or not. We think you should wait a little longer.

M. R.—Paganini was born at Genoa, February 18, 1784, and died at Nice, May 27, 1840. A succinct, yet very good biography of him, by Mr. Paul David, will be found in Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians' (Vol. ii., p. 628).

Acre.—Have you tried some numbers of the 'American Organ Journal,' published by Messrs. Metzler? The pieces in Elliott's Harmonium Voluntaries would doubtless answer your purpose; they are quite easy.

Oxo.—(1) You must obtain permission, as Mr. Rudyard Kipling's words are copyright. (2) What are your orchestral resources?

E. C. S.—Such competitions and exhibitions as you mention—contralto vocalists—are generally conditioned by an age limit.

B. B.—In your desire to obtain a hood, take care that you are not hoodwinked.

G.—We regret that we cannot suggest the names of teachers.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

AMOTT, LENNOX RODNEY—"My heart is smitten down." Anthem. For Tenor Solo and Chorus. 2d.

ARCHER, FREDERIC—"The Organ." A Theoretical and Practical Treatise. Cloth, 7s. 6d.

ARNOTT, A. DAVIDSON—"The King of Love my Shepherd is." Anthem, for Bass Solo and Chorus. (No. 706. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

BEST, W. T.—Fifteen Celebrated Marches from the Scores of the Great Masters. Cloth, 6s. 6d.

BRIDGE, J. C.—"Christmas in the Fields." Christmas Carol. 2d.

BRIDGE, J. F.—"The Forging of the Anchor." 1st Violin, 1s.; 2nd Violin, 1s.; Viola, 1s.; Violoncello, 1s.; Basso, 1s.

BUTLER, LEONARD—Benediction Hymn: "Through the day Thy love has spared us." On Card, 2d.

CLIFFE, FREDERIC—Ballade. From Symphony in C minor (No. 1). Full Score, 5s.

COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S.—"The Blind Girl of Castél-Cuillé." Boards, 3s.

—— Ditto. Vocal Parts, 1s. each.

DAVIS, Rev. C. H.—Three Chants. 1d.

ELGAR, EDWARD—"Der Traum des Gerontius." Gedicht von Cardinal Newman. Für Mezzosopran-, Tenor- und Bass-Solo, Chor und Orchester. Deutsche Uebersetzung von Julius Buths. 6 mark netto.

—— "Chanson de Nuit." (Op. 15, No. 1.) Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by Bothwell Thomson. 1s. 6d.

GAUL, A. R.—"The Holy City." A Sacred Cantata. New edition, with Prologue. 2s. 6d.

HARRISON, S. A.—CLIX Hymns. Words only, 5s.

HOLLINS, ALFRED—"Communion." (No. 294. Original Compositions for the Organ.) 1s.

HURST, Rev. J.—Benedicite, omnia Opera. Three Settings. Nos. 6, 7, and 8. 3d.

JACKSON, Rev. A. A.—"Sweetheart, arise." Glee. For Four Voices (S.A.T.B.) 1½d.

LEHMANN, LIZA—"Lead, kindly Light." A Hymn. For Soprano Solo and Chorus (S.A.T.B.); or Quintet of Solo Voices. 2s.

LENNARD, Lady BARRETT—"Plymouth Hoe" ("Drake's Drum"). Song. For Baritone. 2s.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

LESLIE, HENRY—"A rose of the garden." Four-part Song. (No. 876. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d.

LOWE, C. EGERTON—The Music Student's Manuscript Note Book and Practice Register. 6d.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"The Procession of the Ark." Choral Scene. From the Oratorio "The Rose of Sharon." 1s. 6d.

MACKENZIE, DAVID—Vesper Hymn. On Card. 2d.

MARCHES FOR THE ORGAN (Twenty-four Popular). In Two Volumes. Cloth, 6s. 6d. each.

MOULD, W. T. C.—"Put away all sadness, put away all tears." Christmas Carol. 1½d.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEM BOOK. A Collection of Popular Anthems for Festival and General Use. Books 7, 8, and 9, 1s. each.

NOVELLO'S CHRISTMAS CAROLS:—

No. 297.	Ring out, wild bells	E. Vine Hall	1d.
„ 298.	Christmas Bells	W. H. Longhurst	1½d.
„ 299.	In tuneful voices sing	Ferris Tozer	1d.
„ 300.	Shepherds, hear, loud and clear	„ „	1d.
„ 301.	Not in courts of regal splendour	E. Vine Hall	1d.
„ 302.	Many hundred years ago	George C. Martin	1d.
„ 303.	The Nativity	Rev. Charles Erskine	1d.
„ 304.	A Cradle Song	„ „	1d.
„ 305.	As on the night	Burnham W. Horner	1½d.
„ 306.	It fell upon a winter's day	M. A. Sidebotham	1d.
„ 307.	The night is dark	„ „	1d.
„ 308.	Carol, carol, Christians	„ „	1d.
„ 309.	The loving heart	Rev. Charles Erskine	1d.
„ 310.	I hear along our street	Rev. T. R. Matthews	1d.
„ 311.	In Bethlehem's Ancient City	Adeste Fideles. West	1½d.

OULD, S. G. (Edited by)—"Adeste Fideles." (No. 33. Cantiones Sacræ.) 1s. For particulars, see page 840.

PARKER, HORATIO—"Come away." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. (No. 873. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d.

RHIND, Rev. G. BRUCE—"The Lord of Might." Advent Hymn. 1d.

ROSS, W. G.—(in E flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 581. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 114. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Dickery Dock." Song and Three-part Chorus, from "Around the Winter fire." By Alfred R. Gaul. "Home, sweet Home." Song, with ad lib. Chorus (S.S.A.). By Sir H. R. Bishop. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol fa Notation.

		A.	B.
No. 316.	Vital spark, of heavenly flame. Arranged for S.S.A. (unaccompanied) Basil Harwood	1½d.	—
„ 532.	The Soldier-Boys. Action Song Myles B. Foster	1½d.	—
Book 123.	Worcester Chimes; or, Faithful in a very little. A Service of Song M. F. A.	—	6d.

SWAINSON, NEVILLE G.—"The Sands o' Dee." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. 6d.

—— "To Daffodils." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. 4d.

SOMERVELL, ARTHUR—"The King of Love my Shepherd is." Anthem. For Treble Solo and Chorus. 3d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—

No. 1194.	The King of Love my Shepherd is A. Davidson Arnott	1½d.
„ 1235.	Rejoice in the Lord. Anthem. For Christmas Alfred Hollins	1½d.
„ 1236.	Creation's Hymn ..Beethoven	1d.
„ 1237.	The Evening Star A. C. Mackenzie	1½d.
„ 1238.	Hope of my heart John Ward	1½d.
„ 1239.	Praised be Diana C. V. Stanford	1d.
„ 1240.	When flow'ry meadows ..Palestrina	1d.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEM BOOK. Books 7, 8, and 9. 9d. each.

STAINER, J.—"Sweet Christmas Bells." (No. 94. Christmas Carols.) 1d.

WEST, FLORENCE E.—"A Midsummer's Day." Operetta of Dance and Song. 6d.

TORRANCE, G. W.—"Lord, I have loved the habitation of Thy house." (No. 722. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

WEST, JOHN E.—(in G). Benedicite, omnia Opera. (No. 570. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

—— "Comfort the soul of Thy servant." Anthem. For Lent or General Use. For A.T.T.B. (No. 56. Novello's Services, Anthems, &c., for Men's Voices.) 4d.

WILBYE, JOHN—"When Chloris heard." Madrigal. For Four Voices. (No. 875. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 2d.

WOOD, CHARLES—"I was wishful he'd stay." Song. For Mezzo-Soprano or Tenor. The words written by Alfred Perceval Graves. 2s.

REDUCED PRICES.

ARCHER, FREDERIC—"The Organ." 5s.

LEMARE, EDWIN H.—The Recital Series of Original Compositions. Volumes I. and II. Cloth, 7s. 6d. each.

PARRY, C. HUBERT H.—"English Lyrics." Sets 3 and 4, 2s. 6d. each.

MRS. GLOVER EATON (Soprano, L.R.A.M.)

Concert.—Assembly Rooms, Malvern.—"Mrs. Glover Eaton (Soprano of the Triennial Festival) received well-merited applause. She sang charmingly, and possessing as she does a fine, bright, fresh soprano voice of high register fairly delighted the audience. Her phrasing and declamation were simply perfect."

Address, Regent House, Foregate, Worcester.

MR. HAROLD GREEN

(Solo Tenor, Llandaff Cathedral).

Oratorios, Ballads, &c. The Cathedral, Llandaff.

MR. HARRY MILLER

(Baritone, Llandaff Cathedral).

Oratorios, Ballads, &c. The Cathedral, Llandaff.

MISS AMY MARTIN

(CONTRALTO), A.L.A.M.

Oratorios and Concerts.

Of the Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, and Promenade Concerts.

138, Great Portland Street, and Trentham, Forest Hill, London.

MR. W. J. INESON

(BARITONE)

The Cathedral, Hereford,

This season's engagements include—

Tewkesbury	Festival.
Llanelly	"The Soldiers of the Cross."
Gloucester	Ballads.
Hereford	"Acis and Galatea."
Worcester	Ballads.
Birmingham Festival Choral Society	"Faust."
Leominster	Ballads.
Newport	"Elijah."
Ludlow	"Messiah."
Weobley	Ballads.
Cheltenham	"Martyr of Antioch."
Chepstow	Ballads.
Ludlow	"Stabat Mater."
Malvern	"Pysche."
Hereford	Ballads.
Birmingham Festival Choral Society	"Messiah."
Hereford	"Last Judgment."

For terms, address as above.

MR. R. HOUSTON MACDONALD, A.R.A.M., Borough Organist of Durban, Natal, being in England on six months' leave, is open for TEMPORARY ENGAGEMENT as CHURCH ORGANIST, or for Recitals, Concerts, &c. Apply, R. H. Macdonald, Royal Academy of Music, Tenterden Street, W.

TENOR will give SERVICES at Concerts or to Concert Party, for introduction. Address, C. T. O., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST (Alto vocalist, efficient) DISENGAGED Sunday evenings. Would deputise or sing in choir and assist at weekly practice. London district. J., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST.—Mr. FRED. J. HUNT, late Organist of Highbury Quadrant Congregational Church, desires an APPOINTMENT. Able executant and accompanist. Highest testimonials. Good organ essential. 28, Northolme Rd., Highbury, N.

ORGANIST (experienced) accepts deputy work in London district. Usual terms. G. S., 96, Broomwood Road, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

BERTH ABROAD, as REPAIRER, thorough fine TUNER, or BRANCH MANAGER. First-class all-round. Single. From Broadwood's. Address, K. B., 99, Darnley Road, Gravesend.

WANTED, ASSISTANT for Counter and Small Goods, &c. State experience, age, salary. Friend and Co., Piano and Music Dealers, Newark.

PEDALIER (Pleyel) for SALE. Good condition. Recently overhauled and repaired. Apply, A. E. C., 106, Wellesley Road, Croydon.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Carols, English and Foreign. By Sir John Stainer	785
Music in Scotland—concluded	789
Mendelssohn's Organ Sonatas (with Facsimiles)	794
Dr. Arne—concluded (with Caricatures)	798
Occasional Notes (with Portrait of Mr. H. Klein)	803
A Christmas Present—Mendelssohn's Christmas Pieces	807
Russian and English Music and Musical Critics	807
Church and Organ Music (with Portrait of Thomas Tallis)	808
Reviews	817
London Concerts	819
Music in Vienna	820
„ Belfast	820
„ Birmingham	820
„ Bristol	821
„ Dublin	821
„ East Anglia	821
„ Edinburgh	822
„ Glasgow	822
„ Gloucester and District	822
„ Liverpool and District	822
„ Manchester	823
„ Northumberland and Durham	823
„ Nottingham and District	823
„ Sheffield and District	824
„ Yorkshire	824
Choral and Orchestral Societies	825
Miscellaneous	825
Foreign Notes	826
Obituary	827
Music in America	828
Correspondence	828
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	829
Answers to Correspondents	830
Music published during the last Month	830
Anthem, 'The King of Love my Shepherd is.' By A. Davidson Arnott	809
Anthem, 'In the beginning.' By Charles Macpherson.—(Extra Supplement.)
Carol, 'The Prince of Peace.' By A. Herbert Brewer.—(Extra Supplement.)

THREE Extra Supplements are given with this number: (1) A Caricature Portrait of Dr. Arne, by Bartolozzi; (2) An Anthem, 'In the beginning,' by Charles Macpherson; (3) A Carol, 'The Prince of Peace,' by A. Herbert Brewer.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE EIGHTEENTH of this Month.

MUSIC-TEACHING CONNECTION for SALE, situate in central thoroughfare of important provincial city. A good musician (Piano, Violin, and Singing) of business ability, with some capital, could obtain an excellent pratcice or expand into a Conservatoire. It is now advertised under a distinctive title. New pupils enrolled this season = £69 per annum. Advertiser about to take up post abroad. Address, M. J., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNING CONNECTION for SALE. South of England. Apply, Presto, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

Published on the 1st of every Month. Price 1½d. Annual Subscription, including Postage, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW for DECEMBER contains:—

General Notes.
The Harmonization of Melodies in Four Vocal Parts. By Cuthbert Harris—(continued).
School Music in Scotland. A Brief Historical Survey. By James Gallie.
Cape Colony School Music Syllabus, 1901.
Society of Arts Examinations, 1901.
Answers to Theory Questions.
The New Instructions as to Music in Schools.
School Sight-Singing Reader.—Both Notations.
School Music in Sheffield.
East Essex Teachers' Association. Lecture on School Music.
Choral Music chosen for next year's Competitions.
Answers to Correspondents.
Professor Piltan on School Singing.
Dates of Choral Competitions in 1902.
Miscellaneous.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

The DECEMBER number contains the following music:—

Two-part Studies.
"Three Kings once lived." Carol, for Mezzo-Soprano and Chorus, S.S.A. (Arranged.) By Frederic H. Cowen.
Also, Extra Supplement, containing "The Snowflakes." Junior Unison Song. By Kate Boundy. (No. 448, of Novello's School Songs. Price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, Mus.D., Cantab.

SERVICES.

	s.	d.
Te Deum in E. Four Voices	0	3
Benedicite in E	0	2
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	0	3
Cantate and Deus in E	0	3
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E	0	3
" " Tonic Sol-fa	0	1½

ANTHEMS.

Advent.—O Lord, Thou art my God. Four Voices	0	3
Christmas.—In the beginning	0	3
" Arise, shine, for Thy light is come	0	3
" " Tonic Sol-fa	0	1½
Ave Maria. Six Voices, Solo, Soprano and Tenor, with Four-part Chorus	0	6
Ave Maria. Soprano Solo	1	6
Amen. On Card	0	1

PART-SONGS.—SECULAR.

Spring. Four Voices	0	3
The Rhine Maiden. Four Voices	0	3
Over hill, over dale. Four Voices	0	3
Beware. Four Voices	0	1

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Just Published.

CHRISTMAS ALBUM for the PIANOFORTE.—Twenty Original Pieces and Transcriptions by Grieg, Reinecke, Gounod, Tschaïkowsky, &c. Edited and partly arranged by E. Kuhlstrom. Augener's Edition. No. 8087b. Net 1s. Augener and Co., 199, Regent Street; 6, New Burlington Street, W.; and 22, Newgate Street, E.C.

CHRISTMAS ALBUM (Vocal).—Twenty Songs and Carols, suitable for Christmastide, by Grieg, Bach, Reinecke, Moffat, Taubert, &c. Edited by Edmondstoune Duncan. Augener's Edition. No. 8986b. Net 1s. Augener and Co., 199, Regent Street; 6, New Burlington Street, W.; and 22, Newgate Street, E.C.

NEW CAROL.—CHRISTMAS SONGS.—Recits., Verse, Unison Chorus, with grand organ. Post-free, 2½d. Organists (card), 1d.
London: Partridge and Co., 32, Stockwell Road, S.W.

TWO-MANUAL PIPE ORGAN. 10 ft. high, 18 stops. Really good instrument; splendid tone. Manuals, CC to A; pedals, CCC to F. To effect an early sale, 150 guineas would be accepted. Payment arranged if desired. Exceptional value. W. Stoneham, 52, Hazlewood Crescent, Westbourne Park Station, London. Appointments please; evenings preferred.

DR. A. MADELEY RICHARDSON has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Exceptional opportunity for studying Choir-training. Apply, St. Saviour's Collegiate Church, Southwark.

TWO CHORAL SCHOLARSHIPS are offered for COMPETITION on December 12. For particulars, apply to the Organist, Trent College, Derbyshire.

NEW COLLEGE, Oxford. — CHORISTERSHIPS.—There will be a TRIAL of VOICES on Thursday, December 19. Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between nine and twelve years of age. For particulars, apply to the Precentor. Names must be sent in not later than December 12.

ST. BARNABAS, Pimlico. VACANCY for CHORISTER. Good Education Free in Westminster City School. Apply, Richard Lemaire, Organist.

WESTMINSTER (R.C.) CATHEDRAL.—TRIAL of TREBLE VOICES.—On December 19, to fill THREE VACANT CHOIR SCHOLARSHIPS and TWO EXHIBITIONS. Requisites—good voice and ear; some knowledge of music a recommendation, but not essential. Scholars receive free board and education in the Choir School; Exhibitioners allowed £30 reduction on School Fees. For full particulars, apply to Rev. F. Aveling, D.D., Archbishop's House, Westminster, S.W.

WANTED, ALTO, for St. John-the-Baptist, Kensington. Good reader indispensable. Communicant. Salary, £15. Apply, E. E. Douglas-Smith, 39, Gauden Rd., Clapham.

ST. MARTIN-IN-THE-FIELDS, Charing Cross. TENOR and BASS REQUIRED. Small salary given.

WANTED, leading TENOR and BASS. Sundays. One practice. £6 per ann. Apply, Christ Church, Endell Street, W.C., Friday, 8.30.

BASS WANTED, for St. Clement's Church, Clement's Lane, King William St., E.C. £8. Cathedral Service. Apply to Dr. Pearce, at Church Vestry, Saturday, Dec. 7, at 4 p.m.

BASS WANTED, for Holy Trinity Church, Gray's Inn Road. Salary to commence, £8. Apply, Organist.

BASS WANTED, for Choir of Church in N.W. district. Good reader, and able to sing solos. Light duties. Salary, £10. Also TWO LEADING BOYS with good voices (age 10 to 12). £4 4s. per annum each. Apply, Choirmaster, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY SOPRANO (highly-trained voice) is willing to assist at Concerts for 5s. expenses. Would join concert party. Artiste, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TENOR (Soloist, West-End Church). Robust voice. Royal College of Music training. Extensive oratorio répertoire. Good references. Will give services in London and district for expenses. Address, Tenor, 7A, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

WANTED, at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Wimbledon, ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Salary, £40 per annum. Apply, by letter, to Mr. R. Stewart, 43, Arthur Road, Wimbledon.

ST. MARK'S, Reigate.—WANTED, a RESIDENT CHOIRMASTER and ASSISTANT ORGANIST, to train ten boys in Music and Voice Production. Salary, £60 per annum. Apply, with recent testimonials, to the Vicar.

ORGANIST-CHOIRMASTER and general Parish worker WANTED, for large village. Board, lodging, and stipend; fine organ, and time for study. Send full particulars to Incumbent, 32, Rectory Road, Stoke Newington, N.

ORGANIST WANTED, for Newland Congregational Church, Lincoln. Stipend £50, with prospect of advance. Two Sunday services, occasionally three; one week-night service. Must also act as Choirmaster, and take a weekly practice. Applications, with three recent testimonials as to character and ability in both departments, and nature of diploma (if any), must reach the Deputy-Organist, Balgowan, Newland, Lincoln, by December 10.

ASSISTANT ORGAN PUPIL REQUIRED, able to play easy Sunday Services. He would receive instructions in three subjects, preparation for Coll. Org., and part board in return. George Havelock, 6, Christchurch Terrace, Doncaster.

A LADY desires small POST for ORGANIST, with stipend, in the country. Apply, L. R., Moorcroft, Parkstone, Dorset.

ORGANIST (young) desires APPOINTMENT, near Brighton or London preferred. Good references. Moderate salary. Address, A. J. White, 35, Rose Hill Terrace, Brighton.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires APPOINTMENT. Used to Full Choral Service. Highest references. Address, Organist, King's Sutton, Banbury.

CHRISTMAS VACATION.—ORGANIST and MUSICMASTER of large School will accept ENGAGEMENTS or DEPUTIZE. Dec. 20 to Jan. 20. Collins, 18, Adelaide Square, Windsor.

ACCOMPANIST, daughter of Professor of Music, desires ENGAGEMENT, practice or otherwise, with violinist or 'cellist. Has had much experience with violinist. Read anything at sight. Recommendation from Mr. Henry Bird. Miss N., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER.—Messrs. Duck, Son, and Pinker, Bath, have a VACANCY on their Staff for a first-class PIANO TUNER. A comfortable and permanent berth for a steady man. Send photo, stating age and references. A liberal salary and commission paid.

WANTED (in Shropshire), IMPROVER, to learn tuning. Must have knowledge of repairs and carpentering. State age, experience, and wages. Reply, X. Y. Z., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by first-class PIANOFORTE TUNER, SITUATION in or near Manchester or Liverpool. Address, H. B., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER and REPAIRER is open to an ENGAGEMENT by highly respectable firm. Town preferred. Highest references from John Brinsmead and Sons. Full particulars on application to B., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER desires BERTH. Good London experience (Outdoor). Gentlemanly appearance. Lex, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

FIRST-CLASS practical PIANOFORTE TUNER (35). Understands Organs and Harmoniums; also can play well. Desires POSITION in good house (London). Good references. Personal interview preferred. Address, D. R., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER open to ENGAGEMENT. Good knowledge American Organs, Harmoniums, &c. Experienced in out-door work. F. W., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

MANAGER-SALESMAN WANTED, for CHINA. Must be a good salesman of Pianos, Small Goods, and Sheet music, and possess some musical ability with business capacity. Passage paid and good salary given to a thoroughly capable man. Full particulars of experience, qualifications, &c., enclosing photo, to Breitkopf and Härtel, 54, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

GENTLEMAN (27), abstainer, desires POST as Pianoforte or Small Goods SALESMAN, with or without future investment, partnership, or purchase. Good pianist and sight reader, E. T., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, ENGAGEMENT as BOOK-KEEPER in a musical firm, at home or abroad. K. E. L., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

TO PIANO and ORGAN MANUFACTURERS or FACTORS. Advertiser, who has an old-established business, is about to open another, and requires ASSISTANCE in some form to be able to put out instruments on the hire system. Splendid connection. Details, in confidence, to Box, Novello & Co., Ltd., 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

LADY wishes to DISPOSE of good TEACHING CONNEXION for PIANOFORTE. R.A.M. or R.C.M. training preferred. Address, M. M., Hopton Hall, Mirfield, Yorks.

VIOLIN, first-class Instrument by Old English maker (Richard Duke, London), dated 1767. Offers, to David Peter & Douglas, 37, Frederick Street, Edinburgh.

OLD VIOLIN for SALE. £2. Good, full tone. Apply, H. Price, 13, St. Paul's Churchyard, E.C.

A CELLO (by Chipot Vuillaume, gendre de I. B. Vuillaume, 1891). Lowest price, £9. Can be tested by appointment. Address, T. Chamberlain, 81, Great Portland Street, W.

CLERGYMAN'S Wife has a number of CASSOCKS and SURPLICES to DISPOSE OF. One lot of 12 Men's and 12 Boys' for £15; another lot, same number, £21. Would divide. either. Letter only, Surplice, 33, Strand, W.C.

TO BE SOLD.—GOODWILL and STOCK of an Old-Established City Music and Instrument Dealer's and Theatre Ticket Agency. Telephone Call Office. Jackson, Novello & Co., Ltd., 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

FOR SALE.—PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS. Leading resort, North Wales. No opposition. Fine shop and house. Stock, &c., about £1,000. Satisfactory reasons for selling. W. M., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—ORGANISTS can PRACTISE on the Grand four-manual Organ by Willis (blown by hydraulic engines controlled from keyboard) in the Concert Hall of the Hampstead Conservatoire. The Hall is warmed by hot water. Specification of the organ, and terms of practice on application to the Secretary, Hampstead Conservatoire, Swiss Cottage, N.W.

N.B.—The Conservatoire is eight minutes by rail from Baker Street, Metropolitan Railway. Trains every ten minutes.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827.) Musical Instruments and Fittings.

HUGH SWANTON.

INSTALLATIONS NOW IN OPERATION.

St. Paul's Cathedral.
Norwich Cathedral.
Llandaff Cathedral.
Dundalk Cathedral.
Armidale Cathedral, N.S.W.
Church House, Westminster.
Royal Academy of Music.
St. Cuthbert's Church, Earl's Court, S.W.
St. Andrew's Church, Wells Street, W.
And many others.

INSTALLATIONS NOW IN HAND.

Dublin Cathedral	5 Engines.
Aachen (Germany)—Concert Hall	3 "
Betchworth—Residence, Mr. Whittington	1 "
Blackfriars, S.E.—St. Alphege's Church	1 "
Bristol—Wesleyan Chapel	1 "
Cork—Exhibition of 1902	2 "
Dundee—St. Swithin's Church	1 "
Gateshead—Christ Church	2 "
Horsham—Christ's Hospital Chapel	3 "
Leatherhead—Parish Church	1 "
Manchester—Presbyterian Church	1 "
Merthyr Tydfil—Methodist Church	1 "
Wigan—Parish Church	3 "
Wigan Parish Church	3 Swanton Economizers.

HUGH SWANTON,
THE LEADING SPECIALIST IN ORGAN BLOWING
(Agent for Ross Valve Company, New York),
79, WHITEHORSE STREET, STEPNEY, LONDON, E.

Dainty Brochure free for the asking.

The Swanton £50 Challenge is still unaccepted. See current No. of Musical Opinion.

ORGANISTS, &c.

RUMMENS'
Organ Pedal Attachment to Pianofortes
FOR HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.
STRAIGHT AND CONCAVE, RADIATING AND CONCAVE, Or any other form of Pedal Board.

UNRIVALLED FOR TOUCH, APPEARANCE, DURABILITY, AND PRICE.

Sir John Stainer: "I can confidently recommend it . . . nothing more valuable."
Sir Fred. Bridge: "I have tested it . . . successful . . . will give satisfaction."
Sir Geo. Martin: "I think very highly of it . . . clever."
Dr. Frost: "Every organ student should have a set."

Similar Testimonials from the most distinguished Organists and Musicians.

Particulars free. Write or call.
1, WYNNE ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments, for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case: in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

SPLENDID THREE-MANUAL ORGAN, 27 stops, entirely new, now in course of building, for SALE, to suit Church or Chapel; also, two-manual Organ, 12 stops, all latest improvements. A three-manual second-hand Organ, in good condition. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

RELIABLE SECOND-HAND ORGANS for SALE. One, Two, and Three Manuals and Pedals. Prices from £45 to £500. Particulars on application. Gray and Davison, 6, Pratt Street, Camden Town, N.W. Organ Builders to Her late Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. Prince Consort. Established 1750.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, containing 11 speaking stops and 5 couplers. Back to front, 67 inches; across front, 81 inches; height, 110 inches. 28 gilt pipes in front. Stained mahogany case. Price £150. Apply to Dr. Belcher, 228, Stratford Road, Birmingham.

ORGAN for SALE, 22 stops, 3 composition pedals, 2 key boards, and 2 octaves of pedals, in good case lately painted, pipes well gilded and illuminated. Price and further particulars, apply, Foggin, High Bridge, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

ORGAN for SALE (New). 2 manuals, 12 stops. Bourdons and Pedals. Organs tuned and repaired. R. Cope, Organ Builder, 74, Asylum Road, Peckham, S.E.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE.—Three Manuals (CC to G) and Pedals (CCC to F), 34 stops (open for inspection in London Church), £420. Three-manual and Pedal Chamber Organ. Height, 10 ft. 10 inches; part pneumatic. Open to offer. Two manuals and pedals, 15 stops, each, £175 and £150. One manual and pedals, 7 stops, £17. Inspection invited.
Eustace Ingram, Organ Builder,
Only address, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

EVERY ORGANIST should send for DINHAM, BLYTH & CO.'S Specimens and Price List (free) for Lithographing Anthems, Kyries, Hymn Tunes, &c., from twenty-four Copies and upwards. 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron-frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage paid, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher-class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

TO COMPOSERS.

MARRIOTT AND WILLIAMS,
MUSIC PUBLISHERS,
92, Great Portland Street, London, W.,
Undertake the Revising, Engraving, and Publishing of Authors' Musical Works in the very Best Style and at the lowest charges.
The Finest Paper used and the Best Workmanship in the trade.
Estimates free on receipt of MSS. Composers' works included in list without extra charge.
Private Rooms for Practice and Teaching.
Lessons by competent Professors given in every branch of Music, Vocal and Instrumental.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights. Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

MUSICAL OPINION.—Send 4d. for new number to 35, Shoe Lane, London, E.C. About 250 columns of interesting Musical Literature and Advertisements. Founded 1876.

TO CHORAL and ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.—Several CHORAL WORKS, PART-SONGS, and ORCHESTRAL WORKS for SALE. Applications for lists to Dr. Bunnett, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS. By A. B. Allen.
"Tom, the Piper's son." S.A.T.B. Price 3d.
"Dickory, dickory, dock." S.A.T.B. Price 4d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.
TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By Alfred J. Dye. Price 4d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Great Success. 11th Thousand.
TE DEUM in F. By D. R. Munro. Set in new novel form. Sung where hitherto only chants allowed. Choirmasters seeking new settings should order copy. Price 2d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By Arthur Carnall, Mus.B., Cantab. 4d. Sample copies, Penge, S.E.

Sixth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By William S. Vinning, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

KYRIE ELEISON in D flat. By Rev. T. Normandale, B.A. Price 1d. Third Edition.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

HYMN-ANTHEM.—OUT OF THE DEEP, No. 250, Hymns A. and M. Composed by A. Gibbs. Price 3d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

HYMN-ANTHEM.—LAY DOWN THY WEARY HEAD. Composed by A. Gibbs. Price 3d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES. — "Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

NEW EASY and COMPLETE COMMUNION SERVICE in D. By Frank Adlam. Price 6d. Novello & Co., Ltd., London. Written in same style and containing all the features which have made the Composer's famous Service in F so exceedingly popular.

AVE VERUM in G. By Frank Adlam. This beautiful Communio, sung for many years at St. Thomas's, Regent Street, is now published (Solo and short Chorus). Price 2d.
London: Hart and Co., Paternoster Row.

"UNTO YOU IS BORN THIS DAY." New Christmas Anthem. By W. H. Dewey. Price Threepence.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

"WE HAVE SEEN HIS STAR IN THE EAST." New Christmas Anthem. By Thos. Smith. 5d. "Easy and effective." To be had only from the Composer, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

THE BOY'S DREAM.—This favourite Carol for Christmas, Words by Rev. Dr. Millard, Music by D. John D. Codner (formerly Organist of St. David's Cathedral). Price Twopence.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

I WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS.
Song .. .. net 6d.
Ditto, as a Four-part Song .. .. „ 3d.
A Happy New Year. Song .. .. „ 6d.
The Holly Tree and Mistletoe. Part-Song .. .. „ 3d.
Ditto, voice parts. S.A.T.B. .. .. „ 3d.
Adeste Fideles, with Variations for the Organ, Ped. obbligato „ 2s.
Benedicite, omnia Opera .. .. „ 2d.
To be had of W. T. Belcher, 228, Stratford Road, Birmingham.

ORGANISTS and CHOIRMASTERS requiring a really pretty and attractive CHRISTMAS and EPIPHANY CANTATA which will please and interest their Choirs and enliven the winter practices, should get THE BABE OF BETHLEHEM, by Frank Adlam, containing Pastorale and Intermezzo for Organ, Recitations, Solos, short, bright Choruses, and seven pretty Carols, in which the school children could join. Very easy and within the capacity of any ordinary choir. Price 1s. Hart and Co., Paternoster Row, London.
[Specimen of Cantata and twelve Christmas Carols by Frank Adlam sent for 6d.]

Now ready. Price 1s. Post-free.
THE TENOR VOICE AND ITS TRAINING. By E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon. Revealing the Secret of Voice-Production. May be obtained from the Author, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N.; or, from Joseph Williams, Ltd., 32, Great Portland Street, W.

NEW CHRISTMAS MUSIC
By CALEB SIMPER.

NEW AND POPULAR ANTHEMS.

*And thou Bethlehem. New. 5th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
*The morning stars sang together. 6th 1,000 .. .. .. 3d.
*Tidings of great joy. (Fine Bass Solo.) 10th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
*Glad tidings. 8th 1,000. Peace on Earth. 14th 1,000 each 4d.
*When Jesus was born. From "The Nativity." 10th 1,000 .. 3d.
*His Name shall be called Wonderful. 11th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
*Rejoice greatly. 12th 1,000. He shall reign. 20th 1,000 each 3d.
*Worship Him and sing of Him. 18th 1,000 .. .. .. 4d.
*Break forth into joy. Sung at Festivals. 35th 1,000 .. 4d.
*The Glory of the Lord. Very popular. 17th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
*The Heavens are telling (easy). 11th 1,000 .. .. .. 3d.
*Blessed be the Lord God. Very effective. 24th edition .. 4d.
We have seen His star. Extremely popular. 46th edition .. 4d.
Sing, O Heavens. 29th 1,000. Glory to God. 24th edit. each 3d.
Behold, I bring. 57th ed. There were shepherds. 24th ed. 3d.
*Be joyful, O Earth. 9th 1,000 .. .. 4d.

NEW CHRISTMAS CAROLS.

385th 1,000. Price 1d. each. Nos. 55 to 60 just published.

*1. Carol sweetly.
*2. O lovely Star.
*3. What say these Bells?
*4. Come, hail the Day.
*5. Good News we bring.
*6. Sweetest Music.
*7. Awake, awake.
*8. O so sweetly.
*9. Happy Morning.
*10. Sweet Angels, ever bright.
*11. Oh, Christmas Bells.
*12. Bethlehem's peaceful hill.
*13. Sweet Christmas Day.
*14. Ring, Bells, Ring.
*15. Fair Eden's Gates.
*16. Songs of Rapture.
*17. All hail! we sing.
*18. Silvery Stars.
*19. Glad Heaven rejoices.
*20. Gold, frankincense, &c.
*21. See the joyful Day.
*22. The Angel's Song of Love.
*23. Night of glory.
*24. Jesus, the Lord, is born.
*25. Angelic Voices.
*26. The Royal Child.
*27. Sweetly chiming Bells.
*28. Welcome, Christmas Morn.
*29. Ring out, O Bells.
*30. Glory to God on high.
*31. O Bethlehem fair.
*32. Emmanuel! sweet Name.
*33. Sing we glory.
*34. Harp, Awake.
*35. Come ye to Bethlehem.
*36. Angels bright.
*37. Rejoice with Alleluias.
*38. The Wondrous Story.
*39. Loud Hosannas.
*40. The Child of Peace.
*41. On Christmas Day.
*42. The Starry Portals.
*43. Angels were singing.
*44. Ring on, O Bells.
*45. The Hymn of Christmas.
*46. The Light of Hope.
*47. Good news from Heaven.
*48. Hark! from the skies.
*49. Lo! on Bethlehem's plains.
*50. A sound of merry peals.
*51. Sweet Carols raise.
*52. Peace! peace! on Earth.
*53. He is our Emmanuel.
*54. Sing! for Christ is born.
*55. The Birthday of the King.
*56. Three Holy Kings.
*57. Chiming bells are ringing
*58. Carol joyously.
*59. God's Holy Angels sang.
*60. The Bells peal forth.

VERY POPULAR VOLUNTARY BOOKS.

Each contains Seventeen Pieces, including a capital March. On Two Staves, for Organ, American Organ, or Harmonium.
Book 1, 11th ed.; Book 2, 7th ed.; Book 3, 6th ed.; Book 4, 4th ed. Price 1s. 6d. net each Book.
*Those marked * may be also had in Tonic Sol-fa.*

London: Weekes and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

A BEAUTIFUL LITTLE ANTHEM FOR CHRISTMAS.
THE PRINCE OF PEACE
composed by
EDWYN A. CLARE.
9th 1,000. Price 3d.
Also the following favourite Anthems by the same Composer.
Easy, attractive, and effective:—
We have seen His Star. 9th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
A Saviour, Christ the Lord. 5th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
Behold, I bring. 13th 1,000. Sing, O Heavens. 9th 1,000. Each 3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D. 13th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
(Sung at a Choral Fest. in New S. Wales. A favourite Service.)
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem. 24th 1,000 .. .. .. 3d.
(Quite easy, yet very attractive. Suitable for "Peace" Services.)
The Lord Reigneth. 6th 1,000. (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. .. .. 3d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited, 1, Berners Street, W.

CHRISTMAS ANTHEMS & CAROLS.
AMBROSE EDITION.

No.		Staff Notation.	Tonic Sol-fa.
44.	Two Christmas Carols. By Jehu Martin	2d.	2d.
23.	Christians, listen while we sing. By Jehu Martin	1½d.	1½d.
24.	When the sun had sunk to rest. By Henry Knight	1½d.	1½d.
26.	While shepherds watched. By Roland Smart ..	3d.	2d.
40.	God from on high hath heard. By Edmund Turner	3d.	2d.
53.	The heavenly babe. By Thomas Adams, F.R.C.O.	3d.	2d.
59.	It came upon the midnight clear. By Strelezki ..	3d.	2d.

London: Ambrose Abbott and Co., 14, Hanway Street, W.
Please note address, and send two stamps for specimens and catalogue.

NOVELLO'S CHRISTMAS CAROLS.

Bramley, Rev. H. R. / Stainer, John } Christmas Carols, New and Old.

FIRST SERIES. One Penny each.

* 1.	God rest you merry, gentlemen	Traditional.
* 2.	The Manger Throne	C. Steggall.
* 3.	A Virgin unspotted	Traditional.
* 4.	Come, ye lofty	Elvey.
* 5.	Come, tune your hearts	Ouseley.
* 6.	The First Nowell	Traditional.
* 7.	Jesu, hail	J. Stainer.
* 8.	Good Christian men	Old German.
* 9.	Sleep, holy Babe	Dykes.
*10.	Good King Wenceslas	Traditional.
*11.	When I view the Mother	J. Barnby.
*12.	The seven joys of Mary	Traditional.
*13.	On the Birthday of the Lord...	Dykes.
*14.	What Child is this?	Old English.
*15.	Glorious, beauteous, golden-bright... ...	Maria Tiddeman.
*16.	Waken! Christian Children } 1d.	S. C. Hammerton.
*17.	A Child this day is born }	Traditional.
*18.	Carol for Christmas Eve	Ouseley.
*19.	When Christ was born	A. H. Brown.
*20.	Christmas Morning Hymn	J. Barnby.

Tonic Sol-fa, complete, 1s.; separate numbers, 1d. each.

SECOND SERIES. One Penny each.

*21.	Carol for Christmas Eve	Traditional.
22.	Jesus in the Manger	H. Smart.
*23.	The Holly and the Ivy } 1d.	Old French.
24.	The Moon shines bright }	Traditional.
*25.	The Virgin and Child	C. Steggall.
26.	The Incarnation	Traditional.
27.	Christmas Day	J. Stainer.
*28.	The Cherry-Tree Carol	Traditional.
29.	God's dear Son	Traditional.
*30.	See, amid the winter's snow...	Goss.
31.	The Babe of Bethlehem	Traditional.
32.	In Bethlehem, that noble place	Ouseley.
*33.	A Cradle Song of the Blessed Virgin	J. Barnby.
34.	Christmas Song	Dykes.
35.	Jacob's Ladder	Traditional.
36.	The Story of the Shepherd	J. Barnby.
*37.	The Wassail Song	Traditional.
*38.	In terrâ pax	Dykes.
39.	Dives and Lazarus	Traditional.
*40.	From far away	Dykes.
*41.	Carol for Christmas Day	A. Sullivan.
42.	The Child Jesus in the Garden	J. Stainer.

THIRD SERIES. One Penny each.

43.	What soul-inspiring music	Har. by J. S.
44.	In the country nigh to Bethlehem	G. Hine.
45.	We three Kings of Orient are	Har. by J. S.
46.	Emmanuel, God with us	H. Gadsby.
47.	New Prince, new pomp } 1d.	C. Steggall.
48.	A Babe is born }	Har. by J. S.
49.	Come let us all sweet Carols sing	F. Champneys.
50.	Let music break on this blest morn	J. B. Calkin.
51.	Carol for New Year's Day	A. H. Brown.
52.	The Angel Gabriel	Har. by J. S.
53.	The Shepherds amazed	A. H. Brown.
54.	Noel! Noel!	Har. by J. S.
55.	I sing the birth	G. C. Martin.
56.	Christmas Night	A. H. Brown.
57.	The Christmas Celebration	E. Prout.
58.	Arise and hail the Sacred Day	A. H. Brown.
59.	The Holy Well	Har. by J. S.
60.	The Angel and the Shepherds	E. H. Thorne.
61.	The Coventry Carol	Har. by J. S.
62.	The Morning Star	J. F. Bridge.
63.	The Shepherds went their hasty way	J. F. Barnett.
64.	I saw three ships	Har. by J. S.
65.	Mountains, bow your heads	W. H. Cummings.
66.	Luther's Carol	J. Higgs.
67.	The Boy's Dream	W. H. Monk.
68.	Legends of the Infancy	J. F. Bridge.
69.	Let Christians all (The Black Decree) } 1d. ...	Traditional.
70.	Immortal Babe (for Christmas Day) } ...

	s.	d.
The above 70 Carols, complete, cloth, gilt ...	4	0
Library Edition, with Historical Preface, Roxburgh binding	7	6
Illustrated Edition, 1st and 2nd Series	7	6
Three Series (cloth, gilt, 2s.) ... ... each	1	0
Words only, complete (cloth, 6d.)...	0	4
Words, each Series	0	1½

 The Carols marked thus * may be had in Tonic Sol-fa.

Helmore, Rev. T. / Neale, Rev. J. M. } Carols for Christmastide. Set to Ancient Melodies. One Penny each.

71.	Here is joy for every age.	77.	From church to church.
72.	Earthly friends will change.	78.	In the ending of the year.
73.	Gabriel's message.	79.	Royal day that chasest gloom.
74.	Christ was born on Christmas Day.	80.	O'er the hill and o'er the vale.
75.	Earth to-day rejoices.	81.	Good King Wenceslas.
76.	Good Christian men, rejoice.	82.	Toll! toll! because there ends.

	s.	d.
The above 12 Carols, complete	1	0
Folio, with pianoforte accompaniment	4	6
Treble part	0	6
Words only	0	1½

Wensley, Shapcott.—Twelve new Carols for Christmastide. Three-Halfpence each.

83.	O holy star	J. Stainer.
84.	The shepherds	Eaton Faning.
85.	Hymn of the angels	G. M. Garrett.
*86.	The anthem of peace	J. Barnby.
87.	The Desert	Emma Mundella.
88.	Bethlehem	Myles B. Foster.
89.	Daybreak	Berthold Tours.
90.	In the manger	J. Barnby.
91.	The Mother and Child...	Myles B. Foster.
92.	Christ is born	J. F. Bridge.
93.	Christmas Day	Battison Haynes.
*94.	Sweet Christmas Bells	J. Stainer.

Complete, 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 8d. Words only, 2d.

Ten Christmas Carols. Three-Halfpence each.

95.	Now join we all with holy mirth	J. Stainer.
96.	Softly the night	J. M. Crament.
97.	Sleep, Holy Babe	J. T. Field.
98.	Now dies in David's City	J. Swire.
99.	There dwelt in Old Judea	R. Jackson.
100.	Good people, give ear	J. Swire.
101.	Carol for Christmas Day	J. T. Field.
102.	Ye stars of night	J. Swire.
103.	Ring out, ye bells	J. H. Wallis.
104.	Two thousand troubled years	J. F. Bridge.

Complete, 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 8d. Words only, 2d.

Stainer, John (Adapted and arranged by).—Twelve Old Carols. One Penny each.

*105.	Shepherds! shake off your drowsy sleep.
106.	Come, shepherds, come! shake off your sleep.
107.	Now sing we all full sweetly.
108.	The good men all of Chastres.
109.	Whence comes this rush of wings afar?
110.	Come with us, sweet flowers, and worship. / Infant so gentle, so pure, and so sweet! } 1d.
111.	O Night, peaceful and blest!
112.	Of the Father's love begotten.
113.	We saw a light shine out afar.
114.	Christmas hath made an end.
115.	Now farewell, good Christmas.

Complete, 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 6d. Words only, 1d.

Martin, G. C. (Harmonised by). — Christmastide Carols. One Penny each.

Part I. (Old Breton Melodies).

116.	Hail! Christmas Bells.	119.	Glad hymns, with one accord.
117.	O'er her Child the Virgin weeps. / The stars are bright. } 1d.	120.	Outside the city gates.
		121.	On Asia Minor's sunny shore
		*122.	Across the desert sands by night.
118.	On this day was born.

Complete, 6d. Words only, 1d.

Part II. (Old French Melodies).

123.	The Shepherds glad.	127.	Round the Virgin gently sleeping.
124.	Merrily ring the Christmas bells.	128.	The Circumcision.
125.	The sombre shadows.	129.	In the golden lands afar.
126.	Poising bright on golden wing.	130.	A Legend of the Flight.

Complete, 6d. Words only, 1d.

Bramley, Rev. H. R. / Stainer, John } Christmas Carols, New and Old. Arranged for Men's Voices. Three-Halfpence each.

131.	A Virgin unspotted	Traditional.
132.	The Manger Throne	C. Steggall.
133.	Sleep, Holy Babe	Dykes.
134.	Good Christian men, rejoice	Old German.
135.	'Twas in the winter cold	J. Barnby.

NOVELLO'S CHRISTMAS CAROLS—continued.

BRAMLEY AND STAINER.—CAROLS NEW AND OLD—continued.

136. Good King Wenceslas ... ... Helmore's Carols.
137. Come! ye lofty ... ... Elvey.
138. God rest you merry, gentlemen ... ... Traditional.
139. Listen, Lordings ... ... Ouseley.
140. The First Nowell ... ... Traditional.
141. When Christ was born ... ... Arthur H. Brown.
142. Jesu, hail! O God most holy ... ... J. Stainer.
143. The seven joys of Mary ... ... Traditional.
144. What Child is this? ... ... Old English.
145. The Waits' Song (The moon shines bright) ... Traditional.
146. The Virgin and Child ... ... C. Steggall.
147. The Holly and Ivy ... ... Old French.
148. The Lord at first ... ... Traditional.
149. The Incarnation ... ... Traditional.
150. The Cherry-Tree Carol ... ... Traditional.
151. A Cradle-song of the Blessed Virgin ... ...J. Barnby.
152. Jacob's Ladder ... ... Traditional.
153. Dives and Lazarus ... ... Traditional.
154. The Wassail Song ... ... Traditional.

Complete, 2s. Words only, 2d.

BRAMLEY, Rev. H. R. } Christmas Carols, New and Old.
STAINER, JOHN } Arranged for Two-part Singing by W. G. McNAUGHT.

Three-Halfpence each.

155. Good King Wenceslas.
156. Good Christian men, rejoice.
157. Christmas hath made an end.
158. God rest you merry.
159. The First Nowell.
160. A Virgin unspotted.
161. The Wassail Song.
162. I hear along our street. / The Boar's Head Carol. } 1½d.
163. The seven joys of Mary.
164. Hark! how sweetly the bells.
165. The Holly and the Ivy.

Complete 1s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 6d. Words only, 1½d.

FOX, GEORGE—Carols for Christmastide. Set to Music for Little Singers. Three-Halfpence each.

166. Good King Wenceslas.
167. I hear along our street.
168. Brightly shone the Eastern star.
169. As Joseph was a-walking.
170. Hark! what mean those holy voices.
171. The Holy Well.
172. While Shepherds watched.
173. God rest you merry, gentlemen.
174. Hark! how sweetly the bells.
175. A little robin.
176. As I sat on a sunny bank.
177. Why in tones so sweet and tender.
178. The moon shone bright. / All you that in this house. } 1½d.
179. Clearly in the East it shone.
180. Shepherds at the Grange. / These good people. } 1½d.
181. Nuns in frigid cells. / Washerwomen old. } 1½d.
182. The Holly and the Ivy.
183. How grand and how bright. / Hosanna to the living Lord. } 1½d.
184. Lo! a heavenly form appearing. / The Boar's Head Carol. / In excelsis gloria. } 1½d.

Complete, 2s. 6d.

LEGGE, ROBIN H.—Twelve New Christmas Carols. For Unison Singing. Words by E. A. ALSTON.

Three-Halfpence each.

191. Caraula Pastorum.
192. Wassail Song.
193. Kings of Orient.
194. Good Christians all.
195. Cometh the day.
196. Ye Angelus Bell

Complete, 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 8d. Words only, 2d.

*197. The Anthem of Peace (O sweet the enchanting anthem) ... ...J. Barnby. / On Christmas Morn ... ... A. C. Mackenzie. / Across the desert sands by night ... G. C. Martin. / Shepherds! shake off your drowsy sleep ...J. Stainer. (Words only, 3s. per 100.) 1½d.

*198. O Babe! in manger lying ... ... / The Virgin is hushing ... ... / What Child is this? ... ... / Darkness fell on the weary earth ... ... J. Barnby. 1½d. (Words only, 3s. per 100.)

199. Holy night! peaceful night! ... ...J. Barnby. 2d.
200. In excelsis gloria ... ... J. M. Crament. 1½d.
201. When Christ was born ... ... J. T. Field. 1½d.
202. What Child is this? ... ... J. T. Field. 1½d.
203. There were whisperings ... ... / Shades of silent night ... ... J. T. Cooper. / S. Gee. 1½d.
*204. The Legend of Good Saint Christopher... F. J. Sawyer. 1½d.
205. I hear along our street ... ... E. Silas. 4d.
*206. In dulci Jubilo ... ... Pearsall. 3d.
207. Caput apri defero ... ... Pearsall. 3d.
*208. Holly berries ... ... Westbrook. 1½d.
209. A New Year's Carol ... ... J. Shaw. 1½d.
210. There was silence (Unison) ... ...J. Stainer. / The star in the East (Unison) ... ...H. Leslie. 1½d.
211. A Christmas Carol (Two Parts) ... ... C. Reinecke. 2d.
212. Glad Christmastide ... ...J. Barnby. 1½d.
213. All things were in silence ... ...J. Barnby. 1½d.
214. This is the month ... ... Hugh Blair. 1½d.
215. How peaceful was the night ... ... Hugh Blair. 1½d.
216. There came a little child ... ... R Jackson. 1½d.
217. As with gladness ... ... C. V. Stanford. 1½d.
218. One night as I was sleeping ... ...J. Swire. 1½d.
219. The Golden Crown ... ...J. Stainer. 1½d.
220. Joy fills our inmost heart ... ... A. C. Mackenzie. 1½d.
221. Who is this that lies all lowly ... ...Myles B. Foster. 1½d.
222. See, the Morning Star ... ... E. G. Monk. 1d.
223. Carol, carol, Christians ... ... Victoria Grosvenor. 1½d.
*224. On Christmas Morn ... ... A. C. Mackenzie. 1d.
225. In the ages past ... ... F. A. J. Hervey. 1½d.
226. We sing a song of gladness... ... ...J. Swire. 1½d.
227. The morn, the blessed morn is nigh Victoria Grosvenor. 3d.
228. Carol, carol, Christians ... ... Mrs. J. W. Bliss. 3d.
229. O was not Christ our Saviour? ... ... J. Shaw. 1½d.
230. Carol, Christian children ... ... A. Moffat. 1½d.
*231. There was silence in Bethlehem's fields (S.A.T.B.) J. Stainer. 1½d.
232. Come, all ye Christian men, rejoice Hamilton Clarke. 1½d.
233. Shepherds in the fields abiding ... Hamilton Clarke. 1½d.
234. Come and sing the wondrous story J. Varley Roberts. 1½d.
235. The Christmas bells ring loud and clear J. Varley Roberts. 1½d.
236. Bethlehem ... ... J. Varley Roberts. 1½d.
237. The birth ever new ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
238. The old news ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
239. Christmas Eve ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
240. The Christmas vision ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
241. The Shepherds' Carol... ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
242. Mary's Cradle Song ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
243. The Angels' Carol ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
244. Children's Chorus ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
245. The Holy Quest ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
246. The Five Kings ... ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
247. Praise we now the Holy light ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
248. Nazareth town in slumber lay ... Robin H. Legge. 1½d.
249. An ode on the birth of our Saviour ... C. H. Lloyd. 1½d.
250. See, the morning star is dwelling ... A. Herbert Brewer. 1½d.
251. Christ was born on Christmas Day A. Herbert Brewer. 1½d.
252. Christmas Morn ... ... H. C. Havergal. 2d.
253. The Kings of the East... ... ... H. C. Havergal. 2d.
254. The Star ... ... H. C. Havergal. 2d.
255. The Angels' song ... ... H. C. Havergal. 2d.
256. The Holy birth ... ... H. C. Havergal. 2d.
257. The Humiliation ... ... H. C. Havergal. 2d.
258. Rejoice, O daughter ... ... C. Macpherson. 1½d.
259. The Virgin and Child (This winter's night) C. Macpherson. 1½d.
*260. The Annunciation ... ... J. Barnby. 1½d.
*261. The Message to the Shepherds ... ... J. Barnby. 1½d.
*262. Cradle Song of the Blessed Virgin... ... J. Barnby. 1½d.
*263. Gloria in excelsis ... ... J. Barnby. 1½d.
264. Sing the Holy Child-Christ... ... Myles B. Foster. 1½d.
*265. Sleep, baby, sleep ... ... Thos. Adams. 1½d.
266. Noël ... ...A. M. Goodhart. 1½d.
267. What sudden blaze of song... ... Cuthbert Harris. 1d.
268. What sudden blaze of song ... ... J. F. Bridge. 1d.
269. Shepherds, leave your flocks ... ... J. V. Roberts. 1d.
270. Heavenly music, clearly ringing ... ... J. V. Roberts. 1d.
271. Silent night, holiest night ... ... J. V. Roberts. 1d.
272. Angels singing ... ...J. H. Mee. 1d.
273. Little children ... ...J. H. Mee. 1d.
274. Blessed Babe ... ...H. W. Wareing. 1d.
275. Ring the bells ... ...J. Barnby. 1½d.
*276. Sweeter than songs of summer ... ... J. F. Bridge. 2d.
277. The night in solemn stillness hung ... J. G. Smith. 1½d.
278. The Son of Mary, Christ the King ... Thomas Adams. 1d.
279. Hark! all around ... ... W. A. C. Cruickshank. 1d.
280. It is the day ... ... W. A. C. Cruickshank. 1d.
281. Mortals, awake ... ... W. A. C. Cruickshank. 1½d.
282. In the fields with their flocks abiding ... ...J. E. West. 1½d.
283. It came upon the midnight clear ... ...Battison Haynes. 1d.
284. Royal Bethlehem ... ... W. Montgomery. 1½d.
285. I hear along our street ...Arranged by S. H. Nicholson. 1d.
286. The Child Jesus in the Garden (2nd setting) J. Stainer. 1d.
287. The Prince of Peace ... ... A. Herbert Brewer. 1d.
288. Remember God's goodnesse ... Ravenscroft-Bridge. 1½d.
289. Christmas Tree Carol ... ... H. Davan Wetton. 1d.
290. Christmas morn ... ... Thomas Adams. 1d.
291. Child Divine ... ... Thomas Adams. 1d.
292. A Christmas Song ... ...Thomas Adams. 1d.
293. A lowly Babe ... ... Alfred Hollins. 1½d.
294. The Blessed Virgin ... ... E. C. Bairstow. 1½d.
295. Christ is born ... ... E. T. Sweeting. 1d.
296. Christian children, hear Me ... ... E. T. Sweeting. 1d.
297. Ring out wild bells ... ... E. Vine Hall. 1d.
298. Christmas bells ... ... W. H. Longhurst. 1½d.
299. Christmas voices sing ... ... Ferris Tozer. 1d.
300. Shepherd hear, loud and clear ... ... Ferris Tozer. 1d.
301. Not in courts of regal splendour ... ... E. Vine Hall. 1d.
302. Many hundred years ago ... ... G. C. Martin. 1d.
303. The Nativity ... ... Charles Erskine. 1d.
304. A Cradle Song ... ... Charles Erskine. 1d.
305. As on the night ... ... B. W. Horner. 1½d.
306. It fell upon a winter's day ... ... M. A. Sidebotham. 1d.
307. The night is dark ... ... M. A. Sidebotham. 1d.
308. Carol, Carol, Christians ... ... M. A. Sidebotham. 1d.
309. The loving heart ... ... Charles Erskine. 1d.
310. I hear along our street ... ...T. R. Matthews. 1d.
311. In Bethlehem's ancient city ... ... J. E. West. 1½d.
312. Can Man forget the Story ... ... A. H. Brewer. 1d.
313. Who are these from Bozrah faring ... A. M. Goodhart. 1d.

 The Carols marked thus * may be had in Tonic Sol-fa.

ANTHEMS FOR CHRISTMAS.

*The word is made Incarnate	Thomas Adams	2d.
*Come and worship the Lord	Thomas Adams	1½d.
Unto us a Child is born	F. Adlam	4d.
*In the beginning	G. B. Allen	1½d.
Christians, be joyful	Bach	3d.
Come and thank Him	Bach	3d.
Glory be to God	Bach	3d.
Glory to God	Bach	2d.
Hear, King of Angels	Bach	1½d.
*That God doth love the world	Bach	3d.
*Behold, I bring you good tidings	J. Barnby	3d.
Christians, awake	J. Barnby	3d.
Drop down, ye heavens	J. Barnby	1½d.
*Hail to the Christ (Carol-Anthem)	J. Barnby	3d.
*Like silver lamps	J. Barnby	1½d.
*Sing and rejoice	J. Barnby	1½d.
*The first Christmas (Words only, 3s. per 100)	J. Barnby	3d.
*The Grace of God which bringeth salvation	J. Barnby	1½d.
*While shepherds watched their flocks	J. Barnby	4d.
*While shepherds watched their flocks	W. T. Best	1½d.
*Behold my servant	J. Frederick Bridge	3d.
*Give the king Thy judgments, O Lord	A. H. Brown	1½d.
*The Angel said unto them (Two-part Anthem—Sop. and Bass)	A. H. Brown	2d.
*Come, ye lofty	H. Elliot Button	1½d.
*Rejoice in the Lord	J. B. Calkin	3d.
Hail! thou that art highly favoured	Arthur Carnall	4d.
*Break forth into joy	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*Angels, from the realms of glory	F. H. Cowen	3d.
Behold, I bring you good tidings	J. M. Crament	4d.
Behold, I bring you glad tidings	Giovanni Croce	1½d.
Be peace on earth	W. Crotch	2d.
Lo, star-led chiefs	W. Crotch	2d.
*When Jesus was born in Bethlehem	W. A. C. Cruickshank	3d.
When Christ was born to earth	H. Walford Davies	4d.
*Arise, shine, for Thy light is come	Geo. Elvey	1½d.
*While shepherds watched	Geo. Elvey	3d.
*Let us now go even unto Bethlehem	J. T. Field	1½d.
*There were shepherds	Myles B. Foster	1½d.
Ditto (Two-part Anthem)	Myles B. Foster	3d.
*Hark the glad sound	Myles B. Foster	3d.
Behold, a Star appeareth	Niels W. Gade	4d.
Sing, O daughter of Zion	H. Gadsby	1½d.
*Sing, O Heavens, and be joyful, O Earth	A. Gaul	1½d.
In this was manifested	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
Behold, how good and joyful	W. H. Gladstone	1s.
*Behold, I bring you good tidings	J. Goss	1½d.
*God so loved the world	J. Goss	1½d.
*O sing to God (Noël). (Female voices)	Ch. Gounod	6d.
*O sing to God (Noël). (Arranged for S.A.T.B.)	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
*The Word is Flesh become	Ch. Gounod	1s.
*Awake, put on thy strength	F. R. Greenish	4d.
Behold, I bring	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Brightest and best	E. V. Hall	4d.
Hark! the glad sound	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Hark! the herald angels sing	E. V. Hall	3d.
*For unto us a Child is born	Handel	2d.
*Glory to God	Handel	1d.
How beautiful are the feet (Appendix to "The Messiah")	Handel	3d.
*O Thou that tellest	Handel	1½d.
*Now is come Salvation	Cuthbert Harris	3d.
*There shall come a star	Cuthbert Harris	3d.
*Sing and rejoice	Basil Harwood	4d.
*Lo, God, our God has come	Battison Haynes	3d.
*Christians, awake	H. M. Higgs	4d.
*Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous	Alfred Hollins	3d.
*Let us now go even unto Bethlehem	E. J. Hopkins	1½d.
Behold, all the earth lieth still	G. F. Huntley	4d.
O come hither	W. Jackson	3d.
O Zion, that bringest	W. Jackson	1s.
Sing, O heavens	W. Jackson	1s.
Sing, O heavens	Kent	4d.
*While all things were in quiet silence	Henry J. King	3d.
Hallelujah! the light hath shined	Oliver King	3d.
Hark! what news the angels bring	Oliver King	3d.
Sing a song of praise	Oliver King	3d.
*The star that now is shining	Oliver King	1½d.
*While all things were in quiet silence	Oliver King	1½d.
*God so loved the world	M. Kingston	1½d.
Dawns the day, the natal day	Robin H. Legge	3d.
Fear not, we bring you good tidings	H. Leslie	1s.
He cometh forth	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
While all things were in quiet silence	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
Behold the Tabernacle (Two-part Anthem)	G. A. Macfarren	3d.
Unto us was born (Two-part Anthem)	G. A. Macfarren	3d.
Sing, O heavens	A. C. Mackenzie	6d.
*O, Holy Babe	A. C. Mackenzie	1½d.
*In the beginning	Charles Macpherson	4d.
*There shall come forth a Star	O. A. Mansfield	3d.
Blessed be the Lord God of Israel	The Earl of Mar	1½d.
God, Who at sundry times	J. H. Mee	4d.
Rejoice, O ye people	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Say, where is He born (Trio)	Mendelssohn	2d.
There shall a Star	Mendelssohn	6d.
*Hallelujah! for unto us a Child is born	W. H. Monk	1½d.
O Jerusalem! look about thee	E. W. Naylor	4d.
*Sing unto the Lord	Vincent Novello	1½d.
Before the Heavens were spread abroad	Horatio W. Parker	3d.
I will set His dominion in the sea	Horatio W. Parker	4d.
*Calm on the list'ning ear of night	Horatio W. Parker	3d.
Glory to God in the highest	Pergolesi	1½d.
There were shepherds	Edgar Pettman	3d.
Behold, the name of the Lord	Percy Pitt	4d.
*Break forth into joy	T. Ridley Prentice	6d.
God so loved the world	J. Varley Roberts	3d.
The whole earth is at rest	J. Varley Roberts	4d.
*Crown Him, the Virgin's Son	B. Luard Selby	2d.
The light hath shined	E. Silas	1½d.
*The Angel Gabriel was sent from God	H. Smart	1½d.
*Behold, I bring you glad tidings	C. W. Smith	1½d.
*God so loved the world	J. Stainer	1½d.
I desired wisdom	J. Stainer	6d.
*It came upon the midnight clear	J. Stainer	1½d.
*Mercy and truth are met together (Words, 3s. per 100)	J. Stainer	3d.
*O Zion, that bringest good tidings	J. Stainer	1½d.
*The hallowed day hath shined upon us	J. Stainer	1½d.
*The morning stars sang together	J. Stainer	6d.
*There was silence in Bethlehem's fields	J. Stainer	1½d.
*Ditto (Unison)	J. Stainer	1½d.
*Thus speaketh the Lord of Hosts	J. Stainer	1½d.
*Break forth into joy	Bruce Steane	3d.
In the beginning was the Word	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
*Sing, O heavens	B. Tours	1½d.
*There were shepherds	B. Tours	1½d.
In the beginning was the Word	F. Tozer	4d.
Sing, O heavens	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
This is the day which the Lord hath made	J. Turle	3d.
The light hath shined	C. G. Verrinder	1½d.
*There were shepherds	Charles Vincent	4d.
Behold, I bring you glad tidings	Vittoria	1½d.
There were shepherds	H. W. Wareing	3d.
Blessed be the Lord God of Israel	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
*O come, Redeemer of mankind	J. E. West	1½d.
*With all Thy Hosts	J. E. West	1½d.
*See amid the winter's snow	J. E. West	1½d.
Blessed be the Lord God of Israel	C. L. Williams	4d.
*Jesu, Who from Thy Father's throne	F. C. Woods	3d.

*Anthems marked thus * may be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

THE HOLY CHILD

AN EASY CHRISTMAS CANTATA

FOR SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BASS SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

THOMAS ADAMS.

Price One Shilling; Tonic Sol-fa, Sixpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

SLEEP, BABY, SLEEP

CAROL-CHORUS FROM THE ABOVE.
Published separately, price 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

CHRISTMAS SCENES

CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES

COMPOSED BY

FREDERIC H. COWEN.

Price Two Shillings; Tonic Sol-fa, Ninepence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE COMING OF THE KING

A SACRED CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES

SUITABLE FOR CHRISTMAS

WORDS BY

HELEN MARION BURNSIDE

MUSIC BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 8d.
Words only, 5s. per 100.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

YULE-TIDE

A CANTATA

COMPOSED BY

THOMAS ANDERTON.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.; cloth, gilt, 3s.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NEW CHRISTMAS ANTHEMS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

COME AND WORSHIP THE LORD

BY

THOMAS ADAMS.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

SING AND REJOICE

BY

BASIL HARWOOD.

Price Fourpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

IN THE BEGINNING

BY

CHARLES MACPHERSON.

Price Fourpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

REJOICE IN THE LORD, O YE RIGHTEOUS

BY

ALFRED HOLLINS.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

Just added to NOVELLO'S "OCTAVO ANTHEMS."

AWAKE, PUT ON THY STRENGTH

BY

FREDERICK R. GREENISH.

Price Fourpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Twopence. Orchestral Parts, MS.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

CROWN HIM THE VIRGIN'S SON

COMPOSED BY

B. LUARD SELBY.

Price Twopence; Tonic Sol-fa, One Penny.

THERE SHALL COME A STAR

COMPOSED BY

CUTHBERT HARRIS.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

COME YE LOFTY

COMPOSED BY

H. ELLIOT BUTTON.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, One Penny.

CALM ON THE LIST'NING EAR OF NIGHT

COMPOSED BY

HORATIO W. PARKER.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

HARK THE GLAD SOUND

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

THE ANGEL SAID UNTO THEM

COMPOSED BY

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

(Two-part Anthem—Soprano and Bass.)
Price Twopence; Tonic Sol-fa, One Penny.

IT CAME UPON THE MIDNIGHT CLEAR

COMPOSED BY

J. STAINER.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Laid out after the model of "The Story of the Cross."

THE

STORY OF THE ADVENT OF JESUS

WRITTEN BY

E. W. LEACHMAN

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. STAINER.

Price Twopence; Tonic Sol-fa, One Penny.
Words only, 3s. per 100.

PART I. The advent of Jesus before His Incarnation.—To create and to illuminate mankind.
PART II. The advent of Jesus at His Incarnation.—To save and to elevate mankind.
PART III. The advent of Jesus since His Incarnation.—To attract and to nourish mankind.
PART IV. The advent of Jesus to receive the Fruits of His Incarnation.—To Judge and to claim mankind.

N.B.—The Incarnation of Jesus means His taking upon Him our flesh, and being born as Man on Christmas Day.
This "Story" is told in the order above, so that, whilst remembering our Lord's Coming as Man, and as Judge, we may not lose sight of His other Advents.
The Bible references given are those which suggested the form of this "Story."

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

DAY OF WRATH

(DIES IRÆ)

HYMN-ANTHEM FOR ADVENT

COMPOSED BY

J. STAINER.

Price Fourpence. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

AT THE MANGER

A LITANY OF THE INCARNATION

Words by GERTRUDE H. F. NORRIS

MUSIC (from "The Crucifixion") BY

J. STAINER.

Price One Penny. Words only, price ½d.; or, 2s. 6d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE

STORY OF BETHLEHEM

A SHORT SACRED CANTATA

FOR CHRISTMAS SERVICES, &c.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

SHAPCOTT WENSLEY

THE MUSIC FOR SOPRANO, TENOR, & BASS SOLI, CHORUS AND ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

JOHN E. WEST.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Ninepence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

ORGAN MUSIC FOR CHRISTMAS.

		s.	d.
A CHRISTMAS PASTORALE on the Introit "Hodie Christus natus est" and the Hymns "Corde natus" and "Adeste, Fideles" .. .. B. L. Selby	net	1	6
SIX ORGAN PIECES (Book V. of "Collection of Organ Pieces") .. .. W. T. Best	,,	3	0
POSTLUDE .. .. Dr. Garrett	,,	1	6
OFFERTOIRE ("The Modern Organist," No. 9) Lefébure-Wély	,,	2	6
OFFERTORIUM (Four Organ Pieces, No. 2) J. Lemmens	,,	2	6
VOLUNTARY for Christmastide .. Sir Fred. Ouseley	,,	1	0
CHRISTMAS SONATA (Sonata, No. 4) Otto Dienel	,,	3	6
CHRISTMAS BELLS .. .. G. J. Elvey	,,	0	9
ADESTE, FIDELES (Book V. of "Collection of Organ Pieces") .. .. A. Guilmant	,,	3	6

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Issued.

ADESTE FIDELES

(No. 33 of NOVELLO'S CANTIONES SACRÆ)

EDITED BY

DOM SAMUEL G. OULD

CONTAINING THE COMPLETE LATIN TEXT

(EIGHT VERSES, NOW PUBLISHED WITH MUSIC FOR THE FIRST TIME)

WITH A

PRELUDE AND VARIED ACCOMPANIMENTS

By the following Composers:—

Præludium by Dr. F. E. GLADSTONE.

I. Stropha .. .. .. DOM SAMUEL G. OULD.
II. Stropha .. .. .. WILLIAM SEWELL.
III. Stropha .. .. .. H. B. COLLINS.
IV. Stropha .. .. .. Sir WALTER PARRATT.
V. Stropha .. .. .. Dr. A. E. TOZER.
VI. Stropha .. .. .. Sir C. H. H. PARRY.
VII. Stropha .. .. .. Dr. C. W. PEARCE.
VIII. Stropha .. .. .. S. P. WADDINGTON.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THREE CAROLS FOR CHURCH USE

WITH OBBLIGATO ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENTS—viz.:

"ANGELS FROM THE REALMS OF GLORY"

"CHRISTMAS BELLS"

"YULETIDE"

COMPOSED BY

ALFRED R. GAUL.

The verses of the above Carols have been carefully varied and suitable symphonies interspersed.

Price Threepence each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

CHRISTMAS PARCELS.

OVER 100 PER CENT. PROFIT.

WILLIAM LEA having purchased a very large quantity of Pianoforte Pieces—Publishers' Surplus Stock—will offer the same in Parcels to sell at One Shilling each, as follows:

Each Parcel will contain 20s. worth at published price.
Sample Parcel, post-free, 9d.
50 Parcels will be sent, carriage paid, for 21s. 6d.
Cash with Order.

WILLIAM LEA,

50 AND 52, CHURCH STREET, LIVERPOOL.

COMPOSITIONS

BY

T. MEE PATTISON.

CANTATAS.	s.	d.	s.	d.
The Ancient Mariner	2	6	0	6
Do. do. (Choruses only)	1	0
The Lay of the Last Minstrel	2	6
Do. do. (Choruses only)	1	0
May Day	1	0	0	6
The Miracles of Christ (Sacred)	1	0	0	6

ANTHEMS &c.
All Thy works praise Thee (Harvest)	0	3	0	1
Thou visitest the earth (Harvest)	0	2
I know that my Redeemer liveth (Easter)	0	3
There were shepherds (Christmas)	0	2
Thirteen Offertory Sentences	0	4
Six Kyries	0	2
Te Deum laudamus (in F)	0	3

ORIGINAL ORGAN COMPOSITIONS.
Fifteen Introductory and Concluding Voluntaries			3	6
Five Concluding Voluntaries			1	6

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

GREAT

MUSICAL PLEBISCITE

IN CONNECTION WITH

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.

PRIZES:

£10 - £5 - £3

&c., &c.

OPEN TO EVERY ORGANIST, CHOIRMASTER AND MEMBER OF CHOIRS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM AND COLONIES.

Stamped addressed envelope must be sent for full particulars to

W. CROFTON HEMMONS,

PUBLISHER, BRISTOL.

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

By W. W. PEARSON.

Nymphs of the Ocean ..	3d.	Under the Trees	2d.
The Skaters	3d.	The Oyster Dredgers ..	2d.
*The Lake	3d.	Evening	2d.
'Tis Morn	3d.	*Sweet to live (38th thou.)	2d.
Sweet Spring (Madrigal) ..	3d.	*Welcome, young Spring! ..	2d.
The River	3d.	*The Anglers (14th thou.) ..	2d.
Over the mountain side ..	3d.	The Dream of Home ..	2d.
Soul of living music ..	3d.	Summer and Winter ..	2d.
The Stormy Petrel	3d.	*Departed Joys	2d.
The Coral Grove	3d.	There's beauty in the deep	1½d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu ..	3d.	Soldier, rest!	1d
Blow, Western Wind! ..	3d.	Woods in Winter	1d.
Stars of the Night	3d.	Autumn	1d.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS.

*Three Doughtie Men (80th thousand)	3d.	*Ben Bowlegs (Ed. Oxenford)	3d.
Three Children Sliding (12th thousand)	3d.	The Carrion Crow	3d.
A Ryghte Merrie Geste ..	4d.	Call John! (6th thousand) ..	3d.
The Snow-white Doe ..	4d.	Three Merry Fishers ..	3d.
		The Cuckoo Clock (just published)	3d.

DESCRIPTIVE CHORUSES.

With Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniments.

The Iron Horse	4d.	The Ocean	3d.
Off to Sea	4d.	*The Ironfounders (36th thou.)	3d.
Jäger Chorus	3d.	The Cyclists	4d.
The Lifeboat	4d.

Orchestral Parts on application to the COMPOSER, Elmham, Dereham.
Tonic Sol-fa Editions at half the above prices of those marked *.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Recently Published.

1RE SUITE FOR ORGAN

BY

FÉLIX BOROWSKI.

(1. Prélude. 2. Toccata. 3. Méditation-Elégie. 4. Marche Solennelle.)
Complete, 4s. net.

The Organist and Choirmaster says: "A work which is far and above finer than most of the current organ music of the day. In this Suite we see the organ elevated to the rank of an artistic solo instrument for concert use."

London: LAUDY AND CO., 139, Oxford Street, W.

MUSIC AND POETRY (New Instructive Monthly).
FOUR GUINEAS for the best Hymn.
THREE GUINEAS for the best short Poem (to be published in January number).
Full particulars will be sent (post-free) by W. H. Winter, Secretary, 164, Marylebone Road, London, N.W.

AMATEUR COMPOSERS can have copies of their Compositions lithographed, for private circulation or otherwise, from 24 copies and upwards. Mention specimen required (free). Dinham, Blyth and Co., 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established, 1872.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST

NEW NUMBERS.

BOOKS 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, and 30, NOW READY.

Price One Shilling each.
Or, the Six Books together, forming Volume V., bound in cloth, price Six Shillings.

Detailed List on application.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEM BOOKS

NEW NUMBERS.

BOOKS 7, 8, and 9, NOW READY.

Price One Shilling each.
Tonic Sol-fa, Eightpence each.

Detailed List on application.

NOVELLO'S

REVISED LIST OF WORKS SUITABLE FOR

PRESENTS AND SCHOOL PRIZES

Detailed List on application.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

NEW EDITION. NOW READY.

The very successful Lent Cantata

PENITENCE PARDON AND PEACE

BY

J. H. MAUNDER.

The Musical Times, 1/1/99: "An admirable example of a commendable class of Church music. Consists of writing of that melodious and effective nature for which the composer is so widely famed."
Musical Opinion, 1/2/98: "A fine Church composition."
Musical News, 15/1/98: "We have no hesitation in cordially recommending it."
Musical Standard, 5/3/98: "Deserves considerable popularity."
Organist and Choirmaster, 15/2/98: "For the music we have nothing but praise."
Birmingham Post, 5/3/98: "The music is of a high artistic value."
Liverpool Courier, 2/8/98: "A work of great merit in every respect."
Manchester Courier, 9/3/98: "It will doubtless be used in many 'quires and places where they sing.'"
Newcastle Leader, 23/2/98: "A well-written work."
Western Morning News, 25/3/98: "A good composition. Striking and original."
Chester Chronicle, 16/4/98: "A beautiful work, very tuneful, and exceedingly effective."
Lichfield Mercury, 4/2/98: "Extremely effective, containing some really beautiful music."
Journal of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, 1/2/98: "A well written work. We can strongly recommend it."

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words, 2s. per 100.

 A Specimen Copy will be sent for six stamps to any Clergyman, Organist, or Choirmaster, on application to J. H. Maunder, Hill Top, Belmont Park, London, S.E.

Band Parts may be hired or purchased from Messrs. Goodwin and Tabb, 71, Great Queen Street, W.C.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

NOVELLO'S

CLASSIFIED CATALOGUE

OF MUSIC FOR

VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

PREFACE.

The Violin music in this Catalogue has been divided into Four Grades, as follows:—

Grade I.

Pieces within the compass of the First Position.

Grade II.

Pieces beyond the First, but within the compass of the Third Position.

Grade III.

Pieces beyond the Third, but within the compass of the Fifth position.

Grade IV.

Pieces beyond the Fifth Position, and very advanced.

Each piece has, further, a classifying letter attached to it, indicating a relative difficulty to the particular grade in which it is placed. Pieces which, according to the fingering used, are suitable for two different grades have been included in both, but with a different classifying letter, a lower, or simpler letter being used in the second grade than that given in the first—e.g., pieces marked C (moderately easy) in Grade I. are marked B (easy) if included in Grade II.; pieces marked E (difficult) in Grade II. are marked D (moderately difficult) if included in Grade III., and so forth.

When, in an album of pieces of various degrees of difficulty, a Roman figure is used before the letter denoting the degree of difficulty, it signifies that the piece is more suitable for the Grade indicated by the figure.

Explanation of Letters.

A = very simple. D = moderately difficult.
B = easy. E = difficult.
C = moderately easy. F = very difficult.
G = very advanced.

Copies of the above Catalogue sent Post-free on application.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Just Published.

DER TRAUM DES GERONTIUS

GEDICHT VON

CARDINAL NEWMAN

FÜR

MEZZOSOPRAN-, TENOR- UND BASS-SOLO
CHOR UND ORCHESTER

COMPONIRT VON

EDWARD ELGAR.

(Op. 38.)

Deutsche Uebersetzung von JULIUS BUTHS.

Preis 6 Mark netto.
Chorstimmen, 8 Mark netto.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

THIRTY-TWO

ORIGINAL TUNES TO POPULAR HYMNS

COMPOSED BY

F. C.

"The setting of 'The Son of God Goes Forth to War' is bold and martial, and has just that suggestion of a marching rhythm that the words need. 'Saviour again to Thy dear Name we raise' is very tender and melodious, and the sustained and slow 'Calm' ('Calm me, My God, and keep me calm') perfectly interprets the words; far better, in fact, than any tune to which the hymn has yet been set."—Bedfordshire Times.

". . . distinctly good, their melody pretty . . . harmonies satisfactory . . . a welcome addition to our store."—The Rock.

". . . very good."—Gospel Magazine.

Price, limp cloth, gilt lettered, 1s. 1d., Post-free.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, MUS.D., CANTAB.

In Four Sets. Each Set, complete, One Shilling; or, in Single Numbers, One Penny.

CONTENTS OF FIRST SET.

1. THE CAROLLERS.
2. THE STARS ARE SHINING BRIGHT AND CLEAR.
3. CAROL, SWEETLY CAROL.
4. CHRISTMAS BELLS.
5. A CHILD THIS DAY IS BORN.
6. HARK! WHAT MEAN THOSE HOLY VOICES.
7. THE ANGELS' CAROL.
8. WHILE SHEPHERDS WATCHED.
9. ANGELS FROM THE REALMS OF GLORY.
10. A CHRISTMAS CHIME.

CONTENTS OF SECOND SET.

1. AWAKE! AROUSE! YE CHRISTIAN BAND.
2. RING OUT, SWEET CHIMES.
3. BRIGHTEST AND BEST.
4. HAIL! HAPPY MORN.
5. O LET OUR VOICES.
6. CHRISTMAS EVE.
7. HARK! THE BELLS.
8. CHRISTMAS CAROL.
9. JOYFUL IS THE MORN.
10. NOËL.

CONTENTS OF THIRD SET.

1. O GLADSOME MORN.
2. HOW MARVELLOUS THY WAYS.
3. LET'S MERRY BE.
4. HARK! THE ANGELS SINGING.
5. CHILDREN'S VOICES.
6. SONG OF THE SHEPHERDS.
7. A CHILD IS BORN.
8. O SAVIOUR DEAR.

CONTENTS OF FOURTH SET.

1. LIFT YOUR GRATEFUL VOICES.
2. THE BRIGHTEST MORN.
3. CHIMES ACROSS THE SNOW.
4. THE ANGELS' SONG.
5. SONG OF THE FAITHFUL.
6. THE HERALD BELLS.
7. O DAY OF DAYS.
8. COME, YULETIDE GUESTS.
9. THY SERVANTS SING.
10. THE ANGEL'S TIDINGS.

Words of each Set, One Penny, and may be had of the COMPOSER, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

Recently Published.

CHRISTMAS ALBUM

TWENTY-FOUR

PIANOFORTE PIECES FOR THE YOUNG

COMPOSED BY

P. TSCHAÏKOWSKY.

(Op. 39.)

EDITED AND REVISED BY

A. ROSENKRANZ.

IN THREE BOOKS.
Price One Shilling each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

SIX PIECES

FOR THE

PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED AS A CHRISTMAS PRESENT FOR HIS YOUNG FRIENDS

BY

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

EDITED AND REVISED BY A. ROSENKRANZ, WITH HISTORICAL NOTES BY F. G. EDWARDS.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

PROGRAMME NOTES

CONSISTING OF

FOUR HUNDRED AND SEVENTY BRIEF ANNOTATIONS ON PIECES

PERFORMED AT THE

ORGAN RECITALS, IN ST. GEORGE'S HALL, LIVERPOOL

BY

A. L. PEACE

Mus. Doc., Oxon.; Organist to the Corporation, Liverpool.

Price, cloth, Five Shillings.

The Book contains a special Illustration of the Organ in St. George's Hall, together with a specification of the instrument in its present revised form.

Free permission is granted to Organists who may wish to use these notes at their own recitals, provided that an acknowledgment of the source whence they are taken is duly expressed on the Programme.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

THE MUSIC STUDENT'S MANUSCRIPT NOTE BOOK

AND PRACTICE REGISTER

ARRANGED BY

C. EGERTON LOWE.

PREFACE.

This book is intended to meet the convenience of Teachers who wish to record clearly for a pupil's guidance the work to be prepared for each lesson or a series. The column headed "Time" is added for the purpose of indicating the number of minutes to be given to the daily practice of each separate subject. (This column is for the Teacher to fill up.)

A few pages of music paper have been inserted for the purpose of writing out turns, trills, &c., and blank pages have been left at the end on which it is suggested that a list of pieces studied should be kept or other memoranda made. The book will be found suitable for students of any instrument.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

To Male-Voice Choirs and Societies.

FOR SALE

(In good condition) about 50 Copies each of—

PART-SONG, "Bold Turpin"	Dr. Bridge, published at		4d.
BALLAD, "Horatius"	(A) Dr. Mee	"	1s.
PART-SONG, "Love's Name" ..	(A) Dr. Mee	"	3d.
MADRIGAL, "Go, lovely rose" ..	Dr. Read	"	3d.
BALLAD, "The Festival"	Dr. Bridge	"	1s.
TRIO (HUMOROUS), "Peter Piper" ..	Jarvis	"	3d.

Offers for the above to be addressed to Mr. F. W. HARVEY, 34, Addington Road, Reading.

A SERIES OF ORGAN PIECES

BY

JOHN E. CAMPBELL, A.R.C.O.

Price 4s. net, complete.

Send stamped addressed envelope to J. E. C., Cuba House, Ramsgate, for specimen bars of each piece, and particulars of special offer.

METZLER'S CHRISTMAS LIST.

CORONATION SONG. F. GAMBOGI.
The words by ALFRED, Lord TENNYSON.
Sung by Mr. Th. Meux. Price 2s. net (with Organ Obbligato).

FESTIVAL TE DEUM.
H.R.H. THE PRINCE CONSORT.
Performed in Westminster Abbey at Her Majesty Queen Victoria's Jubilee. Octavo. Price 4d.

UPON THE SNOW-CLAD EARTH.
ARTHUR SULLIVAN.
Carol for Christmastide. 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.

CHRISTMASSE OF OLDE.
GEORGE C. MARTIN.
Carol and Chorus. 2d.

MOTHER SLEEP (Song). LIZA LEHMANN.
Sung by Miss Esther Palliser, Miss Louise Dale, and Madame Ruth Lamb. 2s. net.

BETHLEHEM. CH. GOUNOD.
The Shepherds' Nativity Hymn.
Chorus with Pastoral Symphonies, 2s. net; Octavo, 3d.; as a Song, 2s. net; Organ Solo, 1s. 6d. net; Piano Solo, 1s. 3d. net; Piano Duet, 1s. 6d. net; Orchestral Parts, 5s. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.; words only, 2s. per 100.

SEVEN CHRISTMAS ANTHEMS.
J. L. HATTON.
Complete, 1s. net.

CHRISTMAS MORN. CH. GOUNOD.
Song, with Violin and Organ Obbligato. 2s. net.

THE BABE OF BETHLEHEM.
BENJAMIN GODARD.
Vocal Duet, 2s. net.

SEND OUT THY LIGHT. CH. GOUNOD.
Anthem. 6d. net. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN.
Anthem in "Quo Vadis." Written by WILSON BARRETT; composed by JOHN CROOK. Octavo, 6d. net.; as a Song, 2s. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.

SHEPHERD OF SOULS. EDWARD JONES.
From "The Sign of the Cross." Written by WILSON BARRETT. Octavo, 6d.; as a Song, 2s. net; Piano Solo, 2s. net; Organ, 2s. net; Violin (or Violoncello) and Piano, 2s. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.

CRAMER'S CHRISTMAS CAROLS. New and Old. Twenty-seven Carols, complete, 1s. net.

CRADLED SO LOWLY. F. L. MOIR.
Christmas Song. 2s. net.

CHRISTMAS BELLS. J. M. COWARD.
Song. Written by HENRY ROSE. Sung by Mr. Norman Salmond and Mr. Leo Stormont. 2s. net. Choral Edition, 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.; words only, 1s. per 100.

CAROL, CAROL, CHRISTIANS. W. BORROW.
Octavo, 3d.

SANTA CLAUS. OSCAR BARRETT.
A Fairy Pantomime. 1s.

LITTLE PICTURES OF SCHOOL LIFE.
MAUDE VALERIE WHITE.
Recitation, with Music, performed by Mrs. Kendal and the COMPOSER with the greatest success. Price 2s. 6d. net.

THE AMERICAN ORGAN JOURNAL.
Edited by J. M. COWARD.
Thirty-three Numbers published, 1s. 6d. each net.
Vols. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, bound in red cloth, gilt, 5s. each net.

LITTLE SONGS FOR LITTLE VOICES.
A. SCOTT-GATTY.
Books 1, 2, and 3, price 2s. 6d. each net; or, bound in cloth, gilt, 4s. each net.

PLEASE SING ME A SONG. R. B. ADDISON.
Album of Songs for Children. 2s. 6d. net; or, bound in cloth, gilt, 4s. net.

NURSERY RHYMES AND COUNTRY SONGS.
M. H. MASON.
Illustrated. Bound in cloth, gilt, 3s. net.

METZLER'S RED ALBUMS. Vocal and Instrumental.
Thirty-one Numbers published. 1s. each net.

TOY SYMPHONIES FOR CHILDREN.
By ROMBERG, HAYDN, and DESMOND RYAN.
Complete Scores, Pianoforte, String, and Toy Parts. (Toy Instruments, carefully tuned and regulated, 30s. and 33s. 9d. net per set.) List on application.

METZLER AND CO.,
40 to 43, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
AKIMENKO, TH.—Two Pieces. For Violoncello and Pianoforte. Op. 11. 1. Valse melancolique; 2. Intermezzo each	3	0
BACKER-GRONDAHL.—Etudes de Concert. For Pianoforte. 1. D major; 2. A minor; 3. E major .. .. each, net	1	6
BARTMUSS, R.—Concerto, No. 2. For Organ and Orchestra. Op. 33:— Full Score .. net 8 0 | Orchestral Parts .. net	8	0
BOHM, C.—"Lustspiele" Overture. For Pianoforte Solo. Op. 306	5	0
BORGSTRÖM, H.—Romanze. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 12 .. .. net	2	6
BÜCHNER, TH.—Festmarsch. For Harmonium and Piano	4	0
CHEVALLIER, H.—Kinderfest-Marsch. For Two Pianofortes (8 hands). Op. 27	3	0
COR DE LASS, J. DE—Berceuse. For Violin and Piano net	2	0
GOENS, D. VAN—2nd Concerto, in D. For Violoncello and Pianoforte. Op. 30 .. .. net	8	0
GRIEG.—Songs. Op. 69	2	2
1. A boat on the waves is rocking; 2. To my son; 3. At mother's grave; 4. Snail, snail; 5. Träume.
HARTMANN.—Cantilène. For String Quartet. Op. 17:— Score and Parts, net	1	6
—— Eine nordische Heerfahrt. For Two Pianofortes (8 hands). Op. 25	12	0
HOFFMANN, G.—"Ave Verum Corpus" (Mozart). For Violoncello and Harmonium	2	0
—— The same. For Violin and String Quartet	3	0
HUBAY.—Perpetuum mobile. For Violin and Piano. Op. 88	5	0
—— Etudes Concertantes. For Violin. Op. 89. In Two Books each	6	0
KLEFFEL.—"Marsch der Wichtelmänner." For Violin and Pianoforte	3	0
—— The same. For Flute and Pianoforte	3	0
KOESSLER, H.—Symphonische Variationen:— Full Score .. net 20 0 | Parts .. .. .. net	20	0
KURSCH, R.—Barcarole. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 8	3	0
LACROIX.—Pieces for the Organ:— Pièce Symphonique .. 8 0 | Marche Religieuse .. .. 8 0 Choral Paraphrase .. 10 0 | Moment Mystique .. .. 6 0 Fantaisie-Fugue .. 8 0 | Theme and Variations .. 12 0
LANGEY, O.—Arabische Serenade. For Pianoforte and Violin. Op. 24	3	0
—— The same. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Harmonium ..	4	0
LVOFF, A.—Overture, "Ondine." Arranged for Orchestra by BALAKIREW .. .. Full Score, net	6	6
MACDOWELL, E.—American Woodland Sketches. For Pianoforte .. .. net	5	0
—— Sea Pieces. For Pianoforte .. .. „	6	6
MIELCK, E.—String Quintet (F major). Op. 3 .. .. .. „	12	0
—— Finnische Suite. For Orchestra. Op. 10:— Full Score .. net 12 0 | Parts .. .. .. net	20	0
—— Symphonie, No. 1 (F minor). Op. 4:— Full Score .. net 32 0 | Parts .. .. .. net	40	0
MOLBE, H.—Dextuor. For Clarinet, English Horn, Horn, Fagott, Harp, Two Violins, Viola, Violoncello, and Contrabasso. Op. 91:— Full Score .. net 12 6 | Parts .. .. .. net	20	0
MONTI, V.—Pieces for Violoncello and Pianoforte:— 1. Pas du Tout .. net 2 0 | 3. Canzonetta .. „ 2. Un Soir à Bord .. 2 0 | 4. Nuit Etoilée .. „	2	0
PADEREWSKI, I. J.—"Manru." Opera, in Three Acts. Vocal Score, net	20	0
—— Potpourri on "Manru." For Pianoforte .. .. „	3	0
PARLOW, E.—Two Easy Serenades. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 51. 1. G major; 2. F major .. each, net	1	6
POLDINI, E.—Fantaisie. For Pianoforte. Op. 35	5	0
POPPER, D.—"High School for Cello Players." In Four Books .. .. each, net	6	0
RACHMANINOFF, S.—2nd Suite. For Two Pianofortes (4 hands). Op. 17 .. .. net	11	0
REINHARD, A.—Weihnachtsmusik. For Harmonium and Pianoforte	4	0
—— Sonata, No. 2 (D minor). For Harmonium and Pianoforte. Op. 85.	10	0
REUSS, A.—Symphonischer Prolog. For Orchestra. Op. 10:— Full Score .. net 16 0 | Parts .. .. .. net	21	0
RHEINBERGER, J.—20th Sonata (F major). For Organ. Op. 196	8	0
SCHUMANN, G.—Fantaisie-Etuden. For Pianoforte. Op. 26. In Two Books.. .. .. each, net	6	0
—— Sonata (C sharp minor). For Violin and Piano. Op. 12 „	6	0
SCHYTTE.—"Phantasiestück." For Harm. and Piano. Op. 43	3	0
SINDING.—Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 62. In Two Books:— Book I. Impromptu, Canto funèbre, Scherzetto .. net	2	2
„ II. Danse ancienne, Capriccio .. .. .. „	2	2
SÖCHTING, E.—Kinder-Trio, No. 1. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 21	5	0
TANÉÏEW, A. S.—Festlicher-Marsch. For Orchestra. Op. 12:— Full Score .. net 2 6 | Parts .. .. .. net	4	0
TSCHAÏKOWSKY.—"Le lac des Cygnes." Suite. For Orchestra:— Full Score .. net 17 6 | Parts (In the Press). Pianoforte Solo .. „ 3 6 | Pianoforte Duet .. net	6	6
ZOLOTAREFF, B.—1st String Quartet. Op. 5. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet	12	0

Sold at half-price, if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

MUSIC FOR THE ORGAN

BY THE LATE

FREDERIC ARCHER.

—THE ORGAN—

A THEORETICAL AND PRACTICAL TREATISE

INTENDED TO

ASSIST THE STUDENT IN ACQUIRING A SOUND KNOWLEDGE OF THE INSTRUMENT AND ITS PROPER MANIPULATION

WITH A SERIES OF

ORIGINAL EXERCISES & ILLUSTRATIVE COMPOSITIONS WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR THIS WORK.

REDUCED PRICES:

PAPER COVER, FIVE SHILLINGS.

CLOTH, SEVEN SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

THE ORGANISTS' JOURNAL:

A SERIES OF ARRANGEMENTS

(WITH PEDAL OBBLIGATO)

BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

ONE VOLUME, CLOTH, FIFTEEN SHILLINGS;

Or, in 14 Numbers, each, 2s.

1.	Largo (Piano Sonata in E flat, Op. 7)	Beethoven.
	Prelude and Fugue, in A minor	M. Brosig.
	Andantino, in A minor	E. Batiste.
	Allegretto Affettuoso	R. Schumann.
2.	Andante (Piano. Sonata in E minor)	Weber.
	Introduction and Fugue (from a Fantasia)	Kalkbrenner.
	Andantino, in G	M. Brosig.
3.	Andante (Sonata, Violin, and Piano)	M. Hauptmann.
	Fantasia, in G	E. Bunnett.
	Lied ohne Worte (No. 5, Book 6)	Mendelssohn.
	Adagio Maestoso	F. Archer.
	Fugue, in D minor	J. Keeble.
4.	Andante, in F (Op. 35)	Beethoven.
	March (from an Oratorio)	C. Steggall.
5.	Andante quasi Allegretto	C. E. Stephens.
	Introduction and Fugue, in C minor	E. F. Gaebler.
	Andante Sostenuto, in F	E. Batiste.
6.	Sketch, in C minor	R. Schumann.
	Air varied	H. Hiles.
	Ave Maria	A. Henselt.
7.	Andantino, in B flat	Spohr.
	Allegretto Scherzando (Sonata for Violoncello and Piano, in D)	Mendelssohn.
	Gigue	J. S. Bach.
8.	Larghetto (Duet for two Violins, Op. 150)	Spohr.
	March in "Tannhäuser"	Wagner.
	Andante, in A	M. Brosig.
9.	Fugue, in E minor	F. Schubert.
	Largo (Nocturne for Violin and Piano)	A. Holmes.
	Fugue, in D major	F. Archer.
10.	Andante (Symphony, in G minor)	Mozart.
	Minuet and Trio (Symphony, in G minor)	Mozart.
	Andante (from a Mass)	J. J. H. Verhulst.
11.	Grand Fantasia in F	F. Archer.
12.	Andante (Quintet, in A)	Mendelssohn.
	Largo (Sonata, in C minor)	J. Woelfl.
	Larghetto from a Quartet	Ouseley.
13.	Andante (2nd Symphony, Op. 26)	A. Hesse.
	Larghetto (3rd Symphony, Op. 55)	A. Hesse.
14.	Larghetto (5th Symphony, Op. 64)	A. Hesse.
	Andante (6th Symphony, Op. 75)	A. Hesse.
	Nachspiel	W. Volckmann.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS.

BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

	s.	d.
Fugue, in D major	2	0
Grand Fantasia, in F	2	0
Andante, in D	1	0
Andante, in F	1	0
Andante, in A	1	0
Concert Variations	2	0
Allegretto, in E, and Prelude, in G	1	0
Motivo, in B flat, Fugue, in D minor	1	0
Marche Triomphale	1	6
Allemande	1	0

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

VOCAL EXERCISES

WITH MARKS OF EXPRESSION AND PHRASING BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

CONCONE

50 LESSONS FOR THE MEDIUM PART OF THE VOICE. (Cloth, 3/-).
25 LESSONS. A SEQUEL TO THE FIFTY LESSONS FOR THE MEDIUM PART OF THE VOICE.
15 VOCALISES. A SEQUEL TO THE TWENTY-FIVE LESSONS FOR THE MEDIUM PART OF THE VOICE.
DITTO. ARRANGED FOR MEZZO-SOPRANO OR CONTRALTO.
40 LESSONS FOR CONTRALTO.
40 LESSONS FOR BASS OR BARITONE.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

AUGUSTE PANSERON

FORTY MELODIC AND PROGRESSIVE

VOCAL EXERCISES

FOR SOPRANO OR TENOR. IN TWO PARTS.

PART I. Containing Nos. 1 to 26. PART II. Containing Nos. 27 to 40.

Price Two Shillings each Part.

FORTY-TWO MELODIC AND PROGRESSIVE

VOCAL EXERCISES

FOR CONTRALTO, BARITONE, OR BASS.

IN TWO PARTS.

PART I. Containing Nos. 1 to 29. PART II. Containing Nos. 30 to 42.

Price Two Shillings each Part.

FIFTY VOCALISES FOR TWO VOICES.

(SOPRANO AND MEZZO-SOPRANO, OR TENOR AND SOPRANO, OR TENOR AND BARITONE). IN TWO PARTS.

PART I. Containing Nos. 1 to 30. PART II. Containing Nos. 31 to 50.

Price Two Shillings each Part.

MARCO BORDOGNI

TWENTY-FOUR

VOCAL EXERCISES

FOR MEZZO-SOPRANO.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

SONGS FROM THE OPERAS AND ORATORIOS

WITH MARKS OF EXPRESSION AND PHRASING BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

LE NOZZE DI FIGARO.

BOOK 1.
SOPRANO (The Countess).
1. PORGI AMOR. 2. DOVE SONO.
3. AL DESIO DI CHI T' ADORA.

BOOK 2.
SOPRANO (Susanna & Cherubino).
1. DEH VIENI, NON TARDAR.
2. NON SO PIÙ COSA SON.
3. VOI, CHE SAPETE.
4. UN MOTO DI GIOJA.

BOOK 3.
BARITONE (Figaro).
1. SE VUOL BALLARE.
2. NON PIÙ ANDRAI.
3. APRITE UN PO' QUEGL' OCCHI.

BOOK 4.
BARITONE AND BASS (The Count and Bartolo).
1. VEDRÒ MENTR' IO SOSPIRO.
2. LA VENDETTA.

DON GIOVANNI.

BOOK 1.
SOPRANO (Donna Anna and Donna Elvira).
1. NON MI DIR. 2. MI TRADÌ.

BOOK 2.
SOPRANO (Zerlina).
1. VEDRAI CARINO.
2. BATTI, BATTI, O BEL MASETTO.

BOOK 3.
TENOR (Don Ottavio).
1. IL MIO TESORO.
2. DALLA SUA PACE.

BOOK 4.
BARITONE AND BASS (Don Giovanni and Leporello).
1. DEH, VIENI ALLA FINESTRA.
2. FIN CH'HAN DAL VINO.
3. MADAMINA.

Price Two Shillings each.

THE SOLO MUSIC IN "ELIJAH"

SOPRANO, CONTRALTO, and TENOR, each One Shilling and Sixpence.
BASS SOLO MUSIC, Two Shillings and Sixpence.

HANDEL'S SONGS

FROM THE ORATORIOS.

FOUR BOOKS, EACH CONTAINING TWELVE SONGS:
SOPRANO, CONTRALTO, TENOR, BARITONE OR BASS.

Price Two Shillings each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

The Associated Board Examinations, 1902.

NOVELLO'S EDITIONS.

PIANOFORTE.

LOCAL CENTRE—JUNIORS.

	NET. s. d.
BACH.—Fugue in E minor, No. 10 of Book I. (48 Preludes and Fugues, Edited by W. T. Best)	6 0
CRAMER.—In C, No. 43 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book XXV.)	1 0
BEETHOVEN.—Sonata in E, Op. 14, No. 1 (Edited by A. Zimmermann, No. 9)	2 0
BACH.—Invention in Three Parts, No. 6, in E (Edited by J. Higgs)	1 6
MENDELSSOHN.—Lied ohne Worte, in A flat, Op. 38, No. 6 (Lied No. 18)	0 9
SCHUBERT —No. 4, in C sharp minor of "Moments Musicals," Op. 94 (Pianoforte Albums, No. 49)	1 0
CRAMER.—In D minor, No. 24 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book VII.)	1 0
CLEMENTI.—In A, No. 9 of Gradus (F. Taylor's Studies, Book XV.)	1 0
BEETHOVEN.—Allegretto in F minor, from Sonata, Op. 10, No. 2 (Edited by A. Zimmermann, No. 6)	2 0
HANDEL.—Courante in E minor, from Suite IV. (Pianoforte Albums, No. 4)	1 0

LOCAL CENTRE—SENIORS.

BACH.—Fugue in F, No. 11 of Book I. (48 Preludes and Fugues, Edited by W. T. Best)	6 0
MOSCHELES.—In E flat minor, Op. 70, No. 8 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book XXXVI.)	1 0
BEETHOVEN.—Prestissimo in C minor (Finale), from Sonata, Op. 10, No. 1 (Edited by A. Zimmermann, No. 5)	2 0
RHEINBERGER.—Fugue in G minor, Op. 5, No. 3 (Pianoforte Albums, No. 23)	1 0
HANDEL.—Gigue in A, from Suite No. 1 (Pianoforte Albums, No. 4)	1 0
CZERNY.—In A, Op. 740, No. 26 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book XVI.)	1 0
MOZART.—Adagio in E flat, from Sonata in C minor (Edited by A. Zimmermann, No. 14A)	2 6
MENDELSSOHN.—Lied ohne Worte, in B flat minor, Op. 30, No. 2 (Lied No. 8)	0 9

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—ELEMENTARY.

LEMOINE.—In C, Nos. 1 and 2, Op. 37 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book III.)	1 0
CZERNY.—In C, Op. 599, No. 18 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book I.)	1 0

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—LOWER DIVISION.

CZERNY.—In D, Op. 636, No. 11 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book X.)	1 0
BEETHOVEN.—Rondo (Allegro) in G, from Sonatina, Op. 49, No. 1 (Edited by A. Zimmermann, No. 19.)	1 6
CZERNY.—In C, Op. 299, No. 8 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book XVII.)	1 0
MOZART.—Minuets 1 and 2, from Sonata in E flat (Edited by A. Zimmermann, No. 4)	1 6

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—HIGHER DIVISION.

BACH.—Invention in two parts, No. 13, in A minor (Edited by J. Higgs)	1 6
CZERNY.—In C, Op. 299, No. 5 (F. Taylor's Studies, Book IV.)	1 0
MOZART.—Allegretto (Finale), from Sonata in D (Edited by A. Zimmermann, No. 19)	2 6

ORGAN.

LOCAL CENTRE—JUNIORS.

BEST.—Thirty Progressive Studies, Op. 33, Nos. 18, 29, 30	2 6
SMART.—Twelve short and easy pieces, No. 1 in E flat	2 6
MENDELSSOHN.—Allegretto in F, Sonata IV.	2 6

LOCAL CENTRE—SENIORS.

BEST.—Studies for the Pedal, Nos. 89, 96, 102. (Art of Organ-Playing, Part II.)	7 6
LEMMENS.—Allegretto in B flat (Four Pieces for the Organ, No. 1)	2 0
BACH.—Fugue in A major (Bridge and Higgs' Edition, Book III.)	3 0

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—LOWER DIVISION.

STAINER.—Organ Primer, Nos. 35, 56, 59, and 64 (Novello's Primers, No. 3)	2 0
MENDELSSOHN.—Adagio in A flat, Sonata 1	2 6
BACH.—Acht kleine Präludien und Fugen, No. 1 in C major (Bridge and Higgs' Edition, Book I.)	2 6

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—HIGHER DIVISION.

ARCHER.—The Organ, Nos. 237, 238	6 0
RINK.—Organ School, No. 155	2 6
BACH.—Short Prelude and Fugue in E minor (Bridge and Higgs' Edition, Book II.)	3 0

VIOLIN.

LOCAL CENTRE—JUNIORS.

ELGAR, E.—Chanson de Nuit	1 6
HANDEL.—Sonata, No. 5, First and Second Movements (Piano and Violin Albums, No. 17)	3 6

VIOLIN—(continued).

LOCAL CENTRE—SENIORS.

FLORILLO.—36 Etuden, Nos. 3, 12, 28	1 1
BEETHOVEN.—Sonata in A major, Op. 12, No. 2	4 4

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—ELEMENTARY.

WILHELMJ.—Modern Violin School. Book IA	2 0
WILHELMJ.—Modern Violin School. Book IB	2 0
Twelve Folk Dances from Denmark. Nos. 4 and 7 (Wilhelmj's School)	2 0

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—LOWER DIVISION.

WILHELMJ.—Modern Violin School. Book IA	2 0
PARRY, C. H. H.—Twelve Short Pieces. Second Set	2 6

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—HIGHER DIVISION.

WILHELMJ.—Modern Violin School. Book IIIB	3 0
WARNER, H. WALDO.—Elegie	1 6

VIOLONCELLO.

LOCAL CENTRE—SENIORS.

MENDELSSOHN.—Last Movement, Sonata in B flat	3 6

SINGING.

LOCAL CENTRE—SOPRANO.

HANDEL.	O worse than death / Angels ever bright / and fair	From 12 Soprano Songs, from Handel's Oratorios (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0
PURCELL.—Nymphs and Shepherds (Edited by W. H. Cummings). Novello's Purcell Album			2 6
MOZART.—Voi che sapete. Novello's edition of the Songs in Le Nozze di Figaro (Edited by A. Randegger)			2 0

MEZZO-SOPRANO.

BORDOGNI.—24 Vocal Exercises (Edited by A. Randegger)			1 6
HANDEL.	To Heaven's Almighty King / O Liberty, thou choicest treasure	From 12 Soprano Songs, from Handel's Oratorios (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0
SCHUMANN.—Widmung in A flat (Dedication)			1 0

CONTRALTO.

PANSERON.—42 Exercises for Contralto, Part I. (Edited by A. Randegger)			2 0
HANDEL.—	Then shall the eyes / He shall feed his flock	From 12 Contralto Songs from Handel's Oratorios (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0
BRAHMS.—Sapphic Ode, in D (Roses gathered I), Book II., Low Voice			3 0

TENOR.

HANDEL.—	O God, Who from / Sing Songs of Praise	From 12 Tenor Songs from Handel's Oratorios (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0

BARITONE.

PANSERON.— 42 Exercises for Baritone or Bass, Part I. (Edited by A. Randegger)			2 0
HANDEL.—	Behold, I tell you / The trumpet shall sound	From 12 Bass Songs from Handel's Oratorios (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0

BASS.

CONCONE.—40 Lessons for Bass (Edited by A. Randegger)			1 6
HANDEL.—	Be comforted / The Lord worketh wonders	From 12 Bass Songs from Handel's Oratorios (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0
SCHUBERT.—The Wanderer, Schubert's Songs, Vol. II.			1 6

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—ELEMENTARY.

SOPRANO.

CONCONE.—50 Lessons (Edited by A. Randegger)	1 6

MEZZO-SOPRANO.

PANSERON.—40 Exercises, Part I. (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0
BRAHMS.—Wiegenlied, in E flat (Lullaby and Goodnight), Book III., Low Voice	3 0

CONTRALTO.

PANSERON.—42 Exercises, Part I. (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS—SOPRANO.

CONCONE.—50 Lessons (Edited by A. Randegger)	1 6
SAINT-SAËNS.—Thou, O Lord, my Helper (19th Psalm)	1 6
HAYDN.—My mother bids me bind my hair	1 0

MEZZO-SOPRANO.

CONCONE.—50 Lessons (Edited by A. Randegger)	1 6
BENNETT, W. STERNDALE.—Dawn, gentle flower	1 6

CONTRALTO.

PANSERON.—42 Exercises for Contralto, Part I. (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0
HANDEL.— Return, O God of Hosts. From 12 Contralto Songs from Handel's Oratorios (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0

BARITONE AND BASS.

CONCONE.—40 Lessons for Bass or Baritone (Ed. by A. Randegger)	1 6
MENDELSSOHN.—For the mountains shall depart. From the Bass Solo Music in the Elijah (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 6
MENDELSSOHN.—Consume them all (St. Paul)	1 0
MOZART.—Se vuol ballare. Novello's edition of the Songs in Mozart's Le Nozze di Figaro (Edited by A. Randegger)	2 0
SCHUMANN.—Row gently here (Edited by Macfarren, No. 26)	0 9

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

VALUABLE VIOLINS.

MESSRS. PUTTICK & SIMPSON'S

NEXT SALE

OF

VALUABLE VIOLINS, VIOLAS, & VIOLONCELLOS

ALL OF WHICH ARE GUARANTEED GENUINE AS DESCRIBED IN THE CATALOGUE

WILL TAKE PLACE

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1901.

Amateurs and others having Instruments they wish to dispose of are requested to communicate with the Auctioneers,

MESSRS. PUTTICK & SIMPSON,
REYNOLDS HOUSE,
47, LEICESTER SQUARE, LONDON.

Second Edition.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

CANTATA FOR CHORUS, SOLI, AND ORCHESTRA

Price 3s.; Choral Parts, 1s. each. Also,

"GOD IS OUR REFUGE" (Ps. 46)

For Chorus, Soli, and Orchestra. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH,

Mus. Bac., Cantab.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TWENTY-FOUR

POPULAR MARCHES

FOR THE ORGAN
IN TWO VOLUMES.

VOLUME 1.

1. Marche Triomphale .. .. F. Archer.
2. The Bride's March, from "Rebekah" .. J. Barnby.
3. Harvest Thanksgiving March .. .. J. B. Calkin.
4. March for a Church Festival .. .. E. T. Driffield.
5. Imperial March .. .. E. Elgar.
6. March to Calvary, from "The Redemption" Ch. Gounod.
7. Religious March .. .. G. A. Macfarren.
8. March, from "Abraham" .. .. .. B. Molique.
9. March in B flat .. .. E. Silas.
10. Festive March in D .. .. H. Smart.
11. March in G .. .. B. Tours.
12. March in D minor .. .. .. Agnes Zimmermann.

VOLUME 2.

13. March for a Church Festival .. .. .. W. T. Best.
14. Processional Wedding March .. .. .. H. R. Bird.
15. Festal March .. .. J. B. Calkin.
16. Solemn March, from "The Black Knight" .. E. Elgar.
17. Festal March .. .. G. Elvey.
18. Marche Solennelle .. .. Ch. Gounod.
19. March, from "St. Polycarp" .. .. F. A. G. Ouseley.
20. March, with Pastoral Trio .. .. .. B. L. Selby.
21. March in G .. .. H. Smart.
22. Jubilant March .. .. J. Stainer.
23. March in F .. .. J. H. Wallis.
24. Commemoration March .. .. .. John E. West.

Price Four Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

BALLADE

FROM THE

SYMPHONY IN C MINOR

COMPOSED BY

FREDERIC CLIFFE.

FULL SCORE. Price 5s.
String Parts, 3s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 6s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

THE GENTLE SHEPHERD

SONG

Words by WILFRID MILLS

MUSIC BY

JOSEPH H. ADAMS.

No. 1, in F. For Contralto or Bass.
No. 2, in A flat. For Soprano or Tenor.
No. 3, in G. For Mezzo-Soprano or Baritone.

Price Two Shillings net.

SUN OF MY SOUL

SONG

Words by JOHN KEBLE

MUSIC BY

JOSEPH H. ADAMS.

No. 1, in D. For Mezzo-Soprano or Baritone.
No. 2, in F. For Soprano or Tenor.
No. 3, in C. For Contralto or Bass.

Price Two Shillings net.

Orchestral Parts to either Song on application to the Publishers.

SUN OF MY SOUL

Arranged as an Anthem by the COMPOSER.
Price 3d.; Sol-fa, 2d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

ORCHESTRAL WORKS BY BRITISH CO

			STRINGS.
			s.	d.
WILLIAM HENRY BELL	...	"A Song in the Morning"	7	0	...
FREDERIC H. COWEN	...	Symphony No. 4 (The Welsh)	7	0	...
" "	...	Four English Dances in the Olden Style	6	0	...	1
" "	...	Do. (Small Orchestra)	6	0	...	9
" "	...	Waltz from "The Sleeping Beauty"	2	0	...	3
" "	...	Overture, "The Butterfly's Ball"	6	6	...	14
S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR	...	Four Characteristic Waltzes (also for Small Orchestra) ...	6	0	...	12
" "	...	Ballade in D minor (Violin and Orchestra)	2	6	...	—
" "	...	Overture to "The Song of Hiawatha"	5	0	...	13	6
" "	...	Solemn Prelude	2	6	...	—
" "	...	Ballade in A minor	4	6	...	10	6	...
" "	...	Scenes from An Everyday Romance	9	6	...	—
" "	...	Romance in G (Violin and Orchestra)...	2	6	...	—
" "	...	"Toussaint l'Ouverture"	6	0	...	—
" "	...	Idyll	2	6	...	—
FREDERICK CLIFFE	...	Symphony in C minor	11	0	...	21	0	...
" "	...	Ballade from do.	3	6	...	6	6	...
EDWARD ELGAR	...	Variations on an Original Theme	10	0	...	22	0	...
" "	...	Prelude and Angel's Farewell ("Gerontius")	3	0	...	—
" "	...	Imperial March	2	0	...	7	0	...
" "	...	Meditation ("The Light of Life")	2	0	...	5	6	...
" "	...	Froissart. Concert Overture	4	6	...	9	0	...
" "	...	Triumphal March ("Caractacus")	2	6	...	10	6	...
" "	...	Chanson de Nuit	1	3	...	1	6	...
" "	...	Chanson de Matin	1	6	...	1	6	...
" "	...	Three Pieces. 1. Mazurka	2	6	...	5	0	...
" "	...	2. Sérénade Mauresque	2	6	...	4	3	...
" "	...	3. Contrasts	2	6	...	5	3	...
" "	...	Intermezzo ("Dorabella") for strings, woodwind, and drums (from Variations on an Original Theme)	2	3	...	1	6	...
ERNEST FORD	...	Grande Valse from the "Faust" Ballet	2	6	...	11	3	...
" "	...	Scène Bacchanale from the "Faust" Ballet	5	0	...	11	3	...
HENRY GADSBY	...	"The Forest of Arden." Intermezzo and Tantarra	4	0	...	6	0	...
EDWARD GERMAN	...	"Henry VIII." Overture	3	0	...	—
" "	...	Do. Prelude, Act II.	2	0	...	—
" "	...	Do. Prelude, Act III.	2	0	...	4	3	...
" "	...	Do. Coronation March	2	0	...	4	3	...
" "	...	Do. Prelude, Act V.	2	0	...	—
" "	...	Do. Three Dances	4	0	...	7	6	...
" "	...	"As you like it." Masque (Three Dances)	4	6	...	10	6	...
" "	...	English Fantasia, "In Commemoration"	5	6	...	—
" "	...	"Gipsy Suite." Four Characteristic Dances	7	0	...	14	0	...
" "	...	"Hamlet." Symphonic Poem	6	6	...	13	0	...
" "	...	"The Seasons." Spring	5	0	...	12	3	...
" "	...	Do. Harvest Dance (Summer)	5	0	...	12	6	...
" "	...	Do. Autumn	2	6	...	6	0	...
" "	...	Do. Winter	7	0	...	16	6	...
" "	...	Suite in D minor	13	6	...	26	6	...
" "	...	Do. Valse Gracieuse	4	0	...	10	0	...
" "	...	"Richard III." Overture	2	6	...	7	0	...
" "	...	"Romeo and Juliet." Prelude	2	6	...	5	6	...
" "	...	Do. Pastorale	2	0	...	5	6	...
" "	...	Do. Pavane	2	0	...	5	6	...
" "	...	Do. Nocturne	2	0	...	5	6	...
" "	...	Do. Dramatic Interlude	2	0	...	5	6	...
" "	...	"Much ado about nothing." Overture	4	6	...	10	6	...
" "	...	Do. Bourreé and Gigue	4	0	...	9	0	...
BATTISON HAYNES	...	"Westwood" Gavotte (also for Small Orchestra)	2	0	...	4	3	...
" "	...	Idyll (Violin and Orchestra)	2	0	...	2	9	...
GEORGE HENSCHEL	...	Incidental Music to Shakespeare's "Hamlet"	7	6	...	15	0	...
OLIVER KING	...	Concert Overture (No. 1), "Among the Pines"	2	6	...	7	3	...
" "	...	Concert Overture (No. 2)	2	0	...	—
" "	...	"Night." A Symphony in F	8	6	...	—
ALEX. C. MACKENZIE	...	Benedictus	1	6	...	2	0	...
" "	...	"Burns." 2nd Scotch Rhapsody	3	6	...	6	6	...
" "	...	"Colomba." Prelude	2	0	...	4	9	...
" "	...	Do. Ballet Music and Rustic March	4	0	...	9	3	...
" "	...	Concerto for Violin	6	6	...	10	3	...
" "	...	Highland Ballad	2	6	...	4	0	...
" "	...	"Jason." Intermezzo	2	0	...	5	3	...
" "	...	"La belle dame sans merci"	5	6	...	11	9	...
" "	...	"The Little Minister." Overture	4	6	...	10	0	...
" "	...	Do. Three Dances (also for Small Orchestra)	4	6	...	11	0	...
" "	...	"Manfred." "Astarte"	3	0	...	—
" "	...	Do. Pastorale	4	0	...	—
" "	...	Do. "The Flight of the Spirits"	5	0	...	—
" "	...	Morris Dance	2	6	...	—
" "	...	Pibroch Suite (Violin Solo and Orchestra)	6	6	...	11	6	...
" "	...	Processional March	2	6	...	—
" "	...	"Ravenswood" Music (Prelude and 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Entr'actes)	10	6	...	—
" "	...	Do. Courante (3rd Entr'acte)	2	0	...	6	0	...
" "	...	Rhapsodie Ecossaise (No. 1)	3	6	...	8	0	...
" "	...	"Story of Sayid." Solemn March	1	6	...	3	9	...
" "	...	"Twelfth Night." Overture	6	6	...	12	0	...
HAMISH MACCUNN	...	"The Land of the Mountain and the Flood"	4	0	...	8	0	...
C. H. H. PARRY	...	Symphonic Variations	4	6	...	8	6	...
PERCY PITT	...	Air de Ballet (String Orchestra)	2	6	...	—		...
" "	...	Ballade. Violin Solo and Orchestra	2	6	...	6	0	...
" "	...	Coronation March	2	6	...	In the Press.
C. VILLIERS STANFORD	...	The Irish Symphony	11	0	...	22	6	...
" "	...	Prelude to "Œdipus Rex"	4	0	...	8	0	...
" "	...	Symphony (No. 4) in F major	13	0	...	26	0	...
" "	...	Suite for Violin and Orchestra	7	0	...	12	6	...
ARTHUR SULLIVAN	...	Overture, "In Memoriam"	4	6	...	8	6	...
" "	...	Overture, "Di Ballo"	5	0	...	12	0	...
" "	...	"The Tempest." Incidental Music	11	6	...	19	0	...

	In the Press.
	In the Press.
	In the Press.

CHAPPELL & CO.'S
BALLAD CONCERT SUCCESSES.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS NET EACH.

M[illegible]ERIE WHITE.
[illegible]ing of Life.
[illegible]le Child.
[illegible]oi.
1. [illegible]ast Year
2. The Fifes of June } Two Songs.
The Irish Colonel.
The Spring has come.

FLORENCE AYLWARD.
1. A Reverie
2. An April Song } Two Songs (First Set).
1. A Soul in Exile
2. The Wind in the Barley } Two Songs (Second Set).
A Greenland Lullaby.
Not Mine to Ask.
The Sailing of the Long-Ships.
Caractacus of Britain.

A. L.
Marie Antoinette.
En Septembre.

A. L. (Arranged by).
How Deep the Slumber of the Floods (Carl Löwe).

FRANCES ALLITSEN.
Dainty Clare.
On the River.

GUY D'HARDELOT.
1. The Perfect Flower.
2. The Sun and the Shower } Two Songs.
An Old Romance.

REGINALD SOMERVILLE.
Only.
When Crocuses upon the Green.
The Miniature.

J. M. CAPEL.
The Moon Maiden.
Dear little Friend.

H. TROTÈRE.
The Happy Valley.

D'AUVERGNE BARNARD.
My Promise.
Cara Mia.

HOWARD TALBOT.
Bric-à-Brac.

FREDERIC NORTON.
Madcap Marjorie.
The Fairies and the Flowers.

MURRAY McDONALD DAVEY.
The First Spring Day.

BERNARD ROLT.
The Mist Maiden.

TERESA DEL RIEGO.
O Dry those Tears.
True Lover's Song.
Slave Song.
Mon Ami.
Harmony.
Red Clover.
Little Red-Coat.

EDWARD GERMAN.
Sea Lullaby.
Fair Flowers.
Birds on Wing.
In Summer Time.
Or, complete in One Vol., price 4s. net.

EDWARD GERMAN (Arranged by).
Early One Morning.

P. MARIO COSTA.
Shadow and Sun.
Say Hullo!

L. DENZA.
Serenade in Summer.
An Orchard Cradle Song.

HERMANN LÖHR.
An Episode
If all the Young Maidens } Two Songs.
When Jack and I were Children.
Lady Mine.
Chorus, Gentlemen!"
1. To my First Love.
2. You'd Better Ask Me. } Two Little Irish Songs.

NOEL JOHNSON.
At Dusk.
One of These Days.
1. The Rose
2. The River and the Sea } Two Songs (1st Set).
1. God's Rest
2. My Love's a Butterfly } Two Songs (2nd Set).

GEORGE H. CLUTSAM.
A Madrigal.

CHARLES DEACON.
A Little While.

FRANCO LEONI.
A Song of the Cruise.
Earth's Wedding Ring.

GEORGE AITKEN.
Lead, Kindly Light.
Maire, My Girl.

ALFRED SOLMAN.
The Way of the Cross.

FRANK LAMBERT.
One.
A Farewell.
Lotus Land.
One Life, One Love.
There was a Star.

SERIES OF SHORT SONGS (each 1s. 6d. net).
1. 'Tis Night.
2. Love in Absence.
3. A Barque at Midnight.
4. The Night has a Thousand Eyes.
5. One More Clasp.
6. O Purest Pearl.
7. Because My Heart-wound.
8. See, Love, I Bring Thee Flowers.
9. A Lament.

JUST ISSUED.

"A THEMATIC LIST OF NEW AND POPULAR SONGS" (for all Voices)
By the most eminent composers, giving the keys and compasses, words, and a few bars of each song.
POST-FREE UPON APPLICATION.

CHAPPELL & CO., LTD., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON.

Printed by NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Ltd., at the Novello Works, Soho, and published at 1, Berners St. (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen St. (E.C.)
Sold also by SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, HAMILTON, KENT AND CO., Ltd., Paternoster Row (E.C.)—Saturday, November 30, 1901.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY
3 9999 08818 991 3